ASSOCIATED MENNONITE BIBLICAL SEMINARY
3 9304 01035500 7

GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA
M Historical Library
Class No. 051 Date Received Jan. 1948
Book No. M52 Donor M.H.A.
V. 61 1946
Accession No. 395 Fund Hist
This book should be returned at the end of 2 weeks; otherwise a fine of 2 cents a day is charged for each additional day.

TheMennonite

3145 Benham Avenue
Suite 4
Elkhart, IN 46517
Phone: 800-790-2498

AnnaG@TheMennonite.org www.TheMennonite.org

Nov. 12, 2014

Colleen McFarland,
Director of Archives and Records Management
Mennonite Church USA
1700 S Main St
Goshen, IN 46526

Dear Colleen,
We are pleased to know that Mennonite Church USA has received a grant to digitize the print files of Gospel Herald and The Mennonite.

You have our full permission to digitize all issues of The Mennonite and make them available for free, with full-text access.

Best wishes in this important endeavor.

Sincerely,

Anna Groff

Interim Editor
The Mennonite

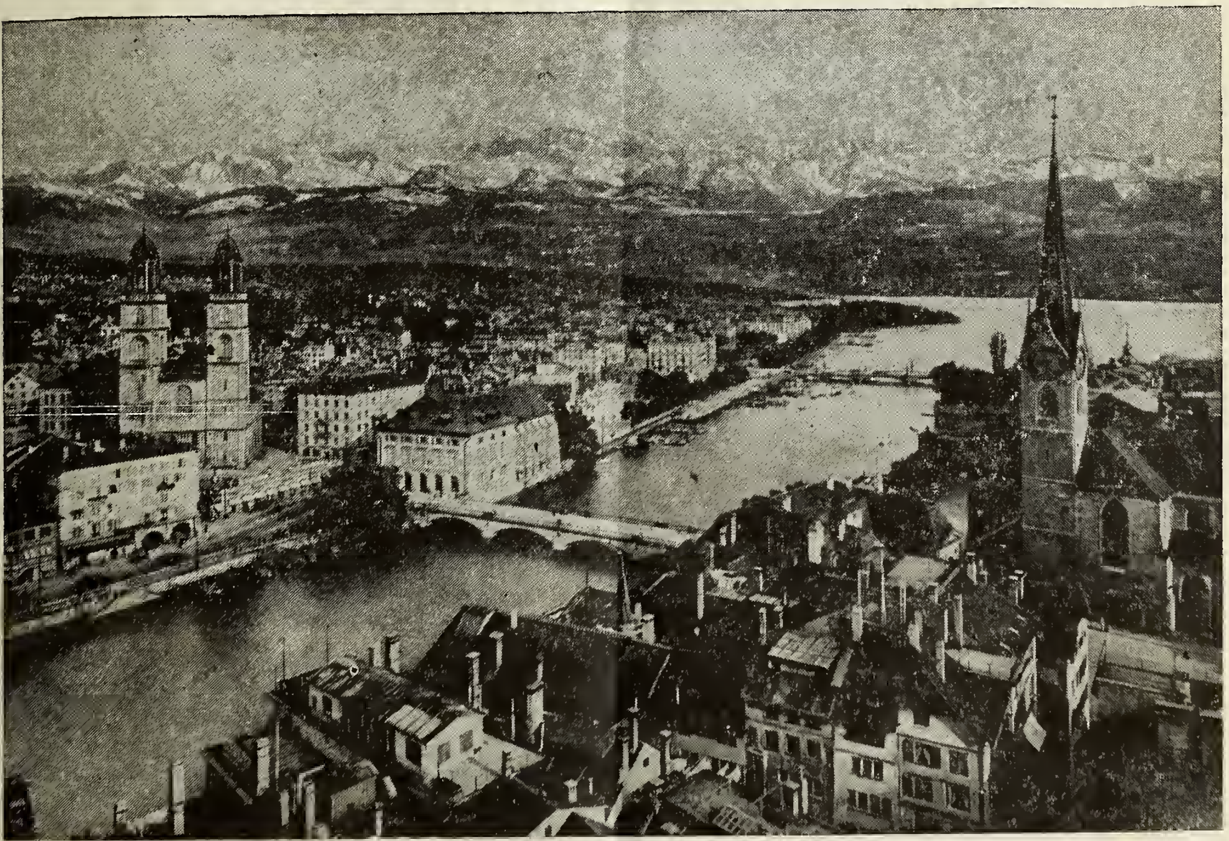
This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial 4.0 International License.
The Anabaptist Mennonite Digital Collaborative, coordinated by staff at Mennonite Church USA, Goshen College, and Anabaptist Mennonite Biblical Seminary, is working with Internet Archive to provide digital copies of this title. Please seek permission from the copyright owner if your use of this item is not permitted under the license.

Digitized by the Internet Archive
in 2015

https://archive.org/details/mennonite19466

The Mennonite

VOLUME LXI NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, JANUARY 1, 1946 NUMBER 1



Let the Old Welcome the New

The picture above shows the place where a new religious movement was conceived. Zurich, Switzerland, located where the Limmat River flows into the Lake of Zurich, is the cradle of the Mennonite Church. At the left is the "Grossmunter" in which Zwingli preached the gospel and started the Reformation in that country. Even though the New was not welcomed by all, it found its way. Among Zwingli's followers were some who thought he did not preach the unadulterated Word of God and was too greatly dependent upon the City Council and public opinion. They became the founders of the Mennonite Church and pioneers of religious ideas and convictions that were far from welcome to the Old. January 5, 1527, Felix Manz died as the first martyr for the cause. While he was being rowed out to be drowned in the Lake of Zurich his brethren encouraged him from the shore.

Four hundred years later Mennonites from all over the world met at this very place for the first Mennonite World Conference. Representatives of the City Council, the State Church, and the University of Zurich were present at this conference. They publicly apologized for the sins of their forefathers in persecuting the early Mennonites whom they acknowledged as religious pioneers. They proved their sincerity by bestowing upon the Chairman of the Mennonite World Conference, Rev. Christian Neff, the honorary degree in theology.

Everyone was greatly moved when Rev. Neff arose to say the following, "I thank the Department of Theology of the University of Zurich for this extraordinary honor. Personally I feel unworthy because of the many short-comings in my achievements. I strive only to fill a gap in the Brotherhood to which I belong. This honor is not for me, but for the Brotherhood. How times have changed! Four hundred years ago Felix Manz who was qualified and trained to hold an honorary position was drowned at this place; and now the University of this city gives an honorary degree to a Mennonite whose ancestors lived in the Canton of Zurich whence they were driven out because of their beliefs. I thank you!"

It was a long time before the Old, represented in the Reformed Church and government of Switzerland, was willing to welcome the New.

Are we Mennonites of today still pioneers of the New? Many new problems, responsibilities, and ideas will, during the New Year, knock at our door as opportunities. They challenge again and again. No, we should not accept all of them unreservedly. Based on the Word of God and our Christian experience and vision, we must select and reject. On this basis "let the old welcome the new"!

—Cornelius Krahn

(Photo, courtesy Official Information Bureau of Switzerland)

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

The Dear Ones in Alberta

By H. J. Brown

For a long time I have felt a desire to visit Alberta. Then too, during these last years I have been invited again and again to come there. This is already the second year that the Foreign Mission Board has sanctioned my plan to go there, but always something interfered and it could not well be arranged. But now, finally, it has come to pass. After I had, during the first two weeks of September, visited the churches in Mountain Lake, Warroad, Munich, Alsen, Wolf Point, Lustre and Bloomfield, I went straight across the boundary into Alberta, Canada. Spring Ridge was to be the first station, but poor Spring Ridge could not even be found on the map. At Lethbridge I arrived in snow and rain. But, what now? I had given instructions that they should get me from there, but nobody was there. It was difficult to decide what was best to do. Coaldale lies twelve miles distant. Well and good, on the following morning I went to Coaldale, which is only a very small town. But was there mud on the street! My rubbers simply would get stuck. Finally I was in A. A. Thiessen's store. He and Mrs. Thiessen received me kindly; Brother Enns came also, and now a consultation was held. Soon they were connected by telephone with Spring Ridge. The car brought me as far as Brocket, and those people got me from there. From Spring Ridge on, the way often led through snow and deep mud for fully two weeks, but I always found a friendly reception, and the brothers and sisters tried their best to visit the meetings. They also showed a great interest for all undertakings of the General Conference for the Kingdom of the Lord. Since the first of September I have spoken thirty-six times and have also made many visits in the homes (reported some time ago). It has been a great joy to me to see how all take hold so courageously to help in the work of the Lord. Home Missions, foreign missions, relief work, everything is on their heart. Most of them have migrated from Russia and know from experience what want is. They are thankful for their own salvation; and now they are sending much meat, flour, clothing and money to Europe and to other places, to save people. During the last two weeks we had fine sunshine there, and the weather was really nice. It is only regrettable, that many groups are located at two great a distance. Some of these do not have the necessary nurture. Here and there the Mennonites will hardly be able to maintain themselves. At present they are still faithful to their people and to their God, but there exists a great danger that if they do not soon settle elsewhere, they and their children will suffer spiritually, and that we as a conference will lose them and their participation in the work of the Lord. The brethren and sisters themselves are concerned and beg so fervently, "Please visit us more frequently. Do not leave us. We wish to remain with you, and as strength permits, take part in the great work of the Lord!"

(Continued from page 3)

one's eyes and feel oneself inside one's hand. Seeing other people from the inside is considerably different from seeing them from the outside. The more we know about the inside of a person, the more real, and alive he is to us. Furthermore, the more we feel at one with him. Jesus knew what was in man, and He loved everyone. On this kind of a basis it is possible to weep with those who weep and to rejoice with those who rejoice. From birth on life is, or at least should be, a matter of increasing consciousness. As we know the inner life of each other, we can come to creative insights and relationships. It makes harmony possible. It truly makes for a tie that binds.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized Jan. 22, 1919.

MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS
Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Kansas.
paper, and exchanges to THE MENNONITE. North Newton,
Address all contributions and communications for this Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to

M
051 1946
vol 61
M52

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

EDITORIALS

THE UNIVERSAL WEEK OF PRAYER is to be observed January 6-13, 1946. The Week of Prayer, which is held every first full week of the new year, has been observed by churches around the world for the past one hundred years. The prayer topics for 1946 have been written by Margaret Applegarth of New York City around the theme of "Even as Christ also Loved the Church." Margaret Applegarth, sixty-one, is the author of over a dozen books and a lecturer. Usually the Week of Prayer is observed unitedly by the churches of a community or area, and it is world wide. The world emphasis stands out especially this year, the week coming shortly before the first meeting of the Assembly of the United Nations Organization. How closely will this week of prayer unite Christians all over the world in their perception of God's will? Will the German Christians get a different perception of God's will from Christians in England and America? Whatever the differences may be, there do seem to be signs that world Christendom is coming to a greater unity of outlook and purpose. What a power world Christians all over the world would be if they were one. But as it is even Christians of a community often emphasize their differences rather than their oneness. Perhaps, as prayer becomes more a matter of ascertaining what God's will is, for the purpose of serving intelligently, and less a matter of "getting" something from the Father, will Christians be drawn together. That the Week of Prayer is observed unitedly by churches, in so many instanres, is encouraging.

THE POTSDAM POLICY, which is said to be responsible for the mass starvation in Central Europe, must end. So declares an increasing voice of protest from church leaders. Conditions are unthinkably tragic. The military governor of the American zone in Germany has declared that 60 per cent of the people are on a substandard diet. The governor has given assurance that after January 1 enough food will be released to provide a daily diet of 1,550 calories per person. "This is less than half the number of calories necessary to maintain a manual worker on the job, but it is more than millions are receiving now." According to one recent report at least 2,000 calories are necessary to keep a person from starving. The starvation experiment conducted on conscientious objectors at the University of Minnesota last summer showed that young men lost 25 per cent of their weight on a 1,800-calorie diet. Furthermore, they showed distinct psychological effects, namely, a loss of concern for others and a driving passion for food. "It's nonsense to think that you can starve people and make them believe in the four freedoms at the same time," said the doctor in charge of the experiment. "To talk about . . . the will of the people when you aren't feeding them is perfect hogwash." From Austria comes word that people in Vienna are down to 760 calories a day. This is said to be less than the starvation rations of German concentration camps. No wonder that five church leaders have declared that "one of the greatest tragedies of the civilized world may take place unless churches of America act now." In a statement which seems very carefully worded, three American church leaders, who recently visited Germany, say: ". . . in Germany as a whole, the expulsion of millions from their homes in territory once German is causing unspeakable hardship. These mallions have been torn from their homes, their personal property taken from them, and forced to migrate to Germany under conditions that result in starvation and the unnecessary death of tens of thousands. They are without food, medical supplies, adequate clothing, shelter. Children and old people die enroute, many diseases are becoming epidemic, and the cruelty accompanying this evacuation will affect all of Europe and manifest itself in widespread disease in the present and in hatred tomorrow." And then in a separate, single-sentence paragraph they state, "It is not generally known that UNRRA does not provide food nor clothing for Germans." As it now stands churches and private bodies cannot send relief to people in Germany. Our representatives in Washington need to be made aware of our Christian concern in this life-and-death matter.

LETTING ONESELF be put in the other person's place is a delightful and wholesome adventure be it on a community or an international scale. For example, here at North Newton we have had some excellent opportunities for viewing life from the viewpoints of other peoples. Dr. Walter Judd helped us to think and feel with the Chinese, Rhys Davies with the English, Dr. Jerome Davis with the Russians, and Ruth Bryan Owen Rhode in a more general way with the many people represented at the United Nations conference in San Francisco. After such lectures one can say of other peoples, "We understand them better." We know better what goes on inside of them. There are two ways of perceiving one's hand. One is to look at it with one's eyes and see it more or less as an object. The other is to close

(Continued on page 2)

395

Sam Goering Family Now in Basel, Switzerland

Letter, Written November 29, Tells of Varied Experiences

As the Christmas Season approaches, one seems to hear again the refrain of the angel's song, "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men."

Travelling through the war torn countries and seeing the many places where once stood homes, churches, hospitals, schools, business houses, etc., now in ruin and desolation; observing the hatred, distrust, and envy that exists between nations, races, and groups; listening to people tell of the cruel experiences they have gone through; knowing of the pain, heartache, and suffering those experiences have brought to millions of people, the message of that first Christmas song takes on a greater significance. The question comes to one's mind why is the proclamation of that song not being realized in the world today? And the Christmas story reminds one that the fault lies not on God's side, that from His side the condition to bring peace and good will to men was fulfilled, but men failed to accept God's wonderful Christmas gift and to meet the conditions that are required of man to secure that peace, and as a result we have the present world situation.

We are writing these lines from Switzerland, the beautiful and peaceful little country which as far as material destruction is concerned, has suffered little loss through the war, but her economic conditions were greatly affected because she has to depend on other countries for many of her commodities. There is a shortage especially of bread, flour, sugar, etc. Food is still strictly rationed except for fresh vegetables and fruits.

You may know that soon after we got to France, Mr. Goering, upon doctor's orders, entered the 241st General Hospital in Paris for two weeks for rest, treatments, and observation. Here, he received the best of medical care, good food, and had a warm place to stay. We will always feel greatly indebted to the American Army for the kindness shown us at this time. At the end of those two weeks he felt greatly improved, but the doctors impressed upon us the importance of continuance of his rest and treatments. On Monday, November 19, the day he got out of the hospital we left for Chalon where our main French Relief Centre is. Here we spent over two days with our workers, visited two of the children's homes, and Wednesday met with ten of the workers to discuss plans and pray for the work, its problems, and needs. Including our family, we were a group of fourteen. It was interesting to us that half of the group was from Kansas: Mary Miller from Hesston, Ellen Harder and Charlotte Regier from Whitewater, and our family of four from North Newton. Henry Buller who is director of the group had just received the happy news from his wife at Akron that she had finally secured all the necessary papers for her trip to Europe and hopes to join her husband soon. Mr. Buller carries a heavy load and will be greatly relieved when his wife gets here. Thursday we left Chalon for Switzerland, travelling through one of the finest agricultural districts of France. At places the countryside reminded one of a crazy patch work quilt. The vegetation in small patches or fields of all shapes and sizes, varying in color. There is much—what we in America call truck farming, and people were gathering up the carrots, turnips, lettuce, cabbage, etc., loading it, not on big trucks but on wheelbarrows or wooden carts drawn by a horse or oxen. We saw many women working in the fields. On the second half of the trip we saw a lot of destruction; it gives me a strange feeling to pass through these places knowing that there many lives were lost, bodies crippled for life, people made homeless, etc.

That evening we had our first visit in a Swiss Mennonite home. When we arrived at Mulhousen, Rev. Widmer and his son were at the station with their car to meet us. While Mr. Goering and Robert went back to Belfort to look after our baggage, Jessie and I spent a delightful evening in their cozy home. We were inspired by the Christian atmosphere that radiates there. Robert said to me, "Mother, this seems just like home." Part of the evening we spent listening to them tell of their experiences during the bombing of their city. What terrible days those must have been. Large sections of the city were demolished; the greatest part of the destruction was done by the American bombers.

In the morning Mrs. Widmer took us down into the basement to show us the room where she kept the relief clothing that is sent to them to be distributed among the needy. There was only little left on the shelves, but the following day one of our trucks from Chalon delivered another truck-load. She told us of the people to whom clothing was given and how grateful they were for the warm things they received.

We came to Basel two days ago. For the present we are staying at the Baslerhof Hotel; we hope, however to find a place soon where we can do our own housekeeping. Brother M. C. Lehman stays at the same hotel and we five eat at one table. This morning he took us to one of the Mennonite Churches. A

(Continued on page 6)

Barriers to Effective Prayer

by Jacob J. Enz

Prayer, like humility, is one of those aspects of the Christian life which grows more difficult and problematic rather than easier with practice. When we stop to reflect on this perhaps there is more than a casual relationship between these two elements that results in such an observation. For back of prayer, as well as humility, there is a common prerequisite—a deep sense of our need of God; as we grow in our Christian life we find a common tendency to become self-dependent, the very tendency that will negate any progress we have made in our growth in grace.

Is our Christian life then a mockery? Is it necessarily so that, that the very elements that are indispensable to growth produce a condition that ultimately erases all the growth that has taken place? The answer is an emphatic no. We have failed to take into account another factor. He who tempts us can and will attack us at the point of our virtues as well as our vices. As we grow in our Christian life, the Tempter seeks to lull us into self-satisfaction and complacence. When we yield to these vicious and satanic devices the Tempter has won the day. This is why the prayer life of the person long a Chris- prayer life of a new convert is to him. For this reason I would like to mention some barriers to prayer met by the mature Christian as well as the babe in Christ.

I

The greatest barrier to effective prayer is insincerity. We try to whitewash ourselves before God if not in word then certainly in thought. We assume that having been a Christian a long time many things of which our conscience speaks to us when we permit it can't really be true. But they are! Our prayers are thus really far in advance of our actual spiritual development, and they are insincere and consequently empty. God cannot give us what we ask because we are no more ready to receive it than an infant is to receive strong meat. Perhaps this is another way in which the law of prayer as stated by James works—"We have not because we ask amiss." Our prayer life must coincide exactly with our spiritual development. If we are convicted of sin which we cannot face and overlook it in our prayer by busying ourselves with asking, yea, even interceding, then we pray the prayer of the Pharisee and not the publican. If we are caught in a period of unexplainable need. Let us make this an unquestioned rule in our prayer life that we will always come to God just as we are. If happy, then tell Him so and thank Him for it; if burdened, the lay all the facts before Him and let Him diagnose our case; if "blue" so that we can't even pray, tell Him so. Our lack of words may be the most ardent prayer that we have ever prayed, for then we are completely dependent upon God, and that is the very essence of prayer. Lack of sincerity is a great barrier to prayer.

II

Lack of perspective is another barrier to effective prayer. True prayer involves the elements of praise, thanksgiving, confession, intercession, and petition and usually in that order. When we reflect on this are these not the common elements of ordinary healthy friendships? We praise others; we thank them for their kindnesses; we speedily confess our shortcomings when we have inconvenienced them; we speak with them about the welfare of others; and, occasionally, we ask them to help us. In the light of this we hardly treat God as we would a good friend. Is it not true that human friendships thrive primarily upon the first four? But we try to make our friendship with God thrive upon the last. This is not to discourage our asking God for blessings, but our petitions should be guarded by the first four elements. We may well use the Lord's Prayer as a pattern for all our asking and thus the pitfall of losing our perspective in prayer.

III

Ignoring the techniques or the ways of prayer may raise another real barrier to effective prayer. No doubt it is a common experience to people that when they knelt in private prayer for the first time or when they spoke audibly their private prayers for the first time, their praying took on a new freshness. There is much more of a conncetion between the body and the spirit than we immediately realize. It is not easy to pay a proud prayer and be on our knees! We usually think much more than we express verbally. Our lips are a check on our thoughts. Why not teach them to check our prayers for falseness and insincereity? These are but some of the ways in which our prayer technique may help us come closer to God in prayer.

IV

The lack of preparation for prayer is another barrier to effective prayer. It is not a coincidence that in our devotionals in a program or in the order of service in our churches the Bible reading always precedes the prayer. If we are to pray according to the will of God we must know what the will of God is. If we are to pray in the name of Jesus we must know what is the nature of Jesus for which the name stands. If we do this our prayer will be guided. To tack the phrase "in Jesus' name" to our prayer in which we are selfish or perhaps even vengefu in our asking is pure hypocrisy! The name of Jesus stands for sacrifice and service, holiness and justice, love and forgiveness, and long-suffering and humility. Any prayer not in accord with these Christian graces as exemplified by Christ is unchristian. We must learn to pray for a place of service rather than a place of prominence, for justice rather than personal advantage, for holiness rather than personal safety, and for forgiveness rather than vengeance. Such praying can only become habitual when we are prepared to pray by the Word of God.

V

Misunderstanding the answers to prayer is a barrier too. Again and again we are chagrined when we look back at desert experiences in our Christian life in which we are selfish or perhaps even vengeful in our God's way of answering our prayer to be more like Him. We have the breakers of life roll over our storm-tossed bark in some tragic experience only to find in a later more composed moment that it was God's way of answering our prayer for becoming more compassionate, more courageous, or more faithful. When God doesn't seem to hear our prayers why not take inventory of our experiences and see if He has not chosen a less spectacular but much more certain way of answering. Let us always remember, He loves us!

VI

Finally, lack of vision of the possibilities of prayer is no small barrier to effective prayer. God is real. Christ is real. Salvation is real. Christ's kingdom is real. Its final triumph is an accomplished fact in eternity and assured fact in time. Our contact with our Commander in Chief (one, like Paul, does not need to accept the militaristic philosophy to use its figures of speech) is through prayer. We are in a titanic struggle; we have all the resources of the spiritual world at our command, and yet we cut our own supply lines, yea even our communication lines when we stop praying. That is what happens when we cease praying for the conversion of the lost, when we cease praying for those in authority, and for God's hand to guide the course of history.

These are but a few points at which our prayer life falters; such factors may cause long periods of inactivity in our prayer life. No one factor is as costly to us spiritually as inactivity in prayer. No one factor is as costly to the work of the Church as our inactivity in prayer. Yes, no one factor hinders God's purpose more than when we cease to pray "Thy Kingdom come" in our hearts, in our homes, in our schools, in our churches, in our communities, and in our world.

(Continued from page 4)

simple small building, old fashioned wooden benches, a very small platform at one end with only room enough for the pulpit. In front of the pulpit on a lower platform stood the organ; the aisle is down the center of the room with the men on one side and the women on the other. The service was very simple and all in German. We hope to get personally acquainted with many of these Mennonite families. Now a few words from Mr. Goering.

To all our friends in the homeland, but especially to those of you who will take time to read Mrs. Goering's lengthy letter, A Merry Christmas. By the time these lines reach you, it will be over a year that I left my home in Kansas. What a great variety of experiences the year brought. I think now of our narrow escape from enemy submarines in the North Atlantic; the V1's and V2's that brought terror and destruction to London; the sight near Strasburg of men and supplies as they were being moved in a steady stream into Germany last March; the visit to Struthof internment camp, which during German occupation of France was a place of terror in the midst of beautiful mountain scenery; the visit to Holland with Brother Orie Miller, and the welcome of our Mennonites there; the many experiences in connection with our relief service in Northwest Europe, such as the joy of seeing relief supplies come and go and seeing folks helped. And so I might go on, but I will add only my two weeks experience in an army hospital in France and our coming to Switzerland from where we as a family wish you a Merry Christmas. Thank you for gift and prayer in behalf of the relief work and workers. Just to bring Bob and Jessie into the picture, one of Bob's outstanding experiences has been driving a five-ton truck loaded with relief supplies from England into France, and Jessie, looking after the thousand and one details as nurse and secretary. God bless you all. —The Goering Family

QUOTE

Dr. E. Stanley Jones in describing a proposal made as "go-between" for the United States and Japan in 1941:

"I was firmly convinced that in that situation, Japan would have to be provided with some territory by peaceful means, or she would try to get territory by force. Japan had an arable land space equal to California, with twelve times the population. I felt that any settlement that did not take into account this need for additional land was bound to fail. New Guinea seemed to be the place that would meet Japan's needs, for it was the one virgin territory of the world. It had only 300,000 population of low culture, and with proper development could sustain from 20,000,000 to 40,000,000 people. The great island belonged partly to the Netherlands and partly to Australia—neither of whom needed it. Each had more than enough land space of its own—Australia with an area amost equal to the United States, with only 7,000,000 population the Netherlands with many undeveloped regions."

A group of American Catholic bishops:

"Neither the prosperity of the greater nations nor their might will prevent war unless conditions are removed in which poor, helpless peoples are denied the opportunity of a decent living standard. The world is one only insofar as men live together as brothers under God."

General Conference Mutual Aid Board Organizes and Plans Program of Action

by J. Winfield Fretz

The first full session of the newly created Board of Mutual Aid of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America was held at the Mennonite Biblical Seminary in Chicago on December 14 and 15, 1945. Members of the Board present were J. A. Schowalter, Newton, Kansas; Julius A. Franz, Lind, Washington; Harry M. Detwiler, Souderton Pa.; William Stauffer, Sugarcreek, Ohio; Hans Regier, Whitewater, Kansas; and Winfield Fretz, North Newton, Kansas. The permanent organization of the Board resulted in the election of Harry M. Detwiler as Chairman; Hans Regier as Vice-Chairman, and Winfield Fretz as Executive Secretary.

The Board of Mutual Aid was created by unanimous vote at the last session of the General Conference in June of 1945. The purposes of the Board as stated in the newly completed by-laws are as follows:

1. To promote and provide a service of vocational counseling
2. To provide information regarding job openings and jobs wanted
3. To provide information regarding opportunities for small independent businesses
4. To provide financial assistance on a mutual aid basis where there is a definite need for the purposes of establishing a modest home, getting an education, or getting started in farming, business, or a profession.
5. To provide information regarding colonization and settlement opportunities

Policies of the Board

The Board shall not make gifts to people in need of charity, that being the responsibility of the local churches or of the Emergency Relief Board. The purpose of all loans through Mutual Aid is for rehabilitation. The Board is to assist young people recommended or approved by authorized local committees in each congregation on the basis of mutually agreed upon standards. All loan projects are to be self-liquidating and are to stimulate individual initiative. The granting of a loan is to be conditioned upon mutual agreement on a plan of repayment, preferably an amortized fixed or variable payment plan. Where no local aid committees are organized the Board may provide assistance of one kind or another to deserving individuals on the basis of other reliable information and recommendations. Wherever credit is extended careful supervision is to be provided as to the use of funds by either the local committees or other qualified persons. It is the desire of the Board that in every contract for a loan there shall be a statement in which the participants agree that in any dispute that may arise every effort will be made to settle the question out of court and in harmony with Matthew 18:15-17 and with the traditional principle of the Mennonite Church.

Sources of Income

There will be four categories of capital through which the Board will raise income for the purpose of carrying out its program. Many of the local congregations may want to give consideration to the matter of assisting the Board get a start by discussing the program of Mutual Aid at their annual meetings.

1. Free-Will Contributions: Such contributions may be received from congregations, church auxiliaries, and individuals. These funds may be used for necessary expenses of operation or for capital purposes.

2. Non-Interest Bearing Certificates: Such certificates are to be purchased by interested church members who are willing to devote their money to the service or the church and its youth without guarantee of interest for themselves. These certificates will be issued in units of $100 or multiples thereof for a period of five years and shall be payable to the subscriber or his heirs.

3. Interest Bearing Certificates: These certificates are to be issued in varying denominations bearing 2 per cent cumulative interest. This category gives members an opportunity to invest small amounts of money at a fixed rate for a period of ten years. The certificates may be repaid sooner at the option of the Board.

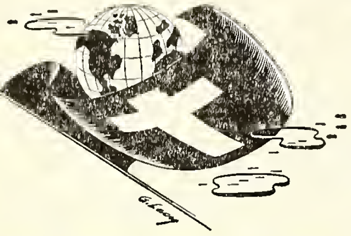
4. Debenture Notes: These notes are to be issued for from two to five years with a maximum interest rate of 1½ per cent.

Ten percent of the money received for capital purposes is to be set aside as a contingency fund to cover losses and emergencies.

Proceedure on Mutual Aid

Individuals who are interested in supporting the Board of Mutual Aid by making funds available on any condition provided for by the Board may get in touch with J. Winfield Fretz, the Executive Secretary at North Newton, Kansas. All funds for the Board will be handled through the Central Treasurer of the General Conference. Certificates for funds advanced to the Board will be issued upon receipt of the funds.

Primary concern for the present time is the discharged CPS men who have worked without pay for two, three, and four years and are, therefore, members who are likely to have consumed most of their resources and perhaps gone into debt. Individuals in need of the assistance the Board of Mutual Aid is preparing to grant, may write directly to the Board's Executive Secretary. In no case will loans be made until careful investigation has been made as to the individual's character, ability, and experience. It is the prayer of the Board that through its efforts members of the Christian Brotherhood may genuinely help "bear one anothers' burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ." (Gal. 6:2)



ONE WORLD

"For God so loved the world."

Atomic poison gas can now be produced according to Dr. M. L. E. Oliphant, Great Britain's leading experimenter in atomic physics. Such gas used in and with atomics could wipe out the entire population of the United States with three properly placed bombs. It is reported that one such bomb is capable of killing every living thing within a radius of one thousand miles.

C.O.s in prison numbered 3,224 by June, 1945. More have been sentenced since then. The average of their terms is longer than that for such offenses as violation of the white slave, postal, and narcotic laws. Unless pardoned by the President, they will be deprived of their voting rights when they come out. A movement is under way to have the President pardon thes men.

Reduction of armaments has been called for by the Federal Council of Churches. This body has also called for the "universal abolition of peacetime military training.

President Truman has proposed a plan of medical surance which would provide first-class medical care for the entire population without bringing the medical profession under federal control.

Unthinkable tragedy in Germany is suggested by the report of the merican provost marshal, Lieutenant Colonel Gerald F. Beane, who said, "that rape presents no problem to the military police because 'a bit of food, a bar of chocolate, or a bar of soap seems to make rape unnecessary.'" riages is the unenviable record of Portland, Oregon.

Twenty-five per cent more divorces than mar-
One divorce for every four marriages is predicted by Dr. Ernest Buyers of the University of Chicago. He says, "Many young men will marry at a later age than usual because because of wartime bachelorhood. . . and will be inclined to court younger women. The older women, preceiving their disadvantage in the marriage market, will be less discriminating in their choices. The end result will be a higher divorce rate."

Greater separation of Church and State is wanted by Bishop Eivind Bergrav, head of the Norwegian church.

My Responsibility. Let us not say we are helpless and can do nothing about the terrible suffering. Love and peace within our hearts will radiate to the hearts around us and spread the divine love expressed in John 3:16.

American troops, with the exception of the military police, go unarmed through Japan's streets and are well received, according to a report by Stanley A. Hunter.

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

Numerous Projects resulting from the meeting of the Mennonite Brethren General Conference at Dinuba, California, have been announced. Six Missionaries are to leave for India, five to Africa, four to Colombia, and four to Paraguay. A greater number is to follow the coming year. A conference building is to be erected in Hillsboro, Kansas. The educational program of the conference is to be strengthened and the publication project enlarged.

Christmas Eve 1945. Fritz von Uhde's painting is an excellent portrayal of Christmas Eve in Europe 1945. Joseph and Mary are caught in a snowstorm somewhere on a country road. Mary, in rags, is leaning on a fence while Joseph tries to find shelter in a farm home.

Liberation by force. Not all in uniform behave like those who took Danzig—got drunk, rang the bells of the cathedral and raped the women and girls who fled into the edifice. We hear that in American occupied zones rape is no problem. The food situation is so desperate that anything can be bought with a candy bar.

Liberation by Love. The Dutch are grateful for the liberation which the Canadians brought to them. But here too it seems as though the men in uniform take many things for granted in their association with the civilian population. "How wonderful it is to have Mennonites from Canada here," writes a Mennonite from Holland, "who have come with no other intention than to do good and serve."

Cessation of Hostilities and True Peace. By now we know that cessation of hostilities and the firing of arms is not synonymous to peace among nations. The spirit of hatred and vengeance continues to smolder. How could it be otherwise as long as one person blames another, and one group within a nation another one, and one nation another one for all the miseries which have befallen humanity? There can be no peace. Only the insight that all of us have gone astray and that all of us are guilty of all the miseries that have befallen us and that all of us and that all of us have to face the results and shoulder the responsibilities can end hostilities and the spirit of vengeance in the hearts of men and nations. And only when divine goodwill touches the human heart can true liberation and peace spread on earth.

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Verney Unruh
Vive President
Ruth Ewert
Secretary-Treasurer

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

We Begin Another New Year

We are devoting this issue of Mennonite Youth to thoughts about the beginning of a new year. As we read the articles and poems herein let us think of the year before us and what it holds in store for us. Some of these articles were written with the New Year in mind. Others were not. But they have an application in one way or another to the problems and the possibilities before us. We Begin Another New Year has in mind our day by day life, how it has failed and succeeded in the past and what it must do in the days ahead. Rhyme Without Reason tells of life in a mental hospital, but has other unique applications, too! The Narrowness of Jesus points at the requirements of the Christian walk and suggests how great the demands of true followership are. Events Elsewhere tells of a few of the things which are happening about us.

I said to a man who stood at the gate of the year, "Give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown," and he replied, "Go out into the darkness and put your hand into the hand of God. That shall be to you better than a light and safer than a known way."

—M. Louise Haskins

The word January, designating the first month of the year, has a Roman origin. It comes from the root word Janus, the name of a Roman god whose duty is was to guard all entrances. It was natural that the Romans should have him guard the beginning of the new year, so today we call the first month of the year January.

In the sense that we are stepping into a new year, it has been the custom for many to pause and take inventory. Business takes inventory during this season, so do people. After they get the evaluation, they make plans for the year ahead and they plan to make improvements where they are needed.

So, we also make New Year resolutions; at least some of us do. We resolve to accomplish certain things during the year and, after setting a goal, we start working toward it trying to reach our goal a step at a time.

Some people lay out their work in that way. They have a job to do. They decide on the time it will take to do the job and set a date when it is to be completed. Then they take steps toward completing the job. This is an excellent way to organize one's daily routine.

As we step into the new year, it might be good for us to take inventory and make plans for the year ahead.

Am I Satisfied with Myself?

First of all, am I satisfied with myself as I was in the past year? Did I live up to the level that I should have? Were there places where I could have improved? Did I allow my weaknesses to color my attitude and actions? Where did I do things that were contrary to my profession of faith?

Paul once said, "I fail to do the things I ought and do the things I shouldn't, O wretched man that I am."

One of the first things that we should feel is dissatisfaction with ourselves as we are. There must be a tension between what we are and what we should be. It is then that God can work with us for when we feel our lack we seek the more perfect way.

For this reason I need to ask myself, "Am I satisfied with conditions as they are within me?"

Am I Satisfied With Things About Me?

If I am not satisfied with myself, am I satisfied with conditions around me? Is my church as it should be? Does the community I live in reach the goal it should attain? Am I satisfied with world conditions as they are?

How Can I Help Improve?

If I am not satisfied—and I shouldn't be—what is there to do? What should be my next step? How can I go forth in the new year with resolves that are real and meaningful, ones that are sound and on which I can work effectively?

Joyous 1946!

Here are some ways for us to grow in our faith and to attain the goals we should.

There was a C. P. S. man in a camp who was very disgruntled with the religious program of the camp. Once when he was asked to participate he told the person who asked him to take part what he thought of the camp's religious activities. The response was a calm reply which touches the heart of the issue, "If you are not satisfied with it, the best thing to do is to participate using your influence to improve it."

How About My Part in School Life?

Some schools have the reputation of being tough mhile others are traditionally ones with a wholesome friendly spirit with students who are out to make the best use of their opportunities.

Am I helping to do my part in making my school life positive and for the good of everyone? Do I use my time to the best advantage? Or am I loafing around a lot? Do I really try to make my studies of value to myself?

In my social life, am I having fun at the expense of others? Or does everyone enjoy themselves around me? Am I known as being considerate or selfish, a prude or modest and unassuming? How can I become more considerate and helpful?

Am I Doing My Part in Church Life?

Does my church activity mean anything to me? How can I make it mean more? Did I really do my best in making Young People's work effective and meaningful? Was I willing to go to extra trouble to make the programs good ones? Have I urged others to participate and encouraged those who were not sure of themselves? Did I help make the church socials a happy fellowship?

How About My Part In the Life of the World

There are millions in need spiritually and physically. Do I appreciate the favorable position that is mine? Have I helped those that are in need in my community? Can I be friendly to the negro family on whom everyone frowns? Have I gone out of my way to invite them to activities they would enjoy?

Am I actively concerned about the work of missions? Have I done my part to support them? How about doing my bit for relief of war sufferers?

There are many more questions which could be asked. Each of us will need to answer them for ourselves. We will need to evaluate constantly and answer questions regarding ourselves and sek solutions for those questions. This will never cease. It is a part of the adventure of living. As the new year begins, let us seek ever for the true way and the correct answers.

On that principle we can operate effectively. There are many people who are enxious to piously tear things down because they are dissatisfied. It is easy to be negative, it is more difficult to be a builder and not a wrecker.

What Can I do to Improve My Family Life?

How about trying to put the welfare of others first? They say a person's behaviour in his family relations shows what sort of person he really is. We all can be nice to strangers for a fleeting fifteen minutes. Can we be nice to those with whom we live day in and day out and who see us when we are tired, don't feel well, are disappointed as well as when we are in happier moods?

Can I help with the house work, the chores, and do those tasks happily? Do I make my presence appreciated or am I always stirring things up?

Rhyme Without Reason

After several months' experience as an attendant in a mental hospital, I often sit and wonder if anything in the whole world could be as incongruous as a mental hospital...

Beautiful majestic grounds, ugly and decrepit people... Clean attendants, filthy patients... friendly nurses, disinterested administration... Carrying a bedpan down the hall, Old Joe yet honors you with a regal obeisance before your august personage... Louie, who can hardly walk or move or talk and who constantly falls helplessly to the floor and Eddie, who can't control his muscels even to feed himself, yet sit across the hall from each other all afternoon and thumb noses at each other... Patsy, who shouts bloody-murder and yells and screams and kicks and fights as you try to change his soiled pajamas, quiets down immediately when the job is done and purrs "why shore-all right whyshore; you're a nice boy, why shore-all right" and smiles like a benign old gentlemen... Lefty is so appreciative when you give him an early shower because "it won't interfere with my plans for the day; I'm pretty busy, you know," when what you really do know is that he stands in one particular spot all day long, stooping over every four or five minutes to grip his knee in a vice-like grip... Or stiff-jointed, helpless, irascible, domineering old Albert who fell out of bed and when found lying on the floor and asked what had happened to him replied to the effect that "it didn't happen to me; I was down here when it happened." ... "I hate you, I hate you, I hate you, I hate you," screams a rough voice from the window of one room, while the

---

Frank Wright, the author of this article, has served as educational director of the Greystone Park, New Jersey C. P. S. unit. He has been making notes about his observations and experiences and this interesting commentary is a result of his notes. Although Frank is educational director at the unit, he has practical experience with the mentally ill by serving as an attendant. This article first appeared in the M. C. C. Bulletin.

plaintive and sweet strains of "L'Amour, Toujours, L'Amour" issues from the throat of the patient at the next window in the same room...

Incongruous, I tell you! Yes, no rhyme or reason, you agree. But there you are wrong. For there is rhyme to it—there is art, there is poetry—because there is life. It is a rhyme which arises out of the very lack of reason—clearcut, disturbing, reflective, original, creative, humor, mocking, challenging—the rhyme of the mental hospital which delves deeply into the incongruity of life and of our world.

But it would be inaccurate to leave the impression that there is no reason here—the cures, the doctors, the nurses, the methods, all of which are still so woefully inadequate, are yet the result of years and decades of man's attempt to apply reason to the loss of reason. And the patients too have reason. Just recently Old Nick said: "I draw a bonus of $109 per month, and I'm crazy; you get paid $15 per month to watch me—now who is crazy?" That is a penetrating question these days: just who is crazy? A question which everyone would do well to think about quite often: in a world that is doing what ours is doing, just who is crazy?

The Narrowness of Jesus

By Charles E. Jefferson

"Narrow is the way"—Matthew 7:14

We often hear the word "narrow" used in a sinister and condemning sense, we sometimes use it so ourselves. We say, "Oh, yes' he is narrow," meaning that one side of his nature has been blighted, blasted. His mind is not fully orbed. His heart is not full grown. He is a dwarfed and stunted man, cramped by a defective education or a narrowing environment.

In no such sense as this was the man of Galilee narrow. But what word will better express one of the conspicuous traits of Jesus than just this word "narrowness"? He set definite boundaries for himself, he shut himself up within contracted limits; in this sense he was narrow.

How narrow was the circle inside of which he did all his work! He lived his life in Palestine, a little country no larger than Connecticut. It was not a prominent country either but only a little province subject to mighty Rome. It was an obscure and rural country, small in territory and insignificant in prestige, and yet the Prince of Glory confined himself to this little corner of the earth. He might have given his message to a wide circle of men whose influence covered many lands. He might have taught in Athens and lifted up his voice in the streets of the Eternal City; but he rather chose to give his time to the cities of Galilee, to pour out his strength on the villages of Judea. For thirty years he remained in the dingy obscurity of a carpenter's shop, and the country upon which he poured out the full wealth of his brain and heart was only a carpenter's shop among the places of the earth.

If his field was contracted, so also was the character of his work. He only tried to do one thing. There were a thousand good things which a good man in Palestine might have done, but he left nine hundred and ninety nine of them unattempted and confined himself to the one thing which he believed his Heavenly Father had given him to do. Jesus set limits to his activity and beyond these limits no man ever persuaded him to go. One day his brothers wanted him to go to Jerusalem and make an impression of the big men there, but he refused to listen to their exhortation, telling them that they might go any time they chose, but that it was different with him. He could not go until his hour had come. When the hour arrived, he set his face steadfastly toward Jerusalem. All along the way men tried to divert him, but he could not be diverted, to Jerusalem he must go. By limiting himself, our Lord came off conqueror. He succeeded. What is it to succeed? It is to do that for which we were created. Jesus attempted to do one thing only and that was to perform the work which his Father had given him to do. At the end of his life, he could look into his Father's face and say, "I have finished the work which Thou gavest me to do."

We have been touching upon a great principle—the principle which lies at the basis of all the fine arts. The arts which are called fine became fine because of the NARROWNESS OF THE LIMITATIONS WHICH THEY IMPOSE. They all subject the soul to a discipline which is severe, and insist on a bondage which cannot be broken through. In music there is no leeway left for the singer. He cannot sing a little sharp or a little flat and still produce music. In music everything is precise, exact, severe, and all the tones must take accurately the precise points assigned to them by the master, else the music does not have in it that indescribable power which lifts and entrances the soul.

The artist cannot dip his brush as he pleases into this color or that, careless as to how much of this or how much of that he spreads on the canvas. He is held in the grip of laws which he cannot violate even a little without marring the picture. It's the narrow way on which artists must forever walk. Why is it so much more difficult to write poetry than prose? It is because poetry subjects one to serve bondage. The poet must submit to a discipline of which the prose writer knows nothing. The rules of accent and rhythm and melody are inexorable and only genius has strength enough to obey them all. Poets must walk the narrow path.

But the most difficult of all the fine arts is the art of living as God would have us live. Singing is easy and so is painting compared with this exacting, soul-taxing art of living. One cannot think anything he pleases, or feel as he wants to, or act as he is inclined to. He must walk the narrow path. Jesus walked it, and he calls men everywhere to become his followers. He is rigorous in his demands. He is inexorable in his commands. He is despotic in the limitations which he imposes.

This then, is the narrowness of Jesus. He limited himself, emptied himself of his divine glory, was found in the fashion of a man, walked the narrow path from the carpenter's shop to Golgotha all because of his great love for us, and in order that we might have life and have it more abundantly.

—from the "Character of Jesus

Events Elsewhere

In the next three years, India will send 1,500 students to America to attend colleges or to gain experience in industrial concerns and other practical employment.

A provisional national Protestant committee to assist in the reconstruction of their country has been formed by Italy's half million Protestants. .Waldensians, Baptists, Methodists, the Salvation Army and other denominations are cooperating. ....

The Y. M. C. A. plans to spend fifty million dollars in a post-war expansion programme.

The Jewish population in the United States has increased by 428,344 to a total of 5,199,000 in the past six years. The ratio of Jews to Gentiles is estimated at 3.7 per cent.

The British Foreign Bible Society has received a request from U. N. R. R. A. for Bibles in Polish, Czech, French, Serbian, Greek and Norwegian. Two thousand volumes have been made immediately available.

Fifty Protestant missionaries have been granted permission to enter China. They will leave this continent as soon as army authorization is received.

Marking one hundred years of missionary service by Canada, an intensive interchurch celebration is being arranged for 1945-46. This commemorates the sailing of the first Canadian missionary to the foreign field in 1845.

The Methodist Youth Fellowship, composed of 2,000,000 young people, will seek to enroll 1,000,000 new members by the end of 1948 as one of its goals in the Methodist Crusade for Christ. Each local fellowship is asked to set a minimum goal of one new member for each two now enrolled. A National Mission to Methodist Youth will be launched in the Spring.

In English and French prison camps, German students are preparing for the Christian ministry. The Paris Theological School has more students than it has had in the past half century. An Amsterdam church that formerly had two pastors has so increased its functions that a seventh pastor has been added to the staff. An emergency theological seminary in Holland has been established to help meet the demand for church leaders.

Bishop Theophil Wurm, of Wurtumberg, makes an appeal to foreign Christians not to be two wholesale in their criticism of Churchmen in Germany. He says: "We Christians are not responsible for the cruelties and denials of justice which were committed by the party and by numerous military officers. Many of us have had to suffer these things. We have opposed the mass murder of the Jews of Germany, and Poland. We Christians of Germany have suffered much from the things which soil the German name and blot the honor of our people."

The American Bible Society offers information concerning the status of Bible reading in American public schools. Bible reading is required in eleven states: Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Georgia, Idaho, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Tennessee. It is prohibited in Illinois, Louisiana and Wisconsin. In the remaining thirty-four states Bible reading is permitted but not required.

We have heard many groans about rationing and much anxiety and hope that rationing would cease. Interestingly enough Canada went on rationing this Autumn while U. S. was going off rationing. Canada did this to fulfill its pledge to send food to Europe. At present Canada is exporting 40 to 50 per cent of its federally inspected meat (one third of the total kill) but to do this rationing was necessary. The U. S. exports less than 5 per cent of its meat supplies.

Prof. J. A. Wheeler of Princeton University believes the atomic bomb to be a mere firecracker compared to what would happen if all energy were released. In reality the atomic bombs released over Japan used only a small amount of the energy a-available. Some claim the energy available in a spoonful of matter is sufficient to obliterate New York City. According to the Einstein Equation all matter on earth and elsewhere is merely frozen energy. If this energy were released, Prof. Wheeler believes it to be possible, the earth would simply burn up in a man-made Doomsday.

English universities are to be reformed if Miss Ellen Wilkinson, Minister of Education in Britain's Labor Government has her way. The tradition has been a cash-and-caste system which has worked against many capable youth in the country. .The present system permits stupid and indolent students to graduate with fourth-class honors degrees. Unless the diploma carries high honors, it is not necessarily a certificate of learning. An effort is being put forth to raise the standards of the universities to a level such as that of the University of London which has high scholastic requirements. ..

RELIEF

Urgent Need for Doctors

Three medical doctors are needed for service in the Far East and Paraguay in connection with the relief program of the Mennonite Central Committee. It is essential that a doctor be attached to the contemplated relief service in China. If the way continues to open for a work in the Philippine Islands a doctor will be needed. Another doctor is needed to serve in behalf of the Mennonite colonists in the Chaco.

Any doctor interested in relief service in these areas should contact the Director of Relief, M.C.C., Akron, Pa. Anyone knowing of a doctor who might be interested should send us his name and address. Candidates for this service should be missionary-minded, feel a call to the work, and be in sympathy with the standards of our non-resistant faith. A great need for medical help exists in these areas.

Further Contacts with Mennonite Refugees

In a cable from Amsterdam, dated December 7, C. F. Klassen states that he was going to Denmark on the 8th. Bro. Klassen's visit is likely related to the thousands of Mennonites from East Prussia and Poland who are interned there. He had also made a trip to Berlin to contact Mennonite refugees there. During the week of December 9 he was planning to go to Switzerland to investigate the possibility of sending food parcels into Germany through Swiss channels.

There have been several inquiries as to the possibility of mailing food parcels direct to Germany; a late communication from the U. S. Post Office Department says: "The parcel post service is not yet open to these two countries (Germany and Austria) and there is no definite date as yet when such service will be offered."

News from China

In a newssheet from Chungking, China, dated November 23, 1945, and edited by S. F. Pannabecker, a brief review of the work in China is given. We quote from this sheet:

"Two Mennonite appointees, P. P. Baltzer and S. F. Pannabecker have been in China for close to two month. . . Our present plans call for two of us to leave for Honan at the first opportunity where we will be engaged in organizing the relief program of the American Advisory Committee and preparing for opening the Mennonite work. Calcutta can get the necessary permission to proceed. We hope for a few of them the next month."

"Plans for Mennonite work are based on three ideas: first, cooperation with other agencies now on the field; secondly, an immediate program of relief and rehabilitation for refugees on the a longer term program of medical and public health work combined with industrial and agricultural rehabilitation. . . "

China M.C.C. Unit members waiting in Calcutta for permission to proceed are Wilhelmina Kuyf, Titus Lehman, Lawrence Burkholder and Clayton Beyler; also the two nurses, Vera Yoder and Verna Zimmerman, who recently arrived."

C. P. S.

Health Project Survey in the South

Erwin C. Goering, Eastern States Regional Director, recently made a trip through the South to visit the Mulberry, Florida, and Gulfport, Mississippi, units and with Harold Martin, Director of the Gulfport Unit, investigated the possibility of opening additional health projects. They report that "State and District Health Officials are well pleased with present C.P.S. services and greatly desire additional service units."

CONCERNING THE VICTORY CLOTHING COLLECTION

Nation-wide publicity is being given to the Victory Clothing Collection, a relief clothing campaign to be conducted January 7 to 31, 1946. This drive is similar to the United National Clothing Collection sponsored in April, 1945. Civic, religious, and other organizations are again being asked to promote the drive and assist in the collection of clothing. The goal is to collect 100,000,000 garments plus quantities of bedding and shoes. Donations received during this campaign will be processed and shipped by UNRRA and will enable the carrying out of its relief task. UNRRA provides relief and rehabilitation services to the liberated countries of the United Nations but does not send supplies to Germany and Japan, except to displaced persons from other nations in these countries.

The Mennonite Central Committee has a continuous relief clothing collection program organized to receive and process clothing received primarily from Mennonite and Brethren in Christ constituencies. Facilities to handle all the clothing our churches wish to give are in operation at the four collection centers: Akron, Pa.; Kitchener, Ont.; Newton, Kansas; and Winnipeg, Manitoba. Donations received at these centers have been sent, and will continue to be sent, to war sufferers in liberated countries and will also be sent to enemy countries, particularly Germany, as the way opens for the shipment of such materials.

Mennonite and Brethren in Christ churches have contributed liberally in the past and will want to continue in the future to do their part in providing clothing for war sufferers. During the month of January local churches and individuals will have to decide whether they wish to continue giving through the church centers or through the Victory Clothing Collection.

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

December 14 Founder's Day was commemorated. Rev. Freeman Schwartz of Pennsylvania spoke in the morning and evening. During the noon hour the Home Economics girls served lunch to the guests. The Music Department under the direction of Prof. Toews furnished Christmas music at all meetings. The Home Economics department presented a demonstration on "Dyeing" to the women gathered for the local Poultry Show. The work is under the direction of Miss Ratzlaff. The Christian Youth Volunteers spent some time in visitation and carol singing activities the past week. Rev. Louis Linscheid is advisor to this group. Gerhard Buhr gave a challenging talk on Relief Work of the MCC on Monday; on Tuesday Mrs. Buhr presented a musical program. Both are graduates of Freeman and have until recently served as educational director and dietitian at Fort Collins. They have accepted a call to do relief work in South America.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

Dr. Albert W. Palmer gave a very inspiring address in the Ramseyer Chapel Tuesday evening, December 11. The five main points in his "Code for Victors" were, (1) Humility, (2) A sense of responsibility, (3) Intelligence, pointing out that wisdom is knowing what to do and virtue is doing it, (4) A forwards looking spirit, concentrating on the future, and (5) The creation of a spirit of forgiveness and invincible good will.

The Messiah was sung Sunday evening, December 16, before an appreciative audience. The zero weather somewhat reduced the attendance, but there was a good crowd present even so.

The college closed for the Christmas recess on December 21 and will reopen again January 3. Carl Lehman, new business manager, hopes to be present by that time to assume his new duties.

BETHEL COLLEGE

The college campus was grieviously shocked Sunday morning, December 16, by the sudden death, by heart attack, of Paul Baumgartner, a leader in civic, musical, and church affairs. A man of broad interests, his contributions to the College and community life these twenty-five years have been numerous and varied, and it is with difficulty that his co-workers assume the heavy responsibilities he has had to lay down.

The thirteen-day Christmas vacation began December 20 with most of the students leaving the campus. Absent also during one part or another of the holiday season for work in CPS or MCC were Professors J. J. Voth, Melvin Gingerich, Cornelius Krahn, H. A. Fast, J. W. Fretz, and David Suderman. Extensive remodeling and enlarging on the third floor of the girls' dormitory continued through vacation. Curbing on both sides of College Street has been completed and plans have been made for resurfacing the campus streets.

MENNONITE BIBLICAL SEMINARY

With the coming of Christmas vacation on December 14 came also snow and cold weather. A number of our students are able to return to their homes during this two-week vacation while others are remaining at the seminary and are finding employment at various places in the city. On December 9 Doland Unruh, one of our training school students interrupted his studies here to join a crew on a cattle ship. He expects to leave for Europe shortly after a visit in his parental home in Kansas. Due to vacancies made in our dormitory over the holiday season we were able to invite our conference Mutual Aid Board to hold its meeting here on the campus. Hence these six men were with us on December 14 and 15: Dr. J. W. Fretz, Newton, Kansas, Hans Regier, Whitewater, Kansas, Julius Franz, Lind, Washington, Harry M. Detweiler, Souderton, Pa., and J. E. Schowalter, Newton, Kansas. We are happy to learn that Rev. Arnold Regier of Newton, Kansas, plans to be with us here at the Seminary after the first of the year. On Sunday, December 9 the Chicago Mennonite Student Fellowship had its monthly meeting here. For this occasion we had invited the men's chorus from Medaryville, Indiana, C.P.S. Camp. These men gave a fine program in the afternoon which was appreciated by Brethern as well as Mennonite students. The Fellowship concluded with refreshments served in the Albert Jantzen's apartment. As a seminary family we wish to express our New Year's greetings to all our interested friends. May the New Year bring you all peace and joy through Jesus Christ our Lord.

IN MEMORIAM

PAUL BAUMGARTNER, fifty-one, son of the late Rev. S. S. and Mary Vogt Baumgartner, passed away suddenly, Sunday morning, December 16, at the Bethel Deaconess Hospital after a few hours illness. Many years a teacher of manual arts in the Newton, Kansas, high school, he was also active in the interests of Bethel College and was a devoted member of the Bethel College Church, having served the latter as Sunday School superintendent, teacher, deacon, and, at the time of his death, was chairman of the church building committee. He tuned pianos as a side line and for a number of years served as mayor of the village of North Newton. Besides his wife, Anna Marie (nee Mueller), he is survived by his mother, Mrs. S. S. Baumgartner, and a sister, Mrs. Frank Penner, both of Portland, Oregon.

MRS. HENRY G. HIEBERT, daughter of Peter E. and Helena Duerksen Schmidt, was born January 14, 1885, near Canton, Kansas, and died November 22, 1945. In 1903 she became a member of the Alexanderwohl Church, and in 1905 she was united in marriage to Henry Hiebert. She is mourned by her husband and the following children: Meno, Paul, Otto, Levi, Mrs. Reuben Hiebert, Mrs. Amadaeus Frey, and Mrs. Frank Koehn.

JOTTINGS

—Rev. J. B. Epp passed away at the Bethel Deaconess Hospital, Newton, Kansas, on December 22. after having been confined to the hospital for a number of weeks.

—The Alexanderwohl, Tabor, and Goessel churches together canned 2,057 quarts for C.P.S. and 575 for relief this year.

—Rev. A. S. Bechtel, Pastor of the Einsiedel Mennonite Church, Hanston, Kansas, since 1937, writes that they are planning to move to Summerfield, Illinois. Their oldest daughter lives on a farm near Summerfield. Brother Bechtel, who will be seventy-two next May, writes, "For some time past I have felt that I had reached the age when I should make way for a younger and more energetic man as leader of this church. . . Very few of our ministers are of my age. . . We plan now to leave probably Friday after Christmas. We do regret to leave the very pleasant Western Conference associations which we have learned to cherish so much. We shall greatly miss the visits to Bethel and the friends we have made there." Mail for the Hanston church may be addressed to Edward E. Hirschler, Hanston.

—Immanuel Church, Delft, Minnesota: On December 6 the Ladies Mission Society had invited the mission societies of the Gospel Mennonite Church of Mountain Lake for a Christmas program and also a fellowship lunch. Rev. H. H. Dick of Mountain Lake brought the morning message December 9.

—The Eastern District ministers and wives enjoyed a fellowship dinner in Trainers' Restaurant, Quakertown, Pa. on December 10th at 1:30. Upon arrival we were ushered into a special room in which had been arranged a beautifully decorated tablewith lighted candles. The following were present: Dr. and Mrs. Elmer E. S. Johnson, Rev. and Mrs. Walter Dick, Mrs. Freeman Swartz, Rev. and Mrs. John Plenert, Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Neuenschwander, Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Schultz, Rev. and Mrs. Howard G. Nyce and Rev. and Mrs. Ward W. Shelly. Those absent telephoned or mailed their regrets. A prayer of Thanksgiving was offered by Rev. Schultz and the closing prayer by Dr. Johnson. This is the second such affair in the district this year. It is expected that these times of fellowship will be held several times each year. The sudden appearance of a snow storm brought to an early end the long to be remembered occasion. We left for our homes about four o'clock.—Ward W. Shelly —Brudertal Church, Hillsboro, Kansas: Missionary J. P. Suderman was in this, his home church, to show slides and tell of the mission work in Arizona. Dr. P. S. Goertz of Bethel College was guest speaker on Thanksgiving. Samuel Ewert, son of Mrs. Wm. Ewert, passed away December 4. For the past few years he served as noxious weed supervisor of Marion County. He was a member of the Brudertal Church until recently when he and his family joined the Presbyterian Church of Marion, where they made their home.—Mrs. Frank Balzer, Corr.

—Halstead, Kansas: The church has granted Rev. David C. Wedel a leave of absence for January. He has been requested to visit the churches of the Pacific District in the interest of Bethel College.

—First Church, Summerfield, Illinois: Visiting speakers the past year were: Rev. Peter Voronoff, and Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, who gave a series of messages on the Sermon of the Mount.—Corr.

—Lorraine Avenue Church, Wichita, Kansas: The choir sang "The Nativity Song" by Roy E. Nolte on December 16.

—First Church, Sugarcreek, Ohio: At a special meeting of the men of the congregation the possibilities for work and housing in Sugarcreek were explored. Said the pastor, "Let's all work together to make our community and church a more vital part in our daily lives."

—Rev. Victor Sawatzky, a ministerial student at Bethel College, has accepted a call from the First Church, Hutchinson, Kansas, to serve it as pastor for a period of one year.

—Rev. Ronald von Riesen, Pastor of the Walton (Kansas) Church, was voted a call for another three years at the business meeting held December 6.

—Immanuel Church, Los Angeles, has worked out a sheet of suggestions for visitation work. Its workers seek to visit regularly the families in sixty-four blocks and to pray for them. Irvin Richert, who expects to be discharged from C.P.S. very soon, plans to prepare for the ministry. His engagement to Shirley Ingalls of Quakertown, Pa., was announced recently.

—Beatrice, Nebraska: William Andreas, Arthur Claassen, Albert Ensz, Henry Jantzen, and Edgar Wiebe left December 1 to serve as attendants in the shipment of cattle and horses for relief.

—Zion Church Souderton, Pa., Anonymous contributions and donations have made it possible to have over $1,000 worth of new shoes ready for the Arkon clothing depot. Many new and used blankets, used comforters, and used shoes have also been gathered. On December 9 Mrs. Henry S. Detwiler showed moving pictures of relief work in Egypt. The pictures were taken by her husband who has been doing relief work there.

POST—CHRISTMAS SPECIAL

Having on hand a supply of Christmas and other greetings which we would rather not carry over until next year, we offer these at the extra special price of 4 boxes for $1.56. The assortment includes:

1 Box Scripture text Christmas Greetings
1 Box Non-Scripture Christmas Greetings
1 Box Non-Scripture Everyday Greetings
1 Box Non-Scripture Servicemen Greetings.

These are all regular $1.00 boxes and theassortment represents a saving to you of $2.50.

Send remittance with your order to:

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Berne, Indiana

—Rev. Gerald Stucky, who with other missionaries is to open a General Conference mission field in Colombia, South America, has written a letter to friends. From it we snatch: With the altitude at about 5,000 feet, a pressure cooker sent from Berne, Indiana, is much appreciated—parades and fiestas on the slightest provocation—market women and other older women smoking little cigars—boys court girls by standing outside the house while the girl sits inside by the window—one can see scores of such courtings every evening—cows serve as lawnmowers between streets and sidewalks and rummage in garbage cans like dogs at home—black-robed priests everywhere—Shredded wheat Gerald's favorite, at seventy-five cents a box—dirt, disease, and malnutrition everywhere—prices of many things so high that poor can obtain only meagre living—men, women, and children carry things on their backs like pack animals—petty thieving so prevalent that doors never left open unless someone in front room—all first floor windows have iron or wooden bars to keep out "unwelcome guests"—everywhere great big churches, rich and often unfinished—about 250 priests in Medellin also school for them—Stuckys now learning Spanish language and to continue at it for a year with them are Janet Soldner and Mary Becker—also daughter Judith Anne and a little newcomer by the name of "Peter Wood"—exact nature of missionary activities after language school to be decided in the near future with the help of he national council of missions in Colombia—Stucky's regular address (3 cents) is Apt. 53, Medellin, Colombia—their airmail address (25 cents) is Apt. Aereo 653.

MENNONITES TO ALASKA?

(The following is an English translation of a German letter written to The Mennonite on November 5, 1945, by A. A. Rempel of Palmer, Alaska. We are happy to bring this letter which we believe to be of general interest.)

In The Mennonite of October 9, I read about Russian Mennonites, who are in flight from the Comunists and are now in Denmark, Holland, and Germany. Couldn't some way be found of helping a hundred of these families to settle here in Alaska? I have been told that there is no quota for farmers here in Alaska and that the higher officials here would give as much help as they could to such a sattlement. One could find out about this by asking the Honorable Mr. Gruening, Governor of Alaska.

We came here in February, 1943, from Dinuba, California, and have had two crops here. The income from one cow for a month is from forty to fifty dollars, and eggs are a $1.20 per dozen. Hay yields one or two tons to the acre. One pays five dollars for one hundred pounds of chicken feed. The market for these products is very good. Every year thousands of workers are brought here. They get a dollar an hour.

Here thousands of acres of good farm land are still available as homesteads. The winter is long but not very cold. Perhaps, there are not more than ten days in winter that the thermometer drops down to zero, but of course sometimes it also drops to twenty-five below. However, the longer days in spring and summer make up for this. Everything grows mightily.

Much truck gardening is done here. The vegetables are flown by airplane to Kodiak, the Aleutian Islands, Nome, and other cities. Also many potatoes are raised here. These yield from five to ten tons per acre. This year the farmers get four cents per pound. Last year they got four and one-half cents per pounds. —Heartiest greetings, A. A. Rempel, Palmer Alaska.

The A. A. Rempel Home at Palmer, Alaska

C. A. Linscheid
127 North Pine
Newton
Kansas

ORDER BLANK

The subscription price for The Mennonite for 1945 is: New Subscriptions $1.25 for the first year, Renewals $1.75 per year.

Please use this Order Blank when sending in your subscription and underscore the word New or Renewal to correspond with the type of subscription you are to pay for.

Name --

Street or Route ------------------------------------

Address ---

Remittances from Canada should be made by Postal Money Order only. Please write name and address plainly to avoid errors.

Mennonite Publication Office
Newton, Kansas

The Mennonite

VOLUME LXI NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, JANUARY 8, 1946 NUMBER 2

CALMNESS

—Photo by U. S. Forest Service

Perhaps, the above picture brings to you memories of a cold, rather windy winter day and how after facing the wind on the upland you wandered down into the thick brush and trees through which flowed a little creek. There you found a great warm calmness which was in sharp contrast to the biting winds above.

Such is the calmness of the Christian. The winds of the world may be bitter and strong, but within the Christian there is a great calmness that suggests warmth, restfulness, peace. and security. It is deep, thick, reverent calmness that charms one with its beauty.

The Christian can be calm. He knows that he has a life to find by losing it, so he does not have to fight turbulently against those factors, which spell loss in capital letters to those who are anxious for their life. He can be calm for his main purpose in life is to be loving, and for loving there is much room in this world; loving doesn't create storms, for it makes for calmness within and without. He can be calm for he is abiding in the Christ who calmed the waves and in agony said, "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do." Forgiven, the Christian can forgive; loved, he can love; calmed by God, he is calm and can calm. Like his Saviour, he is calm in the time of storm.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

One of the Lord's Own

Victor was sick. He lay on his bed in the hospital, too weak to be up. But he insisted on having his Bible and his songbook by his side.

He had been sick before—so sick that he had needed blood transfusions. Mother had contributed these. Father was away in war service. Sometimes he sent money fairly regularly. Then again there were long stretches when nothing came, and the little family was in difficult straits. Once a parcel came with lovely new clothes but that time no money was sent to buy food. So the mother and the seven children did not always have food enough to eat. Perhaps that was why Victor was sick again.

Victor was the oldest and was such a comfort to his mother. When father failed in his duties, Victor would say, "Never mind, mother. When I am high school pass then I'll take good care of you." But now he was very, very sick.

One day when the hospital attendant came in to give him his medicine he closed his eyes instead of getting ready to swallow the dose. His mother remonstrated with him, and then he answered with some impatience, "Can't I ask God's blessing on the medicine before I take it?" Both she and the hospital attendant were touched. "Yes indeed, you may pray before you take your medicine." So after this, when it was medicine taking time, all bowed their heads while he himself led in a wee prayer. To Victor, the Lord was someone who cared about these things.

Word had come that father was to come on leave. How eagerly Victor waited for him! Then one day while mother was sitting by his bed, busily sewing to earn a little money, father walked in. When he came to his son's bedside, Victor said, "O father, God has heard our prayers and brought you home." He seemed to improve and on Sunday insisted that mother go to church in the morning since father was there to stay with him. Then in the afternoon father could go to Sunday school. He enjoyed having his father feed him the bit of rice cooked in milk and said, "Now I feel as though I have a little strength."

On Monday towards evening he was not so well. He wanted his father to stay near by. His fever rose and he had severe pain in his stomach. He said to his mother, "I will not get better. I am not to stay in this world." How it hurt his mother to hear him speak like this.

But he tried to comfort her by saying, "God will give you peace. I am going on a long journey, a long journey. I used to help you, but now Joel will have to take my place. For my burial cloth use the material that father brought to make me new clothes."

After a bit he called out, "Wait, oh, wait, travelers! I am also coming. Wait for me!" And then, as Edgar Guest so beautifully puts it,

> "Then the angels came, and they > Took his lovely soul away
> From the torture house of clay."

Said his mother, "I have a great ache in my heart and yet, I also have peace. I remember how he always encouraged us to be regular in church attendance and how he always helped me get the little ones ready. He told me not to spend days in weeping after he was gone because that was not right. And so I am going on. I know I shall see him some day."
—Christena Duerksen

MISS PAULS AND CURT CLAASSENS ARRIVE IN INDIA

On December 26 we received a cablegram from Karachi, India. It stated that Sister Eva Pauls and Brother and Sister Curt Claassen had landed safely.

On January 10 Sister Selma Unruh is to leave for Chicago. From here she is to journey to the Congo Inland Mission field in Africa.

Thank the Lord for these additional three workers and the one returning. Laborers are still few and the harvest great. May we remember them in our prayers.—Secretary

H. J. Brown To Visit Pacific District

Rev. H. J. Brown's itinerary for the Pacific District is as follows:

January: Aberdeen, 13; Upland, 16-18; Los Angeles, 20; Shafter, 22 and 23; Paso Robles, 24-27; Reedley, 29, 30; Winton, 31 and Feb. 1;

February: Albany, 3, 4; Pratum, 5, 6; Dallas, 7-10 Barlow, 11, 12; Portland, 13, 14; Newport, 17; Colfax, 19, 20; Lind, 22-24; Monroe, 25-27; Lynden, 28 and March 1.

P. W. Penner wrote under date of October 24th: "At present all missionaries on the field are in good health and very busy with their work. Quite good health prevails among the Indian brethern. We especially rejoice that the cholera epidemic did not touch our field. A total of 2,330 died in one week in the Central Provinces, in which lies our mission field. But not a single death was reported from our area. God be thanked!"

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA
Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.
Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized Jan. 22, 1919.

MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS
Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Kansas.
paper, and exchanges to THE MENNONITE. North Newton,
Address all contributions and communications for this
Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

EDITORIALS

THE SOCIAL AND PERSONAL emphases are both very much needed in Christianity. They are the warp and woof of the Gospel. Neither alone can make cloth. They must be closely and tightly interwoven for good cloth.

The social emphasis is very much needed for building up conscience and for making clear what human relationships should be under all conditions. And right human relationships are a very large part of God's will. The more clear thinking we can have on right human relationships, the better it is. Human beings have to live together, and God wants them to live together in the right way.

As the world becomes smaller we have more people to live with under more and more complex conditions. The modern apartment dweller has a responsibility in regard to his radio that the farmer miles from the nearest neighbor does not have. The complexity of life makes the formulation of new standards of behaviour possible. Those who define such new standards according to the teachings of Christ are rendering a tremendous service. They enable those who are willing to do the right to know what is right. They help to bring about that use of mind that God intends. Undoubtedly, most of those with a strong social emphasis feel that they are also giving recognition to what we, for the want of a better term, might call personal experience. However, those enthusiastic about personal experience may feel that the recognition given is too little. And perhaps it is for several reasons. For instance the record of personal experience has too frequently been an inadequate one. There has been a lot of good intention with too little objective thought of what is important in human relationships. Individuals have been pulled into the whirlpool of self-interest until their religion really became something selfish. Personal experience has frequently been unintelligent. During the recent snowy weather across the nation, two seminary students before beginning on a long car trip stopped and prayed for God's protection. A little later the driver wondered how many cars and trucks he would be able to pass up. Such incongruity has far too often made the emphasis upon personal experience seem bankrupt. Yet along with the recognition of all this inadequacy must go the recognition that there is a need for personal inner experience. This becomes especially clear when right human relationships have been clearly defined and their acceptance by individuals becomes the problem. After a Second World War we say that there is nothing wrong with the Sermon on the Mount. We say the trouble is that it just simply has not been applied. But why hasn't it? That's where personal experience comes in. That's where modern Christianity is facing a great problem. MacArthur says that it has to be of the spirit if we are to save the flesh, but there is little insight as to how to enable human beings to have the power to do that which they know they ought to do.

The Law could not save, and in a similar sense the Teachings of Christ cannot save, that is, if we limit His teachings to the emphasis upon human relationships and leave out his emphasis upon "what was in man." The teachings have to be accepted before they can do good. What prevents that? The full answer is not at hand. This is the area Christianity of today needs to explore. However, it is evident that the answer lies in personal experience and there are a few indications of what is involved. The main element perhaps being a recognition by man of how immature and sinful he really is.

May it not all be something like a matter of good teaching? The good teacher knows very clearly the goal which the pupil is to reach. At the same time he knows his pupil. He has a very good idea of just how much the pupil knows and what his weaknesses and strengths are. And just because he knows his pupil so well can he develop those first steps which will enable the pupil to proceed towards the attainment of a very complex and difficult goal. If the teacher cannot sense the pupil's "difficulty" he will not get the pupil to progress very fast, regardless how much both teacher and pupil may desire the attainment of the goal. It's man's "difficulties" that have to be found out. Confession of sin undoubtedly goes a long way in this. Admission of sinfulness is a first step towards the goal. It would seem that the acceptance of Christ's teachings could be better achieved by keeping them in eye while at the same time recognizing that within one which is opposed to the teachings which one would accept.

Or again a man may ever so much long to arrive at a certain destination but he won't do so if he neglects to buy the ticket. That is, a little more attention to man where he is may get him a lot faster to where he ought to be. Since the social emphasis is upon where he ought to be, it needs to be united with the personal emphasis which so largely deals with man where he is. If man could admit his immaturity a little more, his maturity might come a little faster.

A Day in the Life of Two Relief Workers

by Wilhelmina Kuyf

Because we wanted to take some lumber out for the new looms that were going up at Champahati Industrial Centre and also to see a morning of our doctor's work, Lawrence Burkholder and I downed an early breakfast and started out in the unit's car. The country around Calcutta was beautifully green with the rice beginning to head. Birds and butterflies were darting in and out, and so were humans. Lawrence commented that he had never seen so many people on the road. When we were within three miles of our destination, the motor gave the sighing gasp with which we had become familiar and stopped dead, not to go again, in spite of Lawrences' efforts with various tools. A small, interested group of men and boys soon gathered, with a few women in the offing. Finally Lawrence asked one of the bystanders about hiring an ox team to pull us in to Champahati. That matter was quickly settled, and next began the process of bringing a piece of rope, and another, and a few more, until we were certain that every rope in the tiny valley was used. These were skillfully tied, then the car was attached to the axle of the two-wheeled cart and finally, two scrawny oxen had the harness adjusted in front of their humps. With a cheerful shout from all the small boys, we were on our slow way. India's sun was hot; so the first stop was to buy green coconuts. We drank the clear fluid inside the nuts. It is thirst-quenching and, reportedly, good for the stomach. We rolled along, the leisurely pace giving us more opportunity to observe the beauties of the country. The smiles and comments of those we passed interested us; the least sophisticated knew that that wasn't the way a motor car should go. Less than a mile on our way a number of bullock carts were halted at some deep mud holes in the road. Lawrence had to shed shoes and socks to investigate properly. The hole was deep, but after some rearrangement of the mud, and with the help of a somewhat augmented crowd, we were again on terra firma. Two more smaller mud holes lay before us, but they seemed to take only added shouting, renewed whacking along the spines of the beasts, and an occasional mild, barefooted kick, to get through.

In less than two hours we creaked past the dispensary, where the last of the morning's patients were being seen. Dr. Karmaker smilingly invited us in, but we felt that journey's end would be when the lumber was delivered, so we went on. It was now past two o'clock, and Rev. Biswas, in charge of the Industrial Centre, saw to it that we had a meal. Before and after food we talked of the work there. By learning weaving, men, women, and boys become able to provide for their own needs and to help their families. Some literacy work is carried on. Widows husk paddy (rice), or work with jute, or make salt, in order to support themselves. The village has a peculiar problem in that there are Christians of seven or eight denominations in it, but no regular church service! They are trying to get together to form an inter-denominational group, but, while they want no mission connections they need help. The Indian leader of our project is trying to supply some of it by his friendly counsel. The Mennonite Central Commitee is known throughout the village as a Christian organization.

There was no train to Calcutta until 5:20, so we returned to the dispensary and found that the doctor and his trained nurse wife had seen 171 patients that morning. He pointed out that some days even more had come. All, Hindus, Christians, Mohammedans, are helped in the name of Christ.

We walked to the station in the rain and waited under a veranda in the vain hope that it would stop. From here we had a look at the village shops, and enjoyed the play of the younsters who shared the veranda. It was all so much like China that there was a twinge of the frequently recurring wish to be there.

The streets were dark and shiny with wet when we reached Calcutta again. It hadn't been an average day, but still it was a day in the life of two relief workers.

Wilhelmina Kuyf, former missionary to China, has been in India for some time waiting to get into China to do relief work for the Mennonite Central Committee. Lawrence Burkholder is also waiting for the China door to open. According to Dr. S. F. Pannabecker some of the waiting relief workers were to get a chance to go into China, perhaps, during December. However, we have not heard as to whether any got to go. While waiting in India, the relief workers carry on work there.

Carl Barth, the Swiss theologian, urges the need of a spirit of friendship toward the German people. "We must try to show them the meaning of forgiveness, the forgiveness which they consider Utopian. Merely to preach beautiful words to them is insufficient. They must be led to feel the truth behind the words. It is the Gospel and not the law which will triumph. Jesus Christ belongs to them as well as to us. Perhaps it is His desire to begin at the beginning again with them."—Gospel Herald

RELIEF

Relief Workers Leave

On December 10, Brother and Sister G. Irvin Lehman and Dr. Paul Conrad sailed from New York for Ethiopia. They are taking with them equipment for a twenty-five to thirty-bed hospital.

Farewell services for Mrs. Henry Buller were held at Akron on December 8. Sister Buller as a German-born Jewess became acquainted with the Mennonite relief work in France in 1940, and later married Henry Buller, a relief worker there at the time. Her membership is with the First Mennonite Church, Upland, California. She expects to meet Bro. Buller in France and serve in the Mennonite Center office at Chalon. Until she was able to secure authorization to leave the United States and return to Europe she served in a stenographical capacity at the Akron office.

On December 13 farewell services were held at Akron for Emma Loewen of Steinbach, Manitoba and Clifford Lavers of Detroit, Michigan. Sister Loewen will serve in a secretarial capacity in the office at Basel, Switzerland, and Brother Lavers as a machinist and auto mechanic in France. They and Mrs. Buller sailed from New York for France on December 15 aboard the S.S. Argentina.

Flour for Europe

The interest in sending flour and wheat to Europe continues. To date 110 carloads of flour and wheat are either in port awaiting shipping or are in prospect. There are at shipside eleven cars of flour and wheat for shipment to France and thirty-two cars for shipment to Holland. There is promise of a boat loading in the near future. Two cars of flour have already left port for Holland.

More Food to Europe

A shipment of food valued at $5,565.60 left New York on December 10 for distribution in France. The shipment consisted of 25,558 quarts of canned fruits and vegetables, 2500 pounds of lard and 240 pounds of honey. On December 13 the S.S. Delfdyck sailed from New York for Rotterdam carrying 3,150 quarts of home-processed chicken valued at $3,150.

Relief Workers Appointed

The M.C.C. Executive Committee, which met in Chicago on December 15, 1945, authorized the appointment of the following relief workers:

Northwestern Europe

Robert Kreider, Goshen, Indiana; Irvin Horst, Reading, Pennsylvania.

Holland

Galen Widmer, Mount Pleasant, Iowa

Belgium

Paul Peachy, Harrisonburg, Virginia (To serve under the Mennonite Relief Committee)

Italy

Delmar Stahly, Danvers, Illinois; Richard Blackburn, Clayton, Ohio; Howard Blosser, Columbiana, Ohio; Andrew Bean, Kitchener, Ontario; Mary J. Loewen, Winkler, Manitoba; Lucille Bohrer, Normal, Illinois.

Ethiopia

Geneva Alexander, Elkhart, Indiana (To serve under the Mennonite Relief Committee)

Paraguay

Homer C. Martin, Columbiana, Ohio; Mike Wipf, Ethan, South Dakota; Ura S. Gingerich, Plain City, Ohio; Willard Schrag, Pretty Prairie, Kansas; Amos J. Yoder, Weatherford, Oklahoma; Dennis Lehman, Berne, Indiana; Harold Vercler, Washington, Illinois; Gerhard R. Buhr, Mountain Lake, Minnesota; Mrs. G. R. (Mildred) Buhr, Mountain Lake, Minnesota.

China

Dale Nebel, Washington, Iowa; Miller Hershberger, Sugar Creek, Ohio; Edwin Schrag, Moundridge, Kansas; Ernest Cristner, Goshen, Indiana.

Puerto Rico

Marjorie Shantz, R. N., Preston, Ontario; Edna Peters, R. N., North Newton, Kansas; Mrs. Melvin (Mary) Lauver, Akron, Pennsylvania; Oswald H. Goering, Elyria, Kansas; Royal Joyce Hower, Goshen, Indiana; Glenn R. Jantz, Hesston, Kansas; Melvin Lauver, Akron, Pennsylvania; Paul A. Leatherman, Doylestown, Pennsylvania; A. James Rinner, Mount Pleasant, Iowa; C. Delos Tanner, Francesville, Indiana.

Change in Warehouse Facilities

Due to the necessity of vacating the East Petersburg warehouse after December 31, a new warehouse, located on Route 340, Silver Springs, Pennsylvania, will accommodate the packing and warehousing of the foods, tools and utensils being processed for overseas shipment. Address all l.c.l. freight and express shipments for the food and tools programs to Mennonite Central Committee, Landisville, Pennsylvania.

On December 18, 1945, Edna Peters, R. N., North Newton, Kansas, left the States for Puerto Rico. Farewell services were held at Akron on December 13. She is to serve in the hospital as nurse, replacing Grace Kauffman who recently returned to the States.

C. P. S.

New Groups Become Eligible for Release January 1, 1946

Approximately 240 more assignees in Mennonite camps and units become eligible for release beginning January 1, 1946, as a result of the Selective Service announcement that additional men may take physical examinations on or after that date. The following are to be released in January:

1. Those who reach the age of thirty-eight on or before January 31, 1946.
2. Those who reach the age of thirty-five and complete two years of service on or before January 31, 1946.
3. Those who complete three years of service on or before April 30, 1946.

Nearly all of the over-age and four year service men in the entire C. P. S. program, numbering about 1550, had been released as this is written. This includes all of those who had reached the age of thirty-eight, or who had reached the age of thirty-five and completed two years of service, or who had completed four years of service by December 31, 1945. The few exceptions were those whose release was held up because of their physical condition.

History of Mennonite C.P.S.

Selective Service has authorized the appointment of two C.P.S. men each by the central committees of the Friends, Brethern, and Mennonites for research work on C.P.S. The M.C.C. plans to assign two men to the Akron office to collect materials for a history of Mennonite C.P.S. Paul Albrecht and John Oyer have been selected to do this work, and pending their arrival at Akron, Howard Kauffman is initiating the project. Some of the materials for such a history can only be collected while the C.P.S. program is still in operation, which is the reason for beginning it at this time.

C.P.S. Briefs

Alvin Reimer, high school music teacher from Kansas, is now conducting a three-week music school at the Belton, Montana, camp. He recently completed a similar school at the Hill City, South Dakota, camp, and reports excellent interest at both Belton and Hill City.

Edna Quiring of Canton, Kansas, has just completed a three-month term of service in which she visited a number of eastern camps and units to give instruction in crafts.

Members of the mental hospital unit at Howard, R. I., are making a special collection of clothing for relief.

Report on "Frozen Fund"

According to a recent report from the National Service Board for Religious Objectors, the wages of C. P. S. men on farm service, deposited in the U. S. Treasury as a "frozen fund," now total approximately $1,100,000.00.

PEACE SECTION NOTES

Civilian Bond Plan Terminated

Inasmuch as the current bond drive, which offically came to a close December 8, is the final war bond drive, the M.C.C. Executive Committee agreed on December 15 to a proposal that the civilian bond plan arrangement be terminated. The civilian bond plan was the result of negotiations, in the spring of 1942, of a Civilian Bond Committee with the U. S. Treasury Department and was an arrangement whereby persons who felt unable to purchase war bonds could subscribe to Government securities.

According to a summary of subscriptions under this plan, the amount of securities purchased as of December 15, 1945, was $6,604,675.64. Of this amount $4,786,276.50 was subscribed by Mennonites, $1,103,800.00 by Brethern, $322,046.64 by Friends, and the remaining $392,552.50 by other groups. A full report of subscriptions will be released at a later date.

Changes in Peace Section

Howard Charles, has completed the first draft of a pamphlet for the Peace Section which is designed to help Mennonite youth to meet the question of participating in war. The pamphlet is to be completed and published early next spring. Elmer Ediger is serving in the Peace Section on a temporary basis.

Mennonite Aid Section Notes

Staff Changes in the Aid Section

—The Mennoite Aid Section of the M.C.C. has been without a permanent director since the resignation of Winfield Fretz on September 1, 1945. Roy Umble, who serves as the educational liason between the colleges and C.P.S., has been giving part of his time to the Aid Section. A full-time worker will again be provided with the appointment of William T. Snyder as assistant director. He will work primarily in the area of aid to discharged C.P.S. men. Brother Snyder was formerly director of the C.P.S. Dairy Service Division.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. IRENE SCHUTZ, thirty-one, Pandora, Ohio, died at the Bluffton Hospital on November 12 following the birth of a son. She is survived by her husband, Albert Schutz; seven children; her mother, Mrs. Harry Cheny; a sister, Mrs. Mildred Todd of McComb, and a brother, Robert Cheny. She was a member of the Grace Mennonite Church.

ADAM AMSTUTZ, seventy-nine, Pandora, Ohio, was found dead November 26 at his home, having died of a stroke. He was the last surviving member of his family. He is survived by five daughters: Mrs. Harvey Hilty, Pandora; Mrs. Monroe Burkholder, Columbus Grove; Mrs Lloyd Badertscher, Smithville; Mrs. Sarah Lindsay, Toledo, Ohio; and Mrs. Lena Woolam, Alexandria, Kentucky. He was a charter member of Grace Church.

EDWARD D. UNZICKER, son of John and Mary (Sloneker) Unzicker, was born at Collinsville, Ohio, February 3, 1864, and died November 30, 1945. He is survived by his widow, five children and three grandchildren. In 1894 Mr. Unzicker was united in marriage with Emma Kinsinger, and in 1944 they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. He was a life-long member of the Trenton Mennonite Church.

REV. JACOB B. EPP, son of Johann and Margarethe Bergman Epp, was born in Koeppenthal, Sartom, Russia, April 6, 1874.. Here he received his elementary education and grew to young manhood. He was baptized upon the confession of his faith, Mary 29, 1889, by the Elder Johannes Quiring, and has been a devoted member of the Mennonite Church since.

In 1893 he migrated to America with his parents, settling in Newton, Kansas. Here he graduated from Bethel College. He taught school for one year in Manitoba, Canada, and one year in an Indian School in Oklahoma Territory. From 1901 until 1912 he served as missionary to the Hopi

Indians in Oraibi, Arizona, under the Foreign Mission Board of the General Conference.

On June 29, 1905, he was united in marriage with Miss Nettie Harms, of the Gnadenberg Mennonite Church, Harvey County. This union was blessed with two children: Theodore H. and Ida Esther; and Dorothy Viola, a Hopi Indian girl, was adopted. He suffered the loss of his first wife on February 11, 1913, in Pasadena, California. On April 2, 1914, he was united in marriage with Miss Johanna von Steen, of Beatrice, Nebraska, which union was blessed with one daughter, Helen Margaret.

Beginning in 1913, he served nineteen years with the Oklahoma Bible Academy, serving as principal and Bible teacher. He also served as pastor of the New Hopedale Mennonite Church of Meno, Oklahoma, from 1913 to 1918. From 1919 to 1921 he served as pastor of the Pretty Prairie Mennonite Church of Pretty Prairie, Kansas. He served as editor of Der Herold, Newton, Kansas, from 1921 to 1932. At various times he also held pastorates at Orienta, Oklahoma, and Moundridge, Kansas. From 1927 until 1929 he taught in the Bible Department of Hesston College, Hesston, Kansas. The past three and one-half years he spent as prayer leader with the "Back to The Bible Broadcast," with headquarters at Lincoln, Nebraska

In 1929 he became critically ill with pneumonia, from the effects of which illness, his heart never completely recovered. On May 1, 1945, he suffered a severe heart attack, and from that time his bodily decline was quite rapid. On November 26, he entered the Bethel Hospital, and passed away quietly in his sleep, at about 3:30 a.m. December 22, 1945, having attained an age of seventy-one years, eight months and sixteen days.

He leaves to mourn his passing, his widow; two sisters, Sister Ida of the Bethel Deaconess Hospital, Mrs. B. G. Regier of Newton, Kansas; four children, Rev. Theodore H. Epp, of Lincoln, Nebraska; Mrs. E. A. Ferrer, of Los Angeles, California; Mrs. Arnold C. Claassen, of Potwin, Kansas; Mrs. Selbert Sharpe of Los Angeles, California; one daughter-in-law, three sons-in-law, ten grand-children, and a host of other relatives and friends.

In the years of his declining health, he grew much heavenward, waiting for the Upper-taker. His one great desire was to be here when the Lord Jesus returned for His Saints. This last wish was not granted him by the Lord, but he preceded in order that he might return with the Lord at His coming. The following poem expresses his great desire:

I've a longing in my heart for Jesus,
  I've a longing in my heart to see His face,
I am weary, oh so weary, of travelling here below,
  I've a longing in my heart for Him."

Children's Books for Church Libraries

The following list of books is an answer to requests that have come to us for suggestions of good books for church libraries. We acknowledge the courtesy of the Newton Public Library and the Herald Publishing Company for allowing us to prepare this list of books from their book shelves.

Any of these books can be ordered from the Berne Book Concern, Berne, Indiana; Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kansas; Bethel College Book Store, North Newton, Kansas; Herald Publishing Company, Newton, Kansas.

Wherever possible, we have stated the page number and the price of the book. The price quotation may vary in some instances.

Books by Mrs. Marguerite De Angeli. Doubleday, Doran and Company, Inc., New York. Price $2.00.

Thee Hannah. Pages 88. The story of little Hannah, a Quaker lass, who is taught to shake out "Old Spotty" (Satan).

Skippack School. Pages 88. A story of the Mennonite settlement beyond German Town about 1750. Christopher Dock was the schoolmaster in this delightful story.

Petite Suzanne. Pages 88. The story of a little French Canadian girl.

Copper-Toed Boots. Pages 92. The story of a country lad in the Michigan of 1880.

Henner's Lydia. Pages 67. The dedication of this book reads: "To the children of the Little Red Schoolhouse in the Conestoga Valley of Pennsylvania."

Yonie Wondernose. The story of a Pennsylvania Dutch boy.

Books illustrated by Masha. Random House, New York. Price $1.50.

A Child's Book of Prayer. By Jane Werner. Pages 54.

A Child's Book of Prayer.. By Louise Raymond. Pages 36.

A Child's Book of Christmas Carols. By Inez Bertail. Pages 40. Words and Music.

Books by Ruth Sawyer. The Viking Press, New York.

The Christmas Anna Angel. Pages 48.

Roller Skates (Awarded the Newberry medal, 1937) Pages 186. Price $2.00

Tono Antonio. Pages 132. Price $1.75.

Books by Mary Alice Jones. Rand McNally and Company, Chicago.

Tell Me About God. Pages 71.

Tell Me About Jesus. Pages 72.

Tell Me About the Bible. Pages 92. Published November 15, 1945.

Biographies

Brother of the Birds. By Lousia Meigs Green. David McKay Company, Philadelphia. Pages 123. The story of Saint Francis of Assisi.

Louisa Alcott. By Jean Brown Wagoner. The Bobbs-Merrill Company, New York.

Biographies by Sybil Deucher. E. P. Dutton and Company, Inc., New York. Price $2.50.

Giotto Tended the Sheep. Pages 96.

Millet Tilled the Soil. Pages 94.

Biographies by Opal Wheeler and Sybil Deucher. E. P. Dutton and Company, Inc., New York. Price $2.00

Sebastian Bach the Boy from Thuringia. Pages 126

Mozart, the Wonder Boy. Pages 127.

Franz Schubert and His Merry Friends. Pages 127.

Joseph Haydn, the Merry Little Peasant. Pages 117.

Stephen Foster and His Little Dog Tray. Pages 168.

Books that emphasize some Christian truth.

Books by Kent Anderson. Zondervan Publishing House, Grand Rapids, Michigan.

The Austin Boys—Marooned. Pages 100 Price 75 cents. A story of boys that were led to think of "the pearl of great price."

The Austin Boys—Adfift. Pages 67. Price 75 cents. The story of boys who learned that it paid to put their trust in God.

Winky Lost in the Rockies. Pages 66. Price 60 cents. Winky learns that God answers prayer.

Books by Basil Miller. Zondervan Publishing House, Grand Rapids, Michigan, Price 60.

Ken Rides the Range. Pages 76. Ken learns to say "Bless the Lord, O my soul; and all that is within me bless his holy name."

Ken Bails Out. Pages 76. Ken learns the meaning of the verse "All things are possible to him that believeth."

Ken in Alaska. Pages 71. Ken realizes that God is good indeed.

Patty Lou of the Golden West. Pages 67. Patty Lou finds "The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places; yea I have a goodly heritage."

Patty Lou and the White Gold Ranch. Pages 74. A story in which Patty Lou learns the joy of bringing someone to Jesus.

Books by Elsie E. Egermeier. The Warner Press, Anderson, Indiana.

Boys Stories of Great Men. Pages 185. Price $1.00

Girls Stories of Great Women. Pages 188. Price $1.00

Picture Story Life of Christ. Pages 292. Price $2.00

Books by Susanna G. Fisher. National Publishing Company, Philadelphia. Price 75 cents.

A Child's Story of Jesus' Friends. Pages 76.

Bible Pictures and Their Stories. Pages 71.

Miscellaneous books and authors. ..

Small Rain. By Jessie Orton Jones. Illustrated by Elizabeth Orton Jones. The Viking Press, New York. Pages 37. Price $2.00

Prayers and Graces for Small Children. By Quail Hawkins. Illustrated by Marguerite de Angeli. Grosset and Dunlap, New York. Pages 27. Price 50 cents.

Nanka. By Helene Pelzel. Albert Whitman and Company, Chicago. Pages 254. Price $2.00

Amish Moving Day. By Ella Marie Seyfert. Thomas Y. Crowell Company, New York. Pages 126. Price $2.00.

Children's Story Garden, Broomill.

Children's Story Caravan, Broomill.

Bible Pictures and What They Teach Us by Charles Foster. A. J. Holman Company, Philadelphia. Pages 318. Price $1.75. A collection of 400 pictures with description in easy reading.

Banjo Billy and Mr. Bones. By May Justus. Albert Whitman and Company, Chicago. Pages 64. The story of an orphan boy that longs for a home and finds one.

The Christ Child. By Maud and Miska Petersham. Doubleday, Doran and Company, Inc., Garden City, New York.

Maminka's Children. By Elizabeth Orton Jones. Macmillan and Company, New York. Pages 107. Price $2.00.

Ragman of Paris. By Elizabeth Orton Jones. Oxford, Press, Oxford, England. Pages 82. Price $1.50.

A Tree for Peter. By Kate Seredy. The Viking Press, New York. Pages 102. Price $2.00. The story of a lame boy of Shanty Town. A story of faith, love, and courage.

The Little Match Girl. By Hans Christian Anderson. Grosset and Dunlap, New York. Pages 25.

Books for Children's worker.

Junior Worship. By Ada Rose Demerest. The Standard Publishing Company, Cincinnati, Ohio. Pages 240. Price $1.50.

Bible Text Stories for Boys and Girls. By Louise M. Oclevee. The Standard Publishing Company, Cincinnati, Ohio. Pages 262. Price $1.50.

The Christian Nurture of Children. By Alta Mae Erb. Herald Press, Scottdale, Pennsylvania. Pages 148. Price 75 cents.

The Story Shop. By Mary C. Odell. The Judson Press, Philadelphia. Pages 238. Price $1.75.

New Rainbow Missionary Stories. By "Aunt" Stella M. Rudy. Christian Publications, Inc., Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. Pages 192. Price $1.50.

Object Lessons That Talk and Teach. By Louis T. Talbot. Zondervan Publishing House, Grand Rapids, Michigan. Pages 112. Price 60 cents.

More Object Lessons That Talk and Teach. By Louis T. Talbot. Zondervan Publishing House, Grand Rapids, Michigan. Pages 110. Price 60 cents.

Selected by Mrs. H. J. Andres with the approval of the Education Committee, Western District Conference.

QUOTE

Paul Erb, Editor of the "Gospel Herald":

"People cannot live together unless they have a proper regard for one another's rights. I am not the family; I am only one member of the family I am not the church; I am only one member of the church. I am not the community or the state! I am merely one citizen. Trouble develops when any one of us thinks 'of himself more highly than he ought to think,' when anyone seeks his own, rather than another's good. The egocentric person, be he parent, child, friend, preacher, teacher pupil employer or employee, does not contribute to a happy or successful social group."

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Verney Unruh
Vice President
Ruth Ewert
Secretary-Treasurer

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

Competitive Sports in the Community

By Paul Schmidt

What values does the community receive from competitive sports? That is a question which causes some concern for parents, teachers, and ministers as we spend a lot of time playing softball, football, or basketball or attending a number of these games as spectators. As for those who are younger, the question seems a bit foolish since they participate in these activities because they enjoy them. However, it might be in place to stand aside and consider the constructive values of sports to the community.

Breaks Barriers in the Community

Sports activities are a means of unifying the community. The caste systems in every-day life melt away as one group plays a neighboring community in softball or as it rallies behind the high school football team. People admire the performance of the boy who lives across the tracks or the negro who has attained the polish of the above-average players. The "A" student competes on the same level with those who have difficulty maintaining a "C" average. Sometimes one sees that cooperation is possible between those who find it impossible to cooperate under ordinary circumstances. Haven't you seen men, who would hardly speak to each other in regular life, become teammates who work together to place their team in the winning column? However, before such a thing is possible, the individual must place his own "self-importance" lower than the welfare of the group or the team. This fact makes one very hopeful that the way of peace is possible in the world when people decide that they want peace.

In one of the CPS camps the men competed in a Servicemen's basketball league. These men who differed so much in their outlook on life could compete with each other on friendly terms. In discussing the organization of the league they questioned the lieutenant as to how his men would react to playing against conscientious objectors. "As far as my team is concerned," he replied, "It would make no more difference than a game between the Republicans and Democrats on our team." It so happened that one of the CPS teams took first place in the league and the lieutenant's team won second. To complete the story this particular army team asked the CPS team to join with them in forming a team for the city tournament. In his incident the CPS men felt that they had succeeded in making friends and gaining a sense of unity without compromising their position.

These long winter evenings will see many a family and many youth seeking ways of spending their time. Local high schools will be busy playing basketball. Many local fans will see the games and will talk at length about them. They will discuss the strong and weak points of each player and team and will decide how the game should have been played.

Many other folks will enjoy parties, home games, church socials—things which cannot be so easily done during the busy summer season. Recreation can be a very worthwhile and wholesome activity. Young people need such activity for creative, abundant and wholesome living. All that vibrant energy of youth must be put to use. It can be used in a detrimental way. In some communities this is the case. It is the tradition that the boys must be tough and troublesome to be anybody. When that occurs, the communiy has a long struggle ahead to correct such a mistaken notion. In other communities, wholesome fellowship, good fun, and generous good will typify the spirit of the young people. Sometimes we don't sufficiently appreciate such a spirit.

In order for us to have desirable recreation and enjoy life in our communities to the full, we need to think on what sort of sports and recreation we want and how to get them. This issue of Mennonite Youth suggests some of the needs and ways of developing a creative wholesome activity in the community. There is much more that can be said on this subject. There are many needs to be met. The youth, by using their imagination, can make their activities rich and a credit to their church and community.

Provide Recreation

Sports activities not only unify the community but they provide recreation for the community. Although it would be preferable to have the entire community participate directly in sports, it appears that a large portion of the population gets its recreation by being entertained or by participating in sports in a less vigorous manner.

As a rule our communities and churches encourage to some degree the participation in sports since it provides a clean and wholesome form of recreation if given proper direction. Our churches have a stern attitude toward some of the other types of recreation and since they do not provide substitutes, it makes the sports field very important as a recreational opportunity. Recreation is necessary for a well-developed Christian personality. Also body health requires some exercise to which the sports can contribute.

It is only recently that the church has considered the field of mental health. Here the competitive sports program can help to ease the tensions of daily living by diverting interest and activty to another field. Watching an exciting game of basketball can certainly ease the tension for dad as he forgets his current business problems or as mother casts aside her household cares. Going to school is strenuous but it becomes easier when one looks forward to an important game or to a good intramural schedule of sports. In the CPS camps certain sports activities are good morale builders. These activities provide a topic for conversations when perhaps other topics have been exhausted for the time being.

Can Provide Training in Sportsmanship

In addition to unifying and providing recreation for our communities, it seems that competitive sports provide the commuity with a training ground for Christian life. This is a training ground providng there is some direction behind the program of athletics which points out principles involved in playing the game. This direction might come from the coach, teammates, or from the person's own conscience. It is also possible that the direction for such activities might be unwholesome if it is not carefully selected. It then becomes very important that the direction of he program should be in harmony with our purposes. However, the nature of competitive sports usually brings out the best in man because the sportsman as a rule frowns on unethical behavior. It is continually shown that good training and practice of proper forms bring the desired results.

Teaches How to Live When Under Pressure

The contribution of sports to the community is to teach the individual how to live under pressure circumstances. All through life one faces a number of problems which upset a person's equilibrum and if he had not practiced his Christian love and understanding, he is likely to "hit the ceiling" or "blow up." It should be emphasized that this love and understanding must be practiced in order to have it—and even then one sometimes fails to have enough on hand for certain occasions. There are sufficient opportunities in sports to practice our behaviour under tense circumstances. Here one must be a non-conformist to the usual pattern of living. If our opponent in football slugs us in line play, the American temperament would have us retaliate with an equally hard or harder blow. If our opponent in basketball yields his elbows so they land in the pit of the stomach with an uncomfortable amount of force, we must "get even" to maintain our American self-respect. To return good for evil requires some practice and one can practice this under controlled circumstances in our sports. It is not always possible to control emotions entirely but if one is conscious of his failures, he will gain greater mastery over himself.

These Situations Apply to Daily Living

The emotional situations in sports are much like those which confront a person in real life—he is treated unjustly by his employers, he is abused by his employees, he is treated unfairly by his neighbor, he is imposed upon by others, he disagrees violently with his fellow church member, etc. If he has practiced his Christian love in sports as well as in other situations, most likely he will be able to take these problems in stride without losing his equilibrium even though he becomes very much concerned. Perhaps there is no more ideal situation in which to practice this control of temper or this living the life of love than in the field of competitive sports.

By living a life of love it would almost appear that one is opposed to having a winning team. That certainly is not implied. A team should play to win and play hard, but it should not attempt to win at all costs—the price may be too high. This suggestion would include the spectators also. Sometimes they are more in need of guidance than the players. There is an art to winning or losing a game which escapes many people . One hears much about being a good loser but it is just as difficult to be a good winner. There should be some of both—winning and losing—in a sports program.

Our community receives its gain from the competitive sports field through its effect on the individual community members by unifying the members, by providing recreation for physical and mental health, and by providing controlled circumstances for training for future life under tense emotional situations. These are genuine values to the community which are not always gained from other sources.

Contributors to the Issue

Paul Schmidt contributed "Competitive Sports in the Community." He is at present in C. P. S. serving in the M.C.C. offices at Akron, Pa. Paul has a lot of experience in competitive sports having played championship basketball in Kansas high school competition and with the University of Colorado team, a team which toured the country extensively. Madison Square Garden, Mid-West competition, etc. Paul's home is in Newton, Kansas.

A group in C.P.S. No. 138, Lincoln, Nebraska has been making a study of recreation. The article "What Makes Recreation Worthwhile?" are findings of this group.

Bill Ramseyer who wrote "Recreation and the Church" has had a considerable amount of experience in recreational activity. For a while he directed a recreational program in a Y.M.C.A. in Chicago. Bill at present is educational director of the mental hospital unit at Norristown, Pennsylvania. Bill hails from Ohio.

Recreation and the Church

What place, if any, should recreation have in the program of the church? Many constituents of the Mennonite church will answer this question differently. However, I do not raise this question to bring up differences but to stimulate new thought on many of the problems and possibilities in this field. By associating recreation with the church, one does not necessarily mean to bring a gynasium into the church or to make recreation a part of the regular religious programs now offered by the church. I would rather have you think of recreation as a phase of life in which youth and adults participate and that the church has a concern to see that proper guidance and leadership is given.

Every person spends considerable amount of time in recreative activity. The physical and mental energy of man runs down and needs to be rebuilt. This rebuilding is done through food and relaxation. Rest or changes of activity allows certain parts of the body to rest and to restore new energy. A person needs a change from a steady diet of work if that person is to continue to work efficiently. The vast possibilities of what that change can be is a major reason why the church must assume some leadership in helping their members to determine what that change will be. There are many wholesome way of enjoying creative activity or relaxation from work. It is not necessary to mention here a list of desirable recreational activities. On the other hand, there are just as many activities that can be used as recreation that are harmful to a growing Christian life. The church an obligation to its members to see that they have an opportunity to enjoy the wholesome activities. These opportunities should be encouraged in such a way as to compete with the many commercialized and highly advertized recreational programs.

The church should minister to the whole person. A person needs a recreative experience as a means of relaxation from the daily drudgeries of life. Most of our church members look to the church for their standards of living. If the church fails to set up standards in this phase of life, they fail to provide leadership in a very important part of each member's life. Their members look to outside agencies for this leadership and for their leisure time activities. Youth, especally, look for and find enjoyable ways of spending their leisure time. If they are allowed to "drift" into their choices, the results are sometimes harmful to the individual and to the church. Encouragement and leadership from the church can guide their choices into forms of recreation that are most conducive to the "good life." Our church is concerned that all of its members live their lives at the highest levels. This means that our leisure time also should be lived on these high levels.

The men in C. P. S. camps have had an opportunity to be in contact with programs for leisure time activities. They have been surprised by the vast number of wholesome activities that can be participated in and which help them to develop Christian character. Many of them have become interested in new vocations and in new hobbies through the recreational or leisure time programs of the camps. The recreation program has also shown the men that Christian living plays an important part in our recreational life as well as in other phases of living. Winning a game or developing a skill may not be as important a product of recreation as the value of learning to play together. The value of "team play" or pulling together develops understanding, co-operation, love, and respect for other individuals. To learn to play hard but to play fairly helps one to develop honesty and moral integrity.

The recreation programs in the C. P. S. camps have stimulated new interests and new abilities. What will be the results when these men return to their home churches? With whom will the responsibility for such a program rest? Can we cooperatively and realistically face the question and attempt to work out the possibilities of a recreational program in a spirit of brotherliness?

—The Dove—Tale

What Makes Recreation Worthwhile?

E. O. Harbin in his booklet, "Recreation for Youth," has given eight reasons why the church needs an adequate recreation program and ten ways of testing good recreation:

1. Recreation satisfies a normal and legitimate human want. From babyhood to old age periods of recreation add sparkle and zest to life.

2. Recreation when well conceived makes abundant living possible. The man lives most who responds with enthusiasm and joy to most of the finer things about him—books, music, art, drama; a lovely sunset, a flower garden, a trip through the woods, a quiet period of worship, a chance to serve, the fellowship of a friendly game, a friendly conversation, the thrill of a creative hobby, the song of a robin and thousands of other joys.

3. Recreation is necessary to relieve the tensions of life. The world moves at a dizzy pace. There must be periods of relaxation.

4. Recreation has in it the possibilities for building wholesome attitudes, habits and interests that enrich character. Jane Addams has said, "We may smother the divine fire of youth or we may feed it."

5. An intelligent and active interest in providing wholesome recreation will tend to refute the idea that "religion is a dry creed with the joy squeezed out."

6. Training in a well-balanced program of recreation will stabilize life and character at the points where some of the severest tests of life are made.

7. The Christian's life is not well rounded if the recreational aspects of his life are starved for the lack of expression. Lopsided Christians make pathetic figures and they are of little help to the kingdom.

8. Jesus said, "I came that you might have life abundantly." The abundant life cannot be attained without the enrichment which intelligent Christian employment of leisure time can bring.
The ten tests of good recreation are:

1. The Character Test—What does it do to my character?

2. The Spiritual Test—Mrs. Wesley wrote to her son, John, "Whatsoever weakens your reason, impairs the tenderness of your conscience, obscures your sense of God or takes off the relish of spiritual things, that thing is sin for you, however innocent it may be in itself.'-

3. The Health Test—What does it do to my body?

4. The Sociability Test—Does the activity develop a spirit of friendliness? Does it develop an appreciation of others? Does it discourage snobbishness?

5. The Fun Test—Does it bring real satisfaction or is it indulged in just as a fad? Someone has suggested that a "good time" should be enjoyed three times—in anticipation, in realization, and retrospection.

6. The Value Test—How is it rated by intelligently good people of sound judgment?

7. The Time Test—Does it have in it the quality of duration? Does it hold promise of growth?

8. The Self-Expression Test—One needs to be taught to play. The capacity for enjoyment has to be developed.

9. The Aesthetic Test—Does it lift my level of appreciation? Does it develop a response to beauty, a desire for music, art and literature?

10. The Budget Test—Can I afford It? Does it encourage extravagance? Jesus' development was four-fold—physically, mentally, spiritually, and socially. Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man. Sin is anything that hinders development in anyone of these four phases. We may use as a set of criteria for recreation the following:

1. Will this recreation aid in giving me physical benefit?

2. Will this recreation help in the development of my mental power?

3. Will this recreation improve my standing with God in order that I may grow spiritually?

4. Will this recreation help me to make my personal contacts more worthwhile? Any particular form of recreation should offer development in at least two of those phases and should hinder in none.
Note: For further standards and codes for recreation see chapter 4 in Social Recreation Primer, Bob Tully Brethern Publishing House, Elgin Illinois.

To Get More Information About Recreation

In order to get more information about Recreation and Sports, it is possible to contact agencies who perform this service . A bibliography is published called Publications on Play and Recreation issued by the National Recreation Association, 315 Fourth Avenue, New York 10, New York. This 29 page booklet is obtainable free.

A small book the Social Recreation Primer by Bob Tully, Brethern Publishing House, Elgin, Illinois is obtainable for one dollar. It was published in 1944 and is excellent for beginners in recreational leadership.

The Fun Encyclopedia by E. O. Harbin published by Abingdon Cokesbury Press, Nashville, Tennessee is the most complete book on recreation available. It is 1008 pages in size and priced at $2.75. It is outstanding for suggestions, games, and ideas.

The Cooperative Recreation Service, Delaware, Ohio, has many excellent pamphlets on recreation. Lynn Rohrbough operates this service and understands the needs of rural recreation living in a rural area himself.

MEMORIAL GIFT PLAN FOR BLUFFTON COLLEGE

A good many people have come to sense a distinct feeling of disquietude regarding the large expenditure for flowers for special occasions, such as funerals, anniversities, etc. They feel that floral offerings serve a beautiful but fleeting purpose. For a few days at the most their beauty and fragrance are impressive. After that all that remains in the hands of the receiving family is the group of cards which bear the names of the persons or groups, who thus expressed their appreciation and solicitude. By that time the flowers have faded, and their fragrance has expired; or they were taken to a hospital, or (in case of a funeral) were left on the grave quickly to be scorched by the summer sun or nipped by the wintry air. Only the cards remain to tell of the thoughtfulness and love of friends.

This sense of disquietude has given rise to the feeling that there ought to be some adequate means of expression but with more permanent significance. This feeling, in turn has given rise to the so-called Memorial Gift Plan. By this Plan, a card or cards also remains in the hands of the person or family; but the sum which would have been spent for flowers, is given as memorial gift (one that will live) to some institution,—in this case, Bluffton College. Briefly this is the way it works:

An appropriate card or folder of artistic design will be provided and distributed by the Ladies Auxiliary of the college. Quantities of these will be placed in the hands of the pastors of the constituent churches. For funeral occasions the card will bear some message of comfort and appreciation, and will state that

To the Glory of God and in Loving Memory of

(name of the deceased)

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

By ————————

Other personal cards adapted for specific anniversary for which the gift is to be made should be used by the donor, when these gifts are made at other times than at funerals.

When some one chooses to express appreciation or sympathy by this means, he should contact his pastor informing him of his intention or desire. The pastor or donor will then fill out the proper card, delivering it to the person or family; and the sum contributed will be sent to the college. At a funeral service a minister may, if desired, state that in addition to the floral trbutes there present, Memorial gifts were also given to Bluffton College by (Names of Contributors).

The Bluffton Ladies Auxiliary believes that in offering this plan to the constituency and friends of the college, many will welcome an opportunity to express their love and appreciation by some means that the sum so contributed will serve as a lasting purpose in and through the school. As soon as cards can be produced they will be sent to the pastors with more detailed instructions for their use. They will then be available to those who desire a way to "say it" without flowers. We trust there will be many who will use this plan to build up a fund which can be used in some way as a living memorial for our college.

FROM THE STATE HOSPITAL, MARLBORO, NEW JERSEY

Who are the people who live here?—What do they do while they are here?—What is it like to make one's home here?—Do some of the people leave here?—About one person in twenty in this country learns the answers to these questions from actual experience. The other nineteen know little or nothing beyond many superstitions and false beliefs. What about you? One hundred men of Civilian Public Service have spent several years living here among the patients of this hospital. They are prepared to tell you in an interesting and helpful way the story of the treatment and care of the mentally ill patient. Their story is told largely by pictures accompanied with a very readable explanation. Combined in this single publication is an education regarding the mentally ill, and a dramatic portrayal of the work of a large segment of the C.O.'s of World War II.

This interesting book will soon go to press. The editors are eager that it carry its message into many places. Now at this time they need your expression of interest in order that they may plan wisely in determining the number of copies to publish. For your convenience you may use the blank below. Please return it at your earliest convenience.

Mr. Roland Brown, State Hospital, Marlboro, New Jersey

Dear Sir:

I wish to order ——— copies of the publication on the care of the mentally ill which is being prepared and publshed by C.P.S. Unit No. 63, Marlboro State Hospital, Marlboro, N. J. I understand that the cost of the publication will be $2.00 per copy. I also understand that the amount is payable now or upon notice that the publication is prepared for distribution.

name ————————————————

address ————————————————

city or town ———————— state ————————

Please check:

( ) Payment enclosed.

( ) To be paid on further notice.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary

Far North Mission Group Carries on among Indians

Far in the north of Saskatchewan at Barnes Crossing, where Rev. Isaac Epp is pastor, and where they receive some Canadian mission help, there is an interest in a mission project among Indians still farther to the north. Our churches at Barnes Crossing, cooperate in part with churches of other denominations in carrying on a mission work among the Indians at Buffalo Narrows.

The workers report that the Indians often do come and hear the gospel preached, and there is evidence that some come under conviction, but it is very hard for them to make out and out decisions for Christ, because of the severe persecution that any new convert experiences. The power of the Lord's workings can be seen when mission churches in turn carry on mission work with other believers among the unreached.

Wanted—A Coupe

This may sound a bit strange, but it is a fact. The Board of Home Missions is on the search for a good used coupe. For a good many years, Miss Elsa E. Grantland, Paint Rock, North Carolina, has made many trips in "the faithful little car" as she often writes about it. "Faithful" as the car is, it is old and needs to be replaced, because mechanics find it almost impossible to find parts and tires for this old model. Some good friends outside the Mennonite Church provided that car for her.

Now it is our turn to provide a coupe for her. If anyone has a good coupe that you would sell, please correspond with the Secretary of the Board. We have had men in the East looking for such a car, but so far found none.—A. J. Neuenschwander.

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

BETHEL COLLEGE

One of the departments remaining open through the holiday season was the College Press. Employing about forty-five students and special assitants, the Press is not only a training laboratory in the field of graphic arts—such as lettering, printing, and duplicating—but also serves the church at large while at the same time helping students to earn their College expenses. The Print Shop and Bookbinding division is in charge of Prof. J. J. Voth, with Karl Friesen as assistant. Prof. Bargen, assisted by Myrtle Goering, supervises the division known as the Secretarial Bureau. The Press not only handles the College printing and mailing lists but prints six periodicals for the Mennonite constituency as well as serving individual churches with the Church Bulletin Service, letters to drafted men, letter heads, and other services. The popularity of the new magazine, Mennonite Life, has demanded a reprinting of the first issue.

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

The Dormitory girls and a group of Christian Youth Volunteers went Christmas caroling several nights. The Home Economics girls served the annual faculty Christmas dinner. The students again decided on a White Christmas. Gifts were sent to Negro children in Alabama and Indian children in Arizona. A student Christmas program in an appropriately decorated chapel closed the pre-holiday activities at the college.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Geigley will speak at the Vesper service Sunday afternoon, January 13. Robert is an alumnus of Bluffton College, a member of the class of 1938. He is the son of Rev. A. W. Geigley of Fairfield, Pennsylvania. He spent two years working under the MCC in the Mennonite colony in Paraguay. Mrs. Geigley was born and reared in Argentina On January 12 there will be an Alumni-Varsity basketball game. It is hoped that this week-end can be made a mid-winter homecoming. Carl Lehman will join the staff as business manager and treasurer of the college January 2. He has recently been released from CPS work in Puerto Rico. The new semester will open January 21. A number of new students are expected to enter at that time.

Recent gifts from Mrs. C. H. Musselman, Biglerville, Pennsylvania, total $10,000.00. These funds, together with gifts from others, make possible the complete liquidation of the college debt and some improvement in the salary situation. A White Gift from the Fairfield Mennonite Church, Fairfield, Pennsylvania, makes possible the purchase of new Mennonite Hymnaries for the College Chapel. They have been ordered, but are temporarily out of print. We thank these and others who have so faithfully supported the college during the past year with their gifts and prayers. It is our prayer that because of the sacrifices, the interest, and the prayers of these friends of Christian education that the college may become increasingly more useful to God and the Church in ministering to the needs of youth.

JOTTINGS

—The Education Committee of the Western District announces "that due to the pending change to enlarge the Education Committee at the next session of the Western District Conference, our treasurer, Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, has asked the past treasurer, E. E. Kaufman, to serve as his deputy for the remaining fraction of this conference year. All funds for the work of this committee should therefore still be sent to E. E. Kaufman, 610 Beverly Drive, Wichita, Kansas.

—The large Alexanderwohl Church, Goessel, Kansas, has officially decided to inaugurate the 100 Per Cent Church Paper Plan according to a statement by Rev.

J. M. Suderman, Manager of the Mennonite Publication Office, Newton.

—The Fairfield (Pa.) Church has a membership of only about sixty, but it gave nearly $2,000 for war-sufferers relief this past year.

—Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio: The choir, under the direction of Prof. Russell A. Lantz of Bluffton College, presented the "Messiah" on December 23. The White Christmas gifts went for missions and relief. A farewell pot-luck dinner was held in the church basement December 23rd for Rev. and Mrs. Musser and family who left December 26 for their new charge of the Union Congregational Church of Christ, Rockville, Connecticut.—Corr.

—Rev. Ernest Bohn of the Bluffton College faculty is to serve Grace Church, Pandora, as interim pastor.

—First Church, Beatrice, Nebraska: On November 25 our congregation regretted to hear of Rev. Dyck's resignation in order to assume the duties of Executive Secretary of the General Conference. We wish Rev. Dyck God's blessing in his new field of service. —Margaret Albrecht, Corr.

—Churches in the General Conference weekly use over three thousand copies of the Church Bulletin printed by the Secretarial Bureau, North Newton. This bulletin is "tailor-made" for Mennonites. The material on it is written by Mennonites for Mennonites.

—The First and Second Churches, Beatrice, Nebraska, have donated a combined total of three and a half tons of meat and four tons of lard for overseas relief. Put up in tin cans at the Community Cannery in Lincoln, Nebraska, the meat added up to 3,015 quarts. This food was taken to Kanlona, Iowa, where it will be packed for overseas shipment. An additional one and a half tons of canned fruits and vegetables was sent to C.P.S. camps.—W.C.A., Corr.

—New York: About twenty members of the Mennonite Fellowship met in the reception room of the Biblical Seminary for the December meeting. Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander spoke on "The Story of the Test of Our Faith As Seen in Canada." The Fellowship unanimously approved the project of sending financial aid to our Mennonite brethren in Europe. By the close of the meeting the group had collected about a hundred dollars in cash. With pledges and cash the project totals about one hundred fifty dollars to date (December 26). Last year the Fellowship sent one hundred German Bibles to our brethren in South America.—Melva Lehman, Corr.

—First Church, Monroe, Washington: Our new pastor, Rev. George Kopper and his family arrived December 10. Rev. J. M. Franz, Minister-At-Large of the Pacific District, was present at the reception given by the congregation. After a short program at the church, all went to the parsonage to get acquainted and have refreshments. Sunday morning we had an installation service conducted by Rev. Franz. In the evening Rev. Kopper gave his first sermon based on Matthew 22:1-14.—Mary Stucky, Corr.

—First Church, Hutchinson, Kansas: We thank the Lord that He has provided us with a new shepherd in Rev. Victor Sawatzky. In a series of inspirational messages on Ruth, he spoke on "Rest Lost," "Rest Sought," and "Rest Restored." In his themes he stressed repentance essential to salvation. We heartily welcome Rev. and Mrs. Sawatzky and five children. We have planned a reception for the family and also a watch night service for New Year's Eve. —Mrs. J. S. Friesen, Corr.

—A Carload of raisins, containing 65,220 pounds of Thompson raisins, packed in 2,874 cartons of thirty pounds each, has been donated for relief by three Mennonite churches in California. First Church, Reedley, contributed $5,651.00 in cash and 11,354 pounds of raisins (value $1,135.40) towards this carload of thirty-two and one-half tons. It is hoped that the way to relief work in Germany will open and that some of these raisins will go there.

—First Church, Madrid, Nebraska: Our church with the cooperation of the M.B. Church, Paxton, sent two cars of wheat, one from Madrid and one from Paxton.—John G. Unruh, Corr.

—First Church, Wadsworth, Ohio: Despite sub zero weather every child was on hand for the Christmas program. The Sunday School offering, plus the White Gift evening service and offering amounted to over six hundred dollars and went to the M.C.C. for relief.—Goldie Wurgler, Corr.

—The Menno Church, Lind, Washington, has as a project ten or more carloads of wheat for Europe. Transportation will be paid by the Netherlands government.

—Berne, Indiana: More than fifty of the men in service have returned to their homes.

—Rev. P. J. Boehr has resigned as Pastor of the St. John Church, near Pandora, Ohio. It is reported that Rev. and Mrs. Boehr are looking forward to missionary service.

—Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota, has set six thousand dollars as the goal of its Mutual Aid Fund for C.P.S. men. The church plans to install a new sound system.

—Lind, Washington: The young people's choir of the Menno Church gave a Christmas choralogue of songs, prose, poetry, and kodachrome slide films.

—Rev. John J. Plenert has resigned as pastor of the First Church, Philadelphia, to accept a call from the Grace Church, Lansdale, Pa. The resignation is to be effective March 10. Rev. Plenert gave ten years of faithful service to First Church. Rev. Olin Krehbiel, new pastor of First Church, Berne, Indiana, was pastor of Grace Church until this last fall.

—The Idaho State C. E. Convention has two Mennonites at its head. Marvin D. Linscheid is president and E. E. Toevs is vice-president. Both are from Aberdeen, the only community in Idaho where a General Conference Church exists.

—Aberdeen, Idaho: Of the $7,391.03 collected for M.C.C. relief, four thousand has already been sent to Akron for the purchase of powdered milk and other essentials. The rest is to be used for a carload of flour. The church has purchased a new five-piece bedroom suite of natural finish for the parsonage and has built a porch on to the west side of the parsonage.

—The Stirling Avenue Church, Kitchener, Ontario, recently gave an offering of $141.32 for the Home for the Blind. The pastor said, "Often times the Church is accused of taking a 'distant' attitude toward practical issues and needs. We want to do our duty in this direction in our own community."

—Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: The sound amplification system being considered by the Board of Trustees include hard-of-hearing aids, amplification equipment for the main auditorium, the mother's room, and the basement of the church, equipment to amplify the organ, and a set of loud speakers for the bell tower. At the annual meeting the church adopted a recommendation of the Committee to aid Servicemen, part of which reads: "Since the government has made no provision whatever for the compensation of C. P. S. men, either during their time of service or at the time of their demobilization we recommend that a Mutual Aid Fund be established in our church for the benefit of returning C. P. S. men. Contributions to this fund are to be purely voluntary and the distribution of its benefits is to be made on the basis of time in service." The church also passed a resolution opposing the sale and use of alcoholic beverages, including 3.2 beer, and attendance of Sunday movies. A resolution opposing peacetime conscription was also passed, with the thought that it be sent to the congressmen in Washington. The church again voted to continue the 100 Per Cent Church Paper Plan.

—Dear Correspondent: If a new correspondent to The Mennonite has been elected in your church, would you please send us the name and address of the new correspondent immediately so that we can keep our list up-to-date.

—Aberdeen, Idaho: Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Harder and daughter of Beamsville, Ontario, Canada, arrived on December 14th for a visit with the family of Rev. H. N. Harder. Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Harder are the parents of Rev. H. N. Harder. Rev. A. H. Harder is the minister of the Vineland Mennonite Church, Beamsville.—J. E. Toevs, Corr.

—Washington—(Dec 14) — The National Service Board for Religious Objectors has announced that it is prepared to answer inquiries regarding demobilization of men in Civilian Public Service. Inquiries should be addressed to National Service Board for Religious Objectors, Box 1636, Washington 13, D. C. A sharp increase in December in the number of discharges from Civilian Public Service indicated that all 1,650 men qualified for release under Selective Service rules would be home by January 1. CPS hit peak enrollment October 1 with a total of 8,591. Men are being drafted into CPS under the selective service act at the approximate rate of forty-five per month. Discharges in December approximated an average of forty-seven per working day.

[illegible]
127 North Pine
Newton
Kansas
C-6

ORDER BLANK

The subscription price for The Mennonite for 1945 is: New Subscriptions $1.25 for the first year, Renewals $1.75 per year.

Please use this Order Blank when sending in your subscription and underscore the word New or Renewal to correspond with the type of subscription you are to pay for.

Name ____

Street or Route ______________________________________

Address ____

Remittances from Canada should be made by Postal Money Order only. Please write name and address plainly to avoid errors.

Mennonite Publication Office
Newton, Kansas

—An estimated 1,350,000 Negroes found work in war industries at a time when labor of all kinds was needed. Shipbuilding has offered members of minority groups, particularly Negroes, their most rapidly expanding employment opportunities. Negroes represent nearly 12 per cent of the employees of the Federal government. Out of a 1944 civilian labor force of 52,000,000 a total of 6,370,000 were non-whites. A total of 96 per cent of all non-white workers are Negroes. Twenty-one million persons are members of minority groups in the United States. "Christian Advocate"

—Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebraska, gave $6,437.34 on Thanksgiving Day. A total of $2366.598 went for relief, $1,861.62 for C.P.S. and the rest for missions. A total of 1,230 pounds of relief clothing has been collected.

—First Church, Shafter, California: The Thanksgiving offering amounted to $322.30. Offerings in a previous week totalled $649.90.

—The First Church of Christian Mennonite, Moundridge, Kansas, had a special business meeting on November 27th to discuss the matter of building a new church. A committee is to make plans and find out approximate costs. "Its report will have much to say as to whether we will build now."

THE C. E. HIRSCHLER FAMILY

Some years ago Edward E. Hirschler chose for his thesis The Story of a Pioneer Family in which he relates the European background, and the pioneering of his parents in Kansas and Oklahoma. Since this is a well-written booklet based on a thorough investigation of sources, the Bethel College Historical Library has mimeographed a number of copies of this thesis to be kept on file. A limited number of these copies are available to the relatives of the Hirschler family at the cost of $3.00 per copy. Orders may be sent to the Bethel College Historical Library, North Newton, Kansas.

The Mennonite

VOLUME LXI NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, JANUARY 15, 1946 NUMBER 3

A C. P. S. Man's Prayer:

Lord Christ, I thank Thee that Thou art my Leader and my Saviour, who hast given Thy best for me, even unto the Cross, and who demandest my best from me. Help me to give my all in service to Thee and my neighbor: a body trained and pure, a mind disciplined and true, a spirit loyal and brave. May I follow where Thou leadest and spend myself unstintingly for others: obeying when duty is stern, forgiving when forgiveness is hard, loving when love makes great demands. May I strive to become like Thee, a faithful friend and helper to others in days of toil and days of ease, and at all times a worthy son (or daughter) of our heavenly Father. May I have a glad and living faith which wholly trusts in Thee. "Father, not my will, but Thine be done." AMEN.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

Marie J. Regier Writes to Board

(Miss Marie J. Regier wrote the following letter to the Foreign Mission Board from Yenching University, Peiping, China, on December 7, 1945.)

Dear Brethren of the Mission Board,

It was indeed a joy to receive a real letter again. This is the first one that has come through from the Board and gives one a thrilling sense of communion with you over there. This letter was from the 15th of October. Last week I received the first letter from my familiy which was dated November 4. Perhaps more of the earlier letters will come in. I was very much pleased with the Christmas letter. I think that is a very fine idea to send a resume of the year's work; especially do we appreciate it, we who have heard nothing of what has been going on. Isn't it wonderful that it has been possible to enlarge the work? I was also very much interested to hear of the arrival of the three families. It is too bad that the children had to suffer. The Weihsien children suffered very little. They had milk and aggs about all the time, I think.

The appearance of the Christmas letter is so pleasing too. It seems wonderful to see really good paper and such clear neat print.

Thank you so much for your sympathy in my bereavement. I did not hear of father's death until I came to Yenching. My family sent a cable to the College of Chinese Studies. However, I was fearing that he would not read the letters any more which I addressed to him. I knew that he was poorly.

My work here is very pleasant. As time goes on I find work and opportunities increasing. A group of students asked me to help them with some Bible study. I have also been asked to become chairman of the Chapel Committee. I try to get in touch with students all I can. My health is excellent. So many people are suffering to some extent after their Weihsien experience but I find no symptoms at all. Our really hard time was before Weihsien. We recuperated there. After coming to Peiping, to Yenching I was ushered in so gradually and gently, that I feel no strain. Those who were at home in their places were almost immediately thrust into the thick of things.

Last Sunday I went into the city and attended the Army Service. It was really thrilling to see the church almost completely filled with army men; only a few other people were there. They had a very impressive communion service, and practically every one of the men went to the front where they received the elements while kneeling. The young chaplain seems to be such a very fine man. We have met other very sincere Christians. Miss Goertz will probably tell you of the "Youth for Christ" meetings in the city. These were started in America and carried on into the islands of the Pacific and then to China by the Marines. Many homes in Peiping are open to the young men. The chaplain said that he was glad for every Christian home which opened its doors to them.

You know how old truths take on new meanings at times. When I was in Weihsien I took a New Testament course, in which I was very much impressed by the findings of modern scholarship as to the reliability and uniqueness of the gospel records. And now I am reading two volumes on St. John's gospel by Archbishop William Temple, and somehow I have never been so struck by the uniqueness of Christ, by the "glory of the only Begotten" as John puts it. We see so much of God in nature, but there is always the tooth-claw element, loop holes in nature as to knowing God. And then God filled and overflowed those loop holes by revealing Himself in Christ. Truly there is no other name on earth wherein we can be saved.

The Christmas season is drawing near. Here too people are beginning to think of Christmas. The pastor here asked me whether I would be responsible for Christmas decorations in the large hall where the Sunday services are held and in the little student chapel, where a vesper service will be held on Christmas Eve. My greetings to the home churches and best wishes for a Christmas season of true joy.—Sincerely, Marie J. Regier

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized Jan. 22, 1919.

MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS
Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Snbscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Kansas.
paper, and exchanges to THE MENNONITE, North Newton,
Address all contributions and communications for this
Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

EDITORIALS

C.O.'S have initiated something of a Florence Nightingale movement in the field of mental hospitals. Time magazine of January 7, in its section on medicine, carries a very interesting and laudable story of C.O.'s in mental hospitals. It refers to "one of the nation's most curious publications: the Attendant, a monthly published by the 2,000-odd conscientious objectors who have been acting as mental-hospital attendants during the war." Time then gives the background of this publication. It points out how overcrowded mental hospitals faced a severe shortage of help when the war snatched away workers, how Selective Service, when appealed to, supplied the "conchies," and how these have given "a sustained, concientious effort that has lifted mental-hospital standards throughout the country." However, when the C.O.'s came into the hospitals they faced tremendous problems. Patients were getting very inadequate care in many instances. "There was no one to tell newcomers how the difficult work should be done." Feeling the need for sharing experiences the C.O.'s organized the Mental Hygiene Program of Civilian Public Service. Out of this program came the Attendant in which they published "their own findings along with articles by doctors, nurses, ex-patients." It is now hoped that the afore-mentioned organization will become a permanent one. The Attendant is this month developing into a larger publication to be called the Psychiatric Aid. The article in Time ends with the statements, "With funds supplied largely by Friends, Mennonites, and Brethren, a full time staff of eleven C.O.s will also publish handbooks for attendants and campaign for training courses in all mental hospitals."

Once general hospitals were places of dirt and horror about which the general public did not know much. Since Florence Nightingale conditions have improved until today the word hospital suggests cleanliness, excellent care, and healing. But our civilization lags behind as far as mental hospitals are concerned. Yet it is reported that every second hospital bed in this country is for mental patients. But the public knows little about the hospitals and does little to correct the conditions in them. Through the C.O.'s some of these conditions have been tackled and that sometimes to the discomfort of those in administrative positions. The C.O.'s have brought to many patients a measure of peace and healing which they might otherwise not have experienced.

THE CORRESPONDENTS from all the churches have been asked to furnish a treat for the readers of this paper. The treat they are to supply is this: "At least one news report every month from every church in the General Conference." With the full cooperation of the correspondents in all the churches, the Jottings section could contain every week news items from about forty churches. As it is we hear little or nothing from probably one-third of the churches. We are sure that news is being made in every church. We confess that until recently we had done very little to encourage the correspondents in their difficult but important job. And the correspondents need encouragement, not only from us, but also from their fellow church members and pastor. We know of at least one church where the correspondent was asked to report at the annual meeting. If every church expected a minimum of twelve news reports a year from its correspondent, there would be significance to such a report however short. Church members can also encourage the correspondent by telling what items they have particularly enjoyed and by bringing to the attention of the correspondent such facts as might possibly make news. It can also be pointed out that the correspondent has an important position because he is responsible for sharing with the thousands of readers from all the churches those news items from his own church that describe methods and endeavors that may prove inspiring and enlightening to others. The correspondent is largely responsible for what people at a distance will know of his own church. A short time ago a considerable number of our churches reported that they had no correspondent. We have sent a letter to these churches suggesting that they appoint as correspondent someone who enjoyed English in high school, enjoys writing, knows how to say things briefly and interestingly, and can be depended upon to send in jottings promptly and frequently. We hope that all these churches will appoint a correspondent and send in his name and address. Futhermore, we hope that all churches who have had correspondents will notify us of any change so that we can keep our mailing list up-to-date. Outgoing correspondents should promptly send in the name and address of the new one. We hope that by the middle of this year, we can have a correspondent in every church, reporting at least once a month.

What a Movement of Refugees Is Like

As Reported by Delvin Kirchhofer

Last week I was working overtime to be ready to send about seventy or eighty refugees from this camp (which is about thirty miles from Lecce). On Thursday morning I received a letter from UNRRA Rome saying I should go to the Di Leuca camp (where Grace Augsburger and Bertha Fast are located) to take charge of a much greater movement of refugees to the Naples area. About 11:30 Thursday night I left in a jeep for Di Leuca and arrived there about 1 a.m. After breakfast we immediately began to load refugees. They had to be hauled a few miles to the nearest railway station. All through the day we were delayed somewhat because of the trouble that arose between the Nationalites. There were 1100 mixed among twenty-three Nationalites. What a job we had to load those trains trying to get nationalities together into the same cars and also their luggage. There were dozens of things to be done and we had an awfully strenuous day. At the last moment the food distribution for the trip broke down, and the train was ready to leave but many people had no rations yet. I kept the first train one hour overtime; then sent it on at 4 o'clock. My staff and I went on the second train. As commandant of the train I had full authority for everything, but I was accompanied by a doctor from our camp—a lady doctor of Japanese origin, and also a nurse from the Di Leuca camp. We three, were the only ones escorting the group.

At Lecce the two trains were joined into one and continued that way for the rest of the trip. On a caboose, placed in the middle of the train, we had our Hospital Car as well as our living quarters. We carried on this caboose an Ethiopian woman with TB of the spine, a Maltese mother with a five-day-old baby, and a small Ethiopian baby of about seven months, whose mother had died. We had no accidents of any serious nature along the way. It was most convenient for me that the caboose was in the center, for that meant that I was only twenty cars away from either end of the train, since there were forty cars in all. Almost every time the train stopped I ran either forward or back to see if all was well. Since all the cars were box cars I could not go through the train like a passenger coach. I was really anticipating more trouble along the way than I actually encountered, for the three most essential things for such a long trip, especially with a lot of women and children, were missing: first, ample food, second, water for drinking and third, toilet facilities. The last two were missing entirely except for the bottles they brought along individually.

My train left the Di Leuca station Friday afternoon at 5:15, and we continued going with numerous stops along the way, until 2 a.m. Sunday morning, when we arrived at Aversa, our destination, north of Naples. It was quite a sight to watch our train steam round the innumerable curves and just as many tunnels, drawn by two and sometimes three engines. The refugees gave me constant concern for they hung on the sides or out of the doors or crawled on top of the cars. I was always afraid some of them might be brushed off while going through the tunnels, but we got through without accident.

When we arrived at Aversa I let the people sleep until morning, when the commandant of the camp came in to take charge of the movement into camp. He had a lot of trucks and did a systematic job of it. So the people got to camp in time for some late breakfast. Some of them were very hungry. The doctor, nurse, and I went with the hospital cases to the camp where we could clean up and get some warm food again.

I said the 1,100 people were of twenty-three different nationalities—a large number Maltese and the next highest Turks (of whom many of the refugees were afraid). There were Egyptians, Tripolatanians, Eritreans, Abbyssianians and even one Swiss by the name of Ulrich Hofstetter, who had no family left in Switzerland, so he was on his way to Egypt with an Egyptian girl, whom he expects to marry when he arrives there.

We had to wait till 11 a.m. Wednesday until UNRRA could get our transport back to our camp. We arrived at camp at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, after having spent the night at Bari.

The main building at M.C.C. Headquarters, Akron, Pa.

Famous Missionary Visits C P S Unit in Puerto Rico

Report by Hugh Hostetler

Quoting a statement by Gen. Eisenhower, made in a recent report to the President on the occupation of Germany, to the effect that we cannot win the peace with a club, Dr. E. Stanley Jones stated recently to La Plata Unit members that he was glad that he personally would not have to change his whole outlook on life, his whole system of ethics, and his moral standards now that the war is over from those he held in the height of the recent conflict. He believes that the only position consistent with Christianity on the matter of war is that taken by the pacifist. He believes that consistency in morals and one's sense of right and wrong and one's sensitivity to sin and maladjustments may continue to grow in war time rather than be put away and hidden, indicates that pacifism is tied up with the Eternal, with the Living God, and hence is a part of God's Way for men.

Lack of a true international government has always meant international anarchy, Dr. Jones continued. Past experiments along these lines all failed when none of the participating powers cared to give up sovereignty. The one real example of where it has worked is the United States. We would have continued to fight among ourselves if the individual states had not gotten together and given up a part of their sovereignty to the higher authority. Would it now work on the larger world scale? The answer is suggested by the fact that the States then had all the problems that now confront the world—racial strife, wide economic differentiations, and a political scene as heterologous as in any part of the world today.

The three prime requisites of such a government are: 1. Complete and final sovereignty over the several participating nations; 2. A truly representative legislature (viz. no Security Councils); 3. Sufficient force to extradite the criminal and bring him before the bar of justice to be tried by tribunal right. San Francisco was only a short halting step in this direction and culminated in an organization that fulfilled none of these prime requisites. But it should be considered a start, though one already out-moded by the atomic bomb.

One of the bright spots for the future is the fact that this was a war the common people did not want. But brighter still is the refusal of many of the ministers of the largest churches in the country to sanction the thing. This picture is contradistinctive to that of the first World Carnage, when men were sent off to fight by blaring bands and cheering crowds, and ministers (with the exception of small handful) gave God's holy blessing to America's participation in the whole thing.

Pacifists, in planning their strategy for the future, should be careful not to confuse themselves with many minor issues and thereby dissipate their strength in diverse manners. Rather they should recognize that one of the really big jobs ahead is to convey the idea to a world that is slowly sinking in a quagmire of despair and unhealthy cynicism that salvation from periodic devastation by war can be obtained by a sincere and complete effort whose aim is to establish a genuine international government, viz. World Federal Union. The atomic bomb leaves us with no alternatives: it is either one world or no world.

Thus did Dr. E. Stanley Jones address the members of the La Plata Unit, with many Brethren and Friends present, Saturday night, December 15, while on his recent twenty-one day tour of Puerto Rico. He also read for us the article which appeared in mid-December as a special supplement to the magazine Asia and the Americas entitled "An Adventure in Failure." This document described Dr. Jones' role as one of the unofficial mediators and go-betweens between the Japanese delegation and our State Department in the months preceding Pearl Harbor. This paper shows conclusively that there existed a strong peace faction in high Japanese circles, as well as a powerful minority military clique. In view of current Senate investigations, this portion of the evening was especially profitable.

The following Sunday morning Dr. Jones' schedule called for leading the worship at an army base at Cayey. The protestant chaplain had invited the Unit to worship with them that morning, so about twenty of us accompanied Dr. Jones to one of Uncle Sam's smaller bastions of Caribbean defense. Came the appointed hour for the service, and there was not one single man in uniform present in or around the chapel! The Catholic chaplain, who himself was unable to stay because of other duties, explained between his earlier services and the one we were about to partake in that the continental base strength had gone down to rock-bottom through demobilization, with even our friend, the protestant chaplain, having been discharged a week previously; that most of the men left were getting and using week-end passes; and that the publicity for the service had been poor for some reason. Whatever the reasons for the complete absence of the soldiers, we could not help smiling a little at the paradox of one of America's leading Christian pacifists worshipping alone with his entourage and a group of conscientious objectors in a large permanent Army base chapel at the special request and through the courtesy of the mightiest instrument of destruction the world has ever seen—the United States Army!

Dr. Jones spoke to us that morning on "The Christian Way Is The Natural Way." We were made by God to live His Way. What happens when we do not? We go down physically. Life becomes more and more complicated, for our natural, emotional and psychological processes become ensnarled and tangled up. Man was created to be truly happy and joyful and radiant, but the Universe is so made that unless we work with it we are broken; and unless we work with God's Divine Plan we can never live up to what we are truly created for.

This over-night visit by this world-famous Christian missionary was truly inspirational for us from several standpoints. One was that once again we had our pacifist thinking challenged to go on—something that we here in the tolerant atmosphere of Puerto Rico are more likely to forget about than those in "hot spots" of intolerance. Then too we were able to meet with Dr. Jones personally and informally and thereby learned in a small way another side of the man we have known so well through the many works of his pen.

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

Danzig a Heap of Rubble. Mennonites who accompanied a shipload of horses to Danzig report that few of the people of that city which formerly had a population of half a million, remain. The Mennonite Church had had a membership of over one thousand. In a destroyed church Gerhard Friesen picked up a pastoral letter, a few religious pamphlets, and a booklet of postal savings. The congregation, the pastor, the edifice, and the savings, all are gone. There is no hope that any of these can be redeemed.

Service of National Importance. The greatest number serving in CPS (camps, hospitals, etc.,) under the auspices of the MCC was reached in September, 1945, with a total of 4,288 There are at present about 1,000 in MCC hospital units. November 30, 1945, the "Old" Mennonites had 1,581, the General Conference 612, the Old Order Amish 479, the Mennonite Brethren 205, etc.

Octogenarian Still Busy on Life Work. When C. F. Klassen on his recent trip to Europe entered the home of Christian Neff at the Weierhof he found him still active in completing the three-volume Mennonite encyclopedia.

Stealing and Looting. In our society the acquisition of property belonging to someone else is punished by law. Internationally speaking this is not the case during times of war. Returning veterans proudly display their trophies of war. It seems as though some of our Mennonites who have participated in the war have also suffered under the international confusion whch makes it hard to distinguish between "thine" and "mine." What should be the attitude of parents and pastors to this problem?

C. F. Klassen Just Returned from an eighteen-week trip through Europe reported on his findings at the annual meeting of the Mennonite Central Committee in Chicago. He traveled by plane, train, car and other means and has seen ruins and misery in many countries. He met thousands of displaced Mennonites who are in great need.

I was Naked and Ye Clothed Me. Under the auspices of the Mennonite Central Committee four clothing centers collect, process, and pack clothing for relief. They are located in Ephrata, Pennsylvania; Newton, Kansas; Winnepeg. Manitoba; and Kitchener, Ontario. From January to November, 1945, more than 270,000 pounds of clothing have been shipped to foreign countries. Further clothing, shoes and soap ready to be shipped amount to about one hundred tons.

The Dialect of the Hutterites was the topic on which Professor Zieglschmid of Northwestern University spoke at the annual meeting of the Modern Language Association at Chicago. Dr. Zieglschmid has edited the Geschichtsbuch of the Hutterites and is now preparing another chronicle of the Hutterites for print. Among the religious and cultural tenets that the Hutterites have preserved, is the peculiar dialect that they speak. As is known, the Hutterites trace their history back to Austria and Tyrol.

Capital Punishment abolished in Holland in 1870, was re-established in 1944 in order to inflict the death penalty on some of the persons who had collaborated with the German army during the time of occupation. Chief among the collaborators was Mussert, the leader of the N.S.B. (Dutch National Socialist Movement). According to the prosecutor, Mussert deserved to be punished more than anyone else because through his efforts thouands of the Dutch National Socialists had joined the German army to fight the Red Army.

ORDER BLANK

• The subscription price for The Mennonite for 1945 is: New Subscriptions $1.25 for the first year, Renewals $1.75 per year.

Please use this Order Blank when sending in your subscription and underscore the word New or Renewal to correspond with the type of subscription you are to pay for.

Name --

Street or Route ---------------------------------

Address ---------------------------------------

Remittances from Canada should be made by Postal Money Order only. Please write name and address plainly to avoid errors.

Mennonite Publication Office
Newton, Kansas

Fifty Churches Use 100 Per Cent Plan

Fifty churches in thirteen states are now using the 100 Per Cent Church Paper Plan. More churches are considering it, and some will probably put it into action in the coming weeks. Enthusiastic reports come from churches using the plan. The churches which have put the plan into operation are listed below:

KANSAS

1. Bethel College Mennonite Church, North Newton; 2. Bruderthal Mennonite Church, Hillsboro. 3. Buhler Mennonite Church, Buhler. 4. Church of Christian Mennonite, Moundridge. 5. Eden Mennonite Church, Moundridge. 6. Emmaus Mennonite Church, Whitewater. 7. First Mennonite Church, Burns. 8. First Mennonite Church, Hillsboro. 9. First Mennonite Church, Hutchinson. 10. First Mennonite Church, Newton. 11. Garden Township Mennonite Church, Halstead. 12. Gnadenberg Mennonite Church, Whitewater. 13. Goessel Mennonite Church, Goessel. 14. Halstead Mennonite Church, Halstead. 15. Hebron Mennonite Church, Buhler. 16. Hoffnungsau Mennonite Church, Inman. 17. Johannestal Mennonite Church, Hillsboro. 18. Inman Mennonite Church, Inman. 19. Lorraine Avenue Mennonite Church, Wichita. 20. Tabor Mennonite Church, Newton. 21. Walton Mennonite Church, Walton. 22. West Zion Mennonite Church, Moundridge. 23. Alexanderwohl, Goessel.

NEBRASKA

1. Bethesda Mennonite Church, Henderson. 2. First Mennonite Church, Madrid. 3. First Mennonite Church, Beatrice. 4. Second Mennonite Church, Beatrice. (All families of the Salem Mennonite Church, Wisner, also get one of our church papers.)

OKLAHOMA

1. Bethel Mennonite Church, Hydro. 2. Bergthal Mennonite Church, Corn. 3. Deer Creek Mennonite Church, Deer Creek. 4. Medford Mennonite Church, Medford.

OHIO

1. Apostolic Mennonite Church, Trenton. 2. Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora. 3. First Mennonite Church, Bluffton. 4. Salem Mennonite Church, Dalton.

CALIFORNIA

1. First Mennonite Church, Paso Robles. 2. First Mennonite Church, Reedley. 3. First Mennonite Church, Shafter. 4. Winton Church.

MINNESOTA

1. Woodland Mennonite Church, Warroad. 2. Bethel Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake.

PENNSYLVANIA

1. Grace Mennonite Church, Lansdale. 2. West Swamp Mennonite Church, Quakertown.

IDAHO

1. First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen.

ILLINOIS

1. Mennonite Bible Mission, Chicago.

OREGON

1. Alberta Community Church, Portland.

SOUTH DAKOTA

1. Salem Mennonite Church, Freeman. 2. Salem Zion Mennonite Church, Freeman.

WASHINGTON

1. Menno Mennonite Church, Lind. 2. Newport Mennonite Church, Newport.

QUOTE

Harold Ehrensperger, editor of "Motive," Methodist student paper:

"Approximately as many civilians were killed by air attacks in Japan as were soldiers and sailors in the armed forces of the United States in both Europe and the Orient."

Paul Erb, Editor of the "Gospel Herald":

"We like to respect other people for what they are worth: for their knowledge, or judgment, or ability, or integrity of character, or agreeable disposition, or some other respectworthy trait or characteristic. But sometimes people must be respected simply because they are people. Every human being has the inherent right to be treated as a person no matter how repulsive his sin or the accidents of his life may have made him. Children are people; pupils are people; foreigners are people; the insane are people; cripples are people; the laity are people; and so are the passers-by."

James Myers, Christian leader who works with industrial relations:

"When a church leader talks about 'reaching the unreached,' one may properly enquire whether he means "reaching the unreached" in the Church or outside? While we must approve of sincere efforts of spreading the Good News, it is well to remember that more concern over the state of religion in the Church and in ourselves would be the most persuasive argument in the world as to the validity of our religion. Meanwhile it is well to avoid the hypocrisy of an assumption that all of us church people have been 'reached,' while those outside the Church are 'unreached,' even though many of them may be more truly religious than we are."

Dr. Raymond Peters in the "Gospel Messenger":

"On several occasions I have stated that perhaps one of the most significant outgrowths of C.P.S. will be the church's ministry to patients in mental hospitals. Several things have led me to this conclusion. In the first place, the men who work in these units come to have a new appreciation of mental illness. In the postwar world they can do a great deal to help clear many of the misconceptions regarding mental illness. Furthermore, C.P.S. men, through the use of nonviolent techniques, are demonstrating a better way of dealing with patients."

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary

Taking a Little Walk

MENNONITE BIBLE MISSION
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

"And the Lord said unto the servant, go out into the highways and hedges, and constrain them to come in, that my house may be filled." Luke 14:23.

"How-do-you-do, taking a little walk." Those were the words of greeting from an acquaintance, as I was out calling on people. The calls for this happened to involve some rather touchy cases and individuals, so that the above greeting did not just smooth my ruffled spirits. Maybe it would be of value to tell of some experiences while out walking.

The first stop will be at the near-by public school. We go in to give greetings to the principal and to wish her God's blessing for the new school year A very pleasant visit this turns out to be,and we believe a very valuable one. The response of the assistant, who is a teacher of many years, is: Our school year would not have the right start without the traditional visit and letter from the pastor at the Mennonite Mission.

The next visit is at a home where the old father is home alone. He has recently lost his wife. The children keep the house and support him but he is not well and is all alone for the day. We visit another aged father whose son has come home on a furlough. The father is heart-broken because of the doings of the son while at home. We visit and have prayer with him. Later on the son comes home and, a later interview with the son was not very pleasant but we hope and pray that it may help to bring about a change in him. In between visits we stop at home for supper. As a change we put in a broken glass in the shed. We wish that broken hearts could be replaced so easily.

After supper the steps lead toward another home to which we have been called several times. This is to all appearance a Christian home. It is a home where the mother has suffered from periodic attacks from Satan, thru the so called harmless drink. This evening our courage is not strong enough to call here so we turn to go another way. It was at a previous visit that we urged repentance and confession. The victim was willing to pray and to ask for forgivness. A few minutes later on the pretense of going in the back room to rest she slipped out for just another visit to the tavern. Had we failed? We need more power thru prayer.

Another home is visited. The grandmother is sick, the mother of several children is also home. She is a working mother because of the faithfulness of the father. We have come this time to urge attendance at church in order to gain spiritual food to help in the great struggles of life. The grandmother who spends much of her time in bed, because of sore limbs, asks for scripture and prayer and is refreshed.

Is poverty a cause of any or all of the suffering that we meet up with? No, we meet very little poverty, but we meet many people who make life miserable with a continual worry of "What shall we eat? What shall we drink? What shall we put on?" Drink, lust and unfaithfulness of men bring about untold grief that is hard to heal. On the way home we meet some girls coming from a meeting to make a program for Sunday evening. This helps to brighten up these 'little walks.' One of these homes has given us a total of 25 years of Sunday School teaching service. Praise the Lord, for His goodness and mercy endureth forever.

John T. Neufeld
4215 So. Rockwell St.
Chicago 32 Illinois

Report from Smith Corner

From out of these mountains comes a report to the interested folks of the General Conference; a report of the work of the Lord that is going on here.

We are now pretty well through the eleventh year of the work here, and as we look back and compare that which is past with that which is present, we have a mingled feeling.

Many souls have been won, much has been done to win more and still there are those that have not yet come. During that time I have preached the Gospel from this pulpit just about seventeen hundred times. As a result of this and all other effort that has been put forth by all concerned we now have a membership of seventy-eight, and an enrollment of about the same number in the Sunday School. Our attendance is not what we would like, and there are many reasons or excuses, some live too far away to attend regular, others must work when they should be in church, then there is that "mixed multitule" who could if they would but they won't attend regularly, some not at all.

During the past quarter the average attendance in Sunday School was forty-seven (47) with an average offering of $13.01. Very few leave the service after Sunday School. And the evening attendance is most always better than the morning The midweek service is fairly well attended, it varies from fifteen to thirty-five.

Our Ladies' Aid Society, Brotherhood, Young People and organized Classes have all stopped having their regular meetings due to local conditions, but they all are looking forward to the time when this work may be started again. Perhaps this fall.

On the last Sunday in August we had our Sunday School and Church service then all who could remained and we had our noon day meal together in the church basement, the fellowship plus the abundance of food made this a happy event.

We are isolated from the rest of the conference churches by many miles, we do not have the fellow-

(Continued on page 15)

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Verney Unruh
Vice President
Ruth Ewert
Secretary-Treasurer

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

Migrants Need Us, We Need Them

HAD YOU EVER THOUGHT that we need migrants? We do. If migrants would not do their work, we would not be able to buy the things at our grocery stores that we can now get. At present, there seems no other way to gather those crops than by seasonal labor and the migrants furnish that. There are thousands of migrant families following a route which follows the crops. Those migrants live an entirely different life than we live—an uprooted life with no community, church, school or social ties.

Leonore Friesen and Katherine Andres spent last summer with the migrants in Michigan and Illinois near Chicago. Leonore here tells of her experiences and how much migrants appreciate us when we come to them to serve in Christ's name. Leonore ends her article with a challenge asking the reader whether he would like to serve a summer in a similar way. If there be anyone who is interested and would like to know more about this service or would like to volunteer, write the editor of this section and he will pass come home on furlough and was insisting that this

E. L.

Leonore G. Friesen

"How's crops up north, ready soon, you reckon?"

Not long after, this Anglo-American migrant family moved north traveling on the neighbors truck or in their own car. Upon arrival they set up housekeeping in the tent or hut provided by the grower. They remained in the blueberry crop until picking was scarce and then moved on to another crop and yet another crop only to return south for "cotton-pickin' " time.

The first night upon my own arrival I heard a terrific scream and then a moan from the direction of the migrant camp. The next morning upon inquiring from children what had been the source of difficulty we were informed nonchalantly without undue excitment that at a game of poker one man became angry with another and brought out his knife for a stab. His victim, upon recovering several days later, left camp. To these children it seemed nothing unusual.

Several evenings later, again we heard a scream. This time it was a girl. All we could hear was, "I won't, I won't, I won't." We found that a buddy had the information on to those who work with migrants.

15 year old girl marry him.

Thus the campus was introduced to me and thus I likewise introduce it to you.

Problems of Migrant Young People

As young people, we are especially interested in other young people and so may I share with you some migrant young people's problems and a possible program of working with them. First of all it must be recognized that there is no typical migrant young people's group. Every group is different. There are, however, certain underlying problems and needs common to all. The following can therefore only be quite general. Many different nationalities are represented among the migrants and of a necessity a different type of program would have to be carried out with each group. For these suggestions and problems the Anglo-American group was chosen. Many of these belong to former sharecroppers and tenant farmers of the south.

They have no sense of belonging, no feeling of responsibility to the community in which they live, thus also no community interest; little or no schooling, inability to assume large responsibilities because they lack self sufficiency and initiative, low ideals, blurred ambition, poverty and inability to budget; lack ability to coöperate and get on with people, small or no understanding of social agencies available to them, interested in own happiness, undeveloped talents, and generally no church affiliation.

The Method and Purpose of Our Work

As we go into a community to set up a program it should be effective in meeting the following main objective: To lead to an understanding and appreciation of the life and teachings of Jesus, to lead him to accept Christ as Savior, Friend, Companion and Lord, and to lead him into loyalty to Christ and His cause. (As given by International Council of Religious Education)

Before beginning any work it is always advisable to approach the growers and local organizations. Since we go in the name of Christ we would without question work through the local church if at all possible.

In carrying out our program, if God so directs, we must endeavor to include the five areas of a curriculum: Worship, service, study, social and recreational life, and personal experience in religion and the church. (From International Council)

Upon having received the interest and cooperation of the local church it is well if they select a migrant committee who can interpret the local community to the worker and with whom he might talk over plans and problems. They also can aid in securing a building, car, and select from the local group Daily Vacation Bible School teachers and occasionally they might be called upon to help in case of illness among migrants if no previous arrangements have been made and if a county nurse is not available.

We Visit Migrant Families

Before making any plans for a program it is well to visit the migrant families, not as one prying into their affairs but as a friendly caller. If your visit is sincere you have their confidence almost immediately. Soon they will inquire into your purpose in staying around camp. Their inquiry is an open door to explain, as occasion permits, our real purpose in coming. Tracts carefully selected and gospel portions are always useful and should be distributed prayerfully. I remember visiting with a 17 year old girl. We both were sitting on the floor of their tent. After a long visit together we read a portion of the gospel of John and then we had a word of prayer together. Did she resent it? No, she in great appreciation squeezed my hand and told me to come again. I did and we were friends all summer.

Migrants Don't Go to Local Churches

Social barriers, I am sorry to say, often keep them from the local church. They do not feel at home and are not always made to feel at home. Also, they often have to work on Sundays for Monday's market and thus church affiliation even where there might have been such a contact is broken down.

In camp one day, while helping several fill their blueberry carriers, I suggested a campfire sing. Upon reaching the farther end of the field they had already received the word. Upon the agreed evening young people and children brought wood for the fire and boxes for seats. We had a great time singing, reading from God's Word, and praying together. Was it successsful? At the next meeting more than twice as many were out.

We Conduct Short Bible Schools for Children

Since in this one camp children worked during the day, we had short Bible school sessions out under the trees. Much can be done and since children and young people are the enthusiasts in a camp they respond quickly to new suggestions and ideas. Group games are always enjoyed by them and serve as wholesome recreation after a fatiguing day's work in the sun. They are also the first to take to Bible study. Here the study of Mark is excellent.

Improving living conditions, educational pursuits, and social responses are all of value but only as they aid in our primary objective of bringing them into right relationship with Christ.

More Volunteers for this Work Needed

Summer workers are needed among these migrant people. What are you doing this summer? Maybe God wills it that you point a migrant to Christ.

The two summers spent among migrant people have been most valuable. The worker receives the greatest blessing and the experiences are beneficial to him, regardless of the life work the will take up especially if he is called into Christian Service. Whatever talents an individual worker has can be used with benefit for our Lord and Master among the migrants.

A love for Christ, a love for people, and a burden for their soul's condition are prerequisites in working for our Lord. "For what shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul."

Western District Holds Leader's Institute

A one day C. E. Leader's Institute was held at the Walton Mennonite Church, Walton, Kansas on December 28. This is the first Institute to be held in the Western District and the third to be sponsored by the Young People's Union. The Institute centered about the problems and program of the local C. E. organizations.

The great need which seemed to be felt generally was the practical problems faced in organizing an effective Youth program in the church fellowship. This caused the group to spend a considerable amount of time analyzing the reason for a youth organization in the church. The question "Why have an organization?" was raised and numerous answers to this question of "Why" were offered. Some of those answers were as follows:

1. To make our Christian faith meaningful—to create a personal loyalty to Christ.
2. To find and develop talent among the young people for greater service to the church.
3. To provide wholesome Christian fellowship.
4. To give a vision of and opportunity for Christian service.
5. To become acquainted with the total church program and its world mission.
6. To learn ways of Bible study.
7. For training in worship.
8. To gain proper attitudes toward a life vocation.

Interesting and vital discussions took place in three Discussion Groups into which the Institute divided in the afternoon. These groups consisted of (a) Program group which discussed the matter of organizing and presenting programs at C. E. meetings; (b) Service and Stewardship group which discussed projects which C. E. societies could undertake; (c) the Fellowship group discussed ways and means of developing wholesome Christian social life and fellowship in the local C. E. organization.

A report of the Institute will be distributed to the leaders of local Western District C. E. organizations. Further similar Institutes are under consideration for other Districts of the Conference.

The officers of the Young People's Union, Elmer Ediger, Verney Unruh, and Ruth Ewert were present for the Institute. The Beatrice Nebraska churches were represented as well as the Cordell, Oklahoma church. The remaining members of the Institute came from churches in Kansas. A total of 50 registered for the institute.

We Need to Get Together

Although we have a common bond as a Christian fellowship and in many ways have "similar peculiarities" as a Conference organization, there are many ways in which we are different in the ways we do things. These unique features are small and of no importance to the central facts of our fellowship. But, they cause us to operate differently.

For instance, in the matter of our C.E. organizations. Many of the churches have a functioning C.E. One plans its programs one way, another plans in a different way. One group depends upon the State C.E. for ideas, another creates their own topics. Some groups meet throughout the year, others meet during the Winter. Some meet every week and some meet every two weeks or every three weeks. One group meets on Monday evenings rather than Sunday. Most groups meet on Sunday alternating with other Sunday evening programs.

In one church the entire church membership composes the C.E. organization. In another only the young people are the C.E. And in others there are Junior, Intermediate and Senior C.E. organizations.

In one community, the two Mennonite churches have organized a fellowship of their young people and they plan and conduct a program of activity as a Fellowship. In many communities, the same plan might be worthwhile to consider. However, in most communities this is not done. In another community, regular meetings are planned with Young People from other denominations. This helps cross the sectarian barrier and provides wholesome fellowship. In many communities this is not done.

From this brief observation of the great variety in ways of doing and conducting programs, it rapidly becomes evident that there could be mutual benefit if our churches shared ideas and experiences. If that is true, how can we make our efforts more effective and coordinated?

We need to get together and discuss our common problems. We need to compare our experiences and find what the other person is doing that is applicable to our situation. After getting together and learning to know each other and discussing vitally the issues we face, we can grow together in our efforts and work.

Never has the church been known to fail in keeping in touch one with the other. Always, from the ministry of Paul to the present, the brotherhood has found it needful and wise to keep in touch. By working together they have been able to blossom and grow and finally penetrate every nation over the globe. We young people need also to work together in our local situations and share and fellowship and discover ever new work for the Kingdom.

The C.E. Leader's Institutes being held in the different districts should do much in bringing us together to share and discuss. With the inspiration it furnishes, will we be ready to carry on in mutual planning locally having similar meetings among local groups?—E. L.

Publish Survey of Young People's Activities

It becomes increasingly evident that the Young People's Activity of our churches has no uniform plan to follow nor a method to evaluate these programs and activities so that a positive and creative program can develop in the local churches. There is evident a real keen desire on the part of Young People as well as Youth Leaders to be more coherent in the work and planning.

A very interesting study of the Young People's Program of the Western District Conference was made last year by Mary Becker, missionary to Colombia, South America. Although this study was made of only one of the Districts, its content has a much wider application. At present plans are underway which will probably see this study published and made available to all the churches.

Mary Becker very kindly summarized her findings for The Mennonite. This summary will be published in four installments in future issues of Mennonite Youth. From this summary, the reader will be able to see what the content of Mary's more detailed study is. The first installment will appear in a forthcoming issue.

A WORKING PRESCRIPTION

Seldom do physicians of the different medical schools agree in the diagnosis and treatment of diseases. But the following prescription is one which is unanimously accepted and recommended:

If you are poor—work.
If health is threatened—work.
If disappointments come—work.
If you are rich—continue to work.
When dreams are shattered and hope seems dead work.
When faith falters and reason fails—just work.

If sorrow overwhelms you and loved ones seem not true—work.

If you are burdened with seemingly unfair responsibilities—work.

If you are happy—keep right on working. Idleness gives room for doubts and fears.

No matter what ails you—work. Work faithfully --work with faith. Work as if your life were in peril. It really is.—The Friend (Dayton).

Clippings of Events

One thousand, six hundred and seventy Orthodox churches were destroyed in Russia during Germany's occupation of that country.

More than two hundred students are expected to be enrolled in the Russian Orthodox Theological Academy which opens in Leningrad this fall.

Part of the wages of Canadian conscientious objectors, working in agricultural and other nonmilitary pursuits, was withheld for the Red Cross, which benefited to the extent of more than one and three-quarter million dollars.

LONDON—When three conscientious objectors, caught in the Channel Islands by the German occupation, heard that a Congregational minister, his wife and daughter were being deported to Germany, the three objectors to war volunteered to go as hostages. The offer was accepted and the three young men were shut up in a nazi concentration camp.

Dr. J. H. Hertz, Chief Rabbi of Britain, writing in the Jewish Chronicle, claims that refugee Jewish orphans are being systematically kidnapped into the Christian faith by their foster parents. Says Dr. Hertz, "We have lost our millions to bloody hate and anti-Semitism. Dare the civilized world suffer us to be robbed also of our children?"

The first commercial cargo to leave New York for the Philippines since the close of the war included eighty cases of hospital supplies, a gift from American Presbyterian women.

Fifty young men and women liberated from the Buchenwald Concentration Camp in Germany have established themselves on a farm in the neighborhood and are training for work in Palestine. Two similar training centers are to be opened in the future.

Nearly two thousand Chinese students are now in the colleges and universities of the United States. These have been sent by the Chinese government or by the Christian institutions and societies of China.
—D. Carl Yoder

The moral low which runs through history applies to the United States as well as to other nations. Why did the other nations die? The best answer is the Word of God spoken at Nineveh. "I will dig thy grave because thou art vile." We cannot expect that the moral law which presides over nations will make an exception in behalf of this nation. Neither would it be good for the ages to come if it did.—The Presbyterian.

The Gideons plan shortly to replace 500,000 Bibles worn out in hotel rooms during the war years. They also plan to give copies of the New Testament to 46,000,000 Americans between the ages of five and twenty-four. The Gideons are constructing a new $150,000.00 office building in Chicago which is to serve as their national headquarters.

RELIEF

Clothing Distribution in France

The distribution of clothing has been a problem in France throughout the war. With one exception, early in the war, our own delegates have been unable to distribute personally any clothing in France. In November, 1944, during the Rundstedt offensive in the Ardennes Forest, four tons of clothing were shipped to Paris. When Sam Goering and Henry Buller arrived there to claim the shipment, it was gone. Due to the general confusion, the shipment had been erroneously distributed either by military orders or through the regular channels of Entr' Aide Francaise, a national relief organization. Although the clothing was likely distributed to needy persons, the E. F. officials were greatly concerned about the error and promised an allotment of clothing to make up for the "Loss"; in July, 1945, they made good this promise. Mrs. M. C. Lehman is now at the French Centre directing the clothing program; final distribution to needy cases is made through Mennonite workers and responsible persons such as ministers, school teachers and social workers.

Cable of Appreciation

H.A.R.K., an official relief organization of Holland through which our relief material is gotten into that country for distribution by our workers, cabled the following message:

AT OUR FIRST CHRISTMAS SEASON AS FREE PEOPLE AFTER SIX YEARS WE WISH TO RENDER YOU OUR WARMEST THANKS FOR YOUR WONDERFUL HELP AND SPLENDID SUPPORT EXTENDED TO OUR DISTRESSED COMPATRIOTS BY SENDING RELIEF TO US IN LARGE QUANTITIES STOP DUTCH PEOPLE AND OURSELVES FEEL GREATLY INDEBTED TO YOU STOP YOUR INESTIMABLE AID ENABLED OUR ORGANIZATION TO SCORE A SUCCESS PRESENT YOU AND COWORKERS AS WELL AS PARTICIPATING AGENCIES OUR VERY BEST WISHES FOR CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR HOPING NEXT YEAR WILL BRING HAPPINESS FOR YOURSELVES AND COUNTRY

Relief Appointees

Puerto Rico

Lawrence Greaser, Hesston, Kansas

Italy

Maria Kroeker, Henderson Nebraska

China

Ruth Fisher, Kalona, Iowa; Elvira Lehman, Berne, Indiana; Clayton Diener, Hutchinson, Kansas; Inez Snyder Diener R. N., Hutchinson, Kansas.

Puerto Rico Workers Leave

Paul Leatherman, Doylestown, Pa., left December 29, and Oswald Goering, Elyria, Kansas, left January 3, 1946.

Home Canning Program

Due to the lifting of rationing controls, increased food supplies and reduction of C.P.S. camp strength through demobilization, it was decided at the Annual Meeting of the MCC to sponsor no CPS canning program in 1946, but to encourage the greatest possible effort in home processing of foods for relief. More details on plans for the 1945 Relief Canning Program will be forthcoming later.

Relief Briefs

According to a cable received January 2, Wilhelmina Kuyf, Lawrence Burkholder and Clayton Beyler arrived in Chungking, January 1. They are proceeding to Hankow where they will minister to the needs of thousands of destitute refugees in that city.

A correction of address for MCC workers in Italy should be noted it is, as corrected:

UNRRA, Italian Mission
APO 394
% Postmaster New York, N. Y.

C. P. S.

Camps Closing

The closing of two more MCC administered base camps within the next two months now seems probable. Camp No. 35 at North Fork, California, is to close by January 31, and Camp No. 57, Hill City, South Dakota, is to be reduced to a camp strength of 100 by the middle of January and closed by February 28, according to present plans. Releases and transfers to special projects have reduced the population of western camps, which is the reason for closing the North Fork camp, a forest service project. Construction of a large earth dam at the South Dakota camp is nearing completion and the 100 men remaining after January 15 will dismantle the camp buildings. Men in these two camps who are not eligible for releases will transfer to other camps and units.

The two base camps previously announced as closing in December—the Downey, Idaho, camp and the smokejumpers unit at Missoula, Montana— were officially closed on December 29 and January 2, respectively. The American Fork, Utah, hospital unit will close January 10 or soon after.

Hungry children relish food supplied through M.C.C. relief.

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

President Ramseyer and Dean Schultz attended the meetings of the Council of Mennonite and Affillated Colleges, the American Association of Colleges, and the Association of Church Related Colleges in Cleveland during the week of January 7. President Ramseyer attended a meeting of a committee of the Seminary Board in Chicago on January 12. Rev. Shelly, Dr. Bauman, and Rev. Batterson were each in charge of one evening of the services of the Week of Prayer sponsored by the Bluffton Ministerial Association. Rev. Shelly spoke on Sunday night, Dr. Bauman on Tuesday night, and Rev. Batterson on Thursday night. Franz Bodfors, pianist, gave a concert in Ramseyer Chapel Monday evening, January 7, as a part of the Bluffton College Concert Series. Carl Lehman assumed his new duties at the college January 2.

BETHEL COLLEGE

The third number in the Memorial Hall Series was Percy Grainger, internationally known Australian pianist and composer, who played before an enthusiastic audience of two thousand on January 4. Willis Rich and David C. Wedel are on a month's tour in the Pacific District, planning to visit seventeen Mennonite communities. College enrollment has been increasing throughout the year as the draftees return. A number of local housewives are also enrolling this week in a special course of advanced sewing under Miss Hill. A Gospel Team from Goshen College gave the chapel program on January 3. At a later chapel service, Rev. Gerhard Friesen, staff member, reported on his trip to Europe as attendant for a shipment of horses for relief. Miss Leona Krehbiel has been elected president for the new year of the Bethel Reading Club, a campus women's organization meeting monthly to review books and current topics. Mrs. Herbert Wiebe continues as president until May.

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

School resumed January 2. Those who had gone home for the holidays returned on New Year's Day. Mrs. Ediger and Miss Ratzlaff spent their vacation at Henderson, Nebraska. Miss Ewert and John Mark Suderman were in Kansas, and Betty Quiring was at her home in Montana. The Prof. Gerhard Toews family left for Mountain Lake, Minnesota, to attend the funeral of Mrs. G. G. Neufeld, mother of Mrs. Toews. The faculty has invited the board members and their wives for an evening of fellowship January 25. "Sweden" was the subject of this weeks March of Time feature shown to the students in the visual education program. Prof. Graber spoke in chapel on Wednesday.. His talk was a challenge for greater consecration in the New Year.

MENNONITE BIBLICAL SEMINARY

Those students who remained on the campus over the holidays were able to redeem the time by working extra hours at various places of employment. On Christmas day invitations to the Mennonite Bible Mission and the homes of Rev. J. T. Neufeld and Dr. Warkentin were accepted. However, most of the students were able to return to their homes for Christmas. Willie Kaethler, student from Tabor College, Hillsboro, Kansas, was a guest of Ernst Harder here at the Seminary from December 21 to January 1. Willie, having come from Ernst's home in Paraguay, South America, has now been in the states for nearly one year. Other recent visitors to our campus were: Esko Loewen, during the week end of December 16, Verney Unruh, on January 1 and 2, and Elmer Ediger on January 3. The Mennonite Central Committee met here in Chicago on December 28 and 29. A few of the students were able to attend these meetings. With the resuming of class work on January 1 we rejoiced in the coming of another student to our Seminary. Arnold Regier of Newton, Kansas, has joined us to continue his seminary work which he had begun in Portland, Oregon, some years ago.

Indian congregation served by Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Friesen, Canton, Oklahoma.

Some of the Indian children who attend church.

(Continued from page 8)

ship some of them enjoy, therefore we earnestly desire an interest in your prayers and we thank all for whatever part they have played in our existance. We praise GOD for the church house and the services.

Smith Corner is located in the South Central part of Pennsylvania, just about eighteen miles south of the city of Altoona. We are right in the Allegheny mountains. This means that some of our people have a hard time getting out to the services or anywhere else during the winter months. Most of those that belong to and attend here travel from one to thirty-five miles, those within walking distance of the church are very few.

We usually have revival meetings for from one to two weeks in the fall of the year in the latter part of October. These meetings are followed by Holy Communion. This is a very happy time for us and we look forward to it.

There are local names given to each community. Ours was called Smith Center after the folks who were the original settlers, about a mile or so from here is Puzzle Town, a few miles north of us, then not so far south is another hollow known as Polecat, then a few miles further south is another called Bull's Creek.

We feel that the friends and supporters of Home Mission work should know something about the work, people and place hence the above information, then, with this added you may become still better acquainted with us; our church record contains such names as Anders, Butler, Dodson, Helsel, Fornwalt, Knisley, Long, Nofsker, Mills, Oakes, Raugh, Smith, Stiffler, Snyder and Walters.

A word about the worker; we live in the parsonage just next to the church, we have six living children and one grandson. Our two oldest daughters work in Altoona, the next oldest goes to High School in Claysburg, then we have two boys in grade school in East Freedom, and our youngest, a girl, and the grandson stay at home. Our son-in-law has been in the C.P.S. Camp in Grottos, Virginia, since August before Pearl Harbor.

In closing may we again ask for an interest in your prayers, offer our thanks for your help, and invite you to come to SMITH CORNER.

John S. Raugh

JOTTINGS

—The Salem-Zion Church, Freeman, South Dakota, decided at its annual business meeting "to continue with the 100 Per Cent Subscription Plan for an indefinite time," according to a report by the pastor, Jacob J. Regier.

—Gnadenberg Church, Whitewater, Kansas: At the annual meeting it was decided to have Bible study, led by Rev. J. J. Voth, the pastor, on alternate Sunday evenings.—Mrs. Leo Voth, Corr.

—St. John Church, Pandora, Ohio: Arthur and Nelson Schumacher left recently for Europe with a shipment of heifers and horses for relief. The Mennonite churches in this community made up a carload of heifers for relief.—Mrs. Clarence Schneck.

—First Church, Berne, Indiana: On January 6 the morning service was in the form of a farewell for Miss Liechty, who hopes to sail as a missionary to Africa in the near future. Miss Martha Burkhalter, who expects to return to India in a month or so, was included in the farewell. As a member of the church and as a long-time missionary, she, on behalf of the church, spoke words of encouragement to Miss Liechty who then responded to this farewell message. An offering was taken for Miss Liechty.—Martha Gilliom. Corr.

—The Fairfield (Pa.) Church held a white gift vesper service on Sunday evening, Decmber 23. The offering amounted to $2,350.74 and was designated as follows: $1,522.50 for war-sufferer's relief, $500 for the building fund, $100 for Bluffton College, $100 for Goshen College, $69 for shoes for Holland, $51.24 for rebuilding Hiroshima, $5.00 for Paraguay and $3.00 for local aid. Each person was given a small, envelope on which he designated the project for which he wanted his offering to be used.—Henry Burkhard, Corr.

—First Church, Pretty Prairie Kansas: A New Year's Eve program was given by Bethel students, G.B.I. students, ministerial students, C.P.S. boys and servicemen. A very large crowd enjoyed the program given by the Alexanderwohl Men's Chorus December 30. The congregation appreciated the messages given by John B. Graber, Waldo Kaufman, Richard Ratzlaff and Richard Tschetter. All are from this church and either are or have been ministerial students.—Ralph L. Krehbiel, Corr.

—First Church, Halstead, Kansas: Rev. D. C. Wedel was granted the month of January for visiting churches on the west coast in the interest of Bethel College. Simon Baumgartner passed away December 29.—Corr.

—Correspondents who retire from office should be certain to send the name and address of the new correspondent to The Mennonite, North Newton, Kansas.

—The North Star Church, Drake, Saskatchewan, at its annual meeting, accepted a plan which calls for an addition to the country church of the congregation. The total membership of the whole congregation is 310.—Schroeder Corr.

—Buhler Church, Buhler, Kansas: The Christmas Eve offering was sent to Puerto Rico for use in the milk-project which the C.P.S. men have started there. Instead of collecting pledges and contributions for the church through house to house canvassing, it was decided, at the annual meeting, that January 20 be designated as Church Loyalty Sunday. Church members and friends will be given an opportunity to make their pledges and contributions from three to six o'clock in the afternoon. We and the Hebron Church are having joint Bible study every Wednesday night. We have four different classes: a German class, an adult class, young people's class, and a class for grade school children.—Mrs. F. F. Matthies, Corr.

—Alexanderwohl Church, Goessel, Kansas: On December 27 the young people of the Alexanderwohl, Tabor, and Goessel churches met in the Alexanderwohl Church for a youth conference. The afternoon meeting divided into discussion groups led by Rev. P. A. Wedel, Rev. H. B. Schmidt, and William Juhnke. Prof. Menno Harder from Bethel College was guest speaker in the evening. The large class of young people who were baptized last spring have organized as the Alexanderwohl Mission Band. On January 1st they gave the first of a series of programs. Rev. P. P. Tschetter from Pretty Prairie will conduct evangelistic meetings in our church from January 14 to 20. Rev. P. A. Wedel will open the meetings on January 13.—Wanda Schmidt, Corr.

—Aganetha Fast, who as Matron-at-Large, has been visiting the various C. P. S. camps, writes that she hopes to be through with her camp visitation program by the end of February.

—Rev. Herbert Miller has resigned as pastor of the Deer Creek Church, Deer Creek, Oklahoma, to accept a call from the Bethany Church, Kingman, Kansas. The Millers plan to make the change sometime during the latter part of January.

—The Committee of the Bible Conference Association of Newton, Kansas, announces that the ninth annual Bible Conference will be held February 3 to 10 inclusive in the Newton City Auditorium. The Reverend Hilmore Cedarholm has been secured for the meetings and there will be Bible study in the afternoons and a song service and Bible address each evening.

—Alexanderwohl Church, Goessel, Kansas: The wedding of Ellen Wedel, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. P. A. Wedel of Goessel and Wilmer J. Friesen, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Friesen of American Falls, Idaho, took place at the Alexanderwohl Church on December 29. Mr. Friesen is a member of C.P.S. Unit No. 1, Lincoln, Nebraska, and Mrs. Friesen is teaching school. Funeral services for Mrs. P. H. Schroeder, mother of Mrs. John J. Duerksen, were conducted on January 8.—reported by Mrs. A. Adolph Duerksen

—Dr. G. S. Klassen is to speak and show pictures of Paraguay in the Memorial Hall, North Newton, on January 20, 7:30 P.M. Dr. Klassen has served as dentist for the Mennonites in the Chaco and has an interesting story to tell. Willard Smith, who for two years served as director of M.C.C. relief activities in Paraguay, will speak the next Sunday evening, January 27, in the same place, at the same time. He also will show pictures. These events are part of the school of missions that the Bethel College Church is sponsoring. The public is heartily invited to attend these lectures.

—First Church, Pretty Prairie, Kansas: The Lord willing, James Heathershaw is to be ordained as missionary January 20, 2:30 P.M. He is the husband of the former Lillian Schrag. They will soon leave for Africa to serve there under the Sudan Interior Mission.

S. G. A. Linscheid
127 North Pine
Newton
Kansas

222 S. Pine

NOTIFI

SASKATCHEWAN MINISTERS AND DEACONS HOLD CONFERENCE

The annual fall conference of ministers and deacons of the Mennonite Church in Saskatchewan was held in the Herbert Church, October 15-17. The motto of the conference was, "Break up your fallow ground," Hosea 10:1. Rev. J. J. Thiessen of Saskatoon was elected chairman. All officers were elected by acclamation. The ladies of the Herbert Church served dinner and supper in the church basement.

Rev. J. G. Rempel, reporting on home mission work in Northern Saskatchewan, stressed the necessity of visiting those families which are far removed from Mennonite communities.

In a report on the choirs of the Saskatchewan church, Rev. Rempel stated that K. H. Neufeld of Winkler, Manitoba, had served the choirs of central Saskatchewan with special courses during the winter and that Prof. Hohmann of Bethel College had given valuable instruction at the retreats held in July. A committee is to invite men for more of such special choir work. Special Sunday School workers are also to be invited.

A talk in the interest of C. O.'s was given by Rev. J. J. Regier of Laird. He pointed out how C.O.'s had worked in camps and on farms and had sacrificed much in earnings and personal liberty for the faith of the fathers. "They are the modern heroes of the Mennonite Faith." "Some have felt that service with the medical corps (restricted) offered an opportunity to heal wounds and have given their lives and all as a testimony against the horrors of war." "The speaker regretfully referred to those of our own young men who have gone into active service. What is the reason? Are they alone to blame? Have we as a church not failed them in a sense?"

A report on the youth activities around Rosthern told of the prospective enlarging of the invalid home, the plans for a children's home and of the gifts that have been received for it. This report and another youth report stated that twelve young people are candidates for foreign mission work.

Next year the Ministerial Conference is to be held at Hershel. (The foregoing is a condensation of a report written by Rev. I. A. Derksen.)

The Mennonite

VOLUME LXI NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, JANUARY 22, 1946 NUMBER 4

O Pow'r of Love,

All Else Transcending

O pow'r of love, all else transcending In Jesus present evermore,
I worship Thee, in homage bending, Thy name to honor and adore:
Yea, let my soul, in deep devotion, Bathe in love's mighty boundless ocean.

Thou art my rest, no earthly treasure Can satisfy my yearning heart,
And naught can give to me the pleasure I find in Thee, my chosen part,
Thy love, so tender, so possessing, Is joy to me, and ev'ry blessing.

To Thee my heart and life be given, Thou art in truth my highest Good;
For me Thy sacred side was riven, For me was shed Thy precious blood.
O Thou who art the world's salvation, Be Thine my love and adoration.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point-of-view:

UNDERSTANDING is very necessary for helping others. The person who "understands" is the one who can help and whose aid is most sought by those in trouble. It seems that we can hardly forgive unworthy behaviour as long as we do not understand the why and the how of it. Until we see the why and the how such behaviour seems unnecessary, and "unnecessary" behaviour tends to irritate us. But when we can understand why a person does as he does, then we can "feel with him" and offer our help at those hidden points where he most needs it. Jesus was wonderfully, divinely forgiving. He knew what was in man. On the cross He could say, "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do." Pilate, the Jewish leaders, and the Roman soldiers did not know what really moved them to crucify Jesus. But He knew. When we see the "why" of behaviour as clearly as we see the behaviour itself, then we are able to be of help. Not only is this true in what we call personal relationships, but it is also true in the sphere of international relations. A hopeful aspect of the present session of the Assembly of the United Nations Organization is the possibility that the representatives may get off the defensive sufficiently to achieve a deeper and broader understanding of each other. Without such understanding certain international behaviour may seem very unnecessary and therefore be very irritating. We need to know how mankind ticks, but we also very much need to know why it ticks as it does.

"THE LORD WILLING" is an expression which seems much less common among younger Christians than among older ones. That is, we refer to the verbal expression of it; inwardly younger Christians may possibly use it just as much. Sometimes the expression tends to sound somewhat customary and empty. On the other hand there seems to be an intriguing richness in the thought it expresses. The thought of "the Lord willing" is a wonderful preface to any contemplated action. It helps one to put first in heart and mind the Kingdom of God and His righteousness rather than "all these things." In short it helps the Christian to be loving, which is his supreme business. The Lord's will is that we get along well with our fellowmen. We need to be conscious of their needs and wants and of their purposes. Unmindful of these we soon find ourselves at "cross-purposes" and minus that little bit of heaven that life can be. How natural it is for us to set our heart and mind on some plan or achievement that seems to us highly commendable and "good," only to discover that in striving heart and soul to attain it, we actually disregard the Lord's will by being unresponsive to the needs and purposes of others. To put uppermost in one's mind the thought of loving others makes "our plans" so fit in that they receive the emphasis they ought to receive in God's total plan. "But thy will, not mine, be done" (Moffatt) is an excellent preface to any plan we may make. It makes for a condition of receptiveness in which God's guidance can be felt full, strong, and warm. It is a shock absorber supreme for the frustrations of life. It recognizes the fact that God is God and not we.

"AS . . . IN HEAVEN" are words that we may repeat quite often perhaps. Certainly, they are important words. Our doing of God's will on earth is to be guided by the standards of heaven. It suggests the ideal. But what is that ideal like? We need to be conscious of that. This is sometimes suggested when someone disturbed by denominational rivalry and suspicion on earth suggests that afterall in heaven we will all have to get along together. Yet we tend to remain unmindful of that heavenly picture and go our earthly ways, which sometimes tend to be very earthy. What is the ideal that heaven suggests? Undoubtedly, Jesus wanted those words to be vital and meaningful to His disciples. And they can be as we let them work within us a strong picture of the ideal which God favors. "Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven" are great words which ought to bring great results, that is, when prayed.

"AS WE FORGIVE OUR DEBTORS" is a part of a petition which very much involves us in the matter of forgiveness. Is it to be understood that God will forgive us only to the extent that we forgive others? That seems like a hard suggestion, for we tend to feel that we want God to be more merciful towards us than we are towards others. Yet can God forgive us when we refuse to confess and repent from a sin of being unforgiving? Can we feel God's forgiveness in our hearts as long as we stubbornly refuse to forgive a debtor? Can we be right with God when we are wrong with our fellowman? Jesus' parable about the two men, one of whom owed three million pounds and the other twenty, seems to suggest that He wants us to be quite thorough in this matter of forgiveness. Or have we a right to claim today that we owe God only twenty pounds and that our fellowman owes us three million pounds?

Responsibilities of a Choir Member

by William H. Regier

To begin with, I want to confess that I must include myself in the group to whom I am now going to speak. For the casual observer, the directing of a choir seems to be a routine performance. What he does not see are such things as the concern of the choir director to fit the contribution of the choir into the true purpose of the worship service. One would think that many of the "headaches" that a director gets should not be necessary. Yes, we are ready to say, it should not be necessary to beg members to come to practice. We also agree that an excuse to be absent when it is not entirely truthful is irritating. We do not see why it should be necessary for the director to be so careful how he speaks to certain choir members or how he treats them. And surely for the director to have to apologize to one of his singers for a little fancied injury—that, we say is going too far—as long as it involves someone else than ourselves.

Do we see a little better now, that it might be possible for the director also to get a headache once in a while. Little do we realize to what extent a director must sacrifice in time and effort to plan his program. He is anxious that what the choir will contribute on Sunday morning shall as much as possible add to the worship service, and I am afraid that sometimes he wonders whether this will be the case.

The choir plays a very important part in the worship service. The choir is to be an instrument in the hands of God for the promotion of His work.

If every choir member could sense thankfulness for the salvation that Christ has wrought and then have a burning desire in his heart to serve the Lord with gladness, would there not be a difference in his singing?

One fact every choir member must learn is that he is in the service of the Lord. When we are in a service we have a responsibility. Responsibility has been defined thus: "Response" and "ability"—man's response to God's ability. The spirit of God is drawing us as choir members. Why not respond and let Christ do the rest? A traveller remarked to a railroad switchman, "Yours must be a very responsible position." "Yes," was the reply, "but it is as nothing compared to yours as a Christian."

What then are the responsibilities of a choir member? We mention three of them:

Attendance

Those engaged in business know that half-hearted interest in the business will never achieve anything. Good business sense tells us that only regular hours, industry, and watchfulness at all times will result in success. Then why should we be any less industrious, or watchful, or punctual in the service of the Lord than we are in our own business?

Conduct

Is good conduct not to be taken for granted? Who would dare to display poor behaviour as he sits in the choir loft with so many eyes trained on him?

Let us visualize this from the viewpoint of one sitting in the pews. Our pastor is speaking. The people are attentive. The pastor wants every eye and ear to be in his direction because the important thing just then is to get the message of God to the hearts of the listeners. Behind the pastor, however, sits the choir. Have we as members of the choir always remembered what our attitude toward the speaker should be? Are we fully aware that it is possible for us to break up that undivided attention the speaker is seeking to achieve?

Just to sit in the choir loft during the sermon and remain quiet should not be our only aim. That is important. However, we should go a step further and be helpful while the speaker is bringing the message from God's word. Have you ever seen someone on the street looking intently at something? Soon someone else came along and began to look also; then another, and another. It works the same way in church. If we in the choir give our undivided attention to the speaker we are helping the audience to do the same. Such things as laughing, whispering, looking around, are definitely out of place in the choir loft.

Not only during the worship service but also at rehearsals the conduct of choir members should be in harmony with the purpose of the practice.

Consecration

As choir members we may sometimes have the idea that our service is a relationship to God which we have chosen and therefore stress our doing of it. We may even think that God should be very appreciative of our noble attitude, and delighted with our attention. Our service is rather a relationship into which God has drawn us. "Herein is love, not that we love God but that He loved us, and sent His Son to be a propitiation for our sins." I John 4:10. God reached down unto your life and mine, singled us out, and offered us salvation. "We love because He first loved us." In gratitude for this love let us render our service.

---

(These are excerpts of a paper presented at a fellowship supper of the choirs of the Bethel Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota. Mr. Regier is a member of the choir and serves on the Board of Deacons and as Secretary of the Church.)

In Romans 13:13 Paul says, "Let us walk honestly" or "becomingly," as another translation puts it). This responsibility of consecration concerns our conduct far beyond the four walls of the church.

Someone may say, "What I do away from church is my business." Is it really? Are we justified in lowering our standard of conduct when we are in a secular environment? The world knows of only one standard of conduct for those connected with church activities and that is one which is consistent with the faith which these profess.

What is consecration? It is the dedication of our lives to Jesus Christ. Why expect this of a choir member? Because his service can have eternal value only if this is done.

The Returning C. P. S. Man

by Dale Nebel

A horde of men were called to C.P.S., and a horde will return from C.P.S.; but the latter will be different from the former. The secret of the returning C.P.S. man's adjustment back to civilian life is that he recognize that he has changed--and that some of this change is desirable and some of it is not.

It isn't that he wanted to change; it isn't that he tried to be better or worse—if he is better or worse; but it is simply a matter of having been exposed to a number of different elements and having absorbed some of the implications. The folks at home are going to be surprised at some of the things this changed person says and does and at the way he reacts to various incidents. The ex-C. P. S. man might wisely ask the home-folks to point out to him the changes they note. He will need to examine himself for these changes; he will need to be observant to the way others respond to the things he says and does. Having discovered the ways in which he has changed, he will want to become discerning and decide which were for better and which were for the worse; to which should he cling, which should he eliminate.

Because of the change which has come about, the returning man is going to be alarmed at some of the things the home-folks do--or don't do. Why are they so careless in their conversation? The trivial things they talk about and the language they use are so nugatory. Why do they always talk and act in terms of dollars and cents? Why don't they contribute to relief like the people in other Mennonite communities? What a mercenary people! They have forgotten their devotional life. They don't even observe morning devotional period. (He has forgotten that he thought nothing of this before he went to camp.) If the ex-C.P.S.-er isn't watchful he is going to slip into that groove himself. He must remain firm in his convictions--the new-found as well as the old. He must guard against sliding into the conditions where he takes these things for granted and does not react against them. If he, then, doesn't hold up a light for those about him, who will?

On the other hand, he must not hope for immediate and drastic reforms. He will find that standing up for his convictions and still remaining on a working basis with those about him is quite a trick. This will be an excellent place to put into practice his C.P.S.-learned patience. As far as he is concerned, tolerance will be put to its greatest test.

The C.P.S. man had many complaints and gripes against camp life; he had visions of what civilian life would be like when he returns. It is only when he actually gets home that he sees what advantages he gives up when he leaves camp. He will have to work longer hours, he will have to struggle for food, shelter, and clothing. Decisions must be made. He will have to assume greater responsibilities. The odds will be against him; the work he was doing the past three or four years did not furnish experience along the lines he now wishes to follow; he has forgotten old techniques. He will have to start from scratch. He will have to work with—or for—former buddies who were not called to service and who, therefore, were able to amass a certain amount of wealth during the past years. Will he become bitter? Coveteous? What would that gain him? He will need to guard.

—But the C.P.S. man has had several years of conditioning. He can be happy with less. Why cumber himself with more? He will have built up a philosophy; he will have developed a way of life. If he loses those—if he gives up the things he gained in camp for the convenient "following of the crowd," the Three or Four Years He Spent in Camp Will Have Been a Total Loss!!!

C.P.S. Men and Creative Relationships

by Harold Gross

It can perhaps be said that, speaking quite generally, there are two broad aspects to the contribution of returned CPS men to the life of the church and community. One finds its expression in concrete and practical terms of living testimony to consistent non-resistant practice in the whole gamut of human relations. The other aspect involves the more theoretical—yet equally urgent—need for leadership in an effective propagation and perpetuation of the principles and intellectually respectable conceptions upon which our Way of Peace is based. This must be grounded deeply in Biblical religion, and in no merely rationalistic philosophy. Thought and concrete living are organically related, and we separate them here only for sake of analytical convenience. We can hope only to be suggestive of possibilities in our treatment of the topic.

The communities and churches to which (Mennonite!) campees will return probably will vary considerably from those which are quite staunchly and solidly non-resistant in life and thought, through the merely tolerant, lukewarm "Laodicean" variety, to those which are unabashedly antagonistic to anything which "smacks of C.O." It is hard to say in which type the ex-campee will find his greatest challenge and opportunity. Probably no single community will constitute an even relatively "pure" expression of any one of these types. In some instances (which, there is reason to believe, will be relatively few) "adustment crises" will need to be faced frankly—adjustment perhaps not so much on the part of the returnees as on that of particular communities themselves. From the standpoint of mere social relations and the predominant social pattern, the conscientious objector, per se, is an anomaly to begin with, being a source of irritation to the social conscience (or lack of such, whichever the case might be). It is here on this "growing edge" of Christian relations that the acid test of an individual's non-resistance and of the Christianity of the church community will be made. Presumably, a quiet, persistent life-testimony will constitute the best "technique" for living out one's faith under the ordinary tensions of human relations.

We have need today for an experimental Christianity in the best sense of the term—which, in essence, amounts to what Paul called working out your own salvation with fear and trembling. This writer finds it satisfying to look upon the C.P.S. program as something of a project in spiritual and moral research, the net results of which are now due for a concerted application in wider spheres of community living. Experimental Christianity of this sort constitutes in itself, in a still broader sense, a research project which requires implementation through the continued efforts and specialized interests of zealous devotees who are convinced that the so-called "basic energy of the universe" will be found and released only in the life which is surrendered and disciplined to the Spirit and teachings of Christ.

The Christian community is best conceived of as an organism (cp. the Church as the Body of Christ) as, indeed, society as a whole can be considered. Is it too fantastic to conceive of returning C.P.S. men as serving a "corpuscular" function within this communal organism—bringing into it fresh vitalities from the wider reaches of a rich experiential atmosphere? (Incidentally, the corpuscular concept is fruitfully applicable to the Christian Church in its relations with the wider society within which it exists.)

It seems to be in the nature of corpuscles to exert their significant influence quite subtly, silently and unobtrusively. This is in the very nature, also, of the most effective witness to positive non-resistant living—corpuscular living in the body of the community, Christian and non-Christian. This does not, of course, minimize or deny place to specialized tasks involving the assumption of leadership by particular individuals in making vocal and expounding the underlying principles and conceptualizations which inform the non-resistant Christian with organizational direction and intelligent purpose. The one cannot be perpetuated without intimate, organic relationship with the other.

Among the more specific vitalities which the returnee can bring into the communal organism, one should certainly include training in dynamic socialized living, conducive to genuine tolerance. Surely, this was engendered in the atmosphere of the camp, which, paradoxically enough, accentuated unity of purpose within a strange diversity of social and experiential backgrounds. The community needs further to be infused with certain of the great simplicities—of speech, of demeanor (humility), and of human relations (love)—learned under conditions which reduced the necessities of real living to a bare minimum. The C.P.S. experience may well have been for the campee, again in Paul's language, a Tutor unto Christ. Through transference of experience it might somehow become that for the Christian Community on a broader scale.

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

The Librarian at the Peace Palace at The Hague, Dr. J. ter Meulen, writes that statistics show that Holland lost 22 per 1000 of the population while England lost only 7 per 1000 during the war. Being the secretary of the International Mennonite Peace Committee, he states that heroism of the highest type was shown. That is, people about to be executed forgave their enemies. Many sacrifices were made to help those in distress. All churches protested against the persecution of the Jews. In parenthesis Dr. ter Meulen relates that his greatest deed of heroism had been to prevent S Inquart, the German Commissioner in charge of Holland during the occupation, now being tried at Nurnberg, from signing the guest book at the Peace Palace.

Again the Churches are Protesting in Holland be cause they feel that too great a spirit of vengeance against those who collaborated with the occupational forces is displayed among the masses. Everyone who speaks German is frowned upon regardless of whether he is a refugee or Jew who had suffered most severely under Hitler's regime. "The churches consider it a disgrace for the nation to be possessed by the same spirit which they have fought for five years and under which they suffered so grieviously."

Total Number of Mennonite Central Committee Relief Workers is now 109. They are distributed as follows: Latin America 46, Middle East 15, Far East 10, Europe 38. Of them 45 are members of the "Old" Mennonite Church, 38 of the General Conference, 11 of the Mennonite Brethren, and the rest are distributed among the remaining branches. There are 32 workers "under appointment." It is expected that the peak relief worker total will be over 250 and will be reached before the end of the present year.

"First and Last War Winter." Reports about conditions in Germany differ. Even some of the returning men claim that up to now the Germans have appeared to be well-fed and well-clad and that they are actually experiencing the first war winter now that the war is over. Others say that there may be some truth in the above statement but add that for millions it will certainly be the last winter, too.

"Enjoy the War Because the Peace will be Terrible" was a saying in Germany during the war. Reports from inside Germany add now that no one knew how true the latter part of the saying would be.

Witnessing by Explaining the Scriptures

In most communities there are some few people who have never accepted Jesus Christ as personal Saviour and Lord of their life. Who should go to help these people decide to give themselves to Christ? The Lord's command still stands, "Go ye." This, we believe, is for every Christian person who knows of someone whom he might reach and who is still on the way to destruction. "Ye are my witnesses," Jesus says.

Some people do not know how to become a Christian because they do not understand the Scriptures. Somebody needs to explain the Scriptures to them. Philip the deacon did this for the eunuch of Ethiopia. The following incident shows how a former President of the United States did this for a man. When President Harrison was no longer president of the United States, he taught a Sunday School class in a Sunday School which he attended. He overheard a church officer speaking to a young man about becoming a Christian. The young man said that he did not have enough knowledge of the Scriptures. At eight o'clock that evening Former President Harrison called on the young man and opened to him the Scriptures. When he felt he had given the young man the needed information, he prayed with him and said, "Now it is time to leave." Looking at his watch he noticed that it was two o'clock in the morning. He had been there six hours explaining the Scriptures to the young man and pointing him to Jesus Christ.—THE EVANGELISM COMMITTEE

"MENNONITE LIFE"

This illustration from Mennonite Life shows the newly established mental hospital of the Mennonites in Paraguay.

MENNONITE LIFE has many valuable illustrated articles covering a great variety of topics pertaining to the Mennonites everywhere.
48 pages - - twice annually - - $1.00 per year

Subscriptions should be sent to:

MENNONITE LIFE

North Newton, Kansas

Material appearing under the head "Foreign Missions" is contributed by P. H. Richert, Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions.

Internment Camp Experience Significant

by Marie J. Regier

Wiehsien was an experiment in communal living, but with limitations. It was not voluntary. We were forced to live and work together. It was military power from above that forced us into this mould. The order in camp was not wholly due to internal control, but to external. Nevertheless, within these restrictions we were granted considerable freedom to experiment. Our captors, fortunately, gave us almost unlimited freedom within the four walls of the camp.

We were permitted to organize in whatever ways suited us best. We elected the committee of nine which presided over us and consulted with the Japanese. The latter did not appoint anyone. We had our own labor department which assigned everyone his job. The camp could decide what jobs needed to be done and how they were to be done. There were no religious restrictions. We could have as many services as we cared to. Entertainments were censored, but only rarely did any fail to pass the censorship. There was a certain amount of red tape connected with getting permission to have meetings, parties, etc. but not more than in many another organization. We were permitted to educate the children and also the adults. There were courses in Chinese, art, philosophy, history, and Bible.

We did cooperate. There were a few who gave the labor committee a lot of trouble, but not many. Rich and poor, saint and sinner, Catholic, Protestant, Mohammedan, Jew, and even Parsee and followers of Zoroaster, we all worked together, be that baking bread, washing dishes, or preparing vegetables. The professor of philosophy scrubbed kettles in the kitchen, and the prominent historian washed the kitchen towels. It was the erstwhile beggar or streetwalker who complained that two or three hours of solid work in one day was too much.

The greatest trial in camp was probably the crowded living condition. Married people had a room to themselves, and if they had several children they could have two tiny rooms, but never any more. The single people all lived in dormitories, ranging all the way from four to twenty in the room, and more, depending upon the size of the room. Attempts were made by the housing committee to put together those who were most congenial, but of course, that was possible only to a limited degree. The spirit of the various dormitories was quite different. In some dormitories, the members were welded into one organism with a definite feeeling of group consciousness and group pride. Others remained an assortment of unrelated individuals. The latter group was the type which had very strict rules in order to make each one do his share of the work which had to be done without taking advantage of any one. Then there was the third, the most unfortunate of all in which members were related to each other only by clash of temperment. To a certain extent this was alleviated by shifting members of the group.

The dormitory of which I was a member, belonged fortunately more or less to the first type. It seemed that almost unconsciously there was a certain unity there. Even our various curtains and bedspreads seemed to harmonize and make a unity of variety. The spirit in our room was one of "Live and let live." We didn't interfere with each other's private lives. To a certain extent we divided the work of the room, but there were no iron-clad rules about it. If someone failed to do her share someone else grumbled a bit and did it for her.

The camp had a ten o'clock rule as far as lights were concerned. But once in a while the Japanese gave permission to keep them on longer, or sometimes they forgot to turn them out. In some rooms the lights were turned off at ten nevertheless, but in our room we went to sleep no matter how bright the lights were, if there was somone who wasn't in bed.

But even at best life in camp meant a minimum of privacy. During the warmer weather we tried to seek our spots in the gardens for quiet meditation. We were successful if we got up early enough. These crowded conditions made us marvel at the comparatively even temperament of the member of a Chinese family who rarely has privacy.

In such close association one sees human beings at their best and at their worst. It was sometimes disconcerting to see people who rarely ever went to church be more gracious and thoughtful of others than some missionaries. We were often touched to see how courageously people took the difficulties of the day, not even losing their sense of humor. There were people who had never learned to work before they came to camp. One rich woman confessed: "I never did a thing for myself in all my life. Now I wash a sheet before breakfast. I was sick for a long time in Peking. Now I am healthier than I have been for years. To-day I cleaned my shoes. They were so hard to clean. All at once I found myself weeping aloud, ' I can't do these. I just hate to do them.' Then I realized how ridiculous it was. When I left my daughter, I did not weep. Now I was weeping over cleaning a pair of shoes. I quickly brushed away my tears and went to work." There were women, who knew nothing of sewing when they came, who left camp able to make their own dresses. There were a few cases of people, who had been useless drug addicts before, who received a new lease on life in camp and became useful members of the Weihsien community.

On the other hand it was very depressing to see so much thieving going on, especially among people of high standing. The fact that they needed a thing badly seemed to be sufficient excuse. They had no coal; why not get a little from the kitchen coal? Many people, who have never been in need, have never realized what the temptation to steal is like when one is in need. There were other cases which were really outrageous. Everyone received a Red Cross parcel; yet there were people who took tins of milk and Red Cross chocolate from their neighbors. The thieves were often hard to detect and the discipline committee had really no way except public opinion to enforce its decisions, and public opinion seemed insufficient to deter the thieves from their business.

Yes, human nature was human nature still. While in a way we were all on the same level, neither rich nor poor, yet there were those who managed to make profits even in camp. There were the gamblers who made fortunes and those that lost the little they had possessed.

There was a good deal of grumbling about the lost years at Weihsien. I suppose there were very few who did not at least at times feel that the time there was wasted, that they might be doing so much more outside, that threads had been lost which could never be picked up again. If you looked at the point of so-called success, Weihsien was a loss; if you looked at it from the point of view of personality, it depended upon you as to whether it was a loss or not. If we remembered Jesus' words that the greatest commandment is to love the Lord our God with our whole being, and to love our neighbor as ourselves, then there was just as much opportunity to follow that commandment in camp as there was outside. Weihsien was merely life on a small scale.

Packing supplies for the cold and poorly clothed people of war-ravaged countries.

RELIEF

New Relief Unit in Denmark

The M.C.C. Executive Committee has authorized the establishment of a new relief centre in Denmark. The main activities of the work there will be clothing distribution, spiritual counselling, and help in setting up shops and craft projects. The unit is to open as soon as workers and material can be dispatched.

S. F. Pannabecker Moves to Honan Province

S. F. Pannabecker is moving from Hankow to Honan Province. Due to the fighting in northern Honan it has been impossible thus far to set up relief operations there. In the meantime work has been done among the thousands of refugees in the city of Hankow. This information seems to indicate that Honan is becoming available for relief efforts.

WHO THEY ARE:

William H. Regier is introduced at the bottom of page three.

Dale Nebel hales from one of the Iowa churches. He has been serving as director of the C.P.S. camp at Three Rivers, California.

Harold Gross heads the Bible department at Freeman Junior College. He has his Ph. D. degree from the University of Iowa. He is a native of Freeman.

Marie J. Regier, China missionary known to many of you, was released from the Weihsien internment camp not so very long ago. Having observed a great deal, she analyzes for us the significance of a stay in such a camp.

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Verney Unruh
Vice President
Ruth Ewert
Secretary-Treasurer

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

Young People's Organizations in the General Conference

..WE ARE DEVOTING THIS ISSUE of Mennonite Youth to the young people's organizations of the Conference. In the States there are five district organizations and one conference organization, the Young Peoples Union. Each district is reporting on the nature of their organiztion, its activity, its officers.

It will be noted that there is quite a bit of difference in the various district organizations. There are several reasons for this. One factor is that of distance. During the war years, this factor became even more important. The Pacific District suffered most because of this. It must be remembered that the distance from Washington state to Los Angeles is nearly as great as from Kansas to Los Angeles. In other words almost half way across the continent. This has made group activity extremely difficult. As a result, the churches in Washington state have organized among themselves.

Another factor which must be remembered is that some districts have not had an organized youth for a very long period of time. Others are much older and because of this better organized.

This makes no mention of the Canadian youth organizations. It should be stated that they are organized and are carrying on a genuine program of activity. Rostern Farm, Elim Gospel Beach, and other similar projects indicate this. We hope an issue may be devoted to our brethern to the north in the near future.

It should also be emphasized that this is not a complete summary of our youth organizations. If it is found to be helpful, an effort to issue a similar summary will be made. At such a time perhaps more thorough reports will be possible. E. L.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION

The Young People's Union of the General Conference was organized to bring all Mennonite youth together in one organization of their own. Its purpose is to work with the district organizations of young people in sponsoring projects, keeping districts in touch with each other, sponsoring conference wide projects.

The Young People's Union was first discussed at General Conference in the 1920 conferences. It was not actually organized until 1938 and the constitution by which it functions was not adopted until the Souderton Conference of 1941. Although the young people of the church have conducted numerous activities, an organization through which they could work is quite young and has much ahead of it to develop and grow and become a vital agent for the youth.

At present the Young People's Union is sponsoring or considering the following:

1. The four page Mennonite Youth section of The Mennonite. In cooperation with the Board of Publication, the printing of this section is carried on. It is designed to be directed at items and problems of vital interest to Mennonite youth.
2. Foreign Christian Students Fund. This fund of $2,000 a year is to be raised under YPU sponsorship for the expenses of foreign students for attendance at our church schools. Under consideration are students from the mission fields of our church, Paraguay, Puerto Rico, Holland.
3. Around the World Mennonite Fellowship. Under consideration is a project of developing a correspondence fellowship with Mennonites in various parts of the world. Holland, Switzerland, Germany, India, China, and Paraguay and other areas would be touched in developing such a fellowship.
4. Under consideration is a Voluntary Service for the Church project. An avenue would be provided, according to this plan, whereby the youth of the church would be able to give of their time and energy to some work in which the church is interested such as in home mission fields, mental hospitals, hookworm projects in the South, Puerto Rico.
5. District sponsored projects which can be recommended to other districts as projects. The Rosthern Farm Project in Saskatchewan and the Elim Gospel Beach project have been such projects of the past sponsored by the Y.P.U.

6. India Scholarship Fund. This fund is raised to help young people of India get a Christian Education in India.

7. Support of Mennonite Relief Work also is encouraged through the Y.P.U.

8. Young People's Leaders Institutes are sponsored cooperatively by the Y.P.U. and the district organization.

Officers elected at the last session of General Conference held at North Newton, Kansas are:

President: Elmer Ediger, Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pennsylvania.

Vice-President: Verney Unruh, 235 E. 49th St., New York City.

Secretary-Treasurer: Ruth Ewert, 3435 W. Van Buren St., Chicago 24, Illinois.—E. L.

The Eastern District Y. P. U.

by Ervin F. Miller, Jr.

There are 26 churches represented by the organization all located in Pennsylvania, the majority in the eastern part between Philadelphia and Allentown, and nine churches approximately 150 miles west of this territory (western Pa.)

Projects

An annual Mission Project is supported by the Union, which usually consists of at least three items. This year those being: $300—New Janjgir Bible School; $100—Gospel car for Miss Elsa Grantland; $100—Elim Gospel Beach, Swift Current, Canada.

In the past we have supported such projects as missionary aid, mission work in Canada and South America, medical work in Paraguay, relief work in Europe, student support, CPS, and retreat ground development. Each year at our Fall Rally we also support a special project separate from our Mission Project, some being: Support towards Canadian Youth Organization, CPS kits, books for servicemen, addition to parsonage, and this year CPS Aid. All these projects are carried on through contributions from the individual societies.

District Paper Published

The C. E. Witness is the name of the paper published six times a year by the Eastern District Conference Young People's Union at a cost of 20 cents per year. Consists of list of Officers, articles about Men-O-Lan (Eastern District Retreat Ground), Jr. and Intermediate notes, Sr. scrapbook, and a humor column, editorials, various reports, advertisement about Mission Project, notes about servicemen, and announcements about forthcoming events.

Other Activities

One of our activities discontinued due to the war was a fellowship banquet usually held each January or February with a guest speaker and an average attendance of about 200.

Our annual Convention occurs on May 30 (morning and afternoon) being the end of our Young People's Union Convention year, where the new officers are installed, and preparation made for the new year.

With the help of the General Conference Young People's Union President, Elmer Ediger, we held a Workers Institute. Our first meeting was held on October 13, and our next meeting November 24. Through these meetings we are planning to outline a program to help the young people in the church.

Honorary President: John Moser, Box 46, Bechtelsville, Pa.

President: Erwin F. Miller Jr., 104½ Cherry Street, Richlandtown, Pa. Calls and presides at all business meetings, rallies and conventions, appoints committees necessary, visits all societies he possibly can.

Vice-President: Ralph N. Lewis, 6th and Vine St., Perkasie, Pa. Assists President.

Corresponding Secretary: Miss Elaine Rupert, 870 Constitution Drive, Allentown, Pa. Exchanges information between executive committee and C. E. societies, sends written notices to each society respecting the time and place of meeting of all business meetings and annual convention.

Recording Secretary: Harvella Rosenberger Mease, Richlandtown, Pa. Records all proceedings of business meetings, rallies and conventions.

Mission Secretary: Miss Betty Mae Schell, Bally, Pa. Keeps records of annual Mission Projects and contacts societies for contributions.

Treasurer: Andrew Bauman, Quakertown, Pa., R. 1.

Junior Superintendent: Mrs. Lester Shaffer, Quakertown, Pa., R. 2. Superintends the Junior C. E. under the Union.

Intermediate: Mrs. Ted Moyer, Line Lexington, Pa. Superintends the Intermediate C. E. under the Union.

Editor: Mrs. Raymond Miller, West Broad Street, Quakertown, Pa. Edits C. E. Witness, various programs and other materials.

Mennonite Correspondent: Miss Grace Binder, 816 West 2d St., Lansdale, Pa. Appointed to send news to The Mennonite from the E. D. Conference Y. P. Union.

Peace and Temperance Secretary: Robert M. Landis, Zion Hill, Pa. Secure and distribute materials to societies, write articles in C. E. Witness regarding Peace and Temperance.

The Middle District Y. P. U.

by Evelyn Nunemaker

About twenty churches are represented by the organization. States in which they are located are: Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, and Missouri.

Projects

The projects which our organization carries on now are included in our budget for this year. They include Civilian Public Service Camps, Relief Work, expenses of the Vine Press, our paper, and traveling expenses of the President and Field Secretary in visiting all the societies of the district throughout the year.

The Vine Press is the paper published by the district. Our field secretary, Weldon Lehman, Berne, Indiana, is editor.

We hold our retreats at Camp Mack, Indiana, for the Illinois, Indiana and Ohio groups. For the Iowa churches, a retreat is held in one of the Iowa churches.

Officers, Addresses, Duties

President: Rev. Jacob J. Enz, Nappanee, Indiana. The President shall preside at the business meetings and see that all resolutions be carried out. The president shall have authority to appoint temporary committees. (Quoted from constitution)

Vice-President: Roger Wyse, Wayland, Iowa. The Vice-President shall cooperate with the President in carrying forward the work of the Society and shall assume the duties of the President in case he cannot serve.

Secretary-Treasurer: Evelyn Nunemaker, Lincoln Hall, Bluffton, Ohio. The Secretary-Treasurer shall (1) keep the minutes of each meeting, (2) record the reports, resolutions, etc., and present a detailed report of the same in writing at the regular business meeting of the Society, (3) shall receive and book all offerings and contributions, (4) shall make the proper disbursements and (5) shall render a complete report at the regular business meeting of the Society.

Field Secretary: Weldon Lehman, Berne, Indiana. The Field Secretary edits the District paper, The Vine Press. and with the President, visits all the churches during the year.

Program Committee Chairman: Vacancy.

Young People's District Representative: Not yet elected. The District Representative shall promote the program of the General Conference Young People's Union in his own district, and keep in contact with the other districts through exchange of ideas, suggestions, etc. He shall submit an annual report of work done to the president.

The Western District Y. P. U.

by Frieda Claassen

About one half the churches are actively participating in Western District C. E. work. There are 61 churches in Kansas, 16 in Oklahoma, 1 in Texas, 1 in Colorado, and 2 in Nebraska (these are the two at Beatrice).

Projects

1. Two Retreats planned by Retreat Committee. (One for Intermediates—Junior High School Age; and one for High School Age and above)

2. Contributions to Missions, C.P.S. and Relief, also for General Conference Y.P.U. work—10c per member also, support of the Western District C E. Work.

3. Contributions to Student Aid Fund (those of other races or nations) at Bethel College. This was started by our C. E. Convention in 1944 and many other groups and individuals became interested in the fund. It can, therefore, no longer be called our project, but we still contribute toward it.

4. MAIN PROJECT FOR THE YEAR is Acquiring Retreat Grounds. This is for the purpose of giving the needed time to our young people and also something for more groups.

Paper Published by the Western District

The Western District C. E. "TIDINGS" published each quarter, (March, June, September, and December). Editor: Rosella Reimer. North Newton, Kansas; Assistant Editor: Marjorie Linscheid, North Newton, Kansas.

Officers, Addresses, Duties

President: Roland R. Goering, 1009 N. Maple, McPherson, Kansas. To preside at business sessions. To act as chairman of the Executive Meetings any time during the year. To be a member of the Retreat Committee. To appoint committees whenever deemed necessary.

Vice-President: Ronald Von Riesen, Walton, Kansas. To perform duties of the President in his absence. To act as chairman of the Convention Program Committee.

Secretary-Treasurer: Helen Hiebert Mueller, North Newton, Kansas. To record minutes of meetings. To carry on necessary correspondence. Receive funds for projects. Pay bills. To publish Convention reports. To send out semi-annual news letters (Helen writes she has assumed this last one).

Y.P.U. Representative: Frieda Claassen, 702 N. 14th St., Beatrice, Nebraska. To be Western District Representative on the General Conference Y.P.U. Council. To keep the district informed of Y.P.U. activity and to help keep up district interest in this work. To be a member of the Retreat Committee.

Committees and Their Duties

Retreat Committee: Consists of 6 members elected by the C. E. Convention. The Convention President and the Y.P.U. Representative, plus 4 others, 2 elected each year for a two-year term in order to assure continuity.

In addition to these the Western District Conference has ruled that the President of that body shall be a member of the Retreat Committee. One member of the Education Committee of the W. D. Conference acts as counselor to both the C.E. Convention Executive Committee and the Retreat Committee.

The present committee consists of the following (with Henry Fransen, chairman): Roland Goering—C. E. Convention President, Frieda Claassen—Y.P.U. Representative, Bennie Bargen, N. Newton, Kansas—member; Henry Franzen, Buhler, Kansas—member; Mrs. Willis Rich, N. Newton, Kansas—member; Henry Hege, Corn, Oklahoma—member; David C. Wedel—Western District Conference President; Dean P. S. Goertz—Counselor, (Education Committee).

Program Committee: (for the annual C. E. Convention) Vice-Pres. Ronald Von Riesen, Chairman; Wlilam Juhnke, Route 2, McPherson, Kansas, member; Ruth Krehbiel, North Newton, Kansas, member.

The Washington State Y. P. U.

by Marie J. Franz

During the war our district was forced to discontinue many of the activities due to the great distance between our churches.

Last year the Young People of the state organized a retreat again. At this meeitng we organized as a Young People's Group electing officers. In the preceding years the pastors of the various churches organized the retreats. Now the young people have the responsibility.

Officers elected to serve us for the coming year are as follows:

President: Eldon Unruh, Newport, Washington. Presides over all of the meetings. Chairman in general.

Vice-President: Henry Franz, Lind, Washington. Assist president in organizing retreats.

Sec. and Treas.: Fern Waltner, Colfax, Washington. Takes care of the correspondence which is necessary to carry on an organization such as this and handles funds.

Representatives: Gelene Rubin, Colfax, Washington; Edna Stucky, Monroe, Washington; Harry Koehn, Linden, Washington; Sue Woelk, Newport, Washington; Alvin Franz, Lind, Washington. They represent their church, are to be present at every meeting, and help arrange future retreat.

We do not have a Washington Young People's Paper because our news is compiled in our Pacific District Paper entitled "The Workers Exchange."

The Northern District Y. P. U.

by Hazel Senner

The organization, in existence since the conference session of 1940, represents the thirty-three churches of the Northern District, fourteen of which are located in South Dakota, five in North Dakota, eight in Minnesota, three in Montana, and three in Nebraska.

Projects

Since its comparatively recent beginning, the organization has undertaken such projects as the support of India Missions, needy areas within the Northern District and contributing to the education of needy students, one of whom was an Indian girl from our Indian Mission at Busby, Montana. (Early this year a fund of $500 was given to the support of this mission.) In recent years contributions to the CPS program have been a major project.

The quarterly publication of the district paper, The Northern Light, was begun in 1942. Editing the paper are Elma Mireau and Elsie Epp, both of Henderson, Nebraska. Adeline Quiring of Mountain Lake, Minnesota is the business manager. News of widespread communities and their activities published in the paper aid in creating a closer feeling of fellowship.

In past years the young people of various churches within a community have sponsored retreats at which young people of near-by states were ordinarily represented as well. As yet a district retreat has not been provided, though that is a future goal of the organization.

At a recent meeting of the executive officers, with their adviser, Willard Claassen, pastor of the Salem Church at Freeman, S. Dak., plans for the conference program to be held this spring, and plans for further projects to be undertaken, were discussed.

Officers

Executive officers of the Northern District Young People's Organization, elected at its session in June of 1945 are Wilbur Friesen, Marion, South Dakota, President; Arnold Nickel, Senior at Bethel College, Vice-President; Delsie Tieszen, at present employed at the General Conference Headquarters at Newton, Kansas, Secretary-Treasurer. The District Y. P. U. Representative is Hazel Senner, North Newton, Kansas.

California Y. P. U.

by Vernon Neufeld

The report covers the activities of the California Mennonite S. S. and C. E. Conference which, although not strictly a youth organization, is largely carried on by young people. There are seven churches located in California: Winton, Reedley, Paso Robles First, Paso Robles Second, Shafter, Los Angeles, Upland.

Projects

An annual Y. P. retreat is sponsored, which is held at Lake Sequoia (a Y.M.C.A. camp) for one week. The conference is also supporting Rev. and Mrs. Chris Ummel in the migrant work at Shafter. We have no conference paper. Many individual Y. P. organizations have their own papers.

Officers

President: Vernon Neufeld, Shafter, Calif.

First Vice-President: Lelia Galle Ruth, Reedley, Calif. To superintend the work of the S. S. in the various churches.

Second Vice-President: Leah Dirks, Livingston, Calif. To superintend the work of the C. E. in the various churches.

Secretary: Elaine Franz, 7700 S. McKinley, Los Angeles 1, Calif.

Treasurer: Elsie Heer, San Miguel, Calif.

Missionary Supt: Gwen Cline, Campus Ave., Upland Calif.

Junior Supt: Lorraine Schroeder, 340 E. 70th, Los Angeles.

C. P. S.

Assignees With Three Children to be Released

All men in C.P.S. who have three or more children become eligible for release on January 10, 1946, and the Selective Service announcement states that these men are to be released regardless of age or length of service. There are fifty-seven assignees in Mennonite units who will be affected by this provision.

It is erroneously stated in an earlier announcement that assignees completing three years of service on or before April 30, 1946, would be released in January. The date should have been April 30, 1945.

Another Unit to Close

Plans are under way for the closing of C.P.S. Unit No. 106 at the Agricultural Experiment Station, Lincoln, Nebraska. Reduction of the unit personnel by releases and a returning labor supply are the reasons for requesting that the unit be closed. The thirty-one assignees will transfer to other camps in the West and Midwest, probably by January 20. This unit was established two and one-half years ago to provide labor for the various departments of the experiment station. A Farm and Community School was conducted during off-hours. A sub-unit at North Platte, Nebraska, which has been a subunit of Lincoln, will be continued.

C.P.S. Camp Property Liquidation

The systematic release of C.P.S. men is gradually making it possible for the Mennonite Central Committee to begin the process of liquidating C.P.S. camps and units. The disposition of property is generally to be made in the following order of preference: (1) M.C.C. administered program; (2) individual campers; (3) constituency institutions; (4) general public. This is being publicized mainly for the benefit of constituency institutions such as churches, schools, colleges, hospitals, homes, summer camps, etc., which might wish to purchase available equipment.

Such institutions located in the area of camps being closed may be interested in kitchen and dining hall equipment, libraries, shop equipment, etc. This offers an opportunity for local young people's groups, schools or other church groups to build up their libraries, equip retreat facilities, or to fill some other need which will serve a group interest or activity.

All inquiries should be directed to the Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pennsylvania.

Non-historic Peace Church Contributions

Non-historic peace churches and individuals—those not Mennonite, Brethren, or Friends contributed a total of $854,713 to C.P.S. from the beginning of the program until September 1, 1945, according to The Reporter, National Service Board publication. This sum is about 37 percent of the total cost of maintaining non-historic peace church men in C.P.S. The balance was paid by the historic peace church groups as agreed upon by those groups at the beginning of the program. About two hundred different denominations and unaffiliated groups have had assignees in C.P.S.

C.P.S. BRIEFS

Educational Opportunities for C.P.S. Men is the title of a folder distributed to Mennonite camps. It is an official announcement of educational opportunities issued by the Council of Mennonite and Affiliated Colleges and the Civilian Public Service Section of the M.C.C. In general, Mennonite and Brethren in Christ colleges are offering C.P.S. men one month's free tuition for every month in C.P.S. up to twenty-seven months.

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

Rev. Harry Yoder, Pastor of the Mennonite Church at Carlock, Illinois, has accepted a call to join the staff of the college, to take charge of public relaitons and field work. It is hoped that he can assume his new duties by early spring. Rev. Yoder is a graduate of Bluffton College with the class of 1932. He then attended and was graduated from Hartford Theological Seminary. For a number of years he was pastor of his home church, the Silver Street Church, near Goshen, Indiana. In 1941 he became pastor of the church at Carlock, Illinois. He has been very active in the Central Conference, and is now its president, an office which he has held for several years. He has been very sympathetic to the merger of the Central and General Conferences. The college feels fortunate in securing the full time services of Rev. Yoder in this important capacity. The fact that he is very familiar with the work of the church is of great importance. We ask that the prayers of the church go with him as he prepares to assume his new tasks.

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

The YW and YMCA gave a joint chapel program Tuesday. Wednesday Dr. Henry Schmidt of Chicago talked to the students. Dr. Schmidt is a graduate of Freeman. Dr. Unruh attended the meeting of the Association of American Colleges in Cleveland, Ohio. Palmer Schrag and Dell Waltner, former students, visited classes Friday. The former just recently returned from Japan. Howard and Curtis Preheim were campus visitors last week. Howard came from Terry, Montana, and is leaving for Oregon where he will work in a mental hospital. The English classes are working up debates on the compulsory military training question. Teams will be chosen who will represent the school in the Interstate Academy Forensic League.

BETHEL COLLEGE

At the annual business meeting of the College

Sunday School organization held January 13, in charge of the outgoing president, Hildegard Peters, the following officers were elected for 1946: President, Gladys Dester; Vice President, Arline Friesen; Secretary-Treasurer, Ruth Tieszen. Esko Loewen serves as teacher through January. It was agreed to continue the successful plan of one large class with a monthly rotation of teachers. The students, through the SCA, are also cooperating with the College Church in the Sunday Evening School of Missions. Several serve as teachers, and a large group responded in the study of Latin America under Dr. Fast. Dr. Fast also led the Faculty Prayer Meeting, held at the customary hour of 5:15 on Monday, basing the discussion on I Cor. 12. Mrs. Loris Habeggar, the former Evelyn Regier of Moundridge, has accepted a position in the Dean's office.

MENNONITE BIBLICAL SEMINARY

January 7. Dr. Marcus Bach from Iowa State University who is interested in developing a better understanding and appreciation of minority religious groups, presented four faiths which are often misunderstood. Two of the four faiths spoken of by Dr. Bach were the Amish Mennonites and the Hutterites. Having spent much time in numerous settlements of these groups, he was able to speak about them with sympathetic understanding and keen appreciation. His lecture was enlivened by recordings which he had made of Amish and Hutterite group singing. It occurred to us that it is rather strange that some of the great spiritual values in our religious and cultural background need to be called to our attention by those who are outside of our group. On January 6 the Chicago Mennonites had their monthly loop meeting. Rev. Waldo Harder, now attending Northern Baptist Seminary interestingly presented the work of our Conference among the Arizona Indians. The Administrative Committee of the Seminary and Bible School met for a business session on January 12. Arnold Regier and Albert Jantzen were speakers at the First Mennonite Church on January 6. LaVerne Rutschman spoke at the Mennonite Bible Mission the same Sunday. Ernst Harder spent the week end of January 13 with the C.P.S. unit at Winnebago, Wisconsin. A number of our students are now helping with the extension Sunday School work of the First Mennonite Church.

JOTTINGS

—The Beatrice Mennonite Church is the newly adopted name of the Second Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebraska. The main object in making this change is to distinguish better the city from the country church, the latter being known as the First Mennonite Church. Other changes made at the recent annual meeting include the forming of a council, to consist of the pastor, board members, and the heads of the various church organizations, in order to coordinate better the work of the church. The building committee has been instructed to proceed with the enlarging of the church basement.—W.C.A., Corr.

—Bethel College Church: The second annual school of missions began January 6th and will continue for five consecutive Sunday evenings. The theme of the school is Latin America, and Rycroft's book On This Foundation is being used as the text book outline. More than 150 have enrolled in the classes. A fellowship hour precedes the class period, and some time has been allotted for the use of educational films depicting Latin American life and customs. At the annual meeting it was decided to complete plans for the construction of the new church building so that the basement could be dug this coming spring.—Eldon Graber, Corr.

—Since the discharge of C.P.S. men has been in effect the applications for financial assistance have been coming more frequently to the Board of Mutual Aid, which the General Conference at its last session established to serve this purpose. To date the supply of funds has been sufficient to meet the needs, but that situation is now being changed. The Board is eager to receive free will contributions as outright gifts, loans without interest for five year periods, and loans with 1½ and 2 percent interest for periods varying from two to ten years. Individuals or institutions willing to make such loans for this worthwhile purpose may do so by writing to J. Winfield Fretz, the Executive Secretary, at North Newton, Kansas.—J.W.F.

—The Zion Church, Elbing, Kansas, has one member who aids each returning C.P.S. boy in "getting started" by presenting him with a butcher hog.—Mrs. Louis A. Janzen, Corr.

—Fort Cobb, Oklahoma: A welcome service for returned men was held at the Greenfield Church on the evening of January 9. The discharged men are: Alvin Unruh and Herman Dalke from Europe, Laverne Unruh from the Alcan Highway service, and Waldo Schmidt from the Philippine Islands. The supper was followed by a program and service. All the men witnessed to the keeping power of God in answer to prayer. Irvin Dalke surprised everyone in making his appearance during the banquet. He came on furlough from New York. About ninety-five persons attended the service. Four men from the church community are still in service.—Rudolph Schmidt.

—Eden Church, Moundridge, Kansas: Our pastor, Rev. Walter Gering, has asked the church for a year's leave of absence. He has been asked by the M.C.C. to go to Denmark in the interests of displaced Mennonites. His request was granted. Our church observed the Week of Prayer with a series of round table discussions. Each evening a different group of members discussed problems concerning the various phases of church work (the Christian Home, Christian Schools, Christian Community Problems, Our Historic Peace Position, and the local church as a whole). The meetings were unique and interesting, and the attendance was very good.—Corr.

—Gospel Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: The relief committee reports that $780 was paid towards the purchase of a carload of flour, which is now on the way to Europe. Last week two hogs, weighing 670 pounds, and one beef, weighing 920 pounds, were canned for relief. On January 6 certificates of perfect attendance were given to nine members of the Sunday School.—Elizabeth Lohrenz, Corr.

—Swiss Church, Alsen, North Dakota: We enjoyed a white Christmas. Some were unable to attend because of blocked roads. A new feature on our Christmas program was a "relief box" for which everyone brought a gift of some useful article of clothing for some needy person in Europe. Children as well as adults responded. An estimated eighty-five dollars of clothing was given. The Mennonite churches of this community are also planning to ship a carload of flour for relief soon. Our young people are studying the book of Romans during the winter months. Our pastor has begun a series of Sunday evening studies on the tabernacle.—Corr.

—Bethel Church, Hydro, Oklahoma: The Oklahoma young people's retreat, which was held in our town, was very much enjoyed by all who attended. Rev. P. J. Boehr was the guest speaker. Miss Martha Burkhalter was with us on December 4.—Val. C. Krehbiel, Corr.

—Bethel Church, Winton, California: Most of the members took part in the recent communion service. Cottage prayer meetings were begun with the first of the year. We are expecting the John Rupp family which is moving here from Dallas, Oregon.—N. A. Koehn, Corr.

—Pratum, Oregon: The ladies are busy making quilts and clothing for relief. They are also gathering canned meat, vegetables, and other food products for relief. Many of our "boys" have been discharged from the U.S. and C.P.S. services.—Mrs. A. E. Dalke —Ransom, Kansas: The drive for relief, sponsored by the First Mennonite Church of Ransom, netted $1,758.25. An attempt was made to contact everyone in Nevada Township in which Ransom is located. The response was very gratifying. The money was sent to P. A. Penner, Newton, Kansas, with instructions to purchase a carload of flour for export.—R. L. Sargent.

—First Church, Aberdeen, Idaho: Missionary H. J. Brown spent January 13 in Aberdeen bringing the messages at the morning and evening services. Rev. Brown was the temporary pastor of our church for six months during 1944. He is visiting the churches of the Pacific District Conference in the interest of missions.—J. E. Toevs.

POST-CHRISTMAS SPECIAL

Having on hand a supply of Christmas and other greetings which we would rather not carry over until next year, we offer these at the extra special price of 4 boxes for $1.50. The assortment includes:

1 Box Scripture text Christmas Greetings
1 Box Non-Scripture Christmas Greetings
1 Box Non-Scripture Everyday Greetings
1 Box Non-Scripture Servicemen Greetings

These are all regular $1.00 boxes and the assortment represents a saving to you of $2.50.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Berne, Indiana

—Wayland Church, Wayland, Iowa: As part of our worship on December 23 we had a White Gift service in which $295 was given. The Sunday School surprised the pastor and his wife by the gift of a beautiful rocking-chair and rug to match. In the evening the program consisted of Christmas slides entitled "In the City of David." After the evening program a group of young people went caroling. On December 30, in a church wedding, the pastor united Delmar Widmer and Ruth Rapp. On New Year's Day Clinton Hertig and Wanda Pence were also united in marriage. Xavier Richenberger passed away on December 23 at the age of ninety-one.—Anna E. Mullet.

—The Charity Committee of the Western District Conference announces that Rev. Karl Friesen has been appointed treasurer in place of Rev. E. J. Neuenschwander. All gifts for this work should now be sent to Rev. Karl Friesen, 240 North Main, Newton, Kansas.—J. R. Duerksen

—Bethlehem Church, Bloomfield, Montana: The various contributions which come through the regular church, ladies aid, C.E., choir, and Harvest Festival averaged over eighty-five dollars per member. Now the church has undertaken the project of sending a carload of flour to Europe. Our pastor, Rev. George G. Dick, and family went on a six weeks vacation, although Rev. Dick did not vacation to a great extent since he was sent by the General Conference on a tour of various C.P.S. camps. During the absence of the Dicks the members of the church enlarged and remodelled the parsonage. During this time the pulpit was supplied by nearby pastors and by Dr. C. H. Suchau, Miss Elizabeth Voth and Ervin Wedel. After Christmas the weather changed, and for the last ten days it has been very pleasant and sunny.—Corr.

—Deep Run (Pa.) Church: A group of forty members went out caroling on Christmas Eve. They made a dozen stops at the homes of old shut-ins, and sick folk. On January 6 a catechetical class was begun under our new pastor, J. Herbert Fretz.—Mae Gross, Corr.

—Tabor Church, Newton, Kansas: On our annual business meeting Rev. H. B. Schmidt was asked to give an explanation of the church constitution and the seven points set forth in the statement on our position on peace, war, and military service passed by the General Conference in August, 1941. It was decided to give every church member the opportunity to sign the following resolution: "I hereby confess that I have failed in the past in regard to the seven points set forth in the statement on our position on peace, war, and military service, passed by the General Conference at Souderton, Pa., August 17-22, 1941, and I promise to do better in the future, both in words and action." Other resolutions for 1946 called for: some more union meetings with the Alexanderwohl and Goessel churches, editing of the church newsletters by the pastors, a series of services during Easter week, and a free will offering for that part of the Mutual Aid Plan that deals with providing for our young men.—Abr. Schmidt, Corr.

—The West Zion Church, Moundridge, Kansas, has completed its fifty-eighth year of service for Christ, the community, and the world. Sixteen new members were added during the year. The pastor edits the West Zion Visitor, which is distributed to all local and non-resident members. On New Year's Eve the parsonage was opened to the young people for a watch-night party. The church seats have been scraped and sanded and are now to be refinished. In the next few months intensive efforts are to be made to unify and beautify the interior of the church. A number of worthwhile panel discussions have been held. Local members and outside speakers discussed, "Education," "The Relationship between Church and State," "Rebuilding the Broken World," and "Mutual Aid." The Sunday School, having read the New Testament, is now reading the Old Testament, a chapter a day. Rev. Unruh is bringing the story of Pilgrim's Progress in flannelgraph to the children, devoting about ten minutes each Sunday morning.—Mrs. August Ewy.

—From the "Freeman Courier": Looks like it will not be such a big job to rebuild the Bethany church in Freeman. One member signed up for $1000.00 donation and one for $500.00.

—Dr. R. C. Kauffman, who has been doing relief work in India, is now serving as Purchasing Agent for India-Burma missions and relief organizations in connection with the U.S. Army-Navy Liquidations Commission that has been established at Delhi. With the war over many articles useful to church organizations are being sold. The U.S. Liquidation Commission in Delhi handles all of these for the India-Burma area, and it is through this agency that they must be purchased. Dr. Kauffman's assignment is to buy up whatever is wanted and available for the Christian missions in India and Burma. This brings him into contact with a great many missionary groups. Quite early the various mission organizations had already indicated interest in about five hundred different items, which totalled in value several million dollars, and ran all the way from Jeeps, trucks, motorcycles, tractors, building and hospital equipment to typewriters, fountain pens and candy. Missions and relief agencies have first priority on these surplus products following Government claims. When the Government around the beginning of December reduced prices on surplus supplies bought by missions by 25 percent, the missions began buying "furiously." Since these army supplies are scattered widely in India it is quite a problem to get them transported to the various mission stations which purchased them. Dr. Kauffman carried out these purchases for missions from a central office in Delhi. By December 16 he had a staff of five helping him and expected that many more would have to be hired before the purchasing comes to an end.

s. G. A. Linscheid
127 North Pine
Newton
Kansas

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges to THE MENNONITE. North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS

—The Buhler, Kansas, Church has contributed $6,700 for C.P.S. during the past four years.

—Aberdeen, Idaho: The Women's Mission Society has sent 1,350 pounds of clothing for relief since January 1st. The 100 Per Cent Plan for the church papers was again adopted at the annual meeting.

—The Bethel Church, Inman, Kansas, last year raised $10,743.38. This makes a per member average of $36.79 when non-resident members are included and $42.97 without them. Church dues are $2.50 per member and $1.25 per thousand of valuation of property. The church has a membership of 292.

—Freeman, South Dakota: By December 23 the churches of this community had contributed $10,323.50 for flour for relief.

—The Fairfield, Pa., Church is paying each returning C.P.S. man ten dollars for each month in camp or in the service of the M.C.C.

—First Mennonite Church of Christian, Moundridge, Kansas: The Sisters' Mission Society recently purchased thirty pair of good new shoes for relief of European war sufferers.

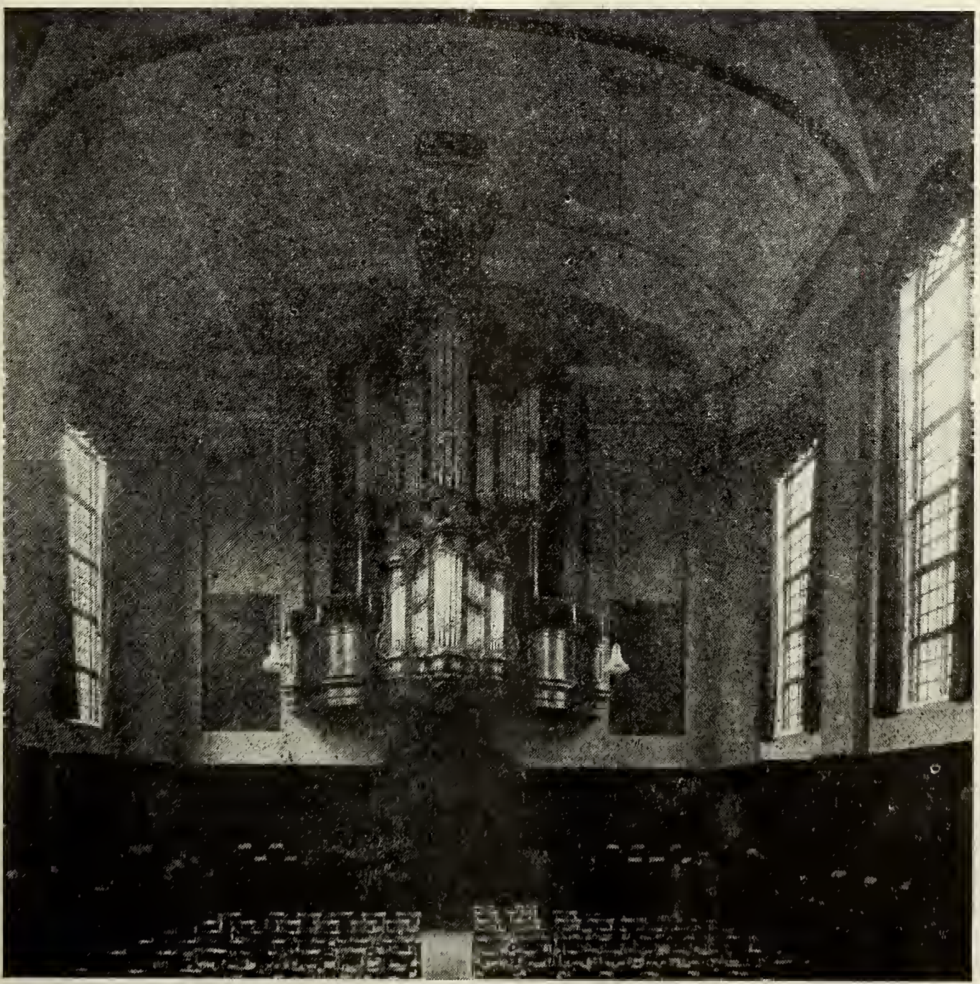
—First Church, Beatrice, Nebraska: Rev. Erland Waltner of Mountain Lake, Minnesota, is to give a series of messages from February 24 to March 1.

—The Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, is seeking to raise six thousand dollars for returning service men.

—Menno Church, Lind, Washington, will be happy to have Willis Rich and David Wedel Thursday evening, January 24. The flour fund for relief has grown to $7,130. It is interesting to note that several substantial cash contributions have come from people who are not members of our church.—Mrs. Henry J. Franz, Corr.

The Mennonite

VOLUME LXI JANUARY 29, 1946 NUMBER 5



(Cut and facts used through courtesy of "Mennonite Life")

The above picture shows the interior of the Mennonite Church of Rotterdam, Holland. This large edifice was so completely devastated by a bombing on May 14, 1940, that only the four bare walls remained. Not a splinter from the beautifully carved pulpit or from the magnificent pipe organ was found by Rev. S. H. N. Gorter when he came upon the site the next day. Now the walls have been torn down and leveled. The church was built in 1755 in a baroque style.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point-of-view:

C. E. PROGRAMS can be made more interesting and vital by introducing into them something that is "new" and an "issue" in church, community or national affairs. For example, increased interest might be stimulated by panel or forum discussions on: "How Can Capital and Labor Contribute to Each Other's Welfare?," "How Can We Be Peacemakers?," and "How We As Mennonites from Different Branches Have Come Closer Together through the C.P.S. Experience." The first one could be discussed by representatives from organized labor and industry, a housewife, a social welfare worker, a minister, a business man, a laboring man, a farmer, etc. The second one could be discussed by a number of young men, some of whom have returned from the armed forces and some of whom have returned from C.P.S. Participating in the discussion of the third subject could be representatives from various Mennonite branches other than the General Conference and some from our own conference. In all these discussions the audience could be given an opportunity for the statement of views, the asking of questions, etc. Such meetings are democratic and they can be especially constructive when the participants seek to be honest, humble, and very conscious of Christian ideals. Such programs should be planned far ahead and receive abundant publicity. It is a human tendency to become so absorbed with the way we "have always done it" that we fail to grow into new ways of activity as we. should. What if the C. E. should not be recognizable as a C. E. after a year of change? The important point is that it minister to the spiritual needs and interests of those whom it is supposed to benefit.

SPIRITUAL GROWTH is as necessary for making a Christian as physical growth is for making a human being. The babe is born. From that moment on he must grow and develop if he is to become a normal man. How well he will develop will largely depend upon the factors for development that are present or missing. So mothers feed cod liver oil, emphasize cleanliness, promote play, and stress sleep, etc. How much the child weighs or measures in height is of vital concern to them. They expect growth and they want to furnish the factors which will develop it. People are born spiritually as rather, helpless struggling infants. They get enough nurture to help them exist, and sometimes to live, but the cod-liver oil, etc., for abundant spiritual life is sometimes considered somewhat unnecessary. In a non-Christian land there is an isolated village area, which by name goes as Christian. There are perhaps close to ten thousand Christians in that area. It seems to be one of those remote spots into which a pioneer missionary found his way, produced the first converts, and established a church. A church building still stands. However, the missionary moved on. Whether he left the people with a school and with leadership, we cannot tell, but there is neither school nor leadership there now. Today this community is hardly distinguishable from the surrounding non-Christian villages. The people show a madness for material things and a desire to get something for nothing that makes them appear even worse than their non-Christian neighbors. This case of a community in a non-Christian land shows rather clearly the need for Christian nurture. In Christian America the need does not appear as sharp-cut In our land a babe in Christ can pick up considerable of the Christian spirit and teaching that is floating around without realizing how much he depends upon Christian nurture for growth. Possibly because of this there sometimes is a lack of appreciation for thorough and extensive Christian nurture. Then too the Christian Church is not too outstanding in offering a widely known line of food for spiritual infants. Very much of the food is for adults. No wonder that there is spiritual malnutrition. A man needs to be born spiritually, and he needs to be nurtured spiritually.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917 Authorized Jan. 22, 1919

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS

Building the Church

By Lester Hostetler

The churches in America are undertaking an unprecedented building program. A reliable source indicates that over $600,000,000 will be spent in projects calling for new church buildings and remodeling old ones. It will be money well spent, for the churches in our country, including our Mennonite churches, are far behind in their building equipment. We have made rapid progress in home and school building during the past few decades. But the church had to wait. As a result many of our churches are only one room buildings. Frequently they are architectural eyesores and lack adequate provision for a modern program of Christian education.

The time was when churches were erected without much fuss or forethought. A building committee was appointed to lay out the general plans, a carpenter was engaged to oversee the building, and with the help of as much voluntary labor as it was possible to get, the project got under way. When the church was completed and paid for and it could be said that the congregation got a lot of building at a cheap price, everyone seemed satisfied. The results, however were not always satisfactory, and many of these buildings later had to be remodeled to make them more serviceable and worshipful.

Today it is no longer necessary for building committees to grope in the dark. During the past fifteen years much progress has been made in making it possible for churches to avail themselves of sound architectural service. The Interdenominational Bureau of Architecture, E. M. Conover, Director, 297 Fourth Ave., New York 10, N. Y., serves more than twenty of the major denominations in giving valuable counsel concerning the building and financing of a church. It is a part of the work of the Federal Council of Churches. Although our denomination is not a member of the Federal Council at present, the services of the Bureau are available to us. It publishes books and pamphlets that are helpful to any building committee and offers, free of charge, certain other services. In all fairness, and in view of the great benefits we could derive from this Bureau, it would seem that our General Conference might well give some financial support to it.

The house of God is the most important building in any community, as the church is the most important organization. It symbolizes the people's faith in the reality of spiritual things. It expresses their belief in God and their measure of loyalty and devotion to the things not seen. An ill-designed, poorly built, or rundown church seems to say that there is spiritual sickness among the membership. On the other hand, a beautiful building, of simple construction but with good architectural lines and pleasing proportions, whose interior is worshipful and conducive to reverence and prayer, a location well situated and with grounds well kept, is an indication of spiritual alertness. Such a church invites the passing crowd to come and worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness.

Though the service of a good church architect is expensive (usually 6 percent of the cost of the building) it is considered money well spent. An architect who has given special attention to the study of church buildings, and understands the functions of the church, the problems of acoustics, ventilation, lighting, and the needs of the Sunday School, will save many times the fee he charges. There is an American Guild of Architects whose purpose it is to keep alive within the profession an interest in church designing. It is doing much to revive an interest in better and nobler places of worship.

The architectural design of Mennonite churches follows no special pattern. There are suggestions of Russian and German styles; here and there is a Colonial building, and a few of the newer ones are an adaptation of Gothic. The rest are nondescript with little distinctiveness, and less distinction. This is no criticism of those who built in the past. For the most part, they did the best they could, and after all, a church is more than a building. But in our day there is no excuse for guess work, and if sound advice is followed, it should be possible to avoid most of the headaches usually associated with the building of a church.

Mennonites are no longer a pioneer people. Rapid economic and cultural advances have been made since the days our forefathers came to America. Our houses and barns, our school buildings, offices and factories are modern. Is it not time, as Haggai reminded the people of Jerusalem, to give more attention to the place of worship?

Wherever our people are found, whether in remote country districts or in crowded cities, they should have a House of God whose simple dignity and loveliness helps make the experience of worship a constant delight.

THE CONTRIBUTORS

Lester Hostetler is Pastor of the Bethel College Church, which plans to build a new house of worship in the near future.

Harold Ratzlaff, India missionary serving his first term, calls the New Hopedale Church, Meno, Oklahoma, his home church.

J. P. Baehr, Mennonite minister who lives at North Newton, Kansas, says that he has some relatives in Alsace Lorraine.

From Homestead Days to the Present

The beginning of the New Hopedale Mennonite Church, Meno, Oklahoma, harks back to days when the Cherokee strip was opened to homesteading. Some Mennonite families from McPherson County, Kansas, and Marion County, Kansas, thinking of the future of their families, took part in the Run for free homesteads.

Several years later more Mennonite families came to Oklahoma. They bought out some of the original settlers who had tired of frontier life. And so it happened that in the spring and summer of 1894 a number of families moved into the neighborhood of what are now the towns of Meno and Ringwood.

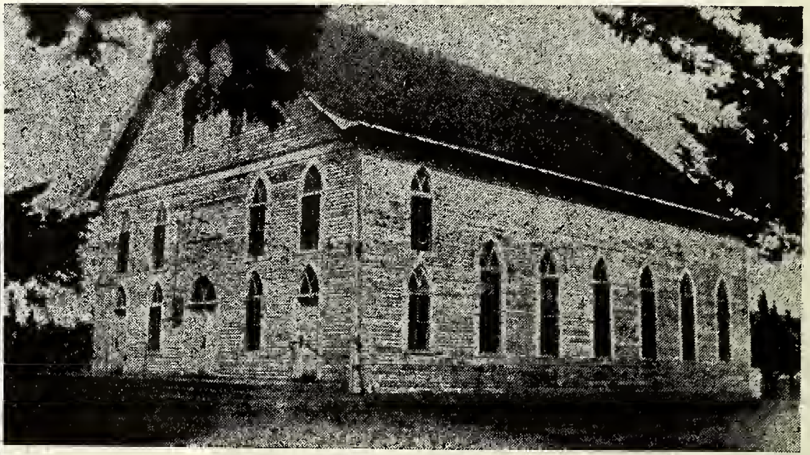
The names of some of the families were: Adam Beckers, David A. Wedels, Benjamin Ecks, Jacob A. Wedels, William B. Jantz's, Jacob B. Koehns, Peter K. Beckers, Peter D. Unruhs, Benjamin J. Johnson, Benjamin P. Jantz's, Henry D. Koehn, Cornelius P. Unruh. The Andrew P. Koehns and Benjamin P. Koehns came a little later. As the years went by more Mennonite families came to swell the community.

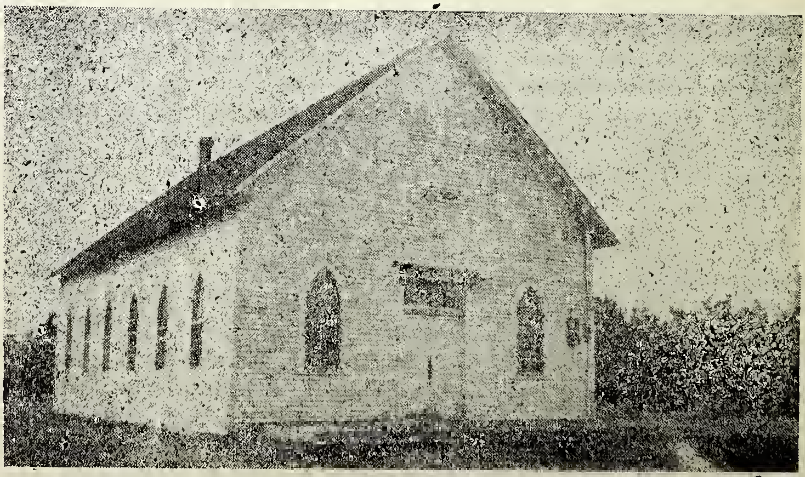
Although these Mennonite families had no shepherd, they assembled for worship on Sundays and holidays. Some one capable in singing and in the discussion of God's Word presided at such times. Occasionally visiting ministers, including Rev. Christian Ramseyer from Orienta and some brethren from Kansas, would come and minister to the group.

Elder Johann Ratzlaff joined the settlement. By the spring of 1895 the group felt that a church ought to be organized. On June 13, 1895, in the basement of the Benjamin P. Jantz home, a resolution was passed that all present would be considered members of the newly organized church. Rev. Johann Ratzlaff was chosen as pastor and was also asked to be the superintendent of the newly organized Sunday School. To complete the organization the group elected some Vorsänger (songleaders).

Elder Johann Ratzlaff served the church as long as his health permitted. When the General Conference was to convene at Meno in 1914, he requested that someone take his place. Rev. J. B. Epp was called and served the church as Elder for five years. Succeeding him Rev. J. J. Ratzlaff served until Rev. H. U.

Rev. and Mrs. H. U. Schmidt





1. Upper right: The New Hopedale Church near Meno, Oklahoma.

2. Lower right: The house of worship used by New Hopedale members who live near Ringwood.

Board To Have Executive Secretary

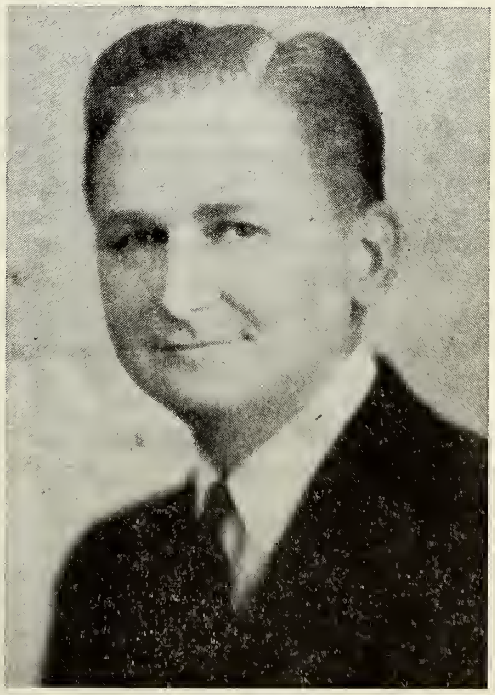
Rev. Ronald von Riesen, Walton, Kansas, becomes Executive Secretary for the Board of Education of the General Conference beginning with February 15, 1946. Reverend von Riesen has served the Walton Mennonite Church since 1941, beginning as a student pastor. The congregation was organized in June, 1942; and has steadily grown under Reverend von Riesen's ministry. A church building was erected and dedicated in March, 1945.

Reverend von Riesen grew up at Beatrice, Nebraska, attended the University of Nebraska from 1938-40 and Bethel College, 1940-42, where he received his A. B. degree and completed his fifth year in ministerial studies. He attended the Garrett Biblical Institute one summer and has taken one quarter's work at the Central Baptist Theological Seminary in Kansas City. He is the present Secretary of the Western District Conference.

His wife, the former Edna Ruth Stucky, from Moundridge, attended Bethel College for two years and has taught in rural schools for four years.

Ever since Dr. J. H. Langenwalter resigned from his position with the Board of Education to take up the pastorate of the Wichita Mennonite church. the Board has been looking for someone to take up this important task. The work of Reverend von Riesen as Executive Secretary of the Board of Education, in the main, will relate to Sunday School, Christian Endeavor and Young People's work, ministerial retreats, and in general promoting all phases of the Conference program entrusted to the Board of Education.

The prayerful support of our congregations is solicited for him as he undertakes this new task. His office will be at the Conference headquarters in Newton, Kansas.



Rev. Ronald von Riesen

Schmidt was called to the Eldership on March 8, 1921.

Ministers who have at some time served the New Hopedale Church are: J. J. Ratzlaff, David H. Schmidt, Tobias P. Wedel, Tobias P. Unruh, Karl Schärtner, Heinrich T. Neufeld, Henry Thiessen, and Gerhard Friesen. Teachers from the Oklahoma Bible Academy have also assisted in the preaching. Among them were: Abram Albrecht, Karl Friesen, August Schmidt, Lubin Janzen, and Homer Sperling.

When in the spring of 1941 the church felt that the pastor should have more help, Albert J. Unruh was called and ordained as assistant.

Numbered among the Christian workers from this church are: Harold Ratzlaff, missionary in India; Sister Eva Becker, who for a while served as Deaconess, and twelve other women who have taken or are taking nurses' training.

The Oklahoma Bible Academy, which is today supported by the churches of Oklahoma, began as a preparatory school, built mostly by members of the New Hopedale congregation. Many of the local young people have attended the O.B.A. Some have attended Bethel College, and others have attended various Bible schools. Over forty young men entered the service in World War II. Some chose C.P.S., and a large number entered military service.

The congregation now totals about 384 members. Since the settlement is widespread the congregation has had two places of worship from the beginning. The smaller group meets near Ringwood. This group first met in the local public school. In 1919 the present church was built. The larger group near Meno first had its meetings in private homes, then in a school house built of logs. Next they built a small church. When this became too small in 1914, they erected the building which is in use today. The present structure is felt to be very inadequate on account of room and conveniences, and almost everyone is looking forward to the time when it will be possible to erect a new house of worship.

In 1944 the congregation contributed $10,000 for various purposes.

(The above write-up is based on facts furnished by Rev. H. U. Schmidt.)

Material appearing under the head "Foreign Missions" is contributed by P. H. Richert, Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions.

How Much Would You Pay?

By Harold Ratzlaff

In business transactions, we pay much or little for things in accordance with how great or small our desire for them is. This is also true of our religion. We are willing to sacrifice much or little in accordance with how greatly or how meanly we value our religion. In Matthew 10:34, 35, 36 Christ says, "Think not that I am come to send peace on earth: I came not to send peace but a sword. For I am come to set a man at variance with his father, and the daughter against her mother, and the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law. And a man's foes shall be they of his own household."

Aghori, a man of Belladula village in the Champa district, has experienced and is still experiencing the full significance of this saying of Christ for he values his newly found religion highly and is paying accordingly. Would you be willing to pay as much? Let me briefly tell you about Aghori.

Aghori is a middle-aged man and, until just a few months ago has lived his life as a Hindu farmer in Belladula. One day I was in Belladula village visiting our Christian evangelist there when Aghori came in and finding me there said, "On April 22nd I want to be baptized. That is Sunday, but my father will not let me get away from the field work, and besides if I did ask to be excused from work that day my father and my brother would probably make it impossible for me to come here to the Evangelist's house because they do not like it when I come here. So, I will work all morning. Then we will come in for our meal. I will eat, take a short rest, as is my habit, and then come over here. It will be about 3:30 P.M. when I get here; so please be ready to baptize me then." Well, after further talking the matter over, it was agreed upon. When the appointed time came and we were all sitting ready to start the meeting, true to his word, Aghori also came. The meeting proceeded. When we were in the midst of the baptismal ceremony his father and brother arrived. Immediately they started lashing him with their tongues and tried to pick him up and carry him away. But he managed to get himself free from them. Then all of us helped in talking to them, and finally we got them to sit down and talk the matter over. The brother was inclined to listen to us, but not so the father. Finally the father left, but the brother stayed and saw the baptismal ceremony completed. Then he too got up and left.

Well, many more things happened that afternoon, but I cannot tell all. In short let me just say that the villagers (several hundred of them) then came to the Evangelist's home and tried in every way they could think of to get Aghori back. They tried inducements, promises, and threats, but Aghori would not renounce his baptism and go back with them. That evening when he went home and tried to get into his own house he found the door literally filled to the top with a large pile of stones making it impossible for anybody to use that door. Hence he had to come back and stay with us in the Evangelist's home. That night, while he was with us, his father took his wife and left her with her relatives in a village about ten miles from Belladula. The father got back from that trip before morning, and as soon as people began to stir he arranged many other obstacles by which to make it impossible for Aghori, his own son, to ever enter his house or take possession of his land again.

Thus for one whole month Aghori did not see either his wife or child, nor was he allowed to go and care for his buffalos and property. About that time his wife came back. Although her "in-laws" tried to force her to break her armbracelets, she firmly refused to do so. (Breaking the arm bracelets is a sign of widowhood in India, and in this case would have meant that she considered her husband dead.) Aghori managed to enter his house through the help of his wife who was then still on the inside. Once there, he stayed for about a week. Of course, he was discovered, and then his father, brother and their fellow Caste people really made it hot for Aghori. In a desperate effort they tried to get him to recant but he stood firm. He suffered much. These days we read much about the sufferings of the prisoners-of-war. Well, Aghori can heartily sympathize with them, because he too knows what torture means—only in his case he suffered it at the hands of his own father and brother and relatives. Finally they kicked him out, and he had to come back to the Evangelist's home again.

I could go on and on telling other things about the whole incident, but I must hasten on to say that his wife finally brought the little boy and came away from the home to be with her husband again. She is still not baptized but will soon be, for she has called herself a Christian ever since that day when she came out of the home. Since then many efforts have been made by which to make it possible for Aghori and his family to return to their home and land, but so far it has not been possible. If he were to ask the law to help him, he would be reinstated very soon, and the father would be duly reprimanded and possibly even punished. But Aghori loves his father and has deliberately chosen to let God do it for him even though it means a loss of over six hundred dollars worth of property and rice and will take a long time.

That very choice of his is proving to be the greatest thing that has ever happened to that village. By now two more people from that same village have been baptized, and many others are seriously thinking about doing the same. Even Aghori's father is showing signs of repenting and has even said that he would become a Christian—although we do not, as yet, know whether he said it as a threat to his fellow Caste people or whether he really meant it as we would like for him to mean it. At any rate, we have reason to believe that the firm faith which Aghori is displaying in spite of much suffering and loss is a mighty testimony before the villagers and they cannot help but reflect and sometimes act upon it.

For the time being Aghori has erected a very small one-room, straw-roofed shack (and straw roofs leak during the rains), and he and his family are abiding their time there. Only time will tell how it will all come out, but we are confident that they will not only come back into full possession of their house and land, but that through the witness, which he is giving by enduring the persecution and bearing the loss, many more of his relatives and of his fellow villagers will also come to Christ. Won't you help him and us to pray it all through to this end?

What Can I Do about Potsdam?

by J. P. Baehr

We are living in a world where the forces of evil are on the march. Up to date UNRRA is still not permitted to operate in Germany except in camps for dislocated persons. The Christian Century tells us that even if the army suceeds in distributing the food ration of 1,550 calories a day, which was supposed to go into effect in the American Zone on January 1, this still will be one hundred calories a day less than was fed the Americans who were subjected for experimental purposes to a designedly starvation diet during the war.

On Armistice Day, 1941, Col. Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, made this statement: "War breeds vengeance. Vengeance breeds hatred. Hatred breeds revenge. Revenge breeds war. The circle must be broken if peace is ever to come either to Europe or to any other part of the world. The whole weight of the United States must be thrown upon the side of making a peace, not of revenge, but of justice, and righteousness."

What are we doing today? Are we following the advice of Secretary Knox? Anyone who reads what is going on in Germany today knows that we are following a policy of revenge. We must change that policy. There are enough good people in this country to bring influence to bear on our government in Washington that this policy will be changed.

In order to bring home to us the importance of this work, let me quote from an article in the Christian Century January 16, 1946 by Sylester C. Michelfelder, who has been in Germany and tells us what he saw: "I am haunted by the faces of the men, women and children who lie in crude wooden bunks filled with straw. They are the ones who were pushed out of the east into Berlin. They arrive daily on trains so crowded that women and children are hanging on the rods between the box cars. They huddle together to try to keep warm. They have left behind them everything but a few personal belongings thrown in a Rucksack. When they get to the border, even these things are taken from them. Bands of irresponsible bandits in Russian or American uniforms pillage and rob the trains. Women and girls are violated in sight of everyone. They are stripped of their clothes. Even the swaddling garments of the infants are pulled off. One mother in Berlin told me how her baby was snatched from her to get its blankets, after which the helpless child was dropped between the cars of the moving train and run over. Another woman to whom I talked had her five children clinging to her. She had no dress, no shoes, and was standing on the cold cement floor in weather that was almost zero. . . .

"I repeat, I am depressed. Never in my life have I felt so helpless. Never have I been brought face to face with such stupendous need. We in America have what is needed. In fact the American army of occupation has what is needed in the emergency if they were allowed to use it for the German people. A general assured me that the army was ready to use these supplies just as soon as it would be allowed to do so."

Now, dear reader, you can read this and do nothing. But all of us who want to take our religion seriously realize that we are under moral obligation to do something. Let me repeat the words of Secretary Knox mentioned above: "The whole weight of the United States must be thrown upon the side of making a peace, not of revenge, but of justice and righteousness." We all know that this is violated today. So here is my task and your task: First: Pray for those in high position that God may lead them through his Spirit to open Germany to the churches for relief work. Second: Write to the president and to your senators and representatives and protest against our policy of revenge and ask them to open Germany for relief work that the work of peace and goodwill can make progress. Dear reader do not fail us in this request.

RELIEF

Tuberculosis in India

One of the more recent medical units is rather unique. It is intended for women and children only and it is located in the slum section of Calcutta. Many of the patients are tubercular. All conditions conducive to T.B. are present in Calcutta—filth, dark hovels called houses, moist climate, insufficient food and the bhurka which shades the sunlight from faces of women in Purda. It has been reported that there are twenty-five thousand cases of tuberculosis on record in Calcutta, and one can only imagine how many cases have never come before a doctor. Over against this figure is the pathetic fact that here are only four thousand beds for tubercular patients in India. Almost every day several people come to Lee Memorial Mission asking for hospitalization only to be told that there is no room in the few Christian sanitariums in India. Many of them are walking skeletons and are too far gone to recuperate. Some of us have come to feel that this is a great field of service which the Mennonites might consider in connection with the missions at Champa or Dhamtari.—J. Lawrence Burkholder

The Joy of Giving

"In a usual day we take care of around one hundred people. The joy that comes with giving out these gifts can be measured in a sense by the way faces light up and eyes become moist as these folks attempt to show their gratitude. It is very common to have them ask us to carry their thanks also to the Mennonites of Canada and the U. S. A. The other day a lady was getting clothing for her children; noticing the label, she said to her husband, ("And it's all given 'In the Name of Christ'.")

Facts and Figures

During the year 1945 over 135 tons of clothing, shoes and soap were shipped abroad for distribution. The value of these shipments was $263, 357.22. A total of 204,544 quarts of canned foods and 50,091 pounds of other foods with a total evaluation of $58,241.89 were contributed for War Sufferers' Relief. Up to December 20, 1945, forty carloads of flour, wheat, beans, corn and raisins, valued at $93,608.70 were contributed. By the same date there had been shipped or was awaiting shipping space 1,771.1 tons of food valued at $204,118.42; these figures include both Canadian and U. S. contributions.

Dutch Interest in American Mennonites

One outgrowth of the work among the Mennonites in Holland during recent months has been an awaking interest in Mennonites in America. They are deeply touched with the interest shown to them in their need. One of the workers in Holland, Ruth Hilty, writes: "It is amazing how interested the Dutch Mennonites have become in the Mennonites of America and Canada just within four month's time. Their church publications are carrying items about our customs, church practices, etc. They are just as interested in the accounts we give weddings, funerals, baptisms, age of young people at the time of baptism, etc., as we are to learn about theirs. Those who can read English are eager to read anything that is on the table or desk in English.

C. P. S. Contributions to Relief

One avenue of sacrificial service rendered by men in Civilian Public Service has been their liberal contributions to the War Sufferers' Relief fund. During the year 1945 their total cash contributions amounted to $15,592.47. This figure does not include the amount raised in a special Christmas drive by the Relief Training Unit at the Ypsilanti State Hospital. The goal had been set at $1,000; the total amount paid and pledged was $1,065.13.

Witnessing with Tracts

The Evangelism Committee has a selection of tracts which may prove very helpful in efforts of winning people to Jesus Christ. There is quite a wide range for selection to meet various people's particular needs. There are tracts which appeal to people on the basis of reason, showing that it is the reasonable thing to do. There are other tracts which explain how people come to salvation and assurance of eternal life through stories that tell how different men and women have found Christ. There are stories of conversion experiences which show the urgency of facing the question of one's salvation.

Every church should have a supply of these tracts so that lay people who wish to help someone face the question of salvation may have this help of tracts available. A tract may do a great deal of good. Here is an instance. A lady once handed a tract to a wild-spirited young actor. He received it politely and read it. It was the means of his conversion. The young man was George Lorimer who later became the pastor of Tremont Temple in Boston and through whose ministry multitudes were won to Christ. A tract well selected and given in love may be used by the Holy Spirit to lead people to Christ.—The Evangelism Committee.

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Verney Unruh
Vice President
Ruth Ewert
Secretary-Treasurer

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

A Survey of the Youth Program in Mennonite Churches

by Mary Becker

IN MANY LOCAL CHURCHES of our Conference, those actively concerned with young people's work are constantly in search of new ideas and new evaluations of their efforts. This spirit of seeking reflects a desire to make the work of young people in the church a fruitful, spiritually enriching experience.

Most of us are not in the position to conduct a thorough program of research. Yet, for our work in the church or any other of life's work to be the best, research is necessary. It is from research that we see new needs and new methods and ways of doing. And often from these new approaches, we reap great benefits. From a dead routine program, we suddenly are able to touch on genuine needs and interests and youth takes a vital creative interest. Youth likes great challenges and the Church of Christ must challenge greatly to capture their zeal and interest.

Such research has been conducted by Mary Becker in her work at Biblical Seminary, New York. Her study centered on the Youth Program of the Western District. However, the results of her findings have a Conference-wide application. We submit in four issues, a summary of her findings and recommendations with the hope that they will be helpful to each local young people's group.

Miss Becker's thesis of which this is a summary, is now under consideration for publication by the Western District Young People's Union. Should this be done, a more thorough discussion will be available to those interested.

Mary Becker's home is in Newton, Kansas. She left the States this Autumn for Medellin, Columbia, South America where she is preparing to serve as a missionary. E. L.

SUMMARY OF THESIS: THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S PROGRAM OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE MENNONITE CHURCHES OF THE WESTERN DISTRICT

(This summary of the above-named thesis is devoted more fully to the second chapter since this deals more specifically with the findings in the study of the young people's program of the Western District churches. The first chapter, which deals with the rural church of today, as a basis for the study, and the third chapter, which attempts to give suggestions that might be worthwhile to the Mennonite churches, will be summarized briefly, using for the most part the brief summaries of the thesis itself.)

The Scope and Approach of the Study

"When an individual takes membership in a church he lays a responsibility upon that church to provide him with pastoral care and leadership," says Earl A. Roadman in The Country Church and Its Program (p. 44). The questions the study attempted to answer, at least in part, were: (1) What does the church provide for its young members? (2) Is what it provides adequate to meet all the needs of youth, or does it minister only to one area—the spiritual—leaving the other areas to be ministered to by secular organizations? (3) If the latter is true, what can the church do to provide a program that will complete its mission to its young people?

Since the Mennonites are a rural people and most of the churches are located in rural areas or in small towns of fewer than 2500 inhabitants, the study was approached from the rural angle. The young people, as referred to, are those between the ages of thirteen and twenty-five, or roughly, the high school, College, and post-college ages. This grouping was decided upon because of the definite break between the grade and high school as a result of the educational set-up.

Nature and Problems of the Rural Church

The first chapter deals with the rural church—its importance, problems, advantages, and present trends—especially as it concerns the youth of the church. It shows that the church is important to the young people themselves as a laboratory in which they can experiment in Christian living and as the agency which alone can provide a worthy motive for life and which can lead to the salvation of the souls and "lives" of these young people.

It also shows that the church is important to the home as it works hand in hand with this unit which is recognized as the foundation and cornerstone of society. The church must provide the inspiration, create sentiments, and give practical help to the Christian home if both are to fulfill their God-given functions. More than that, from the church should radiate powerful influences into all areas of the community life. Thus it should establish itself as the most important factor in the community as well as the home, around which life revolves.

The importance of the rural church to the city, nation, and the world is also recognized from the fact that it almost exclusively provides the population growth of the nation, and many of its sons and daughters find places of service in the cities and foreign fields in secular or religious vocations.

Some of the problems of the rural church that are dealt with are (a) isolation and distance, (b) lack of education and adequate leadership, (c) lack of rural-centered materials and adequate equipment, (d) increasing secularization, (e) and some undesirable attitudes of rural people. Many rural churches are not aware of these problems; and to overcome them, they must be recognized and tackled. This must be done by the men and women who constitute the church.

It is also found that the rural church possesses certain advantages that must be preserved and utilized. These are (a) the solidarity of the group and (b) the advantages inherent in rural life—its closeness to nature and to the family, (c) its resources for character formation, (d) its conduciveness to the fostering of close personal relationships, (e) and its provision for physical freedom.

Trends of Youth Work in the Rural Church

Some of the present trends in the youth work of the rural church that are noted are (a) an increasing awareness of rural youth and its problems on the part of the leaders, (b) a recognition of values inherent in country life, (c) the tendency to consolidate churches into "larger parishes," (d) a new emphasis on the stewardship of the earth in the teaching that the earth is holy and the popularizing of the "Lord's Acre" plan, (e) a realization of the necessity for trained leaders, (f) and a new emphasis in the five areas of the Christian education curriculum—worship, study, the social and recreational, personal Christian living, and service.

The second chapter proposes to investigate the extent and scope of the young people's program of the General Conference Mennonite churches in the Western District. The information is derived from questionaires sent to the pastors of the sixty churches studied, forty-nine of which were returned; from reports of discussion programs held by five young people's groups; from personal contact of the writer; and from reports appearing in The Mennonite and the Western District Tidings.

The location and distribution of the Mennonite population in the district are discussed first, and here it is noted that there are two types of Mennonite communities—the solid and the isolated. The approximate number of young people this particular branch of the Mennonite Church has in its fellowship for whose total well-being it is responsible is discovered to be about 3400.

The Pattern of Activity in the Churches

The survey shows that some churches are more active and provide more areas of activity for their young people than others; but, in general, the same pattern of church activity is discovered, a traditional pattern followed in the mother church and very naturally adopted by the daughter churches as they were established. This pattern, with slight variations, consists of a one-hour Sunday School period on Sunday morning with a ten- or fifteen-minute opening session and a five or ten-minute closing session, the rest of the time being given to the classes for discussion. This is followed by the worship service of forty-five minutes or an hour. A General Christian Endeavor (called Senior Christian Endeavor in some churches), composed of all ages and in some churches attended almost as faithfully as the morning service, has its meeting once a month or every two weeks, this often being the only Sunday evening service except special meetings. Some add to this a Sunday night or mid-week Bible class and choir practice and one or more graded Christian Endeavor groups, which usually alternate with the General Christian Endeavor.

(This is the first in a series of four discussions on "A Survey of the Youth Program in the Mennonite Churches." The second in this series will discuss the worship and study program being conducted in the Western District.)

One God-One Purpose

". . . when thine eye is single . . ."

Christ was speaking to a crowd when a woman cried to him, "Blessed is the mother who bore you and nursed you!" to which Christ replied, "You might better say, 'Blessed are those who hear God's message and observe it!'" (Luke 11:27 and 28, Goodspeed). Later Christ said to this crowd, "The light of the body is the eye: therefore when thine eye is single, thy whole body also is full of light; and when thine eye is evil, thy body also is full of darkness." (Luke 11:34) In Moffatt's translation this reads, "Your eye is the lamp of the body: when your eye is sound, then the whole of your body has light, but if your eye is diseased, then your body is darkened."

The Christian life is not just a Sunday affair. It requires one's devotion throughout every moment of his living. Either one is totally devoted to God or he isn't, there is no in-between. Christ says, "A house divided against itself cannot stand." in Luke 11:17 and a little later He stated further, "He that is not with me is against me: and he that gathereth not with me, scattereth." There Christ clearly taught that double living is impossible. We may be able to live a double life for awhile, but we are doomed to failure if we try.

But, too often, in little things we try to live on double standards. The ability for an individual to be good and bad is illustrated in sharp contrast in Sir Arthur Sullivan's account of a burglar:

"When the enterprising burglar's not a-burgling,
When the cut-throat isn't occupied in crime,
He loves to hear the little brook a-gurgling
And listen to the merry village chime."

Unfortunately, this extreme illustration of an individual's love of some of the good things of life and at the same time his sordid selfishness is too often true in a lesser degree of us.

We try to mix opposite purposes in our living. We sincerely devote our lives to God, but unconsciously cling to a bit of ourselves in the form of desire for material comfort, self-gratification, pleasure, etc. Or we try to divide our lives up into compartments—on Sunday we sincerely worship God, on Monday we forget God and do all we can for our own welfare. Or we may claim during wartime to be lovers of peace, but during peace-time we may let our love of peace lie idle while we busy ourselves in the conflicts of the world—that is one criticism those who disagree with us have to make.

Christ spoke directly to us about this when He said we must have singleness of eye. He meant we must completely surrender our lives to God. We cannot hold back anything. If we try to hold a little back, we loose everything for at that moment we are as a house divided against itself.

Christ showed the way to the abundant and full life. In Him and His way we can place full trust and faith. After twenty centuries of human experience and living, during which time remarkable skills have been developed and a vast mass of knowledge in all areas of living has been acquired, Christ's message is as full of meaning and as deeply true as it was the day He uttered the words. We don't have to look far to see a vain, cocksure, yet groping and bewildered world placing its faith in many different cure-alls of its ailments. Yet, in this highly trained, ingenious world full of vast stores of knowledge, the very sins, weaknesses, and blindnesses Christ spoke of remain with us.

In such a world, the call rings clearly for men with singleness of eye whose utter and complete devotion and trust is in God. And the call rings loudly for men whose love of God will be radiant in their lives, in their works, and in their love of men.

Some Reactions to the Y. P. Leaders Institute

The following statements were made by individuals who attended the Western District Young People's Insititute held at Walton, Kansas, December 28. It will be of interest to Districts planning similar institutes in the future.

Annie Ruth Schmidt, Cordell, Oklahoma: "To me the institute was very interesting. One reason was that I found out how the young people of other churches conduct their Christian Endeavor meetings and what they do to stimulate interest. I think it would be of great value to have an Institute like that one more often, so we can share our methods and problems with others."

Violet Goering, Moundridge, Kansas: "From the Institute I gained not only inspiration, but also some practical ideas for my future Christian Endeavor work. If possible, institutes of a similar nature should be held to improve our Christian Endeavor Societies."

Lamont Woelk, Peabody, Kansas: "It was a great benefit to me to have become acquainted with the young people and the work they are doing in the Christian Endeavor Societies of our churches. I know that I will be able to carry out God's work through my own C. E. in a much better way.

Ernest Mueller, Halstead, Kansas: "The Institute at Walton was inspirationally helpful and gave us the broad outlook of the youth movement which we often miss in our home groups. However, it also proved that in most things there is still plenty of room for improvement."

Robert Bender, Moundridge, Kansas: "I felt the good method of getting together with other C. E. groups and discussing each others problems in such a way that each may have new ideals to take home to his own group. It also creates a closer fellowship with all the churches and C. E. groups in the Western District."

—Linda Bartel, Hillsboro, Kansas: I think it is a Institute is almost a necessity for the Young People's Union. Many new ideas can be exchanged between the C. E. Societies of the Churches. The knowledge gained from the Institute can be put to use in the betterment of Christian Endeavor Societies."

Clippings of Events

A new translation of the Bible is in the process of being prepared for publication. In February, the New Testament will be published. This new translation is a revision of the American Standard Version published in 1901. A committee of scholars have been at work making the revision for a number of years. It is making full use of the discoveries made by archeologists and is said to be a real improvement over the American Standard Version and King James Version. An effort is being made to make the Bible translation both authentic and understandable to the modern day reader.

The Rosthern Academy students in Saskatchewan have been visiting the sick in the community. They make up teams or groups who arrange for such visitation. Songs are sung and Scripture and prayer is shared with the sick people. Programs are being given in the churches around Rosthern by the students, also.

In Holland an adoption system has been established whereby cities which have not been destroyed take on the responsibility of sharing what they have with those that have been severely damaged. Amsterdam has assumed the responsibility for Arnheim where 158 out of 20,000 buildings are reported undamaged.

The week of January 27 to February 3 has been designated as National Youth Week. During this week many youth groups in churches will observe special programs and events.

Last year, through the American Bible Society, 12,172,143 Bibles, Testaments, and Gospels were distributed. This is the largest annual figure in all its history. A Gallup poll taken shortly after the war started revealed that 48 percent of Americans were Bible readers. In 1944 the percentage stood at 62 percent.

In Holland an evangelical movement is underway which is becoming a spiritual force in the church. In one instance a special invitation was issued to the unchurched of the community. .The sermon was on "Is there a God?" The church at which the meeting was held was packed to its capacity of 800 and a crowd gathered outside. Such meetings are reported to be successfully held weekly in Holland.

A recent letter from Esther Pauline Wang gives glimpse of China through the eyes of a young girl Miss Wang is a close friend of Miss Aganetha Fas coming from our church in China. Miss Wang i now studying in Chello University in Chengtu, Szehu an, China. Miss Wang states Miss Goertz is studying at the College of Chinese Studies and Miss Regie is at Yenching University teaching English. Sh further states, "I have not heard from my famil since last May. The situation over there is ver bad. I cannot do anything for them but pray fo their safety, and then have firm faith in Christ."

Choose Thou For Me

I dare not choose my lot;
I would not if I might;
Choose Thou for me, my God,
So shall I walk aright.

The kingdom that I seek
Is Thine; so let the way
That leads to it be Thine,
Else surely I might stray.

Take Thou my cup, and it
With joy or sorrow fill;
As best to Thee may seem,
Choose Thou my good and ill.

Choose Thou for me my friends,
My sickness or my health;
Choose Thou my cares for me,
My poverty or wealth.

Not mine—not mine the choice,
In things great or small;
Be Thou my Guide, my Strength,
My Wisdom and my All!

—Horatius Bonar.

C. P. S.

C. P. S. Population Less

There were 3,626 assignees remaining in Mennonite units out of a total of 7,369 still in the program as of December 31, 1945, according to recent statistical reports. This represents a net reduction of almost 600 in the population of Mennonite units during the last three months of 1945, due to systematic releases. Induction of new men continued however, 99 new assignees being inducted during October, November, and December.

Men who had served three years by April 30, 1945, are now being released, and as of January 15, wenty-nine three-year men in M.C.C. units had eceived their final papers.

Ohio Hospital Units Receive Recognition

It is quite generally recognized that one of the more significant services performed by C.O.'s during he war period is the work done in mental institutions of the country. C.P.S. men have been commended for helping to bridge a serious labor short-ge, for the high quality of their service, and for elping to raise the level of attendant care. Recently, the work of the 160 C.P.S. men working in Ohio institutions was praised by Frank F. Tallman, ommissioner of Mental Diseases for the State of hio, in a letter to a National Service Board official. r. Tallman reported that hospital superintendents describe the quality of work done by C.P.S. men as better than average. It was quite generally agreed the superintendents that the presence of C.P.S. en had led to a more humane attitude toward atients on the part of other employees. There was sagreement, however, as to whether this attitude ould carry over after the C.O.'s leave. The letter ncludes:

"From the foregoing it is apparent that the C.P.S. its contributed very greatly to the mental health ogram in Ohio. Not only were they valuable as endants at a time when vacancies were appalling, t they helped in a large number of categories. All superintendents who worked with them were pressed with their sincerity and kindness and in-est in the patients and their eagerness to do any-ng that would be helpful to the welfare and the terment of the patient with whom they came in ntact. We would be very pleased indeed if we ld look forward to the permanent employment of ery large proportion of our total 160 C.P.S. men."

ptist Fellowship Movement

mong the non-historic peace churches which are resented in C.P.S. is the Baptist church, and, as ld be expected, both the Northern and Southern tists have within their membership persons who re the convictions of the C.P.S. men. Among the thern Baptists, such persons have united them-es into the "Baptist Pacifist Fellowship" which lishes a paper for its members in and out of S. known as "The Baptist C.O." The movement ng Southern Baptists does not yet have a formal organization, but is known as the "Southern Baptist Fellowship Movement." This group also publishes a paper, the "Baptist Fellowship News Letter," which made its first appearance last October. Both groups have as one of their purposes a ministry to Baptists in C.P.S. As of July 1, 1945, there were 132 Northern Baptists and 22 Southern Baptists in C.P.S.

MENNONITE AID SECTION NOTES

Pamphlet Available

"Is Your Community Organized for Mutual Aid?" is the title of a pamphlet prepared by the Section for Mennonite Aid of the M.C.C., explaining the "What, why, and how" of mutual aid. The pamphlet outlines the purposes and principles of mutual aid, the functions of the Aid Section, and how local aid committees may be set up. Copies may be secured by writing to the Section for Mennonite Aid, Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pennsylvania.

Cost of Compulsory Training

Dr. Ralph McDonald, Executive Secretary of the Department of Higher Education of the National Education Association, told the House Military Affairs Committee, during a hearing on compulsory military training, that "The War Department is now asking Congress to give the military more money each year to train 900,000 boys than all of the educators of the United States spend in one year to train more than 25,000,000 students in all the schools of the nation.

"The amount of money required, even by the Army's own estimate, would be enough to pay the instructional costs at 1939-40 rates for four years of college or university training not only for the able-bodied boys but for every boy and girl in the United States from 18 through 21 years of age."

—U. S. Education News

IN MEMORIAM

Jacob R. Regier, son of Jacob and Katharina Regier, was born in Rudnerweide, South Russia, May 15, 1871. In 1875 the family migrated to Harvey County, Kansas. In 1899 he joined the Hebron Church, and in 1903 he married Mary Cornelson. On January 12, 1946, he passed from this life. He is mourned by his wife and six children: Arthur, Hesston; Edward, Moundridge; Carl, Sedgwick; Reuben, Moundridge; Anna Holzrichter, Buhler; and Grace Goering, Moundridge.

Albert A. Burry and Albert B. Hilty, Pandora, Ohio, neighbors who were married in a double wedding in their youth, brothers-in-law who jointly celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary four years ago, lived on adjoining farms for many years, met their death in a highway accident January 15th, had a double funeral, and were buried in adjoining burial lots. Seldom do two lives parallel one another as these did at so many points. They were both, with their families, members of the Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora.

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

BETHEL COLLEGE

At a recent meeting of the Bethel College Board of Directors the following resolution was carried: "After long and careful consideration the College Board deeply regrets that because of the housing shortage it will be necessary for the present to discontinue the Mennonite Bible Academy with the close of the 1945-46 school year. It is hoped that before long conditions will make it possible to reopen it again as a separate unit on a more permanent basis." Enrollment this year has remained constant at seventy-eight, with fourteen preparing to graduate in May. The teaching staff is composed of Theodore Schmidt, history and German, and principal since the Academy was reopened in 1942; Mrs. Anna Baumgartner, English; Miss Leonore Friesen, Bible; Eldon Graber, mathematics and science; and the part-time teachers who include: Mrs. P. R. Kaufman, home economics; Adam T. Mueller, commerce; Vilas Gerber, music; and P. R. Kaufman, physical education. Dr. A. J. Regier has been serving as director.

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

The need for training our boys and girls to make the most of their rural heritage and to add their own contributions to it has become increasingly evident to us. For this reason a forty acre farm was recently purchased by the school. It is located about a fourth of a mile from the campus and will be used by the agriculture department. Classes in crops and soils as well as animal husbandry will get a great deal of practical experience here. Experimental projects will also be carried on. Besides this, the farm is expected to be a valuable source of vegetables, meats, and dairy products for the dining hall. The Boys' Shop II class is constructing flared wagon boxes and trailer boxes, and repairing truck racks. They are also busy doing leather work, splicing leather, making halters and learning how to care for harnesses. The girls' Shop II class is working on individual projects. They are making such things as shoe racks, corner shelves, chests, clothes hangers, and sleeve ironing boards. They have learned how to patch holes in plaster, how to repair chairs by gluing joints, how to clean paint brushes, the uses of various paints and varnishes, and many other useful things. The Farm Mechanics class is working on electric wiring projects, constructing tool and work benches by cutting pipes with electric and oxy-acetylene cutting and welding them. They are fixing these benches with finished tops and drawers. They are also making funnels, bread and cake tins, and racks for iron pipes, making use of welding, cutting, and lathe work. The forge has been set up and they are making good use of it in their various projects. Professor Waltner teaches the agriculture classes, while Professor Toews and Professor Linscheid have charge of the mechanics and shop classes.

MENNONITE BIBLICAL SEMINARY

The All-Mennonite Retreat Committee, sponsoring the young people's retreat for the Central Conference and the Middle District of the General Conference, met on the campus Monday, January 14. Those present were Robert Hartzler, chairman, and student in the seminary, Rev. William Stauffer, Rev. Jacob Enz, Rev. Harry Yoder, and Rev. Wilmer Shelley. On January 20, Willard Wiebe was installed as assistant pastor of the Mennonite Bible Mission where Rev. John T. Neufeld is pastor. Mr. Wiebe will share preaching responsibilities and assist in the young people's work. January 23, the students and faculty met in the Central YMCA for an evening of fellowship. After a pleasant dinner various topics of interest pertaining to the school and its future were discussed. It was expressed by all that such evenings of fellowship around the table are profitably spent.

JOTTINGS

—First Church, Colfax, Washington: Rev. W. Harley King, a member of the Home Mission Board, is visiting in British Columbia in the interest of the Board. On the way home he will visit churches at Vancouver and Mission, British Columbia, and Lynden, Washington. We very much need additiona classrooms for Sunday School. The church counci met recently and discussed the possibility of using portable partitions in the basement. Flossie Aeschliman and Hugh McMillan were married January 1 —Corr.

—First Church, Allentown, Pa.: On Tuesday evening January 15, Chaplain James A. Bryant spoke on th tremendous need of the family altar in our homes The meeting was one of a series sponsored by th Allentown Fundamentalist Fellowship and Christ fo America. Chaplain Bryant is the executive directo of the Christian Home League, an interdenomina tional organization to encourage family worship t train children through Christian home instructio —Grace Moyer, Corr.

—Bethel Church, Fortuna, Missouri: The Rev. Erwi A. Albrecht family arrived from Chicago, January 1 The church has planned a fellowship dinner in th church basement for January 20.—Mrs. Joe A. Le man.

—Eicher Emmanuel Church, Noble, Iowa: Th Christmas White Gift offering of $165.74 was se to the M.C.C. for European relief. Dale Nebel, wh has been serving as director of the C.P.S. camp Three Rivers, California, has been discharged. H is looking forward to doing relief work in Chin

—Mennoville Church, ElReno, Oklahoma: We a next to the smallest congregation in the Conferen However, our attendance has more than doubled the last year. The offering for foreign relief, tak up at the Christmas program, amounted to for dollars. Sister Martha Burkhalter has visited also. We were blessed by her message. The collection we took was fifteen dollars.—Rev. Henry Funk.

—Apostolic Church, Trenton, Ohio: Rev. J. E. Amstutz preached on "Even As Christ Also Loved the Church" on the day we had our annual meeting. The covered dish dinner at noon was followed by a social hour and that by the business session. The church decided to continue with the 100 Per Cent Subscription Plan. After the meeting a number called on Mr. and Mrs. Albert Augspurger, who celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary.—Lydia A. Augspurger, Corr.

—Gnadenberg Church, Whitewater, Kansas: John P. Loewen, Canadian ministerial student at Bethel College, pointed out on a recent Bible study evening that the Bible is like a mirror into which we need to look each morning.

—Zion Church, Donnellson, Iowa: Rev. H. E. Nunemaker was again elected to serve the congregation another year. John Logos was elected, deacon; Stanley Lowenberg, church secretary; and Carmi Lowenberg, church treasurer.—Corr.

—Menno Church, Lind, Washington: We are happy for the installation of a "Spark" Oil Burner in the church furnace.—Mrs. Henry J. Franz, Corr.

—Rev. and Mrs. Elmer Dick and daughter Laverne Joyce set sail from Jersey City, on January 10, on the Swedish steamer, Gripsholm, which was used to repatriate interned peoples during the war. Their destination is Port Francqui in the Congo, Africa, where they will serve under the Congo Inland Mission Board, with which the General Conference Board of Foreign Missions has a working arrangement. Their route leads through the Mediterranean to Alexandria, where they disembark and travel inland by river boat, bus, and train to Port Francqui. Rev. R. L. Hartzler, Recording Secretary of the Congo Inland Mission Board, also reports that the Misses Anna Liechty, Selma Unruh, and Agnes Lutke may leave in the latter part of April.

—"The Value of C.P.S." was discussed by Rev. H. T. Unruh on a visit to the C.P.S. sidecamp at Buckingham, Colorado, on January 13. He pointed out that C.P.S. has: 1. Revolutionized the treatment of the mentally ill, 2. Helped preserve the ideal of democracy, 3. Taught us all to live on less and live more, 4. Taught the various Mennonite branches to cooperate. Rev. Unruh also suggested to the group that C.P.S. men ought to organize their own "American Legion" organization after the war. The men liked the idea.

BLANKETS URGENTLY NEEDED

A telegram received from the M.C.C., Akron, Pa., on January 25th reads:

Blankets and comforters urgently needed to meet present emergency situation displaced persons Europe. Overseas shipping space now available. Rush express to Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pennsylvania.—Mennonite Central Committee

—The number of subscriptions for the first issue of Mennonite Life far exceeded the number of copies printed. Copies from a second printing are to be mailed before February 1.

—The Mennonite churches of the Freeman, South Dakota, community had raised $14,882.97 by January 16 for flour and other needed foods for relief. A meat canning and clothing project is to be completed by March 1.

—Stirling Avenue Church, Kitchener, Ontario, is carrying on a campaign to have more people present at starting time. The pastor reports 50 per cent improvement. Church members are encouraged to give at least once monthly to relief. A men's brotherhood may be organized. Dr. P. C. Hiebert, Chairman of the M.C.C., is to speak February 4. The Missionary Committee is purchasing a twenty-eight-dollar bicycle for the use of evangelistic teams which go out from the Bible Training Institute in Janjgir, India. The church may send a delegation to the Eastern District Conference, which is to convene in Souderton, May 2-5. An older young people's group has been organized for an exchange of ideas on vital topics of mutual concern. A total of 120 young people attended camps last summer. Average Sunday School attendance last year was 240. The church has voted to give $150 to the Rockway Mennonite High School.

—The Hoffnungsau Church, Inman, Kansas, raised $18,767.41 last year. (This amount exceeds all others in the history of the church.) Four different classes engage in Bible study every Wednesday evening. Funeral services for H. F. Schmidt were held on January 23.—Mrs. J. V. Regier, Corr.

—Eden Church, Schwenksville, Pa. Attendance at the annual meeting New Year's night was about the same as it usually is on Sunday morning. A total of $4,102 for flour for relief had been given by January 1. Any surplus is to be used for the purchase of tools and utensils for relief. Fifty dollars has been given to Rev. Jacob H. Janzen for helping displaced Mennonites in Germany.

—Rev. Ward Shelly is now devoting his full time to the ministry. He has oversight of Springfield, Saucon, and Perkasie.

—Zion Church, Souderton, Pa., had a White Gift offering of over two thousand dollars.

—First Church, Nappanee, Indiana, recently had a question and answer period on a Sunday evening program. Members were encouraged to ask questions about the Bible or Christian experience. Questions were written out and handed in beforetime.

—The Third Quarterly Conference of the Eastern District will be held at Bethel Church, Perkasie, January 28. Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander is to give a paper on "Do Our People Know Our Conference?" The evening message is to be by a minister of the Schwenkfelder Church.

227 S. Pine

c. G. A. Linscheid
127 North Pine
Newton
Kansas

NOTIFIED

—First Church, McPherson, Kansas: Our bids for the two chapel buildings at Camp Phillips have been accepted, and the work of dismantling the buildings is about to begin. The building committee is planning the new church structure which should get under way by early spring. The ladies of the church met at the home of Mrs. Roland Goering a few weeks ago to mend and sort old clothes that had been given for relief. Some of the clothes will be sent to the mission station in India where Miss Martha Burkhalter is located, and the rest will be sent to Europe.—Mrs. Homer Kaufman, Corr.

—Bethel College Church: Our system of the support of the church and its benevolences is that of voluntary gifts on the part of the members and friends of the church. An increasing number are using the weekly envelopes for the support of the church. The deacons have arranged a schedule of offerings, assigning them to the various causes as follows: For Foreign Missions, 9; Church Maintenance, 12; Home Mission of the Western District, 2; Home Missions, Gen. Conf., 2; Relief, 8; Civilian Public Service Camps, 4; Publications Subscriptions, 2; Board of Education, 2; Education Com. W. D. Conf., 1; W. D. Church Building Fund 1; W. D. Treas., 1; Ministers' Aid Fund 1; General Conference Treas., 1; Bethel College 1; Mennonite Biblical Seminary, 1; Mutual Aid Board, 1; Church Building Fund, 1; Unassigned, 2.

—Summerfield, Illinois: Rev. A. S. Bechtel and family who recently moved here from Hanston, Kansas, were received into the fellowship of the First Church on January 20. We still have about eight young men in service. We expect that Orville Baer, who has been at the Denison C.P.S. Camp for over three years, will be discharged soon.—Joyce Basinger, Corr.

—First Church, Reedley, California: The Oratorio Society rendered Handel's Messiah on December 16th and at the Methodist Church in Kingsburgh on January 6. A Bethel College fellowship supper was enjoyed by a good assemblage of guests in the basement of the church on the evening of January 15. Several prospective and former students gave appropriate talks. The main speakers were: Rev. D. C. Wedel, president of the board of directors of the college, and Mr. Willis Rich, head of the public relations department. The occasion was unique, being the first Booster Banquet held off the Bethel College campus. January 24th is the time set for the Men's Brotherhood dinner. This is to be social night. January 29-30 Missionary H. J. Brown will be in our church to report on the China mission field. February 3-9 Rev. J. M. Franz, Minister-at-Large of the Pacific District Conference, will hold a series of meetings.—Mrs. R. Ewy, Corr.

—First Church, Nappanee, Indiana: Every family in the church will soon be receiving The Mennonite, for the church has adopted the 100 Per Cent Plan. Members gave a total of $8,389.36 in 1945. This was $250 more than in 1944 and averages 345.48 per church member, or about $83.89 per earning church member. Stanley Naylor was "high point man" in a church history test over a course taught by the pastor. On January 27 Rev. Wilmer Shelly told of his trip to Puerto Rico.

—First Church, Beatrice, Nebraska: On January 20 C.P.S. Unit No. 1 from Lincoln, Nebraska, gave a musical program for both churches at the Beatrice Mennonite Church.—Margaret Albrecht, Corr.

—First Church, Bluffton, Ohio: The yearly business meeting was well attended. Relief, church building improvements, and a home for the aged were among important problems discussed. J. N. Smucker was unanimously retained as pastor. Every church family will again receive The Mennonite.—Corr.

—Grace Church, Enid, Oklahoma: On January 6, Wesley Miller, Methodist C.O., told of his experiences under the semi-starvation program. The Mission Circle met on January 3rd and worked on a large quilt. Colds and the flu have reached into nearly every home. Eugene Paul is the new baby boy of Rev. and Mrs. Ben Rahn. In December Robert Bender from Akron, Pa., told us of M.C.C. work. —Mrs. J. T. Kliewer, Corr.

—Zion Church, Souderton, Pa., adopted the 100 Per Cent Subscription Plan at its annual congregational meeting. The average contribution per member last year was $46.10 for a membership of 563. The Peace Committee of the church reported donations exceeding five thousand dollars and over two tons of clothing contributed for relief. Elmer Ediger, Y. P. U. presidet, outlined the aims and activities of the Union at the regular session of the Church School on Sunday, January 20.

—Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: Erland Waltner, Pastor, plans to use his annual vacation time during the next few weeks for study purposes. Having arranged with Dr. A. Warkentin for the use of Chicago library facilities, he will be located at 3435 West van Buren Street, Chicago, Illinois, from January 22 to February 8.

—The Bible Conference of the Mountain Lake Bible School is planned for the week of February 3-8.

—Gospel Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake: Rev. August Ewert announced on January 20th that he had received a call from China to do relief work there. The Mission Board has informed him to be ready for a second cablegram form China. Such a message would probably mean an immediate departure form his family and congregation.—Elizabeth Lohrentz, Corr.

The Mennonite

VOL. LXI FEBRUARY 5, 1946 NO. 6

Photo, courtesy Doubleday, Doran and Company, Inc.

A Great Man

"Even when he was a young child the neighbors around Diamond, Missouri, recognized that George had a "magic way" with plants. They called him the Plant Doctor. . . . Although he had a special talent for painting, he decided that, if he were to help his people, he would need to do more than paint pictures; so reluctantly he put away his paints and brushes and went to Ames to study agriculture." (Turn to page three for an interesting story of George Washington Carver.)

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point-of-view:

RACE RELATIONS should be Christian first of all in the Church of Christ. If they aren't Christian there, how can we expect them to be Christian among those who don't profess loyalty to Him in whom there can be no division of race, nationality, or economic class? If the great majority of Christians had no racial prejudices, then undoubtedly there would not be much of a race problem in America. Dr. Edwin McNeil Poteat, President of Colgate-Rochester Divinity School, declared last December that public support of Christian racial attitudes "will not be developed except by those who see it as a moral priority of the first order." Here Dr. Poteat seems to suggest that discrimination against a member of another race should for the Christian be just as immoral as getting drunk or stealing. Dr. Poteat further said, "Before the Church can speak with moral authority, however, it must be confronted by its own complicity in the encouragement of race prejudice, and the practice of discrimination and segregation." Here he seems to suggest that before Christians can be filled with love for those of other races, they need to be emptied of the hostility that may be in their hearts by means of confession and repentance. Not a bad place to begin in the matter of race relations!

C.P.S. MEN in Puerto Rico have established such a witness of friendliness and helpfulness that the effect has made itself felt in the legislature of Puerto Rico. According to a report by E. Stanley Jones, who recently visited this island, the Puerto Rican legislature "voted $20,000 for each of the two camps which will remain (Mennonite and Brethren)—a very gracious tribute." Jones further says, "These camps have been a demonstration to the Puerto Rican church of the meaning of applied Christianity." According to Jones Munoz-Marin, the outstanding Puerto Rican leader, and the chancellor of a large university were, at the time of his stay in Puerto Rico, planning a visit to one of the C.P.S. units.

OUR GOVERNMENT'S ban on the shipment of relief supplies and mail into Germany is not in line with the Christian concept of feeding the enemy and of not seeking vengeance, and the government should, in view of this threat to future peace, make very clear just what its aims and strategies are. The National Lutheran Council has secured the permission of British authorities for the shipment of relief supplies into the British occupied zone of Germany, but the United States does not allow such an act in spite of the fact that its ally seems to be eager for it. Some of the most widely known church leaders of America have plead with the administration, but have been put off. An editor in answer to the question "Who is responsible for the relief run-around?" suggests that the finger points to President Truman, since he is the "highest authority." Christians, who are not pressure-minded, but who are constrained to witness of the light of God in them, should write to the President until he is overwhelmed by the witness to a God of love. If American Christians believe in such a God, then they ought to make it clear. "Ye shall be my witnesses."

THE UNITED CHURCH CANVASS, which is to be held February 17 to March 10 by many of the churches in nineteen different denominations, is something comparatively unfamiliar to most of us. This canvass is a time of widely observed religious emphasis, which according to reports has accomplished for the churches in many communities: increased church attendance, definite gains in financial support, and a quickened spiritual interest and awareness. A by-product of it is deepened interdenominational and interfaith fellowship. "In carrying through the plan locally, individual churches conduct their own separate fund-raising and loyalty campaigns. They cooperate, however, on a community-wide basis in observing the same dates for their campaigns and in carrying forward educational and promotional efforts, with the purpose of stressing the value of religion for both individual and community." Any Mennonite Church which may participate in this canvass is invited to report on its experience.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917 Authorized Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges to THE MENNONITE. North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE. NEWTON. KANSAS

George Washington Carver

By Leona Krehbiel

> With me, as you know, the great men come first, and the military heroes last. I call those men great who have distinguished themselves in useful or constructive pursuits; the others, who ravage and subdue provinces are merely heroes.—Voltaire

At the close of the Second World War we again witnessed the loud adulations according to military heroes by millions of ardent admirers. Such men receive the homage of the public while others, as George Washington Carver, who quietly pursue their work for the benefit of humanity live in comparative obscurity. However, if we measure a man's greatness by his useful and constructive contributions to society, we must recognize Mr. Carver as one of the truly great men of this century. He expended his talents in a lifelong effort to improve the conditions of the Southern farmer, white as well as black. His achievements, in promoting the welfare of mankind, stand in sharp contrast to the desolation, destruction, and death planned and wrought by the military heroes in our day. Mrs. Rackham Holt has written an instructive, understanding, and sympathetic biography (George Washington Carver, New York, Doubleday, Doran & Co., 1943, $3.50) of this great American. Yet, while reading it, we are always made aware of the color of this man's skin. The fact, that throughout the book such an irrelevant and unimportant matter must be stressed in order to show the handicaps under which he labored and their effect upon his character, is a sad reflection on the state of civilization in our country.

George was born to a slave mother during the Civil War. With his mother he was kidnapped by bushwackers, but was left behind by them later, probably because he was such a puny infant. He was taken into the home of Moses Carver who had owned his mother. Even when he was a young child the neighbors around Diamond, Missouri, recognized that George had a "magic way" with plants. They called him the Plant Doctor.

At the age of ten, George, who had a passion for knowledge, left his foster home to seek an education. Later when he thought he was ready for college, he applied for admission to Highland College, a small coeducational college in Kansas. His application was accepted, but upon his arrival he was informed that they did not admit "niggers."

In the fall of 1890 George enrolled in Simpson College at Indianola, Iowa, because it had an art department. Although he had a special talent for painting, he decided that, if he were to help his people, he would need to do more than paint pictures; so reluctantly he put away his paints and brushes and went to Ames to study agriculture. After his graduation in 1894 he became assistant botanist at the experiment station there.

Two years later he received an offer to come to Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute to head its Agricultural Department. Here in Alabama "the wasted lives and wasted lands that Mr. Carver saw everywhere called for his assistance." He devoted the rest of his life to the service of the farmers in that state and throughout the South. Although plants grown anywhere in the country could be grown here, the South depended solely upon one crop, cotton, for its livelihood. This one crop system kept the region in dire poverty. Dr. Carver by demonstrations at Tuskegee, in lectures and exhibits all over the South, and through an endless correspondence tried to induce the farmers to diversify their crops. His efforts brought meager results until the boll weevil invaded the South; then the farmers were forced to recognize the wisdom of his teaching.

Because Dr. Carver could not tolerate waste of any kind, he experimented with the materials and the plants which he found were neglected or wasted in his state. From them he made a great number of useful items. He consistently refused to commercialize on any of his products. As soon as the value of each new discovery had become obvious, he abandoned it.

By the time of his death on January 5, 1943, Dr. Carver had received many honors, all of which came to him entirely unsolicited. In 1916 he was elected fellow in the Royal Society of London, in 1923 he was awarded the Spingarn Medal for distinguished service in agricultural chemistry, and in 1939 he received the Roosevelt Medal for distinguished service in the field of science. Yet, all of his life he was subjected to slights and indignities because of his skin color. On his speaking tour to the colleges throughout the South, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., he found the doors of a number of the colleges closed to him, in others the students refused to shake his hand. At the hotels where he appeared before business men's associations he either had to carry his exhibits up several flights of stairs or take the freight elevator. On his travels he was forced to ride in dirty Jim Crow cars, and always he was confronted with the problem of finding a place to eat and sleep. He was not even allowed to drink at a public fountain. Crowds came to hear him and were charmed by him in spite of themselves. However, many Southerners preferred to do without his knowledge rather than admit that they had been helped by a Negro.

When some ministers asked him what they could do to better race relations he said frankly, "Your actions speak so loud I cannot hear what you are saying. You have too much religion and not enough Christianity—too many creeds and not enough performance. This world is perishing for kindness."

Science Also Says, "All of One Blood"

by Dale M. Stucky

In contemplating the problems presented by the physical forces of nature, we have long accepted the suggestions of scientists as authoritative. Our faith in the scientific method has been justified. Chemists, physicists, engineers and mathematicians have led us into a promising age of atomic power. Scientists have, all the while, understood that the Final Cause is ever just beyond their keen perception; and at the same time theologians have understood that, since God is Truth itself, anything which can be demonstrated by science to be true is a manifestation of God's purpose.

We have learned to use the scientific method to help reveal to us God's purpose with respect to things. but we are slow to learn to use this method to help reveal to us God's purpose with respect to people. The most gadget-ridden modern may be an enthusiastic amateur radio technician and may have at the same time medieval notions regarding social relations.

It is helpful for Christians to examine the problem of race relations as scientifically as possible. No doubt, the truth regarding race relations are all found in the Bible and in other religious writings. A scientific examination of the races of mankind may aid us, however, in understanding the truths found in the Scriptures.

Historians, sociologists, biologists, anthropologists and psychologists are all scientists who are able to tell us the truth regarding the races of mankind. What is the thing which these scientists tell us about the races of mankind? Students of the Bible well know the answer. The story of Adam and Eve, father and mother of the whole human race, told centuries ago the same truth that science has revealed today. That truth is all the peoples of the world are a single family and have a common origin. That truth is that all men are brothers.

All men have the same peculiar anatomy, the same intricate human body, the same kind and number of organs, muscles, bones, blood vessels and teeth. Missionary doctors who have studied medicine in America, a study based largely upon observations made of so-called white people, can diagnose and cure the blackest case in Africa. Medicine is the art of healing men. A doctor does not study a man as a member of a race; he studies him as a man. What few physical differences there are between people are purely accidental and fortuitous. Some people still distort the Bible by basing their ridiculous theory of racial superiority upon the story of Shem, Ham and Japhet. Such distortions should be exposed. The fact is that God made all people alike. They are all made in His own image and they were given a rational and spiritual nature like unto His. But more than that, He made them all the same physical color. The greatest adventure story in history is the spread of early man to all the corners of the globe. Those who settled near the equator developed a darker color skin than those who settled north of them. Isolated people developed peculiar physical characteristics. It is a scientific fact that if the fair people of our land were to live for centuries near the equator they would turn as black as any Negro.

The brothers of mankind are about the same height. Near the sources of the Nile the Negroes are six feet two inches while their black Pygmy neighbors are four feet eight. A six footer and a five footer could be native Italians for generations back. A report of the Selective System showed that registrants varied in height from four feet six inches to seven feet four inches. This represents the extremes of height found anywhere in the world. The best scientists cannot tell from examining a brain to what group of people the owner belonged. Neither could he discover their race by examining their blood. The brethren which are mankind have the same blood flowing in their veins. In addition, all of us have some of the chemical carotene and melanin which cause yellow and brown skin. We are all part yellow, part brown.

WHO ARE THEY

Leona Krehbiel, librarian at Bethel College, reads very widely and is much interested in the peace movement.

Dale M. Stucky, Mennonite lawyer of Wichita, Kansas, is a member of the Lorraine Avenue Church of that city.

Needs of C.P.S. Program Continue

In the summer of 1941 the constituent groups of the Mennonite Central Committee undertook the support of the Civilian Public Service program as a ministry to those of their number and others who would be drafted into work of national importance. The size and needs of the program expanded during the war period beyond all expectations, and the support given by the constituency in a moral and spiritual way, and in providing leaders, professional workers, and funds was gratifying indeed. However, now that the war has ended, there are indications of a feeling on the part of some that C.P.S. with its many needs is a thing of the past.

Those working in the program are concerned that the rate releases from C.P.S. be speeded up and that the program be concluded as soon as possible. Every effort is being bent in that direction. However, in spite of these efforts, there yet remained in Mennonite C.P.S. as of December 31 over 3,600 assignees out of a peak number of better than 4,200. These men remaining in C.P.S. continue to need the counsel and support of ministers who can come to them in the camps and units, especially now as they face the time of their release and return to the community. Ministers who are to give as much as two or three months, divided among several camps, could render a particularly effective service.

Assignees in the fifteen base camps still in operation continue to need the services of dietitians and trained nurses, and a number of the camps now lack such personnel. This situation is made acute by the fact that, with the end of the war, a number of such workers wished to take other jobs after serving in C.P.S. for several years or more.

Another need of the C.P.S. program is that of continued financial support. While releases have reduced total expenditures somewhat, it has not been possible to reduce greatly the number of camps and units in operation. Total contributions for the month of December failed by $26,000 to meet the expenditures for that month, which amounted to about $61,000.

It has often been said of Mennonites that when a need is presented, the response is automatic. It is with the assurance of this fact that these concerns are presented. To complete the task started five years ago and to finish the C.P.S. program "on a strong note" will require faithful service by our C.P.S. men to the very end, and the renewed efforts of all of us in this final phase.

Via M.C.C. Headquarters, Akron, Pennsylvania.

A tiger cannot mate with an elephant; even a fox and a wolf cannot mate with each other. Whenever groups of people have traveled from place to place and met other people, they have, however, married and had children. This fact is of great significance, because it shows why every country has a population and why no country has a race. No one has been able to show that "race" mixture is bad. In fact it has sometimes been a social advantage. Sensible and Christian people will avoid making it a social evil by refusing to grieve if their children make such alliances.

Racial superiority is non-existent. A "race" does not have an inherent character. A race does not have a nature. Only man has a nature and all men have the same nature. Furthermore, progress in civilization is not the monopoly of one race or the other. The great inventions of mankind came from all races.

We have examined the races of mankind from the scientific point of view and have found that all men truly are brothers. Thus science re-discovers the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

How can we tolerate anti-Semitism, segregation, discrimination? Such attitudes are the result of ignorance and fear and show a failure to understand the teachings of Christ. We must substitute aggressive good-will and Christian love for the fear which is causing us to hate our brothers.

BLANKETS URGENTLY NEEDED

Says Telegram

A telegram received from the M.C.C., Akron, Pa., on January 25th reads:

Blankets and comforters urgently needed to meet present emergency situation displaced persons Europe. Overseas shipping space now available. Rush express to Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pennsylvania.—Mennonite Central Committee

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

Mennonites in a Prisoner of War Camp. Some of the Mennonites of the Ukraine were taken along with the retreating German Army and later drafted. When the Allies invaded Germany some of them were taken prisoner by the American Army, brought to this country, and are now located in a Prisoner of War Camp in North Carolina. They have contacted relatives in Canada.

A Mennonite Writer. Arnold Dyck has just published a second volume of Verloren in der Steppe. Under this title he relates the common everyday life of a boy who was born and reared on the shores of the Dnieper River. The books are enhanced by appropriate illustrations by the author and will be enjoyed in every Mennonite home where German is read. These books, the product of real art, will survive much that has been written by Mennonite authors.

Buried Alive. The large cities of Germany are reported to be cemeteries in a double sense. Thousands of homes have been buried in rubble and along with them the inhabitants of the homes. This is especially evident, even from a distance, on the scent of the breeze when the weather moderates.

"If Only Somebody Knew How!" A Mennonite boy (who is an American soldier in occupied Germany writes "Most of the Germans seem very anxious to get to work on the road back. Many are openly asking for a chance to make good . . . with a little careful guidance the new thought can be directed toward a very helpful and humane future Germany. I am quite afraid we are losing our second chance to use our popular appeal. . . America means almost everthing that is beautiful, rich, and free to Europeans. We could do a lot with our prestige if only somebody knew how." ("The Mountain Lake Observer")

Packages to the Mennonites in Denmark should not contain any food, according to latest reports. Food is removed from such packages after arrival and only the other items reach the addressee. The Danish government furnishes two thousand calories a day per person which is considered to be sufficient. Clothing, shoes, etc., however, are handed to the addressees. C. F. Klassen will soon be able to furnish lists of the Mennonites in Denmark to those who have relatives there.

Karl Barth and "Heil Hitler." Karl Barth, a renowned theological thinker of our day and influential in the resistance movement of the European churches to Hitler, announced one morning in 1934 to his students at the University of Bonn, "It has just been announced that all classes should open with the official greeting 'Heil Hitler'. God whose Word we are studying in this class is the highest authority, and I will not substitute Him for any other authority. If that means persecution, the first Christians, too, were persecuted." Barth continued to open his sessions with short devotions and was soon expelled from the university and returned to his native Switzerland.

Karl Barth back in Germany. The Word of God taught and preached by Barth could not be quenched. It was the source of inspiration and strength to many, including a number of Mennonites, who fought neo-paganism under Hitler. Now Barth is back in Germany and is supposed to lecture at the Russian-sponsored University of Berlin.

Mennonites from Brazil report good economic progress. Their schools have been nationalized and are taught by native Brazilians. Language: Portugese. Church services are conducted in Portugese and Low German. For these and other reasons they wonder whether it would not be better to join their relatives in Canada. They urgently invite Canadian visitors.

Berlin Celebrated New Year's Eve with selections from Strauss' Fledermaus. At the lines ". . . Dass ich sehe, wer mich besiegt Und wer meine Uhr gekriegt!" the audience roared because nothing illustrated conditions in Berlin better than that. Only the Russians, who have the habit of appropriating any watch they can lay their hands on, did not think it was at all funny. (Time)

A Mennonite Paradise in Canada. More and more the Frazer Valley in British Columbia has become an attraction for the Russian Mennonites from the prairie provinces, with Yarrow and Sardis as centers. Yarrow produces raspberries, strawberries. other fruit and potatoes. The Yarrow Growers' Co-operative Union processes the fruit and sells it on the market. In 1943, 230 barrels (400 lbs. per barrel) were shipped out.

I Was Enhungered and Ye Gave Me Meat. During October and November, 1945, the various Mennonite Churches and communities of the United States contributed 40 carloads of wheat, flour, beans, corn, and raisins. It is estimated that the total for the United States and Canada will be approximately 110 carloads. The home-processed food will exceed 800,000 quarts for relief and Civilian Public Service.

A Great War Casualty. C. F. Klassen found Dr. Benjamin Unruh, the man who has spent the best years of his life between the two World Wars to relieve the suffering of the Mennonites of Russia, in the home of his parents-in-law in South Germany tutoring in English. He had lost considerable weight and could hardly be recognized. But the greatest loss was the disappearance of the large archives concerning the relief work and much other valuable material. Indeed a great loss for the Mennonites everywhere!

Material appearing under "Home Missions" is contributed by A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary of the Home Mission Board, Quakertown, Pa.

Not One Dull Moment . . .

by Jacob H. Janzen

(The following is an intimate glimpse into the daily life of one of the home mission workers, Rev. Jacob H. Janzen, who is pastor of the Kitchener, Waterloo United Mennonite Church, Waterloo, Ontario. Brother Janzen is also a prolific writer.)

As for me, well, I usually sleep during the night, —and I am glad to say that I still can sleep well during most of the nights—rise in the morning, work at my desk, do my part in taking care of my sick wife, work some more, eat my meals in between, preach on Sundays, conduct funerals, marry people, serve intermittingly in other churches, occasionally attend conference sessions, write articles and books, and as early as possible, at night, I retire to rise again in the morning to work at my desk and so on and on. . . . Not a dull moment in all my life.

At 9 a.m. the mail comes in. So many letters, periodicals, advertisements, brand new poetry, religious philosophy (some not so religious) that I cannot read one quarter of it all! But every sender expects me to take his views, suggestions, criticism, and occasional praise very seriously. I do!—I assure you, I do!

But I would have to employ two private secretaries to reply to every writer individually; and if I could comply with every suggestion—what a mess my work would turn out to be!

I try to overlook nothing. The advertisements and the petitions from humanitarian organizations and from different missions outside of our own Conference I take with me to church, distribute them among the readers, asking them to report on such cases as must be considered and dealt with.

I do my best to keep up my correspondence with some pertinent question concerning their spiritual life, but even they must often wait for a long time before I am able to react to their letters.

Often I let them pile up until I have enough questions on hand for an article in our papers, and then I reply to all those letters in one article, or, if the subject is too big to deal with in such an article, I even publish a pamphlet by means of my mimeograph.

My "Ebenfeld" stories were written as an answer to such personal questions. They constitute an effort to deal with questions which, at one time or another, have actually been put to me, i.e. with life itself.

Whoever gives his answers publicly must, of course, be prepared for the attacks which will be made on him by those who have a different answer to these questions. A writer is like unto a man who lives in a glass house; everybody not only sees but also observes him and has his comments to make.

Maybe I have uttered a phrase on the "Second Chance" or the final restoration of every being, including the devil, to God, the Sabbath-day Commandment, etc., and the blows come in by mail, thick and fast.

It is very helpful to get these blows, although I know of things which are more pleasant. Such letters force me to consider every question from all sides. But, in a way, they, also, make me a little harsh, if not rude. If you have to be on your guard day and night and have to be ready to defend yourself and your views, you simply have no time to smooth off every harshness in your replication, and as far as my liking is concerned, I like the straight, if even a little rough, fellow better than the sneak.

Then there are the anonymous letters, the worst of them with a typewritten signature to let you know who hates you so bitterly but at the same time to be careful not to make the writer responsible for the pasquinade which he sends you with the sole purpose in mind to hurt as terribly as possible.

The good thing about such letters is that you do not have to react to them. I collect them into a volume to be published after my death, and that volume, I think, will make very good reading.

The bad part is, that I have to read these letters and waste time on them. But, perhaps, that time is not wasted. Whether you like it or not, it is good for you to look at yourself from time to time through the eyes of your embittered, relentless enemy.

It seems that such letters are also a part of current Mennonite history which I like to study, both bright and dark sides. That made me write my "Tales from Mennonite History" and to translate them into the English. Now I am condensing and translating my "Ebenfeld" stories into one single story of educational value. The Lord willing, the translation of "People at Large" (Wanderndes Volk) will follow shortly.

My latest works are, a catechism on Biblical Knowledge (Bibelkunde) in German, and "A Contribution to the Controversy over the Doctrine of All-Salvation or the Restoration of All Things."

I, know I put my foot in that way, and they are going to step on my corns. Well, that's all in the trade. I feel constrained very often to step up in defence of our old principles of faith, if they are not of the kind which form a part of "our vain conversation handed down from our fathers" (I Peter 1:18).

I hereby wish to thank the Conference and the Home Mission Board and my many reading friends for their good efforts to keep me alive. As long as I live, I shall do, by the Grace of God, my work to HIS Glory, and if blows must come, I shall try to take them humbly and quietly. Yours in the Lord, Jacob H. Janzen

Foreign Missions

Material appearing under "Foreign Missions" is contributed by P. H. Richert, Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions Route 2, Newton, Ks.

INSPECTION TRIP TO AFRICA

All mission boards find it necessary from time to time to send an inspector to the mission field.

The Congo Inland Mission Board is about ready to send their Secretary Rev. C. E. Rediger and Mrs. Rediger to their mission field in Africa, which of late has also become our mission field. Four of our missionaries went there last year, and two are on the way since January 10th, namely Bro. and Sister E. J. Dick. This makes Brother and Sister Rediger in a way also our inspectors, and we wish them God's speed on the way and for the whole undertaking. As most of the readers know, our General Conference and the Congo Inland Mission Board have joined hands on this field, where the work progresses well and is fruitful. Our General Conference Board is also planning to send a board member as inspector to all our fields in India, China and America. He would very likely be on the way by this time if the restless conditions in China did not make a trip there at this time inadvisable, as our representative in China, Missionary S. F. Pannabecker cabled us recently the second time. We cannot even send Missionary August Ewert to his aid in China, as he asked us, and Brother Ewert has consented to go. He only waits now for another cable telling him to come. Let all mission friends pray for all these undertakings so that the workers on the field may be encouraged and the native churches may also be strengthened. Brother R. L. Hartzler, Recording Secretary of the C.I.M. some time ago sent the following information to us, which we now publish at this time, when the inspection trip is about to begin. The hope was to go earlier, but war conditions evidently prevented this:

C.I.M. BOARD TO SEND REPRESENTATIVE TO THE FIELD

Foreign missionary boards have found by experience that it is a fruitful practice to send periodically some representative of the home board to visit the mission field. Some have indeed found this so helpful that they aim to send out such a representative about every five years.

The Congo Inland Mission Board has not felt itself in a position to operate on any such schedule, though recognizing that large benefits accrue to all concerned by so doing. In fact, throughout the history of our Congo mission, only one such representative has visited the field (in 1928-29). Feeling that now such contact should again be made, the C.I.M. Board voted at its annual meeting on April 10, to "send a representative to the field by the early fall if possible," and asked Rev. C. E. Rediger to act as such representative.

Traveling to and from Congo is still fraught with many uncertainties, but it was felt that a tentative time for leaving should nevertheless be set, and steps taken toward that end.

A number of factors converge at this time, causing the Board to feel justified in taking such action. For one thing, as suggested above, it has always been found a great advantage from the angle of the board and of the field, to have someone on the board who has personally viewed the work and conditions on the field, and who can accordingly approach problems as they arise, from the respective points of view of both the field and the home constituency. For a number of years there has been no one on the home board who was able to do this.

Moreover, war conditions have made it necessary to extend greatly our missionaries' terms of service, with the result that it has been a long time since most of them were privileged to have personal contact and fellowship with anyone from the home church or board. How long it will be until this condition will change, we can not tell. Even then they will need to take turns at more or less extended intervals; in order that the work may not suffer. Since they cannot come to us, this is one way in which we may go to them.

Finally, missionary leaders are already talking about the almost certain prospect that the Congo will experience a great incursion of western commercial activity in the post-war era. In view of such likelihood, it is highly expedient that such a representative visit the field at this time. To meet such a new and challenging situation, some long range planning will be necessary on the part of the mission and of the board. To do this most effectively, it is essential that all concerned have the clearest possible view of both the present and the future. By such a visit to the field the prospect of successfully formulating such plans should be materially enhanced.

The Board realizes that in undertaking to carry out such a venture at this time means facing many uncertainties and the need of adequate financial support for this purpose. To this end it entreats the earnest prayers and gifts of the brotherhood.

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Verney Unruh
Vice President
Ruth Ewert
Secretary-Treasurer

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

Worship and Study in the Church

by Mary Becker

THIS IS THE SECOND in a series of four articles written by Mary Becker summarizing her findings on young people's activities in churches in the Western District Conference. This article centers on the subjects of Worship and Study in the Church program of activity. Next week a discussion of the Social and Recreational activity will be presented.

For the most part the survey centers around the five areas of the Christian education curriculum: Worship, study, social and recreational, personal Christian living, and service. Other service of the church to its youth and participation in community and church-related organizations are also briefly discussed.

In regard to the Sunday morning worship service the observation is made that the Mennonite churches as such have thus far not had to cope with the problem of how to get the young people to come to this service. In most communities it is still the tradition that the family attend church unless sickness or bad weather and roads make it impossible. In some churches the service is not conducive to a real worship experience due to various factors. The young people are aware of this, for they remark about the difference a systematic order of service and good music make in creating a worshipful atmosphere, that environment helps or hinders, etc.

Regarding the Sunday evening worship service the questionnaires reveal that twelve churches have such services every Sunday; two, three Sundays a month; seven, every two weeks; four, once a month; eighteen, occasionally; one, never; and five, no report. These services are specifically designed for the young people every Sunday in six churches and to some extent in two more; every two weeks in two; once a month in two; occasionally in twenty-one; and never in five. The methods by which the young people share most frequently are by rendering special music, singing in the choir, and in several churches reading the Scripture lesson occasionally. Twelve pastors report that the young people plan and conduct the entire service occasionally, the number of times ranging from once or twice a year to once or twice a month. Other methods of sharing used by some young people are the sponsoring of sacred concerts, visiting ministers, the showing of films, and the sponsoring of mission programs.

The discussion on Study deals with the Sunday School, Christian Endeavor, and the midweek service even though some of these cannot be classified strictly in this area. Vacation church schools, weekday Bible classes, extended sessions, Bible clubs, etc., should find a place here, but very little is done for the young people of the churches studied along these lines.

The study of the Sunday School reveals a number of lacks: teacher problem, lack of equipment and efficient organization, failure to win the pupil to Christ and really make a lasting impression on him.

Nine of the churches realize the need for teachers' training and are providing short and concentrated courses of one or several weeks or weekly lessons over a longer period of time, or they are taking advantage of such courses offered in the community. It seems, however, that few teachers realize their need, for the number availing themselves of this training is exceedingly small. A few churches report regular teachers' meetings at which the lesson for the coming Sunday is discussed and teaching helps are given. For the most part meetings like these are of only comparatively little value.

The following are some of the statistics gathered from the questionnaire about the status of Mennonite Sunday Schools: Almost half of the churches (21) report between 90 and 100 per cent attendance of the young people of the church (of those at home in the community). The rest, with the exception of one, report approximately 75 per cent. As to Sunday School procedure it is found that all of the Sunday Schools have opening services from ten to twenty minutes in length. These, instead of being real worship services, it is feared may in many churches be only "opening exercises" which all too often are of little value except to latecomers. All except three report a closing service, ranging from five to fifteen minutes. Farmers and housewives make up the bulk of the teachers, which is as it should be in a rural church, if they are truly devoted to the task and are qualified to teach. Business men, grade school teachers, and ministers also rank high. Educationally, the average enjoy high school and some college training with smaller numbers in the upper and lower brackets.

The choice of the teacher is left to the young people themselves in practically all of the churches Where this is not made from a list of nominees approved by a Sunday School committee, it may lead to the selection of someone who is popular but who is not qualified to teach. Some of the young people reveal an awareness of the lack of qualification on the part of the teacher. It must be said that there is no excuse for not putting forth strenuous efforts to secure the best and most effective Sunday School teaching, especially when only an hour is devoted to Sunday School, qualifications for the teachers being in order of importance: knowing God, knowing the subject matter, the child, and the method.

The Christian Endeavor societies of the Western District in general are perhaps the most active groups in the district. The strength and activity of many of them can probably be attributed to the active district organization in the Christian Endeavor Convention which enlists the individual societies in working on various projects chosen at the annual meeting. As was seen above, most of the churches have at least one Christian Endeavor group, usually a General or Senior Christian Endeavor. Some have, in addition, one or two graded groups which usually alternate with the above. Two churches report four different age groups, strictly graded. On the average the attendance as reported is good. The types of programs used most frequently are topical, musical, and special speakers or a mixture of the suggested types. Some of the young people themselves feel that their group meetings are not as meaningful as they might be.

The midweek service does not find the place in most of the churches that it might have. Thirty-five report having such a service (six throughout the year, sixteen during the winter months, six at intervals, and seven at special seasons), but only eight have a division for young people, which in some cases includes children. Some that have a special division for young people report excellent attendance, bus at a whole the attendance is very low, nineteen of the thirty-five reporting less than 50 per cent of young people attending, some less than 25 per cent.

An Amish Brush Marine

The story is related at Belton that a husky young Amish assignee transferring West was approached on the train by a soldier who noticed his beard and different manner of dress. The soldier, apparently accustomed to seeing many varieties of uniforms and beards, asked the young Amishman what his branch of the service might be. Having been on a blister rust control crew in an Eastern camp, the Amishman with a flash of wit replied, "I am a brush marine."

The soldier asked what those were. With a surprised look, the Amishman said, "Do you mean to say you haven't heard of the brush marines?" The soldier passed on, not wishing to display further his lack of knowledge.

"...for All Come Short of the Glory of God"

The Christian religion has clustered around it, unfortunately, folk with odd ideas and attitudes. Some look upon religion as a refuge where they can escape from a world they can't face; others, through religion, seek escape from themselves; still others seem to think religion is for the purpose of self-exaltation; or they use it to put their judgment on the heads of other people, or religion makes them feel good inside (that being all it does), and there are many other ways in which religion has been misused.

The Christian faith, in its basic true sense, does not contain these distortions. One of the first things the Christian faith does for us is to give us an insight into or understanding of our own nature—what we are in the eyes of God. We have, as it were, a measuring stick by which we can measure ourselves and discover where we are. We discover, in reading the Bible, that man is a sinful creature, that sin is a very real thing, and that salvation means salvation from our sinful selves. This immediately means, as our Anabaptist forebears have emphasized, that salvation is a process as well as an event. That is, we first see ourselves as we truly are and confess our sinfulness and shortcomings, and we affirm our faith in God whom Christ revealed to us. Then comes what Anabaptists saw in the Scripture—we must live the faith that we profess. To live that faith requires of us both stern self-discipline and a spirit of humble repentance.

Christ spoke harshly to the Pharisees because of their self-righteousness and self-esteem. For an example of a Godly man, He did not point to the man who praised God because he was not like these others. Rather, He pointed to the man on his knees in the temple who was suffering in spirit and beating his breast, crying, "Oh God, forgive me a sinner." Christ taught that contriteness of heart and humbleness of spirit was virtuous. Vain glory, selfishness, and a high opinion of one's self was to be despised.

If we can humble ourselves to the point where we can see ourselves as lowly and full of shortcomings, we are on the road to shining victory. For such humbleness of spirit opens our lives to God's love and goodness. It is then that we become teachable, for our hard-heartedness has melted away. It is then that God's love becomes meaningful to us and we can radiate the spirit Christ taught was Godly.

Pres. Truman said the sermon on the mount is the pattern for the new age in his Christmas address.

What a Year Brings Forth

So many and so varied are the events which have occurred in recent years, it becomes impossible to keep abreast of all that is happening. As a matter of fact, events occur so rapidly that it becomes difficult for us to evaluate them and know just what to think of them. In order for us to keep proper attitudes and a proper spirit, this becomes important.

Events in World Affairs

To survey briefly events, let us look at those which occurred in 1945 alone. There was the collapse of Germany after six years of unprecedented horror and war; the Japanese surrender and the war's end in the Far East. The deaths of Mussolini, Roosevelt and Hitler, three men who led nations through this disaster that overtook mankind. Also came the defeat of Winston Churchill and the taking over of British government by the Labor party.

There was also the San Francisco Conference and the establishment of the United Nations Organization. The Potsdam Conference and the partition of Germany as well as the doom of thousands of displaced people was decided.

But, overshadowing all this is the atomic bomb.

Scientific Developments

In other than political areas much occurred which ordinarily would have been heralded by all newspapers. Four new elements have been discovered increasing the number of known elements from 92 to 96.

Three new comets called du Toit III, du Toit IV and Friend-Peltier, after their discoverers, turned up. But, more important a nova or new star was discovered in the constellation Aquilla, the Eagle. It is eighty thousand times brighter than our sun. Two shells of matter ejected from it are moving at the speed of 1300 and 800 miles a second.

Another new star was discovered in a spiral nebula, Messier 51. It is 100 million times brighter than our sun.

Medicine also made new strides. A new method of treating stomach ulcers was developed; a new virus that causes pneumonia was discovered; new information on the body use of sugar has been gathered which may be significant for diabetic cases; streptomycin has been discovered and its importance rates along with penicillin. And even hearts were successfully transplanted in warm-blooded animals for the first time in medical history.

Radar's abilities and its contribution to the development of television has been announced. New methods of forecasting weather have been developed with special electronic devices.

The World Faces a Decision

And so goes a long list of discoveries and inventions which have taken place. What is their significance? Obviously they bode either good or evil to mankind according to the way men use them. God gave them to men to be used just as He gave the earth, its plant and animal life for men's use. He also gave men the freedom to choose how they would use this remarkable fund of knowledge man has accumulated.

At present, above all else stands the atomic bomb in the minds of men. Scientists have actually become concerned over the way their discoveries are used. Mr. Waldemar Kaempffert states in The New York Times, "So appalled were the physicists (at the effect of the atomic bomb) that they banded themselves into a federation which has been prodding Congressional committees into a realization of what it means to release energy from the atom for good and evil. For the first time science has been shocked into an awareness of the social consequences of its discoveries. It is now either cooperation or vaporization, the millennium or destruction, or, as Louis Adamic puts it, 'one world or no world'."

Never before has there been such frequent reference to Armageddon, the Day of Judgment, the Millennium in the daily newspapers and in magazines. Repeated reference is made to the fact that man stands at the crossroads as never before. Here he can make his decision which will spell doom or glory—it is put in an either-or framework.

And of what significance is all this to the Church of Christ? What significance shall we place on these amazing developments as they apply to our own lives as people devoted to Christ as our Lord and Master?

It spells opportunity. Men of faith need never fear. Much of the talk today stems from deep-seated fear of what may occur. Only in calmness and quietness can we hope to find the solution to today's maze of problems. Too often our action has been motivated by fear. In the calm of fearless outlook and action, the love of God which motivates us will do its work. In such a spirit alone can we hope to serve as guides to groping men. In our service to men, be it on the mission or relief field, in camp, or at home, that within us will shine forth. In a day such as ours, the love of Christ and His way of forgiveness and redemption, needs all the more to shine forth. It is our opportunity to let it reach out to others! —E.L.

A Novel for Young People

SMOKE JUMPER

by Marjorie Hill Allee
Illustrated by Manning de V. Lec
Boston, Houghton Mifflin, 1945
160 pp., $2.00

In a day when violent action is a commonplace instead of a shock and when a dozen factual reports in the newspaper contain more drama than the most inventive blood-and-thunder novelist can cram into a romance, a book for young people in which action is both exciting and constructive is of especial value. When, in addition, a character is shown developing, the book is truly to be welcomed.

All this Marjorie Hill Allee's latest—and, tragically, her last—book has, and more. Smoke Jumper is the story of a boy in the Forest Service. The youngest in a smoke jumper squad, he is, when the story opens, still untested. Trained for the work and eager to prove himself, Bill is suffering from frustration and in consequence shows signs of retreating into a shell of self-absorption. His awareness of his fellows has dwindled to two older men: one whom he admires and one whom he dislikes and resents. With both of them he deals through day dreams. At this point an emergency call comes in, and the three of them, Bill, Walt, his hero, and the Kid, who he thinks is scornful of him, are flown to a distant mountain and dropped onto a fire.

The account of the parachute jump is vivid and exciting. All the details of landing—in a tree— are of compelling interest. Though because of its novelty this might be the high point of the book, there is no let-down afterwards. The felling of a snag, a dangerous operation that many professional lumbermen refuse to undertake, is described with full effect, and all the work and the smoke and the fatigue of fighting forest fires. Yet though the subject is squeezed for all there is in it, it is never overstrained. The boy, Bill, comports himself well, and in so doing manages that difficult shift of focus from self to the world outside which is so essential a part of the maturing process. Awareness of the physical world comes first. "Yesterday morning the heat had walled him off in that queer way from everything around him, so that neither work nor other people were as real to him as his day dreams. Today he had been in touch every minute with his surroundings." That is just the beginning. By the end of the book he has made his adjustments to the other men, he has won the quiet self-confidence that comes with responsibility well met, and he has gone beyond the need for the praise that at first seemed so important to him.

The story is well written. The personality of the boy is real and likable, and the other men and the girl warden who gives the tale a pleasant turn are sketched in broad outlines and clear colors. The forest and the mountains are suggested with a skilled touch that does not clog the action with description, and the philosophy behind it shines through and leaves, when one is finished, an impression of wholesome, constructive, objective living.

Elizabeth Janet Gray

Editor's Note: The author of this book, a member of the Society of Friends, was interested in writing novels with the purpose of presenting in them persons of noble character and with vision and ideals. Her numerous novels for young people all carry that emphasis. A personal item might be of interest, Mrs. Allee's daughter Barbara became well acquainted with the Mennonite church during her two year's service with the Institute of International Relations at Bethel College.

Of Interest to Youth

Sixty-four per cent of the public goes to religious services at least once a month, according to the National Opinion Research of Denver University. Forty-two per cent attend services at least once a week and 16 per cent say they never go to church. Catholics are the most regular church-goers. Sixty-nine per cent say they attend services at least once a week. Of Protestants, 36 per cent attend once a week. Nine per cent of Jews attend synagogue once a week. Negroes go to church more often than white people and farmers exceed city people in attendance. People in the South are the most regular church goers while the Rocky Mountain and Pacific states residents attend least—26 per cent never attend in this region.

The United Christian Youth Movement is offering eight college scholarships to young people between the ages of sixteen and twenty-four. In addition, twenty-four other winners will receive scholarships to the summer regional planning conferences of the movement. The awards will be made to outstanding young people of Protestant denominations on the basis of Christian character and service, and on an essay to be written on "The Meaning of the Christian Faith in My Community."—The Christian Century.

The Agricultural Missions organization is conducting a campaign to raise $250,000 to be used to send agricultural experts to mission fields abroad. Numerous requests have come in from all quarters of the globe begging for trained personnel to rehabilitate village and rural life. A program of training natives of the regions as well as sending out experts is underway.

Young people in seventeen churches of the Church of the Brethren in the Northeastern Kansas district decided to raise $1,800 in three weeks to buy a district campsite. With a contribution from each of the churches, they exceeded their goal by $170.

RELIEF

Food Shipments to Europe

During the past month 9,450 quarts of chicken and 10,000 pounds of dried milk have left New York for France. Holland will also be soon receiving several large shipments of food. Two ships which left New York harbor on January 15 and 22 carried the following: 80,412 pounds of dried beans and potatoes, 55,038 quarts of canned beef, chicken, fruits and vegetables, and 1,650 bushels of corn.

Membership in C.A.R.E.

By action at the Annual Meeting, December 29, the M.C.C. became a member of the Cooperative for American Remittances to Europe, Inc. (C.A.R.E.) CARE is a non-profit organization being set up with the approval of the President's War Relief Control Board for the purpose of handling individual remittances as well as material package forwardings from individuals in the United States to designated individuals in the foreign countries, especially Europe. In short, the organization is to provide a sort of mail-order service whereby the greatest amount of food can be sent across to an individual with the least amount of trouble and expense.

According to the proposed plan, one desiring to send a food package to a friend or relative in Europe would send a check or money order with the recipient's address to Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pennsylvania. The address would be forwarded to CARE who would deliver the package personally or by parcel post. It is planned that packages will at first be made up in the States; later on, food will be bought and transported in bulk to Europe where any necessary packaging will be done. In case the recipient could not be found, the donor would be reimbursed by CARE.

The plan is not yet in operation, so do not send remittances; you will be informed through this column as soon as remittances may be made.

Clothing Distribution in Holland

"Today I felt as if I were back in school with so many children's voices around, and the excitement of clothing then ran as high as if it were the last day of school before the Christmas holidays in the States. Siegfried Janzen and Elma Esau brought up the first group of "Volksherstal" children about ten o'clock this morning, and we were busy until about twelve-thirty fitting them in shoes, socks, undies, dresses or suits, and out-of-door garments. Many of these children today were Jewish, we were informed, but one certainly could never have told it from outward characteristics, and one never thought of it as one looked into their starry eyes and read the joy that the garments were giving them. 'Hee' Prettige!' or 'Dat is mooi!' 'Goed, goed!' and chatter that we could not catch or follow are the rewards of clothing distribution."—Ruth Hilty.

Rehabilitation in Bengal

While awaiting authorization to proceed in China, Lawrence Burkholder assisted in several rehabilitation projects in India. The following excerpt from one of his letters is indicative of one of the problems met by relief workers in India:

"In general rehabilitation is difficult because of the absence of honesty and initiative. The ordinary Bengali wants enough to eat and that is all. Some of us are of the opinion that if the Bengali people were at least honest a remarkable recovery would be possible in so short a time as five years. As it is the government and relief agencies can pour into Bengal any amount of money for rehabilitation and There will be little change. Those of us who have had a year in this Province have seen just what happens when dishonesty on such a vast scale, all kinds of controls, bureaucracy, checks and red tape are necessary. What Bengal needs most is a moral sense and it seems that Hinduism cannot supply this need. In short, Bengal needs Christ."—J. Lawrence Burkholder.

Jacob D. Goering, former director of North Fork camp, is beginning his new assignment as assistant to the Director of Relief, J. N. Byler.

C. P. S.

Additional Releases in February

Assignees with two children who have served at least two years by February 28, 1946, will be eligible for release during the month of February according to a recent announcement from Washington. The new ruling will affect sixty-five men in Mennonite units. Also to be released in February are all those who have completed three years of service by June 30, 1945.

January releases are proceeding according to schedule. Now being released are assignees with three or more children and those who completed three years of service by April 30, 1945.

C.P.S. Unit For Livestock Boats

Plans are under way for the use of several hundred C.P.S. men as attendants on livestock boats going to Europe. Although detailed plans have not been received at the M.C.C. headquarters, it is understood that the men will be drawn from Mennonite, Brethren, and Friends camps and that the unit will be restricted to assignees who were inducted between June 16, 1943, and June 15, 1944.

Ten Favorite Bible Chapters

As might be expected of C.P.S. men, the fifth chapter of Matthew was their first choice in the recent poll to determine the ten favorite Bible chapters of assignees in Mennonite units. The other nine selections, in order of preference were: I Corinthians 13, Psalm 23, Romans 12, Matthew 6, Romans 8, John 14, Matthew 7, John 3, and Isaiah 53. The idea for the poll was borrowed from the Army poll to determine the forty favorite chapters of members of the armed forces. Five of the C.P.S. choices are also found among the first ten choices of the armed forces, but not in the same order of preference. Psalm 23 was the first choice of the armed forces. C.P.S. Briefs

A new M.C.C. unit was opened on January 15 at the Roseburg Veterans Hospital, Roseburg, Oregon. This is a 25-man unit and the second such unit to be opened recently under Mennonite administration, the other being at a veterans hospital for tubercular patients at Livermore, California. Roseburg is a mental institution.

Farnhurst, Delaware hospital assignees contributed $500 to War Sufferers' Relief in a special Christmas holiday collection.

IN MEMORIAM

Edward Reinhard was born near Locle, Switzerland, May 14, 1863. At first a member of the Reformed Church, he joined the Mennonite Church at Pulaski, Iowa, when he came to America in 1885. In 1887 he moved to Washington and became a charter member of the First Church, Colfax, when it was organized in 1893. He was married in 1910. Death came on January 7, 1946. He is survived by his wife.

Henry H. Harms was born in Michalin, Russia, on March 27, 1862, and passed away at the Bethel Hospital, Newton, January 10, 1946. When twelve he migrated with his parents to Kansas. Here in 1882 he became a member of the Gnadenberg Church. In 1887 he married Elizabeth Klaassen. She passed away in 1905. In 1912 he married Anna Unruh who became stepmother to his family of nine children. She and the following children now survive him: Leonard, Newton; Emil, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada; Paul, Drake, Saskatchewan, Canada; Theodore, Wellington; Isaac, Whitewater; Valentine, Newton; William, Marion; and Henry, Champaign, Illinois. A brother, Rev. G. N. Harms, and a sister, Mrs. Anna Schmidt, also survive.

Emil H. Decker was born near Moundridge, Kansas, November 20, 1889, and grew to manhood near Meno, Oklahoma. Here he married Eva Buller in 1909 and with her was received into the New Hopedale Church in 1911. Death came December 11, 1945. His wife and the following children survive him: Edna Kroeker, Reedley, California; Sadie of the home; Rudolph, Meno; Leonard, Enid.

MINISTERS AID COMMITTEE ACCEPTS APPOINTMENT

The General Conference Ministers Aid Committee is charged with the responsibility of studying the possibilities of a wider service to needy ministers and needy widows of ministers, including the study of an adaptable pension plan.

Members of the Committee now are: August Epp, 116 Allison, Newton, Kansas, Chairman; Clinton Kaufman, 712 South Green, Wichita, Kansas, Secretary; Mrs. J. E. Entz, Route 3, Newton, Kansas; Miss Mary Bargen, Mountain Lake, Minnesota; H. Albert Claassen, 1508 Elk, Beatrice, Nebraska; and Robert Stauffer, Milford Square, Pennsylvania.

Conference Resolution No. 61 (1941) provides "that the Conference churches be requested to contribute annually 10c per member for this fund." Resolution 62 adds "that individuals be invited to make personal gifts or bequests to this particular fund."

Let us uphold this committee in our prayers; also "remember them which .... have spoken unto you the word of God." (Heb. 13:7)

Send your 1946 contribution to the General Conference Headquarters, 722 Main Street, Newton, Kansas. Be sure to designate "For Ministers Aid Fund." General Conference Executive Committee, Walter H. Dyck, Secretary.

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Friesen presented a musical program in chapel January 24. Ben Ferrier, the explorer, will give a lecture on "White Water Exploration" in the Gymnasium January 28. The Alumni Association Booster Concert will be held March 15. They have secured the Fisk Jubilee Singers for the occasion. This group is the third generation of these Singers, which has always been composed of graduates of Fisk University, of Nashville, Tennessee. With the proceeds the Alumni will sponsor a project for the school. Thursday evening a musical program was given in Chapel. The purpose of the program was to eliminate for the contest chorus and to decide on solo numbers to be brought at the state music contest.

BETHEL COLLEGE

As a token of esteem and in appreciation for his many years of service to the College, the Faculty arranged a special chapel service on January 24th to honor the seventy-fifth birthday of Dr. P. J. Wedel, professor and registrar emeritus. His book on the history of Bethel College is nearing completion. Rev. D. J. Unruh, representing the Conference Foreign Mission Board, spent two days on the campus, speaking in chapel and interviewing students. Other recent chapel speakers were Dr. E. C. Buehler, professor of speech, appearing on the University of Kansas Extension Program; Rev. Emerson Schwenk, Chicago, Mid-West FOR secretary; and Dr. Willard Smith, Goshen College, who recently returned from Paraguay. During the past week the Student Peace

Group, of which Viola Siemens (Manitoba) is president, carried out a second project to increase their donation toward the C.P.S. Rehabilitation Program of the M.C.C. and also arranged a window display for the Mennonite Relief Clothing Center in Newton.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

Rev. Rudolph Marek, Chicago, Illinois, visited the Bluffton campus January 20, 21. He and his wife were guests at a tea in Ropp Hall lobby January 20 and he made two talks to students on the 21st. This was their first stop on a C.P.S. camp tour. Seventeen new students entered college at the beginning of the new semester. The majority of these are returned service men. On the evening of the 21st the faculty entertained the students at a formal reception in the Musselman Library. Housing for married students is a problem. Two apartments, two rooms each, have been made on the second floor of the Project Building, which has been used as a student recreation room for several years. Rev. Olin Krehbiel, Berne, Indiana, will be on the campus the first week in April for a series of meetings with students.

THE MENNONITE BIBLICAL SEMINARY AND BIBLE SCHOOL

A day at the seminary begins early. Our first classes open at 7 a.m. Each class period is fifty minutes in length with a five minute intermission between periods. After the second hour we attend the daily chapel service where one can sense the spiritual pulse of the school. On Thursdays these chapel services are sponsored wholly by the students themselves. Three more class periods are scheduled between chapel and the lunch hour.

As a rule this marks the end of the day's class sessions, leaving the afternoon and evenings free for work and study. A few classes meet during the afternoon and evening hours but only if conflicts prevent having them in the regular morning schedule. Our school week is limited to four days—Tuesday through Friday. This consentration of class hours necessitates long assignments and intense study.

We are always happy for the relief that the three-day week end brings us. Saturday, Sunday and Monday are always busy days too. Aside from work and study these days afford an opportunity for recreation and give us chances to do work in churches and Sunday Schools. The three-day week end also brings us the advantage of the possibility of servng churches at some distance from Chicago.

Our school year is divided into three quarters of welve weeks each. We recently passed the middle mark of the winter term which means that half of he 1945-46 academic year is over.

Graduates from here receive either the degree of Bachelor of Divinity or Master of Religious Education. The student seeking to graduate must hold a college degree of acceptable standing, show high degree of scholarship, satisfactorily complete the work of the seminary curriculum, show consistent record of supervised Christian work, nd pass the comprehensive examination. Besides this, in meeting requirements for the B. D. degree, which is a three-year course instead of a two-year course as for the M. R. E. degree, the candidate must also have had at least six months of actual pastoral service under seminary supervision.

Prayer plays a very important part in our school life. Each Tuesday afternoon we gather for our weekly prayer and fellowship meeting. Thursday evenings we have opportunity to join with the entire student body in a weekly prayer and devotional service. At eight o'clock each Sunday morning students are privileged to participate in the Morning Watch service, all of which adds to our spiritual growth.

This hasty sketch may give a limited understanding of the spiritual, intellectual, and experiential training received in our seminary.

JOTTINGS

—First Church, Pretty Prairie, Kansas: A total of 1,978 quarts of beef and pork, which is to be sent to Europe, and 956 quarts of fruit, which is to be sent to C.P.S., were delivered to the food collection center at Lehigh, January 22. Three carloads of flour have already been sent overseas for relief purposes.—Ralph Krehbiel, Corr.

—Moundridge, Kansas: The women's organizations of the Christian, Eden, and West Zion churches purchased 150 pairs of pre-war shoes for relief.—Mrs. Ernest Miller, Corr.

—First Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: At the annual meeting it was decided that the church council should look for a new, young pastor, since Rev. I. J. Dick has asked to be relieved of his duties as pastor. He will, however, remain pastor of the church until the new pastor comes. A committee has been appointed to draw up a plan for giving mutual aid to returning C.P.S. servicemen. The fifteen dozen Mennonite Hymnaries, which are to be purchased, will be used to replace all the song books that are now being used. Two mission societies recently sent 250 pounds of new and used clothing for relief. Included were eight wool and cotton filled comforters.—Mrs. Willmar Loewen, Corr.

—East Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pa. Rev. H. P. Fast of Orienta, Oklahoma, is to hold evangelistic meetings during March.

—The Menno Church, Lind, Washington, hopes to be host to the Pacific District Conference in June. The dedication of the church at Newport, Washington, has been tentatively set for June 16. The Washington Young People's Retreat has also been tentatively set for the latter part of June.

—First Church, Berne, Indiana: The church has adopted a "Heifers for Relief" project. Efforts are being made to get a carload of about twenty-five heifers for overseas shipment.

—Mennonite Church, Hanston, Kansas: The report of the church treasurer at the annual meeting listed the total receipts for 1945 as $2,375. This did not include the sums raised in Sunday School and C.E.

The ladies shipped 168 pounds of clothing to the Relief Clothing center in Newton during 1945. We are to have regular monthly mission offerings during 1946. We are to continue our pledges to build up a reserve fund that might be used for paying a new minister or for building a parsonage. We are also to continue our special quarterly offerings for C.P.S. It is hoped that it will be possible for us to install electric lights in our church.—John Lingenfelder, Corr.

—Salem Church, Freeman, South Dakota: After the young people's C.E. last Sunday evening there was "Open House" at the parsonage for the young people. It is planned to continue this from time to time in the future. During the last year the Ladies Missionary Society sent 2,334 pounds of clothing, 83 blankets, 190 pounds of utensils, 460 pounds of soap for relief and 1,903 quarts of canned food for C.P.S.—Corr.

—All Mennonite churches of the Freeman-Marion South Dakota, community have gathered to date (January 22) $14,882.97 for flour for relief.

—Gerhard and Mildred Buhr are leaving in about a month for relief work under the M.C.C. in Paraguay, South America. Mr. Buhr is a member of the First Church of Mountain Lake, Minnesota, and Mrs. Buhr is a member of the Salem Church, Freeman, South Dakota.

—The faculty of Freeman Junior College had a panel discussion on "The Place of Freeman Junior College in the Community" at the C.E. in the Salem-Zion Church recently.

—First Church, Hillsboro, Kansas: Rev. H. T. Unruh visited the C.P.S. unit at Buckingham, Colorado. He found the men cheerful and happy, and the government officials friendly and proud of the men. He also stopped briefly at the Colorado Springs camp. Dr. H. A. Fast brought a searching message January 13 during Rev. Unruh's absence.—Mrs. B. A. Goertz, Corr.

—Johannestal Church, Hillsboro, has had a total of twelve men in C.P.S. Two were discharged for physical disability and three for length of service. The church decided to give each man ten dollars a month, beginning the second year of service. Milton Penner is our new choir director since Walter Jost left for Bethel College.—Mrs. Arnold A. Plenert, Corr.

—First Church, Lehigh, Kansas: January 27th the congregation enjoyed a basket supper in the church basement in honor of Rev. B. H. Janzen's fiftieth birthday. A fifty-dollar bill was presented to him as a gift. At the same time a small gift was also presented to the choir director for his faithful service. A C.E. program followed the supper. The ladies are busy sewing, collecting, and patching for relief. The sudden death of Mr. Pete Stubby January 25th was a shock to all.—Mrs. Ferd Unruh, Corr.

—Grace Church, Dallas. Oregon, is planning to build a sixteen by forty-four building unit, which will add to the present structure a large sound-proof mother's room, classrooms, and an enlarged auditorium so that one hundred more people can be seated. The work may begin in February. The present buildin was dedicated in 1939 when the congregation nun bered fifty-two members. Now the membership 275. During the past years floodlights were installe for the parking lot. Now a large sign is in proces of construction. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hiebert hav given a bell to the church.

[illegible]
[illegible] South Pine
Newton
Kansas

—Immanuel Church, Los Angeles: A total of $822.6 was given for relief during December, and anoth ninety dollars was given on January 6. The Women Mission Society sent 810 pounds of clothing for relie during 1945. Dr. Wm. Pettingill is to conduct prophetic Bible conference, February 24-27. Th present membership totals 253. This past year th church bought a parsonage for $7,450. A total c $4,500 has been paid. Offerings for C.P.S. are hel once a month.

—Mennonite Bible Mission, 4215 South Rockwel Chicago: Willard Wiebe, Mennonite seminary student, is serving as assistant to Rev. John T. Neufel Pastor. Wm. Unrau and Gerhard Neufeld are teaching in the Sunday School.

—Lorraine Avenue Church, Wichita, Kansas: Las Sunday the members of the church voted to buil our new church building of stone instead of bric with stone trim. Many of the members had hope that this change would be made. The cost of th materials are the same, but the labor for the layin of the stone is somewhat higher. However, on member has taken it upon himself to pay one-fourt of the additional cost. Mr. Muller pointed out tha good brick is hard to get, practically impossible.

Material for the church is expected within a fev days and work is to begin by February 4-9.—Mrs E. D. Schmidt, Corr.

—First Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: Farewell services were held January 27 for Mr. an Mrs. Gerhard Buhr, who are leaving for Paragua as M.C.C. relief workers. Mr. Buhr was recentl discharged from C.P.S. where he had served fou years and two months. The Oakleaf Mission Socie is making another relief drive for used clothi —Mrs. Willmar Loewen, Corr.

—Bethel Deaconess Home and Hospital Societ Newton, Kansas will hold its annual meeting February 12, beginning at 10 A.M., at the First Me nonite Church. The annual reports of the institutio as well as those of the Women's Auxiliary and Junior Auxiliary will be presented. All members and friends are most cordially invited to atten The ladies will again serve a noon lucheon in basement of the church. During the forenoon session, Dr. Cornelius Krahn, of Bethel College, will give an address on the history of charitable institutions in our church. Since the installation of the new X-ra equipment is nearing completion, Dr. Nanning, radiologist, will discuss the functions of the X-ray during the afternoon session.

The Mennonite

VOL. LXI FEBRUARY 12, 1946 NO. 7

BLANKETS FOR EUROPE

50,000 Blankets for Europe

It Can Be Done

The bitter winter in Europe is taking daily toll of the weakened, undernourished population of Europe. An emergency situation exists among Mennonite refugees and other displaced persons in Denmark, Holland and Germany. Thousands are perishing from the cold! Through special facilities provided by UNRRA we are able to ship any quantity of blankets and comforters overseas as fast as they can be packed and delivered to port. Immediate and equitable distribution in Germany is assured and recommended through local military government. Other areas wll be handled through M.C.C. workers. Each article will bear the M.C.C. label with the inscription, "In the Name of Christ."

If EVERY Mennonite family in America would donate only ONE blanket or comforter, a total of over 40,000 blankets could be sped on their way to Europe. Send immediately all you can by express direct to Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pennsylvania.

Proper warmth will make a meager meal last longer! What can you spare that will keep them from freezing?

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point-of-view:

NONVIOLENCE is rather minimum-like and negative when compared with Christian nonresistance. Undoubtedly, it is true that some of the pacifists in the United States who uphold nonviolence have helped to unveil certain wrongs which should perhaps have been pricking the consciences of nonresistant Christians much more. Nonresistant Christians can well afford to ask themselves as to what they are doing more than the believers in nonviolence. Furthermore, nonviolence certainly is less destructive than the war method, which is participated in by the vast majority of Christians. However, with these aspects admitted, it is still a faulty method of changing human attitudes. It seems that the success that non-violence might achieve would be somewhat like that of the mother who slammed her Johnny onto a chair with the admonishment that he sit down and keep sitting there. Johnny sat, but he wistfully exclaimed to his mother, "Mother, I am not sitting down inside." He was compelled to do something that he did not voluntarily choose to do. Maybe that was better than running around, but it was not as good as getting him to divert voluntarily the running-around energy into other constructive and more calm expressions. One wonders in what kind of resentment Johnny's inside feeling may later have expressed itself. In this issue we present what we consider a very fair and intelligent treatment of the subject of "Satyagraha (nonviolence) and Christian Pacifism."

PERSONAL TESTIMONIES in regard to spiritual birth and growth are very helpful when they are given in a spirit of true humility. Perhaps, because such testimonies somewhat frequently degenerate into religious bragging, some Christians are very skeptical of them. Since pride is a sin that doth rather easily beset even Christians, this point must be considered. However, this fact makes it all the more necessary that some genuine testimonies do get through, for the growing Christian needs to know the trying and victorious experiences that others have had. Such sharing of experiences gives the growing Christian added understanding and a warm sense of fellowship. Ideals expressed in impersonal, theological abstractions can become somewhat of a holy terror to the immature Christian who acknowledges their excellency but is at the same time driven to despair by the gap between what he is and what he is expected to be. Personal testimonies can help to put a stairway into at least a part of that gap.

FINANCIAL REPORTS which indicate how much and for what congregations and individuals have given suggest certain questions that ought to be answered: 1. What is the purpose of publishing such a financial report as we publish quarterly in this paper? 2. Is there a competitive element in such reports? 3. Is such reporting in fullest harmony with Jesus' admonition "let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth"? 4. Are they necessary for checking on the honesty of the treasurers involved? 5. Are they completely read by at least 50 per cent of the readers? 6. Would an annual report in the Yearbook be just as satisfactory or more so? 7. What is the most Christian (and therefore the most effective) way of fostering stewardship?

THE GENTLE BUT FIRM requests of Christian concern for the starving and freezing in Germany must come to the ears of the administration. Otto A. Piper, Princeton University professor, pleads, "Won't you write the Secretary of State and request him to change his policy in this matter. Or write to your senators and ask them to make your sentiments known to the President of the U. S. A. and to the various departments of the Government. In Washington they have listened for a long while to the yelling voices of revenge and hatred. Let now the gentle but firm requests of humanity and compassion ring in their ears. No change of policy will be effected unless the Government realizes that it has public support. There lies your responsibility as a citizen and as a Christian."

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA
Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.
Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917 Authorized Jan. 22, 1919

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton. Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.
Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS

Satyagraha and Christian Pacifism

by R. C. Kauffman

Asked one time, "What is India's real message to the world?" Gandhi replied, "Non-violence. India is saturated with that spirit . . . If there is not this message there is no other message that India can give . . . ."

Satyagraha is a word commonly applied by the Hindu to his principle of non-violence. Saty means Truth and agraha means search for, the implication being that a search for Truth both requires and results in the use of non-violent means. Since, further, God is this Truth that is sought after, the principle partakes of the nature of God and becomes a religious one. Reduced to its simplest terms and in Hinduism's own expression, Satyagraha means a reliance on soul-force as over against brute-force.

In light of our Mennonite tradition, I have found it interesting to draw such comparisons as I could in the one year that I have been here between Hinduism's position on this point and our own, particularly as expressed in life itself. A comparison based on our respective sacred classics, such as conducted in our courses on "Comparative Religion," can be quite artificial. A discovery one soon makes when living among people of another faith is that there is a considerable difference between their religion as expressed in literature and again as expressed in the life of the masses—between the faith revealed in books and the faith men live by. This should really not be so much of a discovery, since the same thing can be observed within our Christian society, but we are too near to this to see it as clearly and forcibly.

In any discussion that involves Hindu thought and conduct, it must be borne in mind that Hinduism is a very diverse sort of thing and that what holds true for one group or section may be contradicted by another. Keeping this in mind, I think it is safe to say, however, that for the average Hindu Satyagraha is something more than mere theory. Taken as the sort of pacifism that it represents, it is a rather genuine thing. In fact, it is in all probability more genuine and more nearly achieved on the whole than is true of us in the case of our Christian concept. It would of course be difficult to put this to an empirical test, but there are certain indications that incline me to this point of view. The Hindu is more manifestly religious than we and, while his motives for adherence to its dictates may be more a matter of social pressure and less spiritual than ours, yet such adherence seems more complete in general than is true with us.

Apart from the obvious fact that India is not one of the warring nations, a subtle and yet forceful expression of Hindu non-violence can be seen, for example, in the type of heroes they admire. Among these, at least in comparison with countries like our own, the soldier is conspicuously absent. Craftiness and intrigue may impress them, but not sheer brawn. More recently, through the incessant bombardment of Allied war-time propaganda in films, newspapers and magazines, some have come to accept the idea that there must be something heroic about military life. One of the sad by-products of our war has been precisely this effect that it has had upon the Oriental mind—an effect for which we ourselves may someday pay. Yet, by and large, the Indian feels a righteous sense of superiority as he views our Western conflicts, and continues to express his detachment. Here, for example, is a statement I picked out more or less at random from the "personal opinion" column of one of India's leading English-language newspapers:

> "Sir: The ancient Hindu sages, emphasizing the superiority of spirit over matter, of soul force over brute force, teach man the better way of living at peace with himself and his fellow-men. They never condemn science, but make it subservient to religion, for religion according to them is the highest cementing force. It is the synthesis of science and philosophy, the harmonizing of life. When the crowning achievement of science in the modern era has brought world-shattering atomic energy into the hands of men, let that energy be harnessed to the cause of peace and the service of humanity, not to the subjugation of the weak by the strong. Yours, etc."

Another, commenting on the atomic bomb, writes:

> "Exactly what has happened? Merely that a new weapon has been used, many times more destructive than any other known weapon, but nevertheless a weapon for all that.—Once we are agreed on the rectitude of man killing man, we cannot expostulate on the means employed. Yours, etc."

When the atom bomb came out, Indian people, Hindu and Christian, watched the reaction of the Church of England, to them the epitome of Christianity. Some were sorely disappointed when they found it blessed by the Church.

During the famine, thousands of people starved on the streets of Calcutta—many barely across the street from a grain or food shop. Yet there were very few cases of looting or assault. Begging, yes, but not violence. A sign I saw in one Hindu shop (not a food shop!), very much upheld in the mind of the proprietor, said, "Injustice always comes back to the doer: leave revenge to time and God." Another Hindu, upon learning that I was a pacifist, said, "As such you will be very popular in India"—a rather remarkable statement to hear during time of war.

One seldom sees a fist-fight, either among children or grown-ups. I have seen a number of India motion pictures, but have yet to see an argument settled in any of them with one man knocking the other out. Fist fights, in Indian pictures, are evidently as much taboo as kissing and that means taboo! To see an honest-to-goodness knock-down, drag-out fight, one has to go to see an American picture. Indians know this too. One coming out of the theater expressed his disgust: "Why," he said, "there wasn't even anybody killed!"

An interesting and yet common form of "retaliation", especially on the part of Indian servants, is that, when severely rebuked for something or other, they will come around after a while asking you to grant them a favor—often a rather big favor at that, such as loaning them a piece of personal property, a sum of money, or giving them a raise in wages. While not exactly returning good for evil, they give you a chance to do so! Just what hidden logic there lies in this odd response is hard to say. I suspect, however, that it serves the same purpose to them personally as a "vote of confidence" to the political leader—that is, it lets them know just where they stand.

More pertinent, however, than these incidental observations, are certain general characteristics of the Indian people. While perhaps in no wise consciously linked to their doctrine of non-violence, they are characteristics having an important bearing on amiable individual, social and even international relationships. India's people are on the whole a friendly, out-going and non-arrogant people. Their non-arrogance may be the expression more of an inferiority feeling deeply instilled through centuries of subjugation, than of genuine humility but, whatever the case, one likes them for it. They are quite devoid of overbearing nationalism. Recently, to be sure, under the impetus of their desire for national freedom, nationalism has grown to ominous proportions, but it is so clearly and completely linked with this cause that it lacks the offensive aspects of the "super-man" type of nationalism—the type that of itself makes for war. They lack aggressiveness. While they do so to the point of a weakness, as is only too well known, it does minimize one important source of conflict. Again, they are a peculiarly tolerant people. This is true particularly of the Hindus where, again, it is carried to the point of a weakness. It is actually difficult to know whether they have any common convictions at all outside of their common social observances. But it also serves to ease many tensions. I sometimes wonder what our reaction at home would be if we had some five hundred proselytizing missions of another faith in our land. Also, the ordinary Indian is peculiarly oblivious to "rights" and "privileges" on his own behalf. Every time I go to the Post Office or Bank and see a queue of "chaprassis" step aside in deference to the "Saheb" (white man), I am reminded of this. Why should the Saheb—a foreigner at that—just because he has a light skin have first chance. But that is the way it's done—and the Saheb loves it and comes to expect it. As over against our American preoccupation with justice, rights and privileges, these mean nothing to the common Indian. While this has no doubt helped perpetuate injustices that should long since have been up-rooted, it is one of India's assets for peace. A preoccupation with one's own "rights" makes for war, whether among individuals or between nations. Finally, to the extent that they are philosophically minded, do India's people possess a boon for peace. Anything that helps to take man's mind off of grossly materialistic pursuits, whether art, play, philosophy or religion, makes its contribution toward this end. Unfortunately the all-embracing perspective of philosophy has for many of India's people given way to a narrow religious sectarianism with the result that this very disposition on their part has become the source of internal strife, as seen particularly now in the conflicts waged between Hindus and Moslems. Nevertheless, so far as the international scene is concerned, one can be quite sure that India would have been in the world's squabbles right with the rest of us had she not kept herself entertained with other than material pursuits.

Altogether, then, though one would be reluctant to put it as strongly as does Gandhi when he says that

---

WHO THEY ARE

R. C. Kauffman, on leave of absence from his professorial duties at Bethel College, to do relief work in India, has observed Indian life for over a year. He has done so with a background of extensive training in psychology and theology.

J. G. Rempel, Principal of the Rosthern Bible School, Rosthern, Saskatchewan, writes a weekly German commentary on the Sunday School lesson, is a member of the Board of Publication, and (if we are correct) is Secretary of the Canadian Conference.

India is "saturated" with the spirit of non-violence, there does seem to be truth in what he says and that, in fact, India may have something to teach "Christian" nations along this line. However, simply to say this without any reference to the differences in the pacifistic principle itself is not very significant. In this connection then, and again without entering upon a comparison of, say the Baghvadgita with the Sermon on the Mount. I think the following five points of differentiation can be observed:

1. Hindu pacifism grows out of a respect for life in general; Christian pacifism, out of a respect for human personality. The difference is a significant one. Where the only requirement is that you do not take life, you may deceive, molest, humiliate, exploit, take advantage of your neighbor in a thousand ways, just so you leave him alive. Caste with all of its attending evils could hardly have existed side by side for all these centuries with a pacifism that insists on the sacredness of human personality. Nor could a man-made calamity such as Bengal's famine have taken place where this view prevails. For each one of the 1,500,000 or more lives lost in this famine, it has been estimated that some rice hoarders, which included wealthy Hindus, made 1000 rupees (about $300) profit. Where there is a disregard for the sacredness of human life in its wider aspects, there life itself degenerates in value and will be offered on the altar of material gain as the inducement occurs. Meanwhile, however, on the basis of his belief, the Hindu may find himself concerned with saving the life of a cow, a rat, or even an insect. Consistent with this, Gandhi remarks, "Cow protection is an article of faith in Hinduism. Apart from its religious sanctity, it is an ennobling creed. I would not kill a human being for protecting a cow, as I will not kill a cow for saving a human life, be it ever so precious." Life is life wherever found and is not to be taken. The Jains, a Hindu sect intent on carrying this principle out to the full, may be seen coming down the street wearing cleated shoes, thus preventing stepping on more insects than can be helped; or wearing a mask over the mouth to prevent inhaling any insect life. For similar reasons they strain their drinking water and refuse to eat in the dark. May they never see a microscope! Until recently, Jain communities would maintain cots with lice and pay poor people As.4 to 8 for stationing themselves on these cots for a ten-minute feeding period for the creatures. Now they keep ants instead and feed them a daily portion of sugar. When one time a plague threatened one of India's cities and it was proposed that all rats in the city be killed, Gandhi explicitly vetoed the proposal on the grounds that rats had as much right to live as man. Jesus had a different answer to the question,"How much more then is a man worth than a sheep?"

2. Closely related to the above is the fact that Hindu non-violence tends to be legalistic. It is subservience to a code rather than the expression of a spirit. It is wrong to take life: that you thereby also attest to a love for all life, rats and insects included, is hardly to be supposed. Perhaps nowhere in the world are animals permitted to suffer more than in India. The concept of universal kinship under God and the corresponding sentiment of love and goodwill which prompts the Christian pacifist are largely absent. It is simply a matter of following the rule. In terms of the three classes of people portrayed in the Parable of the Good Samaritan, one is inclined to place much of Hindu pacifism on the "Live and let live" level of the priest and Levite. While repudiating the "Kill to live" principle of the robbers, it also fails to achieve to the virtue of the Good Samaritan in living to help live. In fairness to the Hindu it must be said that this difference between his pacifism and ours is a relative one. In actual practice we know that our pacifism, even where maintained, is often an unreasoned dogma while, on the other hand, I have myself met enough Hindus with an outgoing and self-abnegating love for their fellows to know that such certainly exist. But where this charitable attitude does occur among them, it appears more like a carry-over from Christianity than an intrinsic aspect of their Hindu doctrine. Because of its inarticulate nature, Hinduism is like a giant sponge which absorbs everything it encounters. It is by this fact that it has survived rival faiths in the past and a similar occurence is taking place now in its encounter with Christianity.

3. Satyagraha is a relatively negative approach to the problem of evil. While the Christian pacifist proposes to meet evil with good, the Hindu's emphasis is on non-cooperation. In speaking with a Hindu recently I asked him, "Would you fight or do any work for the military?" His answer was, "No." "Would you not even go to war for the sake of India's freedom?" "With weapons, no. With my tongue and brains, yes I would fight. If I am pleased with you, our relations will be cordial; if displeased, no cooperation—our relationship is finished." This is an honest and representative statement. In a sense, therefore, the Hindu pacifist leaves off where the Christian goes to work, namely, at the point of reconciliation—the restoration of fellowship, which constitutes the real essence of forgiveness.

4. Satyagraha differs from Christian pacifism in spirit. In its application it is often little more than a means to an end. Though non-violent, it is nevertheless a weapon, an instrument for achieving ends, often of an ulterior nature. One strongly suspects, for instance, that Gandhi's non-violence has been a political expedient, used to embarrass the British. However much we may sympathize with his cause and admire his restraint, yet his methods would hardly qualify as fully Christian. It is because of this difference in spirit that non-cooperation readily gives way to violence, as was the case in the Nationalistic uprising of 1942, when railroad tracks were uprooted, government buildings burned and demolished and lives taken. The spirit behind non-cooperation is so nearly akin to that of actual warfare that only a legalistic barrier divides the two and this, under duress, gives way. In a sense, Christian pacifism is also a means to an end and we continue to speak of pacifistic "means". Yet, in a deeper sense, it is a means so consistent with the end, so thoroughly identified with it, that it really becomes the end itself, namely, the Kingdom of God and His righteousness. To speak of the Christ-like way as a political or personal expedient, as a means of winning friends and influencing people, shocks our Christian sensibility.

5. Hindu pacifism is in larger measure a response or, more simply, resignation to prevailing conditions. Both individually and nationally, a resort to nonviolent techniques is about all that can be done. Nationally, India is not sufficiently mechanized to wage contemporary warfare with any hope of success. Individually, the common man has so long been subjected to exploitation and to forces beyond his control that he has become accustomed to resignation. He speaks of his Karma; that is, of his inexorable fate. With a gesture toward his forehead, he dismisses his lot as something indelibly written there. And, in view of his educational, economic and social limitations, there is an austere truth to his doctrine of Karma. His lot is hopelessly fixed. I have already referred to the submissive conduct of the masses during the famine, as also to the general acquiescence with regard to rights and privileges. Starvation, in the case of the famine, was their Karma and there was little to be done about it. Pacifism here really becomes passivism. In Christian thought, justice is tempered with mercy; here, justice is tempered, and distorted, by fate. Caste, with its social stratification, is but another of those prevailing circumstances that make for this passivism. Just as conflict is an integral feature of democracy and part of the price we pay for it and its laissez faire policy, so fixed stratification dampens all strife and striving and produces peace, even though it be the peace of a graveyard.

In the final analysis, therefore, it remains questionable as to just how much of Hinduism's pacifism can be credited to the principle and acceptance of Satyagraha. It is as imposible to do this with any finality as it is, in this land of dire destitution, to attribute all dishonesty and theft to an inherent weakness of Hinduism or its co-religions. If Casper Milque-Toast, to use an inept analogy, turns out to have pacifistic inclinations, no one is greatly surprised. But if some physical giant, with all destructive resources at his disposal, turns out to be peace-loving, we feel quite sure that he must have principles.

Has Christianity strengthened Hindu pacifism? One would be inclined to think that a meeting of Christianity and Hinduism in the Hindu convert would make for a forceful combination in this direction. Yet, this does not seem to be the case. My impression is, in fact, that organized Christianity has done more to undermine than to strengthen what pacifism there is in India. Christians have supplied more than their share of the Indian Army. They exceeded in number of recruits even the belligerent Sikhs. In proportion to population, Christians and Sikhs came first in India's armed forces, then Moslems and then Hindus. Christians constitute 2 per cent of the Indian population, but supplied 14 per cent of the Indian Army. This figure should not be taken too seriously since factors other than personal conviction entered in—such as, for example, the fact that most Indians are or were in the Army for the money they got out of it and Christians generally comprise the poorer and more needy classes. That this is a determining factor is seen in the further fact that among the Telegus, one of the poorest peoples of India, Christians supplied 88 per cent of the recruits. Moreover, it may be supposed that Christians felt more sympathy with the Allied cause or, at least, less detachment. But the fact still remains that the sort of Christianity to which people are here converted evidently provided no great obstacle to anyone who, for one reason or another, felt inclined to "join up." I heard one Christian missionary, speaking of the Garo Hill people among whom he works, saying, "Fifty years ago there wasn't a single Christian in that locality; now we have five thousand of our young Christian men and women in the armed services of our country." Having at one time been head-hunters, these Garos should, under the inspiration of their new faith faith, make formidable soldiers.

Recognizing, however, that Christian pacifism is something much more than refusal to participate in organized warfare, the verdict on Christianity's contribution to Indian pacifism may be quite reversed. Wherever are planted the ideas that there is something distinctively God-like about human personality, that love is the law of life, and that man's fellowship in Jesus Christ encircles the globe, there we have the seeds that may someday yield the full-blown flower. Even Hinduism has felt the impact of this tremendous concept and many not numbered among Christian converts have incorporated it in their philosophy of life.

Home Missions:

Material appearing under "Home Missions" is contributed by A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary of the Home Mission Board, Quakertown, Pa.

Prayer Meeting at Rosthern Bible School

by J. G. Rempel

It is Saturday evening, the evening in which we have our prayer meeting. The main room of the Bible school is filled to capacity. This is due to the greatly increased enrollment and the many academy students who attend. A student leads in the introduction, announces the songs and prays.

I suggest that we deviate from the usual course of procedure and testify about life experiences for which we feel especially thankful. Now I relate experiences out of my own life and tell how I was often miraculously saved from death during the hard times of the Russian revolution. In conclusion I add that this is my eleventh year of teaching in Rosthern and that, during the whole time, I have not missed a single day on account of sickness. I am thankful for such health.

Now an enthusiastic youth, who used to earn very high wages in a mill, gets up. An inner voice admonished him, "You are mostly living for yourself even though you give gifts for good purposes out of your salary. You should go to a Bible school, prepare for the work of God's kingdom and dedicate yourself entirely for such work." However, it was difficult to leave such a high-paying job. But along with the conviction come difficulty in breathing. The doctor said, "It is asthma; you must leave the mill immediately and choose another profession." Thus the decision was made. The young man went to Rosthern to attend Bible school. "Today," he concludes his testimony, "I can dedicate my whole time to the work in God's kingdom. I thank God for asthma."

Other testimonies followed. After the period of prayer, shortly before the closing song, another student asked for permission to say something. She has, as we look at it, a special "thorn in the flesh." Her body is developed to only half its normal height. For this reason the girl stepped forth from her seat and said, in a voice which moved all of us, "You all know and see my condition. Often I complained to God about the heavy lot that had fallen to me. Today I am at peace, satisfied and thankful. I am a child of God."

We teachers give Sarah the testimony that she belongs to the happiest and most contented pupils of our Bible school.

Tha evening I went home with a deeper understanding of the Word of the Apostle Paul, "In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you." I Thess. 5:18.

ANNUAL MEETING

The Lord willing, the Board of Home Missions is planning on holding their annual meeting in North Newton, Kansas. February 19-21 in cooperation with all the other General Conference boards and standing committees.

There are always many important problems of policies and placement of workers and the care of congregations that need to be considered. The possible opening of new fields will also be considered.

We desire the prayer of all interested friends of our far-reaching mission work, so that the work might be done in harmony with the Lord's leading. In dependance on prayer and the Lord's leading, A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary.

Foreign Missions

Material appearing under "Foreign Missions" is contributed by P. H. Richert, Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions Route 2, Newton, Ks.

Due to the illness of Brother P. H. Richert, Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board, all mail pertaining to the Foreign Mission Board should be sent to the General Conference Headquarters, c/o Dr. P. A. Penner, 722 Main, Newton, Kansas, until further notice.

Annual Board Meeting

The Lord willing our Board will meet February 19-21 in the Memorial Hall, North Newton, Kansas. Weighty questions are again before us for consideration and action. For this we herewith call on our mission friends for their prayers for guidance and wisdom. We are glad that the other boards will meet at the same time and place for mutual consultation.

China is still the outstanding problem. Missionary S. F. Pannabecker is not far from our field, but he finds it difficult to get direct contact with our churches there. May the Lord soon open the door wide in all of China.

The greatest need for India: three evangelistic couples and a doctor. All the boards in the United States altogether call for over one thousand mission workers. "Pray ye the Lord of harvest that he send laborers into the field." And thank Him also for those that could be sent last year and for those that are waiting for passage to Africa and South America.—P. H. Richert, Secretary

The Time Element in Winning People to Christ

The questions of how long it takes to win a person to Christ, how much patience a person should exercise in soul-winning, and when a person is sufficiently prepared to make a decision are problems that often confront a personal worker. One of our missionaries in India has an experience to share that will throw some light on these questions. He writes as follows:

"It was probably Paget Wilkes who stated, that given ten minutes time and a soul who understands these Three Minimum Truths, anyone can be brought under conviction and to a decision to accept Christ,—be it in a traveling railway carriage, or in an after-meeting in a City Mission Hall, or in the quiet of a drawing room. The Three Minimum Truths are, (a) God is calling YOU, (b) Sin hinders our life and response, (c) Jesus saves.

"Another point which I always remember is one from Emerson, 'Nerve us incessantly with affirmations.' I have concluded from experience that to bombard a prospective convert with questions, and nag him thus is an excellent way for him to build up resistance to accepting Christ. When we say, 'Why do you not come to Christ?,' 'When will you come?,' 'What hinders you?,' he at once begins to manufacture all sorts of excuses which he might never think of if instead he was bombarded with affirmative challenges.

"An illiterate day-laborer, a small land-holder, Amolsai had followed our workers for some nine months. Unobserved, he was quietly listening on the edge of village crowds; hence had gotten many of the truths we teach by means of Biblical story. He finally made himself known and when asked to accept Christ said he would. Still he always delayed and evaded every plan for his baptism. Every Indian coworker failed in his efforts to bring him to Christ in baptism. I decided when we camped at Pisaud that I would try out these three truths on him. We were there just before the Pitampur Mela (a Hindu religious festival) when Amolsai again appeared amongst relatives in that village, enroute to the Mela.

"I had my tent cleared of vistors, had him called at nine o'clock in the morning, and said, 'God is certainly calling you. As the Shepherd called the lost sheep, so Christ has been calling you. For the past nine months He has called you in Dhirkot, in Putpura, in Mehenda, and now again in Pisaud. If the Superintendent of Police calls, we all jump up and run at once. But the King of Kings is calling and is calling You! Should you not respond' Of course you should. Will you not do so?' And Amolsai said, 'Yes.'

"Then I said, 'Sin has hindered you. Remember the story of the Potter and the Clay and how that pebble prevented the potter from making his vessel. So it is sin hinders the Heavenly Potter from making you into the kind of vessel that He would. It is sin that has spoiled your life, is it not?' Again Amolsai said, 'Yes.'

"Then I said, 'Jesus can save you. He has shed His precious blood for you. If your plowshare is broken, or spoiled, would you take it to the carpenter?' Amolsai said, 'No.' 'Of course not,' I followed on, 'We take the iron to the blacksmith who made it, the wood to the carpenter, and I take my wrist watch to its maker. If sin spoils us, we need go into the hands of our Maker, the Lord Jesus. That is true, is it not?' Amolsai gave me a 'Yes' with assurance and conviction.

"Then I plead fervently, 'Come, commit yourself to Jesus Now.' And when Amolsai said, 'I am ready,' I tasted of the joy of the angels of heaven. I then asked him to bow in prayer with me as I dictated a prayer of commitment which he repeated after me. Such prayers I have learned release a mysterious divine power in the life of the inquirer. I gave him one hour to get ready, while I prepared for the baptismal ceremony. At 10:30 all my Indian coworkers gathered with me in the tent. Then and there we baptized him, and never did we sing more lustily 'Sowing in the morning.' Amolsai has had his troubles since then, but for two years he has stood up under persecution and domestic issues, and is true to Christ."

—The Evangelism Committee

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Verney Unruh
Vice President
Ruth Ewert
Secretary-Treasurer

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

Social Life and Service of Young People in the Western District

by Mary Becker

(This is the third in a series of four articles summarizing Mary Becker's findings regarding young people's activities in the Western District Conference. In this article, Miss Becker discusses the social and recreational life of the young people. Also, she tells of the types of service performed by young people in the interest of the church. The final article summarizing her findings will appear in next week's issue. E.L.)

Social and Recreational Activity

The questionnaires revealed that very little is done to provide social and recreational activities for the young people of the church, although today some churches are beginning to realize that no area of life is secular but that all of life is sacred and that the church must be concerned with anything that enters into the life of its members. According to the pastors, church-sponsored social functions in about half of the churches consist of one or two Christian Endeavor socials annually, a very few having these socials monthly or bi-monthly. A few Sunday School classes have monthly or fewer class meetings; and about two-thirds of the Sunday Schools have annual picnics. A number of churches have church-sponsored young people's parties; and fourteen report church fellowship suppers, a few as often as four times a year, but most of them once a year. Several report choir socials, skating parties, parties for boys home on furlough from C.P.S. camps, etc. The two churches of Beatrice, Nebraska, unite in a Peace Fellowship, which combines the social side with service, thus realizing a double value. They are also working on a workshop project for the members.

Elaborate Planning not Necessary

Often when the social and recreational program is mentioned, the mistake is made of thinking of elaborately planned functions or thoroughly equipped social halls and the more spontaneous types of recreation are overlooked. Many churches who realize the need complain that they do not have the facilities nor the money to supply them. They fail to recognize facilities they have or have access to. It was found that the home plays some part in this area but not as large a part as it should. In some parishes the pastor's home is open to the young people for occasional parties.

The Mennonite and the Western District Tidings frequently carry short reports on social and recreational activities of the young people's groups of various churches.

Commercial Amusements

Commercial amusements, which often neither amuse nor re-create, are also making inroads into Mennonite circles. Some pastors report as many as 95 per cent of their young people attend the movies. This is unusual, nor is it any indication of frequency of attendance. Dancing is very infrequent according to the reports; roller skating is reported by some.

Some of the young people's discussion groups report a need for more social life; and the suggestions made in this connection are of a type that would include the whole family. This is a healthy indication and should be utilized before it is too late.

Boy-Girl Relationships

Boy-girl relationships also present a problem in many Mennonite communities. One pastor, in fact, considers the hesitancy of couples to come to church together and their tendency to go to the movies instead as one of his greatest problems as far as young people are concerned. The young people attribute this tendency to the attitude of the older people, and one group says that they feel that this is one respect in which the church can help them.

Personal Christian Living

In regard to the area of personal Christian living the pastors feel that the worship service, family devotions, and group Bible study contribute most noticeably to the spiritual growth of the young people. Two young people's groups which took a vote on this question differed markedly from this. This, of course, is conditioned by leadership, family influence, church emphases, and even the rest of the group while voting. On the whole, indications are that not too much special help is given the young people in this area, that most pastors depend in general upon their regular preaching ministry to accomplish this rather than giving specific suggestions.

Service of Young People to the Church

Service is discussed under five different classifications: Local church, community, District and General Conference, Civilian Public Service, and relief. There are many opportunities of service for young people in the local church, and many pastors report using young people as ushers, members on church committees, in the choir, in the missionary society, as pianists, Sunday School and Vacation Bible School teachers, etc. Percentage of participation varies considerably. There are, of course, many other avenues through which young people can serve.

Service in the community, as reported, consists mostly of conducting services in hospitals and homes for the aged, occasionally in jails and county homes, and a few report services for shut-ins and the aged of the church. Here, too, some groups are much more active than others.

Service to the Conference

The service to the Western District and the General Conference is rendered mostly through the youth organizations of these conferences and of the local churches, except as individual members enter full-time service. The groups support Conference projects and activities as submitted by the various committees and boards, especially that of foreign missions, and, to a lesser degree, of education. The work of many boards and committees remains an unknown quantity to the greater number of young people. If the needs here were known, it is safe to assume that the young people would enter these new areas also with zest and willingness.

Civilian Public Service

Civilian Public Service is a special area of service discussed. The demands of the war and the necessity of the youth of the land to answer the call of their country to service have given new impetus to the emphasis of Mennonite groups as members of a historic peace church to express their willingness to serve their country in a constructive rather than a destructive way. This is made possible through the consideration and tolerance of the U.S. Government. Most of the boys who have been drafted have shown their desire to do really worthwhile service, not looking for an easy way out, and have volunteered for special projects—service in mental and epileptic hospital units; "guinea pig" projects; health and sanitation projects; parachute fire-fighting units; and reconstruction work as soon as the way opens. Because of the desire on the part of many girls who want to do their share in service as well as register their conscientious objection to war, women's training units have been conducted the last two summers, many nurses are serving as camp nurses for a nominal salary instead of the lucrative positions they might have while salaries are high, and some with dietetic or home economics training are serving as dietitians in the camps.

Western District young people have also responded to the call to relief service, most of them by supporting relief projects and some by volunteering for overseas relief.

An Open Letter to the Ministers

There are two concerns which we would like to share with you regarding our channels of reaching each other as youth. It is our prayer that the young people can help each other in realizing the hopes of the church for its eight thousand or more youth.

1. Would you introduce the Mennonite Youth section to your church young people? A youth said recently that he always read the Readers Digest, but he never thought of reading this four-page- youth section of The Mennonite. He didn't realize it was written for him! The youth section with its own editor, since the first of November, is growing more and more to be a paper of interest to youth throughout our conference. You might introduce this "stranger" to many youth by an announcement from the pulpit, in the church bulletin, or in Sunday School or youth meetings. We invite the younger and the older young people to read it and write to the editor regarding local group activities or their reactions to articles in "our youth paper."

2. When you receive a letter from the district young people's Executive Committee announcing a state or district Young People's Leaders' Institute, would you encourage the interest of your young leaders and officers? The General Conference YPU Executive Committee is working with the district committee in arranging for such gatherings in all of the U. S. districts and some Canadian provinces. Through these institutes the young people are seeking: (1) to study the work being done by the local groups in the entire conference, (2) to encourage sharing of local Y.P. activities of study, projects, fellowship, (3) to gain a new vision and renewed leadership for the local and larger group program. We need consecrated local leaders. We must study our programs and then follow the leading of the Holy Spirit. Your encouragement and suggestions are welcome. Y.P.U. Executive Committee

What Young People Expect of the Church

by Helen Louise Penner

Along with being aware of what is expected of us by the church and church people, all young people set their own standard as to what we expect of our church and the people who make up its congregation. Although each individual's expectations may differ somewhat, there are definite ideas among all of us.

A Church to Attend

The most outstanding and uppermost is a church to go to and the right to go there for a common purpose—the right to worship in the way in which we were brought up. We want our church to be a place where we are welcomed. If we young people are to be in the place held by the older members today, we expect coaching and training to enable us to take charge of the church tomorrow. If we want to have our church according to our expectations, we will have to have supervision and training to enable us to put those ideas not already used in use. We expect our ideas and abilities, whatever they may be, to be made use of. We want to know we are doing a definite good for the church and that we have this responsibility to the church. We don't consider any responsibility as an obligation, but as an opportunity.

A Young People's Organization

The young people want their own organization in order that they may get together and do good for the church. Just as any church is practically helpless unless there is unity and consistency, so the young people need to be organized within a church. We expect the privilege of working together and showing what we can do by ourselves.

Older Members an Example

Many young people aren't as attracted to religion as they are many times expected to be. Young people, being as "know-it-all" as they are often inclined to be, don't want to be pushed. We expect older people to be aware of this fact, and we want to know that instead of having it held against us, it is an inspiration to the older members to be an example of what they have acquired in the years young people have not yet passed through. When we cause any disapproval, we want to know about it—directly. Quiet disapproval can have serious results which may not have been intended, but just the same occurred. We expect to be curtailed in some matters, but encouraged in others.

A Social Program

It is expected and taken more for granted that the church will offer a good social program, and if it does it can be used greatly to the church's advantage. If the church doesn't offer such a program, the young people are going to find their own means of entertainment that in many cases harms and even destroys anything the church teaches. We also expect to have other young people in our church who we can be friends with and be the kind of friends we want to have.

We want the church building itself to be neat and impressive, a place that we may bring our friends to and also to be proud of our membership, a place that young people love to go to because it is their own place to worship and it is a place that inspires reverence.

The Minister a Friend

Young people want the pastor to be one of them. We want him to be more of a "big brother" than a person who, we are afraid, will think our troubles and concerns are childish. Young people need someone who can acquire their respect and be a good example of a Christian.

The Church a Fellowship

Not only the minister is expected to be a good example—how can we be expected to be devoted church members when there is trouble among the older members who have lived together much longer than any of us? There can be no greater inspiration to the young people than to see people getting along together and staying together as a result of Christianity. Therefore, young people expect that they will have examples to go by that will be worthwhile spending a lifetime to duplicate.

The church can teach more than just religion. Music, literature and art can be combined with religion. In this way both can be made more beneficial. Young people expect that culture will not be neglected for it has come as a result of Christianity and must continue to grow with Christianity.

Any improvement that is yet to be made is a challenge to the older members of the church, but it is a far greater challenge to the young people for they are responsible for deriving every benefit from it and in that way making the church a better church for all members.

Helen Louise Penner is one of the young people in the Second Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebraska. In this article, she looks at the church as many youth see it. Other young people are welcomed to express themselves on the needs and the service the church should perform as they see it.

Youth Events

According to a survey made by Maynard Shelly, forty-six Mennonite students are registered in twelve different seminaries. Of these thirty-three are General Conference students.

Negotiations are under way to use two hundred C.P.S. men as attendants on cattle boats. UNRRA has been working on the details of clearing these men with Selective Service, labor unions, and other interested groups. If approved, C.P.S. men will be able to volunteer for this service.

The need for attendants on cattle boats going to Europe continues to be urgent. Anyone interested in this service can obtain information from Mr. J. N. Byler, Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pa.

To date no British conscientious objectors have been released, according to the "Friends Intelligencer." There are thirty thousand who have been conditionally registered, a considerable number of which were to remain at their jobs, according to the draft act. A bill has been submitted to Parliament to release C.O.'s at the same rate that any army personnel is being released.

The Eastern District Young People have raised $303 of their $500 budget for this year. This money is to be used as follows: $300—new Janjgir Bible School; $100—gospel car for Miss Elsa Grantland; $100—Elim Gospel Beach, Swift Current, Canada. In addition to the $303, a contribution of $90 was made to C.P.S.

The Hoffnunsau, Hebron, and Buhler churches are planning a Young People's Union Institute for February 16-17. The three churches plan to combine their talent and efforts in the meeting and in future youth work. The institute will discuss the question: "Who are our youth? Where are they? Why a youth program? What is essential to a good youth program in our community?" The three areas of program, service, and fellowship will be discussed. Sunday evening at Hoffnungsau a joint meeting of the three churches is planned to which all are invited.

The Young People's Union will have its first joint meeting with representatives from each of the Conference districts on February 19-21. This is the time when the General Conference Boards will have a joint meeting and the Young People's Union will also meet. The meeting will be held at Newton, Kansas.

Volunteers of the youth group of the Soudertown, Pa., church recently made house-to-house requests for soap for relief. The result of the campaign was 2,031 bars.

The third session of the Young People's Institute of the Eastern District Conference is tentatively scheduled for March 3. At this time the annual Youth Fellowship Banquet of the district is also scheduled. In normal years more than two hundred young people attend this banquet.

The Role of a Saint

It is recorded that Francis of Assisi—12th century Italian friar, founder of Franciscan Order—toward the end of his life gathered his disciples and beseeched them, "Let us begin, brethren, to serve our Lord God, for until now we have made but little progress." Such was the mind of a saint after a lifetime of earnest, sincere, careful search after devotion to the will of God. The dynamic, consecrated John the Baptist, after completing magnificently the mission for which God had sent him into the world, said of Jesus—without the falter of disappointment, "He must increase but I must decrease." (John 3:30). And these are the last words we have from him until the despondent message came from the dungeon of his death. The triumphant apostle and missionary, Saint Paul, with Macedonia and Romans behind him, wrote seriously from prison, "Unto me who am less than the least of all saints. . . ." (Ephesians 3:8).

The saint is never in the role of a saint. If so he is not a saint. Watch the man in C.P.S. who considers himself a better Christian than his fellow-campers. He is not a saint; he is wearing a saint's mask. It is rather difficult to spot a saint. Finding him, you will be surprised how uncommonly ordinary he is, after all you have heard about him. It is surprising how much time he has for other people. Spiritually, he is not distinguished by unusual faculties as much as by his abandonment to God's will for his life.

Members of the first Christian communities were called "saints." The name is used throughout the New Testament and is translated from a word which in other forms is translated, holy, sanctuary, sanctified. This original meaning then would indicate that a saint is a Christian set apart for a righteous work. It is a separation from sin and sinful living and the base things of the world.

It is this type of separation that the saint is aware of. It never keeps him aloof from other people. His brother he esteems better than himself. (Phil. 2:3). The ungodly person is his neighbor and his concern—a man like himself, except for the grace of God.

RELIEF

Beginnings in Ethiopia

Permission has been granted to use an abandoned cotton ginning mill at Nazarit, about a three-hour drive from Addis Ababa. Before actual operation of the medical unit can begin, machinery has to be moved out of the buildings, remodelling must be done and furniture built. Ervin Hooley states he finds the local people friendly and authorities cooperative. About the need he writes: "I saw the needy people by the thousands in the markets here the other day."

Clothing Arrives in Holland

Word has been received of the arrival in Holland of 456 bales of clothing. Peter Dyck writes: "We would like to say once again how thankful we are for the large quantities which have arrived in recent months and are continuing to arrive here. Distribution of these will keep us more than busy."

A Request

We wish to pass on to our readers a request from C. F. Klassen, recently rturned commissioner to Mennonite refugees in Europe:

"Our dear refugees in Denmark, Holland and Germany had in most cases brought with them their Bibles, but as they were fleeing almost all of them lost their personal possessions, and now many of them are without a Bible, Testament or hymn book. They asked me to share this with our congregations and to ask for Bibles, Testaments, hymn and worship books."

Surely many of our homes have a surplus of such books which would provide a valuable ministry to our brethren in Europe. Kindly send them direct to the Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pennsylvania. Please send only German religious books which are well-bound and in good condition.

War Sufferers' Relief Bulletin

We wish to recommend to our readers the War Sufferers' Relief Bulletin which is our standard monthly relief publication. This publication features significant letters and articles from our relief workers and is distributed without cost to anyone desiring information regarding Mennonite relief activities. Sample copies are available upon request; address all communications to Daniel B. Suter, Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pa.

C. P. S.

Wisconsin Unit to Close

Unit No. 122 at the Winebago State Hospital, Winebago, Wisconsin, will close sometime in February due to a returning labor supply and the release of a number of the unit members.

Closing of the camp at North Fork, California, originally scheduled for the end of January, has been moved to February 28. Also scheduled for closing on February 28 is the Hill City, South Dakota camp.

To Continue Administration of C.P.S.

There has been a question on the part of some as to how long the church agencies should continue the administration of C.P.S. now that hostilities have ended. As announced some time ago, the Friends have decided to end their administration of Friends camps and units as of March 2, 1946, six months after the signing of the Japanese surrender. The result of this decision is that the government will take over administration of Friends units on or before that date, although the Friends will continue to minister to their C.P.S. men in an unofficial capacity. The Brethren Service Committee decided to continue administration of C.P.S. at least until March 1, 1946, when the matter will again be reviewed. The Methodists considered the matter but took no action. A statement presented by the Peace Section in agreement with the C.P.S. Section at the recent Annual Meeting of the M.C.C. recommended that the M.C.C. continue its administration of C.P.S. until all men are released. This recommendation was based on two principles which were considered basic, namely: (1) That the Mennonite bodies entered upon the C.P.S. program in order to minister to their drafted men and that this need continues as great as ever, and (2) that the alternative service program continues to offer the opportunity to render constructive service in lieu of military service. The recommendation also urged that the program be concluded as speedily as possible.

Meanwhile, the possible closing date of C.P.S. remains a matter for conjecture. Since C.P.S. is under the Selective Service System, failure of the Congress to extend the Selective Service and Training Act before the Date of expiration, May 15, 1946, would mean the automatic ending of the program on that date. It now seems likely that the President's recommendation for extension of the Act will come up for Congressional action around the middle of March.

C.P.S. Briefs

Albert Bohrer, accompanied by Mrs. Bohrer, is touring a number of camps and units to talk on Puerto Rico. He was recently released from C.P.S. and rturned from a two-year period of service in Puerto Rico.

Rudolph Marek, a Mennonite minister from Chicago who was formerly a Catholic, is visiting a number of eastern units to speak on "How I Found Peace and Why I Chose a Peace Church."

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

Rev. D. J. Unruh visited the campus January 29-31 as a representative of the Foreign Mission Board. He interviewed prospective missionaries and spoke in chapel. President Ramseyer spoke before the Wyandot County Teachers Association on January 28th on the subject, "One Fellowship." He will teach a course in Lima on "Understanding Youth" in a Leadership Training Curriculum there, beginning February 4. Four faculty members, Shelly, Bohn, Bauman, and Ramseyer attended the Pastor's Convention at Columbus January 30. Rev. Shelly attended a meeting of the Cultural Conference committee in North Newton February 2. While there he also made preliminary plans for the Christian Workers Institute to be held on the Bluffton campus next summer. Mrs. Rosa Page Welch, Negro soloist, will give a sacred concert in the First Mennonite Church Sunday evening, February 17, at 7:30, under the auspices of the Bluffton College Vespers. This will be her second appearance in Bluffton.

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

Dr. Harold Gross recently attended a meeting of the planning committee for the Conference on Mennonite Cultural problems. The Cimonoce Emoh club held their regular meeting Tuesday evening. This is an organization of students interested in Home Economics. Miss Elva Ratzlaff is the instructor in this deparement and has charge of these activities. Members of the Home Economics I class are finishing their sewing and will soon start work in cooking. This year several boys have enrolled in this course, and while the girls made cotton dresses as their final project the boys made boys' shirts. The Home Economics II class finished the meal preparing part of their course by preparing and serving a three-course dinner to the faculty and faculty wives. They begin their sewing work with a unit on "making over" clothes. The Girls' Shop I class is studying a unit on social relationships and personal hygiene at present.

BETHEL COLLEGE

Two new student groups have been organized on the campus this year in response to needs felt in their respective departments. The new Christopher Dock Chapter of the Future Teachers Association, an affiliate of the National and Kansas State Educational Associations, has been recently installed under the direction of Dr. A. J. Regier, with a charter membership of seventeen prospective teachers. The new affiliation will offer various materials and privileges in "fostering greater interest in the teaching profession and upholding the high standards of true teachers." This group, headed by Mary Lou Franz (Inman), will after this year absorb the Elementary Teachers Club, of which Dorothy Duerksen (Goessel) has been president. The Offistocrats, with Professor Bargen as sponsor, organized during the first quarter to give the commercial students supplementary knowledge of "things pertaining to business and practical suggestions for office procedures." Dorothy Anne Goering (Moundridge) serves as president.

Bible Week, March 17-22

Rev. J. N. Smucker, pastor of the Bluffton, Ohio, Mennonite Church and Rev. D. H. Bittinger, editor of the Church of the Brethren organ, The Gospel Messenger, will be the speakers at the annual Bible Week, beginning the evening of March 17 (Sunday) and continuing through March 22.

The addresses of Reverend Bittinger, formerly a missionary, are to center around the missionary challenge of our time. Reverend Smucker, now president of the General Conference—and to many remembered as the former pastor of the Bethel College Church—in his lectures will discuss the book of Philippians and present character studies. A more detailed announcement will follow later.

MENNONITE BIBLICAL SEMINARY

Rev. D. J. Unruh was here on February 1 and 2 in the interest of our Foreign Mission Board. He has also been visiting our other campuses to present the cause of Missions. This personal presentation of Missions from one of our board members was welcome. It can not be too often that our young people have the challenge of foreign mission work placed before them in such a direct manner. Rev. Erland Waltner is spending his vacation with us. He is using these few weeks for study. Gerhard Neufeld traveled to Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, to meet the C.P.S. men there. Maynard Shelly spoke at the Silver Street Mennonite Church near Goshen, Indiana, the last Sunday of January, and Arnold Regier spoke at the First Mennonite Church here the same Sunday.

JOTTINGS

R. M. ZIGLER TO SPEAK

R. M. Zigler, Executive-Secretary of the Brethren Service Committee and one of the best-informed men on starvation conditions as they exist in Europe today, will speak in the Memorial Hall, North Newton, Sunday evening, February 17 at 8 P. M.

—Rev. P. H. Richert, Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board, suffered a stroke on the morning of February 5th. He was taken to the Bethesda Hospital, Goessel, Kansas. On the morning of February 6th his condition was reported to be about the same as the day before. The report stated that he was able to take a little nourishment. Rev. Richert, who is seventy-four, has been a member of the Board of Foreign Missions since 1910 and has served as its secretary since 1911. For thirty-five years he has served as Elder of the Tabor Mennonite Church, and most of the time since 1915 he has been a member of the Board of Directors of Bethel College. Besides this he has served in a great many other capacities.

—First Church, Halstead, Kansas, located a carload of flour for relief. This will probably be sent to France.—Mrs. Carl Dettwieler, Corr.

—Buhler Church, Buhler, Kansas: On February 3rd we had the privilege of listening to a sacred musical program given by Mr. and Mrs. Gibs, a blind couple from Hutchinson.—Mrs. F. F Matthies, Corr.

—The 1946 Middle District Conference is to be held June 8-11 at the First Mennonite Church, Nappanee, Indiana. The young people are to be in charge of the program Saturday evening. The conference theme is: "The Churches' Supreme Opportunity in the World Today."

—Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio: For an evening service, an hour of hymn singing, with explanations of the hymns, was conducted by Russell A. Lantz of Bluffton College.

—Menno Church, Lind, Washington, has collected 1,040 pounds of lard for relief in Europe. The congregation is looking forward to the installation of a light plant. Planning has begun for the Pacific District Conference to be held here the latter part of June.—Mrs. Henry J. Franz, Corr.

—First Church, Monroe, Washington: The Women's Missionary Society canned and shipped 233 gallons of fruit and vegetables and three gallons of jam to the C.P.S. camps. They also sent 160 pounds of clothing for relief to the Mennonite Central Committee. The Seattle staff of Youth for Christ is conducting a youth rally in Monroe once a month. The first rally was held on January 10th in the largest auditorium in Monroe, which seats over seven hundred people. The place was filled to capacity.—Eleanor Goerz, Corr.

—Eden Church, Moundridge, Kansas: Rev. C. E. Krehbiel has consented to serve our church as pastor during the absence of Rev. Walter Gering, who expects to leave for Europe in about two weeks.—Ellis Goering, Corr.

—First Church, Beatrice, Nebraska: Colored slides of the Grace Children's Home, Henderson, Nebraska, where shown on January 27. This program was sponsored by the ladies mission societies. On February 3rd the C.E. sponsored a musical program, which was given by the "Cretonians" of Crete, Nebraska. We had a full church for this program. —Margaret Albrecht, Corr.

—Deer Creek Church, Deer Creek, Oklahoma: A farewell service was held at the parsonage on January 23. All that were able were there to bid goodbye to Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Miller. We are now without a pastor and feel their absence greatly. However, Rev. John Loewen from Bethel College filled the pulpit this morning, February 3, and we were all blessed with his message of "I Am the Door."—Mrs. W. E. Reusser, Corr.

—The Salem Church of Wisner, Nebraska, in cooperation with the Plum Creek Mennonite Church of Beemer has successfully undertaken a project of buying a carload of flour for relief in Europe. The collections for this purpose in the Wisner church amounted to $776.50. This will be used to pay for one-third of the flour, the Beemer church paying for the other two-thirds. The remainder will be sent to the M.C.C. for relief.—Mrs. Wm. R. Leisy, Corr.

—Second Church, Paso Robles, California: We have just concluded a most enjoyable and spiritually profitable week of meetings with Rev. J. M. Franz, our Minister-at-Large, and Rev. H. J. Brown, senior missionary from China, as our speakers. After more than forty years of service, the Rev. F. F. Jantzen handed his resignation to the chairman of our Board of Trustees on the first Sunday of the New Year, to take effect March 1. It was considered at a special meeting and accepted. At the request of the Board, the Deacon and one other member were added to their number to form the committe to seek the Lord's guidance in the matter of a new pastor. Brother Franz gave them valuable counsel when he was with us. One of the most interesting of our C.E. programs during 1945 was the "Absent Member Program." Themes were sent to us from southern California, France, and the Pacific, and musical numbers were given by representatives chosen by members in Georgia, Stockton, and the Bay Region. With the exception of three, who were sent out quite recently, all of our boys have been returned to the United States and discharged. Those who are still out are all in the Pacific.—Mrs. W. N. Claassen, Corr.

—Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota, is installing an electronic tower chime and music equipment. The same equipment will make possible the reinforcement of all services in the main auditorium as well as their transmission to the mothers' room and the basement when desired. It is not intended that regular services be sent out through the tower reproducers, which are capable of putting out sound at a high power level; rather they are to reproduce the chimes from the pipe organ as well as organ music. At present tower music is being played every Wednesday night, which is church night in Mountain Lake, at seven and every Sunday morning at nine o'clock. The addition of an automatically timed striking chime is also being planned in connection with which the Westminster Chime may be employed. It is also possible to play recordings through the system. Besides chime and organ pickups, microphones are provided at the pulpit, a general purpose mike for Sunday School and general use, and at the basement platform. A remote volume control will make it possible to control the system from the basement. The equipment is being installed by John A. Warkentin, one of the members of the church.—Helen Penner, Corr.

—Meadow Church, Colby, Kansas: Rev. William C. Voth of Lorraine is serving us three Sundays a month.

Mrs. G. A. Linscheid
222 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

The fourth Sunday he goes to Colorado. The three Sundays he is here we have evening meetings in which we study the Book of John. Rev. Voth also has charge of a catechism class. The community, under the direction of the Mennonite group, gathered wheat for relief and sent it. The Sewing Circle is busy sewing for relief. On January 24th Rev. Solomon Mouttet of the "Go Ye Mission" showed us pictures of the work. Three different groups, namely the Mission Covenant, the Mingo Community Sunday School, and the Meadow Church participate in a "community C.E." on the last Sunday of the month. We have a blessed time together. Martha Burkhalter was with us in December. The Sewing Circle made a few things for use in India.—Mrs. Dan N. Epp, Corr.

—Friedensberg Church, Avon, South Dakota: The young men who were in the service are now returning home from all parts of the world. There have been no casualties. Our church has given generously for relief, missions, and other Christian work so that the offerings the past year were the largest in the history of the church. "Something New" in bedding or clothing for relief was the project of the Mission Society this month. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ewert and two small daughters are attending Grace Bible Institute, preparing themselves for Christian service. The Ewerts were engaged in farming but felt the call of the Lord very definitely. Rev. Paul Dahlenburg also is a student at Grace Bible Institute. He formerly served a church at Langdon, North Dakota, but felt the need for further preparation and study. On January 21st H. G. Quick of Wichita, Kansas, and Mr. and Mrs. Art Christman of Aberdeen, South Dakota, presented to us the work of the Rural Bible Crusade. We were impressed by the need and importance of this work. At the annual meeting the church adopted the 100 Per Cent Church Paper Plan. It also decided to renovate completely the church building.—Anna Unruh, Corr.

—During January the Relief Clothing Center at Newton received around twenty-three thousand pounds of clothing. This is more than was received in any previous month since the center was opened about a year ago, the largest amount received during one month previously being sixteen thousand pounds. Mrs. Selma Linscheid, director, attributes the increased amount to an increasingly widespread concern and to the fact that supplies can now be sent across. In regard to the present blanket drive, she suggests that all blankets and quilts be sent directly to the M.C.C. at Akron. They should be sent directly rather than brought to the center. Mrs. Linscheid reports that a carload of clothing is about ready to go again The center shipped one about three weeks ago. Mrs. Linscheid stated that some of the clothing which comes in is in very good condition; other clothing is not. Local people are very helpful in mending, washing, and ironing.

—"CHRISTIAN COMMANDOS, A Gospel Team of Ex-service men pulling a 'Blitz for Christ'" was the heading on the leaflet describing the service held at the St. John Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio, February 3-6. Main speaker was Claude H. Curtis (ex-U.S. Marine). Two ex-U.S. Navy men and one ex-U.S. Coast Guard man were also featured on the announcement. A youth rally was held Sunday, —The Salem Church, Freeman, South Dakota, has two mission societies which plan their programs for the entire year, thereby eliminating the traditional stewing around to "get up the next program." Two very attractive booklets, prepared by the pastor's wife, give the programs for the entire year.

—Sichar Church, Cordell, Oklahoma: We have gathered lard and clothing for relief. We are studying Ephesians in our mid-week Bible study, which is led by Rev. M. H. Kliewer. We are also planning a "Youth for Christ Rally" which is to be held in this community February 19.—Esther Kliewer, Corr.

—Zion Church, Elbing, Kansas: Our pastor, Rev. H. J. Dyck, held services at the Eden Church, Inola, Oklahoma, from January 27 to February 1. In his absence Arnold Nickel, a ministerial student at Bethel College, filled the pulpit. We have organized a local Mutial Aid to assist the returning C.P.S. boys with loans. "Our Society Offers Fellowship for All" was the C.E. topic February 3. Much zeal and adventure for the future were displayed during the open discussion. The young people with P. C. Andres, recreational director, plan to spend one evening soon at the clothing depot in Newton, polishing shoes.—Mrs. Louis A. Janzen, Corr.

—Walton (Kansas) Church: February 3rd we had a record Sunday School attendance. There were 141 persons present. The Mennonite Bible Academy chorus, under the direction of Elvera Voth, furnished our special music that Sunday. The mission society spent February 1st patching clothing that was collected in our community for relief.—Mrs. Ronald von Riesen, Corr.

—Mennonite Bible Mission, Chicago: "The Railway Express just picked up three boxes of clothing to go to our eastern clothing depot. Every garment sent from the Mission here is clean and in good condition. We give this clothing in the name of Christ and therefore every garment must be in such a shape that we can be proud of it.—An item in the mission's newsletter.

—"We are informed by the Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana, that they still have a few 1946 Higley's Sunday School Lesson Commentaries ($1.25) and a few Daily Talks with God for 1946 ($1.00). Anyone desiring either of these items should order soon, while they still have stock. 1946 catalogs are still available, and anyone who didn't receive one, or who has lost theirs, may have one for the asking."

The Mennonite

OL. LXI, NO. 8

Photo by Philip Gendreau, N.Y.

FEB. 19, 1946

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point-of-view:

THE REVISED STANDARD VERSION of the New Testament, released this month, and heralded by its sponsors as "The Most Important Publication of 1946," will prove its worth to the degree that it makes the Word of God clear and beautiful. It's a long story from around 1380 when John Wycliff produced the first English version of the Scriptures. In 1611 a group of scholars, officially chosen by the Church of England, brought out the "King James Version," which to this day has enjoyed a wider use among Protestants than any other version. But for the first fifty years it too had hard going (see Christian Advocate, Vol. 121, No. 6). It was charged with " 'bad theology, bad scholarship, bad English.' " "Even in our own day that form of the Lord's Prayer which is most widely used among English-speaking Christians is not the translation which appears in the King James Version of the New Testament." In 1881 the English Revised Version of the New Testament appeared and in 1885 the Old Testament. American scholars had agreed not to produce their own version until at least 1901. In that year the American Revised Version came out. And now in 1946 it is the new Revised Standard Version of the New Testament with the Old Testament to follow in 1950. Time comments that the new version will "please those who want accurate scholarship, phrased so that it would read well aloud." It points out that the translators of the King James version "mauled the English language by following the Greek literally, like a dull schoolboy renderingHomer." Those who have been tempted to make their translations from German into English too literal may well understand how such "mauling" can happen. Except where God is addressed, the "Thee" and "Thou" are gone in the new version. In addition the use of prepositions has been corrected. The Christian Advocate describes the result as "a page of material as graphic as the best newspaper, as plain as a dinner conversation, and as dignified as Old English script." There are assurances that the new version has such dignity and nobility that no clergyman need be embarrassed about reading it in church services. It is melodious in sound and easy to understand. W. E. Garrison comments: ". . . if we are to read (as well as sing) 'with the spirit and with the understanding also,' it is important to have a translation which says in English what the original writers said in Greek, and which says it so that ordinary people can understand it." How the new version will bear up under use remains to be seen. (Copies may be ordered for two dollars a copy from either: The Mennonite Publication Office, 722 Main, Newton, Kansas, or the Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana.)

ADMISSION of one's own faults makes for confidence. Young people are by nature immature people. In fact, so are all people. It is this unfair comparison that can bring distress to young folks. We say unfair, for if older people were a little more sensitive about the standards of their Father in Heaven, they too would not appear quite so mature, but rather imperfect. As it is, parents and other adults are tempted to pose as models of perfection to younger people. This they plainly are not, and any refusal to admit this means a break in vital fellowship. Admission of faults similar or identical to those of another gives an assurance of empathy or "Einfuehlung." It makes people feel, "Well, we are alike." That is fellowship. Furthermore, it often gives confidence and calmness to the one struggling with a problem, for he is helped to realize that someone has had this same spiritual struggle and has come out of it victoriously, or is gradually winning the victory, or is confidently expecting the victory. Admission of faults helps us to fill our place in the great, common human family in a gracious and helpful way.

THE JOTTINGS can and ought to give a complete and up-to-date news coverage of all the churches participating in the work of the General Conference. It is evident that the readers need and desire such jottings. We have sent two letters to all correspondents, and three to most of them, asking them to send in a brief, interesting jotting at least once a month. In January forty-nine or 30 per cent of 163 churches sent in such write-ups. Definite improvement is indicated by the fact that in the first fourteen days of February forty-five, or 28 per cent, of the churches had responded. If as many respond during the last fourteen days of the month, the percentage for February will be 56 per cent, or 26 per cent more than January. By February 14, thirty-two churches, or 20 per cent, were still listed as having no correspondent. About that many pastors and church leaders have not yet responded to a letter of January 2, which asked about the appointment of a correspondent. Pastors and correspondents play a vital part in giving the readers a full news coverage of what the churches are doing.

Good Gifts for Our Children

by Mrs. Willis E. Rich

"If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children . . ." Matt. 7:11a. Goodspeed's American translation brings the same thought in these words "So if you, bad as you are, know enough to give your children what is good . . ." Still more freely interpreted, one might say, that it is taken for granted that ordinary, run-of-the-mill parents, such as we are, with all our faults, know enough to give our children what is good. Perhaps it would be a good exercise for us to examine the implications of this thought. What are the "good things" which we give to our children?

During the years just past and at the present time, many parents have begun to feel seriously that something has been overlooked, that parents have not been giving their children all the "good things" they need.

Marcelene Cox has said "In raising children it is necessary to know the fundamental rules; after that nothing takes the place of love and inspiration." I would like to ask, "Are not love and inspiration the fundamental rules?"

Let us begin with the premise that all thoughtful Christian parents wish for their children a happy, useful life. In order to attain that ideal the parents have an obligation. They must help and inspire their children to find the right relationship to God. This will bring inner peace which is a requisite for happiness. They must help their children by example and inspiration, to have kingdom relationships to man,—all mankind, including their nearest neighbor, and their farthest. This will lead to a useful life. Jesus summed it all up by saying that the first and most important commandment was to love God with all our being; and the second was similar to it, that is, to love our neighbor as we love ourselves (which is a very great deal.) This same principle of our attitude towards God and our fellowman is also laid down in the Ten Commandments.

How have we met this obligation of helping our children to understand and accept these fundamentals? We have churches, for one thing. That is one of the "good things" the parents have maintained for their children. Many times the churches are very imperfect, the Bible instruction haphazard, and yet, our churches are one of the best helps we have. We are profoundly grateful for them. But we all know we cannot leave the whole task of helping our children to learn right relationships to the church. There is so much to know about the world. In order to love and understanding our fellow-man, many kinds of knowledge and information are very useful. Solomon recognized his need for wisdom and knowledge, and then God commended him because he "asked not wisdom and knowledge for himself, but that he might judge the people." He needed it especially in order to do what was right towards others: "this Thy people which is so great, " II Chron. 1:10. There is a fine verse in Proverbs 14:6, "knowledge is easy unto him that understandeth," and verse 8 "the wisdom of the prudent is to understand his way." In one of the finest prophesies concerning Jesus in Isaiah, great stress is laid upon His wisdom, knowledge and understanding. In the story of the four boys in the book of Daniel we read that God gave them knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom. They even knew about proper nutrition. A solemn warning is given in Hosea 4:6, "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge."

In order to meet this need. we have established schools. We may include all schools from our elementary public schools on through to Bible shools, seminaries, colleges and universities. Schools, I believe are among the "good gifts" that have been given to our children.

Isn't that enough? Think of the enormous amounts of money we spend for churches and schools, and the army of people we hire to keep them operating, and the boards we elect to see that they are efficient and effective. Our children are very fortunate. The past several generations have had these fine opportunities in America and in many other countries.

Anyone who will take the time to look at the cover picture of this issue for a full minute will find it well worth while. What are some of the thoughts that come to your mind? Here is eager youth, with dreams for a good and full life. Here is buoyant spirit, ready to try anything that holds promise; not afraid of difficulties, but regarding a problem as a challenge—something to be solved. Here is energy and laughter, optimism and ambition, and the whole outlook is toward the future. Here is also high aspiration, great capacities for loyalty and devotion. This is our youth to whom we older folks are supposed to have sense enough to give what "good things" they need.

We cannot leave it all up to institutions. It comes down to a more personal thing. What help are we giving our children in our homes? Naturally we think of the material things needed for their physical health, growth, comfort and protection. These are "good things" which are required of parents to give their children. But I wonder if we sometimes place too many limitations on their mental life. We may be guilty of a kind of bondage which requires them to think just what we think. A new thought, that is, new to us, is often a shock to parents, and pronounced dangerous, when actually, it may be a revelation from God. A great illumination is often the experience of younger men and women, who are still teachable. We have reason to believe that Jesus chose men of his own age to be his inner circle of twelve disciples. He had hopes of imparting his great gospel to young men. And what a time they had later on, convincing older folks of what they had "heard, had seen with their eyes, had looked upon and their hands had handled, of the Word of Life." I John 1:1. Many of our young people are thinking more seriously these days than they have for many years. If a doubt is expressed concerning a long-accepted belief, the response on the part of the parents may be indignation, annoyance, and rebuke. Very recently I heard of a young girl saying "The less I tell my mom and dad, the better. I never tell them anything." What a pity, what a lost opportunity! Doubt is a healthy sign that some actual individual thinking is being done and presents an opportunity for discussion of the subject. This may prove very illuminating for all concerned. It may re-establish the truth which was called into question and satisfy the doubting mind, or it may reveal a false premise which needs to be upset in order that the path may be cleared for a forward step. Blessed are those parents who can think things through together with their. children One of the important needs of our children is that they can openly and freely discuss any preplexing and bewildering problem without being rebuked. It is not enough to support and maintain churches and schools, but there must be a home where friendship and companionship are as important as bed and board.

We can learn something from Mary and Joseph that illustrates what we are thinking about. They had gone a day's journey from Jerusalem before they began to inquire and search for Jesus among their kinsfolk and acquaintance. This shows the complete trust and confidence Mary and Joseph had in their twelve-year-old son, that he would be in the right company and do what was right. God had chosen carefully the home in which His Son should grow up, and Jesus had much freedom. When Mary could not understand something, she "pondered them in her heart." And Jesus had a great many "new thoughts" which the world is not yet accepting, which many of His followers still find is difficult or impossible to accept. Else, how could so many Christians take part in the war?

Right now there is a new spirit apparent in our churches, a greater seriousness on the part of its members, mostly because there is such a tremendous work to do in missions and relief. Our youth is sensing this and is gaining a new respect for the church and its message. For the first time they are studying our Mennonite heritage, and through our relief efforts we are in a larger measure supplementing "telling what Jesus did" with "doing what He said." We are often thrilled and impressed with the reports of the activities in our churches at the present time. A visit to a clothing depot gives ample proof of the "spirit that is within." This wholesome Christian activity is surely a "good thing" for our children, and we should make the most of it by sharing this work "in the name of Christ" as much as possible with our young people.

Those of us who have been church members for many years, who profess to have salvation and fellowship with our Saviour will take this injunction seriously and examine ourselves. Are we giving our children what they have a right to expect and what Jesus expects of us? "If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Father which is in heaven give good things to them that ask him."

LUCY WINCHESTER

Lucy Winchester by Christmas Carol Kauffman. Published by Mennonite Publishing House, price $2.00. May be ordered either from Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana, or from Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kansas.

This book, although it is a true life story, is not like ordinary books of biography. It is thrilling, thought-provoking, and impressive. So written that it holds the reader's interest throughout; it therefore more deeply impresses the reader with its moral and Christian teaching.

Beginning when Lucy was twelve years old, it tells of her life in Missouri, in a community where Christianity was hardly known and even discouraged. Brought up in a family which was ruled by an iron-handed father, who although he was honest and sincere, had no use for religion and even forbade his children from mentioning the word Christianity; nevertheless, Lucy had a yearning for God and his teachings. For forty years she strove to reach that goal of peace and happiness which only Jesus Christ can give. Forty years of disappointment in love, marriage, death, hard times, and the misery of a drunken husband. But the triumph she gained at the end was worth it, without a doubt, she believed, and is a challenge to the readers of this stirring story, that they might appreciate more the wonderful privileges of freedom of worship and Christian forefathers. It is truly one of those books which leaves a lasting impression on one's mind, one that can only spur the reader on in his Christian life.—Fred von Gunten

1946 Vacation Bible School

Now is the time to begin planning for this year's vacation Bible school. It is the duty of the church to build "strong walls in Zion" that shall be able to stand against the assaults of the Evil One.

Because Vacation Bible school is the one opportunity of the Church to have the child in a period of consecutive days for spiritual training, we wish to encourage every church throughout our conference to lay hold of this opportunity and to plan now for a vacation Bible school this summer.

In order to be of specific help to churches who need help in such a project, our Western District Vacation Bible School Staff, under the auspices of the Western District Education Committee, is preparing a handbook for the vacation Bible school worker of 1946. .This handbook can be ordered now from Joanna S. Andres, 700, East Fifth, Newton, Kansas, the booklet—however—will not be mailed until after March 1. In order to meet part of the printing expenses, 25 cents per booklet is asked.

To those in the Western District who are looking for an announcement of another vacation Bible school workshop as was held in 1945, we wish to say that it seems wise to us to expand our efforts into a wider area this year in order to be of help to those churches who need assistance and who would not be able to attend a local workshop. In 1947 we hope to have another workshop "on the floor."

We trust, in throwing open our "workshop" through the medium of the printed page in our publications and through the planned handbook, the breath of God might make alive the letters set on white until the "shop" becomes astir with His Spirit working in the heart of every parent a new determination "this year my child shall go" and in every teacher a new consecration to teach the Holy Word of the living God—the rightful heritage of every boy and girl! The Western District Vacation Bible School Staff, Mrs. J. E. Entz, Mrs. W. H. Ebersole, Mrs. P. S. Goertz, Mrs. Arnold Regier, Mrs. R. G. Warkentin, Miss Marjorie Ruth, Joanna S. Andres.

Jottings

—Bethel College Church: Dr. Walter Sikes, Associate Professor of Philosophy and Religion in Berea College, Berea, Kentucky, was the guest pastor Sunday morning, February 10. Dr. Sikes is a minister in the Christian Church and has held pastorates in Texas, Tennessee, and New York. He is spending the year on leave with the American Friends Service Committee, and while here at Bethel, he spoke before the student peace conference sponsored by the Kansas Institute of International Relations. The Church Council met February 6, to discuss the question of mutual aid. The Board of Deacons and two other members, to be appointed by the chairman of the council, were asked to serve as a local aid board. Their immediate problem will be to study the needs of the returning C.P.S. men and to draw up plans to be presented to the church for consideration.

—The First Church, Burns, Kansas, has sent 180 quarts of canned goods, 21 pounds of lima beans, 6 gallons of lard, and one box of oatmeal for use in C.P.S. The women have done some mending for relief.—Mrs. Sam Stucky, Corr.

—Fairfield (Pa.) Church: Rev. George S. Stoneback and the writer attended the third quarterly conference held at Perkasie.—Henry Burkhard, Corr.

—First Church, Hillsboro, Kansas: Last Monday morning, February 4, thirteen comforters and fifteen blankets were shipped to Akron, Pa.—Mrs. B. A. Goertz, Corr.

—Emmaus Church Whitewater, Kansas: Rev. Theodore Epp, pastor of the Back to the Bible broadcast, Lincoln, Nebraska, will conduct evening meetings in our church, beginning Sunday, February 17 and continuing through February 24. Everyone is cordially invited.—Susan Thiessen, Corr.

—Robert Kreider, who until recently helped administer the M.C.C. units in mental hospitals, left February 9 on the S. S. Argentine for Europe, where he hopes to do relief work in France and if the doors open in Germany. Mrs. Robert Kreider will reside at 1230 Amsterdam Avenue, Box 210 New York 27. Robert is the son of Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Kreider.

—Thomas Cornelius is the name of the son born to Rev. and Mrs. Donovan Smucker, February 5.

—Eden Church, Inola, Oklahoma: Rev. H. J. Dyck from Elbing, Kansas, recently conducted special meetings in our church. The morning Bible study of John, chapters 13 to 17 inclusive was in German. Rahlen Unrau, who was in C.P.S. for many years, is back, but his brother Walter is still in C.P.S. camp.

—Bethany Church, Kingman, Kansas: During the first half of its fiscal year the Bethany Mission Society prepared, packed, and shipped to the clothing center nearly 500 pounds of new and used clothing. Three hundred ten quarts of fruits and vegetables and nearly 200 pounds of lard and dried foods were sent for European relief. The children's mission project netted $221.52. This was sent to India for Bibles for school children. The society has adopted the 100 Per Cent Plan for the Missionary News and Notes. This has been helpful in stimulating interest in our own and other societies.—Mrs. E. Albrecht, Corr.

—Inman Church, Inman, Kansas: The church is planning on a week of services, beginning March 3, with Rev. H. P. Fast, Orienta, Oklahoma, as guest speaker. It is also planning to celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary some time this spring. Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Friesen from American Falls, Idaho, were recent visitors at the Sunday services. Mr. Friesen is a former principal of the Inman grade school.—Mrs. G. B. Martens, Corr.

—Zion Church, Donnellson, Iowa: The Mission Society has shipped 166 pounds of used clothing for relief and has made 69 children's garments for relief. Many of these garments were made from feed sacks.—Pearl Krebill, Corr.

—United Mennonite Church, Waterloo, Ontario: On February 3, a congregational meeting was held at which the discussion centered on the action to be taken by the church towards members who had joined the active forces. After some deliberation it was decided that we, and the returned men, set aside a day on which we rededicate ourselves to God and also reaffirm our loyalty to the principles of our faith from which we erred. At the annual church meeting it was disclosed that over $9,000 had been raised for various missionary and church enterprises. On January 27, Rev. and Mrs. Jacob Braun, of our church, celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The congregation surprised the family by arranging a church supper at which occasion they showered them with many gifts.—Herbert P. Enns, Corr.

—Bethany Church, Quakertown, Pa., Robert M. Landis, for many years superintendent of the Bethany Sunday School and active in Eastern District young people's work and retreat activities, was elected deacon in January. He was ordained February 3.

—North Star Church, Drake, Saskatchewan; Brother C. F. Klassen was in our church on January 26th and gave a report on his recent trip to Europe. The offering for refugee work that day totaled $385.45. Rev. H. T. Klassen of Eigenheim, near Rosthern, will give a series of lectures on Galatians in our church from February 18-21.—V. Schroeder, Corr.

—First Church, Paso Robles, California: Recent visitors and speakers here were: Rev. D. C. Wedel and Mr. Willis Rich from Kansas, Rev. J. M. Franz, Minister-at-large of the Pacific District Conference, and Missionary H. J. Brown (China), who is now making his home in Freeman, South Dakota. Rev. Orlo Kaufman, pastor, gave a short address on "Released Time for Religious Education" at a program given by our local school at the Baptist church.—Gus Toevs, Corr.

—Winton, California: Missionary H. J. Brown was with us January 31st and February 1st and told us of his work and confinement by the Japanese. Tomorrow Rev. J. M. Franz is to begin a series of meetings.—N. A. Koehn, Corr.

—First Church, Aberdeen, Idaho: In memory of their daughter Marion who was killed in an airplane accident, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Toevs and sons have presented the church with an electric Hammond organ. This is very much appreciated by the church. The organ will probably be delivered in June. We were very happy to have Rev. D. C. Wedel and Mr. Willis Rich in our church Sunday morning and evening. Rev. Wedel preached Sunday morning on "The Voice Crying in the Wilderness" and Sunday evening on "Come and See." Mr. Rich spoke to the young people's meeting Sunday evening.—Arnold E. Bartel, Corr.

—Emmanuel Church, Moundridge, Kansas: Total contributions during our past fiscal year amounted to $3,732.72. This made $43.91 per active member, the highest ever. We have purchased a house for our church parsonage. It is to be moved from Galva to Moundridge as soon as a lot is secured.—Marie Wedel, Corr.

—Grace Church, Dallas, Oregon: William Bartel, baritone of Portland, Oregon, gave a sermon in song on the evening of February 3, singing such songs as, "Out of Darkness into Light," "The Fool Hath Said, 'There Is No God,' " "The Living God," "Place Your Hand in the Nail-Scarred Hand," "The Sinner and the Song," "The Ninety and Nine," "I Want My Life To Tell," "I'd Rather Have Jesus Than Anything," and "My God and I." After the program all the local churches met at our church for a singspiration Missionary Henry Brown was in our church February 7 to 10.—Mrs. Dave Balzer, Corr.

—First Church of Christian Mennonite, Moundridge, Kansas: At the February meeting of the Sisters' Mission Society, Miss Leonore Friesen told very interestingly of her experiences as a migrant worker. She also showed a few slides of migrant families and workers.—Linda V. Kaufman, Corr.

—Zoar Church, Goltry, Oklahoma: Once a month our church has charge of the Sunday evening services at the Boys' Reformatory at Helena. The institution has 170 inmates. Five young people plan to be baptized for the first Sunday in March.—Mrs. J. W. Bergen, Corr.

—Goessel Church, Goessel, Kansas: On February 7 the women did mending for relief. They got the clothing from the relief clothing center, Newton. They had another all-day mending on February 15. On February 9 they took 80 pounds of bedding to the express office to be shipped to Akron.—Margaret R. Schroeder, Corr.

—Hoffnungsau Church, Inman, Kansas: Excavation of the basement for the parsonage was begun on February 12. The men worked all day while the women of the church busied themselves with mending and altering several baskets of clothing which had been gotten from the relief clothing center in Newton. They also served the noon meal. The mission societies are busy making comforters and purchasing blankets for relief.—Mrs. J. V. Regier, Corr.

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

For Conscience Sake is the title of a book by S. C. Yoder which has just been reprinted by the Herold Press, Scottdale, Pa. ($2.00). It deals with the Mennonite migrations resulting from World War I. First it follows the Canadian Mennonites to Mexico and Paraguay, and then those from Russia to Canada, Brazil and Paraguay. It is a very readable account which has been enjoyed by many.

Dutch Mennonites Appreciate Contact with American Mennonites in the "Singelgirk" at Amsterdam which was reprinted in a Dutch Mennonite paper. De Tolk, the periodical of the Amsterdam Mennonite Church, comments thus: Even though the Dutch Mennonites have experienced the war in a different way than the American Mennonites and are inclined to be realistic about it, they are to a certain degree willing to listen to the American testimony. More than that, it is a re-consideration of the Mennonite principles of the past ages. The Dutch writer hopes that discussions of these matters will continue throughout 1946 but in a brotherly and tolerant way.

Back in the Ukraine. A letter of September 23, 1945, written by a Mennonite of the Ukraine relates conditions in what was formerly a "Mennonite paradise." When the German army evacuated the Ukraine in 1943 they burned down every house in every village, applying the scorched earth policy. The writer was one of the few who returned to his home village. He writes that he is now living in a dug-out and that Polish settlers are establishing homes there.

In Memoriam. The periodical of the Mennonite Church of Amsterdam publishes an incomplete list of those members of the church who have suffered violent death during the time of the German occupation. Most of the fourteen listed died in concentration camps.

In Great Need of Bicycles. The Dutch people and especially the ministers are in great need of bicycles, their most significant means of transportation. Again and again in their letters they ask either for bicycles or bicycle tires. Unfortunately American bicycle tires do not fit Dutch bicycles. If a permit for a shipment of bicycles to Holland could be obtained and arranged for, it would indeed be one of the most significant services that could be rendered to our brethren in Holland.

Shoe Soles Wear Out quickly when walking is the only means of transportation. Therefore regardless of the variety of items placed into a package or to whom the packages are sent the reply is unanimous: "We thank you especially for the shoe soles of genuine leather."

Germany May Soon Get Some Relief. According to the Christian Century special categories of German civilians will be permitted to receive relief supplies of medical and sanitary nature—soap, cod liver oil, powdered milk. It is to be hoped that this will actually materialize on a broader scale.

The Pro and Con of the Death Penalty is being discussed by the Mennonites of Holland. The death penalty abolished in 1870 has now been reintroduced. The Mennonite congregations are airing the problem in order to take a uniform stand on this issue.

How to find displaced Relatives in Europe. A number of agencies have been established in this country with the purpose of locating displaced friends and relatives in foreign countries. One of the nine agencies is the American Friends Service Committee, 20 South 12th Street, Philadelphia 7, Pa. Just send in the name and the former address of the person for whom you are looking.

"Clothed and in His Right Mind"

John had become mentally ill. He was admitted to a mental hospital, and there placed on one of the wards. He had to be secluded because of his extremely disturbed condition.

John was not malicious or asaultive, but seemed to have lost all sense of reasonable and proper behavior. He tore to shreds his mattress, blankets, and clothes. He seemed to enjoy mixing and playing with his food. In his speech he was entirely irrational—disregarding one's questions and orders. "Lemme out, I want to go over here to my brother's house. I haven't seen him for fifty billion years. Who's driving this Buick 8, anyway. What's your name, I used to know your dad over in the old country. Lemme see your fountain pen. You can't fool me. Gimme some tobacco, etc. . . ." flowed continuously from his mouth as fast as breath would allow, for most of each day and part of each night.

The hydrotherapy baths which he received every day soon began to show a soothing and quieting effect. Although he continued to be rather irrational and disturbed, his behavior was not as vehement or destructive. His improvement was definite though gradual.

At this time he began receiving electric shock treatments. These were given three times a week. Each one seemed to bring about further improvement in his condition. He began to give rational answers to one's questions, and would engage in intelligent conversation with attendants and other patients.

John is now almost ready to return home. He will be able once again to return to society and take his rightful place as a citizen. In dramatic contrast to his former condition, he is "clothed and in his right mind."

Not all mental patients respond to treatment as this one did. In fact, this is an exceptional case in this respect. But it is here given to emphasize that a mental hospital not only gives custodial care to patients, but actually administers treatments which in many cases are effective in restoring the patients to normalcy.

One handicap which makes it impossible to give the extended care and treatment that would otherwise be given, is the present lack of help. C.P.S. men who are working in the many mental hospitals during the war period are making possible a correspondingly larger amount of patient care, which may be regarded as significant in helping a few more of them to be restored to health.

Methods of care for mental patients and the daily tasks of mental hospital attendants, as well as many interesting facts about C.P.S. life in the hospital units are described and illustrated with pictures in the Anniversary Review, which may be ordered for $1.00 per copy from C.P.S. Unit No. 93, State Hospital, Harrisburg, Pa.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary

NEW LEADER FOR CALVARY CHURCH ARRIVES

Brother and Sister Walter McDowell, newly elected leaders for Calvary Church, at Mechanics Grove, Pa., have arrived from Markham, Ontario. Their address is: Quarryile, Pa. Route 2.

From December 30th to January 2nd the McDowells visited the Calvary people, and Brother McDowell brought a series of messages. After this visit the church extended a call with which the Board agreed, and this was acepted. They began their work February 1.

May the Lord richly bless these new workers. Will you please put Brother and Sister McDowell on your prayer list?

Progress Made with Church Auditorium

After a long unavoidable delay the United Mennonite Church at Toronto, Ontairio, could again take up the work of putting their church auditorium into shape and completing all other necessary arrangements, so that the worship services and Sunday School can now be held in their new location.

Rev. and Mrs. Arnold A. Fast, are the workers. They live upstairs, so that the church and home address is one and the same, 140 Victor Avenue, Toronto 6, Ontario.

There were considerable expenses involved in the renovation, and if you are interested the small group of worshippers would be grateful for your prayers and gifts.

The General Conference Mutual Aid Board

The purposes for which this Board is created:

1. To promote and provide a service of vocational counseling.

2. To provide information regarding job openings and jobs wanted.

3. To provide information regarding opportunities for small independent businesses.

4. To provide financial assistance on a mutual aid basis where there is a definite need for the purposes of establishing a modest home, getting an education, or getting a start in farming, business, or a profession.

5. To provide information regarding colonization and settlement opportunities.

How You Can Help:

1. Free-will contributions: Such contributions may be received from congregations, church auxiliaries, and individuals. These funds may be used for necessary expenses or for capital purposes.

2. Non-Interest Bearing Certificates: Such certificates are to be purchased by interested brethren who are willing to devote their money to the church and its youth without guarantee of interest for themselves. These certificates shall be issued in units of $100 or multiples thereof for a period of five years and shall be payable to the subscriber or his heirs.

3. Interest Bearing Negotiable Certificates: These certificates are to be issued in varying denominations bearing 2 per cent cumulative interest. This category gives brethren an opportunity to invest small amounts of money at a fixed interest rate for a period of ten years or repaid sooner at the option of the Board.

Send inquiries and contributions to: J. Winfield Fretz. Executive Secretary, Mutual Aid Board.

QUOTE

Dr. Walter E. Roush, Professor of Old Testament at the United Brethren seminary. Dayton, Ohio, says this about the way to peace:

"Oh, yes, there is a way, but no nation will try it. It is too simple. It was not proposed by a statesman or a diplomat. It is the Nazareth carpenter's plan of loving one's enemies, of doing good to those who despitefully use you. It is the willingness to go the second mile, to turn the other cheek. It is the plan which his followers profess but do not practice. It is the plan which statesmen dismiss with a wave of the hand as absolutely impractical. It means to give rather than to grasp, to build rather than to destroy, to feed rather than to starve."

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Vice President
Verney Unruh
Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

Need to Evaluate Anew the Youth Program in the Churches

by Mary Becker

(This is the fourth and final article on Mary Becker's study of the Young People's Program of the Western District Conference. By reading this general survey, it is possible to get an over-view of the youth activity in this district. However, it does not only apply to the Western District, but as well to various aspects of all churches in all districts.

This summary was made from a thesis written by Miss Becker at Biblical Seminary last year. At present, the Western District Young People's Committee is giving consideration to the plan of printing the thesis and making it available for youth groups and leaders in the church. E.L.)

After each of the five areas have been discussed, the survey continues with an investigation of other services rendered by the church to its youth, such as contacting of absent members, vocational guidance, financial aid to those desiring a higher education and service men, follow-up of new members (referring to those recently baptized), and special doctrinal teaching (aside from catechetical instruction). Aside from the first-named, it is discovered that little was done along these practical lines. A study is then made of the participation of Mennonite young people in other organizations, both those related to the church and those not related to it, Christian and secular—community organizations, district denominational activities, and interdenominational activities. The participation in the first two is considerable; the value of participation in the last-named apparently is not recognized. Note is taken of the new movement of holding youth conferences among a number of churches in neighboring communities within the district and its value.

Much has been done by and for youth in some of the Mennonite churches studied. Much remains to be done if the church is to fulfill completely its God-given mission, which is to minister, not only toward the salvation of the individual, but also to his growth in every phase of life after his salvation.

In the light of the investigation of the young people's program in Chapter II, it is the purpose of Chapter III to offer suggestions, directly or by way of example, for the strengthening of this program. Aims and objectives, methods of procedure, and standards of evaluation are suggested for the various areas of the religious education curriculum. These, of necessity, can be only suggestive since local situations and needs must in the end determine what a given church can and must do to be of greatest service. More specialized services—contact with absent members, vocational guidance, financial aid, follow-up of new members, doctrinal teaching, and planning for the returning service men—are touched upon only briefly since they require specialized study. The place of community and church-related organizations is also discussed and the suggestion made that among the young people of the Western District Conference churches there is a need for a centralized organization that will correlate the work of the various organizations now working independently. Last of all, the challenge facing the church in recognizing and meeting the needs of the young people is considered. It is noted that many churches are still unaware of the fact that young people face problems, often being able to see only the problems they present to the church.

From the study it is concluded that there is great need among the Mennonite churches studied to make a thorough and frank investigation of their program for the young people for whose development they are responsible, with the intention of analyzing the needs and problems and finding and adopting those methods and procedures that will adequately provide for the youth of the church in their worship, study, social, and recreational activities, personal Christian living, and service. To maintain the status quo and tenaciously cling to old practices is not the important thing; the important thing is to lead youth into the abundant life which Jesus came to bring.

It is a common misconception that youth are not interested in spiritual matters. Present trends and movements show that they are interested, that they respond when challenged by a vital Christianity. Too often, however, this challenge is not presented to them; or if is presented, it is done only in word and not in life. To such a challenge youth will not respond. They must be challenged by difficult and worthwhile tasks; and they must be made to feel that the fulfillment of those tasks depends upon them.

While the church has the right to direct and organize its youth it should make use of this right, lest, in failing to do so, it lose the right. While the church has its young people, it should provide adequately for their growth and training, lest, in failing to do so, it loses them. The Mennonite Church faces a great task and a great challenge, but with the help of the One who looks upon youth and says, "Follow me, and I will make you," it can meet that challenge and fulfill its task.

An Alphabetical Prayer

Almighty God, to Thee I pray,
Because Thou'rt Lord of all;
Consider kindly what I say,
Direct me lest I fall.
Enlarge my views of holy truth,
For I am blind through sin;
Guide me, my God in early youth,
Heaven's journey to begin.
Incline my heart to do Thy will,
Jehovah, Jesus Lord;
Keep me beneath Thy Spirit still,
Lead me by Thy own word.
Make me to love what's true and right,
Nor wisdom's ways to shun;
O guard me e'er in "faith's good fight,"
Preserve me till it's won.
Regard my earnest cry;
Quicken me, Lord, when dangers lower.
Support me in temptation's hour,
Teach me, good Lord, to die.
Unlike the wicked, I would Thy Vast mercies still implore;
Whenever Thy wishes they defy,
'Xtend Thy pardon more.
Youth, manhood, age, to Thee we owe,
Zeal, wisdom, love on us bestow.

Editor's Note: The above prayer is called an acrostic and appears in the English language as do a number of the Psalms in the Hebrew language. These are called acrostic Psalms. They were written to run through the Hebrew language and it is thought, this was done in order to aid in memorizing them.

Combatting Evil

J. H. Oldham in the Christian Newsletter, London, raises the question "whether the very evil against which we are fighting has not in insidious ways affected the life of the United Nations. The weakening of inner resistance to the lowering of moral standards may in the long run be as fatal to civilization as the onslaught of barbarous enemies ... The tides of barbarism threaten to engulf European civilization ... Our dilemma is this. Our task is to establish human relations on the basis of respect for the human person and to create a society animated by the spirit of tolerance. But a society of this kind can only grow if it is protected against the aggression of those who are completely indifferent to the human life and the value of the individual, and the problem is how these destructive forces can be resisted without a recourse to their own methods, and consequently without our succumbing inwardly to that which we are opposing. To this problem we have in our present state of intellectual, social, and spiritual development no adequate answer. An answer must at all costs be found if humanity is to survive." The answer, of course, of the nonresistant Christian Christian is to risk the aggression of the evildoer rather than to lower oneself to his methods. It is interesting to observe that those who chose the other horn of the dilemma have serious misgivings as to the effectiveness of their method.

—Gospel Herald

Thoughts about a Smile

A smile costs nothing, but gives much. It enriches those who receive, without making poorer those who give. It takes but a moment, but the memory of it sometimes lasts forever. None of us is so rich or mighty that he can get along without it, and none is so poor but that he can be made rich by it.

A smile creates happiness in the home, fosters good will in business, and is the countersigh of friendship. It brings rest to the weary, cheer to the discouraged, sunshine to the sad, and it is nature's best antidote for trouble.

Yet it cannot be bought, begged, borrowed or stolen, for it is something that is of no value to anyone until it is given away. Some people are too bored to give a smile. Give them one of yours, as none needs a smile so much as he who has no more to give.

—The Dove-Tale

Hold Music Institutes in C.P.S. Camps

Something new in the field of music instruction in C.P.S. were the music institutes conducted at the Hill City and Belton camps during November and December, and the reports from both camps are enthusiastic in their endorsement of the idea. For a three week period all other classes were suspended and a number of concentrated, practical music courses were conducted after working hours and on Saturdays.

Under the able direction of Alvin Reimer, high school music teacher from Buhler, Kansas, much enthusiasm was shown in the courses offered, which included sight singing, hymn study, chorister training, music appreciation, and private instruction in voice. In addition, assignees at each camp, more than 100 in all, participated in one or more of the activities. Many with an interest in music and with talents that were undeveloped had their first opportunity to study under a qualified teacher. Others who were not particularly interested in music discovered latent talents and a new interest. All had the opportunity to grow in appreciation of good music, and to develop skills which will be useful in future service in the church and community.

Interest and attendance was good for all of the classes, which met twice a week. Sight singing proved to be one of the most popular courses with a total enrollment of 68. The course started with music rudiments and continued into four-part reading in as high as four different keys. The hymnology course was a study of the great hymns of the church, and the chorister training course gave opportunity to learn the art of leading group singing. A total of 71 were enrolled for private voice lessons. Record albums owned by each camp were supplemented by additional ones borrowed from other camps for the music appreciation course. Several of the Classes purchased text books in order to continue study after Bro. Reimer left. At the end of both institutes, an "accomplishment night" was held in which those enrolled in the institute demonstrated their abilities for the enjoyment of the entire camp. Careful advance planning and the competance of the instructor contributed greatly to the success of the institutes. The general plan of the institutes may be suggestive to church groups wishing to improve the musical ministry of the church.—Released, Akron Headquarters, January 23, 1946.

"Differences of Opinion"

I am determined not to quarrel with other evangelical bodies of Christians, so long as I see the enemy at work, and Christ the Captain, calling me to take the field against him. Let us go and make mankind Christians first, and then discuss whether they shall be of our denomination or not.

I wish for the sake of sound doctrine that the brethren would love each other. For one I am determined to do so. I will not call any brother a fox though he should have some degree of management about him; nor a bear, though he may not have all the civility in the world; nor a snake in the grass, because he does not tell me all his plans.

If I really do fear that any one called a brother bears none of the lineaments of the first-begotten, I will tell the Lord my fears, and pray for him; and before I have done at the throne of grace, I will say, "Search ME, O God and know MY heart; try Me and know MY thought, and see if there be any wicked way in ME."—Nevins, The Gem, (Church of God)

Comrades on the Journey

Your path tonight is very dark,
For blown by winds of doubt
The fragile candle of your creed
Has flickered and gone out.

But see, my taper is aflame
With light enough for two!
And I will reach a comrade hand
To guide and steady you.

But in an hour of weakness when
My own small light shall fail,
Your hand and voice will give me strength
To keep the slippery trail.

Then it will be your lamp of faith
That guides another's feet;
So mankind climbs together toward
A bright, celestial street.

by Hazel M. Kerr

Youth Events

The Young People's Union officers are proceeding with plans for bringing students to America to study. Information is being gathered about the method of obtaining clearance from the State Department for the entrance of such students into this country. Complete information on the student, where he was born, his parents, their birthplace, his brothers and sisters, citizenship, and many other details are necessay. Added to that, three affidavits must be signed and two persons must be able to sponsor the prospective student financially during his residence in this country. The areas from which students are under consideration are India, Paraguay, Puerto Rico and Europe.

* * *

At the time of Dr. Langenwalter's resignation from the Board of Education, he also resigned as advisor of the Young People's Union. Since then, Dr. L. L. Ramseyer, President of Bluffton College, has accepted the appointment as Young Pople's Union advisor. Dr. Langenwalter's connection with young people's work has been a long one and one that has been very helpful. He has been closely connected with the development and organization of the Young Peoples Union since its inception in about 1926. The services of Dr. Ramseyer have been welcomed by the Y.P.U. executive committee recognizing that he maintains close contact with the young people of the church and is interested in their growth and development as true servants of the church.

* * *

Early in December the American Friends Service Committee ran a full page advertisement on the theme "If Thine Enemy Hunger" urging that German children and civilians of "enemy" nations receive food from the United States. The Service Committe office received 37,000 replies of which 45 or 1 to 820 expressed disapproval of the proposal. Also, although money was not requested, $27,000 was spontaneously contributed.

* * *

Not until very recently has it been possible to send relief supplies into Germany. The Allied military governments would not permit it. However, it is now possible to send blankets into Germany where the need is extreme. Young people in local congregations can help gather blankets, pack them and hurry them to the Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pennsylvania. The time is late and winter has been here many weeks.

The report of the Young People's Leaders Institute held at Walton, Kansas, December 28, 1945, is now being distributed to each pastor, Sunday School superintendent, C. E. society, each person who attended the meeting, and each Young People's officer in all the districts of the conference. It is hoped that this report will contain helpful ideas and suggestions and for this reason this distribution is being made.

* * *

Testimony before a joint Congressional meeting by General Eisenhower indicated that army men with thirty months of service as of April 30th will be separated from the army or aboard ship returning home by that date. Those with two years of service will be released by June 30. By the end of June, 93 per cent of the V-E Day army enrollment will be demobilized. In contrast, C.P.S. men with thirty-six months of service are not eligible for discharge until June, and approximately only 60 per cent will have been released according to the present schedule of discharge of 4E personnel.

* * *

Under consideration by the Middle District Young People and the California Young People is a Leader's Insititute. Since their inception last Fall, Leader's Institutes have been held twice in the Eastern District and once in the Western District. The Y.P.U. executive committee is suggesting that similar istitutes be held in all districts of the Conference for the purpose of becoming acquainted with the program and problems of the Church and in order to help each other in developing a vital youth program in the church.

* * *

As this issue goes to press, the Conference Boards are meeting at Newton, Kansas, for their annual meeting. Young people from district conferences have also been invited to attend a Young People's Union Board meeting at which a report is being made of Y.P.U. activities during the present year, and a discussion is being undertaken regarding Y.P.U. activities and projects such as: (1) the Leader's Institutes, (2) Voluntary Service Program, (3) Retreats, (4) Mennonite Youth section of the Mennonite. Each district is sharing with the others the activity and program being undertaken by their district.

* * *

Investigation is being made of the various possible voluntary service projects which the Young People's Union can sponsor. Such service as work with home mission stations, service in mental hospitals, hookworm and in needy areas of the South, among migrants, is under consideration.

RELIEF

Rehabilitation Needs in China

S. F. Pannabecker and P. P. Baltzer, who are now located at Chengchow in northern Honan, have recommended sending men to China who can help the Chinese farmers to reclaim their farm land which had been flooded to halt the Japanese invasion, and to assist in rehabilitating them on their farms. Preparations are also being made to take care of refugees who will be coming back before the land will have been gotten ready for them.

Home for Refugees in Holland

A new project being undertaken in Holland is the operation of a large home known as "Roverestein" which is to provide temporary shelter for Mennonite refugees. It has been equipped to accomodate over a hundred refugees; the project has been placed in charge of Siegfried Janzen. It is hoped that some of the refugees may later be taken from the home and lodged with Dutch Mennonite families.

Clothing Contributions

Contributions of clothing, shoes and soap received at the Ephrata Clothing Center during the month of January amounted to 38,678 pounds. Due to the generous response of the churches to the call for clothing contributions, the center workers are taxed to capacity keeping the clothing sorted and packed; you can help them by having all clothing clean and well mended before sending it to the centers.

Expression of Gratitude

We pass on a letter received from a Mennonite minister in Alsace:

"Herewith I acknowledge receipt of two boxes of clothing and shoes as well as one sack containing shoes. For all your good gifts and your generosity toward a suffering humanity, I want to thank you, dear brethren and sisters in the United States and Canada. The Lord knows of your service and your ove towards us. Thanking you again in everyone's name, yours sincerely, Joseph Widmer, Modenheim."

C. P. S.

UNRRA Reserve Unit Approved

Final details of the plan to place up to 250 men n the CPS Reserve to work as attendants on livestock boats going to Europe have now been completed. The unit will be known as the "UNRRA Reserve Unit" since UNRRA is the agency which is making these shipments of heifers, horses, and cows o wartorn countries on the Continent. UNRRA has delegated to the Brethren Service Committee the esponsibility for selecting the men and assigning hem to the ships. Only those who were inducted before June 15, 1944, are eligible to apply. As members of the CPS Reserve, they will remain under the jurisdiction of Selective Service, but will receive the regular pay of $150 per trip plus maintenance. Those chosen for this service will remain in it until eligible for release, and may thus make more than one trip. They will be released on the same basis as those in the regular CPS set-up.

Two More Camps Closing

Official approval has been received for the closing of two more Mennonite base camps—Camp No. 28 at Medaryville, Indiana, which is to close by March 31, and Camp No. 55 at Belton, Montana, which is to close April 30.

C.P.S. Representatives Meet With Virginia Officials

Representatives of the Friends and Brethren service committees, the Mennonite Central Committee, and the Mental Hygiene Program of C.P.S. met with the Virginia State Hospital Board on January 10 to discuss problems of state institutions in Virginia. The meeting was arranged because of concerns growing out of the experiences of four C.P.S. units in Virginia mental hospitals. The discussions centered around two problems: (1) How to raise the personnel standards in Virginia institutions, and (2) how to educate the public to the needs and problems of the institutions. The Hospital Board is recommending to the State Legislature a 35 percent budget increase for Virginia institutions during the coming two year period. It is hoped that similar meetings may be held in other states where there have been C.P.S. units and that they might be the means of improving mental hospital conditions.

C.P.S. Briefs

Releases from the entire C.P.S. program between October 1, 1945 and February 1, 1946, totaled 2,351.

On Sequoia Trails is the title of a forty-five page "yearbook" published by assignees at the Three Rivers, California camp. It contains excellent photography, including pictures of campers, and tells about camp life and project work in Sequoia National Park. Copies may be secured from C.P.S. Camp No. 107, Three Rivers, Calif., at $1.00 each.

PEACE SECTION NOTES

New Peace Publication

A new booklet fresh from the press is "The Christian and Conscription," a publication prepared jointly by Edward Yoder, now deceased, and Don Smucker. It can be obtained by ordering from the M.C.C., Akron, Pennsylvania. The price is 25 cents per copy; in lots of 25 or more, 15 cents each.

Civilian Bond Summary

As announced earlier the Civilian Bond plan terminated on January 1, 1946. During the time the plan was in operation a total of 33,006 subscriptions were made; these subscriptions amounted to $6,740,161.14. Of this total $4,911,277.00 was subscribed by Mennonites; $1,108,592.50 by Brethren; $323,246.64 by Friends; and $397,045.00 by all other groups.

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

Miss Martha Burkhalter, who will soon return to the mission ficld in India, spoke in Chapel February 8th and to the student church group Sunday evening, February 10. Orie Miller, Executive Secretary of the MCC, will be the speaker at a Vesper Service March 3. The Girls' Choir directed by Prof. Lantz, is planning a trip to Pennsylvania after the close of school. Dr. E. G. Kaufman, President of Bethel College, will be the commencement speaker this spring. The faculty and students helped in sorting, repairing, and packing old clothing for relief in the Science Hall Saturday afternoon, February 9. Churches of various denominations in Bluffton and Pandora are having used clothing for relief handled through MCC channels. The ladies of the local Mennonite churches are sponsoring the redecorating and improving of the YWCA room in College Hall. The project is under the leadership of Mrs. J. N. Smucker.

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

Dr. J. D. Unruh had charge of the morning services at the Freeman Bethany Church Sunday morning. Since the church building of this congregation burned down last fall, services are being held in the College Chapel. Rev. J. J. Regier, pastor of the Salem-Zion Church, and Rev. Willard Claassen, pastor of the Salem congregation, were chapel speakers this week. LeRoy Vogt a graduate of Freeman and just recently released from service gave a musical program on Thursday. Students and faculty always enjoy having guest speakers and musicians in chapel and many blessings have come from such visits. Chapel exercises are held daily. On Monday and Wednesday guest speakers or faculty members conduct the meetings. On Tuesday the YW and YMCA groups meet separately. Programs by members, panel discussions, or talks by visiting missionaries usually fill this time. Thursdays are music days. The time is devoted to learning new hymns and singing the old familiar ones. Often the music department furnishes musical programs, or visiting musicians share their talents with us. On Friday the students have charge of chapel meetings. All meetings are opened with a worship service.

BETHEL COLLEGE

The Original Don Cossack Chorus gave an excellent performance before a capacity house on February 12. The gratifying ticket sales for the Memorial Hall Series has made possible a fifth number to be announced later. One utility unit and twelve living units are being installed in a trailer camp north of the campus proper to provide additional housing for families of service men returning to school. Plans are also under way to convert the old dining hall, now used by the Academy, into apartments. Under the auspices of the Kansas Institute of International Relations, the local IRC, with Hazel Senner (Freeman, South Dakota) president and Dr. Gingerich faculty advisor, was host to a student conference on "Peacc—Is this It?" ovcr the weekend of Fcbruary 9. Fifty guests from Kansas, Okahoma, and Nebraska shared in the discussions, lectures, work projects, and fellowship period.

MENNONITE BIBLICAL SEMINARY

On February 6 we had another of our student-faculty Open Forums. This is the third one this year. These meetings last all morning and no classes meet for the day. Attendance at the Forum is substituted for class attendance.

The topic for the Forum is announced several weeks before the scheduled date. On this occasion we discussed The Relationship of Church and State. After two addresses by different faculty members, dealing with the history of church-state relationships and an evaluation of the present situation, the meeting was turned over to a student chairman and open discussion of our topic followed. Students and faculty members alike participate in this free expression of ideas.

The trend of thought seemed to proceed with an eye to the future. What is the situation between Church and State now? In what direction are we headed? How does this compare with the Biblical ideal as our forefathers interpreted it? Ar we still in harmony with this historical interpretation of the Mennonites and the Brethren? These questions indicate the tone of free inquiry and frank expression existent in the Forum.

Although no final conclusions were reached by the group, we nevertheless felt that we had all thought through the probems related to our topic. The general trend of expression seemed to favor our historic concepts of Church-State relationship, i.e., the state is utterly pagan, the church is a colony of pilgrim-believers within this corrupted society, and the Christian has only one consistent answer for resolving any conflicts that arise in this dual citizenship.

We feel that such Open Forums on present problems and trends in our churches are of great value to us in helping us to face frankly and to think clearly through our present difficulties. In such meetings the eternal truths of the Scriptures touch our present conflicts and dilemmas. This is education.

JOTTINGS

—Hebron Church Buhler, Kansas: Members contributed 110 blankets and comforters for European relief during the week of February 4. The relief committee and the pastor baled these goods at the M.C.C. clothing center at Newton and then sent them by express to Akron. The relief committee has also arranged for the women of the church to meet February 22nd to mend, to make over, and to sew garments for the war sufferers in Europe. Raymond Regier has returned from his trip to Europe. He helped care for a shipload of horses which were sent to the destitute people of Yugoslavia.—Mrs. van der Smissen, Corr.

—Bethlehem Church, Bloomfield, Montana: The Winter Bible Institute, conducted during January, February, and March, is sponsored by the Religious Life Committee. Its purpose is to foster Bible study and general Christian growth. The Institute held on Wednesday evenings, is a two-fold endeavor. The adult classes, which meet at the church, are divided into two groups for the first period. Brother A. P. Unruh teaches early church history and our pastor teaches the doctrine of Jesus Christ. During the second period the adults meet jointly and study about "Mennonites and Their Heritage." This is also taught by Rev. Dick. The children meet at the parsonage under the instruction of Mrs. Dick and Miss Cora Janke, her assistant. The joint attendance of those classes has been up to fifty; much depends upon weather conditions. Most of the men from regular and Civilian Service have returned. We are grateful to God for their protection. The congregation undertook a carload-of-flour-for-Europe project. When the cash came in there was nearly enough for two carloads.—Mrs. Annie Deckert, Corr.

—Bethel Church, Fortuna, Missouri: Rufus Hofstetter was installed as deacon February 7. Calvin Hilty, after serving as an attendant on a relief shipment of horses to Poland, has returned home. —Mrs. Joe A. Lehman, Corr.

BUY SITE FOR MISSION CHURCH IN LANCASTER, PENNSYLVANIA

In response to invitations from Mennonites and other families in the Lancaster, Pa., area, the Home Mission Committee of the Eastern District Conference has recently given serious study to the possibility of establishing a church in that section. A Fellowship had been carried on in the YMCA Building at intermittent periods but this has had its disadvantages and was recently discontinued. On Tuesday, February 5th a new venture of a faith was agreed upon. The Home Mission Committee with the Executive Committee motored to Lancaster and made the initial payment on a three thousand dollar, 150 x 157 lot on the southwest corner of Skyline corner of Skyline Drive and Oregon Boulevard in the Grand View North section. This beautiful site is situated on a crest of the dividing line of two new home development areas. A brick church building will be erected after plans have been drawn up and materials become available.

In the meantime the Lancaster School of the Bible on 128 N. Mulberry Street has opened the doors of ts chapel to us for a temporary meeting place. Sunlay afternoon Fellowship gatherings will be renewed n this chapel within the next few weeks.

We urge the readers of the Mennonite to add their earnest prayers to the many that have already been offered in behalf of the development of this venture hat the Will of God may be performed in all the details of the opening of a new work. Ward W. Shelly, Sec.

—First Church (north of) Butterfield, Minnesota: Rev. M. M. Lehmann, who has accepted this church as his charge for the coming year, plans to arrive in April. Since the fall of 1945, when the Rev. Lehmann was released of his charge at Monroe, Washington, where he served for nine years, the Lehmann family has been living at Page, North Dakota. The building of a parsonage was one of the major themes discussed at the annual business meeting. Building and finance committees were elected for that purpose. A committee was elected to encourage relief work among the church members in 1946.—Mrs. C. S. Harder, Corr.

—First Church, Bluffton, Ohio: The community continues its work for relief. Clothing and blankets have been shipped. Otto Klassen, son of Professor Klassen, has sailed from New Orleans with a shipload of cattle. Martha Burkhalter spoke at a missionary service February 7th and also Sunday morning, February 10. She stimulated our interest in mission work and also presented the Bible school building program. Rev. A. S. Rosenberger will be the guest speaker for the prse-Easter services, March 3 to 8.—L. I. Smith, Corr.

—Greenfield Church, Fort Cobb, Oklahoma. for the evening of February 13th the church board asked all members to come and help in improving the grounds and outbuildings.. Alvin W. Unruh and Ruby Marie Dalke were united in marriage by Rev. Rudolph Schmidt on February 3.—Henry Dalke, Corr.

—Immanuel Church, Delft, Minnesota: On February 10th Dr. V. Vojta, Dean of the Russian Department at the Northwestern Theological Seminary in Minneapolis, brought us the morning message. He spoke on the needs of missions in Russia today. Our pastor, Rev. Victor Graber had an appendectomy on February 6. At last reports he was coming along fine.—Martha Bearg, Corr.

—First Church, Newton, Kansas: By the efforts of the Men's Fellowship almost six thousand dollars have been gathered for relief. A carload of heifers has been sent. Funds for a carload of flour are oversubscribed. The six men of our church who went to Europe as stock attendants have all come back safely. They reported their experiences to a large audience on February 11. One had been to Poland, the others to Italy. They challenged the Church to come forth and be an example of Christian love to the shattered world of today.—J. F. Sawatzky, Corr.

—Menno Church, Lind, Washington: Our pastor, Rev. E. J. Miller, is preaching a series of Lenten sermons on "The Passion Voices Speak." Thus far we have heard the voice of Peter and John. Next Sunday we hear that of Pontius Pilate. Since the first of the year twenty-five new books have been added to the Sunday School library. Total now 150 books.—Mrs. Henry J. Franz, Corr.

—Bethany Church, Quakertown, Pa., Rev. A. J. Neuenschwanders had their family together for a short time on January 19th when unexpectedly it worked out so that all could be together: Ruth and Allen Ramseyer from Ohio, Robert from New York, and Gordon enroute overseas.—Mrs. Ed. K. Stoneback, Corr.

—Zion Church, Kingman, Kansas: Rev. J. H. Epp conducted a one weeks series of meetings at Turpin, Oklahoma. On one Sunday, during Rev. Epp's absence, Prof. Eldon Graber of Bethel College filled the pulpit. We are looking forward to a week of Christian fellowship from February 24 to March 3 with Dr. C. H. Suchau of Omaha, Nebraska, in charge.—R. A. Graber.

—Salem Church, Dalton, Ohio: On the evening of February 3rd our Christian Endeavor Society celebrated the sixty-fifth anniversary of the C.E. movement by special birthday program. A worship service included a flannelgraph talk by Mrs. Ruth Moser and a message on "Unbounded Christian Fellowship" by Rev. A. S. Rosenberger. During the social hour appropriate games were played and refreshments served. About seventy older and younger people participated. On January 28th fifteen members of the Society participated in the annual Wayne County C.E. banquet. Vernon Gerber, of the Salem Society, is president of the active county C.E. organization.

—Dr. A. Warkentin is again in the hospital, having submitted to another operation, according to word received February 11. He was in Wesley Memorial Hospital and was expected to stay about two weeks.

—The Mennonite Fellowship, New York City, recently had the opportunity of having Donovan Smucker and Robert Kreider as guest speakers. Rev. Smucker, who is studying at Princeton Seminary spoke on "Biblical Problems of the Mennonites." Robert Kreider, long-time worker for the M.C.C., was on his way to Europe where he will do relief work. Both meetings were held in the reception room of Biblical Seminary.—Melva Lehman, Corr.

—Springfield, (Pa.) Church: On Sunday evening, February 10, we had the privilege of hearing Elmer Ediger at our regular C.E. meeting. He spoke on "What Christianity Means to Me." Mr. and Mrs. Ely Fretz delivered three hundred pair of shoes to the M.C.C. Clothing Center at Ephrata. At an earlier date seven hundred had been delivered, making a total of a thousand pair of shoes to be sent to Holland. Mr. Nyce, owner of the Nyce Shoe Store in Doylestown, from whom some of the shoes were purchased, donated 150 pair. Other donations were received from H. Stauffer and W. Wasser of Bedminster. The Orphanage Society of the Eastern District Conference sponsored the drive. We contributed sixty-seven dollars to the fund.—Mrs. L. Myers, Corr.

—Deep Run (Pa.) Church: The young people tendered Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Fretz a miscellaneous shower on February 9. Some of Rev. Fretz's recent sermon topics have been "Faith and Forgiveness," "Doubt and Forgiveness," "Proof of Forgiveness," "What Next?" and "The Friendship of David and Jonathan." Margaret Slotter, Kentucky missionary, spoke to us on February 10. The Ladies Missionary Society, which sent 650 pounds of clothing for relief during 1945, hopes to duplicate this amount in 1946. Mennonites of Bucks and nearby counties have contributed a thousand pair of shoes for M.C.C. relief.

Mrs. G. A. Linscheid
222 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

ORDER BLANK

The subscription price for The Mennonite for 1945 is: New Subscriptions $1.25 for the first year, Renewals $1.75 per year.

Please use this Order Blank when sending in your subscription and underscore the word New or Renewal to correspond with the type of subscription you are to pay for.

Name --

Street or Route ---------------------------------

Address ---------------------------------------

Remittances from Canada should be made by Postal Money Order only. Please write name and address plainly to avoid errors.

Mennonite Publication Office
Newton, Kansas

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges to THE MENNONITE. North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS

—Upper Milford Church, Zionsville, Pa., Some of the members spent February 5th at the Ephrata Clothing Center, patching and packing clothing for relief. On February 24th Rev. Abraham Schultz of East Swamp will be in charge of the service, during the absence of Rev. H. G. Nyce who will be attending a mission board meeting in Kansas.—Mrs. J. A. Miller, Jr.

—Word has come of the recent death of Rev. J. J. Balzer, pastor emeritus of the Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota. Rev. Balzer served as pastor in this church from 1889 to 1926 and from then to 1933 as Elder. He also taught in the Mountain Lake Bible Academy for thirty years.

The Mennonite

Steps for a Daily Program of Prayer

1. Face the disturbing emotions of the past day by writing them out. Every evidence of emotion is proof of our sensitivity, ego-centricity, and defensiveness. This is the only effective block to keep us from God. It behooves us, therefore, in this exercise of prayer to be absolutely frank with ourselves before God; pour out completely what comes to mind and do not refrain from strong and expressive words. We cannot deceive God nor the nervous system which He designed for our self-conscious life.

2. Counter balance this revelation of the self, which is usually disappointing, by reading the testimonies of men who dedicated their impulsive, self-saving responses, to the carrying out of God's will. There is no more perfectly balanced diet for the soul than the word of God. Behold the testimony of Paul, "The good that I would, I do not. The evil that I would not, I do . . . I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me," etc.

3. Having thus washed one's emotional responses of the day in the waters of faith, hope, and forgiving love, write God a short letter.

4. Go to sleep. There is no sounder psychological preparation for sleep than to have faced one's half-conscious anxieties and fears before God.

5. When you wake up, God is ready to dictate. Write out your inspired thoughts.

6. Never doubt the conviction that these thoughts are the guidance of the Holy Spirit.

A person with such a daily discipline of prayer might well be able to say with Dwight L. Moody in the face of an emergency, "I am up with my praying."—Taken from the article "Teach Us to Pray" by D. D. Eitzen. See page 3.

VOLUME LVI February 26, 1946 Number 9

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point-of-view:

THE UNION of the Central and General Conferences, which was consummated on February 19, should be a distinct spiritual enrichment to all concerned. It should be enriching because it unites two diverse bodies. In unity there is strength. Unity with diversification makes for the greatest strength. Six farmers in a radius of five square miles might feel very much alike and one, but their strength for the problems of life would not be equal to that of five Christians, one of them a farmer, one a doctor, one a teacher, one a manufacturer, and one a fireman; all working together for the common good. The human body, to which the Church is so often likened, is one piece, but very diverse. Each diversity, such as arm, ear, tongue, eye, etc., contributes tremendously to what that body can do. There is considerable that may go wrong with such a body, such as would not go wrong with the one-celled amoeba, but neither can the amoeba fry eggs, knit, or play a piano. Perhaps, one reason for America's vigor as a nation is the fact that it is a "melting pot" of many different people and cultures. Once united, diversities enrich the whole. The General Conference, which is the "melting pot" of many various kinds of Mennonites, may sometimes get a little hot in the process of assimilation and it does not have the striking swiftness of a less democratic and less complex group, but it does have a variety of experiences to draw upon. This means enrichment and effectiveness in the long run. Diversities enrich, provided there is unity. It is this matter of unity that is the sore-spot in the life of the Christian Church today. Diversity we have aplenty, at least, for the time being perhaps, but in unity we lack. It is sometimes suggested that we need the many different denominations for the contribution that each can make. Yes, they are capable of contributing to the common welfare, but they very likely won't to any great extent as long as there isn't unity, as long as they can't extend to each other the hand of fellowship and call each other brother. Jesus was about his Father's business when he prayed that they might all be one. The union of the two conferences is not a matter of identical experiences—for which we are thankful—but it is a union of spirit. This is a great cause for rejoicing. (See another part of this paper for the story on this church union.)

PRAYER becomes a powerful experience when one stops trying to give God the "work assignment" and let's God do the assigning of what is to be done. We are so strongly tempted to plead with God to do things forgetting that He is entirely willing and anxious to promote the good and that He would like to have us carry out His will on earth as it is done in heaven. This kind of pretty-pleasing God in Christianity is perhaps related to the kind of appeasing and cajoling of the gods that primitive and heathen peoples tried in the past and still try today. It is a kind of prayer that comes very easy to the human being. Jesus had to warn against the vain repetitions of the heathen. Such prayer is very much in "vain" for it tries to give God the work assignment as though man was the one who controlled and ran the universe. No wonder that God's will is so little done in many areas of life in this world. God wants to work through us. Deep and effective prayer is largely a matter of catching the work assignment from God. The father who prayed for many years to God to send out workers into the mission fields and then protested when his own son wanted to go missed the work assignment. The farmer who prayed to God to feed the hungry while he withheld from them his own abundance missed the work assignment. The World Day of Prayer, which is to be observed March 8, is a day in which the plight of our present world is to be remembered. Will God have to be moved to do something about it, or will it be up to man to listen and find out what God wants to do through him? (For a very helpful and thought-provoking treatise on prayer, see the article "Teach Us To Pray," beginning page 3.)

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA
Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.
Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917 Authorized Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.
Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS

Teach Us To Pray

by D. D. Eitzen

All people pray! The gangster's efficiency in gangdom is due to prayer, and the self-sacrificing servant of God does so by virtue of prayer. Each of us prays constantly, and our life is the result of right or wrong praying. Those twelve men who were Jesus' special disciples were praying people, but when they matched the results of their prayer-life with those of Jesus, they broke out with the petition. "Teach us to pray."

Broadly speaking, prayer is a form of conversation. Prayer is conversation with God. William James defines prayer as "the consciousness which individuals have of an intercourse between themselves and higher powers with which they feel themselves to be related . . . Prayer is religion in act . . . by which the entire mind seeks to save itself by clinging to the principle from which it draws its life."

A conversation is a form of social interaction whereby one individual receives something which someone else has had in possession. We usually think of a conversation as a means of sharing with someone else our hopes and fears, our joys and apprehensions. If prayer is a conversation with God, is prayer, then, an occasion for us to inform God of some of our needs, wants, and desires? Or if God "knows our every need," is prayer an occasion for us to persuade Him concerning something about which He is reluctant? If this is the function of prayer, we might well ask, "Who is God?" The one who "prays" or the one to whom the prayer is directed? Around whom does the universe revolve—the one who prays or the one to whom the prayer is directed?

In a conversation the speaking certainly needs not to be done by only one of the two people involved (that is probably the reason why preaching is not more effective than it is). Is not here the probable source of our ineffectual praying? Namely, we do the talking instead of God.

Why is it not just as right for us to do the talking in prayer as to let God speak? We might also ask why isn't it just as good for the person who lacks information to do the talking? Doesn't it make more sense for the individual who lacks information to allow the person with the necessary information to do the talking? This, then, makes prayer a form of conversation in which man becomes the listener rather than the speaker.

This form of prayer rests on the following assumptions. First, that the Creator and not the creature is God. This seems like a naive observation, for it is generally assumed that the Creator is greater than his creature, but actually we do not behave as though we really believed it. 2) We further assume that God did not aimlessly experiment with this creation but that He had a purpose in mind to which the whole creation testifies. 3) It is further assumed that this Creator is still at work in an effort to achieve this objective. Jesus said, "My Father worketh hitherto and I work." A careful study of nature reveals that every part of creation is relatively self-sufficient. In the human body, for instance, everyone of the ten trillion cells constituting the body lives and dies unto itself. It is further noticed that these cells, though supposedly self-sufficient, achieve a higher degree of meaningfulness if they become related to other cells and when they in turn become related to many other cells, until there is the greatest of all physical miracles—the human body. Harmony, meaningful integration, coordination—these are the basic laws in the physical world.

It seems that God would wish to follow through on this stroke of meaningful integration. According to the fourth Gospel, the essence of Jesus' prayer life is epitomized in this quotation, "That they may all be one as we are one." In order for self-conscious man to be integrated into a meaningful family of God it is necessary for man to be seriously tempted in the opposite direction, namely, self-sufficiency in his own right. Ego-centricity, therefore, becomes the heart of sin. And this is what really did tempt the first parents, "Ye shall be as gods."

4) The last assumption on which this type of praying rests is this. That for God to achieve this objective of integration among mankind, He needs integration-motivated-man. Physically speaking, we need iron for our blood stream, but in order for the body to benefit from iron taken by man, the iron must be in an organic state. Therefore, he cannot take so much pulverized iron, but he must eat iron in the form of vegetables. Similarly, man's salvation lies in yielding himself to this relationship of love which God inspires and which often exacts a price of personal sacrifice. Salvation is assimilable by self-defensive and egocentric man often only when it is administered to him in love motivated relationships with fellowmen.

According to these four assumptions, prayer, then, is an exercise of self-discipline on the part of shortsighted and egocentric man to discern the infinite integrative purposes of God in order that he might dedicate his every talent and action toward the living out of this will of God in his own life. With Jesus we must pray that not "my will" or self-sufficiency but "thy will" of a love-integrated family of God shall be done through me.

If this is a safe criterion for prayer, then we may suggest four levels of spiritual maturity. 1) "Dear God, please give me a bicycle for Christmas." "Bless me!! (and if there is anything left over) my wife! (if there is still anything left over) my son John—(and should there be anything left over, then) his wife! Us four and no more!" Let us not underestimate this ego-centric type of prayer. Man's first obligation is "to be" and every good and perfect gift even in the physical realm comes from God. It behooves us to pray for our specific material needs.

The second, third, and fourth levels of spiritual maturity are suggested by the Old Testament prophet Micah, "What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, love mercy and walk humbly with thy God."

2) To pray for justice is to have made ego-centricity secondary. Social harmony is possible only upon a basis of justice. But to remain on this level is to be disappointed in the efficacy of this basis. The prodigal son prayed a prayer for justice, "Give me the portion of goods which legally belongs to me." An attitude of justice does not necessarily make for relationships of cordiality. This attitude amounts to something like this, "I'll take care of myself, you take care of yourself, please leave me alone."

3) The third level of spiritual maturity suggested in the Bible is an attitude of mercy. Self-concern and justice are not precluded in this attitude but when somebody is in need I am motivated to help him out even though I am not under obligation to do so. The Psalmist of the Old Testament suggests that mercy is the unique characteristic of God. "The Lord is merciful and gracious, slow to anger and plenteous in mercy." Similarly Jesus describes the unique characteristic of God as that of mercy, "He maketh the sun to rise upon the evil and the good and sendeth rain upon the just and upon the unjust . . . Be ye therefore merciful as your Father in heaven is merciful."

4) Micah describes the supreme level of spiritual maturity as humility. That is to say, a spiritually mature person appreciates his obligation for material success, the importance of justice for social relationship and the importance of not being too picayune about one's obligations to others. Society cannot get along without justice, but mere justice is not enough. A fifty-fifty relationship between husband and wife will not make for a successful marriage. The apostle Paul suggests that we each bear our own burdens and then we shall bear also the others' burdens. Therefore, an attitude of mercy is indispensable for mature social relationships. But even mercy is not enough, for when a partner of marriage perceives that the other partner is good to him or her merely out of sympathy, the meaningfulness of a marriage relationship disintegrates. Unless the individual partner in marriage feels that he is incomplete spiritually, socially, or physically without the good will of his mate, marriage has lost its true significance.

Prayer, then, is an attempt to discover how God's purpose for love-centered human relationships can be carried out to material needs, the importance of justice and mercy. Moreover, human nature is so defensive that one's own selfish defensiveness this day has tended to make fellowmen more defensive and therefore has driven them away from those God-centered love relationships in which lies their salvation. Therefore, much of prayer is first the becoming aware of one's own humanity through this contemplation of the purpose of God and one's relationship to man; secondly, prayer is repentance; and thirdly, it is rededication.

If defensiveness is man's chief sin, and prayer is a discipline for the consecration of one's defensive tendencies to the carrying out of God's purpose to "reconcile the world unto Himself" into a love-motivated family, then the following steps might well constitute a daily program of prayer. 1) Face the disturbing emotions of the past day by writing them out. Every evidence of emotion is proof of our sensitivity, egocentricity, and defensiveness. This condition is the only effective block to keep us from God. It behooves us, therefore in this exercise of prayer to be absolutely frank with ourselves before God; pour out completely what comes to mind and do not refrain from strong and expressive words. We cannot deceive God nor the nervous system which He designed for our self-conscious life. 2) Counter balance this revelation of the self, which is usually disappointing, by reading the testimonies of men who dedicated their impulsive, self-saving responses, to the carrying out of God's will. There is no more perfectly balanced diet for the soul than the word of God. Behold the testimony of Paul "The good that I would, I do not. The evil that I would not, I do. . . . I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me," etc. 3) Having thus washed one's emotional responses of the day in the waters of faith, hope, and forgiving love, write God a short letter. 4) Go to sleep. There is no sounder psychological preparation for sleep than to have faced one's half-conscious anxieties and fears before God. 5) When you wake up, God is ready to dictate. Write out your inspired thoughts. 6) Never doubt the conviction that these thoughts are the guidance of the Holy Spirit.

A person with such a daily discipline of prayer might well be able to say with Dwight L. Moody in the face of an emergency, "I am up with my praying."

D. D. Eitzen, who teaches pastoral counselling in the School of Religion, University of Southern California, spends one day a week in his downtown office in Los Angeles in direct counselling of people with spiritual problems. Dr. Eitzen formerly served as pastor of the Immanuel Church, Los Angeles.

General and Central Conferences Unite

February 19, 1946, will go down in Mennonite history as an important date. On this day the affiliation between the Central and General Conferences was completed. This affiliation is the result of many years of patient planning on the part of conference leaders. A few of the recent developments in this direction will be interesting.

At the General Conference session at North Newton, Kansas, May 31 to June 5, 1945, the conference declared itself as "standing ready to unite with any conference of Mennonites where such union can be achieved agreeable to both." At that time a set of "Findings", submitted by an inter-conference group of General and Central Conference representatives, were adopted as a basis for cooperation under the proposed affiliation. At that time also a resolution was passed by the conference authorizing the Executive Committee "to act on such application (for affiliation) when it is tendered by Central Conference."

In August, 1945, the Central Conference in session at Meadows, Illinois, passed a resolution favoring an affiliation with General Conference, subject to the approval of the individual congregations, by a vote of ninety-three to four. At this same conference session the Executive Committee of the Central Conference was authorized to make application for affiliation when the several churches had completed their ratification of conference action. By February 1, 1946, all twenty-two churches had ratified this action, upon which the Executive Committee referred their application for affiliation to the officers of the General Conference. This statement of desire to affiliate with General Conference was referred to the General Conference Church Unity Committee which in session February 19, 1946, passed the following resolution:

"Moved that on the basis of the statement of readiness on the part of the Central Conference to affiliate with General Conference, which statement we have reviewed and find in complete accord with the action of the General Conference at its last regular session, and believing that this step is for our mutual strengthening and edification, we hereby recommend to the Executive Committee that the affiliation be completed and that the Central Conference be considered a Disrict Conference within the General Conference."

That same afternoon, February 19, 1946, the Executive Committee met and acted on the Central Conference desire for application and recommendation of the Church Unity Committeee by the following resolution:

"On the basis of resolutions 3, 4, 5, of the General Conference in session at North Newton, Kansas, May 31 to June 5, 1945, and the statement of readiness

---

1946 Vacation Bible School

"Teaching them to observe all things"—this is the obligation of the Church to its youth. If this obligation seems stupendous in its implications to the leaders of our youth, we need only to remember the given avenue of power that followed this charge in the promise "Lo, I am with you."

Again we say, vacation Bible school is the Church's one opportunity to give spiritual nurture to the child in a period of consecutive days. Sunday schools and endeavors are doing a good work with our children. It stands to reason, however, that the teaching results through these channels can—at best—be only limited in efficiency, for the instruction period is brief and there are six days between our Sundays.

"Teaching them to observe all things" is the prime objective of the vacation Bible school, teaching children the words of the Book and teaching them—above all else—to "observe" the waiting Savior that in their hearts may spring up a longing to own Him forever.

It has been said that the vacation Bible school is a "silo-filling" project. It is a time when each boy and girl is "packed" with the Word of God. Parents and teachers alike have expressed astonishment at the amount of the Word that can be stored in a child's mind and heart during a consecutive teaching period.

We encourage each church to lay hold on the opportunities a vacation Bible school affords. In order to be of more specific help, we are offering a vacation Bible school handbook. This booklet can be ordered from Joanna S. Andres, 700 East Fifth, Newton, Kansas. Mailing will be after March 1. To help with the printing expenses, we are asking twenty-five cents per copy.—The Western District Vacation Bible School Staff under the auspices of the W. D. Education Committee from the Central Conference of February 14, 1946, to affiliate with the General Conference, and the recommendation of the Church Unity Committee in session February 19, 1946, we hereby declare the affiliation of the two Conferences completed and welcome each of the twenty-two congregations designated in their statement of readiness as members of the General Conference and shall hereafter be recognized as the Central District Conference of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America."

That same evening at a joint session of the General Conference Council of Boards and Committees in the Bethel College chapel, the President of the General Conference, Rev. J. N. Smucker, read the Central Conference request for affiliation and the resolution of the Executive Committee and officially declared the affiliation consummated. He welcomed the churches of the Central Conference into the General Conference fellowship. Rev. Harry Yoder, President of the Central Conference, responded briefly expressing their joy over this union of conferences. Following this Rev. W. F. Unruh, Secretary of the Church Unity Committee read the Saviour's prayer for unity among believers, John 17:20-23 and led in a prayer of thanksgiving. After the prayer the audience joined heartily in singing the hymn, "In Christ There Is No East or West," and the song seemed to take on new meaning at this memorable occasion.—W. F. Unruh of the Church Unity Committee.

W. F. Unruh, former missionary to India and now pastor of the West Zion Church Moundridge, Kansas is Secretary of the Church Unity Committee.

JOTTINGS

—Eden Church, Moundridge, Kansas: Our relief offering February 17th amounted to $1,340.16. The congregation responded to the call for blankets for relief by donating a total of seventy-seven blankets, fifty-five comforters, twenty-six baby blankets, and 522 pounds of clothing, shoes, and soap.—Ellis Goering, Corr.

—United Mennonite Church, Waterloo, Ontario: On February 22, C. F. Klassen, recently returned from Europe where many of our Mennonite people are scattered, reported to us on his experiences. Mrs. J. H. Janzen, wife of our Bishop J. H. Janzen, was seriously ill last fall. While slowly recovering from this, she was recently taken ill with pneumonia. At the time of writing (February 16) she is slowly recovering. February 16, a group from the Leamington Bible School brought us a program.—Herbert P. Enns, Corr.

—First Church, Nappanee, Indiana: On February 17, Mr. J. Chester Allen, a colored attorney-at-law gave us an inspiring message on "The Church and Racial Tensions." Carl Lehman who was connected with the Relief and Rehabilitation Project in Puerto Rico, addressed the Five-Church Brotherhood at the Eight Street Mennonite Church, Goshen, Indiana, recently. The Five-Church Brotherhood includes four Central Conference churches and one General Conference church (now all General Conference churches. editor). Dr. J. S. Slabaugh of Nappanee is chairman of the organization. Rev. Arnold Regier, student at the Mennonite Seminary, brought us the message on February 24, while our pastor was absent on an important trip for the church.—Mrs. Loyal Corwin, Corr.

—First Church, Hutchinson, Kansas: The choir has re-organized. Fifteen are in the catechism class. —Mrs J. S. Friesen, Corr.

—Hoffnungsau Church, Inman, Kansas: Rev. Albert M. Gaeddert filled the pulpit on February 17 and gave an inspiring message on Matt. 5:44. On the evening of the seventeenth the Young People's Union Institute of the Hoffnungsau, Hebron and Buhler churches held the joint meeting of the three churches. Two very challenging talks, by Rev. Henry Fransen and Rev. Albert Gaeddert, centered around "The Problems and Possibilities of Youth." The meeting was very well attended. The male quartet of the Medaryville, Indiana, C. P. S. camp gave a musical program on February 24.—Mrs J. V. Regier.

—Deep Run (Pa.) Church: Sunday evening, February 17, we had the pleasure of hearing a very interesting and challenging message on "Bearing the Name of Christ" by Miss Margaret Slotter, formerly of the Grace Mennonite Church of Lansdale, now a missionary in Kentucky. Shoes needing repairs have been ordered from the clothing center at Ephrata, Pa. These will be mended and returned. A collection of blankets is being made for the war sufferers of Europe.—Mae Gross, Corr.

—West Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pa.: On February 17 the quartet (C.P.S.?) from the Spring Grove State Hospital, Cantonsville, Maryland, favored us with a program of music and testimony. Kenneth Bauman, one of our members, is a member of the committee. The C.E. enjoyed a social on February 14.—Mrs. Earl Schmeck, Corr.

ON SEQUOIA TRAILS

Beautiful photos of giant Redwoods, California mountains, and C.P.S. men at work, take up a generous amount of space in this artistically-done book published by the C.P.S. men of the Three Rivers, California, camp. This book has a special appeal in its original quality. It is not like a high school annual. It compares very favorably with some of the best literature that California puts out about its parks. Paul Albrecht, who is now at Akron, Pa., helping write the history of the Mennonite C.P.S. experience, heads the list of three names that edited On Sequoia Trails. This forty-eight page book may be had for $1.00 from the Mennonite Publication Office, 722 Main, Newton, Kansas.

Home Missions:

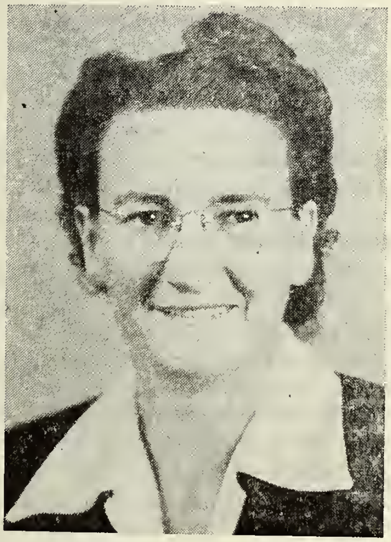
Material appearing under "Home Missions" is contributed by A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary of the Home Mission Board, Quakertown, Pa.

Gets children To Learn Bible Verses

In the summer of 1944 a seven-year-old girl was one of the campers which come to Camp Nathanael every summer. She enjoyed the classes and activities and the beauty of God's world along with the rest of the campers, all of whom were older than she. She had qualified for camp by learning 230 Bible verses. Camp was a wonderful place to her, and while there she accepted Christ as her Saviour. She was determined that this her first year at camp would not be her last year. By the summer of 1945 she was reviewing her verses and had encouraged two others to learn the necessary number for being admitted to camp.

This girl's interest is part of the fruit of going to twenty-one rural schools and seeking to interest their enrollment of seven hundred pupils in the memorization of Bible verses. It takes two hundred miles of travel and thirteen miles on foot to reach the schools every two weeks. But if this effort were not made, many of these children would not receive any Christian instruction. Through the scripture memory work the pupils may earn New Testaments, Bibles, and a week at Camp Nathanael in the summer.

Caring in a Christian way for these children in the hills of Kentucky is Miss Elsie Pfister, whose address is now Incline, Kentucky, but whose home state is Pennsylvania. Since her conversion she has attended Grace Mennonite Church, Lansdale, Pa. She has been in mission work for ten years. Miss Pfister states as her specific aim: "The salvation of children and adults and establish them in the faith."



Elsie Pfister

MENNONITE RELIEF IN ETHIOPIA

It has been planned to begin the work with a medical unit; equipment is being sent there for a twenty-five to thirty bed hospital. We quote from a report of Brethren Hooley and Yoder: "There is great need in Ethiopia, both for physical and for spiritual help. Dr. Campbell, Director General of Medical Services, informs us that with the withdrawal of the remaining Italian doctors and army doctors, there is likely to be pestilence unless something is done. This need is due to two chief causes: (1) General primitive conditions. The Ethiopian government is aware of this situation, and is eager for help from interested parties in any way in which it can be secured. (2) The war. The Italians, at least to some extent, followed the policy of liquidating and rendering ineffectual the educated class, leaving the country lacking in trained personnel and leadership. Medical and health education and schools of all kinds are needed and, in the main, welcome. There seems to be a tremendous eagerness for anything in the way of self-help and progress."

In deciding upon a location for opening the relief medical unit, it was thought best to locate in some area where any future missionary expansion will not be likely to run into opposition. The government of Ethiopia objects to the missions proselyting from the National Ethiopian Church, so they have designated some areas as closed. Although it is not certain exactly where the first unit will be located, latest word from the workers brings a recommendation that work be undertaken in Adama. This place is about sixty miles from the capital city, Addis Ababa.

QUOTE

Mary Becker, missionary to Colombia, in a thesis on the young people's program of the churches of the Western District Conference:

"The questionnaires disclosed that many of the churches in the study do not provide an adequate program of youth work, that the methods and procedures are the same in some of the churches as they were perhaps twenty-five years ago or even earlier. Though the message of the church remains the same in every age, methods will have to change to fit each new day. Any church that insists on using the same methods in the machine age that is used in the 'horse-and-buggy days' may awake some day to find that the young people are gradually disappearing."

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

(Rev. J. N. Leendertz, now one of the pastors of the Mennonite church at Haarlem, visited this country in 1921 in the interest of mission work. At that time the Dutch Mennonite Mission Society had lost its support from the Mennonites in Russia. Now it has also lost the support from the Mennonites in Germany. With fighting going on in Indonesia, it remains to be seen whether they will not also lose their mission field. Much of their work has been destroyed and many missionaries have perished. This letter, however, is a personal account of the things that have transpired in Holland during the years that he had lost contact with the American Mennonites. The following is a translation of a letter written in Dutch.—C. K.)

Haarlem 9. January, 1946
The Netherlands

Dear Friend Krahn:

What a joy it was to receive your letter of September 29 and now this Christmas package which we received in good condition. I am answering in Dutch because it is easier for me to write. I had just told my wife and daughter that we would not receive any packages from America because we had no relatives there and it is twenty-three years ago that I visited the American Mennonites. Therefore what a surprise when we rectived a package. I do not know what made us the happiest, the shoe soles (ours were worn out), the soap (which is still scarce), the raisins, or the tea. The dried fruit reminded me immediately of my stay in Reedley, California, where the most delicious peaches could be had for the picking. How typical it was to receive a box of Van Houten's cocoa from America (A Dutch firm. tr.) which can not be obtained in the homeland of Van Houten.

Yes, dear friend, what a time we have experienced. A time we never would have dreamed of in our prosperous Holland. Poverty, hunger and suppression and yet as you express in your letter, our life with Christ has been strengthened. In all the thirty-five years of my ministry I have never experienced so much misery as during last winter, but all the thirty-five years have never been spiritually strengthened and encouraged that much either. In spite of the fact that I became weaker physically I could do more work, preach with greater inspiration, pray and help more than ever before. And I also found the hearts of the people more ready to accept the word of God than ever before. Especially in the cities the people suffered from lack of food. The farmers still had potatoes, grain, and fats. Everybody that could went from cities to the farmers, processions of starving people, a pity to look at. For our church members we successfully called upon the Mennonite farmers north of Alkmaar. We here in Haarlem had an Emergency Relief Committee consisting of courageous members of Friesian background who went to their home province to get food. Whatever they returned was distributed (Haarlem is a large city while Friesland is a rural province). There was a time when four hundred families benefited by these distributions of food.

At present the American M.C.C. is distributing goods in Haarlem. Peter Dyck, Miss Smith, Miss Graber and Miss Esau are in our midst. We had a church dinner at which Peter Dyck spoke. This was followed by a lively discussion on non-resistance. I hope that the spiritual contact with our American brethren will increase. We have not yet revived our study group for anti-militarism. So much has happened also in our spiritual life that some of the organizations can not simply be continued on their former basis. I am still convinced that to be a Christian and to participate in warfare can not be harmonized. But I have learned during the last years that it is more significant to form a group of genuine Christians that believes and practices in being In Christ than just to belong to a group emphasizing nothing but anti-militarism.

I would very much appreciate receiving some American literature. Since the outbreak of the war I received none. Formerly I read The Mennonite. Silas Grubb was the editor. Does he still live? I would also like to subscribe to Mennonite Life. I probably will not yet be able to send you money for it. Maybe we could make this arrangement. Soon we here will publish Algemeene Doopsgezind Weekblad (instead of the Zondagsbode which was discontinued during the German occupation). This periodical will combine all local and district publications of the Mennonites in this country. It is assumed that subscriptions will exceed twenty thousand. Could we arrange an exchange of periodicals? That is the way I had arranged it once upon a time with Harold Bender at Goshen.

You will have heard about the death of Dr. A. K. Kuiper who spent his last years in Haarlem where I met him often. Rev. Fritz Kuiper his son has accepted a position in Amsterdam and some other young ministers have become chaplins of the navy. The result is that some smaller congregations are without a minister. Amsterdam has added a fifth minister and Haarlem a fourth. Rev. Yntema died in 1944 here in Haarlem and now Rev. Daalder and Rev. Hoekema have become my colleagues.

We heard the sad news about the fate of the Mennonites of East and West Prussia. Between Russia and western Europe is a steel curtain through which nothing passes. Our thoughts are centered more than ever before around the future of Russia .

In 1921 I spent a week in Newton and community. I remember Bethel College very well and also Bethel Hospital in which Dr. Haury showed me around. I also remember Dr. J. W. Kliewer, Rev. H. P. Krehbiel, Mr. John Regier and Mr. C. F. Claassen. If they are living, please give them my best regards. I will never forget their hospitality and their conversations which I had with them.

(signed) J. N Leendertz

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Vice President
Verney Unruh
Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

Thoughts upon Release from Camp

by Arlo Sonnenberg

There is a feeling of great hesitancy about this train. It waits so long and moves so slowly. I know the needs it has for time but cannot reconcile them. This is the day that never seemed to come. Now it seems that no one can hurry. Restlessly I put away the newspaper I have been trying to read, and shift again in my seat. My mind is racing against time itself and there is an uneasiness I can hardly bear. Why must we wait so long? I go over the fact that the brakes of a train must be checked, that water must be added, and the little express wagons must be piled with the baggage. Facts do not satisfy me though, and I feel helpless just sitting here. My fingers drum crazily on the arm of my seat.

The coveted paper is in my pocket. It says that I can go home now. I'm released. The shackles of law are taken off and I am free. My heart is pounding. I must go! I listen to the clatter of the wheels and their rhythms echo in my mind, louder and faster. This is life. No more waiting. Faster! Faster! Speeding through the night in a maelstrom of dreams! The rhythm doubles in intensity. I'm reaching for the world! I'm racing for security! Now I shall catch up with the losses of these years. One year, two years of work, three years I spent, then four. Now it's home, freedom, and security. My restlessness increases. The echo of the wheels becomes a roar. I am rigid and tense. With bitterness I say I have paid my debt. I will make up for it all.

Then, in this frenzied journey, my mind goes back to the beginning—the beginning of patience and waiting. The events of the years vividly run through my mind. I feel my hands firm again on the handle of my pick. I hear the motor of the cement mixer and my whole being vibrates with it. Once more the words and music of camp burn within me. I grow calm as I think of the trees that were planted as monuments to peace and the dams that rest securely in the valleys. I think of the imbeciles and idiots who know no time. I am ashamed of my impatience. What of value have I lost?

My mind no longer races. I listen to the steady pulling of the locomotive. Great is its power. There is no hesitancy now. I am going home—home to those I love. Each minute I get closer as I travel in the night. No more shall I reach for the world. It is here. These have been the best years of my life! Suddenly I feel very secure. Via M.C.C. Headquarters.

A Jaundiced "Guinea Pig"

by Wallace Fisher

CPS Unit No. 140 (an experiment on infectious hepititus) was started about two years ago under the Office of the Surgeon General. It is being conducted in a fraternity house on the University of Pennsylvania Campus, with the unit under the administration of the AFSC.

The reason for this experiment is that heretofore little was known on the causes and treatment of hepititus (commonly known as jaundice). During the present war jaundice has caused more deaths and more days lost than any other malady. Several years ago there was an epidemic in a summer camp near Philadelphia in which 350 of the 372 persons in the camp were stricken with jaundice. At the time of this epidemic, fifty CPS men volunteered to serve as guinea pigs to try every conceivable method of contracting jaundice. Some of them swallowed sewage, some drank contaminated water, and some received injections. From these experiments it has been proven that jaundice (a virus disease) is carried by drinking water and it is very doubtful whether the common purification methods used by our cities will kill the virus.

At the present time an experiment is being conducted on twenty men in an effort to find a simple and practical method to purify water for our cities. Before the men are innoculated they are given rigid physical examinations and several weeks of blood tests. The men are innoculated by each drinking one gallon of water in a period of eight hours. Some of the men were given contaminated water and others the same water which had undergone various purification methods. At present the men are isolated in groups in different sections of the building. They are not allowed to leave their section of the building except to go out for walks. When going for walks they are not allowed to mingle with people or go in crowded sections of the city. Men who are taken sick are confined to their beds for one to four weeks and it takes from four to eight weeks to fully recover from the disease.

The men will be isolated for a period of two or three months and therefore have a good deal of spare time. At present their main duties are taking their own temperatures four times daily and giving blood twice a week. The remainder of the time is spent in reading, studying, letter writing, and craft work.

The Care of Mental Illness in the Community

A recent survey of Mennonite and Brethren in Christ churches revealed that there are a total of about 1500 mentally ill and mentally deficient persons among their membership. Although in certain cases, recovery from the difficulty is doubtful or impossible, in other cases proper care and treatment will result in full recovery.

Not much thought has been as yet put to the problem of the care of the mental patients within our own group nor any mental patients for that matter. There remains much superstition regarding mental illness. In the minds of many, "craziness" is something to joke about or to shun rather than to accept as an upset condition just as appendicitis, ulcers, and arthritis are to the physical body.

We have facilities to care for the aged and for the sick, we have provided ourselves churches to nurture our spiritual needs, we have schools to train ourselves for lives of service and work, but as yet we have no facilities for the care of the mentally ill.

Yet, a letter was sent to the M.C.C. with the following plea:

Dear Brother,

My son is to be released from the mental hospital at ———— next month. The doctor tells us that he is greatly improved, almost completely cured. He says that John needs to find a good healthful occupation and some friendly young people so that his cure can be complete and lasting. My wife and I are old, have no job to offer John, and cannot give him the care he needs.

I know that many of our good Mennonite young men have been in C.P.S. units at mental hospitals the last few years. It occurs to me that one of these men might be able to take care of John in just the right way. Certainly farm work in a good Mennonite home and community would be just what the doctor ordered.

Can you put me in touch with a person who might serve God and fellowmen by helping me in this situation?

Yours in His service, J——— L. B———

The care of the mentally ill requires great patience and lots of time. Possibly a service could be performed by those who understand and are interested in the recovery of such patients. There are those who have had experience in hospitals who might be interested in such service of care and love. But, others can also perform this service if they so desire. Perhaps fervent prayers of puzzled families can be answered by such interest on your part.

If there be any interest, by contacting Frank Wright, Mental Hygiene Program, Box 7574, Philadelphia 4, Pa., or the Hospital Section of the Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pa., further information can be obtained.

Book Review

In the Steps of St. Francis by Ernest Raymond, Published by Kinaly & Co.

by Magdalene Friesen

More thrilling than fiction is the life of that gentle yet dauntless figure of the thirteenth century, Francis of Assis. Ernest Raymond's In the Steps of St. Francis beautifully presents a colorful panorama of the medieval times—Egypt, the Holy Land, Rome—peopled with popes, kings, knights, troubadours, crusaders, through which moves the pathetic but indomitable little St. Francis.

We are his transformation from a playboy who suffered from the weakness of wanting to be loved," to one whose only aim was to "set forth the love, the gentleness and the brotherhood of Christ." His spirit of brotherhood extended itself not only to his fellow beings, but to the birds, animals, and the sun, soil and water. He little dreamed that his unassuming yet fearless life would be a challenge to the world ever after.

It is of interest to note that St. Francis' Third Order, or rules for living, is almost identical with the principles for which our church stands. Read this book to receive a fresh inspiration in living the Christ Way.

RETREAT LEADERS WORKSHOP

A Retreat Leaders Workshop will be held at Bethel College, Saturday, March 30 at 9:00 a.m. The all-day meeting of the workshop will have as resource leaders, Mr. Raymond R. Peters, General Secretary of the Board of Christian Education of the Church of the Brethren. Mr. Peters has had wide experience in retreat work and is author of the book, Let's Go Camping, dealing with this subject. Mr. Brice Durbin, Camp Wood leader and Superintendent of the Burns Public Schools, Burns, Kansas, will also be a resource leader.

The meeting is for:

(1) The administrative staff of the retreat

(2) Faculty, instructors, counselors of the coming retreat

(3) Cabin leaders

(4) Those that are interested in youth camps

Plan to attend.

The Truth and the Golden Rule

by Dan West

Time: Easter Sunday afternoon, 1944.

Place: The rear seat of a loaded Greyhound bus coming into Portland, Oregon.

Main Characters: A Jesuit priest, a middle-aged mother, a nine-year-old girl, charming in her bashfulness, a young man in the twenties, a small uncounted audience.

The priest, evidently returning from helping out in an Easter service, had read in some of his books and had written some statements in Latin and Greek, but these were dropped when he began to talk with the middle-aged mother. He was genial, talkative, earning his way slowly with the bashful little girl. He was studying for his degree preparatory to becoming an army chaplain. He explained that it is necessary to have correct ideas, that as a result we can live correctly, that the church (Roman Catholic of course) was responsible for the passing on of these correct ideas. He spoke about the war, Hitler, Stalin, Churchill, greed, the need for America and England to hang together, the rightness of the church, the need for education, the problem of hell and purgatory, the truth, and so on. And he had all the answers.

After thirty minutes or more of a largely one-sided conversation the young man, one of Jehovah's Witnesses, turned around to offer two small pamphlets to the priest. He was courteous but definite about it. The priest took them, glanced a moment at them and inquired, "Is this the work of Judge Rutherford?" The youth was honest; "Yes," he replied. Without further word the priest kept one and returned the other to the young man, with a gesture of finality. "I know the work of Judge Rutherford. If the things in there were true I would be glad to consider it. It is full of heresy, lies, misrepresentation, attacks on the church, attacks on the Jesuits—I am a Jesuit." In this strain he continued for some time.

The youth said nothing. He seemed to have gone into his shell. Putting the pamphlet into his pocket he looked out of the window. I can only guess what went on in his mind, but it must have been something like this: "I did my witnessing all right, tried to prevent that priest corrupting the mother's mind, but the priest was too smart. I am 'agin' him and his church."

The priest was not quite so genial now, but as he went on, explaining the errors of all those who attack the church, the heresies, the need for correct ideas, and the truth, his tone was a little harder. He was talking apparently to the mother but loud enough for all of us to hear.

Occasionally the mother would chip in a little, saying once, "I think we ought to keep an open mind and hunt for the good there is in all of the religions." This called forth some extra paragraphs from the priest. "You must be careful about heresies; the church knows the truth. You must accept that; otherwise you are lost."

At first I noticed the fatigue of standing up, the secondhand tobacco smoke, the crowding of people. But as the conservation went on I forgot these lesser matters.

I was witnessing a skirmish between the oldest authoritarian church and the newest authoritarian church. What will it be like if it grows into a major campaign for "truth"? I was an outsider but knew a little about both religions. However, I was concerned about something beyond their theological differences. With so much of hate, so much of killing in the world, I believe that something is far more important than our intellectual interpretations of God's will. As we got off the bus I felt I could hold back no longer. I turned to the priest and spoke, "Friend, I don't think you are quite fair to our young friend over here on the other seat. I have read some of your literature and some of his, and I do not happen to agree with either one of you. With so much of hate and killing in the world I believe we ought to be brotherly toward those who differ."

"But we have to stand up for the truth," he countered. "Yes," I agreed, "but something is more important. We need to live by the Golden Rule."

The priest wanted the last word. "I won't break his bones," he said.

This was improvement over the inquisition when men in the name of the church did break bones of heretics in order to defend "the truth." Haven't we learned enough yet to be humble about what we know? Sir Isaac Newton spoke in humility after all he had learned. "I feel like a small boy walking along the beach, picking up a bright pebble now and then while the great ocean of God's truth lies unexplored before me."—Gospel Messenger

Youth Events

The Eastern District Young People's Fellowship Banquet and the Third C. E. Workers' Institute is scheduled for Saturday, March 2. The charge for the banquet is $1.00 plus a bar of soap or a box of soap flakes to be given for relief. The meeting is to be held at the Bethany church in Quakertown.

The Young People's Board, composed of representatives from each of the Conference District Young People's Committees, met February 19 to 21 at Newton, Kansas. The following items were considered and discussed at this meeting. (1) A report from each district on activities since last June was given; (2) Financial report of the YPU Executive Committee meetings; (3) YPU leaders' institutes were evaluated and discussed; (4) The possibilities and plans for YPU projects were presented, and the value and support of these projects was discussed; (5) Plans for a voluntary service program, its value, its scope and possibilities were discussed; (6) Plans for retreats, what makes a successful retreat, and the retreat programs were shared; (7) The Mennonite Youth section of The Mennonite was evaluated from the standpoint of its contribution to the youth program and local youth organizations. A complete report of the board meeting will appear in a future issue of Mennonite Youth.

Recreation note: In a poll conducted by the National Opinion Research Center of Denver, 41 per cent of those questioned said they preferred reading to all other forms of recreation. Second choice was arts and crafts—16 per cent. Sports and movies or concerts did no better than 11 and 10 per cent, respectively.

". . . . war no longer makes sense . . ." So says the reviewer of Vera Micheles Dean's Four Cornerstones of Peace in the New York Times Book Section on Sunday, January 27. He goes on to say that "The men of war, and the men who are willing to risk war in order to get what they want, are now on the defensive and the pacifists are on the offensive. It is the militarists who are the dreamers, the pacifists who are the realists . . ."

Numerous youth papers of various churches have been very frank in their expressions regarding war. For instance THE WATCHWORD, the Evangelical and Reformed Church paper, says, "Human life has become so cheap that even people who are classified as Christian often seek to justify methods of warfare which mean the destruction of innocent lives by the multitudes. Such an attitude is in direct contravention of the spirit and purposes of Jesus Christ." It says further, "One of the marks of paganism is a disregard for life, and certainly the modern world has never known a time when there was such wholesale disregard for human life as is in evidence today."

Leathercraft in the Youth Fellowship

by Frieda Claassen

"Not such a long string, please!" "Help me tug at this lacing!" "What are you making?" "Monograms?" "What will I do next?" These and many other such quotations and questions are heard when Beatrice Mennonite young people "get together" on Wednesday evenings.

Your guess is right! It's leather craft night! And Rev. Koontz knows all the answers.

These young people are indebted to Rev. Elbert Koontz, Pastor of the Beatrice Mennonite Church, for this opportunity. He and Mrs. Koontz spent several weeks in a California CPS Camp last summer. While there, they became interested in leather craft work and realizing its possibilities, they presented the idea to the Fellowship group.

They accepted it with enthusiam! The project is now being carried on in connection with regular Fellowship meetings. These are held in the Beatrice Mennonite Church basement. The program usually consists of group singing, a devotional period, a five minute "news report," and a Bible Study Class conducted by Rev. Walter H. Dyck. On alternate Wednesdays the entire evening is devoted to "craft work."

About thirty persons are enjoying this form of creative recreation. It has resulted in many finished products such as ladies purses, bill-folds, leather belts, coin purses and key cases. Several have made articles and used them as gifts. Others are making them for their own use.

The approximate cost of a ladies purse is about $5.00; a bill-fold, $1.50; leather belts, $.75; key cases and coin purses, $.50.

Articles (finished and "in the making") will be displayed at the First Mennonite Church in connection with a Fellowship banquet which is being planned for February 28. Rev. Erland Waltner, Mountain Lake, Minnesota, is to be the banquet speaker.

This type of activity aids the recreational program of a community, and gives the young people an opportunity to select for themselves "wholesome and uplifting recreation."

RELIEF

Blankets Coming In

The first blankets for Europe arrived at MCC headquarters about a week ago and the first trickle has within the last few days mounted to a good-sized stream. The blankets will be baled as rapidly as possible in preparation for overseas shipment. Persons interested in helping to reach the goal of 50,000 blankets for Europe should send their contributions by express to the Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pa.

Farewell Services

Three farewell services have been held at Akron headquarters during the past week in anticipation of the departure of fifteen relief workers. On February 7 services were held for Weldon Martin, Harrisonburg, Va., and Arthur Thiessen, Chicago, Illinois, C.P.S. assignees who left the following day for Puerto Rico.

On February 8 services were held for the following: Robert S. Kreider, Goshen, Ind., who sailed the next day for service in Northwest Europe; Paul Peachy, Harrisonburg, Va., and Wilson Hunsberger, Waterloo, Ontario, appointed for service in Belgium; Brother and Sister Warren Metzler, Elizabethtown, Pa., who are to go to Puerto Rico, Sister Metzler to serve as a nurse in the La Plata hospital; Harold Vercler, Washington, Ill., Ura Gingerich, Plain City, Ohio, Dennis Lehman, Berne, Ind., Homer Martin, Columbiana, Ohio Willard Schrag, Pretty Prairie, Kansas, and Amos Yoder, Weatherford, Okla., all released C.P.S. men who will go to Paraguay. The new projects in Paraguay call for additional personnel. One is a hookworm control program to be instituted in the vicinity of Itacurubi which will supplement the feeding program carried on among school children at that place. The other is the establishment of a leper colony to accommodate up to 250 lepers.

Flour Shipments

Ten carloads of flour donated by Mennonite communities left New York for France on January 26. On January 30, fourteen carloads of flour left Baltimore for Holland. These shipments bring the total carloads shipped to twenty-seven.

Clothing Distribution in Holland

Five MCC relief workers have been busy the past few weeks distributing clothing in towns around Amsterdam, Holland. Half of the goods is distributed to Mennonites and half to non-Mennonites. Each adult receives one garment and each child three garments. One of the workers, Ruth Hilty, writes that lines begin forming sometimes two hours before the doors open in the morning and some stand in line all day without food, waiting their turn to be fitted. She reports that during a recent week, 1,193 adults, 1,184 children, and 104 babies, a total of 2,481 persons were helped.

Construction and Transport Units Planned

Plans are underway looking to the establishment this spring of construction and transport units in several European countries. Investigation of possible areas of service for such units is to be made by Henry Detwiler, who has been serving in Egypt, and Irvin B. Horst, under appointment for Northwest Europe. Henry Detwiler arrived in Rome on February 7 and is to visit a Friends unit now in operation in Italy as a part of the initial investigation. It is hoped that units of from ten to twenty-five men might be used in transporting relief goods or in construction work in villages or on individual farms. Some of the units may be located in Mennonite communities. Definite plans will be laid after the investigation is completed.

C. P. S.

Topeka, Kansas, Unit Fails to Materialize

Personal investigation of the Topeka, Kansas, veterans hospital by Selective Service and MCC representatives resulted in a decision not to place a C.P.S. unit there. Apparently there had been a misunderstanding as to the hospital's personnel needs as it was determined that there was sufficient local labor to meet the need. The superintendent had not intended to request a C.P.S. unit, but, having heard of the high quality of work done by C.P.S. attendants, wished to hire up to 150 released C.P.S. men to work in this institution for mental patients who are veterans of the war.

Farm Service Change

Assignees who are released or transferred from dairy farm service will in the future not be replaced by C.P.S. labor according to a recent announcement from Washington. It has been found that in an increasing number of instances regular civilian labor is available for dairy farm work. There were 287 assignees remaining in MCC administered dairy farm units as of January 31, 1946, and 124 in dairy testing units. Replacements have not been made in dairy testing units for several months.

Releases

Practically all of those in the January group of releases have now received their final papers, and the first of the February group were authorized on February 6. Releases from MCC units between October 1, 1945, and February 6, 1946, totaled 989, or approximately one-fourth of the number in Mennonite C.P.S. as of October 1. Eligible for release in February are those completing three years of service by June 30, 1945; those with two children who will have completed two years of service by February 28, 1946; and those who reach the age of thirty-eight, or who reach the age of thirty-five and complete two years of service during the month.

C.P.S. Briefs

Applications of thirty-three men from Mennonite units to serve as attendants on livestock boats have already been approved, and the first C.P.S. men will be ready for this service at an early date.

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

A recent survey of former students, now married, who have taken the marriage course shows them overwhelmingly favorable to the course and unanimous in the feeling that it should be continued. This course was begun more than a decade ago. Prof. Lantz will conduct a Church music institute in Topeka, Indiana, February 28 to March 3. He is also giving four lectures on modern music before the University Women's Club in Lima, beginning this month and continuing at two week intervals. Miss Agnes Amstutz, college staff member for twenty years, has resigned to take a position as librarian in a veterans hospital in New York. She began her new duties early in February. The Home Economics Club is sponsoring a campaign among alumna who majored in that field for funds for improvement of the department. About two thousand dollars is needed for equipment and the redecoration of the rooms occupied by the department.

BETHEL COLLEGE

A new director of physical education, recreation, and intercollegiate athletics has been secured for the coming year in Robert W. Tully, M.A., who has served in a similar capacity at LaVerne College in California. Formerly from Indiana, he has also been a summer camp leader in various parts of the country as well as the author of two books, "Social Recreation Primer" and "Fun at Home." Mr. Tully visited the campus last week to check on equipment and to confer on courses in his department, outlining his program in a chapel address on February 15. He is married and has two children. The skins of over two hundred pairs of birds from Paraguay were received by the Kauffman Museum recently, which Mr. Charles Kauffman, curator, is mounting for exhibition. Over three thousand visitors registered at the museum during the past year.

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

The appearance of the Chapel is much improved by the Venetian blinds which were the gift of Mr. Jake T. Gross. The school purchased opaque shades for the same room to be used when educational films are shown. "Stanley and Livingston" was shown last week. A complete surveying outfit has been donated to the mechanics shop by Tom Preheim. A new tabletop Perfection range has been added to the Home Economics equipment. The Christian Youth Volunteers pledged themselves not to buy any luxuries this week and to save all such money for buying bankets for relief. Rev. P. C. Hiebert gave a report of the recent work of the M.C.C. in a talk in the gym this week. He also spoke to the students in chapel. Mrs. Harold Unruh and her pupils brought a very fine program for music day chapel.

MENNONITE BIBLICAL SEMINARY

The Chicago Mennonite Fellowship held its regular monthly meeting in the Chicago Temple on the afternoon of February 10. The girl's chorus from the Mennonite Bible Mission sang for the group, and Rev. August Ewert of Mountain Lake, Minnesota, was guest speaker. Gerhard Neufeld has recently visited C.P.S. units at Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, and Medaryville, Indiana. This week's visitors to our school has included Rev. Peter T. Neufeld from Inman, Kansas, and Rev. Ellis Graber from Souderton, Pennsylvania. Four China missionary families met here recently for a reunion. Rev. Albert Jantzen, Rev. Marvin Dirkses, Rev. August Ewerts and Dr. C. L. Pannabeckers were the four families that were reunited. These were all associated in our mission work in China. Dr. Warkentin will soon be with us again after having spent some days in the hospital. Let us intercede for him that the work here may continue to prosper under his leadership.

JOTTINGS

—First Church, Allentown, Pa.: On February 13, the Ladies Aid Society celebrated its forty-second anniversary with a covered dish dinner at the home of Mrs. L. W. Shelly. The afternoon was spent in repairing clothing for relief.—Grace Moyer, Corr.

Apostolic Mennonite Church, Trenton, Ohio: The choir and the Woman's Society have purchased material from the Cutting Room at Bluffton and are sewing for European relief. Mrs. J. E. Amstutz, wife of our pastor, is on an extended trip to California.—Lydia A. Augspurger, Corr.

—First Church, Pretty Prairie, Kansas: Dr. Cornelius Krahn showed slides and gave a lecture on the "Origin of the Mennonite Church," on February 24. Our Bible conference will be held March 5, 6, and 7, with Rev. Erland Waltner of Mountain Lake, Minnesota, as guest speaker. Studies will be taken from 1st John. Our congregation through the Sewing Society, responded to the urgent request for blankets, etc., by sending twenty-nine blankets and forty-seven comforters.—Ralph Krehbiel, Corr.

—Bethel Church, Inman, Kansas: Ten are taking catechism under Rev. P. T. Neufeld. The choir is rehearsing weekly for an Easter cantata. For our Senior C.E. program February 17, we were given a program by a group of ladies from Bethel College. Rev. Nunley from the A.E. Methodist Church of Newton gave an inspiring mesage on "The Good Samaritan" on the same program.—Dan E. Neufeld, Corr.

—Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio: A committee, representing the four Mennonite churches of this area, is investigating the possibility of establishing a home for the aged in this area. The youth fellowship recently sponsored an evening program in which Carl Lehman, business manager of Bluffton College and former business manager of the Rio La Plata relief unit in Puerto Rico, spoke.—Mrs. S. W. Steiner, Corr.

—Dr. D. D. Eitzen, who is Associate Professor of Pastoral Counseling at the Graduate School of Religion of the University of South California, recently spent a whole week with the Washington State College in one of the twelve University Christian Missions that are being conducted.

—Miss Helen E. Nickel was finally successful in securing passage and sailed for Bombay, India, on the Dutch Freighter The Bantam on February 5th from San Fransisco. She is returning for her third term of service and is to be located at Jagdishpur, via Raipur, Central Provinces, India, for evangelistic and educational work there. Her first two terms were spent at Janjgir where she was principal of the Funk Memorial School for Girls."

—Various boards and committees of the General Conference met in Newton and North Newton February 19 to 21. The boards had joint sessions on two of the evenings. On the first evening the board secretaries outlined the main program of action for each board and committee. A very important event of the evening was the announcement of the union of the General and Central Conferences. Board budgets were considered on the second evening. Many of the boards and committees used the facilities of the Memorial Hall for their meetings and for meals.

—Tht Pacific District Conference will convene at Lind, Washington, June 20-23.—M. D. Linscheid, Conference Secretary.

—Salem Church, Dalton, Ohio: The offering for relief on February 10th amounted to $781.33. This makes the total contributed since Thanksgiving $1,243.43. Salem church is joining the other churches of the community in a relief beef canning project. The fifteen beef cattle, which have been purchased, will be processed with a portable steam canner. The members of the missionary society are busy making comforters for relief.—Mrs. Edward Miller, Corr.

—First Church, Nappanee, Indiana: Our interest in the M.C.C.'s relief and rehabilitation project in Puerto Rico was greatly increased by hearing Rev. Wilmer Shelly of the Topeka, Indiana, church tell of his visit there recently. We are worshiping in a newly redecorated church. The new wall paper and paint upstairs and downstairs creates a new setting that helps give a worshipful atmosphere. The members of our church are all receiving the Mennonite now, and it has been suggested that we set aside part of every Sunday afternoon to read this paper through. The women of the church have made a record shipment of relief clothing and soap for this month—249 pounds. This includes sixty-six pounds of soap and forty-five pounds of baby clothes. At the head of the announcements in the Sunday bulletin of this church are the words "About Our Father's Business." They are our motto or church verse for 1946 as set forth in a message by the pastor.—Mrs. Loyal Corwin, Corr.

—Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebraska: The churches of the Henderson community have gathered to date $7,098 for flour for relief. On February 12th our church packed twenty-eight sacks of clothing, amounting to 880 pounds, for relief. The C.E. Society has added a short pre-prayer service to their regular meetings. The male chorus of the Lincoln C.P.S. Unit No. 1 gave a musical program on February 10.—Mrs. R. H. Friesen, Corr.

—First Church, Philadelphia, Pa.: During 1945 the various organizations of the church contributed, for many purposes, approximately ten thousand dollars. The ladies who meet every Wednesday to sew for relief report: For M.C.C., 164 new garments, 9 knitted articles, 1 afgan, 1,484 pounds of reconditioned clothing, 68 pieces of soap; for British relief, 24 gowns, 24 shirts and 24 diapers. Miss Catherine Niswander, our church worker, made 1,320 calls in the interest of the church and Sunday School. The Mission Offering for the first quarter of the Sunday School year (ending January, 1946) amounted to $132.85.—Mrs. H. S. Weiss, Corr.

—Grace Church, Dallas, Oregon: On his recent visit Missionary H. J. Brown spoke on the Word of Life and on going out as a shining light. On one night he told of his experiences while interned by the Japanese. On another night he spoke in the Mennonite Brethren church.—Mrs. Dave Balzer, Corr.

—Zion Church, Souderton, Pa.: A total of 4,138 pounds of clothing were taken to the M.C.C. clothing depot at Ephrata during 1945. In these two tons of clothing were over 2,500 items. including 176 overcoats, 83 men's suits, 36 suit coats, 422 dresses, 45 comforters, 45 blankets, etc. In addition 504 cans of canned meat, 1,232 bars of soap, and 631 pairs of shoes were taken to the depot. Total receipts for the church during 1945 were $25,956.87. This is an average contribution of $46.10 per member for 563 members.

SALVAGED CHURCH RECORDS

Two young men from the Beatrice Mennonite Church, William U. Andreas and Arthur Claassen, have recently returned home from attending a relief shipment of horses to Danzig. While there, William and some of his traveling companions viewed the ruins of the completely destroyed Danzig Mennonite Church and the slightly damaged, nearby hospital. This latter building was, however, stripped of all of its contents with the exception of an upstairs room which was littered with old books and documents and also contained a blasted safe. Some of this old material dated back to the seventeenth century, and they soon recognized a number of familiar family names. As they were leaving the building it occured to them that these records would probably soon be destroyed, inasmuch as no Mennonites were living in this locality and much of this material was already badly charred and burned. They then decided to take some of it home. In William's collection are a number of old records dating back to 1667, from the Werken Menno Simons by Johann Decknatel, translated into the German in 1765; a list of the elders, teachers, and deacons of the "Taufgesinnten Mennonitschen Gemeinden in Ost und West Preuszen, Litthauen und Polen," and of the newly settled colonies in Russia, from 1835 to 1843. A handwritten synopsis of Mennonite church records from 1792 to 1843 and other similar material. William and the other boys who have picked up some of these records will, no doubt, eventually turn them over to our Mennonite historical libraries.—W. C. Andreas —Alexanderwohl Church, Goessel, Kansas: An offering for foreign missions amounting to $1,007.01 was taken up in the regular church offering Sunday, February 3. Thirty-six young people reported for the first session of the catechism class. "How We Got Our Bible" is the theme for the Wednesday night Bible meetings. After the Bible hour the Sunday School teachers meet to discuss their problems and the lesson and the church choir meets to practice—Wanda Schmidt, Corr.

—Rev. Andrew Shelly, Pastor of the Stirling Avenue Mennonite Church, Kitchener, Ontario, plans to visit in Newton, Kansas, community for a few days after March 17. A delegation from the Stirling Avenue Church is to visit the coming session of the Eastern District Conference, which is to meet May 2 to 5 in Souderton. Dr. P. C. Hiebert was a recent speaker in the Stirling Avenue Church.

—Brudertal Church, Hillsboro, Kansas: Rev. Gerhard Friesen brought the message Sunday morning while our pastor, Rev. Arnold E. Funk, was in Turpin, Oklahoma, for a baptismal service. Last week the ladies sent nineteen comforters, eighteen large blankets, and ten baby quilts for the relief of the suffering in Europe. A proposed federal dam across the Cottonwood River, if built, will flood the eastern half of the Brudertal community near Hillsboro and even cause the water to enter the church building at flood stage. Families threatened with the loss of their homes and farms are anxiously hoping that the proposal will not materialize.—Mrs. Edwin R. Funk, Corr.

—Grace Church, Enid, Oklahoma: Rev. Ben Rahn made a business trip to Omaha, Nebraska, some time ago. The deacon's son, Menno Schmidt, came home on leave from C.P.S. camp for his grandmother's funeral. The choir of the West New Hopedale Church gave a program in our church on February 10. Rev. Albert Unruh, pastor of the church, delivered a short but to-the-point sermon during the same program.—Mrs. J. Kliewer, Corr.

—First Church, Halstead, Kansas: Members have given money and flour for a carload of flour which will very likely be sent to France. Dr. Winfield Fretz gave a very inspiring talk on relief in Europe at a recent C.E. meeting. We are gathering blankets to help make up the fifty thousand. Mrs. P. A. Penner spoke to the Mary Martha Society which met on February 13. Mrs. Henry Will gave a topic on "South America" at a meeting of the Dorcas Society. The Senior Society quilted at its recent meeting. —Mrs. Carl Dettweiler, Corr.

—Flatland Church, Quakertown, Pa.: On February 3rd the congregation voted in favor of having church services every Sunday instead of every other Sunday. A committee has been appointed to work out the plan of services together with the two other churches in the Swamp charge.—H. R. Ahlum, Corr.

—First Church of Christian Mennonite, Moundridge, Kansas, has approximately 325 members. Of these 248 are resident members and seventy-seven live at a distance. Total contributions, including the various organizations, amounted to $16,765.21 during 1945. The Mission Society's church basement fund, begun in 1933, passed the one thousand dollar mark in 1945. At least 350 pounds of new and used clothing, bedding and sixty pounds of soap were given for relief.—Linda V. Kaufman, Corr.

Mrs. G. A. Linscheid
222 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

ORDER BLANK

The subscription price for The Mennonite for 1945 is: New Subscriptions $1.25 for the first year, Renewals $1.75 per year.

Please use this Order Blank when sending in your subscription and underscore the word New or Renewal to correspond with the type of subscription you are to pay for.

Name ________________________________

Street or Route ________________________

Address ______________________________

Remittances from Canada should be made by Postal Money Order only. Please write name and address plainly to avoid errors.

Mennonite Publication Office
Newton, Kansas

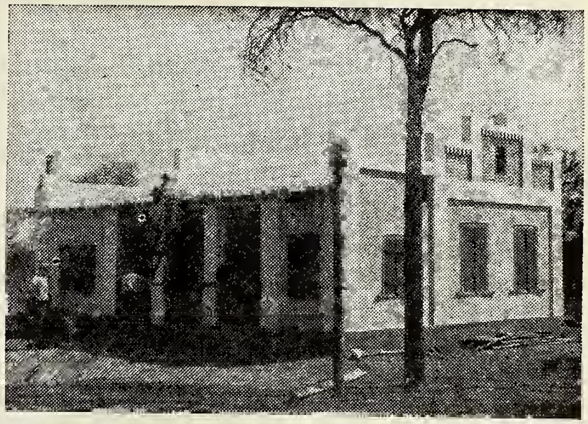
—Noble, Iowa: The Eicher Church has been canning food for relief to be sent to Europe through the M.C.C. In all 1,028 cans of chicken, pork, and beef were processed in tin cans. Three hundred pounds of lard were also sent Three hundred seventy-one pounds of clothing were also sent just recently. The plan is to send a shipment of new clothing in the near future.—Mrs. Raymond Rich, Corr.

—First Church, Shafter, California: Miss Hulda Gaede left recently for office work with the M.C.C., Akron, Pa. Dan Gilbert spoke in the Mennonite Brethren Church, February 20-24. The Shafter Ministerial Association had invited him. On February 12th the Released Time Religious Education workers were guests of the Ministerial Association at a meeting at the First Mennonite Church. Mrs. C. F. Ummel, missionary, is superintendent of the workers and has led the movement the past three years. She reported that more than five hundred students from one school attend the Religious School. Fifty per cent of these when first enrolled had never attended a Sunday School or church, but since have come to attend some nearby Sunday School. Twenty-five different religious groups are represented in the enrollment, with no particular creed taught. Emphasis is on Bible teachings, singing, and praying. —Mrs. Elma Bartel, Corr.

The Mennonite

Volume 61 — March 5, 1946 — Number 10

1. Industrial plant in 1945, showing ice plant at the left, the butter and cheese factory at the right.



2. A 1945 home in the village of Philadelphia, Fernheim Colony. Construction of burnt brick and tile.

3. Fernheim Colony co-operative store, operating in 1939. Now considerably enlarged and improved.

4. Cotton gin as it was in 1939. Piled up on the right are cotton bales waiting to be processed.

5. Two-room school in Friesland Colony, white walls of adobe clay, adequate light through glass windows. Large, well-kept playground.

6. Renovated old hospital in back, new brick structure with doctor's and dentist's offices, pharmacy and laboratories in foreground.

THIS IS THE WAY IT LOOKS IN PARAGUAY

Cuts, Courtesy "Mennonite Life"

(For article on Paraguay see page 3)

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point-of-view:

APPROVAL of the government's plan for feeding the starving peoples of the world might well be registered by us with the President and with our representatives in congress. It is easy to criticize when things go wrong. We should speak up when they go right. Approval of the government's plan for feeding the starving by the Christian churches of America would strengthen the government in its purpose. It will have enough opposition to balk when protests come in about eating darker bread, etc. It is true that "Feeding a hungry world is too great a task for private agencies. It calls for action by the nation as a whole." So the government's step is an extremely significant one. We need to assure our government of our appreciation and support.

TALKING IT OVER in a spirit of Christian humility is mightily enriching. The recent joint sessions of conference boards and committees made possible certain insights that would not have come without such joint meetings. A growing appreciation of this fact was indicated by the numerous times that boards and committees met together. Afterall none of us can work unto himself. None of us is so made that he can be self-sufficient. We all need each other. Each of us has something to contribute to the good of the whole. Indeed modern civilization is largely the sum total of all the contributions that millions upon millions of individuals have made to a growing body of common experience. The more one individual mind is enabled to know what others have experienced, the more that mind has to work with in the formulation of its own unique contribution. People, rightly related, are mutually stimulating. "Talking it over" is a very Christian act, for it emphasizes the fact that as Christians we are all part of one complex body and that the ear is not justified in saying that it has no need for the eye.

STRIKES are symptoms of an illness which needs prevention rather than cure only. Diseased relationships usually become progressively worse. Factors making for healthy human relationships are: 1. A vital concern for the welfare of other people. The Christian spirit is that the employer love the employee as he loves himself and vice versa. From the employer's standpoint this means an interest in human welfare as great as the interest in profits, and for the employee it means as great an interest in the employer's character as in the pay check received. It means that human life is valued highest and not property. 2. Confession of faults. Certainly neither employer or employee are hardly ever up to the highest ideals that each holds for himself. In that case each should be able to confess honestly some specific failure. Such beam removal facilitates mote removal. 3. Facing of every resentment as it arises. Frequent management-labor consultations to iron out differences. In fact, it would seem that labor might nearly always be represented in management meetings and management in labor meetings. Genuine cooperation would seem to demand this. The value of human lives must be much greater than the value of dollars if strikes are to be avoided.

ANXIETY as the cause of illness, or as an aggravating factor of it, is a field of human experience that needs to be explored more widely. There are cases on record in which anxiety caused or aggravated eczema, Raynaud's disease, asthma, loss of smell, paralyzation, bone fractures (although this seems impossible at first thought), diabetes, heart disease, high blood pressure, arthritis, colitis, peptic ulcers, urticaria, headaches, and chronic vomiting. Anxiety also seems to lessen resistance to the common cold. Anxiety affects the nervous system and the nervous system affects other parts of the body. Even from our present inadequate knowledge of the effects of anxiety it is evident that a thorough release from anxiety can greatly improve a person's health.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917 Authorized Jan. 22, 1919

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor ...... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS

"Headwork" in the Rough, Beautiful Chaco

by A. M. Lohrentz M. D.

The Chaco has been described as "Green Hell." 'his is partly true. They might have put the word hot" into the phrase, and yet that wouldn't be all. Vhen one goes into the bush, one is confronted with horns of every description. Cactus that has hooked horns, getting hold of you from every direction and von't let go until you tear your skin, clothes or shoes nd are pricked by the other multitudinous thorns f every description—short, long, very sharp, causing ch and burns and what not. But that isn't all. One s careful not to be caught by these various thorns, ut then one gets caught by the prick of a mosquito f the malarial type or several other kinds, or is stung y a bee or other flying insect. In trying to avoid he thorns and in driving the insects off one may ccidentally step into a nest of biting ants, whose ting is worse than the thorn or flying insect. One nay wish for an end to all these pestiferous things, ut where there is no frost, one has to get along with ll this for ever and ever. And one might well say men, for this it is and shall be.

But there are also lovely and lovable creatures and keable things. One finds the beautifully colored irds and flowers, the pretty looking small fields of affir, beans, peanuts, pumpkins, cotton, watermelons; rchards of oranges, lemons, grapefruit, bananas, uayabas (I didn't learn to like these) and other ruits. Cattle, including the cow, and the calf as a elf-starter, to give the delicious milk, can be seen verywhere in the bush, on the campo, as well as on he Dorf streets, including Philadelphia. The nights re not as quiet as one might expect where there are o autos or streetcars to make noise. The 101 dogs an make it lively, and the roosters do not have the Iorth American custom of crowing only at 4:00 a.m.; hey crow at least every hour beginning at nine 'clock in the evening till sunrise. If thereby they vant to proclaim the glories of God, I am in favor f it. We human creatures could probably do a little nore crowing, too, because there are enough reasons o praise our Creator day and night.

The lovable creatures are, of course, the Mennonites n the Fernheim as well as in the Menno Colony, riesland and Primavera and not forgetting the Lenua, Choolupee and Toba Indians and the few Parguayans who live in the Chaco.

My work, of course, was not to appraise the value f all that the Chaco contains but to do some medical ork, and to most of the people I was known as the Kop Dokta" (head doctor). Part of the work was o examine eyes to find out how much trachoma was still present. In the Fernheim Colony, with its seventeen "Doerfer" and Philadelphia, 1,584 pairs of eyes were examined, with over 26 per cent of the population having trachoma in various stages. In the Menno Colony, with over thirty-nine "Doerfer," 2,435 pairs of eyes were examined. The percentage of trachomatous eyes was only 20 per cent. Shortly before I left Paraguay, I had the privilege of visiting the Friesland Colony. Within its nine "Doerfer," the percentage of trachomatous eyes was down to 13 per cent amongst the 579 pairs of eyes looked at. A total of 9,196 eyes, whose upper eyelids were everted for examination. The present treatment is not as rough nor as disastrous as it used to be. The sulfa drugs by mouth do a wonderful, painless job with very good results. The Hutterite Colony with its two "Hoefs" (yards) and a population of 440, do not have trachoma according to the report that Dr. Davies gave me personally.

The above work of examining eyes was done as a side issue. At the Philadelphia hospital and clinic building I did the daily work of seeing patients, a total of 1,862 from March 1 to December 30, 1945. Since my specialty is eye, ear, nose, and throat, most of the work was in that line, although while Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt were gone, I tried to do all the work. Fifty-four pairs of tonsils were removed and seventeen eye operations performed. Since refraction (testing eyes for glasses) is in my line, much of my time was taken up with it. Over four hundred prescriptions for glasses were filled out, including twenty-seven from the Friesland Colony, where I spent the time from January 5 to 17, 1946. Over one-fourth of these prescriptions I had to order from the United States because they could not be filled in Asuncion nor Buenos Aires.

Quite a few of the patients were financially unable to pay for glasses; so my home church, Hebron of Buhler, Kansas, the Angelina Girls of Halstead, Kansas, the Bethlehem Sewing Society, Bloomfield, Montana, and a few individual friends came to the rescue and supplied over two thousand Guarani to help out. (United States $1.00 about 3.00 Guarani). They all say a hearty "Thank You," to every giver.

In closing, let me remind you that we all work together. Not only the Mennonite Central Committee workers, but also the people in the Chaco and Friesland. Mr. Vernon Schmidt has taken care of the roads, and, of course, Sarita (Mrs. Schmidt) offered encouragement, making things more pleasant. Dr. and Mrs. Willard Smith kept a lively household at Eligio Ayala 364 (now moved to 25 de Noviembre 371), Asuncion, Paraguay, and directed all the affairs until they left for the United States. Dr. and Mrs. John R. Schmidt and John Junior do a wonderful job in keeping things going at the Philadelphia hospital. Orval Myers is betwixt and between—map drawing, leper site investigations, road building, hospital bell system, and waiting for telephone equipment. Waldo and Rachel Hiebert do a needed work in the "Zentral Schule" and still more in the line of Bible and evangelistic work. Betty Keeney has done very fine work among the Paraguayans at Itacurubi, near the Friesland Colony, with the feeding of school children. Last but not least, we have Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Souder and Janie. We would have been lost without the help of Elvin, Pattie and Jane, in keeping track of all the Mennonite Central Committee program, the various reports checked and double checked and then forwarded, the affairs that had to be taken up with the Paraguayan government in connection with the Chaco and Friesland Mennonites as well as the Mennonite Central Committee workers as they came and left Asuncion; also as a buyer of everything from toothpicks to Nanduti lace. The rest of us had to "run" to keep up with Elvin.

May this help a little to strengthen the "Tie that Binds."

MY TRIP HOME

(Dr. A. M. Lohrentz, eye, ear, nose specialist of McPherson, Kansas, and former missionary to China, describes below his trip from the Chaco to the United States.—Editor)

I left Philadelphia, Fernheim Colony, Chaco, Paraguay, South America, on December 31, 1945, 5 P.M. I had been there since March 1, 1945. We travelled by horse drawn spring wagon all that night and all of New Year's Day, and arrived at Kilometer 145 about 7:00 P.M. Here we stayed for the night under the blue heavens, but before we retired a group of about twenty-five sat in a circle on the ground and sang songs that we knew from memory. On January 2nd, we travelled by narrow gauge train to Puerto Casado, and the following day at 5:30 P.M. we started down the Paraguay River on a very modern boat, the Iris, and arrived the next day at Puerto Rosario, the river port for the Friesland Colony and the Hutterites. Since it was past 11 P.M., we stayed for the night at Gerhard Koop, and left the next day (January 5) by lumber wagon for Friesland. Arrived there a few minutes ahead of a heavy rain at 5 P.M. Thankful that we could get under cover. On January 18th we left Friesland and arrived at the new Mennonite Central Committee home, 25 de Noviembre 371, Asuncion, Paraguay. Here I had to wait till February 9th for my airplane passage, arriving at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, the same day. February 13th we left Rio for Belem, Brazil. February 14th we left early for Miami, Florida. Stopping at Trinidad and Puerto Rico. Landed in the good old United States of America at 10 P.M. Sunday. February 17th I spent with my sister, Mrs. Gustav R. Gaeddert, Silver Springs, Maryland. Then spent a few days at M.C.C. headquarters, Akron, Pennsylvania, and left for the West on February 20th and spent part of the next day at my brother-in-law's, Dr. Walter W. Wollmann, Louisville, Kentucky. Finally arrived on the Missouri Pacific at Lindsborg, Kansas, on Saturday, February 23, 1946, at 1 A.M. where Mrs. Lohrentz and Harold met me to take me home to McPherson, Kansas.

I had left Kansas on January 18, 1945. The time spent in the Chaco, with our "Platdeutsch-speaking" Mennonites, was very enjoyable, even though it did get to be 115 degrees Fahrenheit hot or warm. I shall never forget the friendships formed there.—Your coworker, A. M. Lohrentz.

PROGRAM MINISTER'S CONFERENCE

(During Bible Week)
at Memorial Hall Newton Kansas
March 19-20

Conference Theme__________"For the love of Christ Constraineth us." II Cor. 5:14

Tuesday

9:45 Devotions __________________ Rev. Philip Wedel
10:00 Study of the Book of Jude_Rev. Homer Sperling
Special Music ________ Mennonite Bible Acadamy
10:40 "Why a School of Missions in the Local Church?" _________________ Rev. Lester Hostetler
Discussion ____________ Rev. Reynold Weinbrenner
11:20 "Being a Missionary in Your Own Church"

Wednesday

9:45 Devotions _____________________ Henry Goossen
10:00 Bible Study Eph. 2.______________J. P. Loewen
Special Music
10:40 "The Pastor's Responsibility to the Children in the Church"____________________Rev. Henry Hege
Discussion __________________ Rev. Henry Fransen
11:20 "The Pastor and His Bible Study Class"______ Rev. J. N. Smucker

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEETING

March 20, 1946, 9:45 A. M.
Student Union Room

Worship Service — Mrs. J. A. Ewert
Music — Alexanderwohl Church
Voluntary Service Program — Dr. H. A. Fast
Music — Eden Church
Address — "Women and the Kingdom"

Lunch will be served to the women at 11:45 at which time Mrs. G. E. Klassen will speak to the group about her experiences in Paraguay.

All women are cordially invited to attend the meetings.—Mrs. A. M. Gaeddert, Secretary.

1946 Vacation Bible School

Parents have dreams and aspirations for the place of their child on the stage of life. Years of war alter these dreams. They sift them.

War brings to the foreground the great issues of life and death. What comes in between retreats to secondary importance, for thought lines change in face of imminent danger.

If the strife lasts long enough to give us sufficient pain, which is the staircase that leads to the deeper stratas of thought, we emerge from such years with the sifted nuggets of the true values of life. "The one thing I want for my child is God," said a parent at the close of the last conflict.

If our present youth is to face the uncertainties of a darkening future, then let each parent breathe the same strong wish; then let each of us sift down our dreams in regard to our youth until in the sieve of our aspiration for them, lies the one great nugget of the chief value for life which is God!

With new determination and complete dedication, let us arise from the past tremendous struggle to unite our efforts in a definite program for our youth —a program that shall more firmly anchor their heart in the Eternal One by a hold so strong of trust and faith that even the "gales" of the higher seas shall not sweep them away.

In this program of Christian education the Vacation Bible School is but a small part. It is, however, an integral part of that program. It is another avenue by which, through the grace of God, we can help our youth to become established in Him by faith.

In view of the great need for the youth of our churches, the loaves we have prepared seem but like loaves and fishes in our sight. It is our prayer that in the hands of our Master our "loaves" and "fishes" might multiply to bless our churches.

Our handbook for the Vacation Bible School worker will be ready to mail about March 7. Orders can now be placed with Joanna S. Andres, 700 East Fifth, Newton, Kansas. We are asking twenty-five cents per booklet to help with the printing expenses.

—The Western District Vacation Bible School Staff under the auspices of the Western District Education Committee.

ONE GENERATION

by Ronald von Riesen

The Book of Judges has in it a timely warning for our generation. The Book is a vivid account of the history of the twelve tribes of Israel as they dwelt within the pagan influences of their day.

There is evident as one reads through the book a certain cycle that characterizes their history during this period of approximately three hundred and fifty years. "And the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the Lord, and the Lord delivered them into the hands of," an oppressor. "And they cried unto the Lord . . . the Lord sent a prophet . . ." to champion their cause, and to lead them into another generation of freedom.

Perhaps the key to this cycle of victory and oppression is found in Judges 2:10, "And there arose a generation after them, that knew not the Lord, nor yet the works which he had done for Israel." This bit of history brings to our attention the timelessness of a Christ-centered educational program. The education of our young people as well as adults is an unending process. To bring a person to Christ and to instruct him in the teachings of the Bible is an unending process. Many of us have been reminded as World War II came upon us that there had arisen a generation amongst our people who had little knowledge as to the historic principles of our Christian heritage and were therefore unprepared to cope with the pressure of the times. There is always danger that we may give rise to a generation that knows not God and a generation that is utterly bankrupt in a thorough understanding and a workable knowledge of the Bible.

Few of us would realize the far-reaching effects if for one whole generation we would forget all about our Christian heritage and would cease to teach our children, and become pagan. This should make us realize anew the importance of the home in the training of the child and also the work of the church in nurturing that child in the way of Christ. Secular education has proceeded on this principle and each generation must learn anew certain basic skills which will help the individual to adjust himself to the society and culture in which he lives. How much more should this be true in education that seeks to bring our children to Jesus Christ as their Savior, and as the Lord of their life. This should be the unending task of our educational program in all of our churches in our conference lest there arise in our midst "a generation that knows not the Lord nor the works which He had done for Israel." (Written in behalf of the Board of Education)

JOTTINGS

Salem Church, Munich, North Dakota, is planning revival meetings from June 23 to July 7, with Rev. George Dick of Bloomfield, Montana, as evangelist. Due to blizzards and a snow-plow derailment, four towns on the Lakota-Sarles branch of the Great Northern Railroad had no train service from February 5th to 16.—Mathilda Ortmann, Corr.

—St. John Church, Pandora, Ohio: Nelson Schumacher, who served as attendant on a shipload of horses to Danzig, reported on his trip to the Sunday School on February 27. St. John Church is donating blankets and canning meat for relief.—Mrs. Josephine Moser, Corr.

—Mennonite Church, Newport, Washington: Willis Rich and Rev. David Wedel were with us one evening in January as representatives of Bethel College. Missionary H. J. Brown conducted evening services February 18th and 19. Some of the men are installing a water system. June 16th has been set as the date for our church dedication.—Mrs. W. D. Hiebert, Corr.

—Mennonite Church, Herbert, Saskatchewan: K. H. Neufeld, choir leader and music teacher of Winkler, Manitoba, worked with the choirs of Herbert, Swift Current, and Wymark from February 1 to 16. On February 17th all these choirs joined for a general song festival in the large Metropolitan church in Swift Current. An audience of seven hundred people heard the 125 singers. The mass choir sang: two pieces from "The Nazarene" by J. S. Wilty, "God So Loved the World," and "Sweetly the Master Is Sleeping;" "Waldfrieden" by Robert Schumann, and also "Mit dem Herrn fang Alles an," "Master the Tempest Is Raging," "Zion Bells" by a ladies choir. The Bible School Orchestra played several numbers. The Bible School Choir sang "O Power of Love." The program whet the appetite for more in the future.—I. A Derksen

—First Church, Madrid, Nebraska: We have achieved a record attendance of seventy-six in Sunday School, this in spite of the loss of two families (twelve regular members), who have moved away. The church members surprised Mr. and Mrs. Herman Boese with a farewell service. The ladies served home-made ice-cream and cookies. In response to the call for blankets on the front page of The Mennonite, which came here Saturday, the women's Mission Society got busy, and by 10 P. M. Monday night they had seven comforters ready. The fourteen members of the society had packed several boxes before, and they have sufficient clothing and shoes on hand again for several boxes. All clothing is cleaned and patched before packing.—John G. Unruh

—Dr. J. H. Langenwalter's new house address is 712 South Lorraine Avenue, Wichita, Kansas. Telephone 31305. The church address is 3016 East Gilbert and the telephone 24305.

—First Church, Aberdeen, Idaho: The Women's Mission Society shipped about 250 pounds of new and used clothing, valued at about $350, to the M.C.C. clothing center, Newton, Kansas. One thousand cases of forty-eight tins (each tin 14½ ounces) of freshly powdered milk have been purchased by our church. These are to be shipped to Europe. The addition to the south end of our church has been begun. The basement was excavated in one day and the forms for the foundation built.—Arnold E. Bartel, Corr.

—Butterfield, Minnesota: The women of the church have made at least thirty-five quilts, mostly woolen ones, since last fall. Around eight hundred pounds of used and new clothing and quilts and blankets were shipped to Newton, Kansas, and Akron, Pa. Two trips were made to Lakefield to can chickens, beef, and vegetables for relief.—Mrs. Ted Linscheid, Corr.

—First Church, Beatrice, Nebraska: At the annual meeting it was decided that all members serving in C.P.S. receive twenty-five dollars per month spent in service this year, this money to be added to the reserve fund already established and to be given to members upon their release. By this time all but three members have been released. The church has purchased Rev. Walter Dyck's house for a parsonage. For running expenses and upkeep of the church, each male member is assessed fifteen dollars, plus fifteen cents per acre, and free will offerings are held. A "summary of offices" for 1946 showed: 2 persons holding 4 positions, 11 in 3 positions, 25 in 2 positions, and 76 in 1 position, making a total of 114 persons in 167 offices.—Margaret Albrecht, Corr.

—First Church, Monroe, Washington: The men are "working like beavers" digging a basement under the church and building a wing onto the side of it. This space is very much needed for Sunday School classrooms. A new parsonage will also soon be under construction. Since the arrival of Rev. and and Mrs. George W. Kopper our Sunday School and church attendance has been on a steady increase. About 80 per cent of our congregation attends midweek Bible study and prayer service The children have a midweek meeting of their own at which they sing choruses, memorize scripture, and have a flannelgraph story or object lesson. An average of fifteen children attend. The churches of Monroe are cooperating in union services this week (February 21).—Eleanor Goerz, Corr.

QUOTE

The Pennsylvania Co-op Review:

The church and church people are more and more espousing the cooperative method. This backing has already proved significant in spreading the cooperative idea, but at the same time this activity has begun to make the principle of love real in our communities and all over the world. It may yet make charity practical and give us the means of bringing the peace we have so often fought for, but have never really won.

Observations on My Trip to Poland

By Gerhard Friesen

Our group planning to help in the care of animals shipped to Europe by UNRRA left Newton, November 14. We arrived in Baltimore, Maryland, the evening of the 15th. It took us all of the next day to get our physical examination and to get lined up for he job on the ship. We were all fortunate to receive our Merchant Marine passes.

The morning of November the 17th we traveled the distance of about thirty-five miles to New Windsor, which is the headquarters of the Brethren Service Center. It is the campus of a former college. Now it also serves as a C.P.S. camp for some of their men and as a Relief Clothing Center. That day we raked the leaves and cleaned the campus for our board and lodging.

In the evening we were informed that five of us would go to New York, and the others to Portland, Maine. The following men: Jacob Decker, Arthur Becker, Henry Unruh, Walter Ratzlaff, and I went to New York. Our ship at New York was to sail Monday, so we hired a truck to take us to Baltimore early Sunday morning—a mild and beautiful Sunday. From there we went by train to New York. We located our ship and were made at home in our cabin. Then we attended a church service in a Baptist church in the evening.

Monday we discovered that the ship was not ready to sail. No horses were loaded. A lot of hay was also to be loaded on deck as we discovered later. This gave us time to see something of the city. Wednesday, at 5 P.M. we left the pier and were moved by the tug boats into the open water. It was dark by that time and lights along the shore furnished a beautiful sight as we sailed out of the harbor. We entrusted ourselves into the care of Him who neither slumbers nor sleeps and went to bed.

The sea got rough, but next morning nobody wanted to admit that anything was wrong. We tried to eat a little breakfast, but before the noon meal we all knew how everybody felt. The motion one's stomach goes through can be illustrated by imagining yourself on a thirty to forty foot swing cutting a big figure eight as you go up and down. You have the up and down and side to side motion constantly without intermission. The big fat turkeys that were gotten out of cold storage and served for the Thanksgiving dinner were left untouched. We did not even want to smell them. By Friday noon most of us could eat again, and we had a very nice trip across the Atlantic, although this ocean is always in more or less energetic motion.

We saw two floating mines in the North Sea and plenty of wrecked ships whenever we came close to land. Our captain took the northern route around Scotland between Norway, Sweden and Denmark. In this latitude the days were only about six hours long, and the sun stays so low in the south that one does not know whether it rises or sets. This route is two hundred miles shorter than the one through the English Channel and the Kiel Canal. When you study the globe you will see why.

We came into the Danzig port, Neufahrwasser, December 6, toward evening. The wreckage and the ruins in the port gave a sorry sight, but nothing compared to what we were to see later in the city of Danzig itself. The country was under a thin sheet of snow and the air was rather chilly. The first experience that greeted us as we got off to romp a little on solid ground was a group of boys around a wood fire, eagerly asking: "Koennen wir mitfahren nach Amerika?" (May we go along to America?) (I estimated these boys eleven to fourteen years old, and learned they were fourteen to eighteen, stunted evidently by inheritance and by the tobacco poison). That question was later put to us by many others of all ages. But a much more frequent and disheartening question, one we faced all the time was: "Haben Sie Cigaretten? Koennen sie mir Cigaretten verkaufen?" (Have you cigarettes? Can you sell me some cigarettes?") Or, one by small children, usually girls: "Uncle, please, a cigarette for my papa." To see a people so sodden in the nicotine habit and in such a desperate condition economically politically, and spiritually gives one a feeling of hopelessness.

Danzig was an independent city state, the free city of Danzig. It was taken over by Hitler, and consequently when the Russians pushed back the Germans, the Russians made it feel their power. It now is a heap of ruins made so by the Russians ten days after they occupied it. It was pure vandalism or revenge, so we were told. About sixty thousand bodies lie under those piles of brick, one person informed me—and we could smell it. At one place the ruins were still smoking from April of last spring.

Walking through the ruins of Danzig we met women, who with tears in their eyes, begged for bread, or something with which to buy bread Several miles beyond Danzig we stopped at some country houses. At first we received no answer to our knocking. When we turned to leave two women came out. When they discovered we were Americans they were overjoyed and invited us in. We had hardly started to visit when in rushed several men and a group of boys. They had worked on dikes about a quarter of a mile away and seeing us enter the houses had feared that the Poles had come to rob them of their household goods. One of the women in the house said she had a house of her own a short distance away in the village but the Poles claimed it with its contents and would not even let her pick up the loose wood on the yard to keep a fire in the house. So she now stayed with her brother-in-law.

We were told how the few Germans that had not been killed, driven out, or fled had been liquidated in Danzig. They had been offered to leave by train for the British and American Occupation Zone. The train was filled, ran in that direction for twenty to twenty-five miles, stopped, and then they were ordered to get out. There was nothing left but to walk back to their homes. Arriving home they found the Poles had occupied their houses and claimed everthing in them. They were taken to work camps and left to find a way of existence. If they find work they get thirty Zlotich a day; if not, so much the worse, or maybe so much sooner the suffering will be over.

In part there were still places of business, mostly beer and vodka, but also some grocery stores. But the supplies were very meagre. In Danzig we saw here and there little booths of plane boards about 6 x 6 feet, or 6 x 8, built in the opening of big doors or show windows. In these would be a man or a woman selling candles, pencils, a few pieces of candy, a loaf of bread or two, and other little things.

We were told that the Russians had taken all the implements and all the stock from the farmers. No fields were tilled. They were overgrown with grass and weeds. We saw women and girls load onto wagons some of the hay bales we had brought. They were German women and girls. They get thirty Zlotich a day, and loaf of bread costs thirty-five. They eat early in the morning before they go to work and do not eat anything before they get home in the evening. A man gets 120 Zlotich a day. A little comparison of the price of things will throw some light on the conditions.

1 Kilo (2 lbs.) sugar, 100 Zlotich
1 egg, 24 Z.
1 Kilo lard, 450-500 Z.
1 lb. not Kilo butter, 420 Z.
1 Kilo milk, 80 Z.
A suit, 5,000-10,000 Z.
Before the war:
1 lb. Butter, 1 Z.
1 lb. sugar, 1 Z.
A suit, 45 Z.

The Russians have a garrison in Danzig. The present Polish government is in power by the grace of Russia. I was told that there were six political parties, four of them not so much favored by the larger part of the population, and two that compose the majority of the voters. The latter are more in opposition to the Russians and the present government. They hope for a free election this spring but fear that the ballots will be so identified that everybody will vote so he will not be in immediate danger of his life.

Trains, busses and street cars are running, such as they are. In these there are quite a few broken windows. Some of these are nailed shut with boards; some are still open. No heat in trains, busses, or street cars. If it is sub-zero outside, it is the same inside. These traffic facilities are mostly crowded to the last inch. They are dirty and do not run regularly. Some of the Poles themselves say: "Alles kaput."

The battlefields in the neighborhood of the post bristle with wrecks of cannon, monstrous searchlights, war trucks and other war implements. Concrete caves torn by explosives tell of efforts to protect the shore; trenches run zigzag among the trees that cover the shore. All tell of the death struggle that has gone on here.

We usually think of the Germans as all being sympathizers with the Hitler program. But the older Germans told me that they had not wanted this war at all. It was the Barons and the Hitler-trained youth that fed the war spirit. The people were helpless to stop this juggernaut. There was some resistance, though futile. Poles who knew told me that thousands of soldiers were shot on the eastern front because they refused to go along with Hitler's program. A little ways north of the port of Danzig, on the Hela peninsula, six thousand German soldiers were reported shot for that reason.

Now something about our cargo. We had 777 horses to begin with and lost forty-four on the way. They were practically all sick when they arrived at seaboard. They had been poorly taken care of. They had distemper and bad colds. We had two veterinarians to help us take care of them. By the time we reached Poland we had them nearly well.

But the horses were only about one-eighth of the cargo. We had feed and lots of other relief goods. A ship 455 feet long and 62 feet wide and 4 decks deep has an immense amount of room. The trip back across the Atlantic was unusually stormy, but we enjoyed it just the same. It is majestic just to watch the motion of the waters and the rolling and diving of the ship. It got a crack in the bottom and we had to go into dry dock as soon as we reached port. But the water, though it came in faster than they could pump it out, could get only in the fuel tanks in the bottom deck, and we arrived safely, thanks to God's protecting care.

Now a word or suggestion to those who plan on making such a trip sometime. Do not take too much equipment along. Two or three pair of work outfits; one Sunday suit, not too good, underwear according to season. You can wash on board ship and buy underwear, shirts, socks, etc. And do not forget a good pair of rubbers or overshoes. The bedding is supplied. And, I hope you will be a good sailor.

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Vice President
Verney Unruh
Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

Young People's Union Council Meets

Fifteen young people representing the district organizations of young people composed the Young People's Union Council which met at Bethel College, February 19-21. The meeting was held at the same time the Conference Boards met thus making possible discussion with and clearing of plans and projects between the various boards and committees. The representatives were from four of the five districts in the States and two Canadian provinces—Saskatchewan and Ontario.

The Council meeting was held in order to share and compare plans, projects, and problems each district organization faces. It also laid plans for a future youth program within the churches which would be of vital significance to the spiritual development of Mennonite youth. In light of this purpose, each district reported past activity and future plans. A discussion of common problems also was included in the program. Future plans and projects were presented, discussed and official action was taken on them.

Canadian Projects Considered

The Canadian representatives, Henry Friesen of Rosthern, Saskatchewan, and Peter Epp of Leamington Ontario, presented their plans for the future. The organization of a young people's group in Ontario took place, September 2, 1945. A keen need is felt by the leaders for a retreat grounds and a Bible school. The possibility of obtaining a retreat grounds or a Bible school is under consideration.

Saskatchewan Summer Bible Schools

Henry Friesen reported that the annual retreats sponsored and conducted by their young people's society in Saskatchewan were a great blessing. Two such retreats are at present held. Two more are under consideration.

Another ambitious project sponsored by the Saskatchewan group is the daily vacation Bible schools. In 1937 one teacher and one school served to start this program. Last summer, sixty-one workers served with six additional workers in a children's camp. A need was expressed by Mr. Friesen for Bible school teachers and an invitation was extended to volunteers from the States.

Because of the many orphans that are contacted in the daily vacation Bible school program, the need for an orphan home is keenly felt. While in the States, Mr. Friesen visited orphanages in order to become acquainted with their method of functioning. It is his sincere prayer that an orphan home may be provided at the Mennonite Youth Farm at Rosthern. The Invalid home at the Youth Farm is being expanded to accommodate thirty additional patients.

Local Church Youth Program

The nature of the youth program being conducted by local churches was discussed at length. It was pointed out that in many churches the Christian Endeavor program is the youth activity. The relationship between the young people of the church and the Christian Endeavor was then discussed. There was the feeling that the position of youth in the local church needs to be reconsidered. A vital tie between local youth and the church at large was needed very much it was felt.

The problem of making this tie real was discussed at length. The leader's Institutes, the youth section of the paper, the projects and retreats were pointed out as being avenues of contact and expression. A need was felt, however, for consecrated local leadership and vital local groups who feel themselves a part of the Church and its work.

Projects To Be Sponsored

Action was taken to sponsor a number of projects. These are (1) Foreign Christian Student Fund. This Fund woul be used to bring students to this country to attend our church schools. Students would be coming from mission fields and areas in which the church is conducting a relief program. This means students from China, India, Africa, Paraguay, Puerto Rico, Europe would be eligible. The suggested amount was two thousand dollars a year to go toward this fund. (2) Publication of free literature. The study of the Young People's Program in Churches of the Western District Conference conducted by Mary Becker was considered as a project to be published and distributed. (3) Program helps. Many local groups desire suggestions and aid for program material for youth meetings. The development of such literature and aids is a project approved. Rev. Andrew Shelly of Kitchener, Ontario, will devote some time to this project. (4) The Mennonite Youth section of The Mennonite. Sponsorship of this section was approved and its value was discussed. (5) Voluntary service. Several of the church boards were interested in the voluntary service program. These boards asked the Emergency Relief Committee to represent their interests. In cooperation with the Emergency Relief Committee, the Young People's Union will develop and sponsor a voluntary service program. Definite projects are soon to be announced.

Those attending the Council meeting were: Saskatchewan—Henry Friesen of Rosthern; Ontario—Peter Epp, Leamington; Northern District—Arnold Nickel, Mt. Lake, Minnesota, Delsie Tieszen, Marion, South Dakota, Hazel Senner, Freeman, South Dakota; Pacific District—Alice Lehman, Aberdeen, Idaho; Middle District—Rev. Jacob Enz, Nappanee, Indiana, Genevieve Buhler, Bluffton, Ohio; Western District—Rev. Roland Goering, McPherson, Kansas, Mrs. Adam Mueller, North Newton, Kansas, Frieda Claassen, Beatrice, Nebraska; Young People's Union —Ruth Ewert, Chicago, Verney Unruh, New York, Elmer Ediger, Akron, Pa., Esko Loewen, Newton, Kansas.

M.C.C. Announces Summer Service

Plans are underway, the Mennonite Central Committee announces, for the continuation of the Summer Service Program begun two years ago. Already some letters have been received which indicate that it will involve both men and women, so the program will be changed from Women's Summer Service to the Voluntary Summer Service Program. Consideration is being given to the establishment of about four mental hospital service units and a unit for the Gulfport, Mississippi, public health project. Further information regarding the program, and application blanks, will be released sometime during March.

Arrangements are also being made for the continuation of the Gulfport project after the termination of the C.P.S. program. This will provide opportunity for various skilled and unskilled volunteers, both men and women, who are interested in making a Christian testimony in the South through a year's service. Plans are under consideration for extending the scope of the service from hookworm elimination and health education to religious and recreational assistance to Negro schools and further nursing services to the community. Reports indicate that "the Negroes appreciate the genuineness of the Christian message given by the Mennonites." It is hoped that this Good Samaritan project within our own country can be continued for several years and can make a definite spiritual contribution to this needy community.

Application blanks and further information for those interested in a year's service with the Gulfport unit may be had by writing Voluntary Services, Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pa. There are immediate openings for nurses interested in operating room, laboratory technician, and general duty work. —M. C. C. Release

A Chance to Serve

Word from the Mennonite Central Committee indicates that the Women's Summer Service program, which functioned so successfully for the two past summers, is now to be enlarged into a Voluntary Summer Service Program. One reason for the new name is that this summer not just women, but men as well, will be welcomed to participate in the program.

We understand that applications and letters of interest are being received in the M.C.C. office regarding the program for the coming summer indicating a genuine interest in the work which is being planned.

Five projects will likely be undertaken this summer. Four mental hospital units will be established and the work of the Gulfport, Mississippi, C.P.S. unit will be opened for summer volunteers. The number of volunteers that can be used has not been announced.

This Voluntary Service Program is to be heartily commended. It should, also, be enthusiastically supported. Young People of the church need very much to have the rich experience of exercising their faith in the redemptive, loving nature of God. As has been repeatedly stated, God has no hands but ours. Yet, that statement is void of meaning if our hands are not available to Him. Here is a chance to put those hands to work in devoted Christian service.

Not many young people have the opportunity to take part in the larger work of the church—the work of missions both at home and abroad, that of relief or of the care of the sick and the aged. Youth does not have the skill or the experience required to handle many of these jobs. But, there is a good deal of zeal! There is eagerness. There is energy, and it is our prayer that there is vision.

Perhaps in the area of performing simple sorts of service this zeal, vision, and energy will grow rather than be frustrated. Perhaps by working in privies in the Southland, or with the mess and noise among the mentally ill, we young people will be better prepared to do the work tomorrow will have for us. Not all of us are even designed to be preachers or teachers, missionaries or evangelists. But we can perform some sort of service.

The article appearing in these pages announcing next summer's plans, should be thoughtfully and prayerfully read by young people considering an enriching and profitable way of spending their summer.

The Word in New Words

The Revised Standard Version of the New Testament. Translated by the American Standard Bible Committee. 553 pp. New York: Thomas Nelson & Sons. $2.00. (Available from the Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana or the Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kansas.)

On February 11, 1946, years of work was culminated by a group of scholars appointed to bring forth a revision of the New Testament. The International Council of Religious Education appointed a committee whose duty it was to revise the American Standard Version of the Bible published in 1901.

This work was finishd perhaps much in the same way that the forty-seven professors, theologians, clergyman and laymen completed the work on the King James version of the Bible in 1611. After years of careful and studious work, the Bible was presented to King James in the beautiful prose form in which it is so widely read to this day.

Since then, much has happened. Much has happened to the English language which no longer is used in such a melodious and dignified manner as is found in the King James Bible. Instead, we today speak a cryptic, expressive English. Many of the old forms are strange to the modern ear. Also, much has happened to research and discovery regarding the Bible. Many types of Greek were used at the time the New Testament was written—particularly the classic Greek and the vernacular. Research has found that the New Testament was written in the vernacular rather than the classic as was originally assumed. This has done much to make possible a more accurate translation.

The committee which revised the New Testament has made an effort to put the language used in a style familiar to the ear of the present-day American. At the same time, an effort was made not to lose the dignity and beauty of the King James version. Also, the committee attempted to make the version as accurate as modern scholarship would afford.

As in other recent versions or translations, an effort was particularly made to avoid some of the archaic expressions present in the King James version. Rather than "compass round" the word "surround" is used. "Which," designating a person in the King James version, is "who" in the Revised Standard. "The more part" is "majority." And Jesus was baptised "by John" rather than "of John."

Mark 6:35 reads in the King James version: "And when the day was now far spent, his disciples came unto him, and said. This is a desert place, and now the time is far passed:" In the Revised Standard it is: "And when it grew late His disciples came to Him and said, 'This is a lonely place and the hour is now late.' " Luke 8:22 reads in the King James, "Now it came to pass on a certain day, that he went into a ship with his disciples: and he said unto them, Let us go over unto the other side of the lake. And they launched forth." The new version reads: "One day He got into a boat with His disciples and He said to them, 'Let us go across to the other side of the lake.' So they set out."

Here is the statement on faith as stated by Paul in Hebrews 11:1-3.
King James: "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. For by it the elders obtained a good report. Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear."

Revised Standard: "Now faith is the assurance of things hoped for, the conviction of things not seen. For by it the men of old received divine approval. By faith we understand that the world was created by the word of God, so that what is seen was made out of things which do not appear."

And the familiar verses from the Sermon on the Mount about seeking the Kingdom and judging one another:

King James: "Therefore take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, Wherewithal shall we be clothed? (For after all these things do the Gentiles seek:) for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things. But seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you. Take therefore no thought for the morrow; for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.

"Judge not, that ye be not judged. For with what judgement ye judge, ye shall be judged: and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again. And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Or how wilt thou say to thy brother, Let me pull out the mote out of thine eye; and behold, a beam is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam out of thine own eye; and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of they brother's eye."

Revised Standard: "Therefore do not be anxious, saying, 'What shall we eat?' or 'What shall we drink?' or 'What shall we wear?' For the Gentiles seek all these things; and your heavenly Father knows that you need them all. But seek first his kingdom and his righteousnes, and all these things shall be yours as well. Therefore do not be anxious about tomorrow, for tomorrow will be anxious for itself. Let the day's own trouble be sufficient for the day.

"Judge not, that you be not judged. For with the judgement you pronounce you will be judged, and the measure you give will be the measure you get. Why do you see the speck that is in your brother's eye, but do not notice the log that is in your own eye? Or how can you say to your brother, 'Let me take the speck out of your eye,' when there is the log in your own eye? You hypocrite, first take the log out of your own eye, and then you will see clearly to take the speck out of your brother's eye."

(Editor's Note: Doubtless events of general interest to youth occur in many of the churches, but are never reported. Should such events take place in your local church or community, drop a card to the editor of Mennonite Youth informing him)

YOUTH EVENTS

A Young People's Fellowship Banquet was held February 28 at the First Mennonite Church, Beatrice. Young People from the First and Second churches attended the banquet. Rev. Erland Waltner of Mountain Lake was the banquet speaker.

* * * * * *

On February 18, the House Military Affairs Committee again held hearings on the peacetime conscription. The length of these hearings is not at present known. Many plans for conscription are in the hopper including a suggestion made to the United Nations Organization that a world-wide conscription plan be adopted. At present, all is in confusion.

* * * * * *

Correspondence between Mennonite Young People in Holland and the Young People of the Silver Street church, Kitchener is being arranged. A contact was made between the Dutch youth and the Kitchener church through a friend in Holland.

* * * * * *

A similar plan called the 'Around the World Mennonite Fellowship" is under consideration by the M.C.C. This plan received inspiration when the Mennonite Youth Organization in Holland sent a list of names of Dutch young people desiring to correspond with American Mennonites.

On February 24 the Y.P. and Intermediate C.E. societies of the Grace Church, Albany, Oregon, presented a program for the Grace Church, Dallas, Oregon, is return for one the Dallas young people gave some time previous.

• • • • • •

Word from Miss Emma Ruth, Reedley, California, regarding migrant missionary work states that there remains a need for such workers among the migrants in the United States. The Women's Missionary Association has in the past sponsored such work during the summer. They intend to continue this work. She states: "Please have anyone who is interested in going into this work, write to me, or contact Mrs. A. M. Lohrentz, McPherson, Kansas, president of the Women's Association, or Mrs. W. C. Voth, Lorraine, Kansas, the secretary. They will inform our committee of such inquiries. I shall be glad also to send information regarding the work, or refer anyone desiring it to sources of information.

* * * * * *

The Pratum, Oregon, young people had a banquet on Saturday evening, February 2, honoring the boys who have been in the service. About fifty young people attended.

PETITION

By Ruth Carter

Lord, lift me up and help me be
What thou wouldst have today of me!
I would not wander from thy side,
Nor from the cross where Jesus died!

Lord, cleanse me, make me pure within!
Purge from my heart all taint of sin,
Till I may walk within thy way,
And spread thy glory day by day.

Lord, give me of thy strength and grace,
That I may look upon thy face,
And, having looked, may live anew,
A life forever pure and true! Amen.

Youth

Righteousness

"Jesus said less about righteousness than did some of the other teachers of His day, but what He said was of vastly deeper importance, because it was a matter of a right relationship with God, which meant the Peace of a right relationship with God and others."—J. H. Langenwalter in For all Mankind.

RELIEF

Food Shipments

On February 12 a shipment of 21,000 quarts of canned foods, 6,400 pounds of beans and 12,562 pounds of dried whole milk left for France. Four days later a shipment left for Holland consisting of 50,580 quarts of canned fruit, vegetables and meat, 6,480 pounds of evaporated milk and 10,952 pounds of dried whole milk.

Blankets for Europe

Blankets for Europe are coming in to Akron at about the rate of 500 per day; by February 18 approximately 8,000 had been received. It has been necessary to request the help of five workers each day from local churches to assist with the baling. The Materials for Relief office has made arrangements to purchase good blankets at a reasonable price; contributions of money for purchasing blankets should be marked, "For Blankets for Europe." It should have been stated in an earlier announcement that this drive is restricted to the United States.

Note of Thanks

An official of the Nederlands Volksherstel writes in a letter to the Akron office: "Will you kindly thank your committee and all the donors for the splendid work they have been doing for our poor Dutch people. I can assure you that we all are extremely thankful to find such Christianity among our American friends."

Paraguay Worker Returns

Dr. A. M. Lohrentz arrived in the States on February 17 after giving a year's medical service to the Mennonite colonists in Paraguay. Dr. Lohrentz is an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist and his work was mostly in that line. During his year's service he filled over 400 prescriptions for glasses, performed 54 tonsillectomies and examined 4,598 pairs of eyes for trachoma; by using sulfanilamide treatment he was able to secure almost 100 percent cure of the trachoma cases.

Relief Activities in France

The two main projects now being carried on in France are the operation of four children's homes and the distribution of clothing and shoes. In the four homes there are a total of about 185 children—the number varying from week to week. Most of them are from displaced families. Six MCC workers are serving in these homes. Clothing and shoes are being distributed through three avenues: to the children in the homes, to Mennonite families in East France and Alsace-Lorraine and to needy cases in Chalon and elsewhere in France. Distribution of food is just now beginning since the first food shipments have only begun to arrive in the past few weeks.

Relief Briefs

During the past few months Brother and Sister Waldo Heibert have been doing Bible teaching and evangelistic work in the Paraguayan Chaco colonies.

Robert Kreider is now in Paris preparing to begin his assignment in Northwest Europe.

C. P. S.

UNRRA Reserve Unit Underway

Assignment of men to the C.P.S. Reserve to serve as attendants on cattleboats is proceeding rapidly. The first C.P.S. men sailed on a cattleboat February 12. Meanwhile, selection of the 250 assignees for this work is nearing completion. About half of this number will be from Mennonite units.

Release of Canadian and British C.O.'s

A bill has been introduced into Parliament to provide for the demobilization of close to 30,000 conscientious objectors in Britain, while in Canada no steps have been taken as yet to provide for the general demobilization of Canadian C.O.'s. Both countries are thus far behind the U. S. in the release of C.O'.s, which in Britain is due to the fact that demobilization of the armed forces has not yet begun. The British bill provides for the release of C.O.'s in the same proportion and at the same rate as armed forces personnel. Releases are to be based on age and length of service. Action on the bill was scheduled for mid-February.

It is reported that there will be no steps to demobilize Canadian C.O.'s before spring, although some of them have been released from work contracts for personal reasons. As of April 30, 1945, 10,700 men had been given C.O. status in Canada.

IN MEMORIAM

John H. Goossen was born in South Russia, September 4, 1881, and died January 22, 1946. He passed away very suddenly at the Bethel Hospital, Mountain Lake, Minnesota, following a short illness. He was a member of the Gospel Mennonite Church, having been baptized in 1905.

Cathrine Claassen, daughter of Johann and Gertrude, nee Toevs, Claassen, was born near Beatrice, Nebraska, on February 7, 1885, and passed away February 13, 1946. She spent her whole life in the home in which she was born. Upon baptism by Elder Gerhard Penner in 1902 she became a member of the First Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebraska, of which she remained a faithful member to the end.

Mrs. D. D. Enns (Justina Walde) was born September 1, 1878, near Mountain Lake, Minnesota. In 1898 she was baptized and received into the Bergfelder Church (now Gospel Mennonite). After a long and trying illness she passed away to be with her Saviour on February 7, 1946.

Mrs. Ellen W. Thatcher was born November 5, 1864. In 1880 she joined the Reformed Church and in 1881 she married Charles Thatcher, with whom she shared life for almost sixty-five years. In 1938 both joined the Flatland Mennonite Church and in that same year the Bethany Church when they moved to Quakertown. Death came suddenly December 14, 1945.

Minnie Boese, daughter of Abr. A. Boese and Helena Letheman Boese, was born in Marion County, Kansas, June 5, 1893, and died January 21, 1946. When fifteen she assumed the responsibilities of the home upon the death of her mother. One year she attended the Bible academy in Hillsboro. After her father's second marriage she attended the Bethel College academy. Later she received her B.S. degree from Colorado University. She taught continuously, the last eighteen years in the Billings, Montana, high school. She was baptized in 1914 by Rev. H. Banman. She is mourned by her brother Dr. A. Boese, Coffeyville, Kansas; a sister Mary Schmidt; and two half sisters, Lydia and Edna.

Mary M. Graber, nee Stucky, daughter of Jacob C. and Barbara Pricheim Stucky, was born September 11, 1880, near Moundridge, Kansas, and passed away at the Bethel Hospital, Newton, Kansas, on January 25, 1946. Upon her baptism in 1896 she became a member of the First Mennonite Church of Christian, Moundridge. In 1902 she married Christian C. Graber with whom she shared life for forty-four years less one day. Their home was blessed with five daughters and four sons. These and her husband now mourn her.

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

Rev. I. R. Detweiler, head of the Bible Department from 1931-36, died at his home in Goshen, Indiana, Friday evening, February 22. Drs. Bauman, Schultz, and Smith attended the funeral on Monday. Three faculty members attended the board meetings held at North Newton, Kansas, February 19-21. Dr. I. W. Bauman is teaching a class in marriage and the home on Tuesday evenings in Findlay, Ohio. The course is sponsored by the Y.W. and Y.M.C.A. of that city. On Sunday afternoon, February 24, students and faculty joined in a surprise birthday tea in honor of Dr. J. S. Schultz, held in Ropp Hall lobby. A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees was held in Fort Wayne, Indiana, Tuesday, February 26. Items of business included determination of fees to be published in the new catalog and problems growing out of the housing situation.

BETHEL COLLEGE

The winter quarter came to an end Wednesday evening, February 27, after two days of final examinations. A new advanced survey course, taught jointly by Dean P. S. Goertz and Dr. L. C. Kreider, was introduced during this term on Philosophy and Science, showing the impact of one upon the other in the history of thought in the last 2,500 years. During the four-day recess between quarters the A Capella Choir made a tour into Oklahoma, returning to the campus after the evening concert at Deer Creek on March 4. On March 9 the choir will begin a longer tour to the north with the following itinerary: Sunday morning, March 10, they will sing at the Beatrice Mennonite Church in Beatrice, Nebraska, and in the evening at the First Mennonite Church; on March 11 at the Denison C.P.S. Camp in Iowa; March 12, the Bethel Church at Mountain Lake, Minnesota; March 13, the South Church, Freeman, South Dakota; March 14, the North Church; and on March 15 in the auditorium in Henderson, Nebraska.

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

The school was well represented at the Inter-State Academy Conference basketball and forensic tournament which met at Orange City, Iowa, on February 19. The Seniors had their class pictures taken last week. Dr. Unruh and Rev. Claassen attended meetings of the Conference boards in Newton, Kansas. Music lovers are looking forward to the Fisk Jubilee Singers on March 15. The Kilties, a quartet, presenting Scotch ballads and classics appeared in the Gym this week. Their performance was one in a series of community programs sponsored by the College and secured through the service of the University of Minnesota. Miss Alma Waltner gave a demonstration to the Art class on Thursday. She also spoke in chapel about her magazine work in Arts and Crafts.

CULTURAL CONFERENCE

The standing committee of the Conference on Mennonite Cultural Problems recently met at North Newton, Kansas, and decided on the program for the coming year. It was agreed that the conference would be held at Freeman College on August 27th and 28th. The feature of this year's conference will be a study of the Hutterian Brethern. The first evening of the conference will be devoted to a discussion of the history and the principles of the Hutterites. The second day will be devoted to a visit to one of the colonies and talks by members of the Hutterian colony on their philosophy and ways of life. This program is in keeping with the aims of the Cultural Conference to study the various aspects of Mennonite life and culture.

Those present at the meeting were: Carl Kreider, Goshen College, chairman of the committee; Solomon Loewen, Tabor College; Ivan Lind, Hesston College; Harold Gross, Freeman College; Paul Shelly, Bluffton College; Winfield Fretz and Ed. G. Kaufman, Bethel College.

JOTTINGS

—Wymark, Saskatchewan: On February 17, K. H. Neufeld, representative of the Manitoba music festivals, rendered a closing song festival at the Swift Current Metropolitan Church with a combined choir of 150 voices and the Swift Current Bible school orchestra.—Ruby Brown, Corr.

—Grace Church, Dallas, Oregon: Fourteen new members were received recently. Dorothy Leisy and Edward Toevs were married February 22.—Mrs. Dave Balzer, Corr.

—Emmanuel Church, Denver, Pa.: Sixty persons attended the banquet held in honor of the returned servicemen. The local Brotherhood sponsored it, and Norman Berky, President of the Eastern District Brotherhood, gave an inspiring message. On January 27th Alfred Boehr, who has served with a C.P.S. unit in Puerto Rico, gave a very interesting illustrated lecture with colored slides. He told of the work being done in Puerto Rico by C.P.S. men and of the conditions there. "Bibles for Russia" was the theme of a program brought us by Basil Maloff and coworkers from Washington, D.C., on February 10. Maloff, President of the Russian Bible Society, asserted, "We must take the Bible to Russia or Russia will bring Communism to us."—Walter Fry, Corr.

—Bethel Church, Fortuna, Missouri: On February 24th we had the privilege of seeing Calvin Hilty's pictures, which he took on his trip to Poland. On February 18th the mission society, assisted by Rev. Erwin Albrecht, packed two hundred pounds of clothing, a dozen wool comforters, two quilts, and fourteen blankets for relief. Ten young people are taking catechism.—Mrs. Joe Lehman, Corr.

—Salem Church, Munich, North Dakota, is planning a fortieth anniversary of the incorporation of the church and a praise service for the safe return of the service men on May 12. Rev. Edward Duerksen is to be guest speaker. Seven young people of our church are attending Grace Bible Institute. The Senior Mission Society has sewed one hundred dollars worth of cut garments for relief and has gathered several shipments of used clothing. Rev. David Pritchard, the American Sunday School Union Missionary of this section, presented us with a mission message on January 27.—Mathilda Ortman, Corr.

—First Church, Summerfield, Illinois: Orville Baer, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Baer, and Mabel Bechtel, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. A. S. Bechtel, were united in marriage by the bride's father recently. The couple plans to live near Summerfield after Mr. Baer's release from the Denison, Iowa, C.P.S. camp in April. The Ladies Missionary Society recently held an all-day meeting to make blankets for relief. The society has also sent new and used clothing and shoes to Akron.—Joyce Basinger, Corr.

—The Easter Story in Ryme is a little booklet for children, written by Amanda Friesen, whose address is: c/o Sanford Ratzlaff, Springfield, South Dakota.

—Zion Church, Elbing, Kansas, is preparing to beautify the church grounds by planting trees. The Sewing Society meets at least once a month at which time they cut quilt blocks and sew for mission stations. This winter they have tied a comforter for relief at each meeting. For anybody that feels moved to help there is a never-ending supply of clothes from the Clothing Depot to be mended. At the last meeting we packed comforters and blankets to be shipped directly to Akron. The Sunday School is supplying flannel-graph boards to all classes up to twelve years of age.—Mrs. Louis A. Janzen, Corr.

—Gospel Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: In the absence of the pastor February 10, Rev. H. H. Dick brought the message. He spoke on "Jesus' Testimony in His Home Town." Alex Pankratz and Arthur Friesen have signed up as cattle attendants. Mr. Pankratz left for Houston, Texas, to sail for Europe on February 17.—Elizabeth Lohrentz, Corr.

—First Church, Berne, Indiana: A truck-load of "Heifers-for-Relief" was taken to Nappanee recently. Milo Lehman, member of this church, is to accompany one of the shiploads as an attendant. The Women's Missionary Society sent twenty-four blankets to Akron in response to the urgent appeal of the M.C.C. In addition, sixty comforters were knotted by the society, and thirty-six comforters and blankets were donated. Dr. Carl Armerding of the Moody Bible Institute is expected to hold services in the church from March 10-17, under the auspices of the young people's societies. Freeman Burkhalter was recently appointed by the deacons as Minister-of-Music, to take charge of the music interests of the church. He returned from overseas recently and is again serving as supervisor of music in the Berne high schools. A memorial service for Ted Schindler, who lost his life in overseas service, was held February 24. In the evening, Andrew Loser, missionary from Africa, showed pictures of his work.—Martha Gilliom, Corr.

WORLD-WIDE DISARMAMENT BY 1950 is proposed in S. R. 219 istroduced in the U. S. Senate on January 28. It reads in part: "The President is authorized and requested to invite the governments of all nations to send representatives to a conference which shall be charged with the single duty of entering into an understanding and agreement to achieve world disarmament on land, on sea, and in the air, by January 1, 1950. If you favor this, pray and act now. Write

President Harry S. Truman, White House
Senator Millard Tydings, Senate Office Bldg., or the senators from your state.

—M.C.C. Relief Clothing Center, Newton, Kansas: During the past months all the clothing centers have experienced a regular deluge of incoming parcels. It is wonderful how people will respond to a real need. Many very good, practical, and also beautiful, articles have been sent in. With clothing in the best of condition, the workers at all the centers would be taxed to capacity, and it is therefore greatly appreciated when people remember that the M.C.C. did not establish these centers as "mending factories" but rather for the purpose of sorting and classifying the clothing and packing bales for overseas shipment. All possible help that individuals, churches, and organizations can give towards preparing all articles ready for shipment will expedite the work greatly.

—Eden Church, Moundridge, Kansas: Rev. Walter Gering left Newton for Akron enroute to Denmark on February 21. He was to sail for London on February 27. A large crowd gathered at the church on February 20th for a farewell service. Dr. C. E. Krehbiel is carrying on the work during Rev. Gering's absence.—Ellis Goering, Corr.

—First Church, Nappanee, Indiana: Rev. Laverne Rutschman, student at the Mennonite Biblical Seminary, brought the message on February 24th while the pastor was gone on a trip to Newton, Kansas. That evening the church members had a social in honor of Daniel Miller, who has served the church as janitor for forty years.—Mrs. Loyal Corwin, Corr.

—Zion Church, Souderton, Pa.: The Junior Choir members wore their new choir robes for the first time on February 24. Both the Junior and Senior choirs participate in each Sunday morning worship service. Rev. Ellis Graber spoke to the Norristown C.P.S. unit on February 28.

—Bethany Church, Quakertown, Pa.: During the absence of Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander February 24th, Arthur Keiser brought the message. Rev. Neuenschwander had gone to Newton, Kansas, for a meeting of the Home Mission Board. Mrs. Neuenschwander went to Goshen, Indiana, to attend a meeting of the Literature Committee of the Women's Missionary Societies.—Mrs. Ed. K. Stoneback, Corr.

—First Church, Upland, California: Rev. David Wedel and Mr. Willis Rich visited us in January as

Mrs. G. A. Linscheid
222 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

dance welcomed home the returning servicemen on our monthly church night, held February 20. Some are still serving. Raymond Niswander will not return. In sympathy to his widow and parents a moment of silent prayer was observed. Rollin Moser, Sunday School superintendent, was master of ceremonies. The Carita girls had charge of the tables and served the food. Response from the returned men brought home feeling of brotherhood and love for home and loved ones.—W. F. Dettweiler, Corr.

—The Fairfield, Pa., Church has given over its Sunday evening services for the past few weeks to a study of the life of Christ by use of motion picture and sound film. These services have been fairly well attended by the people of the town, especially the children. The services are opened by scripture, prayer, song, and appropriate remarks by the pastor. The story of the Prodigal Son was shown February 24. A film on India will be shown March 1.—Henry Burkhard, Corr.

—First Church, Wadsworth, Ohio: A committee has been appointed to obtain information in regard to the purchase of a pipe organ. Canned goods and bedding are being collected for the M.C.C.—Mrs. J. Millard Fretz, Corr.

—Deep Run (Pa.) Church: We have made a collection of forty new and used blankets and comforters in answer to the appeal for the relief of war sufferers.—Mae Gross, Corr.

—The Bethel Mennonite Mission in Winnipeg is at present organizing to become an independent church. A constitution has been accepted by the congregation. Rev. Isaac I. Friesen is pastor. He is assisted by Rev. Benjamin Ewert, pastor emeritus, through whom the mission was begun eight years ago. Steady cold weather is continuing in Manitoba and western Canada. Many cases of flu are reported from different places.—Benj. Ewert.

—The Mount Olivet Church, Huron, South Dakota, will observe its first anniversary in June. Rev. Jacob A. Friesen, who has been our pastor until recently, is at present convalescing in the hospital. We trust and pray that the Lord will restore Rev. Friesen's former health so that he may again be with his family and devote himself to His service. Rev. and Mrs. Jacob Regier of Freeman were with us on February 24. Rev. Regier brought the message. Rev. J. W. Kleinsasser and Rev. Frank Harder of Huron also assisted us with the morning worship services during February. Sunday School dance has been averaging between fifty and sixty-five. John J. C. Gross is our superintendent. C.E. services are held on the first Sunday of each month. Rebecca Hofer is in charge of the young people's choir which participates in these gospel programs.—Mrs. J. E. Walters, Corr.

ORDER BLANK

The subscription price for The Mennonite for 1945 is: New Subscriptions $1.25 for the first year, Renewals $1.75 per year.

Please use this Order Blank when sending in your subscription and underscore the word New or Renewal to correspond with the type of subscription you are to pay for.

Name ________________________________

Street or Route ________________________

Address ______________________________

Remittances from Canada should be made by Postal Money Order only. Please write name and address plainly to avoid errors.

Mennonite Publication Office
Newton, Kansas

—The Beatrice (Nebraska) Church: Rev. Erland Waltner is at present conducting a series of well attended meetings, alternating between the two local Mennonite churches. His heart-searching messages are in preparation for the forth-coming Lenten season. The mission societies of the Beatrice Churches have sent nearly one hundred pounds of blankets and comforters to Akron and 287 pounds of new and used clothing to the Newton Relief Clothing Center during the present month.—W. C. Andreas, Corr.

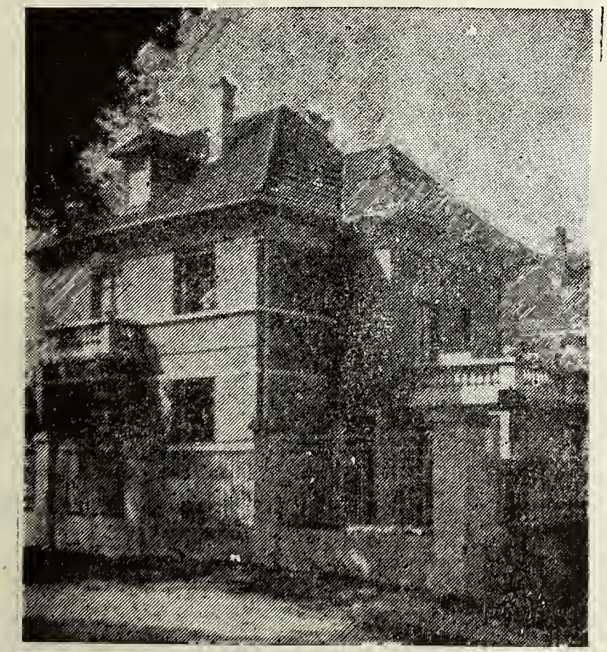
—First Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: Our church has contributed for relief: 1,928 quarts of meat, soups, and cracklings; 810 quarts of tallow and lard; 225 pounds of ham and bacon, and 96 pounds of soap. Besides that enough money was raised to buy two carloads of flour for relief. The Oakleaf Mission Society shipped a total of 770 pounds of clothing and 25 comforters and baby quilts to the M.C.C. during January and February. The free will offering to aid returning C.P.S. men amounted to $506.70.—Mrs. Willmar Loewen, Corr.

—West Zion Church, Moundridge, Kansas: Loris Habegger, former director of the C.P.S. unit at Marlboro, New Jersey, and now a ministerial student at Bethel College, is serving as our student minister. The last monthly panel discussion was an evening of testimony, somewhat on the "Oxford Group" style. The subject was "Finding God in Experience." On the program were Sister Lena Mae of the Bethel Hospital, Prof. Maurice Yoder of Hesston, Rev. A. J. Dirks of Halstead, and Mrs. P. A. Penner of Newton. A committee selected by the church evangelistic committee has prepared a guide to good radio programs. February 24th Ernest Bachman told us of his experiences in accompanying a shipload of horses to Yugoslavia. He also showed slides of pictures taken on the way. Our church has already taken five car-loads of clothing to the M.C.C. Relief Clothing Center in Newton.—Mrs. Ernest Miller, Corr.

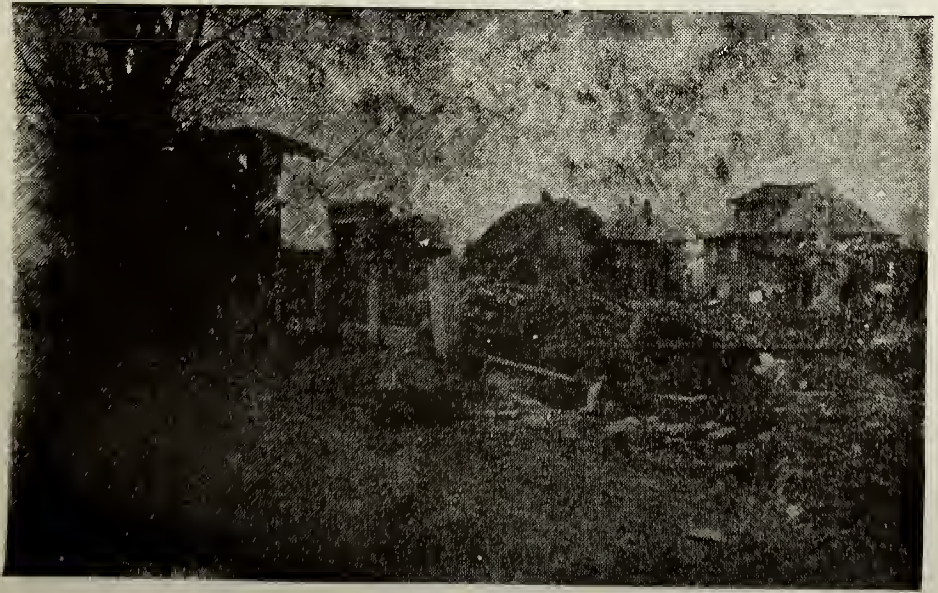
The Mennonite

Volume 61 — March 12, 1946 — Number 11

A Mennonite Home in France



Before Bombing



After Bombing

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point-of-view:

RADIO LISTENING is an art for the person who values his time. Therefore, to overcome the "hit and miss" predicament it is necessary to know what radio programs are available and when. The Joint Radio Committee of the Congregational Christian, Methodist and Presbyterian U.S.A. Churches have published a twenty-three page booklet entitled, The Best in Radio Listening. Copies may be had from: Joint Radio Committee Care of Missions Council, 19 South LaSalle Street, Chicago 3, Illinois, at twenty cents per dozen. "The Best in Radio Listening first appeared in the winter of 1944-45 as an experiment in providing a listing of worth-while radio programs for the use of church families." Lists of good radio programs must invariably differ because of differences in taste, and we are not necessarily recommending the above list. However, we do want to call attention to it as suggestive of a need and a possible help. An interesting C.E. program might be built around a dicussion of favorite radio programs. Perhaps a clearer and broader basis for judging the merits of radio programs might come out of such a program. Out of it might also come a listing of all suggested programs, leaving the individual freedom of choice. Lists of programs should be comprehensive. They should furnish the individual the information he wants, leaving it to him to make the choice according to the mind of Christ in him. Greater knowledge of what programs are available and when can make radio listening more enriching.

RELIEF CLOTHING ought to be put into good condition by the individual or group which gives it. All such clothing that can be used is eventually given out by the Mennonite Central Committee "In the Name of Christ." That is, these very words appear on the clothing. Should not the original donor give in the same spirit? Should this not mean that the clothes are given clean and mended, ready for use? It is tempting to the one who gives for relief to feel that since war sufferers are in such a terribly desperate plight they can use anything that can be spared —a piece of cloth is better than nothing, etc. However, it must be remembered that a dress without the necessary long zipper, a shirt without buttons, and a children's suit without straps is mighty inconvenient to a war sufferer who has no zipper, no buttons, no straps, no needle and thread available. Foreseeing this our Mennonite clothing centers refuse to send goods that are not ready for use. However, dirty, unmended, incomplete clothes come to Mennonite clothing centers, although the vast amount is in good condition. To sew on buttons may not seem like much of a job to the individual who gives a buttonless shirt for relief, but when hundreds upon hundreds of such articles pile up in a clothing center, there is a terrific work problem. If all original donors do their bit before giving the articles, then this vast amount of work is spread out and is not at all formidable. "In the Name of Christ" suggests clean, mended, ready-to-wear clothes.

WAR is feared and hated by nearly everyone. However, ever so often it becomes for the vast majority of Christians an "unnecessary necessity." It is then said that there is something worse than war. The something worse is that dreadful way of life that the enemy would enforce if it had its way. And so Christians (who ought to be fearless through perfect love) yield to the fear impulse, and yielding they soon find themselves ready to fight that enemy which they have learned to fear and hate more than war itself. Today Christians are being tempted to fear Russia. The outcome of yielding to this fear ought to be evident.

MENTAL ILLNESS in a family brings on the home an extra strain that can be relieved by a greater knowledge of what mental illness is and how it should be dealt with. Edith Stern in her book, Mental Illness: A Guide for the Family, points out that mental illness strikes some member of one out of every five families in the United States to the extent that the individual lands in a mental hospital. A recent survey shows about 1,500 mentally deficient among Mennonites and Brethren in Christ. Many families are puzzled as to what to do for the mentally ill. This is not strange for the scientific care of the mentally ill is still in its beginning stage. Consequently, such books as the one mentioned above and such others as A Mind Restored by Elsa Krauch and A Mind that Found Itself by Clifford Beers are books that give stricken families understanding and encouragement.

How French Mennonites Experienced the War

(The following article is a translation of a first-and account of some of the destruction suffered by ur Mennonite brethren in Alsace. It was written eptember 1, 1945. After reading such an account, t is very easy to see why there is so much suffering nd such a great need in Europe; this report is typial rather than unusual. Both pictures and script ere received direct from the writer in Alsace.)

The largest part of war destruction to our brethren Upper-Alsace came in 1944, namely: 1. through air ombardments! 2. through artillery shelling!

The following is a description of the most noteworthy cases:

1. Air Bombardments

Riedisheim near Muelhausen in Alsace.

It is August 11, 1944—a hot, sultry day. It has been only eight days since Muelhausen was bombed for the third time by American airplanes. Brother Johann Ropp has a nice home (see cover page) which stands between two railroad tracks close to a large gasoline depot. In the morning he gives his wife a few encouraging words and leaves for his work in a large textile factory where he is employed. He feels a strange foreboding when the air alarm sounds shortly after 11 o'clock. It isn't long until the first of the planes arrives at a 5,000-yard altitude. Whom do they expect to visit this time? Everyone flees to the dugouts, and already one hears the horrible sound of falling bombs. The walls of the dugout shake. One hears a fearful rumbling. Where may they have hit? As soon as it quiets down again, nothing can stop Brother Ropp. He climbs out of the dugout and notices a gigantic cloud of smoke in the direction of his residence. Driven by some force of fear and apprehension he jumps on his bicycle and speeds through the town of Muelhausen. The closer he comes to the smoke cloud, the more certain he is that this time it is his home. A large bridge and a few roofless buildings already indicate the catastrophe. He can hardly believe his eyes. Everyone stands in the streets and cries, shouts and gesticulates. He sees the collapsed houses, bomb craters, splintered trees, clouds of smoke, moving flame of the blazing gasoline tank, military and police personnel to block the streets—but where is his wife? Where are his parents and his brother? He advances through the chaos up to his house. What a sight? Of the nice estate nothing is left but a pile of ruins. See cover page. But where might his wife be? Suddenly he hears a dear voice crying, "Jean, Jean, thanks be to God that you are here again. You know, that was terrible. I was over there in the dugout. I am not hurt, but now we have nothing anymore." With heavy heart he comforts his wife and together they go over rubble, refuse and ruins to the home of his father 150 meters distant. But here too the same hopeless sight presents itself. (Figures 3 and 4) The residence is completely ruined by a direct hit; the stables for the horses, cattle and hogs have also collapsed. The barn and the machine shed are only a mass of splintered and broken rafters, boards, iron support and wall blocks. The cattle are freed after troublesome efforts and great danger to life. Fortunately the losses are not so large here. But all the furnishings of the house like furniture, clothing, food, shoes—everything is ruined and lies under the rubble. Four bombs have done their devastating work. And old father Johann Ropp, who is eighty years old, sits on a log and looks with aching heart and with tears in his eyes over the chaos of ruined buildings, machines and wagons as well as over the pitiful remains of his house. Long has he struggled to obtain this. He has labored hard to secure a home for his children and now, so to say at the end of his earthly career, a few seconds were sufficient to destroy all of this. Does he hear from afar, or is it near? "All will return to dust."

3. View of the ruins of the Johann Ropp Sr. Farm. In the foreground are remains of the residence and to the right barn and stables.

4. Back view of the farm of Johann Ropp Sr.

Thanks to the generous support of the whole community, and especially of friendly families from Modenheim, Burzweiler, Pfastatt, and Riedisheim, it is possible with their help to save various things which had seemed lost; but it will be years before everything can be rebuilt and orderly condition will have returned to these families. In spite of all this calamity the Ropps are grateful in that all members of the family are alive and without injury because they were able to reach safety when the alarm sirens sounded.

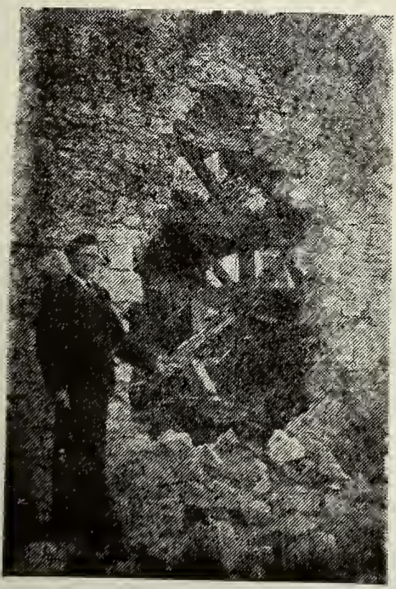
II. Artillery Shelling

Sausheim.

Sausheim is a nice industrial suburb of Muelhausen, the Alsacian textile metropolis, which was liberated on November 22, 1944, by French troops. The front has remained for two months along the river Doller. Between Sausheim which remains garrisoned by the Germans, and Modenheim, which was already occupied by the French on November 22, 1944, the front runs over Napoleonsinsel towards the Rhine. For two months French grenades hit the village, ruining and burning a large part of the farmsteads and a weaving mill. The inhabitants seek refuge in the cellars. There is no water, no gas, no electricity. On December 21, 1944, the shelling becomes so heavy that the Germans order the evacuation of civilians to the safer villages. Among them is Brother Joseph Widmer, a farmer. For weeks he has lived in the cellar, but he is no longer safe there—grenades hit there too. (Figures 5 and 6) His dwelling house and barns are destroyed and the dead cattle have to be dragged away with chains through the grenade holes in the walls. All agricultural equipment and machines, the rye and oats harvest, house furnishings, clothes, bed linen—all are destroyed. Homeless and shelterless, farmer Widmer finds refuge with Brother Herman Nussbaumer. His farm borders on a mill, the surroundings of which are heavily mined. A few weeks after liberation by the French the mines are searched. Brother Widmer is visited by his brother-in-law, Jacques Schott of Muelhausen-Dornach, who brings a few sacks of grain for grinding. Schott and Widmer decide to drive home together. Schott drives ahead with his light-weight rubber-tired vehicle while Widmer follows on his bicycle. About 100 yards away from the mill on a road where hundreds of trucks had already passed, Schott drives on a tank mine which had not been found. A terrible explosion! Wagon parts fly through the air. (Figure 7) The man is thrown several yards into the air, falls to the ground and moves no more. It is Schott. He bleeds from the terrible wounds. He is picked up by soldiers who try to stop the bleeding, but in vain. After a short while Schott passes away —another victim of the war. A young widow and a fourteen year old daughter mourn the death of their husband and father.

Not far from Baldersheim is Battenheim. There Pierre Schott lives on a large farm. French panzers had already rolled through the village but had to retreat again. Isolated grenades hit. After a short pause came the powerful artillery shelling by French guns from around Muelhausen on November 24, 1944. Incendiary bombs howl over the roofs and soon gigantic pillars of fire mount high. The estate of Pierre Schott is one of the first to be hit. The dwelling house is badly damaged—barn, stables and machine shed burn down. (Figure 8) A large part of the agricultural inventory, the whole harvest, a completely new threshing machine and several head of cattle fall prey to the flames. All this is the beginning of the hard winter of 1944-45.

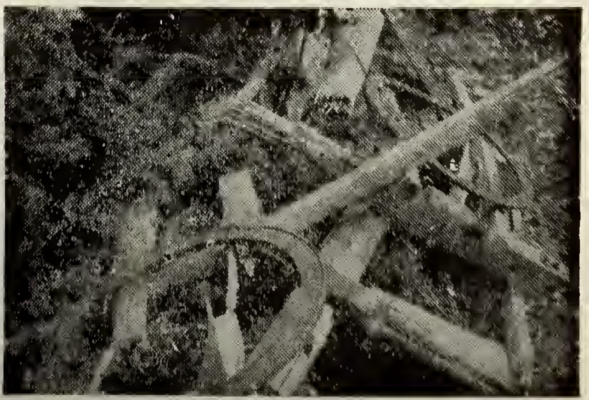
In Wittenheim the brothers-in-law, Paul Ropp and Johann Schowalter operate a modern equipped butcher shop on a street crossing opposite the church. It is during the later part of January, 1945. Snow covers the ground twenty inches deep. For two months the whole village has been covered with unbroken French artillery fire. The estate of Ropp-Schowalter is demolished. (Figure 9) For weeks the family has already been living in the basement together with several friends. There is no water so snow is substituted. The little Jean-Pierre Schowalter sleeps restlessly in the arms of his mother; suddenly a loud crash—an incendiary shell has hit the roof. The men hurry, in spite of great danger, to extinguish the fire, but with what? With snow! A second incendiary shell hits; the steel splinters and burning phosphorous fly in all directions. One man, a friend, is hit and falls, his whole body aflame. They drag him outside into the snow, but with no avail as



6. Barn on the farm of Joseph Widmer showing entrance of a shell from a heavy German gun. The dead animals had to be dragged through this hole out of the destroyed stall.

8. Farm buildings belonging to Pierre Schott. In the background are the walls of the burned-down barn and the bullet-ridden silo.

5. Home of Joseph Widmer which was destroyed by French artillery fire. The family lived in the cellar for many weeks.



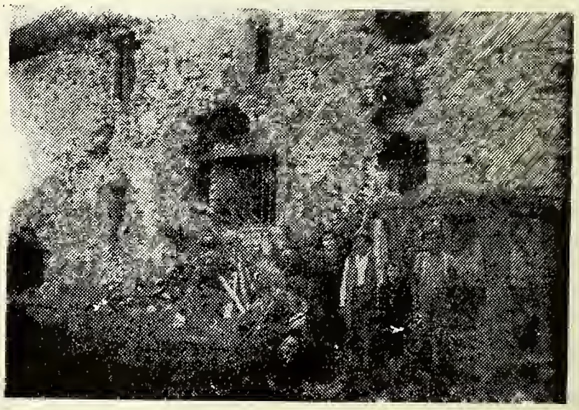
7. Remains of a wagon belonging to Jacques Schott after driving on a French tank mine. The driver was killed.

the phosphorous keeps on burning. The man dies after suffering terrible pain. The hands of the rescuers also show signs of the phosphorous. In spite of all the fire, the family flees to a different cellar, leaving the burning house to its fate. Finally on February 2, 1945 the hour of liberation comes. Disturbed and emaciated, with small suitcases into which are packed the few rescued belongings, the family arrives in Muelhausen where they find a temporary refuge.

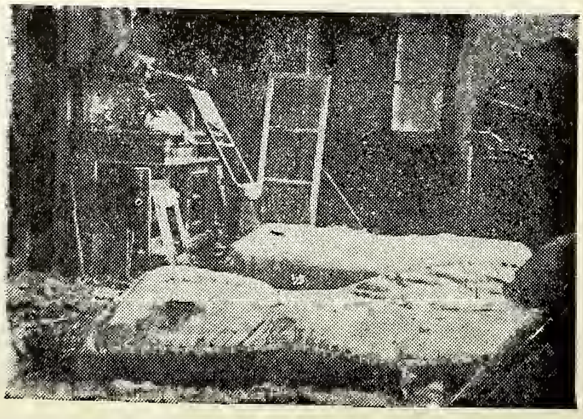
The hamlet Shoenensteinbach (belonging to Wittenheim) is punished most severely. Only a few houses remain standing beside the model estate of Mines de Potasse d'Alsace. Among them is also the farm of the Christian Roth family of fifteen. From the direction of Wittenberg and Muelhausen one hears the approaching noise of the battle. The hamlet is still occupied by the Germans who want to block the street from here to Colmar. A German "Tiger" tank hides behind Roth's house. From time to time he drives ahead, fires a few shots from his gun against the approaching French Sherman tanks, and retreats again. The French have no other choice; the house in front of the "Tiger" has to go Soon the tank shells howl closer and hit crashing in to the Roth estate. (Figure 10) Into one room of the dwelling (Figure 11) crowd twenty-one persons —ranging from a small child to the eighty-year old father Roth. They can't go into any cellar, since due to the high water level there is no basement Trembling and praying all are awaiting the end o the battle. Then a direct hit and cries of terror! A shell crashes through the wall into the little crowd Death reaps his terrible harvest. Five of the Roth family and four friends are killed instantly and three seriously injured. Those killed were Catherine Roth (nee Graber) 46 years old; Jeanne Roth, 20 years old; Elsie Roth, 16 years old; Christiane Roth, 5 years old; Helena Graber, sister to Catherine Roth, 38 years old; Widow Marie Louise Neuhauser, 46 years old; three strangers. In addition, four other persons were severely wounded.

Finally the Germans see that they can no longer hold their own. The command comes, "Everything back! Burn everything before leaving!" A soldier even demands a match from old father Roth to

9. Butcher shop of Paul Ropp and Jean Schowalter, destroyed by artillery fire and incendiary shells.



10. Home of Christian Roth showing shell entrances. Four of the eight remaining members are shown, Five were killed.



11. Room in Christian Roth home in which nine persons were killed and three severely wounded

12. Ruins of barn and stables on Christian Roth farm. In front are the eighty-one-year-old father Roth with the oldest son.

1946 Vacation Bible School

A handbook for the Vacation Bible School worker is now in its finishing process. It will be ready for mailing March 11. Orders can now be placed with Joanna S. Andres, 700 East Fifth, Newton, Kansas. Sunday School teachers will also find this handbook helpful. Twenty-five cents per copy is asked toward printing expenses.

"A LITTLE CHILD SHALL LEAD"

Fourteen days of school had passed in our Vacation Bible School, First Mennonite Church, Newton. Even the annual public program had been rendered the night before. On this fifteenth and last day of our school, there was a little work to be completed, but most of the morning was to be spent in a very special way. After each class had finished its own private devotional period as usual, the entire school was to file down the road to share some blessings in song with others.

Our first stop that morning was in front of the Deaconess Home where our group greeted Sister Hillegonda whose ninety-seventh birthday was to be in a few days. Then we sang for the patients of the hospital and for the residents of the home who enjoyed the faces of our children as much as their song.

It was on the way back to school that I held the hand of a little Kindergarten child. Silently he walked by my side—silent only because he was occupied with the humming of the great melody "O Power of Love, All Else Transcending."

"Do you like that song?" I said to him when his humming ceased long enough for me to speak.

I shall never forget the satisfied look in the eyes that sparkled up to me. "I like it the best. I like it most of all the songs, don't you?" he said in a breath.

With a deep satisfaction came my answer back to him, "Yes, I do."

As two kindred spirits we walked the remaining block singing softly together the melody and words that are our heritage. I believe we shall pass them on to the coming generations—Johnny and I.

* * *

I wonder if our church is not turning away too quickly from the heritage which the ages have built for us in rich church music. Because the American way of life in its all over pattern has taken on a lighter, faster, tempo, children workers and church leaders are introducing a lighter type of church music to their charges.

My work with children in the past years has convinced me that we can teach our children the great chorales and hymns that our forefathers left us. They appreciate them! They love them as we have loved them!

When the Don Cossack chorus closed their brilliant rendition in Memorial Hall, North Newton, a few weeks ago with the singing of "O Power of Love," I asked a Junior boy, next to me, "Sonny, how did you like the program?"

"O that last one, that's always my favorite!"

"Thank you!" was my brief reply to him. He may have wondered why the thank you.

With that answer of his, came a new determination in my heart to give our children what is their rightful heritage.

The so-called "choruses" have their place. They can be quickly dropped in the child's heart for a bit of arousing, but they will also be quickly lost.

Side by side with the Word of God, we must give the child the hymns of the Christian Church—hymns that have stood the sifting test of time, the gift of the ages!

Vacation Bible School gives an opportunity to do a good piece of work in hymn teaching. May we be faithful to our charge.—Joanna S. Andres put fire to the farmstead. The stables with sixteen head of cattle and two horses, the barn with all its supplies and agricultural machinery—everything was burned down. The remaining part of the family fled in the direction of Muelhausen under heavy shell and machine-gun fire. However, they get only to the first destroyed houses of a nearby colony of workers. They seek refuge in a deserted cellar and arrive in Muelhausen the next day where they find a temporary emergency lodging with acquaintances.

---

(Continued from page 6)

Nevertheless the battle goes on, causing additional disaster and claiming more victims!

QUOTE

Dr. Rollin H. Walker in "The Christian Advocate":

"All spiritual snobbishness, all aloofness from any brother of any type or race is exactly analogous to some part of a human body deciding to dispense with the other parts."

Flora Fellman, Quakertown, Pa.:

"We must come to the point that we will seek for help; we must become so hungry for spiritual food that we will say, 'Lord I believe, help thou mine unbelief.' This is a meaningful prayer."

Bethel College Bible Week, March 17-22

Ministers Meet; Mission Societies Also

Afternoon Meetings 2:35 P.M.

2:35-3:25

"GO YE THEREFORE"

SUNDAY	MONDAY	TUESDAY	WEDNESDAY	THURSDAY	FRIDAY
	The Love of God	The Grace of Christ (I)	The Grace of Christ (II)	The Fellowship of the Holy Spirit (I)	The Fellowship of the Holy Spirit (II)
	Dr. W. M. Beahm	Dr. W. M. Beahm	Dr. W. M. Beahm	Dr. W. M. Beahm	Dr. W. M. Beahm

3:30-4:20

STUDIES IN PHILIPPIANS

SUNDAY	MONDAY	TUESDAY	WEDNESDAY	THURSDAY	FRIDAY
	The Conquest of Limitation	The Mind of Christ	Revising our Religious Values	Principles of Spiritual Progress	The Furnishings of the Heart
	Rev. J. N. Smucker	Rev. J. N. Smucker	Rev. J. N. Smucker	Rev. J. N. Smucker	Rev. J. N. Smucker

Evening Meetings 7:30 P.M.

7:30-8:10

THE MASTER'S FRIENDS

SUNDAY	MONDAY	TUESDAY	WEDNESDAY	THURSDAY	FRIDAY
The Herald of the King	The Man with the Noble Curiosity	The Man with the Hungry Heart	A Friend That Missed the Way	Two Types of Service	From Son of Thunder to Apostle of Love
Rev. J. N. Smucker	Rev. J. N. Smucker	Rev. J. N. Smucker	Rev. J. N. Smucker	Rev. J. N. Smucker	Rev. J. N. Smucker

8:15-9:00

CHRIST AND OUR MODERN WORLD

SUNDAY	MONDAY	TUESDAY	WEDNESDAY	THURSDAY	FRIDAY
	"Paul to the Church at Corinth"	"All Things to all Men"	"Your Labor is not in vain"	"Ye are the Body of Christ"	"The Greatest of These is Love"
	Dr. W. M. Beahm	Dr. W. M. Beahm	Dr. W. M. Beahm	Dr. W. M. Beahm	Dr. W. M. Beahm

BIBLE WEEK SPEAKER

Dr. William M. Beahm has served for some years as missionary in Africa. He is now serving as Professor of Christian Theology and Missions in Bethany Biblical Seminary, Chicago. He is an able Christian teacher and minister, who believes strongly in the missionary calling of the church.

Dr. Beahm will speak during the Ministers' Conference on Tuesday. His subject will be, "All Things Are Yours." He will also address the women's missionary meeting.

Dr. D.W. Bittinger, who was originally scheduled as speaker for Bethel College Bible Week, had to cancel his engagement because of illness.

"Finally, brethren whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." Phil. 4:8.

"Neither do men light a candle and put it under a bushel, but on a candlestick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your father which is in heaven." Matthew 5:15-16.

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Vice President
Verney Unruh
Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

The Kingdom of God in Jesus' Teaching

by Elvina Neufeld

"Jesus came preaching the gospel of the Kingdom of God," is the way Mark introduced the ministry of Jesus. (Mark 1:14) In Matthew a similar statement precedes the account of Jesus' public ministry. "From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." (Mathew 4:17) Throughout the gospels emphasis is placed on the kingdom of God, and many of Christ's parables try to explain the nature of this kingdom. From its frequent mention the kingdom of God must have been the central theme of Jesus' teaching. This conclusion is affirmed by Jesus' own statement to the people of Capernaum when they begged him to remain in their city. His answer was, to quote Luke 4:43 "I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also, for therefore am I sent."

Just what was Jesus trying to convey in his message of the kingdom? It was certainly something different from what the people to whom he preached expected, for he continually had to explain its nature by parables and even after his resurrection the disciples had to be corrected of false notions of the kingdom. The people of that day were looking for a material kingdom; they expected their Messiah to deliver them from Roman rule, conquer the surrounding nations and set up a just and peacenature by parables and even after his resurrection never create a righteous kingdom.

Sometimes we do well to study a certain topic in the Bible in order to see how it is treated and looked upon by the different authors of the different books. If this is done thoroughly and in an open minded way, many new insights can result.

In the accompanying article on the teaching of Jesus on the Kingdom of God, we get a panoramic view of Jesus, treatment of the Kingdom. Sometimes we tend to emphasize only one aspect of the Kingdom teaching. We discover, as the accompanying article reveals, that there are in reality several aspects and each needs to be properly considered.

Some churches speak much of being "Kingdom builders" which, in reality, is our mission - if understood truly. There is a deep thrill which comes when one meets spiritual companions who are devoted to the purpose of building here and now the righteousness of compassion, humbleness, love and forgiveness in their own lives and in those they meet and the life everlasting which is a hope and a promise. This is a high calling and in no way should it be cheapened.

The kingdom which Jesus preached was to be attained by righteous methods. It was a spiritual rather than a material kingdom. He said to Pilate, "My kingdom is not of this world; if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdom not from hence." (John 18:36) This kingdom had two aspects. Jesus began his public ministry with the message, "The time is fullfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand, repent ye and believe the gospel." (Mark 1:15) Here the kingdom is represented as immediate, and requiring immediate action. He also said, "The kingdom of God is within you." (Luke 17:21) In one of his parables Jesus likens the Kingdom of God to the mustard seed, which is very tiny when planted but grows into a large tree. (Mark 4:30-32; Mathew 13:31-32) The kingdom was to grow from a small beginning to vast proportions. It was to be in the hearts of believers, a voluntary kingdom of individuals who conformed to its laws and sought to spread it.

But the kingdom would not end here. Sometime in the future Christ promised to return to set up his visible kingdom. In John 14:3 he says, "And if I go and prepare a place for you I will come again, and receive you unto myself." At another time he discussed with the disciples the destruction of Jerusalem and also his second coming. "And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory.—So likewise ye, when ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand." (Luke 21:27-31) The nature of this future kingdom is probably best illustrated in some of Jesus' parables. In the parables of the talents he brings out both aspects of the kingdom, the present spiritual kingdom which is illustrated by the entrusting of the talents to the servants, and the future kingdom, which is to be preceded by a judgement. When the nobleman returned he rewarded the faithful servants and punished the unfaithful. (Luke 19:11-27) So when Christ returns those who have become members of the kingdom through faith, and been faithful will be received into the visible and permanent kingdom while those who have refused to accept the gospel of Christ will be punished. The parable of the virgins also illustrates the principle that citizenship in the kingdom of God must be obtained now. When the bridegroom returns it is too late to think of filling the lamps with oil. (Matthew 25:1-13)

---

Miss Elvina Neufeld is a student at Bluffton College. Her article is the result of work done in a course under Dr. Paul Shelly, Bible instructor. Miss Neufeld is the daughter of Rev. John Neufeld, pastor of the Mennonite Bible Mission, Chicago, Illinois.

While Jesus thus taught that there would be a future establishment of the kingdom which would fulfill Old Testament prophesies he consistently refused to state a definite time when it would appear. He told his disciples "of that day and that hour knoweth no man, no not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the father." (Mark 13:32) When the Pharisees asked him when the the kingdom of God should come he answered, "The kingdom of God cometh not with observation — behold the kingdom of God is within you," (Luke 17: 20—21) implying that the important thing was not when the kingdom of God should come but that they should be prepared for it.

The kingdom of God is unique in that it is made up entirely of individuals who voluntarily accept the rule of God. No one is forced into it. To enter into the kingdom one must be "born again." So important is this new birth that Jesus said to Nicodemus, "except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God" (John 3:3) let alone enter it. The new birth is brought about by the acceptance of God as king and Lord and belief in Christ as God's son and redeemer of the world. It must be preceded by repentance. This was emphasized by John who preached. "Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." (Mathew 3:2) Jesus repeated this message, and we find Peter at Pentecost urging the people to "Repent, and be baptized." (Acts 2:38)

Another necessity for citizenship in the kingdom of God is obedience to the principles of the kingdom. Christ expounds these quite at length in various sermons, especially the Sermon on the Mount, but they may be summed up in the two great commandments, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength," and "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself" (Mark 12: 30—31). Again and again Jesus stressed the necessity for obedience. He says, "Not everyone that sayeth unto me Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of Heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven (Mathew 7:21).

If one is completely subject to the will of God it follows that the kingdom of God will be primary in his life. Jesus said, "No man can serve two masters." (Mathew 6:24) Again, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his rightiousness." (Mathew 6:33)

But any sacrifices one may have to make in putting the kingdom of God first in his life will be amply repaid. Christ told his disciples, "Verily I say unto you, there is not man that hath left house, or parents, or brethren, or wife, or children, for the kingdom of God's sake, who shall not receive manifold more in this present time and in the world to come life everlasting." (Luke 18: 29—30) The purpose and meaning which the task of spreading the kingdom gives to the Christian, the fellowship with God, and the hope of eternal life are blessings which can never be repaid by any amount of effort or sacrifice he can make.

Opportunity

But once I pas this way,
And then—and then, the silent Door
Swings on its hinges—
Opens . . . Closes—
And no more
I pass this way;
So, while I may,
With all my might,
I will assay
Sweet comfort and delight
To all I meet upon the pilgrim way;
For no man travels twice
The great highway
That climbs through darkness up to light,
Through night
To day.

—John Oxenham

We Visit a Hutterite Colony

by Martin Schrag

From our varied experiences we catch fascinating glimpses and interesting bits of information about life in a Hutterite colony. We read of the early Christian's sharing everything and are intrigued to realize that today we can visit people who for four hundred years have practiced common sharing of material possessions. Not only have the Hutterites practiced this type of brotherhood, they also have retained many of the customs and modes of the past centuries.

To visit such a colony was my privilege during my stay at C.P.S. Camp 55, Belton, Montana. We visited the colony at Lewistown, Montana. As we approached the colony we saw what looked like an oasis on the plains of Montana. A cluster of trees and a water tower outlined the colony. To the right of the driveway were huge hay stacks to feed the two hundred head of cattle, hundreds of sheep and other types of livestock. As we drove down "main street" we saw a village unfold before us. To our left were the houses used by the individual families. And to our right, we saw the dining hall, church, and huge barns. Behind these first rows of buildings were lesser structures such as machine sheds, a flour mill, a blacksmith shop, and so on.

As our car came to a stop, we were warmly welcomed by a member of the group. Soon, we were on our way exploring each building. We marveled at their ingenuity and ability to work out the mechanics of living. As our guide explained their way of life, we sensed the feeling of living in history for we visualized our forefathers using some of the same methods of doing things. Brook caning looked easy as our exhibitor combined stalk, handle, and thread. Buying the latest in clothing fads creates no problem in a Hutterite colony. Although a few articles are spun and woven, most of the raw material is purchased and from the cloth all their clothing is made. Our guide pointed to the large herds of livestock, the noisy geese, the thousands of farming acres and other possessions commonly owned. As our tour neared its end we saw a complete flour mill, the tractors and machinery, the blacksmith shop, electrically driven butter churn, and many other things.

Having completed our tour, we were invited to have supper with the group. As we entered the dining hall, we were told that the children had eaten first. Two long tables were used with the women occupying the one and the men the other. The families take weekly turns in doing the cooking for the colony.

Two ministers and a business manager are the leaders of the colony. Elected by the "menfolks," they serve the spiritual and material needs of the colony. The business manager is in complete charge of the financial matters of the colony and does all the buying for all the members of the colony. Each person has a task to do. One feeds the cattle, another is a member of the alternating milking shifts and the third may be a mechanic.

As we left we knew we had gained from our experience. To us, who daily see advances of materialism and selfish desires, came the feeling that these people have overcome some of the problems we face.

Are you planning a trip? Are you interested in seeing how other people live? Most of us are. The article on the Hutterites gives a vivid, brief glimpse of life in a Hutterite colony. But, it also suggests that the varied ways of life followed by a people of common spiritual origin makes an interesting study in itself. For the Hutterites were once of the same origin as the Mennonites.

There are many equally interesting studies possible if we are interested in seeing how people live. The Holdeman people of the plains states are distinctive in the way they live and worship. The Amish of the East and Middle West also have distinctive patterns of life and are a cordial, friendly people to learn to know. They are past masters at the art of visiting! The Old Colony people in Canada have their own way of living, and Old Mennonites of the East are distinctive in their mode of worship and attire.

Extra enrichment and new insights can be obtained by planning a trip so that visits with these people can be arranged. It will be an experience never-to-be-forgotten and always appreciated.

Martin Schrag, one of the Moundridge, Kansas, Schrags, has been in C.P.S. several years. He has served as educational director at Ft. Collins and Belton and is at present educational secretary for the Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pa.

Youth Events

A series of meetings of youth groups will take place in the Pacific District. Young peoples' leaders institutes will be held in California and Washington and probably in Oregon and Idaho. Elmer Ediger, president of the Young Peoples Union, is at present in the Pacific District.

* * *

At the leaders' Institute held in the Eastern District at the Quakertown church, March 2, the following topics were discussed: "Bible and Beliefs," "Missions," "the Local Church," "the Conference and Mennonite Groups," "Problems of the Individual," "Family and Community," "Method for Program and Organization." In preparation for these discussions, each leader had available resource materials in the form of pamphlets on his topic of discussion. The material came from a number of the denominational publishing houses.

* * *

The church at Kitchener, Ontario, with Andrew Shelly serving as pastor, has recently organized a "Young Adult Group" consisting of young people over twenty-four. This young adult group often is not sufficiently provided for in the churches, being too young to feel themselves a vital part of the adult organization of the church and too old to be attracted by the activities of the young people.

* * *

Word has been received that Dr. Karl Menninger of Topeka, Kansas, who is now opening a training school and mental hospital for Veterans Administration, is interested in employing former C.P.S. men who have had experience in mental hospital work. Dr. Menninger states: "I am not interested merely in supplementing our manpower:. What I am looking for is men of that type of character and life philosophy which will enable them to be proud and happy in a task which requires so much maturity and so much patience and so much of something that I know no better word for than simply love." He feels discharged C.P.S. men would have this quality.

* * *

On Sunday, January 20, the Rosthern Bible School held a choir concert at which a number of choirs performed. Mr. J. Konrad of Winnipeg held a choir leader's school instructing a number of choir leaders who had come in to the school for this purpose. As a finale for this training, various choirs performed at the close of the period of training.

Three C.P.S. men at Bowie, Maryland, took part in testing a newly developed rat poison called "1080" which the "Time" magazine describes as the most lethal rat-killer known." Since it is odorless and tasteless and almost equally effective on human beings, only professional pest exterminators may buy it.

* * *

A meeting of about twenty peace church groups and pacifist organizations was held at Atlantic City, New Jersey, February 12 to 14. The purpose of the meeting was to seek means of working together where the groups had common interests and were on common ground. A Consultive Council was established and four projects were undertaken: 1. Publication of a clip sheet of items which would be usable as filler material for newspapers and magazines; 3. Issuing publicity material for the press; 4. A program of research.

* * *

A friend in Okinawa writes: "The natives are all very small and we seem to be giants when we stand next to one. The men are even smaller than the women. It is very difficult to tell the ages of these people. I have never seen their villages in which they still live but some of the boys say they are just full of children with or without clothes.

The past twelve months of my army life has made me wonder whether the people around home really know how the other people of the world and even the USA live. If these seven hundred (army) boys are an example of the folks back home, I'm afraid our church and its purpose is missing the mark completely. If they can't even show each other common decency in living together how can we expect them to accept our principles during war time? Most of them will be lucky if they can keep out of the clutches of the law enforcement groups. The reason I say this is the lack of will power and the lack of responsibility to their own self will let them do things unheard of in most communities."

* * *

Testimony before a joint Congressional meeting by General Eisenhower indicated that army men with thirty months of service as of April 30 will be separated from the army or aboard ship returning home by that date. Those with two years of service will be released by June 30. By the end of June 93 per cent of the V-E Day army enrollment will be demobilized. In contrast, C.P.S. men with thirty-six months of service are not eligible for discharge until June, and approximately only 60 per cent will have been released according to the present schedule of discharge of 4E personnel.

RELIEF

Relief Agencies Authorized to Enter Germany

Official approval has been received for private relief agencies to operate in the American Zone in Germany. Robert Kreider, M.C.C. worker now in Paris, has been selected as one of eight delegates to Agencies in Germany. The agencies interested in doing relief work in Germany have set up an organization known as CRALOG, Council of Relief Agencies Licensed for Operation in Germany. This organization will be permitted to ship monthly up to two thousand tons of food and clothing. Distribution will be made by authorized German relief agencies under the supervision of the eight American workers and on the sole basis of established need and without cost to the recipient. The eight men are to serve as liaison between the Government and the German distributing agencies. Operation is to begin immediately and material is now being readied for the first shipment. The MCC has approximately 230 tons of food and clothing ready to ship.

Farewell Services

Farewell services were held recently for three workers who are going to Northwest Europe. Walter Gering, Pastor of the Eden Mennonite Church Moundridge, Kansas, is assigned to serve in the new Denmark unit in the spiritual interests of the Mennonite refugees there. Irvin Horst, Reading, Pa., is to assist in making investigations looking toward the establishment of construction and transport units. Galen Widmer, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, will be serving in Holland as mechanic. The group is scheduled to leave Jersey City on February 27 on the Gripsholm.

Food and Tools to Holland

Relief shipments to Holland from February 12 to 22 include the following items: on the S.S. Frans Van Mieris, 436,680 pounds of flour; on the S.S Delfdyck, 2,316 cartons of raisins; on the S.S. Edom, 15,206 quarts of canned fruit, meat and vegetables; 1,598 pounds of dried fruits, lard and shortening; and 34 cases (about two tons) of tools.

C. P. S.

March Release Schedule Announced

Releases from C.P.S. will be speeded up next month according to the schedule for March as announced by Selective Service this week. Eligible for release beginning March 1 will be assignees having one child as of that date who will have completed three years of service by March 31, 1946, and all those who completed three years of service as of September 30, 1945. These two groups include 458 men in MCC-CPS, an increase of about 150 over the number eligible for release in February.

Comments on Results of CPS

An analysis of some of the results of the C.P.S. program is made in a letter written by Rufus B. King, director of the Puerto Rico Reconstruction unit, which was reproduced in the Gospel Messenger, Brehren church publication. The letter states, in part: "It is difficult to estimate the value of C.P.S. in the lives of the fellows involved. While it is true that there have been many disappointments, gripes, etc., it is not yet time to measure the real worth. That will come in the years ahead. But it is my opinion that many of the potential leaders of the Christian church are now in C.P.S. even though ministerial students have been exempt from service. For a number of men it has cleared the issue as to whether they should enter definite religious service. This has resulted from association with like-minded fellows, the moral support of our own church leaders and of outstanding Christian preachers and the realization that money is not as important as it once seemed."

Labor Shortage Continues at State Institutions ..

State institutions which are not experiencing the return of regular civilian labor are finding the labor problem increased by the demobilization of their CPS attendants. Consequently, an appeal has gone out to assignees in base camps to consider transfer to hospital units. At present the need is especially great at Norristown Pennsylvania, and Greystone Park, New Jersey hospitals.

MENNONITE AID SECTION NOTES

Released C.P.S. Men Need Jobs

At the present rate of demobilization over 1,700 men in Mennonite C.P.S. will have received their releases between January 1 and June 15, 1946. The large majority of these are eager to return to their home communities or at least to Mennonite communities, and many are seeking employment opportunities. On the other hand, there are many employers in the home communities who would like the services of released C.P.S. men. To help bring these two groups together, the Aid Section of the M.C.C. stands ready to serve in the following way.

Persons or organizations wishing to hire released C.P.S. men should send a description of the job to the Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pennsylvania. This information will be listed in the C.P.S. Bulletin which is sent each week to all M.C.C. camps and units and to a number of released men. Interested assignees can then correspond directly with the prospective employer. Job descriptions should include the following information: 1. Title of job. 2. Name and address of employer. 3. Education experience, and other qualifications needed. 4. Compensation. 5. Type of community.

Employers or other persons who know of employment opportunities can do much to help C.P.S. men return to normal living in the home communities by making known such job openings. C.P.S. men possess a wide variety of skills and interests. A list of occupations would include farmers, business men, mechanics, industrial workers, building trade workers teachers, doctors and other professional workers, and many others.

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

BETHEL COLLEGE

The College welcomes to its teaching staff, in the field of primary education, Miss Marjorie Ruth, M.A., Beatrice, Nebraska, who began her work here with the opening of the third quarter. Miss Ruth has had fifteen years of teaching experience in both rural and city schools serving as principal during the past six years. During 1944 she also directed an off-campus summer school for the University of Nebraska in Beatrice. An enjoyable dinner meeting of the Bethel College Fellowship Committee was held in Memorial Hall on March 5, when 180 Committee, Faculty, and Board members gathered in preparation for a general visitation day to the churches in the near future. Jacob Bartel (Hillsboro) presided. On March 29 a Low-German play "De Bildung" by J. H. Janzan will be given in Memorial Hall under the direction of Dr. Krahn. Pennsylvania Dutch and Swiss readings will also be included in the program.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

Lawrence Burkhalter has just received his discharge from Civilian Public Service and will join the college staff, doing field work during the spring and summer. Part of his work will be to organize music groups to give programs in nearby high schools. The Men's Gospel Team gave a program at the Salem Church, Dalton, Ohio, Sunday evening, March 3. Rev. Shelly brought the message for the morning service in the absence of Rev. Rosenberger, who is holding meetings at the First Mennonite Church in Bluffton. Rev. Esau was the chapel speaker on Thursday morning, February 28. He has resigned his work at the Ebenezer Church, where he has been acting pastor for several months. Temporary steel housing is being purchased for the use of married students. It is likely that similar accomodations will be provided for girls who cannot be provided for in Ropp Hall next year. A faculty-student relief committee sponsored a relief drive among faculty and students of the college which brought in $177.28. The goal was $100.00. The next project is soap making, for whidh faculty wives and friends of the college are being asked to save waste fats.

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

Final examinations have brought the winter quarter to a close. The sprisg quarter starts March 3. School life is always a busy life and many activities go on which help to weave the colorful fagric of school experience. Some activities receive a lot of publicity while others are almost unnoticed. Yet these quiet ones often run deeper and have more lastisg influences than the others. Prayer groups on a campus are examples of this. Since October the Christian Youth Volunteers have been sponsoring bi-weekly prayer meetings during the noon hour. These meetings have usually been held on Wednesday and Friday of each week. Some one student is asked to lead the group in a brief meditation and then follows a season of prayer. Occasionally there is also a number of special music. From carefully kept records of Ardis Leder, one of the active leaders in the Christian Youth Volunteers, we learn that there were twelve students at the first meeting on October 24th. From then on there seems to have been a consistent growth in attendance. For example, on Wednesday January 30, there were thirty-three in attendance; on Friday, February, there were thirty-six and at the last meeting, there were also thirty-six. Who can say that youth is entirely care-free and indifferent in these days when one-fourth of the entire student body meets quietly for prayer twice each week.

MENNONITE BIBLICAL SEMINARY AND BIBLE SCHOOL

The last week in February found the students exceedingly busy. This was the final week of the winter quarter and examinations were given. Thus, with the beginning of March we start the final third quarter of our academic year. The Chicago Mennonite Student Fellowship met in the home of Dr. Paul Voth on the afternoon of February 17. Nearly forty students from various schools in this area were present. Dr. Voth, who is professor in Botany at the University of Chicago, talked on the possibilities of botanical interests in Mennonite circles. He also showed the group color pictures of experiments in his field. On the Sundays of February 24th and March 3rd LaVerne Rutschman conducted the services at the First Mennonite Church of Nappanee, Indiana. Ernest Harder served the C.P.S. unit at Union Grove, Wisconsin on February 17, and Maynard Shelly is now serving as regular studen pastor of the Mennonite Church at Hopedale, Illinios. Recent visitors to our fellowship were: Mrs. Hans Regier of Whitewater, Kansas, Dr. W. E. Regier also of Whitewater, and Henry Wiebe of Aberdeen, Idaho. Mr. Wiebe had just returned from a trip on a cattle boat to Europe.

A Native Christian of India Says:

"Go your way and tell John what things ye have seen," Luke 7:22. John wanted to know whether Jesus was really the expected Messiah or not and so sent his messenger to him to ask the Lord, "Are you the coming one?' . Jesus asked them to report to John about his work and service. In the same way we who are Christians should prove by our actions that we are Christ's and not by certificates of church membership or by Christian names. . We should practice in our daily life unselfishness, sympathy, love, kindness, etc. Are we in a position to be able to say, "Look at my life and works and judge for yourself whether I am a Christian?"

(Dr. Mrs. Samuel, who wrote the above, is the wife of Dr. Samuel. Mrs. Samuel is also an M.D. and does surgery. She and her husband are employed at the Mennonite mission in Jagdeeshpur, where they render very valuable service. Missionary Augusta Schmidt writes that Dr. Susanna Samuel is "a good example as a Christian woman.")

JOTTINGS

—First Mennonite Church, Allentown, Pa. On Sunday evening, March 2, the Neapolitan Male Chorus of Allentown presented a sacred concert to a capacity crowd in our church. The meeting was under the sponsorship of the young men's Good Fellowship Bible Class. —Grace Moyer, Corr.

—Gospel Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: Our pastor preached a series of powerful sermons based on the Book of Revelation and upon the following topics: "Revelation of Jesus Christ," "Jesus in the Midst of the Church," and "Leaving the First Love." Three hundred sixty-seven pounds of relief clothing and bedding were sent to Akron last week. World Day of Prayer will be observed by the mission societies and all others who wish to attend. —Elizabeth Lohrenz, Corr.

—Andrew Shelly, pastor of the Mennonite church, Kitchener, Ontario, has been appointed a member of the provincial Board and Executive Committee of the Lord's Day Alliance of Canada. Rev. Shelly writes, "Theaters nor organized sport are allowed to operate in Canada (Sunday)."

—Lorraine Avenue Mennonite Church, Wichita Kansas: We are very happy that Dr. and Mrs. Langenwalter are now living in the parsonage within a half block from the church. Their telephone number is 3-1305. The women of the church have spent days in the past week making comforts for relief. Liberal gifts from members and friends have made it possible to send a goodly number of blankets besides the comforters they have made. A large number of young people and younger boys and girls have enrolled for catechetical instruction so that it was necessary to divide them into two groups. The older group meets Saturday afternoon and the younger group Sunday morning during the Sunday School hour. Quite a large number of our people are enrolled in the Leadership Training School which the Council of Churches is offering at the First Presbyterian Church. Dr. Langenwalter is teaching one of the classes on Friday afternoons and also one in our own church on Sunday evenings. —Mrs. E. D. Schmidt, Corr.

The Calvary Church, Barlow, Oregon, took steps at a recent congregational meeting to enlarge its church building in order to provide more room for Sunday School and other organizations of the church. The work is to begin as soon as funds and material are available. —Rev. Paul N. Roth, Corr.

—Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: Six men from our church have gone as cattle attendants on relief ships. Four have returned, but David and Bernhard Penner are still away. On February 25th 177 pieces of bedding, weighing 860 pounds and consisting of feather quilts, knitted comforters, blankets and baby blankets, were packed for relief. Many of these were new. —Helen Penner, Corr.

—Menno Church, Lind, Washington: Mr. and Mrs. Willard Unruh and son were with us February 24. Willard, the director of the C.P.S. camp at Belton, showed some interesting and beautiful kodachrome slides of the camp and Glacier Park. The church is collecting blankets for the destitute peoples of Europe. Missionary H. J. Brown was with us for several interesting meetings.—Mrs. Henry Franz. Corr.

—Dallas, Oregon: Rev. J. M. Franz has returned from an extended trip to the California churches as Minister-at-Large of the Pacific District. The Albany young people gave us a very good program last Sunday night. —Mrs. Dave Balzer, Corr.

—Grace Church, Lansdale, Pa., Miss Margaret Slotter missionary in Kentucky, has returned after spending four weeks at her home near Lansdale, visiting many of our eastern churches and giving inspiring messages of the need in her work. Rev. John Boehr has very ably filled the pulpit the past month. Rev. and Mrs. J.J. Plenert will take their new charge here March 17. The local brotherhood recently showed pictures of African missions. Mrs. Henry Detweiler showed slides of her husband's work in Egypt and Palestine, where he is doing relief work for the M.C.C. The ladies recently sent blankets and clothing for relief.—Mrs. Geo. H. Frazee Jr. Corr.

—Goessel Church, Goessel, Kansas: Rev. Solomon Mouttet is going to talk and show slides of the "Go Ye" mission on May 5. On February 24th Dr. G.S. Klassen told of his experiences in Paraguay and showed several reels of moving pictures depicting the life of the Mennonites there and also the Indians and their customs. The women of the church are still very busy making comforters for relief. —Margaret R. Schroeder, Corr.

—Stirling Church, Kitchener, Ontario, is putting on a campaign for old woolen garments, too torn to be given away and yet good enough for the manufacture of woolen blankets. It is suggested that with twelve pounds of worn out woolen clothing a double size blanket can be made.

—Bethel College Church: Eldon Rich has completed with high honors his work for an M.D. degree at Kansas State Medical College, Kansas City, Missouri. He will move with his family to Detroit about April 1 for fifteen months internship in Ford Hospital. As in former years, we have again planned to set aside the Sunday evenings during Lent for special Bible study, including also the study of some of the great hymns of the church. The portion selected for this year is the Book of James.

—Zion Church, Souderton, Pa.: On Sunday evening, March 2, William Ramseyer, leader of the C.P.S. unit working in the mental hospital at Norristown, told the Intermediate Fellowship of the work being done in that institution. Dr. Johannes U. Hoeber, a native of Germany and lecturer on international affairs spoke to the Young People's Fellowship on the topic, "What To Do With Germany."

—First Church, Sugarcreek, Ohio: On Sunday morning, February 10, $818 was given for European relief. Since then the amount has increased considerably. The church council voted to use part of this fund to buy beef for relief canning. The Home Arts Club collected and sent over 430 pounds of fine new and used clothing for relief. At a later date one quilt, eighteen blankets, and eight comforters were added. Several weeks ago our loose offering for the morning was sent to the General Conference Treasurer to help in the expenses of our new Executive Secretary. Rev. Russell L. Mast of Wadsworth will be the guest speaker at our pre-Easter services which will begin March 31st and continue the entire week. —Wiley McDowell, Corr.

—Wayland Church, Wayland, Iowa: This church just recently finished canning six hogs and two beeves for relief. The meat, put up in No. 3 tin cans, made a total of 844 cans and 350 pounds of lard. So for this year 626 pounds of new and used clothing have been sent for relief. We united with other churches to observe the World Day of Prayer. Some members are attending the leadership training school sponsored by the County Sunday School Association. —Anna Mullet —Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio: Four hundred sixty blankets were donated for relief by the four Mennonite churches of this area. Of this number 105 were sent by Grace Church and forty of these were made and donated by theWomen's Missionary Society. This society and to girls' missionary societies met jointly to hear Miss Mary Haas, returned missionary from Africa, and to see the pictures of her work. A social hour followed. —Mrs. S.W. Steiner, Corr.

—Hebron Church, Buhler, Kansas: The mission societies arranged for a basket dinner at church, March 3, as a "welcome home" in honor of Dr. A. M. Lohrentz, who returned recently from Paraguay, where he gave a year of service as eye, ear, and nose specialist to our Mennonite brethren. In the afternoon he told of the primitive mode of life among the colonists. He showed some fancy work the women had done. He also brought some thank you letters from his patients who had received help from us. Our mission societies and a number of individuals had sent over six hundred dollars to him to be used for glasses and as otherwise needed. Prof. Richert of Tabor College directed a "singspiration" in the Buhler High School on the evening of March 3. A large audience was present for the second singspiration of the winter. The Buhler ministerial association, composed of Rev. A. J. Dyck, C.E. Fast, Rev. Henry Franzen, and Rev. T. A. van der Smissen, arranged for the singspiration.

Mrs. G. A. Linscheid
222 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

ORDER BLANK

The subscription price for The Mennonite for 1945 is: New Subscriptions $1.25 for the first year, Renewals $1.75 per year.

Please use this Order Blank when sending in your subscription and underscore the word New or Renewal to correspond with the type of subscription you are to pay for.

Name ____

Street or Route ______________________________

Address _____________________________________

Remittances from Canada should be made by Postal Money Order only. Please write name and address plainly to avoid errors.

Mennonite Publication Office
Newton, Kansas

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA
Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.
Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges to THE MENNONITE. North Newton, Kansas.
Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS

—First Church, Beatrice, Nebraska: Rev. Erland Waltner, who was with us from February 24th to March 1st, gave us inspiring messages on "Personalities of the Passion" during that time. Thursday night Rev. Waltner spoke at a young people's banquet, attended by 140 young people. The Education Committee of the church reports that Miss Huldah Myers has agreed to continue as instructor of the Beatrice Bible Academy for another year. —Margaret Albrecht. Corr.

—Zion Church, Elbing, Kansas: The C. E. had the pleasure of being host to the Mennonite Bible Academy of North Newton on March 3. The academy group gave a musical program. Our church has four students in the Academy. —Mrs. Louis A. Janzen, Corr.

The Mennonite

Volume 61 — March 19, 1946 — Number 12

S. O. S.

Little hands across the sea
Pale and cold and thin,
Send a S.O.S. today
Are you listening in?
Who will send them clothes to wear
Show them that we truly care?
Little hearts across the sea
Waiting for the light,
Send a Macedonian call
Come this very night!
Who will send them Living Bread
That these hungry ones be fed?
Can it be that I must give
That these little ones may live?

—Amanda Friesen

Blanket Contributions Far from Goal

Though the response to the MCC Blankets for Relief drive has been most generous, it is still far from its goal set at 50,000. To date approximately 12,000 blankets have been received at the packing center at Akron. Good, all wool blankets are being purchased with money contributions. It is still not too late to send your contribution, either in kind or in money.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point-of-view:

SALVATION BY GRACE is receiving a renewed emphasis in Christendom today. Albert Edward Day, Methodist minister who heads his denomination's evangelistic program of winning a million souls to Christ, is a man of extensive training and wide experience. He lists as one of the signs of a spiritual groundswell running across the country this sign: "A new awakening to the New Testament idea of grace." One of the most renowned ministers of our time points out that the pastor "pleading the need and possibility of spiritual rebirth is not nearly as lonely as he used to be." Alcoholics Anonymous is the name of groups of men and women across America, all of whom were once regarded as hopeless drunkards but are now cured and anxious to help others who are enslaved to drink. Alcoholics Anonymous, it is reported, will not take on a drink victim as long as the man or woman tries to escape the habit by power of will. These men and women, who have found victory through appropriated power, have as a motto in one of their club rooms: "But for the grace of God!" Furthermore, the power of grace (Agape love is love that seeks to build up the standing of another person and to release that person "into true personality and individuality." See Guilt and Redemption by Lewis J. Sherrill, page 159) to bring wholeness to people who are emotionally sick is being emphasized today by psychologists and psychiatrists. Once the emphasis was upon discovering the causes of emotional conflict. Today the emphasis is turning to the importance of the relationship with the therapist who accepts the sufferer just exactly as he is. Such a relationship suggests a witness of the divine grace of Christ, not a witness in words only but also in feeling. In the physical realm man has been on the quest for power, and by splitting the atom he has found a tremendous source of it. Man is also seeking for spiritual power. He wants the power to do the right. There seems to be a growing conviction that in the grace of God a split spiritual atom lies before us with infinite power for doing the words of Christ.

LIFE'S CHIEF AIM, as purposed by God, is to love—to love God with all that one is and can be and to be concerned for the other person as one is with himself. Or we might say it is to glorify God, who is "Spirit" and "love." Jesus said, "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." He emphasized the importance of being a servant of all. So closely did He identify himself with others that He suggested that treatment accorded the "least" people is really treatment accorded Him. Paul touched upon this matter of "feeling for others" when he suggested rejoicing with those who rejoice and weeping with those who weep. To feel the other person's concern as your own is to glorify God. For example: A would like to read a good book, but B wants him to help with a puzzle and C wants A and B to join him in the singing of hymns. B and C do not put on pressure, but their desires are evident. A "enters into" the feelings of both and promotes both activities during the course of the next hour. Then he picks up his book. The purposes of the three individuals have been saved from a clash and integrated instead. In the peace, joy, and satisfaction of that fellowship, the glory of God is revealed. This extension of self into the lives of others,—this "feeling for" others permits the glory of God to become evident. Such close union of lives (love) constitutes the chief aim of life.

THE TOUGH TALK to Russia has been examined in a very stimulating way by Charles Clayton Morrison. He suggests that maybe this tough talk will stop Russian expansion, but that in that case it will divide the world " into two camps, each getting ready for a future showdown." If Stalin does not back down, then what? He quotes Drew Pearson as confessing, ". . . no one in this country likes to think about the consequences if Stalin thinks we are bluffing." Or he suggests that Stalin may put on a little more pressure to see just how far the U. S. will go. And then what? Mr. Morrison concludes, "Let anything and everything be done that will stop this policy of trying to make peace by scaring the other fellow."

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA
Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.
Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.
Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS

We Have a Church Library

by Ellis Graber

It all had its beginning at a workers' conference, a monthly meeting for teachers and workers at Zion Mennonite. Said one of the teachers, "When I ask someone to teach my class they immediately ask, "What helps can you give?" This brought forth several comments. Someone said, "Why not have Sunday School helps, good periodicals and good books available in the secretary's room?" A lively, enthusiastic discussion followed this suggestion and before the meeting adjourned a committee was appointed to consider the advisability of starting a church library and to report at the next meeting.

The committee weighing the matter was aware of the fact that many church libraries fail. "Reasons are varied," they said, "Sometimes a church library is started in an area where a public library already meets the needs of surrounding churches. Finances are sometimes inadequate and often a library is started without careful planning and organization. And very frequently, all too great a percentage of the membership is not aware of the wealth of material that is at hand covered with dust."

In giving its report the committee pointed out these dangers while at the same time challenging the group to start a good library with ample funds and establishing it on the same organizational pattern as a public library.

The Church School Classes met the challenge at the White Gift Service of 1944 when a substantial amount was given to begin the project. A Library Committee, consisting of three members and the pastor, was asked to make plans and to proceed with the project.

Through the persistent work of this committee, the valued help of Miss Weinert, the High School Librarian, and the warm support of friends we now have a church library open free to all members of the Church. Non-members can and are using it by paying a small fee of twenty to fifty cents per year. Literally it is a public library for over four thousand residents of Souderton and others in this area.

The library is well-housed in an area sixteen by thirty-three feet in our auditorium. It has good lighting and is equipped with sufficient shelves, a magazine rack, a librarian's desk, chairs and reading tables, and a large bulletin board. Filing cabinets are on order. It is open at scheduled hours four days each week. Six librarians give of their time to enable individuals to spend several hours during an afternoon or evening in wholesome reading. Although the library is still in its infancy, it now contains about seven hundred volumes, has thirty-five subscriptions to periodicals, and is on the mailing list for many publications. At present masterpieces of art are being mounted and filed for use in Christian education. To date, over thirteen hundred dollars has been made available to buy books and incidental supplies.

Some Guiding Principles

1. The success of the Church Library depends greatly on the location and physical environment. It should be easily accessible, of a bright and cheerful atmosphere, well-heated and comfortably equipped to make the room inviting and comfortable at all times for those who wish to use it.

2. The library must have a definite purpose—to provide people with wholesome, helpful literature. Financially it is impossibe and impractical for the average family to buy all the literature they would like to have or should read. Books are often bought, read once, and then put on the shelf. Book-of-the-month clubs, while often economical, usually cater to current literature (some good, mostly inferior) which hasn't passed the test of time. With customary library discounts and with circulation of the books the library is a good investment and a saving to the prolific reader.

3. The library must provide the reader with a well-balanced reading diet. A well-balanced person must do balanced reading. It is not enough to read just what one likes. One must learn to like good literature. In the church library there should be books and periodicals covering many fields such as philosophy, history, psychology, sociology, agriculture, fiction, biography, arts, etc. Why all these in a church library? Because people must be made conscious that the church is interested in and wants to influence every phase of living, that all of life is sacred and must be lived with a Christian purpose. It is important that people read the best books in every area. The Church, in many instances, can provide them directly or through its schools.

4. Quantity must not be substituted for quality. A library of one hundred books may be better than a library with one thousand volumes. All books, new and used, must be approved by the library committee with no hesitancy in rejecting books that are below the standards of the Church. The classic books of each field are to be secured first. Fiction with a Christian purpose is to be chosen. There is no excuse for reading trash when there is good reading material available.

5. The library must be continually held before the public. The weekly church bulletin, book reviews,

---

Ellis Graber is pastor of the Zion Mennonite Church, Souderton, Pennsylvania. The church has a membership of over five hundred.

and use of materials in teaching and program building are good advertising. But parents, who by example spend a regular period in the library and bring their children with them and encourage them in wholesome reading, are the best publicity. Such practices are to be encouraged.

6. The library is a part of the total program of Christian education.

a. Leadership training, through guidance in use of program materials and through use of books giving new ideas and trends of thinking as well as methods of teaching, is to be encouraged.

b. Parent education, through books on child guidance, religious growth and development, family relations, the family and the church, etc., is of definite value. (Why not a shelf on "The Family"?)

c. Emphasis on the cultivation of reading habits of children is primary. Reading in childhood leads to reading in adulthood. It shapes the growth of the child. Recent studies show that a large percentage of books in a library are read by children. (About forty per cent of the books checked out of our library were taken out by children.)

From the beginning the library was conceived with the thought that our church library must be a good library. A poor library defeats its own purpose. Rather than a poor library it is better not to have any.

Good equipment, good organization, (Dewey Decimal or a similar system of cataloging) and good books ought to characterize the church library. With much prayer, tact, work and sacrifice it can become a powerful force for the Good.

Foreign Missions

(Temporarily all Foreign Missions correspondence should be sent to Rev. Howard Nyce, 1528 Chew Street, Allentown, Pa.)

Report on Annual Board Meeting

The annual meeting of the Board of Foreign Missions was held in Newton, Kansas, February 19 to 22. The following members were present, Rev. A. E. Kreider, Goshen, Indiana; Rev. A. P. Waltner, Marion, South Dakota; Rev. D. J. Unruh, Newton, Kansas; Rev. Phil A. Wedel, Goessel, Kansas; Rev. Howard G. Nyce, Allentown, Pa. and Rev. P. A. Penner, the Treasurer, of Newton, Kansas. Rev. P. H. Richert, secretary for the past thirty-five years, was absent on account of serious illness.

The meeting was opened with our chairman, the Rev. A. E. Kreider reading I Cor. 3: 1—10 after which all members joined in a season of prayer. The following resolutions were passed;

1. Resolved, that Bro. Howard Nyce be authorized to sign the vouchers as Secretary pro tem in the absence of the regular Secretary, Rev. P. H. Richert. (Bro. Nyce was appointed to serve as Secretary for the Board sessions).

2. Resolved that we accept the Treasurer's report as presented.

Cash Balance, 6-30-45	$34,790.36
Receipts since Conference	$129,644,51
Disbursments	$120,527.42
Cash Balance, 12-31-45	$43,907.45

3. Resolved that we gratefully accept the offer of Dr. Herbert R. Schmidt to go to India to serve as a doctor in our hospital at Jagdeeshpur for approximately one year.

Oklahoma

4. Moved that we encourage Rev. J. B. Ediger to present plans and estimates of cost of a new church building at Clinton, Oklahoma.

5. Resolved that we ask a board member to visit the Oklahoma field to consult with the missionaries regarding the sale of the Cantonment farm; the enlarging of the Mission home in Canton and the purchase of the extra lot.

6. Resolved that we authorize the sale of the farm, the purchasing of the lot at Canton and the building program, if advisable.

7. Resolved that we ask Bro. Kreider to go to Oklahoma for the purpose mentioned in the last two motions.

8. Moved that we accept the budget as submitted by the Oklahoma Missionaries for 1946 amounting to $2205.25

Clinton, Hammon and Thomas
Station account $350.00
Native Help Acct. 1,000.00
1945 deficit in native help $185.25, $1,535.25
Canton, Longdale and Fonda
Station Account $ 350.00
Native Help Acct. $320.00, $2,205,25

Montana

9. Moved that we approve the building program as presented to the Board by the Montana workers and authorize the beginning of construction work, i.e., the building of a new church at Lame Deer and the the remodeling of the old log church for a dwelling house.

10. Moved: to approve the budget of $705.00 fo Montana field.

Lame Deer

Station	$ 180.0
Native Help	200.0
	$ 380.0

Vacation Bible School

An eighty-three page handbook for Vacation Bible School workers is now ready for mailing. Sunday school teachers, too, will find information in its pages. Orders can now be placed with Joanna S. Andres, 700 East Fifth, Newton, Kansas. We are asking twenty-five cents per copy to help toward the printing and mailing expenses.

The content of the handbook is as follows:

THE COURSE OF STUDY
SUPPLEMENTARY TEACHING MATERIALS
MEMORY WORK
MINOR CHANGES IN THE MANUAL AND GENERAL SUGGESTIONS
  Daily Memory Verses, Primary I, II
  Church History Outline
  Mennonite History Outline
THE UNGRADED SCHOOL
  Alternative Courses
    The Home Course
    The Love Course
    The Right Living Course
    The Jesus Course
STORY TELLING TALKING TO GOD, OUR FATHER
HAND WORK
SUGGESTIONS IN THE USE OF MISSIONARY SAND-TRAY CUT-OUTS IDEAS FOR FELTOGRAPH USE
MUSIC IN VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL
PICTURES AND THE CHILD
BEFORE THE BELL RINGS AND RECESS ON RAINY DAYS
THIS AND THAT TO HELP
SCRIPTURE VERSES SUITABLE FOR CHILDREN
THE WORKER'S LIST OF SOURCE MATERIAL
WHERE TO ORDER MATERIALS

That this handbook may be of help to our churches, is our earnest Prayer. —The Western District Vacation Bible School Staff Under the auspices of the W. D. Educational Committee

---

Ashland

For repairs	$200.00
Garage	125.00
	$ 325.00

Arizona

11. Resolved that we approve the Arizona Budget of $ 1412.00

Oraibi

Native Help	$ 500.00
Budget	220.00
Hotevilla Budget	220.00
Moencopi	392.00
	$ 1,412.00

12. Resolved that our Board go on record as willing to pay the full share of the field budget of our own workers in the Congo Inland Mission as of January 1, 1946.

13. Resolved that we ask our secretary to acknowledge the letter of Rev. P. P. Wedel in an appropriate way.

14. Moved to acknowledge the letter received by the Foreign Mission Board from students of the Biblical Seminary at Chicago.

15. Resolved that we grant the extended furlough of the P. W. Penner's to attend the Golden Jubilee of the India Mission as requested by the India Missionary Conference.

16. Moved that we grant the request of the following housing program in India; $6,000 for a bungalow at Jagdeeshpur and $3,000 for the bungalow at Korba.

17. Moved that we accept the field budget of the India Conference of $39,870.00.

18. Resolved that we recognize the urgent need of new couples for India and we shall make prayerful efforts to meet this great need as soon as possible.

19. Moved that our Candidate Secretary (Rev. D. J. Unruh) write an article to our papers on the crying need of married couples as missionaries for India.

20. Resolved that we refer the request of the India Workers Conference for $2,000 relief money be referred to our Emergency Relief Board.

21. Moved that with the consent of the India Missionary Conference the request of Bro. Aaron E. Jantzen for an extension of his furlough be granted.

22. Moved that we make every effort to obtain the consent of at least three men who are willing to go into emergency missionary service to China and that we make provision to send them at the earliest possible date.

23. Moved that we grant A. L. Jantzen an extra year of furlough to continue his studies.

24. Resolved that we make Miss Aganetha Fast available to the Women's Missionary Association of the General Conference for a Visitation Program among the women's organizations, to awaken more missionary interest and organize new societies where needed.

25. Resolved that we set aside $10,000 for the China budget for the year 1946.

26. Resolved that we make arrangements that at least two men meet with Dr. Seel of Bogota, Columbia, South America, (when he arrives in the U.S.) to obtain all possible information relative to work in South America by our missionaries. If possible, these two men be kept in mind for a trip to South America to view the prospective field.

27. Moved that our Chairman, with some member whom he would name, meet with Dr. Seel after the date is set.

28. Moved that we put aside $10,000 as budget money to establish a mission station in Colombia, South America.

29. Moved that we adopt the following statement of policy for our work in Colombia, South America: (1) that we continue investigation of a permanent field. (2) That we look for a field with possibilities of evangelism with evangelical sympathizers. (3) That we locate in a place with possibilities of expansion, where no other group is working. (4) That we look favorable to making a school part of the mission program. (5) We urge consideration of a field that is rural in character. (6) We look forward to establishing of organized Christian churches. (7) No final decision should be made without the approval of the Board.

30. Moved that Brother Howard G. Nyce be elected as Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions.

31. Resolved that we continue an investigation and study of Puerto Rico as a possible mission field.

32. Resolved that we ask the secretary to write a letter of sympathy to Mrs. P. J. Wiens in view of the passing of brother Wiens.

33. Resolved that Brother D. J. Unruh write the annual Missionary Letter.

34. Resolved that we tentatively consider Bro. Leonard Wiebe as a Candidate for the Oklahoma mission field to succeed Bro. J. B. Ediger.

35. Resolved that we accept Miss Gladys A. Klassen as a Candidate for India, and that we arrange for her going to India when a married couple can be sent to India.

36. Moved that the Mission Board grant that the same amount be given to the Literature Committee of the Women's Missionary Society.

37. Resolved that the Board of Foreign Missions of the General Conference desires to thank Mr. C. W. Claassen most sincerely for the use of the Director's Room during its session from February 19th to the 22nd.

38. Resolved that we accept as a statement of policy concerning personal gifts, the following: We do not encourage the giving of special gifts to missionaries for personal use. When gifts are given, the missionary is to make sure that they are intended for his personal use and that he is the Lord's steward of such a trust. When unsolicited gifts are given for certain causes, they are to be used for such a purpose as long as there is a need. If this need does not exist, the workers on the field are to determine how such gifts are to be allocated.

The budget adopted for the year is $152,129.78.

The Board met with the following applicants, Miss Gladys Klassen, Miss Anne Penner, Mr. Leonard Wiebe, Miss Helen Kornelsen, and Mr. Paul Boshman. Mr. John Loewen also met with the Board in the interest of the Canadian young peoples' work.

Thursday morning Rev. C. E. Rediger, Secretary of the Congo Inland Mission and Mrs. Rediger attended our meeting while we discussed the African work. He informed us that the Neufeld's are working on the field at Kalamba for about one year. The Toews' are stationed at Nyauga and their children are attending the Presbyterian Mission School at Lubandi. He also stated that the Dicks would be placed on the field at Kalamba.

Others visitors at the Board sessions were, Rev. Harry Yoder, President of the Central District Conference, Rev. J. N. Smucker, President of the General Conference and Rev. and Mrs. W. F. Unruh, former missionaries to India. The Executive Committee of the Women's Missionary Association of the General Conference also attended the sessions.

The closing prayer of the session was offered by our veteran missionary to India, the Rev. P. A. Penner. We appreciate the prayers of the members of the Conference in the interest of our meeting and we covet your prayers for the work entrusted to us.

—Howard G. Nyce, Sec.

MUTUAL AID BOARD ACTIVE

The Mutual Aid Board has received approximately ninety applications for assistance from discharged General Conference C.P.S. men. The requests vary; some men want to have counsel as to whether they should go on to school or whether to take a job; some want to know whether they should start farming on their own or work for wages; some inquire about financial assistance to buy machinery and livestock to start farmng; a few have asked for assistance to help them get started in establishing farm machine and auto repair shops, while others have asked for loans to buy homes.

The Aid Board Secretary takes up each application with the pastor of the local congregation, or where there is no pastor with the lay member in charge. To date about ten congregations have reported that local aid committees have been formd. Over thirteen thousand dollars has been raised for the purpose of rendering aid where loans are needed. Some churches are planning to take regular offerings for the Mutual Aid Board, while interested individuals have contributed over one thousand dollars. The Board makes only self-liquidating loans. For information on the work and plan of the Mutual Aid Board write to J. Winfield Fretz, North Newton, Kansas.

IN MEMORIAM

Joseph B. Bechtel was born April 11, 1865, and died February 23, 1946. By letter from the Hereford Church, Bally, Pa., he joined the First Church, Philadelphia, in 1890. Ordained as deacon in 1892 he served in this capacity until his death. In 1893 he married Hannah Schultz. The union was blesed with two sons Clarke and Earl. After being a widower for several years, he married Anna Mary Hensel in 1920. Besides being deacon, he was Sunday School superintendent for fourteen years, very active in C. E. in the early days, a choir member, etc. He also served on the Board of Managers for the Home for the Aged, Frederick and on the Eastern District Home Mission Committee for a long period. Furthermore, he was a charter member of the Philadelphia Federation of Churches and a member of the Board of the Philadelphia Council of Churches. At one time he was an official in the American Sunday School Union. He maintained a jewelry and watch-making business for over fifty years. He is survived by his wife and two sons.

Mrs. Lottie M. Rosenberger, nee Landis, daughter of Gideon and Lucy Moyer Landis, was born March 22, 1881. She was baptized in 1895 and received into the East Swamp Church. After her marriage to Menno S. Rosenberger in 1899 she transferred her membership to the West Swamp Church. With her husband she attended the last four General Conference sessions. She was called to the beyond on February 25. Mourning are her husband and the following children: Harold, N. Clarence, and Mrs. Arthur Mohr of Milford Square, and Mrs. Daniel Meas (foster daughter), Milford Square.

Mrs. Ellen Myers, nee Musselman, daughter of the late Christian and Barbara Moyer Musselman, was born April 10, 1870. She was baptized and received into the West Swamp Church in 1885. In 1892 she married Oscar Myers. Children that survive her are: Mrs. Henry Bauman, Mrs. Aaron Rosenberger, Lizzie at home, Christian, Mrs. Howard Shelly, Menno, Samuel, and Horace. One sister Emma Musselman also survives. The deceased was a sister of the late Rev. S. M. Musselman.

Mrs. Susie Ewert Harms, daughter of Henry Ewert and Eva Funk Ewert, was born on March 19, 1873, Heinrichsdorf, Russia, and departed this life on November 21, 1945. She came to Kansas with her parents in 1874. She grew to womanhood east of Newton. In 1881 she lost her mother and in 1882 she received a second mother in Anna Schmidt. When sixteen she was baptized and received into the Gnadenberg Church. In 1893 she was united in marriage to Henry P.Harms, who preceded her in death in 1938. She is mourned by four sons: Walter W., Newton; Alfred, Albert, and Elmer, Whitewater; and three daughters: Mrs. E. O. Schmidt, Elbing; Mrs. C. N. Riesen, Sedgwick; and Mrs. E. L. Schmidt, Walton.

Magdalene Reimer, daughter of Johannes and Magdalene Penner, was born July 23, 1875, in West Prussia. When two she came with her parents to Beatrice, Nebraska. Here she attended the parochial school and was baptized and received into the First Mennonite Church in 1892. In 1898 she was united in marriage to John Reimer, with whom she lived until 1925 when he went to his heavenly reward. In the last years her health failed and for six years she made her home with her daughter. After about five weeks in the Mennonite Hospital at Beatrice, she passed away February 15, 1946. She leaves two sons and one daughter.

Harvey S. Kummery, a founder of the First Mennonite Church, Allentown, Pa., died on February 27, at the age of seventy-seven years. Son of the late John and Lovina, nee Stauffer, Kummery, he was born at Milford Square. He is survived by eight children; Florence, wife of Roderick Fink, with whom he lived, Esther, wife of Thomas Glose, Allentown, and Doris, wife of Rev. Peter Voss of Hastings, Nebraska; Otto, George, Robert, Richard, of Allentown, and Frederick of Emmaus. There are eight grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his wife, a daughter Helen, and a son Paul. A resident fo Allentown since 1890, Mr. Kummery was a charter member of the First Mennonite Church. He was elected as the first deacon of the church at its organization in 1903. In this capacity he served willingly and faithfully until 1941 when he was elected deacon emeritus.

Elias Schrag was born at Freeman, South Dakota, on February 16, 1879. When about three years old his parents moved to Kansas. On March 26, 1894, he publicly confessed Christ as his Savior and was baptized and admitted into the First Mennonite Church of Christian at Moundridge, Kansas. Here he remained a member until he departed from this life.

He was married to Lydia Wedel in 1904. On November 25, 1924, death entered the home and claimed his wife. This was a great shock to him, but valiantly he reared the children. On February 22, 1946 he entered Bethel Hospital, Newton, and on February 28, he died quite suddenly from a severe heart attack. He leaves to mourn his departure four daughters and three sons.

Treasurers' Reports

Home Mission Committee of the W. D. Conference Receipts Oct., Nov., Dec. 1945

Alexanderwohl $265.47; Bergtal, Pawnee Rock, 115.10; Bergtal, Corn, 17.50; Bethel College, 65.04; Bethel, Waka, Tex., 58.52; Brudertal, 85.28; Buhler, 116.50; Einsiedel, 58.89; Emmanuel 26.55; Emmaus 41.50; First Menn. Burns 25.39; First Menn. Beatrice 125.00; First Menn. Christian 106.50; First Menn. Hillsboro S. S. 100.00; First Menn. Hutchinson S. S. 23.05; First Menn. McPherson 60.55; First Menn. Pretty Prairie 216.74; Fredonia 35.31; Friedensfeld 46.50; Garden Twp. 59.00; Gnadenberg 47.78; Grace 200.00 Greenfield 149.00; Goessel 57.40; Hebron 77.00; Herold 36.75; Hoffnungsau 259.72; Home Mission Trust Fund 311.10; Home Mission Gen. Conf. 48.00; Inman 58.89; Lehigh 33.24; Meadow 156.54; Mennonville 90.00; New Hopedale 70.80; Okla. Convention 96.42; Pleasant Valley 28.45; Ransom 60.00; Saron 27.07; Tabor 50.00; West New Hopedale 37.87; West Zion 68.10; Zion, Elbing 72.84. Total $3695.56. H. J. Dyck, Treas. Elbing, Kansas.

Report of the Ex. Com. of the Women's Missionary Association, Receipts for Oct., Nov., and Dec. 1945.

Totals Only! October: Foreign Mission Gen'l. Treas. $108.78; Home Mission Gen'l. Treas., 73.77; Retired Miss. Pension Fund, 68.14; India, 199.28; China, 20.00; Relief Work, 410.20; C.P.S. Camps, 108.74; New Mission Work, S. A. , 58.00; Ministers Pension Fund, 4.00; Elsa Grantland Auto, 97.50; Christmas Fund, 317.88; Okla. Mission Station, 105.00; Expenses of Ex. Com. and Miss. News and Notes, 74.06; Miscellaneous, 309.00 Grand Total, $1,954.35; — November: Foreign Miss. Gen'l. Treas., 285.00; Home Miss. Gen'l. Treas. 230.00; Retired Miss. Pension Fund, 88.85; India, 1,067.58; China 291.00; Relief Work, 1,263.91; C.P.S. Camps, 150.00; New Miss. Work, S. A. 58.40; Elsa Grantland Auto, 117.03; Christmas Fund, 823.06; U. S. Indian Stations, 233.73; Expenses of Ex. Com. and "Miss. News and Notes," 40.69; Miscellaneous, 749.38; Grand Total $5,398.63; December: Foreign Miss. Gen'l. Treas., 325.00; Home Miss. Genl. Treas., 165.00; Retired Miss. Pension Fund, 322.96; India, 2,561.09; China, 347.50; Relief Work, 2,324.16; C.P.S. Camps, 474.08; Elsa Grantland Auto, 209.50; New Miss. Work, S. A. 50.00; Christmas Fund, 324.97; Mountain Work, Ky., 298.00; Migrant Work, 85.00; Grace Children's Home, 115.00; U. S. Indian Stations, 245.00; Expenses of Ex. Com. and "Miss. News and Notes", 120.10; Miscellaneous, 1,148.37; Grand Total $9,115,73 —Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Treas.

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

Mennonites of the Ukraine. The Mennonites of the Ukraine and Russia in general are now scattered over the face of the earth. More and more we learn about their experiences from letters that come through even though there is no official postal service with some countries. A mother writes that she and her three children are now in Hanover (English occupied zone). Most of the Mennonites of the Ukraine were sent to Siberia before the German Army moved in in 1941. The Russians attmpted to send all men between fifteen and sixty to Siberia. Later when the Germans retreated from the Ukraine they took these Mennonites along whom they had found there. Thus families have been broken up and scattered without contact and the least hope of reunion.

In Siberia. Occasionally a letter comes through from Siberia. Thus a woman writes that she is there at Irkutsk with eighteen Mennonite families working in the forest. She knows nothing of the whereabouts of her husband and children. How she longs for her relatives, help, and peace! She sends greetings with Psalm 121. (Menn. Rundschau).

The Home That Had Been a Home. Many Mennonites of the Ukraine, who are now displaced persons in the American and British occupied zones, are being sent back to Russia or in danger of being sent back. Even though all of them have relatives in Russia, most of them do not want to go back. However, one person wrote recently that he and his wife looked forward to this event. Reason? They hoped to meet their children in Russia somewhere. One of the Mennonites that returned to what was once the paradise of the Ukraine—the Mennonite settlement of the Molotschna—found nothing but ashes. The scorched earth policy of modern warfare had destroyed everything. This "repatriated" Mennonite reports that he is again living in a dugout just like his ancestors did when they first arrived on the Steppes 150 years ago. He also reports that Poles are being settled in the destroyed Mennonite villages. (Menn. Rundschau).

Displaced Mennonites Arrive in Holland. Rev. T. O. Hylkema, Mennonite minister at Amsterdam, has been traveling through Germany to keep in touch with the displaced Mennonites that had been contacted by C. F. Klassen and others. It has been reported that three transports of them have arrived in Holland. Investigations are being made to find future homes for these unfortunate people who have lost all of their earthly possessions and many of their relatives.

A Mennonite Bible Expositor and Bible Lecturer. Rev. Jacob Kroeker was born at the Molotschna (Ukraine) and after World War I established a missionary society to spread the Gospel in Russia (Licht im Osten) at Wernigerode (Germany). Many evangelists and missionaries were trained and sent out. Many books on the Old Testament were written by Rev. Kroeker and thousands of lectures were given by him all over Europe and in America. Rev. and Mrs. Kroeker are still living in Wernigerode (Russian occupied zone). Their daughter, who lives in southern Germany, has just returned from a trip to see her parents and has written a detailed report. She used all possible means of transportation and encountered great difficulties by passing from one zone into another. Arriving at the Russian zone she gave up all hopes when she saw how hundreds were turned back. But when she told the Red Army soldier in Russian: "I want to see mother" he smiled and replied: "Alright, go and see your mother." She found her parents exhausted from lack of food. She was able to help them somewhat but had to return since she was not registered for rations in that region. On her way back she met some of her brothers and other relatives. It seems as if many of the younger people are going right on no matter how much they have lost or how hopeless the situation may seem.

The Door is Opening. According to reports it seems now that the postal service with Germany will be opened by April 1, which, however, does not mean that unlimited food packages will be shipped to that country. In fact, for the time being that may mean just the reopening of mail service. However, private relief agencies in this country, including the M.C.C., have been authorized to ship two thousand tons of relief goods per month to Germany. Robert S. Kreider a M.C.C. relief worker will be connected with the distribution of these relief goods.

Accountant Needed

There is an urgent need for the services of an accountant in the M.C.C. business office. Anyone with the training or experience to qualify for this type of work, and having a motivation to be of service in the program of the M.C.C. should write to the Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pennsylvania.

Also, when we are truly humble, our lives take on a beauty and our fellowship with others a richness no one with vanity in his heart can know. Backbiting, the judging and condemning of others, finding fault, selfishness and self-interest, jealousy and hate no longer are a part of our lives. Instead we seek to appreciate and emphasize the good that is in others, we seek to nurture the welfare of others, and we devote our lives to redemptive works as true servants of Christ. That is the narrow, rocky path which is so difficult to follow, but that is the way of love and salvation.

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Vice President
Verney Unruh
Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

Young People's Work in a Local Church

by Victor Sawatzky

When a group of young people met in the First Mennonite Church, North of Butterfield, Minnnesota, on the evening of August 28, 1938, to form a new young people's organization, they were not originating a branch of church activity. Many young people's organizations were in existence prior to the inception of this particular association. Even in its plan of organization and operation this group formulated nothing that had not already been suggested by youth leaders and practiced by youth groups.

But though these young people were only doing things that other people of similar interests in many cases were doing, yet theirs was an original expression. In drawing up their plans they did their own thinking. Being ignorant of what other groups were doing under similar circumstances, they had no precedent either to prejudice them or tempt them to imitate. All that they had to guide them in the formulation of their constitution was a first-hand knowledge of their needs and a vision of the possibilities for meeting those needs. Since the particular organization which is the subject of this article was thus an unforced, unprejudiced, original expression, we will not err when we say that a young people's organization of this kind meets a universal need of Christian young people.

The Organization

In order that other young people's organizations might compare notes we give a summary of the "Constitution" of the Young People's organization of the First Mennonite Church, North of Butterfield, Minnesota:

The Name

"Christian Young People's Fellowship"

The Purpose

"To draw the young people of our Church closer together in fellowship with each other and with Christ;

"To dedicate our united talents and energy to the strengthening and enlarging of the work of our Church and of the cause of Christ in general."

Activities and Projects

1. "Study-Bible and related subjects leading to good Christian conduct and effective church work, subjects like Christian Ethics, Bible Geography, and Rudiments of Music;
2. "Encouragement and support of young people from our Church who are in Christian training;
3. "Various good-will projects such as visiting sick and aged, and giving aid to the poor and helpless;
4. "Organized helpers at various church activities;
5. "Providing and supervising church library;
6. "Socials-clean, educational, Christian; light refreshments; close with period of devotions;
7. "Special undertakings such as group attendance at Bible conferences, retreats, etc."

Nature of Meetings

This group has regular meetings once a month on Sunday evening. At these meetings a program including a Bible study is given after which the young people gather in the basement of the church to play Bible games and partake of light refreshments. These meetings close at 10:00 p.m.

In addition to the regular meetings there are the spring and fall outing, missionary meetings sponsored by the young people, programs given in neighboring churches, farewell parties for members who are leaving, and the Christmas party.

Besides sponsoring the library, the young people undertook other projects in the church such as a church sign on the highway, tract rack in the church vestibule, glass covered church bulletin board, portable black board, lecturn, and keeping the church lawn clipped.

Interest of Young People

The continued interest of the young people in this work, and their zeal in carrying out the projects, as well as their personal testimonies, are ample proof that this type of young people's organization meets the needs of the young people of our churches.

It might also be added that such an organization does not supplant or interfere with the activities of the mixed C.E. or hinder participation by the young people in the programs of this other group. On the other hand an organization like the one we have described above, is in a much better position than the regular C.E. to fall in line with the program of our Conference youth organizations.

Upon the basis of our experience and observation, we would recommend that all of the churches affiliated with our Conference organize special youth associations in keeping with the program of the Young People's Union of the General Conference.

Thinking about the Christian Pattern of Life

by Waldo Mueller

Christians have a friendship that no one else doth know;
Christians go a highway
that no one else doth go;
Christians see the beauty
that God, Himself, doth view;
Christians have a duty
that they, themselves, must do.

The last two lines are ones that concern us all as individuals. We want to think on this for a few moments.

The question that confronts us as Christian young people then is, "What is the normal Christian pattern for young people? And what elements go into the total design?"

Youth and Ideals

There is no time in life when a person will respond so vividly to the ideal as in youth. Ideals become compelling to youth. If we would have peace and brotherhood tomorrow, we must pursue this ideal today. I think the future of a nation, an organization, or an individual can be quite accurately predicted by the ideals of its youth. There may seem to be a lot of exceptions to this because of the sudden and great changes that take place in the course of some lives. I wonder, though, if in many of these cases those ideals have been present but have been suppressed or kept to themselves because of fears.

Health Habits

One of the elements that should be in a normal Christian pattern would be that of good health habits. We are all aware of the teachings of Jesus in regard to our bodies as the temple of God. And they should be treated as such. God has established the laws of nature and if we abide by these we will be rewarded by good health. If not, we suffer the consequences. Ideals enter in here again. Many boys have men of great physical strength or athletic fame as their ideals. There is probably no one other thing that contributes more toward a happy useful life than good health.

A Sense of Vocation

A sense of vocation is another necessity for a normal pattern of life. By a vocation, we mean a call to, or a fitness for a certain work, or regular occupation.

Intellectual Habits

Another thing, and one we must constantly strive for is good intellectual habits. Today it seems there are so many influences that would "derail" our good intellectual habits if we aren't constantly on guard.

Recreation

Real recreation! We have a lot of means of recreation today—at least so-called recreation. But are these all helping to recreate us? By real recreation, we mean doing somthing that is different from our daily routine and tends to build us up physically, mentally, morally, and spiritually. I think a good way to test our forms of recreation is to stop and think what the recreation has done for us. Does it relax the tensions we are under in our daily work? Are we happy and have only pleasant thoughts and memories afterward? And do we feel satisfied that we have done something worthwhile? If it does not do these things for us, we had better look around for something else to do.

Fellowship with God and Church

Fellowship with the church and with God are two essentials for every Christian life. We cannot live to ourselves as hermits to live a normal useful Christian life. Fellowship with the church is very essential to our growth spiritually and intellectually and fellowship with God, of course, is the root and foundation of every Christian life.

In your quiet times, listen for God and you will feel His presence, if you are really sincere. God gave us our life and the wonderful world in which we live it. This should be reason enough for our living with Him. If we follow Jesus' teachings, live as He lived with His fellowmen, and cooperate with man and with God, we shall find our lives meaning more each day and full of happiness.

They Are Slaves

They are slaves who fear to speak,
For the fallen and the weak.
They are slaves who will not choose
Hatred, scoffing, and abuse
Rather than in silence shrink
From the truth they needs must think.
They are slaves who dare not be
In the right with two or three.

—James Russel Lowell

Social and Recreational Life in Mennonite Communities

by Melvin Boehr

Early in 1945 a number of questionnaires dealing with the social and recreational life in their home communities were sent out to various C.P.S. men by Dr. Melvin Gingerich of Bethel College. Realizing that any improvement in recreation patterns must stem from our young people, it was thought fitting to present this problem to the C.P.S. fellows, who have undoubtedly been led to think about this subject to some degree while in camp.

The results were gratifying both in content and attitude toward this problem; for a problem it is when we realize that, because of a lack of recreational activities sponsored in a Christian atmosphere, our young people are turning to comercialized and questionable sources for their recreation.

Need for Organized Recreation Felt

Perhaps no one will challenge the need for some social and recreational activities for all of us. "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," is certainly true. "If young people know how to work, that is all they need to know," is an attitude all too common with some of us.

The problem resolves then into a question of how to maintain a proper balance between the two and, realizing from the questionaires returned that this balance is not present, how can the life of our youth be improved along social and recreational lines?

Naturally the answers to this question were many and varied. Regardless of what changes will have to be made if we are to hold our youth in the church, they will have to be inaugurated slowly and with care. This will largely prevent a runaway to the opposite extreme—namely too many social and recreational activities and not enough development along the spiritual side.

Desire Special Recreation Building

Almost without exception the returns showed a need for a hall or building of some sort in which these activities and forms of recreation and entertainment might be carried out. That seems to be an indispensible part of the whole program since it is in this building, owned and controlled by the church or community, that many of the activities will take place. Reckoning the results in value of high morals and an ideal place in which to learn to know other young people, such an investment would repay its cost many times over in a comparatively short time.

In connection with this line of thought, one reply stated parents are often eager to spend large sums of money for modern material conveniences, but hardly give a thought to social, spiritual and recreational improvement of themselves and their children if it requires the spendng of money. Perhaps this idea is quite true and many of us should awaken to this obvious lack of judgment as to where our money will do the most good.

Community Recreation Leader

If any kind of recreational and social program of a wholesome nature be started in a Christian atmosphere and in a Christian manner, there is need for a leader or supervisor to guide and plan the activities of our young people. This is all important since where there is no assigned leader the whole program and plan soon disintegrates. Where one church is too small, a leader might have charge over two churches or communities. One paper stated that it would be desirable to have the services of some young couple who are interested along this line and who would be willing to devote their entire time for some such work. Would it not be a wise investment to hire these people instead of permitting our youth to give their money to owners of commercialized amusement places which are often of a questionable nature?

Of course, some such plan followed in its entirety would not do away completely with all patronization of outside forms of amusement and recreation, but it would help to a large extent. A great number of the returned questionnaires seemed to indicate that it was simply for want of better means of social entertainment that many of our young people attend movies almost indiscriminately, or frequented other places of pleasure and entertainment.

It isn't only a negative preaching that is wanted and is needed, important as that is. More must be offered in a positive way for constructive social activities. Another paper stressed the need for discussion classes dealing with pure and wholesome social friendships between members of both sexes.

Questionnaires Make These Emphases

By way of summary then, one notices the following emphases in these questionnaires:

1. Our young folks will get their recreation and make use of their leisure time somewhere; why not have the church responsible for more of this and thus serve to keep it on a high moral plane as much as possible.

2. Perhaps some separate building is needed, with various equipment, owned by the church or community.

3. A capable and willing leader, or two, who have as their aim in this work to plan and help motivate Christian recreation and beneficial use of leisure time, which we all need.

4. Since there is a need for all of us to recognize the value of recreation and social "get-togethers," let's take care of this need in the right way.

All of this is not to minimize in any way the part that the church plays in the individual's spiritual life. That comes first, but let's not stop there and let the commercialized world take over the rest of the way. A Christian spirit and atmosphere in all that we do and say—that is a worthy goal for each one of us.

Youth Events

A Voluntary Service Program is to be initiated by our church this summer. Various church boards interested have asked the Peace Committee with the Young People's Union to administer the program. This means that along with the projects being sponsored by the Mennonite Central Committee, a project will be undertaken by our own church. At present several possible projects are under consideration for sponsorship.

* * * *

The three churches in the Buhler, Kansas, community, Buhler, Hoffnungsau, and Hebron, which held a leader's institute, found the meeting to be very worthwhile. These three churches are considering further joint actions in future planning of youth work. Such a plan might be helpful in other communities where there is more than one church

* * * *

Of eight private relief agencies to enter Europe one will be the Mennonite Central Committee as announced in last week's Mennonite. The M.C.C. has appointed Robert Kreider as the M.C.C. representative in initiating work. Robert, a recently released C.P.S. man, served as director of the hospital program in C.P.S., was one of the eight members of the China C.P.S. unit which got as far as South Africa, and is among the first ex-C.P.S. men to get into active relief work.

* * * *

February 1, 27 percent of the C.P.S. men who were in camps and units when demobilization of C.P.S. got under way were released. On January 13, two weeks earlier, 74 percent of the army had been released.

* * * *

Two thousand young people affiliated with the St. Paul, Minnesota, Council of Churches have pledged themselves to read the Bible daily. This was one outcome of a fifteen-day Bible reading crusade of the city, in which 140 Protestant churches participated, and in which fifty thousand people read a chaper of the Gospel of John daily and memorized a verse of each chapter.

* * * *

F.B.I. figures prove that, of all persons arrested during the first half of 1945, 21 percent were under twenty-one years of age. An increase of girls under twenty-one arrested was registered as 9.2 per cent. The Department of Justice is establishing a twelve-man advisory board consisting of clergymen, educators and social welfare workers which will have as their special concern the problem of juvenile delinquency.

* * * *

Everyone can serve in one way or another in the Kitchener, Ontario, church where projects for everyone are being sponsored. A description of these service projects can be found in the December 11, 1945, issue of MENNONITE YOUTH.

* * * *

The Leamington, Ontario, Bible School will end its year's program at the end of March. The school will send out a mixed quartette to visit some of the churches and plans a Literary Evening at which pieces of German literature will be presented prior to the closing of the school.

* * * *

Reports are being received from some churches regarding youth activities. Other churches are invited to send in reports also telling of their program and their activity. We will endeavor to print all reports of general interest to young people.

* * * *

German prisoners of war, in a hospital camp near Toulouse, France, are making toys for Jewish refugee children and for French children whose fathers have been prisoners of war, according to a Quaker bulletin.

Contributors to this Issue

Victor Sawatzky is minister of the First Mennonite Church, Hutchinson, Kansas. He writes of his experiences with young people in the Butterfield, Minnesota, church. Beside his work at Hutchinson, Rev. Sawatzky is continuing his studies at Bethel College.

Melvin Boehr is from Henderson, Nebraska. He has taught school a number of years and is at present completing his collegiate studies at Bethel College.

Waldo Mueller is a member of the First Mennonite Church, Halstead, Kansas, and operates a Holstein farm. While in C.P.S., he served in Weeping water and the Lincoln Agriculture Unit.

RELIEF

Conditions in Holland

"We've looked over the border at the east into Germany near Enschede, and this week we're working in the far west on the island of Walcheren at Vlissingen and Middleburg. Vlissingen is extremely badly bombed and shelled—worse than anything I've seen. The last gap in the dikes was closed about three weeks ago, and most of the island is dry, but there is yet much reconstruction work to be done. Most families have only two or three rooms and live in rather primitive fashion. Nothing has been done to begin the building of the new church here." —Elma Esau

Field Representative in West

Daniel Widmer, recently discharged CPS worker in the Food for Relief program, has consented to give part time to the relief program and will serve as field representative of the Material Aid program of the MCC for the states of Oregon, California, Washington and Idaho. His work is to assist local groups in every way possible and he will be visiting the churches in this area in the near future. His address is Route 2, Woodburn, Oregon.

Holland Grateful for Relief

Ever since the first shipment of food went to Europe on June 30, 1945, the greater part of all food shipments have been sent to Holland. Following is a letter of gratitude sent to the MCC office by the Netherland Government Minister of Trade and Industry:

"I herewith avail myself of this opportunity during my short visit to the United States to express my sincere thanks, also on behalf of my Colleague, the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food Supply, for the important volume of relief goods your members have so kindly given for distribution among the Dutch population.

"Owing to these donations, you have greatly attributed both to the prevention of famine and disease, and the building up of the morale of the Dutch in their war stricken country.

"It is really very gratifying to know that so many good friends live in the United States who have great sympathy for Holland, and have demonstrated their willingness to cooperate." s.—H. Vos, Netherlands Government Food Purchasing Bureau.

Food Shipments Summary

From June 1, 1945, when the Food for Relief program was started, until March 1, 1946, 69 shipments (carloads) of food have gone forward to needy fields. Of these 69 shipments, two have gone to Puerto Rico which amounted to 17,423 pounds, and valued at $1,060.29; France has received 27 amounting to 1,261,282 pounds, valued at $86,304.13 and to Holland have gone 40 shipments totaling 2,212,097 pounds, evaluated at $120,437,71. This makes a total of 3,261,282 pounds, valued at $207,802.13. This is approximately two carloads of food leaving American ports every week.

Food Arrives in France

"Yu may be interested to know that all the previously announced shipments have now arrived in France at various ports of debarkation. . . but they are not available as yet as they have to clear customs. . . John Fretz is ready to go and get whatever will be available in Paris (with our five-ton truck) and our children's homes are all clamoring for some of the foods, especially fruits and vegetables and meats."—Henry Buller

Smoketown Cannery Closes

After about four months of operation, the cannery at Smoketown, Pa., brought to a close its winter program of canning beef, pork and fowl for relief on March 1. The cannery and equipment were made available for the project by the Glick's Seed Farm Cannery.

Relief Briefs

Edwin Schrag, Moundridge, Kansas, was scheduled to sail from Houston, Texas, on March 7 for Shanghai, China, from where he will proceed to Honan Province to join the MCC unit there.

Menno Klassen, Altona, Manitoba, was scheduled to leave Miami for Paraguay on March 7. In addition to serving as assistant director of the Paraguay unit Menno will supervise agricultural experiments in the Chaco with the view of determining the crops most adaptable to their soil and climate and finding the best methods of farming those crops.

Roland Kaufman, Erwin Warkentin and Harry Weirich recently stopped at Akron enroute to their homes from Puerto Rico.

Harry Willems has been transferred to the War Prisoners' Aid section of the YMCA in England. He had previously been serving at "Taxal Edge" Boys' Home.

C. P. S.

Changes in C.P.S. Administration

Albert M. Gaeddert, General Director of Mennonite C.P.S. for over two years, has resigned effective March 2 to become pastor of the Hoffnungsau Church, Inman, Kansas. Erwin C. Goering, former Eastern States Regional Director, has been appointed acting director of M.C.C. camps and units.

Brother Gaeddert had served in the C.P.S. program since its beginning. He was the first director of the Colorado Springs, Colorado camp beginning in June, 1941. Later he served as the regional director for all camps west of the Mississippi River, coming to M.C.C. headquarters in September, 1943, to be co-director of Mennonite C.P.S. On January 1, 1944, he assumed the full general directorship and had served in that capacity since.

Recent additions to the M.C.C. staff at Akron include Martin H. Schrag, who replaces Elmer M. Ediger as Educational Secretary; Daryl Wenger, who is working in the C.P.S. Section; and Arthur Hoylman, an addition to the Material Aid office staff.

Camp Closings

The camp at Medaryville, Indiana, will not close March 31 as announced earlier. Selective Service officials have indicated that no more base camps will be closed until it is determined how many new inductions will result from the plan to induct limited service men into the armed forces.

Meanwhile, closing of the Hill City, South Dakota and North Fork, California camps is nearing completion. Most of the personnel at both places has been transferred to other camps and units and only skeleton crews remain to complete the final disposition of camp property.

Two M.C.C. administered hospital units are scheduled for closing by the end of March. They are units No. 78 at the Denver, Colorado Psychopathic Hospital, and No. 79 at the Provo, Utah State Hospital. An improved civilian labor supply in these areas and partial demobilization of the unit personnel resulted in the decision to close these units.

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

Several years ago it was decided to use one of the rooms in the Old College Building to house the few museum pieces that the school owned. Since then some friends of the school have made liberal donations, others have loaned us their private collections. From a very modest beginning the museum grew The last items to be added were a few mounted until it now occupies the second floor of the building, and a room on the first floor was recently added. specimens—a laughing gull, a buffalo-head duck, two weasels, a raccoon, and a pocked gopher. Mr. Toews, who has charge of the museum has put much work into it and is ever on the alert for new treasures. He has for some time been looking for a mounted buffalo, a car of an early make, an old English bicycle with large front wheel, and early type electrical equipment.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

Plans are being made for a Christian Workers Institute, conducted by Bluffton faculty members, in the churches served by Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander at Quakertown, Pennsylvania, March 16, 17. Those taking part in the institute are Carl Lehman, M'Della Moon, and Edna Ramseyer. On March 30, 31, a similar institute will be held in the Trenton, Ohio, church with J. S. Schultz, P. J. Klassen, Edna Ramseyer, Paul Shelly, and Donna Hartzler taking part. Toru Matsumato will give a lecture in Ramseyer Chapel on Friday evening, March 22, on the Japanese-American relocation problem. Rev. E. J. Bohn has accepted a call to become pastor of the Grace Mennonite Church at Pandora. He will continue his part time teaching in the College but will leave the farm as soon as proper arrangements can be made. M'Della Moon spoke recently before the district meeting of the Garden Club in Lima, Ohio. Rev. Andrew Shelly visited the campus March 6 and spoke in chapel.

BETHEL COLLEGE

In extending Bethel's educational opportunities and service to her people, the College announces two further additions to the faculty family. Mr. N. Paul Stucky, M.S., will return this fall as instructor in physics. After four years in C.P.S., spent in activities related to his field, he is now a graduate assistant in physics at Purdue University. Rev. Erwin Goering, also a Bethel graduate, will join the staff, as soon as his release from C.P.S. is effective, as Assistant in Public Relations. He will direct a program of adult education and extension courses and assist in student selection and in the Alumni Association. He is at present general director of the M.C.C.-Civilian Public Service. Members of the Cheminar took a field trip to Wichita on March 8, visiting several laboratories and attending the sectonal March meeting of the American Chemical Society, of which their sponsor, L. C. Kreider, is chairman.

MENNONITE BIBLICAL SEMINARY AND BIBLE SCHOOL

An interesting lecture was presented to the student body on the evening of March 5. Mr. C. W. Hill, principal of the Gregory public school in this area, spoke on "A Layman Looks at the Ministry." Mr. Hill has been an active church member for many years, and linked with this, his wide experience in the educational world qualified him to give a rather interesting if not uncomfortable view of the minister's work. He made a very practical and apropo emphasis on the place of religious education in our schools and churches. In regard to plain Bible teaching he said, "The preaching of sociology can never replace the teaching of the Word of God." We were happy to have as our guest recently Miss Aganetha Fast. Other recent visitors were, Rev. Andrew R. Shelly from Kitchener, Ontario, and Mr. Eldo Schmidt from Newton, Kansas, who hopes soon to be released from the C.P.S. unit at Mt. Pleasant, Iowa.

JOTTINGS

—Zion Church, Elbing, Kansas: Our pastor, Rev. H. J. Dyck is giving a series of Lenten messages on: "Behold, What Manner of Love," I John 3:1; "Behold, My Servant," Matt. 12: 18—21; "Behold, We Go up to Jerusalem," Luke 18: 31—34; "Behold, the Lamb of God," John 1:29; "Behold, the Man," John 19:5; "Behold, thy King Cometh," Matt. 21:5; "Behold, I Shew You a Mystery," I Cor. 15:51.—Mrs. Louis A. Janzen, Corr.

—Zion Church, Arena, North Dakota: The Ladies Aid Society has sent 150 pounds of dresses, shoes, soap, etc., to the Clothing Center in Newton, Kansas. Our pastor recently started a series of messages on the Book of Jeremiah.—Mrs. H. H. Peters, Corr.

—First Church, Nappanee, Indians: Our church is taking part in a week of visitation evangelism that is being conducted by the Nappanee, churches. The Junior Choir, on their program Sunday evening, exhibited the books they are making of the life and work of the missionaries they study in connection with their choir work.—Mrs. Loyal Corwin, Corr.

—Turpin, Oklahoma: All correspondence for the Mennonite Church at Turpin should be sent to H. B. Regier, Turpin.—P. M. Franz

—The Annual Convention of the Western District Sunday School will be held April 7th at the Emmaus Church, Whitewater, Kansas. Details of the program will be published later.—Elfrieda Regier, Sec.

—Second Church, Paso Robles, California: In response to the appeal for blankets for Relief, our missionary society held a called meeting after church on February 17. It was voted to purchase thirty dollars worth of blankets to be included with those donated by members. This brought the total up to ten. A collection was also taken to purchase additional blankets; this amounted to $28.25. The following Sunday the relief offering of $97.26 was allotted to the same purpose and the Junior S.S. Class contributed $8.74 to the same cause. During recent months we have sent two hundred pounds of new and used clothing for relief. Rev. and Mrs. Lester Wuethrich were guest speakers on March 3rd. We hope to have them with us again.—Mrs. W. N. Classen, Corr.

—Mennonite Clothing Center, Newton, Kansas: Two C.P.S. men are now helping in the Center. They are Lloyd Gundy of Normal, Illinois, and Robert Yoder of Kalona, Iowa. They are two of the fifty C.P.S. men that Selective Service has released for the Food and Clothing for Relief program. The Center is preparing to ship clothing in the near future.

—Gospel Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: The C. E. had a welcoming home program for returned service women and men who served the government during World War II.—Elizabeth Lohrenz, Corr.

—First Church, Pretty Prairie, Kansas: The Gaddis—Moser Evangelistic Group is to hold meetings here from March 25th to March 31st. The church recently installed a public address system. —Ralph Krehbiel, Corr.

—Immanuel Church, Delft, Minnesota: On March 11, Rev. Lewis Berks, a Hebrew Christian, was with us in the interest of Jewish missions. He showed pictures of Palestine. Rev. J. J. Esau is to conduct a series of evangelistic meetings from March 31st to April 7th. Everyone is invited to attend. In our Sunday evening services we are studying Ephesians. We have begun a Bible reading contest to find out who will be the first one to read the Bible through in this year. —Martha Baerg, Corr.

—First Church, Burrton, Kansas: Our church has contributed for relief: in wheat, $299.96; beef, broth, and vegetables, 528 quarts; and thirty-nine comforters, blankets, and baby quilts. Guest speakers so far this year have been: David Habegger, who showed pictures of the Montana mission field; Arnold Nickel, who preached February 17th; and Dave T. Stucky, who gave a brief review of his trip to Poland. The choir is rehearsing for Easter. A group of young ladies presented a candle light service and music at the annual World Day of Prayer service held at the Christian Church. —Martha Goering, Corr.

—Schoenwiese Church, Winnipeg, Manitoba: March 1st saw the opening of Bethania, home for the aged and infirm. It is beautifully located along the Red River at Parkdale, ten miles outside of Winnipeg proper. Rev. J. H. Enns officiated at the inauguration. Sixteen of the seventy-five beds are already occupied. Bethania consists of 108 acres of land with two spacious homes, one for the aged and invalids and the other for the mentally sick. It was purchased for twenty thousand dollars and approximately another twenty thousand dollars will be used in repairs and alterations. It is sponsored by the Mennonite Benevolent Society, which is made up of members from various Mennonite churches, the majority of whom, however, are members of the Schoenwiese Church. On March 2nd our "Jugendverein" presented a three-act drama "Glaube und Heimat" by Karl Schoenherr in the Playhouse Theater. An audience of almost one thousand witnessed the performance. Half of the proceeds will be sent to the M.C.C.—Ernest J. Enns, Corr.

—Eden Church, Inola, Oklahoma: On March 3rd our pulpit was ably supplied by Rev. August Schmidt of the Oklahoma Bible Academy. With him came a mixed quartet which furnished music Saturday night at a special service and also at the Sunday service. March 10th we had the privilege of having Abe Peters, a ministerial student at Bethel College, to deliver our morning message and also one in the afternoon. We are thankful to God for supplying our weekly needs in the absence of a permanent pastor.—Mrs. Ben H. Pankratz, Corr.

—Bethel Church, Lustre, Montana: Sister Anna Baerg, ordained missionary to the American Indians, is now working at Oraibi, Arizona. We have begun building a house of worship on the basement in which the services have been held for some years. The shingling has been finished, but because of cold weather and shortage of material the work has been held up somewhat. Theodore Epp, of the Back to the Bible Broadcast, was speaker at some meeting held last year. These meetings were sponsored by the Mennonite churches of the community. The churches of this and of the surrounding communities have sent three carloads of flour to Europe, and nearly two thousand pounds of clothing were gathered for relief. Efforts are being made to send forth a carload of flour. The mission society has sewed for relief. Rev. Jacob L. Hoffman and a male quartet visited the Terry C.P.S. camp on March 10th. March 3rd, Frank Huebert, who has been serving in the C.P.S. unit at Lincoln, Nebraska, was united in marriage to Evelyn Epp of Henderson, Nebraska. Most of the boys have returned from overseas. Delsie Schartner graduated from the Bethesda Hospital School of Nursing at St. Paul on March 7th.—Mrs. J. L. Hoffman, Corr.

—Ebenezer Church, Bluffton, Ohio: On February 28th our congregation had a farewell for our supply pastor, Rev. J.J. Esau and family. Rev. and Mrs. Esau served us well for eighteen months. They will continue to make their home in Bluffton, and Rev. Esau may still be available at times for evangelistic work even though he has now accepted a position with the Grace Bible Institute of Omaha.

Rev. Esau asked that the love-offering of one hundred dollars be given to G.B.I. We observed "Blanket Week" by donating sixty-six new and used blankets for relief. Our people responded as follows in the donation of food-for-relief during February: fifteen quarters of beef, three hogs, seven gallons lard, twenty-four cases of milk, besides a cash donation of $454.19 to purchase foods. A number of tools were also given. Rev. Sylvan Lehman of the Lima, Ohio, church occupied the pulpit on March 3rd. Miss Viola Welty, returned missionary from Africa and member of our church, gave the morning message, March 10. Our Sunday School classes contributed thirty-six dollars for re-decorating the Y.W.C.A. room at Bluffton College and $32.40 towards the bathroom projects for Ropp Hall. —Mrs. Hiram Neuenschwander, Corr.

—Officers of the Central Conference of Mennonites Rev. Harry Yoder, Bluffton, Ohio, is President; Rev. G. I. Gundy, Meadows, Illinois, is Vice-President; E. W. Rediger, Washington, Illinois, is Secretary; Rev. R. L. Hartzler, 809 N. Evans Street, Bloomington, Illinois, is Field Secretary; and Rev. Allen Yoder, Goshen, Indiana, is the representative on the M.C.C. Mrs. R. J. Rich, Washington, Illinois, is Bluffton College representative.

—First Church, Wadsworth, Ohio: Relief contributions for February were: eighteen new and used comforters and blankets, 267 cans of food and two boxes of used clothing. All of this was sent to Akron. Our pastor, Rev. Russell Mast, is giving a series of Lenten sermons entitled "Characters of Calvary." —Mrs. J. Millard Fretz, Corr.

—First Church, Nappanee, Indiana: Five churches in northern Indiana (four Central Conference and one Middle District) are collecting money for a carload of milk for Europe. Our church is active in the program of visitation evangelism that is being conducted by the churches. Seven teams spend an evening in prayer and preparation and then follow this up by visiting those on their responsibility roll. Rev. Marvin Dirks, who was among those interned in the Philippines, will bring us two missionary messages on March 24. From March 31st to April 7th Dr. A. Warkentin, President of the Mennonite Biblical Seminary, will be with us for a series of special services. Plans are well under way in our church to entertain the Middle District Conference from June 8—11. The monthly relief shipment made by the ladies totalled 170 pounds. Forty-three of these were soap. —Mrs. Loyal Corwin, Corr.

—Hoffnungsau Church, Inman, Kansas: .Funeral service for Rev. D. D. Unruh were held on February 27th. Rev. Unruh served as minister in our church for thirty years. The relief committee recently baled 104 blankets and comforters at the M.C.C. Clothing Center in Newton and then sent them by express to Akron. Dr. Cornelius Krahn of North Newton showed pictures of Mennonite history on the evening of March 10th. Mrs. J. V. Regier, Corr.

Mrs. G. A. Linscheid
222 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

—Correction: W. F. Dettweiler, correspondent from Upland, California, writes: "Reading jottings in the March 5th issue of the Mennonite was very much surprised to read that we welcomed the boys home by dance. This might call for a correction in your next issue. We do not dance at our monthly church nights nor any other night." We are sorry for the omission of a number of words in the jotting that Mr. Dettweiler refers to and especially sorry that the first part of the word "attendance" was left off making the word "dance" appear in the jotting. We are sorry for this printshop error and are glad that Mr. Dettweiler called our attention to it. —Editor

—Saucon (Pa.) Church: The second church wedding to take place in this house of worship in 210 years took place recently when Mary M. Price and Linford Schantzenbach were united in marriage. The first one took place several weeks ago when Frances Beahn and Fred Daniel were married.

—Toronto United Mennonite Mission, March 10: Conscientious objectors that had drifted from the farms to Toronto during the fall and winter months in search of employment in industries, are being returned to farm work by the selective service. A number of these men had found employment in tanning and canning factories in suburban Mimico and New Toronto. Those that are attending various educational institutions are permitted to finish their course. Government officials have announced that selective service regulations pertaining to employment of C.O.'s, will be dropped as soon as all Canadian soldiers now overseas have returned home. It is believed that by Easter all Canadians, with the exception of the occupation force in Germany, will have returned to this country. Rev. Arnold A. Fast, pastor of the Mission, for the first time conducted the communion service at the Mission. Ordained as an elder in his home church at Buttersfield, Minnesota, Mr. Fast has been ministering to the congregation since September, 1945. Both he and Mrs. Fast, the former Miss Adelaine Becker, of Marion, South Dakota, are graduates of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, Illinois. C. J. Rempel, Canadian Manager for the Mennonite Central Committee, Kitchener, Ontario, addressed the congregation today on the subject of the work of the M.C.C. This was his first visit to this mission and a goodly number of people, mostly Mennonite immigrants from Russia during recent years, were present. An accomplished singer, Mr. Rempel, accompanied by his wife on the piano, sang two appropriate songs. The entire offering went toward the work of the organization to relieve suffering throughout the world.—I. G. Neufeld

The Mennonite

Volume 61 — March 26, 1946 — Number 13

LENTEN MEDITATION

I knew not why Thy love once reached to me—
I only knew that I was found of Thee;
I only knew that when I heard Thy voice,
My lips began to sing, my heart rejoice.
I running came in answer to Thy call
And freely offered Thee my life, my all.

* * *

But now I know Thy love came forth indeed
To meet my heart's great sin, my soul's deep need;
That from Thy breast with pain and anguish torn Poured forth the love by which my guilt was borne—
I know—at last—the wages of my sin
Would be but death had'st Thou not entered in!

* * *

I know at last—O wondrous truth to me—
That I shall cling forever unto Thee!
That though the paths may lead me once again
Through valleys dark where I shall know new pain—
No morrow shall return to me with fears
For hand in hand . . . So shall we walk the years!

Joanna S. Andres

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point-of-view:

OUR REDEEMER is Jesus Christ, who by his death upon the cross redeemed man. A redeemer is one who buys back something that has been sold below its value. Human society, on the whole, is continually passing people off for less than their true value. "He isn't worth it" is an attitude commonly expressed in human relationships. So man goes to war against man; man deliberately starves man; and every day man is tempted not to recognize the true worth of those near him. Man is tempted to value property more than human life. We talk of someone as being "worth" fifty thousand dollars. Seldom do men in their common talk evaluate a human "life" as worth more than all the material things in this world—things which however wonderful can never constitute "life." Not only are others tempted to undervalue us; we are tempted to undervalue ourselves. Sin is of such a nature as to blind us to the worth of others and of ourselves. Sometimes it is said of someone, "He thinks too much of himself." But he really doesn't. He thinks of himself in the wrong way. Fundamentally, such a person is not sure of his own worth, and therefore he feels compelled to assume superiority and be aggressive. Such a person is desperately hungry for the recognition that will assure him that he "is somebody." And because of this hunger he is frequently tempted to accept flattery. All people have a deep, underlying need for a true sense of their own value. Through the love of God as revealed in Christ and passed on by those who witness of Him, such assurance of worth is possible. In most people there are untouched potentialities. Most of us feel that we have more in us than we ordinarily express. And we do. During P.W.A. days the government hired artists to teach art to unemployed persons who might express an interest in it. The outcome was remarkable in that it showed that talent for drawing and painting existed in persons who had never been suspected of having such ability. Even more so do people have spiritual potentiality. God sees in the human being not only what he is but also what he can become. Usually man is only conscious of the first. Man, though beset by sin, has in him the potential capacity to love, the most significant and important thing anyone in this world can do. As the love of Christ warms an individual's heart this potentiality becomes an actuality. Furthermore, as the individual seeks first of all to love, such other things as keenness of intellect and effectiveness in action are released in him and added to the love in which he glories. Truly other things are added to the one who puts the Kingdom first. And each person has the potentiality of putting the Kingdom first. Through Christ, our Redeemer, it can and does happen. In this Lenten season we look towards the cross. There Jesus Christ made piercingly clear the inestimable value of each human life.

THE MEETING of more than five hundred Protestant leaders at Columbus, Ohio, the beginning of this month resulted in a number of proposals that invite our attention. This meeting, which was the largest of its kind yet to be held in the United States, concerned twenty-five denominations with a membership of over twenty-seven million. The men which met at Columbus for the purpose of considering the responsibility of the churches in relation to immediate post-war problems reviewed present-day needs under five headings: World Order, Community Tensions, Returning Service Personnel, Evangelism, and Foreign Relief. The conference drafted proposals for action in each of the five areas just mentioned. Under the first heading in regard to "The Spiritual Crisis of Mankind" these Protestant leaders declared: ". . . Until there is moral transformation in the hearts of men and nations, the threat remains that the world again will choose the road which leads to war . . . . Brotherhood is now the spiritual imperative of survival." " . . . To carry out this program there must be: (1) a development in the spiritual life of the individual; (2) his integration into the world wide body of Christians; (3) the projection of Christian principles into the Treaties of Peace; and (4) their expression in the life of the United Nations. These are the Four Fronts for Peace. . . " This was an outstanding Protestant gathering. More will be heard of the proposals mentioned as the months go by.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917 Authorized Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS

How the Sunday School Came To Be

by Mrs. Lubin Jantzen

Down in a hollow near the Mississippi River, Stephen Paxson, an American Sunday School Union missionary, came to a queer little log cabin. It was built entirely of logs, with the bark still sticking to them. Standing around the doorway were four light-haired, barefooted boys. Mr. Paxson never passed a boy without speaking to him, and here was a chance to meet four of them, and perhaps their parents too. So he asked them about their mother and father.

"Mother is dead. Father is up there on that hill, chopping wood," said one of the boys, looking curiously at the man. Mr. Paxson thanked him, and drove his faithful horse, "Robert Raikes," to the foot of the hill. Hitching him, he climbed up, listening for the sound of the axe which guided him to the spot where the farmer was chopping wood. Mr. Paxson told the man who he was and began to ask him a few questions. Before he answered the questions, the man put up his axe and said, "Stranger, it's about twelve o'clock, my dinner-time. Let's go down to the cabin."

This was just what the missionary wanted. Who wouldn't want a chance to talk to a family of fine boys like those grouped about that little cabin door? Then, too, Mr. Paxson had traveled quite a distance and was ready for a meal. I wish you and I could have been there about that time, for none of us, I think, ever had a meal served as was that one—and yet perhaps it tasted just as good as many of our dinners have tasted to us, and maybe a little better! As they entered the house, the only piece of furniture that Mr. Paxson could see was a three-legged stool, and he was cordially invited to sit down upon it! But where was the dinner table, and what were they going to eat, those six hungry people? Well, the farmer went over to the fireplace, and with a stick lifted the lid from the skillet which held two loaves of corn bread that he had put to bake before going out to work that morning; he carried the skillet to a log which had the top side flattened, and laid the bread out on this log. Then he took a large butcher's knife from his belt—the knife he carried for skinning deer when hunting—and cut slices of bacon from a flitch of bacon hanging in a corner of the room. This he fried over the coals in his corn bread skillet, and then carried, it, steaming hot over to the log and announced that dinner was ready! The farmer sat on one end of the log, the missionary on the other, and the boys stood on either side, eating their dinner. Pocket-knives served for silverware. Did you ever eat dinner like that?

Mr. Paxson made a hearty meal with his new friends, and they had a jolly time together. When they had finished, he invited the man and his boys to the schoolhouse, a half mile away, to a meeting that night. The man wiped his mouth on his sleeve, and said, "Stranger, I will come; for a man that ain't ashamed to eat fat meat and cornbread on a log has got something good to tell, and I am coming to hear what it is, though I never had any education."

And come he did, with his four boys beside him! That night a Sunday School was organized and a library started. The man and his boys entered a class, and it wasn't long before the man became superintendent of that school. Ten years later Mr. Paxson was attending a big Sunday School convention, when who should come walking up to him but one of those boys—now grown to young manhood—a delegate from a large country church! Clasping Mr. Paxson by the hand, he said, "I shall always thank my Heavenly Father that you led my earthly father into the Sunday School." Then he told the missionary that a large church had grown out of that little Sunday School,

---

THEY HATED HIM

By Erland Waltner

> "And the chief priests and scribes sought how they might put him to death." Luke 22:2a

Among the characters who were involved in the suffering and death of Jesus, we find a variety of attitudes toward the Christ of the Cross. The attitude we wish to observe is that of the chief priests and the scribes. Their attitude toward Christ was OPEN HATRED.

To the Christian it seems almost incredible that they should have hated Christ enough to want to kill Him. What began as petty resentment grew into a white heat of hatred which would not be satisfied until it had spilled the blood of the Saviour. They hated the One Who was "altogether lovable." They were anxious to kill the One for Whom many of us would be willing to die.

Why did they hate Christ so? We suggest two reasons:

They hated Christ because of HIS PURITY. The sinlessness of His life was an exposure of their own iniquity. Before His coming they lived comfortably in their sins, but when He appeared He revealed their unrighteousness and hypocrisy. The thief hates the light which exposes his doings. The chief priests and the scribes hated the "Light of the World" because their deeds were evil.

They also hated Christ because of HIS POWER. The divine power with which Christ worked mocked their weakness. The popularity of Jesus among the common people threatened their positions of religious leadership. They saw a competitor in Christ and hated Him because He was so strong. Chappell comments, "It has been wisely said that we do not hate weaklings. We may ignore them or despise them, but we do not hate weaklings. We hate only strong men." and that he had come to the convention as a delegate from that church.

The above thrilling story of only one of the 1,314 Sunday Schools which Stephen Paxson, organized in the early nineteenth century, as he traveled from the Allegheny to the Rocky Mountains. He braved perils and suffered untold hardships as he traveled from place to place upon "Robert Raikes," his faithful horse. He made it his business to visit and establish a Sunday School in every neglected neighborhood.

Stephen Paxson, however, is not known as the founder of the Sunday Schol movement. He is only one of the many who early caught the vision of the work the Sunday School could do to bring lost souls to Jesus Christ.

There is another thrilling story to tell of the founder, or more commonly called "Father" of the Sunday School, the man Robert Raikes—the one for whom Mr. Paxson named his horse.

If we could have lived at Gloucester, England, in the year 1780, we might have made the acquaintance of a queer little man, who always carried a cane, and was a benevolent publisher with a large place in his heart for children. Mr. Raikes became aware of the poor children of the slums and heard the complaints from the bedlam created by these rough and rowdy children. Raikes rented a room, gathered these "miserable little wretches" together for secular instruction as well as to impart a knowledge of God's Word to them. Robert Raikes plan for educating the little "Savages" was, however, considered by the church as a wild and fruitless enterprise. Nevertheles, he persisted in his plan, rewarding the faithful few with pennies and imposing no other requirement than that they have clean hands and face and combed hair. Out of his own pocket he hired the four teachers who received twenty-five cents a Sunday. They provided instruction in reading, writing, good morals, and religion, from ten to twelve in the morning and from two to five in the afternoon. It was necesary for Robert Raikes personally to quell many a riot in his school and to chastise the rebellion with his cane. Order improved and numbers increased until finally the church which first despised Raikes' work now encouraged him. John Wesley recognized the potentiality of the new Sunday School agency and incorporated it into the policy of his great undertaking. John Wesley was one of the first to introduce volunteer workers. Freed from the expense of paid teachers the Sunday School movement spread rapidly. While the Sunday School originated in Great Britain it has achieved its greatest growth and development in America. In 1785, two years after the thirteen colonies had been declared free, the first Sunday School was started on this side of the Atlantic.

William Elliott, in his own home, arranged to instruct the white boys and girls in the Bible every Lord's day afternoon. The negro slaves were similarly taught at another hour. The Sunday School movement grew until in 1823 the American Sunday School Union was organized, making it, its aim to "establish a Sunday School where there is a population."

In 1832 the first national Sunday School convention assembled in Philadelphia. At the fifth national convention held in Indianapolis in 1872, the International Uniform Lessons were adopted.

It was in the years of 1890 and the early years of 1900 that the Mennonite churches added to their formal church service the informal Sunday School. Today there are more teachers and scholars in the Sunday Schools of America than in all the rest of the Protestant world.

Oklahoma Church Workers' Conference to be held at the Deer Creek Mennonite Church

April 5 and 6, 1946

Conference Theme—"THE PEACE OF GOD" Phil. 4:7

* * *

April 5, 1946

Morning Program .... 10:00 a.m.
Devotion .... Rev. John Lichti, Deer Creek
Bible Study, Philippian chap. 1

Seminars:
a. For Ministers—"The Peace of God in personal Relationship" Rev. H. U. Schmidt, Meno.
b. For Deacons—"The Deacon in Visitation Work Jos Buller, Goltry.
c. For S. S. Superintendents — "The Superintendent and the Sunday School Organization" Ernest Voth, Orienta.

Afternoon Program .... 2:00 p. m.
Devotion .... Henry Wedel, Gotebo.
Bible Study Philippians chap. 2 Rev. Albert J. Unruh, Ringwood

Seminars:
a. For Ministers — "The Peace of God in Church Relatinship" Rev. Rudolph Schmidt, Fort Cobb
b. For Deacons — "The Deacon and Church Discipline" Bernhard Thiessen, Hydro
c. For S. S. Supt. — "The Superintendent, Teacher, and Lesson" (How can these vitalize the lesson?) Alvin Ratzlaff, Meno

Evening Service ...... Open to the Public ...... 7:30 p. m.
Devotion .... Rev. Henry Funk, El Reno
Special Speaker to be obtained by the host church.

April 6, 1946

Morning Program .... 10:00 a. m.
Devotion .... Peter M. Frantz, Turpin
Bible Study, Philippians Chap. 3 Rev. Albert G. Schmidt, Medford

Seminars:
a. For Ministers — "The Peace of God in International Relationship" Rev. Henry Hege, Corn
b. For Deacons — The Deacon's Influence in the Work of the Church" Elmer J. Lichti, Deer Creek
c. For Superintendent — "The Sunday School as an Integral Part of the Church" Waldo Foth, Cordell

Afternoon Program .... 2.00 p. m.
Devotions .... A. Schmidt, Chouteau
Bible Study, Philippians Chap. 4, Rev. Homer Sperling, Seminars: All Groups combined
Round Table Discussion on Unsettled or Unsolved Problems risen out of the various Seminars during the Conference"
Rev. H. P. Fast, Orienta. Chairman

Music of the Conference in charge of Rev. J. W. Bergen, Goltry

The Host Church hereby extends a cordial invitation to all the church leaders and officers of the Oklahoma Mennonite churches. Ben Rahn, Sec. Church Workers Committee

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

Need for Fellowship. Years of complete isolation can create a great need for fellowship. This is evidenced by numerous letters from Mennonite friends in Holland and finds expression in many ways. The librarian of the Peace Palace in The Hague, Dr. Jacob ter Meulen, writes: "We often speak about the planned Mennonite World Conference in America, but I should prefer it to be held not earlier than 1947 or 1948. . . ."

Many Dutch Mennonites Would Like to Read "The Mennonite." Repeated requests come from Dutch Mennonites for The Mennonite. Typical of many is the minister who writes: "I have not yet received The Mennonite, but would like very much to receive it." Why do they not receive The Mennonite? Simply because the Dutch government does not yet permit the sending of Dutch currency abroad. Shouldn't we find a way to supply this spiritual need of our brethren abroad?

Dutch Mennonite Summer Camps Revived. The daughter of the manager of "Elspeet," a Mennonite camp, writes: "First the Germans moved into our camp and later the English until there was nothing left. They used the dining hall for a stable, etc. But the management is full of plans. They want to open for the coming summer. My mother(age 72)traveled by train and car to get things together. Goods that one simply cannot get at all she managed to get."

"More Than Half of my Friends Have Perished," relates the same writer. "The hardest time came when the men returned or were expected to return from the concentration camps and prisons. . . Longingly we expected them as they had left and they returned like wrecks for the rest of their lives. . . . A friend of mine had 23 injections because he resisted the Germans. We do not know what kind of injections they were but the result is terrible. Heart, lungs, and mental capacity are ruined. The latter seems to be improving. We live by hope. If I may ask you for something it would be for clothing. He has nothing and is wearing those of his father and brother." (Time and means do not permit the writer of this column to fulfill all requests that come in along these lines. If any reader is interested in helping this person or others, we will be glad to furnish the addresses. Inspite of many improvments in Holland there is still a great need in textiles, shoes, etc.)

JOTTINGS

—The laymen's organization of the Eastern District Conference, known as the Brotherhood, is again sponsoring a father and son fellowship meeting, to be held at the East Swamp Meeting House, near Quakertown, Pa. The date this year is March 30, at 7:30 P.M. Phil Saint, widely known artist and illustrator will bring the message. He sketches colored pictures and with musical accompaniment developes his subject. Gospel pictures are also shown through Kodachrome slides. An excellent program has been arranged for the men and their boys, followed by refreshments. All those attending are urged to bring "Tools for Relief" along. These will then be sent to the M.C.C. Office at Akron. On April 14th, the Brotherhood will conduct the services at the Old Folks Home, at 2:30 P.M. Rev. Don E. Smucker will be the speaker at the Saturday evening service "Brotherhood Night" at the Eastern District Conference, on May 4th. Over $4,300 has been contributed to the Flour Fund through this organization since October.

—Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio: The Rev. Ernest Bohn, teacher of Philosophy at Bluffton College and interim pastor of Grace Church since January 1st, has accepted the call to the pastorate here. Rev. Bohn received his training at Princeton Theological Seminary and is a graduate of Garrett Biblical Seminary. He has served pastorates in several Mennonite churches. Pre-Easter meetings will be held March 31st to April 5th with Rev. Ellis Graber of Souderton, Pa., as the speaker.—Mrs. S. W. Steiner, Corr.

—Mennoville Church, El-Reno, Oklahoma: Rev. Gerhard Friesen was with us on March 6th and 7th. After the prayer meeting, on the evening of the sixth, he gave us an interesing talk on his recent trip to Poland. The next evening he brought us a good message and told us that he is visiting in the interest of Bethel College. On March 10th Rev. Abraham Neufelt and family were with us, and Rev. Neufelt led a Bible study.—Henry Funck, Pastor

—Menno Church, Lind, Washington: The meetings by Rev. J. M. Franz, held from March 10th to 15th, were well attended. The church collected twenty-nine blankets and eight comforters for relief. Three carloads of flour have been shipped from Ritzville to the coast to be shipped to Europe. Special bags were printed with the M.C.C. symbol and "In the Name of Christ," as well as the name and address of the Menno Church. Our two C.P.S. men from Belton, Clinton and Leo Dyck, are spending a fifteen-day furlough with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dyck.—Mrs. Henry J. Franz, Corr.

—First Church, Hutchinson, Kansas: On Sunday evening, March 3rd, the Medaryville C.P.S. quartet gave a sacred program. A good-sized audience heard them. On March 9th Sister Sawatzky had a narrow escape from a furnace explosion that occured at the parsonage. On March 24th Ernest Bachman of Newton is to tell of his trip to Europe with a relief ship. Comforters and blankets have been sent for relief.—Mrs. J. S. Friesen, Corr.

—Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio: Total cash contributions for relief by the four Mennonite churches of this area amounted to $1,670. Of this amount one thousand dollars was spent for milk and $462 for seed and tools. One hundred twenty-six cases of processed food were also sent and numerous garden tools and kitchen utensils.—Mrs. S. W. Steiner, Corr.

Report of Money Received during the Fourth Quarter, 1946

	For. Mis.	Home Miss.	Relief	Peace	Gen'l. Conf.	Education	Publication	Total
Alberta Community Church, Portland, Oregon	46.89	46.89	23.01	25.00				141.79
Alexanderwohl Church, Goessel Kansas	3421.77	204.17	2544.20	1450.01			85.00	7705.15
Apostolic Church, Trenton, Ohio
Arlington Church, Arlington, Kansas	34.41	34.41	741.35					810.17
Bell Church, Fredonia, Kansas	4.70							4.70
Bergthal Church, Corn, Oklahoma	140.21	83.03	97.54	112.46	8.00	5.00	12.00	458.24
Bergtal Church, Pawnee Rock, Kansas	443.35	138.41	217.42	367.57				1166.75
Bethany Church, Freeman, South Dakota	254.50	226.50	115.24	119.89				716.13
Bethany Church, Kingman, Kansas	303.32		1275.00	309.22				1887.54
Bethany Church, Quakertown, Pennsylvania	152.38	91.49	38.10		15.24	39.47	28.97	365.65
Bethel Church, Dolton, South Dakota	48.18			127.00				175.18
Bethel Church (Non-Conf.), Enid, Oklahoma	32.33		15.00	40.00				87.33
Bethel Church, Fortuna, Missouri	53.22	62.27	116.61	50.14		7.65		289.89
Bethel Church, Hydro, Oklahoma	182.69			26.78				209.47
Bethel Church (Non-Conf.), Inman, Kansas	641.87	232.05	304.95	450.00				1628.87
Bethel Church, Langdon, North Dakota			29.30	17.32				46.62
Bethel Church, Lustre, Montana	181.51	55.86	110.86	82.95				431.18
Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota	881.85	296.09	5733.97	959.75	68.30			7954.96
Bethel Church, Per Kasie, Pennsylvania
Bethel Church, Perryton, Texas	62.06							62.06
Bethel Church, Winton, California	34.00	27.20	189.40					250.60
Bethel Church, Wolf Point, Montana	544.44		50.00	64.13				658.57
Bethel College Church, North Newton, Kansas	152.13	139.05	1444.54	818.06	50.31	94.54		2698.63
Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebraska	3435.38	1955.91	3426.88	3655.82	25.00			12498.99
Bethesda Church, Marion, South Dakota	1700.00	446.25	1154.66	351.00				3651.91
Bethlehem Church, Bloomfield, Montana	633.81	399.87		25.00				1058.68
Brudertal Church, Hillsboro, Kansas	447.19		440.59	278.79	48.37		22.50	1237.44
Buhler Church, Buhler, Kansas	449.19	116.50	304.21	485.51	57.00	49.28		1511.69
Burrton Church, Burrton, Kansas	125.06	11.88	123.77	98.54				359.25
Butterfield Church, Butterfield, Minnesota	52.30	15.30						67.60
Calvary Church. Barlow, Oregon	111.94	50.64		49.55				212.13
Calvary Church, Mechanics Grove, Pennsylvania	6.50	7.50						14.00
Deep Run Church, Deep Run, Pennsylvania	200.73	161.59						362.32
Deer Creek Church, Deer Creek, Oklahoma	132.55	38.96	1894.93	74.87			47.76	2189.07
East Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pennsylvania	190.00	25.00					10.00	225.00
Ebenezer Church, Bluffton, Ohio	675.00	175.00	107.00	41.00				998.00
Ebenezer Church, Gotebo. Oklahoma			123.00					123.00
Ebenfield Church, Montezuma, Kansas	13.34							13.34
Eden Church, Inola, Oklahoma	29.51		137.28					166.79
Eden Church, Moundridge, Kansas	1269.14		1648.00	2577.46				5494.60
Eden Church, Schwenksville, Pennsylvania	85.00		3462.00					3547.00
Eicher Emmanuel Church, Noble. Kansas	119.16	26.48	38.83	173.51		5.29		363.27
Einsiedel Church, Hanston, Kansas	58.70		277.00	25.67		20.76		383.63
Emmanuel Church, Denver, Pennsylvania
Emmanuel Church, Doland, South Dakota	106.63		93.27	18.50				218.40
Emmanuel Church, Galva, Kansas	139.57	15.10	24.90	70.07				249.64
Emmanuel Church, Pratum, Oregon			366.60	50.00				416.60
Emmaus Church, Whitewater, Kansas	1314.00		552.87	1430.08				3296.95
Fairfield—Bethel Church, Huron, So. Dak.			83.00					83.00
First Church, Aberdeen, Idaho	961.97	230.81	4438.70	157.73			100.74	5889.95
First Church, Allentown, Pennsylvania	87.30	51.15				10.00		148.45
First Church, Beatrice, Nebraska	1225.20	125.00	450.00	250.00				2050.20
First Church, Berne, Indiana	4575.13	1385.20	60.00	945.79			377.18	7343.30
First Church, Bluffton, Ohio	403.00	234.00	595.59	665.06				1897.65
First Church, Burns, Kansas				36.31	6.77			43.08
First Church, Butterfield, Minnesota	149.81	35.59	144.40	25.00				354.80
First Church, Chicago, Illinois		57.19						57.19
First Church, Colfax, Washington	808.11	366.00	924.00	244.00	167.50	67.00	88.50	2665.11
First Church, Geary, Oklahoma	70.35		20.00					90.35
First Church, Halstead, Kansas	272.54	190.88	157.79	182.35	18.30			821.86
First Church, Hillsboro, Kansas	295.09	85.60	30.00	254.14				664.83
First Church, Hutchinson, Kansas				418.25		8.50		426.75
First Church, Lima, Ohio	62.90		17.67					80.57
First Church, Madrid, Nebraska	12.51	19.86						32.37

First Church, McPherson, Kansas	54.48		180.00					234.48
First Church, Monroe, Washington	22.94	22.93	84.67	23.64				154.18
First Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota	468.30	181.92	3912.59	314.26	80.00	50.00	50.00	5057.07
First Church, Nappanee, Indiana	516.84	86.08		186.75				789.67
First Church, Newport, Washington	150.22	22.77	204.78					377.77
First Church, Newton, Kansas	1625.85	159.04	581.70	817.10		35.10	35.10	3253.89
First Church, Paso Robles, California	109.08	131.31	209.09	61.80		15.00		526.28
First Church, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania	85.78	42.89			8.58	4.29	4.29	145.83
First Church, Pretty Prairie, Kansas	3471.14	650.84	5687.00	1090.00		55.08		10954.06
First Church, Ransom, Kansas	27.33			112.40				139.73
First Church, Reedley, California	556.26	345.85	1202.63	564.00		47.92	47.92	2764.58
First Church, Shafter, California	83.29		415.58	7.70				506.57
First Church, Sugar Creek, Ohio				100.00		15.85		115.85
First Church, Summerfield, Illinois	40.00	25.00	20.00	10.00		104.00		199.00
First Church, Upland, California	184.33	94.91	725.23	137.15	48.95		17.33	1207.90
First Church, Wadsworth, Ohio	159.33		15.00					174.33
First Church Christian, Moundridge, Kansas	432.00	79.50	325.62	489.75	130.00	5.00		1461.87
First Church of Garden Twn., Halstead, Kansas	181.00	64.00	100.00	370.00				715.00
Flatland, Quakertown, Pennsylvania	32.70	21.80						54.50
Friedensberg, Avon, South Dakota	184.85		812.60	24.19				1021.64
Friedensfeld, Turpin, Oklahoma				98.19				98.19
Friedenstal Church, Tampa, Kansas	149.73			139.02				288.75
Germantown Church, Germantown, Pennsylvania
Glendale Church, Lynden, Washington	164.06	815.39	30.00					1009.45
Gnadenberg Church, Whitewater, Kansas	89.65		42.78	267.32				399.75
Goessel Church, Goessel, Kansas	1073.92	96.15	212.90	523.95	67.15	30.00		2004.07
Gospel Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota	203.57	52.58		231.00				487.15
Grace Church, Albany, Oregon	327.77	35.04	171.56					534.37
Grace Church, Dallas, Oregon	72.83	80.16						152.99
Grace Church, Enid, Oklahoma	44.00		4.00	4.00				56.00
Grace Church, Lansdale, Pennsylvania	132.86	338.51						471.37
Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio	822.40	383.61	229.96	170.49		40.00	40.00	1686.46
Greenfield Church, Carnegie, Oklahoma	63.50		48.00	30.00				141.50
Hebron Church, Buhler, Kansas	523.12	199.91	1087.73	403.74	15.00	44.20	44.20	2317.90
Hereford Church, Bally, Pennsylvania
Herold Church, Bessie, Oklahoma	134.74	30.87	119.06	183.59				468.26
Hoffnungsau Church, Cuauthemoc, Chic. (Mexico)
Hoffnungsau Church, Inman, Kansas	630.84	257.84	643.15	381.74				1913.57
Hopefield Church, Moundridge, Kansas	85.43		44.75	82.77				217.45
Hutterdorf Church, Freeman, South Dakota	800.00	300.00						1100.00
Huttertal Church, Freeman, South Dakota	1527.21	1527.21		480.00				3534.42
Huttertal Church, Hitchcock, South Dakota				86.63				86.63
Immanuel Church, Delft, Minnesota	432.75		216.21	133.28				782.24
Immanuel Church, Los Angeles, California	199.66	102.09	410.36	380.00				1092.11
Inman Church, Inman, Kansas	274.25	26.76	363.03	543.70	21.86			1229.60
Johannestal Church, Hillsboro, Kansas	229.89	70.14	245.67	642.43	8.15	4.64	1.10	1202.02
Kidron Church, Taloga, Oklahoma	10.00							10.00
Lehigh Church, Lehigh, Kansas	140.06	33.23	89.80	62.58	7.63	7.41	10.27	350.98
Lorraine Avenue Church, Wichita, Kansas	40.96	25.00	95.00	128.70	9.95	50.00	25.00	374.61
Meadow Church, Colby, Kansas	134.64		413.86	150.58				699.08
Medford Church, Medford, Oklahoma			161.22	243.07				404.29
Menno Church, Lind, Washington	1254.90	418.86	3192.71	727.50	118.00	60.00	60.00	5831.97
Mennonite Bible Mission, Chicago, Illinois
Menn. Country Church, Monroe, Washington	43.16		70.00		5.00			118.16
Mennoville Church (Non-Conf.), El Reno, Oklahoma	16.70							16.70
Napier Church, Bedford, Pennsylvania
Neu Friedensberg Church, Vona, Colorado
Neu Huttertal Church, Bridgewater, South Dakota				240.00				240.00
New Home Church, Westbrook, Minnestoa				10.00				10.00
New Hopedale Church, Meno, Oklahoma	328.05	155.49	765.75	526.24				1775.53
Pine Grove Church, Bowmansville, Pennsylvania	67.00							67.00
Pleasant Valley Church, Kismet, Kansas	97.05	10.75	51.50	49.56				208.86
Pulaski Church, Pulaski, Iowa	95.72	70.91	262.00	113.61				542.24
Richfield Church, Richfield, Pennsylvania
Roaring Springs Church, Roaring Springs, Pennsyvania
St. John Church, Pandora, Ohio	738.72	244.94	88.76					1069.42
Salem Church, Dalton, Ohio	192.58	96.29	42.08	183.90				514.85
Salem Church, Freeman, South Dakota	480.00	480.00	1455.00	805.00				3220.00
Salem Church, Munich, North Dakota	190.24	25.00	9838.97	167.29				1321.50
Salem Church, Wisner, Nebraska	265.04	149.55	63.29	51.95				529.83

Salem-Zion, Freeman, South Dakota	705.19	345.81	600.59	685.82				2337.41
Saron Church, Orienta, Oklahoma	267.34	133.04	379.70	385.50				1165.58
Saucon Church, Saucon, Pennsylvania
Second Church, Beatrice, Nebraska	287.56	186.10	695.17	189.25				1360.08
Second Church, Paso Robles, California	133.98	43.25	348.07	52.36				577.66
Second Church, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania	100.00	100.00						200.00
Sichar Church, Cordell, Oklahoma	46.76	31.97	20.00	72.41	11.35			182.49
Smith Corner Church, East Freedom, Pennsylvania		39.05						39.05
Springfield Church, Coopersburg, Pennsylvania	42.41							42.41
Swiss Church, Alsen, North Dakota			25.00					25.00
Swiss Church, Whitewater, Kansas	477.35		150.00					627.35
Tabor Church, Newton, Kansas	961.42		383.77	949.85	30.00	50.00		2385.04
Upper Milford Church, Zionsville, Pennsylvania	118.83	75.00	25.00					218.83
Walton Church, Walton, Kansas	87.51		31.73	40.85				160.09
Wayland Church, Wayland, Iowa	154.00	58.50	244.43	56.00	7.50			520.43
West New Hopedale Church, Ringwood, Oklahoma	89.45		748.65	141.68				979.78
West Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pennsylvania
West Zion Church, Moundridge, Kansas	285.45		1143.45	177.35				1606.25
Woodland Church, Warroad, Minnesota	24.35		574.15	25.00				623.50
Zion Church, Arena, North Dakota	20.00			30.50				50.50
Zion Church, Bridgewater, South Dakota	26.69							26.69
Zion Church, Donnellson, Iowa			60.69	41.67				102.36
Zion Church, Elbing, Kansas	467.00		50.18	180.00			22.95	720.13
Zion Church, Kingman, Kansas	93.47	10.05						103.52
Zion Church, Souderton, Pennsylvania	179.00							179.00
Zoar Church, Goltry, Oklahoma				92.85				92.85
	52,911.90	16842.57	65659.60	33275.94	1033.91	925.98	1130.81	171817.71

GENERAL CONFERENCE CENTRAL TREASURY, FOURTH QUARTER, 1945, REPORT

Foreign Missions

No. 723—$25; 730—6; 739—100; 742—50; 762—40; 763—100; 782—18.83; 791—5; 796—30; 811—15; 816—8.75;* 817—10; 821—26.46; 828—10; 830—5; 836—25; 845—50; 850—75; 866—25; 870—80; 871—867.50; 882—30; 897—60; 716—127.05; 919—500; 952—25; 953—10; 962—454.20; 963—10; 977—44.11; 978—30; 980—5; 987—19.60; 990—5; 1023—30; 1028—6; 1033—20; 1038—5; 1039—100; 1043—50; 1045—50; 1046—100; 1051—30; 1063—2991.58; 1064—100; 1072—16; 1073—54; 1075—60; 1077—20; 1079—200; 1083—50; 1084—10; 1088—2.38; 1134—25; 1147—20; 1151—1; 1157—50; 1158—25; 1199—40; 1202—5; 1211—100; 1213—10; 1227—5; 1233—2007.83; 1236—35; 1240—80; 1248—2; 1261—30; 1267—255; 1282—35.77; 1290—330; 1325—9; 1330—100;* 1347—100; 1361—20; 1371—5; 1383—22.50; 1386—200; 1394—10.50; 1404—2.25; 1406—1630.28; 1408—4.50; 1414—3; 1422—100; 1429—50; 1437—25; 1457—50; 1480—15.13; 1482—50; 1497—50; 1498—3; 1510—45; 1533—31.73; 1539—100; 1544—28; 1554—50; 1564—40; 1576—240; 1579—15; 1582—342.34. Total—$13,196.29.

Home Missions

No. 717—65; 871—130; 962—171.27; 1028—3; 1233—347.03; 1298—36; 1311—125; 1413—5; 1433—7.50; 1457—50; 1482—50; 1498—2; 1526—3040.92;* 1544—10; 1554—50; 1568—187.50. Total—4280.22.

General Conference

No. 760— 28; 776—20; 781—12.75; 962—4; 1008—12.75; 1052—5; 1254—1.25; 1255—1.25; 1275—28; 1391—12.75. Total—125.75.

*Minister's Aid

Income from other sources

Emergency Relief

No. 729—$200; 733—50; 742—50; 743—10; 758—25; 767—25; 772—5; 773—200; 778—15; 779—20; 791—15; 797—20; 817—25; 832—100; 845—100; 853—30; 855—5; 868—25; 871—662.50; 873—20; 889—500; 894—25; 895—214.50 906—5; 916—78.72; 917—200; 922—100; 929—200; 934—525; 952—75; 959—10; 962—383.20; 964—2444.45; 986—2; 997—127.91; 1022—100; 1035—16; 1042—10; 1045—200; 1047—1000; 1052—45; 1058—75; 1061—20; 1067—253; 1095—25; 1102—25; 1104—50; 1129—15; 1130—5; 1132—150; 1133—25; 1143—32.55; 1144—52.25; 1148—75; 1155—176; 1165—2; 1186—9; 1191—50; 1195—5; 1217—169.57; 1227—15; 1231—10; 1232—200; 1244—120; 1233—1213.91; 1266—2.50; 1268—50; 1272—50; 1282—292.46; 1283—26; 1292—20; 1320—100; 1326—155; 1331—500; 1335—25; 1336—12.60; 1340—50; 1354—20; 1358—3; 1368—20; 1373—3; 1276—35; 1387—100; 1391—2.75; 1414—3; 1429—50; 1432—25; 1446—30; 1448—2; 1453—100; 1458—20; 1463—242; 1482—200; 1483—15; 1486—2; 1491—30; 1492—15.75; 1493—34.99; 1494—100; 1496—100; 1498—10; 1499—10; 1502—100; 1503—200; 1509—25; 1530—50; 1537—100; 1544—12; 1568—12.50. Total $13,694.11.

C. P. S.

No. 729—200; 871—485; 929—100; 930—100; 940—100; 962—108.74; 964—598.10; 1052—10; 1091—10; 1141—100; 1148—25; 1196—10; 1222—20; 1231—10; 1233—150; 1292—10; 1338—10; 1390—10; 1482—100; 1544—15. Total—$1271.84.

Board of Education

No. 729—$200; 1044—45.98; 1435—.75; 1581—939.27.* Total—$1186.00.

Board of Publication

No. 737—$100;* 864—10; 993—100;* 1052—5; 1163—100;* Total—$315.00.

Board of Mutual Aid

No. 1471—150; 1472—250. .Total—$400.00.

..Y. P. U. No. 1156—$50.00.

REPORT OF TREASURER OF PACIFIC DISTRICT CONFERENCE

June 1, 1945, to January 1, 1946

Menn. group, Caldwell, Idaho, $22.01; Menn. group, Newport, Wash., 40.01; First Church, Reedley, Calif., 35.00; First Church, Upland, Calif., 260.74; First Church, Colfax, Wash., 200.00; Junior C. E., Colfax, 10.00; Menno Church, Lind, Wash., 375.20; Grace Church, Dallas, Ore., 202.47; Glendale Church, Lynden, Wash., 79.52; Menn. Church, Home Mission Board for Winton, Calif., 236.00; First Church,

(Continued on page 13)

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Vice President
Verney Unruh
Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

Jesus' Teachings on Prayer

by Pearl Sommers

Before we can understand Jesus teachings on prayer we must fully understand the meaning of the word prayer. "To pray is to talk with God, to lift ourselves up to him, to converse with him but more important, listening to him for an answer."[1] So often we stop when we have finished our prayer. This doesn't give God a chance in the conversation. In prayer the individual brings together God, life's ideal values, and himself.

Prayer is Personal and Spontaneous

Jesus taught very little directly about prayer. There were certain things he said about it, but he gave no set rules or directions for prayer. To him it was an intensely personal thing and should never be reduced to form. Jesus taught that prayer was not a traditional religious exercise to be engaged in at certain set hours but was a spontaneous impromptu practice. We learn more about prayer as Jesus practiced it as is recorded in the gospels, than from any instructions he gave about praying. He does say, however, that we are to pray in secret: "Go to the closet where you will be alone and then pour out the heart to God in quiet." Prayer should be unceasing, meaning that we always should be in a prayful attitude, recognizing God and praising him for his mercy to us. Prayer should not be used only in times of trouble or perplexing problems.

Prayer Must be Practiced to be Meaningful

Furthermore, it is with practice that we can cultivate the art of prayer. The power of prayer lies in its repeated use, for only through its use do we become skillful in our prayers. God does hear and answer our prayers, although we do not always recognize it as such. We must be obedient and do his will, whatever it be. Discipline is required if we are to know the will of God and to do his will. He is ever at the door, but the door must be opened from within. Low desire must be changed into high desire and must be transformed into what God wants us to do. God can do little with our minds and emotions so long as we are concentrated upon the satisfaction of base appetites and as long as our dominant desire is for public applause or dominating power. The quality of emotion is determined by purpose in life, whether we are self-centered or God-centered in our desires. Through dominant desire, eager obedience, expectant faith, fellowship, and surrender to Christ we may keep alert and responsive to God and permit him to have full access to all our faculties.

Jesus' Use of Prayer

Evidence is given from the gospels that Jesus believed in prayer, told men to pray and prayed himself. Early in his ministry Mark records in 1:35: "And in the morning, a great while before day, he rose and departed into a desert plance and there prayed," and somewhat later Luke tells us in 1:16: "Multitudes came together to hear and to be healed. But he withdrew himself into the desert and prayed." The night before choosing his apostles we read in Luke 12 "He went into the mountain to pray and continued all night in prayer to God." The "Transfiguration" occured when he was at prayer, (Luke 9:28)

One notices from these acts of prayer that a considerable number of them occur at times of decision and crises. Important turning points in his career were approached after long periods of silent meditation and prayer. Also one notes that prayer was a refreshing and invigorating experience. From confusion and fatigue of dealing with people he sought refuge in quiet prayer.

Prayer was not incident to him but a deep and constant need; it was the constant atmosphere of his life. "It was not only his regular habit but his resort in every emergency, however slight or serious."[2]

Suggestions on How to Pray

Some suggestions may be given on how to pray. First we need time for prayer. Life is so crowded that many of us say we haven't time, but one must learn to take time for the greater things in life. "If we would become skilled intercessors and know how to pray, we must take quiet time daily to get off alone."[3]

Pearl Sommers is a Junior at Bluffton College. Pearl is a member of the Salem Mennonite Church, Dalton, Ohio. She wrote this article as a part of her work in the Bible department of Bluffton.

Second, we need a place for prayer. You can pray anywhere, but one is not likely to. The Master said: "Enter into thine inner chamber and pray." The quiet place and time are needful to train the ears for keen hearing. Third, give the book of God its place in prayer. God speaks in his word. The most we know of God comes to us here. This book is God in print. Studying it intelligently and reverently will reveal God's great will. What he says will change what you say. Fourth, prayer must be in Jesus name. The relationship of prayer is through Jesus, and prayer must be offered in his name. We have no standing with God except through Jesus.

Jesus Teachings

Fifth, prayer must be in faith. And faith is not gotten in a hurry but develops and keeps growing stronger. In every heart that takes quiet time off with God and listens to his voice in his word--into that heart will come a simple strong faith. Faith has four simple characteristics. It is intelligent, it finds out what God's will is. Faith is never contrary to reason. It is obedient. It fits its life into God's will. Then it is expectant-look out for the results. It is persistent-it hangs on. Prayer should be insistent, continuous, and unceasing in its endeavor to attain an answer to one's needs. Sixth, prayer should be brief, to the point and the soul of simplicity and sincerity. The true prayer is a cry from the heart. Except for the Lord's prayer in John 17 Jesus' own prayers are all short. Prayer must be neither formal or elaborate. It is a deep sincere endeavor to know and to correlate oneself with the purpose of God.

For What Should We Pray

We must remember also that maybe our prayers will not be answered according to the way we would like them to be. Jesus himself was not always answered in the way he preferred. Luke says that he prayed before the Twelve were chosen, but Judas nevertheless turned out to be a traitor. This might lead us to the question of the proper objects of prayer. For what did Jesus pray and for what did he urge his disciples to pray? The whole spirit of thanksgiving pervades all of Jesus' thoughts. It is seen in his words of how God clothes the lilies, feeds the sparrows, and cares for men. Gratefulness or gladness is a necessary part of the true religious spirit and its most natural expression is in words of prayer.

There is the prayer for the necessities of life. "Give us this day our daily bread." God knows our material needs but men should pray with reference to them. To eliminate prayer for these things would be to eliminate the belief that God provides for man's daily needs.

To stand before God in sincere and honest manner is to be aware of one's failures and sins. The attitude of true prayer is one of humility. It asks for forgiveness.

Another factor of prayer is moral deliverance. "Lead us not into temptation but deliver us from evil." This is one of the most natural, most elemental and most unquestioned objects for which the religious man prays. Prayer as a source of strength means first of all moral strength to meet the difficult issues and severe trials of life.

We must pray for others. We may be sure that in Jesus' prayers the names of other people, his disciples, acquaintances he had met, his own family no doubt were often to be heard. Thus, he prays on the cross: "Father forgive them, for they know not what they do." (Luke 23:34)

Then there is the prayer for help and guidance in hours of perplexity and despair. There are many experiences in life in which men need help and guidance. Great souls have always found their choice of action by means of prayer.

The theme in all prayer should be for the coming of God's kingdom. Man is inseparable from his endeavor to realize the rule of God. His prayers for himself, for others, for light in hours of difficult decision, are parts of his endeavor to live the life of the kingdom, to extend its rule and to bring about its final consummation.

It is evident that prayer is essential for religion. It is a natural result of belief in God and varies in its intensity with the definiteness with which one believes in God. In an age of intellectual flux and moral change, when older standards are being modified and true values of life confused, one needs more than ever to strive through prayer to find eternal values which God is creating in the world.

1. Teachings of Jesus, by H. F. Rall, p. 87.
2. Quiet Talks on Prayer, by S. D. Gordon, p. 233.
3. Ibid., p. 151.

O WORLD, THOU CHOOSEST NOT

It is not wisdom to be only wise,
And on the inward vision close the eyes,
But it is wisdom to believe the heart.
Columbus found a world, and had no chart,
Save one that faith deciphered in the skies;
To trust the soul's invincible surmise
Was all his science and his only art.
Our knowledge is a torch of smoky pine
That lights the pathway but one step ahead
Across a void of mystery and dread.
Bid, then, the tender light of faith to shine
By which alone the mortal heart is led Unto the thinking of the thought divine.

—George Santayana

Meeting Human Needs in Mississippi

y Harold S. Martin

(As announced several weeks ago, the Gulfport, ssissippi C.P.S. unit will be the scene this summer a Voluntary Summer Service Unit. There will so be opportunity at Gulfport for men or women io wish to give a year's service to this needy ea, and there are immediate openings for nurses erested in operating room, laboratory technician, d general duty work. In this article, Harold S. rtin, Director of the Gulfport unit, tells about it activities and the opportunities for future ser- e in the Gulfport area.)

The CPS Camp at Gulfport completed a year of rvice on February 1, 1946. During the first year me time was required to recondition the camp ildings and prepare the project area but there is also opportunity to render some effective ristian service through a number of different rk projects. With the probable closing of CPS the near future it is appropriate to review what s been done and to see what factors might be vorable to the continuing of this work.

The Location of the Unit

Whether the supporting Mennonite churches are dy and willing to do this work can readily be irmed on the the basis of past history. When urch people are given sufficient facts to prove it there is an area of need they respond willingly d liberally with their time and money. Another ture favorable to continuing the work at Gulf- rt is that the local setting is good. The camp ildings are not elaborate but adequate to meet the eds of a group up to a total of fifty. The camp is uated among large pine trees with a good source water supply and an attractive lake for swimming d fishing. Furthermore, the camp is far enough m town to have a rural atmosphere and yet close ugh to have hourly bus service. A Mennonite rch is located ten miles from camp and these k have established a good reputation for high ndards of Christian living in the local community d are giving their full endorsement to a permanent vice program. Relations with county and state icials have been very good and they too are ious to have us continue our work. In a volun- y service project there would need to be very le change, for the camp location and pattern of anization are easily adjusted to the future plans work.

he most significant question which interested rch people would raise is that of the need for this type of Christian service in Harrison County, Mississippi. Following the four-lane highway along the Gulf Coast one would be favorably impressed with the attractive homes and apparent prosperity of this community. But a one hour trip to the "other side of the tracks" might change the picture a bit. And if one would take a week to follow the steps of a Public Health Worker to the homes and schools there would be conclusive evidence that this is a worthwhile field of service.

The Health Problem

The physical problems are somewhat similar to Northern communities except that in areas where no freezing temperatures occur there is a greater frequency of parasitic and fly-borne diseases. A laboratory was opened in the Country Health Center and staffed by CPS men for the purpose of testing the infestation of various diseases and doing research in new methods of suppression or elimination. At present a research is in progress which may have a decided effect on the elimination of hookworm as one of the major physical problems of the South. In the testing program it has been found that as many as seventy percent of the children in some schools are positive hookworm cases. One of the teachers urged the camp health education men to bring the testing program to her school as soon as possible because of the visible evidences of hookworm among her pupils. Gratitude has been expressed by many families for the home visits made by CPS men in which the story of hookworm was told. In a recent six months period a total of 704 rural homes were visited in which 449 homes had either insanitary or no toilet facilities. During the war there were four large military bases in the county and the population was almost double the pre-war level with a resultant increase in venereal diseases. Chrisians can readily recognize that this is not only a physical problem but a moral problem as well.

During 1945 the camp supplied 300 man days of labor to install sanitation facilities at Camp Wilkes, a local summer camp where more than 1500 children and young people participated in religious and recreational conferences last summer. A small amount of work has been done in schools but there is an unfinished task in supplying the minimum sanitation facilities for the children of the county. One of the particular projects of special interest to the CPS men has been the reconditioning of a nearby Negro school with the cooperation of the local citizens. There are a large number of both colored and white schools where there are virtually no recreational facilities and no one qualified to lead in wholesome periods of play. The common form of amusement is to get into a fight with the successive steps to delinquency and crime. A future service project will need to consider this an important area of need.

---

larold S. Martin has been director of the Mul- ry, Florida, and Gulfport, Mississippi, C.P.S. ts until his recent release. Harold's home is Elizabethtown, Pa., where his father operates lothing store. He has done much to make the kworm projects a success.

Special Religious Activities

The camp has found a number of openings for special religious activities. There are many isolated areas where an effective Christian message ought to be presented. Strong religious leaders are hard to find among the colored people and there is an open field of service in teaching weekday religious education classes in the public schools and in helping to develop a leadership among Negro people who are qualified to work with those of their own race. Under the restrictions of Selective Service it has not been possible to do more than lay the groundwork in local community contacts. These projects of goodwill ought to be followed with a more definite spiritual emphasis, which will be possible in the plans for voluntary service.

Youth Events

Retreat dates have been reported to be the following in the Districts: Middle and Central District at Camp Mack, June 17-21; Mountain Lake, Minnesota, August 18-22; Aberdeen, Idaho, sometime between July 15-30; Western District—Older Young People July 26-28, Young People, July 29-August 3; Canadian retreats will be in July; and Washington State sometime in June.

The natives on Bikini Atoll will have to move so that the atomic bomb experiment can be performed in the Atoll lagoon. Says the native King: "It is not easy to leave the land of our forefathers. But, if it is good for mankind, we go with no protest." We wonder how much good there is in this demonstration of power.

For every dollar the U. S. spent on the war, less than one cent has been spent for relief abroad—including UNNRA, military feeding of civilians, and loans to countries for food.

The California churches are sponsoring a mission project among the migrant workers of the state. This project is under the C. E. and Sunday School Convention of the churches. It is composed of young people.

The Los Angeles church is using an opportunity for local missionary activity. The area is relatively new in which the church is located, and the Federation of Churches has designated the church as being responsible for it. By personal visitation invitations are extended to the people to attend their church.

A Christian workers' institute has been held among the California churches with Elmer Ediger while he is in the state. Forty young people were present at the first institute held, March 2. Meetings are also being held at local churches discussing the conference young people's program and the local church young people's problems. A fur report of the California meetings will be forthc ing in a future issue.

A thousand dollar fund is being raised by California Young People and Sunday School Con ence to be used in repairing the dam at the ret grounds.

Eastern District Young People Hold Conference and Banqu

by Grace Binder

The Third Institute of the Eastern District ference Young People's Union was held March 1946, Saturday afternoon at the Bethany Chu Quakertown, Pa. Verney Unruh, Vice-Pres., of General Conference Young People's Union wa charge of the opening discussion. Program p ning was the main theme. The following area programs were discussed:

1. Bibles and Beliefs
2. Missions (Home and Foreign)
3. Local Church, Conference, Mennonite Bodi
4. Problems of Individual, Family and Commu

These subjects were covered in group discus after which summaries of each were given, sugg ing ways to improve our programs and help young people.

On the evening of the same date, the Fellow Banquet was held at Trainers Restaurant, Qu town, with 306 persons in attendance and poss more, had they been able to seat same.

Besides the food received the early part of evening, which was enjoyed by everyone, a g deal of spiritual food was received throughout evening. Toastmaster was Mr. John Fretz of Lansdale Church. Musical numbers were sented by a brass quartet, and several vocal s tions by the Horn Sisters. Comments were by Verney Unruh, Rev. Howard Nyce and Freeman Schwartz, and spirited singing was le Rev. Schultz.

Rev. Robert Fretcher of Allentown brought the very interesting and inspiring message of evening.

We had as our guests some of the worker the M.C.C. in Akron, some from as far as Califo and Canada. Also, it was a treat to have som our returned servicemen with us who have unable to meet with us for some time.

The contribution of soap for European Relie addition to the price of the banquet proved t an added attraction, the totals being 478 cake soap, and 60 boxes of soap flakes.

Grace Binder is correspondent for the Eas District Young People's Union. She is from L dale, Pa.

RELIEF

·ewell Services

'arewell services were held on March 9 for Dale
›el who was scheduled to leave Houston, Texas
March 12 for Shanghai, China. On March 12, a ilar service was held for seven workers leaving Italy. Andrew Bean, Marie Kroeker, Mary
·wen are sceduled to leave March 17 for Genoa, y.

ıadian Material Aid Notes

'he Canadian Government has granted permission collect one hundred twenty-five tons of used hing of all descriptions, besides approving a prom for new clothing. This means that thousands garments of all descriptions may be contributed h the exception of men's and boys' suits, and ıkets which may not be purchased in quantities.
ing the 1945 Canning Program, approximately 000 quarts of canned food were contributed, of ch 183,000 quarts have already been exported.

land Youth Wish to Correspond n exchange of correspondence between a young ınonite of Holland and C.P.S. men at the M.C.C. dquarters has resulted in receipt of the names of ·ty young Mennonites in Holland who wish to ·espond with Mennonites here. The corresponce indicates that Mennonite youth in Holland are er to learn more about the beliefs and practices American Mennonites. These names will be disuted to persons in Mennonite churches, colleges,

C.P.S. who would be interested in writing to land about American Mennonitism. The Holland ng people come from all walks of life and range ge from seventeen to thirty or more. The first r inquiring about American Mennonite customs, its, and beliefs was received several months ago
n Johan Hilverda, a leader in the Aalsmeer youth ·ement who was moved to write because of .C. relief activities in Holland. A reply was sent gesting an exchange of correspondence and publi-
ons. The list of ninety names was the result.

ef Briefs

March 10 cable advised that Walter Gering, n Widmer, and Irvin Horst arrived safely at nouth, England, enroute to Holland and Den-k.

illiam Enns, special commissioner to Northwest
ope for the Mennonite Relief Committee of Mani-
, left New York on March 9 for Europe aboard
S. S. John Erickson.

N. Byler, Director of War Sufferers' Relief, left on on March 6 on a commissioner visit to the Unit in Puerto Rico. He expects to stay for the Plata chapel dedication on Sunday, March 17.

C. P. S.

ps to Close

Reversing a decision announced earlier, Selective Service has now officially approved the closing of Camp No. 28, Medaryville, Indiana, by March 31, 1946. In addition, Camp No. 4 at Grottoes, Virginia, and Camp No. 5 at Colorado Springs, Colorado will close by April 15, 1946. Those two camps will be the sixth and seventh M.C.C. base camps to close since the beginning of demobilization.

Release Figures

For the entire period from the begining of the C.P.S. program up to February 28, 1946, releases from Mennonite C.P.S. for all reasons totaled 1,992, according to figures compiled by the C.P.S. Section. The number of men remaining in M.C.C.-C.P.S. on February 28, 1946, was 3,125. Following is the breakdown of releases:

Reason	Number
Physical Disability	459
Military Service	280
Occupational Reasons	105
Desertion	52
Dependency	46
Over 38, Released to C.P.S. Reserve	34
Over 28, (No longer applies)	23
Death	15
Miscellaneous	13
Systematic Demobilization since Oct. 1, 1945	965
TOTAL	1,992

March Releases Begin

In all but a few instances, all of those who became eligible for release in February have now been issued their final papers. Up to March 11 release authorizations received at Akron for those in the March group totaled sixty-one.

MUTUAL AID NOTES

German Prisoners of War in U.S.

The MCC occasionally receives from relatives of German prisoners of war in this country inquiries as to the possibilities of the POW's remaining in the U.S. An investigation has been made among proper authorities and the following information was received: Without exception prisoners of war will not be permitted to remain in the U. S., but will be repatriated to their homes, likely without regard to whether they are in American, British or Russian occupied territory. The War Department expects to close all prisoner of war camps by June 30 of this year. The Commanding Officer of the European theatre is responsible for the POW's after they leave this country. Thus far inquiries have been made about six different prisoners of war; it is hoped that MCC representatives will be able to contact each of them personally to bring to them any spiritual ministry or other assistance they may need.

(Continued from page 8)

Aberdeen, Idaho, 382.18; S. S., Aberdeen, 100.00; First Church, Monroe, Wash., 31.46; Adult C. E., Los Angeles, Calif., 36.56; First Church, Shafter, Calif., 10.96; Bethel Church, Winton, Califf., 10.00; Second Church, Paso Robles, Calif., 106.58; Grace Church, Albany, Ore., 129.00
—John C. Jantz, Treas., Odessa, Washington

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

Rev. Andrew Shelly of Kitchener Ontario, Canada, who is conducting a series of meetings at the North and South Churches spoke in chapel several times this week. On Saturday he conducted a community youth rally. The response of the students to his messages and personality indicate Rev. Shelly's ability as a leader among the young people of the church. The re-opening of the College dining hall has proved to be a popular step. Some fifty students are eating their noon meals there daily. While many of the students come and go on the bus or cars, nearly twenty eat their breakfasts in the dining hall and nearly thirty also take their evening meals there. Besides Mrs. Esther Ediger, who with the aid of Mrs. Julia Schwartz, efficiently manages the hall, there are about a half a dozen students who work part time.

BETHEL COLLEGE

The usual large audience, showing a very fine interest, is attending the annual inspirational Bible Week now in progress in Memorial Hall from March 17 to 22, afternoon and evening, with special chapel messages for the students. Rev. J. N. Smucker, from the Bluffton Mennonite Church and President of the General Conference, has been welcomed back to give a series of "Studies in Philippians" in the afternoon and an evening series on "The Master's Friends." Also well received is Dr. William M. Beahm, Professor of Systematic Theology and Missions at the Bethany Seminary in Chicago, replacing Dr. Bittinger, previously announced, who is ill. He speaks on phrases from "The Benediction" in the afternoon sessions and "Lessons from I Corinthians" in the evening. Special music is furnished by the A Capella Choir and choral groups from the surrounding churches.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

Justus G. Holsinger has been appointed as instructor in History and Political Science. He will assume his new duties in September. Mr. Holsinger is a native of Virginia and received his education in Eastern Mennonite School, Harrisonburg; Madison College, Harrisonburg; Bridgewater College, Bridgewater; and the University of Virginia. His wife, formerly Salome Fast, Mountain Lake, Minnesota, was a student in Bluffton. Mr. and Mrs. Holsinger are now in Puerto Rico, where Mr. Holsinger is a member of the CPS unit. A 16mm. sound motion picture projector has recently been delivered to the college. It will be used for educational purposes, making possible the use of a large selection of films available from the state department in Ohio. The Girls Gospel Team, accompanied by Rev. Shelly, left March 17th for Canada where they will hold services in eight Mennonite churches in Ontario.

MENNONITE BIBLICAL SEMINARY AND BIBLE SCHOOL

We were happy to be hosts to our Semir Board this week. The Board met here on Ma 13. Those present were: Rev. A. S. Rosenber Rev. A. E. Kreider, Dr. C. E. Krehbiel, Dr. Ed Kaufman, Rev. J. N. Smucker, Mr. E. W. Ba gartner, Rev. Harry Yoder, Rev. R. L. Hart Rev. W. S. Shelly, and Dr. L. L. Ramseyer. Martha Burkhalter, who will soon return to Ir was with us for a few days recently and addre our student fellowship in a special chapel mee on March 14. The Chicago Mennonite Fellow met again on the second Sunday of the mo March 10, at which Rev. Paul Bartel spoke. the third Sunday, March 17, the Mennonite Stu Fellowship held their meeting in the home Rev. John T. Neufell. Rev. Neufeld is pastor at Mennonite Bible Mission, and that same eve the students of the Seminary and Bible School sented a program there. On the week end of Ma 17th, Ernst Harder traveled to Goshen, Indi where he held services at Goshen College and the Eighth Street and Silver Street Menno churches.

FOR YOUR ENCOURAGEMENT

For the benefit of those who might need couragement in writing to congressmen and s tors in regards to one public issue or anothe those who are skeptical that such communicat get past the secretary's desk, the following exc which is self-explanatory has been taken from files of the Congressional Record for February 1946.—Milo Stucky, Principal, Buhler Rural School.

COMPULSORY MILITARY TRAINING— MEMORIAL

Mr. CAPPER. Mr. President, I have receive memorial from the stulents of Buhler Rural School, located at Buhler, Kans., expressing t opposition to compulsory military training peacetime. .I ask unanimous consent to pre the memorial, and that it be appropriately refe and printed in the Record without the signat attached.

There being no objection, the petition was ceived, referred to the Committee on Military fairs, and ordered to be printed in the Record, w out the signatures attached, as follows:

Buhler Rural High School
Buhler, Kansas, February 18, 1946

Dear Senator Capper: We, the undersigned, students of Buhler Rural High School, locate Buhler, Kansas. We feel that compulsory mili training during peacetime is against American dition and Christian ideals. We believe that should express our opinion in this letter bec it might encourage you in your stand aga compulsory military training during peacet

We hope that at this time when we in America have the opportunity to lead the world toward peace we shall not fail to grasp that opportunity. Compulsory military training during peacetime would be a step in the opposite direction. We encourage you and hope that you continue to work and use your influence against the adoption of compulsory military training in peacetime in any form.

JOTTINGS

—First Church, Newton, Kansas: March 17th marked a milestone in the history of this church. Elder J. E. Entz laid down his leadership, and the new Elder, D. J. Unruh, was installed by Rev. Entz. Dr. P. A. Penner acted as chairman and made the opening with John 15:1-17. Then followed the impressive installation service and Rev. Unruh's response. Dr. A. Warkentin then spoke words of recognition for Rev. and Mrs. Entz and words of admonition to Rev. Unruh. The choir rendered several numbers. In the afternoon the congregation gathered for a fellowship service. P. C. Andres, chairman, made the opening. The Junior Choir sang, and Edith Claassen gave a talk on "The Value of Christian Fellowship." The Men's Class sang and then Dr. Warkentin spoke on fellowship, I John 1. A luncheon followed.—J. F. Sawatzky, Corr.

—Richfield (Pa.) Church: The pastor, the Rev. B. S. Graybill, delivered the message at the union Lenten service held by the United Brethren, Reformed, Lutheran, and Mennonite churches on March 13th. The March 27th meeting is to be held in the Mennonite church.--Ruth Hoffman, Corr.

—Bergtal Church, Pawnee Rock. Kansas: Dr. H. A. Fast of North Newton delivered both the morning and evening messages on March 3rd. He also told of the relief work that the M. C. C. is doing in Europe. On March 10th the church honored Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Deckert, missionaries on furlough, with a fellowship dinner. In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Deckert told of their work in Africa, where they serve under the Sudan Interior Mission. They have served various stations, but mostly the Kufana District.--Mrs. John Dirks, Cor.

—Medford (Oklahoma) Church A homecoming day sometime in May is being planned as a special thanksgiving for the safe return of our young men so far. All the war-days over-sea men have returned home and are civilians again. They have increased our Sunday School attendance to the extent that another class was organized and a teacher elected. The Ladies Aid have decided to buy twenty-five dollars worth of blankets for relief and those who wish to donate a blanket or money for one will be welcome. So far this year over two hundred pounds of used and new clothing have been gathered and sent in to the Newton clothing center. Rev. Gerhard Friesen was with us March 14th in the interest of Bethel College. He gave a message at the evening service and also a few highlights of his trip to Poland.—Pete Neufeld, Corr.

—Alexanderwohl Church, Goessel, Kansas: The fiftieth anniversary of the ordination of Rev. Peter Buller, Goessel, Kansas; Rev. P. H. Richert, Newton, Kansas; Rev. C. C. Wedel, Newton; and Rev. P. R. Voth, North Newton, is to be observed March 31st at the Alexanderwohl Church, where they were members at the time of their ordination. Our Sunday School recently sent five hundred dollars to Akron for purchasing blankets for relief.—Mrs. A. Adolph Duerksen, Corr.

—Mennonite Church, Wymark, Saskatchewan: On March 9th and 10th we were privileged to have with us Miss Martha Burkhalter, missionary to India. Two services were held at Swift Current Saturday, one Sunday evening, and one at Wymark Sunday forenoon, with a film on the General Conference India mission.—Ruby Brown, Corr.

—Meadow Church, Colby, Kansas: The church is looking for a house for Rev. Wm. C. Voth so he can be closer to serve us during the summer (Rev. Voth teaches at Lorraine). Rev. Regier of the Grace Children's Home was here on March 13th and 14th and showed pictures of the home the second evening. The men have done some needed work at the church.—Mrs. Dan N. Epp, Corr.

—First Church, Burns, Kansas, recently sent 236 pounds of new and used clothing, bedding, and soap for relief.—Mrs. Sam Stucky, Corr.

—Hebron Church, Buhler, Kansas: The young men of draft age who were exempted from service gave a welcome to the discharged servicemen on March 17th. Ten discharged men were present; eight men are still in service. The program consisted of devotionals, men's chorus, a welcome, and a talk on "My Experiences in C.P.S." by one of the released men. Opportunity was given the other men to say something. A film, "Life in Switzerland" was then shown. Refreshments consisted of sandwiches, ice-cream, cake, and coffee. A special bulletin of all servicemen was prepared. It lists all men, time and place of service and date of discharge. One man had been a prisoner-of-war in Germany, and several were wounded but none killed.—Corr.

—Bethel Church, Inman, Kansas: Arthur Pauls, who was discharged from C.P.S. in January, was united in marriage with Eva Schroeder of Fairview,

---

HANDBOOK FOR VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

Forty-one copies of the new, eighty-three page handbook for Vacation Bible School workers are still available. For the contents of this handbook see page five of last week's issue. Copies may be procured from Joanna S. Andres, 700 East Fifth Street, Newton, Kansas. A charge of twenty-five cents per copy is asked for printing and mailing expenses.

Mrs. C. A. Linscheid
232 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

Oklahoma, on March 10th. The bride will be accepted into our church. Rev. and Mrs. J. P. Barkman, returned missionaries from the Belgian Congo, spoke morning and evening on March 18th. The C.P.S. offering that Sunday amounted to $128. Two of our C.P.S. boys are sick. Elmer Neufeld has rheumatic fever and Pete Ediger's back was injured when an elevator fell on him.—Dan E. Neufeld, Corr.

—First Mennonite Church, McPherson, Kansas: Warren Hoover, ministerial student at McPherson College, was the guest speaker on March 3rd. Raymond Juhnke addressed our C. E. on his recent trip to Poland. The chapels at Camp Phillips have been completely dismantled, and a sale was held for the disposal of some excess building material.—Corr.

—Fairfield (Pa.) Church: Do you have difficulty in securing teachers for your Sunday School? The Fairfield Church had. For nearly a year our Sunday School staff was composed entirely of men, except the nursery department. We solved our difficulty by appointing two teachers for each class (not a teacher and an assistant but two associate teachers). Each one serves for one quarter and then the other takes the class for the next quarter. The teachers select by agreement the quarter which best fits their respective circumstances. We got our clue from a recent issue of the Journal of Religious Education.—Henry Burkhard, Corr.

—First Church, Nappanee, Indiana: Two recent evening services consisted of pictorial programs on the Reformation. The slides used were from the Bethel College Slide Service and showed the birth of the Protestant church and the church in our nation. Dr. A. Warkentin, President of the Mennonite Biblical Seminary, will bring us a series of messages on "Meeting the Master," beginning March 31st. His subjects under this theme will be: "Of One Who Thought of Himself First," "Of a Man Who Was Perfect," "Of a Man Who Sold His Life," "Of a Sophisticated Scholar," "Of a Repentant Believer," "Of a Raging Defender of the Faith," "Of One Who Was Grieved," and "Of a Man Who Regretted His Past."—Mrs. Loyal Corwin, Corr.

—Bethany Church, Quakertown, Pa. A Christian Worker's Institute, sponsored by the C.E. societies, was held March 16th and 17th. The leaders were: Mr. Carl Lehman, Miss Edna Ramseyer, and Miss M'Della Moon, all of Bluffton College. At the joint meeting of the charge at Bethany Church Saturday evening Mr. Lehman spoke and showed pictures of the C.P.S. work in Puerto Rico. Sunday morning Miss Ramseyer spoke in the church service on "The Good Samaritan." She also gave facts and figures on the state of the European people.—Mrs. Ed. K. Stoneback, Corr.

—The Bethel College Booster Program is scheduled for April 26th with Dr. George Arthur Buttrick of New York City as speaker. Dr. Buttrick, who is fifty-four years old, has been pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York City since 1927. His book on prayer has achieved wide acclaim. He is known as an outstanding speaker and religious leader.

—Deep Run (Pa.) Church: Rev. Herbert Fretz is giving a series of sermons appropriate to the Lenten season based on Isa. 53:4,5, and 6. The missionary society has completed three large quilts and one crib quilt for relief. Patches were also cut to be sent to the Cheyenne Indians.—Mae Gross, Corr.

ALL TREASURERS NOTICE

Because Dr. P. A. Penner will no longer be the Manager of the Conference Headquarters office after March 31, 1946, it is very necessary that all checks be made payable to: GENERAL CONFERENCE HEADQUARTERS.

Please specify the purpose for which the money is to be used in the lower left-hand corner of the check or on a separate sheet of paper; and, as before, be sure to include not only the name and address of the treasurer but also the name and address of the church if the remittance is from a church.

Letters should be addressed to: General Conference Headquarters, 722 Main Street, Newton, Kansas. Personal letters to Rev. Penner should be addressed to him at 108 South Walnut Street, Newton, Kansas.

STATEMENT OF POLICY

About Receiving and Using Special Gifts

It is perfectly understandable why individuals and churches like to make money contributions for specific causes. When the needs are so many and so varied, the number of gifts earmarked for special causes increase. Since this gives rise to a number of problems, the Emergency Relief Board thought it would be helpful to both donors and our work, if we published a statement of policy with regard to the acceptance and use of special gifts.

First: We want to assure donors and churches that we are glad to accept special gifts and we are determined to do everything we can to use them as designated.

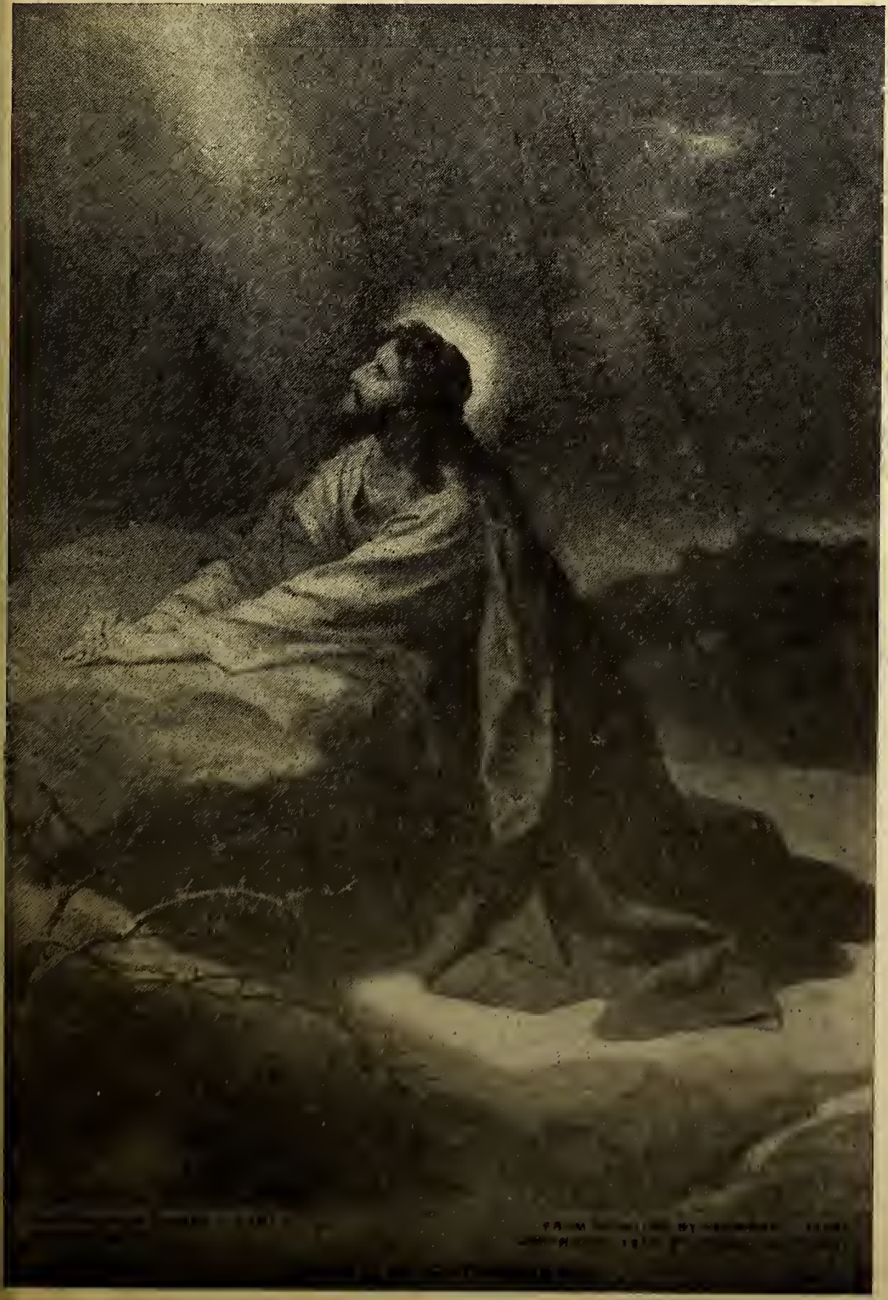
Second: We prefer that donations be made for the general fund so that Boards and Committees are free to use them for both general and specific purposes as need requires.

Third: Donors should be aware of difficulties that arise when too many "special" gifts flow into Conference treasuries. At times Boards have no good facilities to use special gifts. For this reason it would be advisable if donors in sending special contributions would indicate a second choice where their gift can be applied if the Board cannot for good reasons accept and forward the gift as designated. —In behalf of the Emergency Relief Board: J. C. Mueller, Secretary; Henry A. Fast, Chairman.

The Mennonite

Volume 61 — April 2, 1946 — Number 14

He Chose the Cross for Our Sake



Cut, Courtesy Gospel Messenger

Is it not true that a human being tends to become irritable when very many or very strong demands are made upon him? If they become extremely exacting, he tends "to go to pieces." Undue demands upon a human being produce disintegration rather than development leading to wholeness, peace, and joy.

Strong direct suggestions draw out negative responses rather than positive ones. A command to do something, "right now; do you hear me?" will stir up a defensive reaction rather than willingness and affection. A strong, demanding stimulation tends to produce a weak or negative response, whereas a weak and gracious stimulation tends to bring forth a strong and positive response.

Since man by nature is incapable of fulfilling strong demands, it is highly important that he learns to know a God of grace as well as a God of righteousness. The demands of the Law did not save from sin. The Law was righteous; it was worthy of acceptance. It made strong demands, but evoked a weak response. Man needed to know that God was as gracious as He was righteous. At the time of Christ's birth mankind stood in need of such an experience. Christ lived and died to make plain and available the grace of God. He made clear the fact that the righteous God is the Father, who loves to the uttermost.

It cost His life to make that plain. In the Garden of Gethsemane he asked the Father as to whether there was any other way than the cross for making clear and available the great saving power of His love. God said the cross was necessary. Jesus, the Christ, said, ". . . Thy will be done." He chose the cross for our sake.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point-of-view:

BLOSSOM TIME in nature is very beautiful, but blossom time in the spiritual nature of a human being is even more beautiful. The delicate colors and beautiful fragrance of a human life blossoming out in spiritual growth gives us a particularly deep satisfaction when we can realize that its all happening in somebody because we cooperated with God in the beginning of that life of the spirit. In witnessing of and for Christ we can experience a deep satisfaction.

PASSION SUNDAY, April 7th, comemnorates the redemptive suffering of One who died for the whole world, no group or individual excluded. The cross was a demonstration of something much more powerful than anything that can be put on with an atomic bomb. But the cross is still foolishness to many. How effectively can we and do we witness of a power that " . . . never faileth"?

THE PROTEST against the atomic bomb demonstration, made by The Military Order of the Purple Heart, a "U.S. Government-approved veterans' organization composed of American soldiers wounded on the field of combat," seems significant. The protest, which appeared in the March 25th issue of Time, stated in part: "This nation must allay the fear that envelops millions of hearts, a fear awesomely acute since the advent of the atomic bomb. We must sell a decent peace as the most desirable of all states. . . " In speaking of the ships to be destroyed, it says, "Let us have no sentiment as we consign these Purple Heart heroes of the high seas to graves that will vomit with revulsion as man dares to talk of Heaven and prepares for Hell." This protest in the form of a full-page ad in Time suggests a good deal of earnestness on the part of the Purple Heart organization.

THE HANDBOOK for vacation Bible school, edited by Joanna Andres, ought to be of value to all vacation Bible school workers in the General Conference. For a recomendation of its use throughout the whole conference, see another part of this paper where a member of the Board of Education refers to it. The General Conference has not published its own vacation Bible school material. Consequently this new handbook is path-blazing material. It is written by one much interested in this work, and it has been especially prepared for the needs of General Conference churches. A pastor relates that when the person in charge of the daily vacation Bible school of his church saw the handbook she immediately requested more for the use of the other teachers. Vacation Bible School teachers should not miss getting a copy of this handbook. Copies may be ordered from Joanna S. Andres, 700 East Fifth Street, Newton, Kansas, for twenty-five cents a copy.

OUR COLLEGES are enlarging the area of service to their constituencies by the weekend institutes, extension courses, and enlarged industrial art courses, which are already in existence or being planned. Why should people stop taking courses at the end of grade school, high school, or college? Many persons are checked in their growth because they find it difficult "to continue their education." As our colleges make such continued education more readily available, they will be rendering a service that will merit enthusiastic support. Furthermore, the courses in agriculture and shop work, should mean much to those students who intend to return to the farm or begin their own business. The colleges are a resource to which the constituency can go for help.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS

The Gethsemane-Calvary Way of Dealing with Evil

by W. F. Unruh

I Our Ways

The Passion Week commemorates an event in the life of our Saviour which is shrouded in mystery. We know it was for our salvation He suffered and died, but why He should go through such agony and pain is beyond us. Possibly the mystery is so great because we do not appreciate God's method of dealing with evil in our lives. The problem of evil has troubled us from the beginning of the human race. People have advocated various ways of dealing with it. (1) Some have thought that education would solve the problem. But ever since Adam and Eve ate of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil we have known what is right and what is wrong. Still we have chosen to do the wrong. Knowing what is good and what is evil does not make people good. (2) Some have thought that through example people could be so changed that evil would have little hold on them. If this were an effective way of dealing with evil, surely the twelve disciples should have been victorious over sin, because for three years they lived in the presence of the Perfect Example. The record of their conduct on the eve of the Master's death reveals sadly their defeated spirits. (3) Still others think that the way to deal effectively with evil is to crush the evil-doer by violence if need be. This is the usual justification for war. But this method fails also to make people good. It rather tends to make them worse, for the defeated are embittered and the victorious in the process of fighting the evil-doer on his own low plane of life find that they become like the enemy in spirit. In Gethsemane and on Calvary, however, we find Christ dealing with evil in a way that is truly effective.

When there is wickedness or disobedience in a nation people draw one of two conclusions, either the authorities responsible are not able to enforce order, or else they are indifferent to the wrong that is going on. People have said both of these things about God. Things have gotten beyond the control of God,some think, that is why evil is rampant. Others think that God is not much concerned, or else surely He would intervene and stop the great wrongs that are going on. But there is a third way of explaining the presence of evil in the world. God has allowed sin because there is other way in which He can produce the highest possible character in man. Man must be allowed to choose. To force a person to be good does not make him good at heart. But to help him be good is consistent with true freedom by which man rises to his highest life.

"Neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord," Isa. 55:8

II The Lord's Ways

We read that when Jesus took His disciples into the Garden of Gethsemane He began to be sore troubled, saying, "My soul is exceedingly sorrowful, even unto death." As He began to pray He said, "My Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass away from me, nevertheless not as I will but as Thou wilt." Having prayed this He went back to His disciples and found them asleep and defeated. It became clear to Him then that in order to help defeated mankind, of whom the disciples were samples close at hand, He must go through with this agony, and so He went back to pray with this realization, "My Father, if this cannot pass except I drink it, thy will be done." He saw in the lives of His own dear disciples that the only way to help them to victory over sin was to deal with sin for them. We wonder what it was that filled His soul with such terror and agony that He began to sweat blood "as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground."

The Holy Book gives us some light on what it was that caused Christ this agony. He was made "to be sin for us, who knew no sin: that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him." (II Cor. 5:21). He was made "in the likeness of sinful flesh and for sin" to condemn "sin in the flesh" (Rom. 8:3). He became "a curse for us" that He might "redeem us from the curse of the law" (Gal. 3:13). The just died for the unjust "that He Himself might be just and the justifier of him that hath faith in Jesus" (Rom. 3:26). He was "delivered up for our trespasses" (Rom. 4:25). From passages like these it becomes quite evident that "he hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows" and that the Lord "laid on Him the iniquities of us all," Isa. 53:4-6.

Two things are clear here. First, that this suffering was necessary because of our sin. Second, that by going through with this agony Christ was dealing with sin for us to help us with evil in our lives. People have tried to fathom the mystery of this suffering, but no one has fully succeeded. The best light I have seen on it came out of the experience of a missionary in India who went through a dreadful nervous breakdown. He is a man with a passionate desire to live holy and pure unto God. In his nervous depression, contrary to his passionate longing for purity of heart,

W. F. Unruh, former missionary to India, is now pastor of the West Zion Mennonite Church, Moundridge, Kansas. He is also secretary of the Church Unity Committee of the General Conference....

---

his mind was harrassed and tormented with all sorts of vile and evil thoughts. He told us that the evil that flooded his mind was loathesome. beyond imagination. He constantly felt himself on the brink of hell. His sinfulness became so frightful and terrorizing to him that for weeks he could not sleep day or night unless his friends would put him to sleep with opiates. After a number of weeks of such suffering his health improved somewhat and he read the story of Gethsemane one day. As he read he prayed, "Lord, what was it that caused Thee such agony?" He says the answer came to him almost as clear as a voice, "Do you remember those weeks when you could not sleep day or night? In those days I gave you to taste just a little of the cup which I had to drink to the dregs." Later he confessed to us that if what he suffered was only a little taste of the bitter cup Jesus had to take to the dregs when He "was made sin for us," he could well understand why blood was pressed out of the Redeemer's brow.

When Christ suffered He dealt with sin for us in a two-fold way: (1) "A death having taken place for our redemption of the transgressions" cleansing of conscience now becomes a reality. Our own sense of justice is never satisfied unless we know that our guilt has somehow been dealt with. As we come to realize that Christ took our sins upon Himself and died for them, we feel satisfied that He is just in forgiving us according to His gracious promises. This is the basis of our peace with God. Thus He deals with our sins of the past. (2) But He does more than that. He has provided healing for us and victory. If a person would tie a tourniquet around his wrist and leave it thus for some time, gangrene would set in. If then the tourniquet were released and the corruption of the hand allowed to be taken into the blood stream the person might become sick unto death, but if the body could take the shock the hand might be healed again. So in some mysterious way Christ deals with our corruptions. "He hath borne our griefs." It fairly cost Him His life in Gethsemane and did so on Calvary. But He came out alive "being raised from the dead," and now His life in the believer deals with his corrupted nature and makes for health and victory. By His death we are reconciled to God; by His resurrection life in us we come to victorious life. (Rom. 5:10) The mystery of victorious living is the Indwelling Christ who "worketh in me mightily" (Col. 1:27-29).

IN MEMORIAM

IN APPRECIATION OF REV. J. J. BALZER

In the passing of Rev. Jacob J. Balzer of Mountain Lake, Minnesota, on February 5, 1946, a resourceful and fruitful pioneer life came to its close. Born in Gnadenfeld, South Russia, on October 14, 1860, and coming to America with his parents on July 3, 1877, he was one of the courageous Mennonite pioneers of the Mountain Lake community. Educated under Herman Lenzmann at the Gnadenfeld Central School in Russia and later at Iowa Wesleyan University and Union College at Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, he was well prepared for a place of leadership. His life was one of varied interests and manifold service.

The existence of the Mountain Lake Bible School is today a memorial of his ministry as a teacher. He began teaching in a private school as early as 1881 and after 1883 taught in the Mountain Lake public School work and also saw the need for a German school where religion would be taught Under his influence and leadership a school was founded in 1897, which, though it has had a varied development, still is in operation today. His many students still refer to him affectionately as their "Lehrer Balzer."

Not only was Rev. Balzer a successful teacher, but he was also a devoted minister of the Gospel. Together with Elder H. H. Regier he was the co-founder of, and for many years the co-minister in, the Bethel Mennonite Church of Mountain Lake. From 1927-1933 he was the elder of this church and thereafter its elder-emeritus. As a minister he had a progressive spirit. As a lover of music, he conducted "singing-schools" through which he introduced part-singing and choir music into the local church. As one acquainted with world needs, he emphasized the missionary calling of the church and rejoiced to see a number of young people respond to this call. As a diligent student of the Word of God he zealously preached Christ as crucified, risen, and as coming again. In the course of his lifetime he saw the Bethel Church rise from a very small beginning to a congregation which has twice outgrown its houses of worship.

His ministry and influence extended far beyond the borders of his home community. He was active in the Northern District and also in the General Conference, serving for twenty-four years on the Home Mission Board and travelling thousands of miles on its behalf to organize Sunday Schools and churches. He was also widely used as a Bible lecturer.

The Bethel Church was filled to capacity on Sunday afternoon, February 10, 1946, as hundreds of former students, converts, relatives and friends gathered to pay tribute and to bid farewell to a life that will long challenge those who knew it. His wife with whom he shared over sixty years of his life, a son, Jacob, and a daughter, Mrs. H. R. Basinger, remain as members of the immediate family.

Erland Waltner

MENNONITE SONG FESTIVAL

The Mennonite Song Festival will be held in Memorial Hall on the Bethel College campus, Sunday, May 5, both afternoon and evening.

The afternoon program will begin at 2:30 and will consist of music from the various churches. The evening program will begin at 8 o'clock and will be given by the combined choirs of the churches and any other folks who enjoy singing.

A mass choir rehearsal will be held in the Bethel College chapel Sunday, April 28, at 3 o'clock, with Mr. Walter Hohmann directing.

—Elizabeth W. Nickel, Secretary.

Observing Conference Sunday

At the 1945 General Conference the question was asked, "Would it not be wise to have the Executive Committee designate or fix a day annually as 'Conference Sunday'?" This suggestion was accepted by conference.

Having carefully and prayerfully considered various dates suggested it was decided to request our churches to set aside, Sunday, April 28, as Conference Sunday. The officers were asked to set up a suggested program for observance in local congregations.

Feeling definitely that the Lord has directed the selection of this special day, we would say with the Psalmist, This Is The Day Which The Lord Hath Made; we will rejoice and be glad in it." (Psalm 118:24) As we review the past year we would say, "This the Lord's doing; it is marvellous in our eyes." (v. 23) There have been many opportunities; our people have responded marvellously. In the last quarter of 1945 more than one quarter of a million dollars were contributed through our conference headquarters.

We look hopefully into the future, for "the stone which the builders refused is become the head of the corner." (v. 22) In the four hundred years of our history we have rested on the promise: "Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." (I Cor. 3:11) Many builders are refusing Him. True builders accept Him and do not build beyond this sure foundation.

There is fellowship in the thought that most of our about two hundred General Conference congregations will be praying unitedly that we may all abide in Jesus Christ, the True Vine; and abiding in Him we may bring forth much fruit.

Brother J. N. Smucker, the chairman of our conference, has used this outline for the morning sermon. The individual member may wish to use it as a guide in meditation.

Brother Homer Leisy, the vice-chairman of our conference, has drawn up a suggested order of service for an evening service. We all can have a place in 'Serving in and through our conference." Reference should be made to the various growing needs at home and abroad. Opportunity for a special love-offering to some neglected phases may be given at either the morning or evening service. Both of these outlines are presented in another part of this paper.

Since true worship includes both praise and prayer, we submit a list of items for the attention of all of our churches.

GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD

1. For the promise of life eternal through Jesus Christ. For an assurance of sins forgiven. For a peace that passes understanding.
2. For a church based on the Scriptures which still are the only infallible guide both in faith and conduct.
3. For open doors to witness both at home and abroad. For a gospel that satisfies hearts. For the privilege of sharing both with those who hunger spiritually and with those who have been deprived of clothing, food, and shelter.
4. For children, friends, and neighbors, eager to hear and see the "power of love" actively displayed in our lives. For schools charged with the responsibility of showing the way of life.
5. For authorities that recognize a supreme loyalty to God. For men and women who were enabled to stand by the "Faith of the Fathers."
6. For a widening fellowship with others of like faith.

PRAY WITHOUT CEASING

1. That we might be filled with the knowledge of His will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding. (Col. 1:9)
2. That we might walk worthy of the Lord unto

Recommends Vacation Bible School Handbook

Throughout our entire General Conference there is evident an increasing interest in Vacation Bible Schools. Some communities have held such schools for years, while others are planning their first schools for this summer. Those who plan these schools often face the problem of what materials are available and suitable for use in Mennonite communities.

Since our conference at present has not yet published its own Vacation Bible School materials, a hearty recommendation is hereby given to the Vacation Bible School Handbook put out by the Western District Education Committee, available from Mrs. Joanna S. Andres, 700 East Fifth Street, Newton, Kansas, at twenty-five cents per copy. This Handbook is designed for use with the Old Mennonite Vacation Bible School Course published at Scottdale, Pa.

Having examined this Handbook in the course of its preparation we believe that it is worthy of circulation through the General Conference as a whole and not only in one district. It is sincerely hoped that many schools will take advantage of this aid for successful Vacation Bible School teaching.—Erland Waltner, Member, Board of Education of the General Conference.

To the Churches of the General Conference:

You have so faithfully supported the C.P.S. program in past years, and you did it gladly with no regrets for the cause you supported. The M.C.C. has informed us that beginning with April 1, the quota per member for C.P.S. support for April, May, and June will be only forty cents instead of fifty cents as heretofore. We appreciate what our churchs have done and hope that all will continue to lend their support not only in gift but in prayer as well.—General Conference Peace Committee all pleasing, being fruitful in every good work, and increasing in the knowledge of God. (v. 10)

---

3. That we may be strengthened with all might, according to His glorious power, unto all patience and longsuffering with joyfulness. (v. 11)
4. That we may always give thanks unto the Father, which hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints. (v.12)
5. That we may be delivered from the power of darkness, and be translated into the kingdom of His dear Son (v. 13)

SPECIFIC ITEMS FOR PRAYER

1. Foreign Missions—that the world may hear the gospel. The fields are ripe unto harvest. That the Lord may send forth reapers.
2. Home Missions—That our own country be evangelized. That smaller scattered struggling groups may be strengthened in their faith.
3. Emergency Relief—That the needy may be fed and clothed. That the mentally ill may be cared for. That we may sense the varied other needs of those of the "household of the faith."
4. Education and Publication—That we may "teach as we write" that which feeds the soul and mind. That we may ever grow thereby.
5. Peace Witness—That we might know the "Prince of Peace." That we might not compromise. That ours may be a constant witness. That we might plumb the depths of "the power of love."
6. Mutual Aid—That we may remember the needs of our youth, establishing homes, setting up businesses, or preparing for service.
7. Church Unity—That still others may be welcomed into a unity of the faith. In Christian unity there is strength.
8. Minister Placement—That all groups may have ministers to break the Word of Life. That our youth may hear God's call to serve.
9. Auxiliary Organizations—That the women's missionary groups and the Young People's Union may find joy in their service.—Yours for a Blessed Conference Sunday, Walter H. Dyck, Executive Secretary

Suggested Theme for Conference Sunday, April 28,1646

THE CHURCH ABIDING IN CHRIST, John 15:1-11
Suggestive Outline

JESUS CHRIST, THE TRUE VINE: The Church as branches

1. Our thoughts, worship and work must center in Christ, not in ourselves. It is the TRUE VINE that is important.
2. There is true life in none other; there is no other foundation.
3. Apart from Him we are but withered and dead branches.

The "Abiding" Church:

1. Our relationship with Christ not an occasional contact, nor a loose or artificial connection.
2. Our relationship must be a "living union," constant and abiding.
3. By this "living contact" His life flows into and through ours.

The Fruit-Bearing Church

1. Our main concern need not be the fruit, but the abiding.
2. A living union with Christ naturally results in fruitage.
3. The work and activities of the Church and all its organizations must come as a result of our close abiding in Christ. So we glorify the Father.

Meditation Thoughts

May we pray that all the work of our churches and Conference may be united in Him who is the true vine—that all the various organizations may stem back into a living union with the Christ—that this connection may result in such fruitage as shall glorify the Father and direct souls to Him. This is no time for artificial food, but souls are hungry for the spiritual food such as "forgiveness, joy, peace and love."

May our great concern on Conference Sunday be that we may all abide in the True Vine and in none other—that there may be a living union with Christ and not merely an occasional visit, and that His Life may flow through ours in the form of fruit for hungry souls.

Suggestions for a Sunday Evening "Conference Day" Service

(May be used for a message—or a C.E. or Y.P. Program)

"SERVING IN AND THROUGH OUR CONFERENCE" Main Topic or "Theme."

Hymns—"Faith of Our Fathers," Number 154 Mennonite Hymnary
"The Work is Thine, O Christ Our God," Number 550 Mennonite Hymnary
Devotional Reading—Psalm 107:1-21 and Prayer

I. Serving in and through our Conference (Acts 1:8a)
  1. The Equipment. "Ye shall receive power."
  2. The Dynamic. "After that the Holy Ghost is come upon you."
  3. The Commission. "Ye shall be witnesses."
  4. The Command. "Unto Me."

II. The Places of Service in our Conference—(Acts 1:8b)
  1. The Field—
    t. "Both in Jerusalem"—(It begins at home—the home field)
    b. "And in all Judea"—(It extends to the surrounding communities)
    c. "And in Samaria"—(Our home mission work)
    d. "And unto the uttermost part of the world"—(Our foreign mission work: India, China, Africa, America, South America, etc.)

Offering for the Conference.
Hymn—"O, Have You Not Heard of that Beautiful Stream"—Number 232 Hymnary
Closing Prayer

Home Missions:

Material appearing under "Home Missions" is contributed by A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary of the Home Mission Board, Quakertown, Pa.

McDowells Now Serve Calvary Church, Mechanics Grove, Pa.

Walter H. McDowell, new pastor of Calvary Church, Quarryville, Pa.

The new pastor of Calvary Church comes from Markham, Ontario, where he was born January 23, 1910. The family had for many decades been connected with the American (Old) Mennonite Conference.

After high school he attended the Ontario Mennonite Bible School at Kitchener, Ontario. The summer of 1936 was spent in northern Ontario helping open a mission at Markstay, Ontario.

Eastern Mennonite School Harrisonburg, Virginia, was attended one year and then Mr. McDowell entered Goshen College. After leaving Goshen College where he received the B.A. and Th. B. degrees he headed Horace Greely's advice: "Young man go West."

In the summer of 1939 the marriage with Ruth Eleanor Lehman, R.N. graduate La Junta, Colorado, school of nursing, took place. In 1940 the McDowells went to Oregon to serve as field workers in the Sweet Home, Oregon, district.

They moved to Portland, Oregon, two years later, and while there Mr. McDowell worked and studied, graduating from Western Baptist Seminary in 1944 with a B.D. degree.

While in Portland contact was made with the Alberta Community Church. Mr. and Mrs. McDowell joined this church and felt led of the Lord to offer themselves as workers to the General Conference.

While making a trip to visit the old parents in Markham, Ontario, contact was made with Calvary Church, that was looking for a pastor. The Church and the Board jointly extended a call to the McDowell's to come to Calvary, and since February 1st they have been on this field. Their address is Quarryville, Pa., R.R. No. 2 The Board kindly asks for prayer intercessors for the new workers and their new field.

—A. J. Neuenschwander, Sec.

Glimpse of Toronto Work

The United Mennonite Mission Church, 140 Victor Avenue, Toronto 6, Ontario, is housed in a building that was formerly used as a home in a residential section of the city. Since the purchase of this building for a home mission church, the first floor has been converted into a sanctuary. The building is long, and it is estimated that it can easily seat 125. Rev. and Mrs. Arnold Fast use the second floor for their home. The building changes were made mostly by the men of the congregation, who donated their time and talents. Some of the neighboring congregations have sent in contributions for the costs involved.

On February 24th the members of the United Mennonite Church, Toronto, Ontario, gathered together to observe the Lord's Supper. In the evening of that same day it was the pastor's privilege to take an evening service in the Stirling Avenue Mennonite Church of Kitchener, Ontario. Brother Andrew R. Shelly has charge of this church.

The annual business meeting of our congregation was held in the latter part of January. The Mission Committee was reelected for the coming year. The present Sunday School teachers were asked to continue teaching and two new teachers were elected. A special report was given by the chairman of the Mission Committee on the building project, and we were encouraged to go on in spite of the delay in obtaining building supplies and the shortage of labor.

Funeral services were held for Mr. Peter Wiens on February 22nd. The pastor took part in the funeral service with the Rev. H. H. Janzen, Principal of the Russian Bible Institute here in the city. Mr. Wiens is survived by his wife and a number of children. —Arnold A. Fast, 140 Victor Avenue, Toronto, 6, Ontario.

Foreign Missions

(Temporarily all Foreign Missions correspondence should be sent to Rev. Howard Nyce, 1528 Chew Street, Allentown, Pa.)

Anne Penner, Altona, Manitoba, Is Ordained as Missionary Nurse

At the recent annual meeting of the Foreign Mission Board in Newton, Kansas, the Mission Board met Miss Anne Penner, upon invitation of the Board, and after prayerful consideration and an opportunity to get acquainted with one another the Board accepted her as a candidate for mission work in India. Rev. D. J. Unruh of Newton, Kansas, was asked to serve at the ordination, and so he went to Altona, Manitoba, Canada for this purpose and also to serve at a missionary rally sponsored by the Elim Bible School of Altona. The missionary rally was planned for the week preceding the ordination, i.e., from February 25th to March 3rd.

The ordination took place in the large renovated church in Altona on Sunday afternoon of March 3rd. The program for the afternoon was planned by the local congregation together with Elder David Schultz of the Bergthaler Church, of which the Altona congregation is a member. The choir sang several appropriate numbers and two solo numbers were brought in the way of special music. The following brethren took part in the way of introduction and closing remarks and greetings, Rev. J. W. Schmidt, Rev. J. N. Hoeppner, and Rev. J. D. Loeppky the foster father of Miss Penner. Miss Martha Burkhalter brought a word of greeting in behalf of the missionaries to India. Rev. David Schultz, Elder of the large Bergthaler Church, preached an appropriate sermon, using as text the two verses John 3:16 and John 13:17. Rev. D. J. Unruh spoke from the verses in I Timothy 1:14-16 and 18. An impressive service of ordination followed. The ordination was in charge of Rev. D. J. Unruh, a member of the Foreign Mission Board of the General Conference and he was assisted by the Rev. David Schultz.

After being ordained as missionary nurse, Miss Penner spoke very fittingly from the verses in Rev. 2:8.

Miss Penner, whose home is at Rosenfeld, Manitoba, is a registered nurse, having graduated from the Grace Hospital, a Salvation Army Hospital in Winnipeg, Manitoba. Before taking the course in nurses' training, she graduated from Winnipeg Bible Institute.

It is hoped that Miss Penner can accompany Miss Martha Burkhalter to India this spring. It is likely that she will be stationed at the Champa Hospital after her preliminary language studies.

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Vice President
Verney Unruh
Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

Music Institutes in the Churches

by Alvin Reimer

For a number of years the short term music institutes varying from two to four weeks in duration have enjoyed a favorable reputation and have won a fair measure of success as employed in our high school and college music clinics and summer music camps. This same plan was inaugurated in the C.P.S. educational program during the past semester with gratifying results. Participation ran far beyond anticipated enrollments, interest ran high, and attitudes were most commendable.

There would be little disagreement with the statement that the Mennonite Church is a singing church and that it has developed congregational singing to a high level, and as such holds an enviable position among the various congregations. In many instances we also find trained choirs in Mennonite churches; whereas in others there is only an irregular or haphazard arrangement for special music. Still in other conservative groups trained choirs and a cultural development in the art of music is discouraged. Neverthlees, we find the love for music, especially for choral music, quite prevalent among our Mennonite people, and we may truly accept it as a part of our Mennonite heritage. The functional value of this background of music in the church, together with a practice of the singing of these hymns in the home, is manifest in the high ratings that high school choirs from segregated Mennonite communities invariably show at our annual school music festivals.

Taking for granted that music plays a vital part in Mennonite worship services, it becomes our obligation to maintain this standard, and in many instances to raise it above its present level. It has been suggested that the plan of short-term music institutes might also be adapted to our home congregations or perhaps to a group of near-by churches in a community.

There are several possible methods of organization of a church music institute. A number of our churches conduct a Bible study course during the winter months, meeting perhaps one or two evenings a week in order to complete a prescribed course of study. A music course could very well be incorporated into such a program by adding an extra hour each evening for the study of hymnology, which would be of inestimable value to a congregation. In such a course there might first of all be a study of the development of church music from its early beginnings, then through the development of Hebrew music in the Old and also the New Testament eras; following this, the development of music in the Protestant and Catholic churches, German Hymnody through the Reformation Period, English and German Psalmody, etc., up to our Twentieth Century Hymnody. An appropriate text for this course would be Music In The History of the Western Church by Dickson. This should be supplanted with texts such as Outlines of Hymnology by Hohmann, The Hymn Lover by Harder, and Church Music In History and Practice by Douglas which treat the hymns from the spiritual and cultural aspects as well as from the historical. Concurrently with the study of texts one should use our own Mennonite Hymnary which contains the best of representative hymns through practically all periods of sacred music development. In this respect Hohmann's text is especially commendable. Further, the seven parts of the Mennonite Hymnary should be studied and the appropriateness of the songs in each part to the worship service be considered. Our own hymnary stands second to none among all others, and a period of study for a better understanding and appreciation of these hymns and an effort at learning to sing more of them, or all of them, will be the finest gestures in any congregation. One cannot help but make mention here of the advisability of studying the comparison between the gospel song and the hymn and the use of each in the worship service. Certainly it is high time that our churches wake up to the fact that there is an abnormally large amount of cheap, commercial gospel song material filtering into some church services much of which is nothing more than "ragtime" or "swing" music with a sacred text adapted to it. However, lack of space prevents a fuller elaboration on this subject here.

In our study of hymnology a phonograph and some recordings would be invaluable as definite objective material for study.

Alvin Reimer spent the fall of 1945 in C.P.S. camps conducting music institutes. In this article, he describes some of his experiences and suggests a further application of this idea in the home community. Alvin is a teacher in high school and a native of Buhler, Kansas.

Another and a more complete plan for a church music institute would be for several churches in an area (and the segregated Mennonite settlements should make this possible) to set aside a time of approximately three weeks for the choir directors, the accompanists, the ministers, the choirs, and others in the congregation to assemble for an institute of sacred music. This might be done during the winter season when rural church members would find it convenient to attend. A music faculty member from one of our church colleges would perhaps be the most desirable individual to teach the classes in the institute, or it might be a high school music instructor who has a qualified musical background and sufficient training in church music. Two or three one-hour classes could be taught in an evening, classes in a subject meeting two or three times a week, thus allotting six to nine hours per subject in the three weeks of institute time. These courses might be listed as follows: 1. Hymnology—As outlined above. 2. Conducting—Or could also be called "song-leading" or "chorister training." This was one of the most popular courses in the C.P.S. Institutes, and rightly so. This is a training in leadership and is one of the most valuable and one of the most practical courses to be taught. Many of our choir directors and congregational song directors in our rural churches have little or no training in conducting. Given the right personality and a musical background, a song leader can impart much to and secure a great deal more from his group if he has a command of at least the fundamental principles of conducting. One of the most useful musical accomplishments, and one which large numbers of people would like to possess, is the ability to direct music, to conduct. Such a course would treat the method of beating the various meter patterns, phrasing, interpretation, attacks, releases, etc. Suggested texts: The Eloquent Baton by Earheart; Twenty Lessons In Conducting by Gehrkens. The choir would serve as the clinic for the conducting class. 3. According to the newer trends in organic psychology, and this is basically correct, the best approach toward sight-reading is the instrumental approach; i. e., through the playing of instruments such as the piano, organ, or violin, in which the player employs a "space frame." Our instrumentalists are invariably better sight readers than our vocalists. In most of our progressive communities where the young people secure adequate instrumental training in orchestra and band this instrumental approach is satisfied, and therefore a course in sight-singing or note-reading is unnecessary. However, in some of our more conservative communities, and especially in those in which the congregational singing is unaccompained, a course in sight-singing would be valuable. That is why, in some of our camps this course had the highest enrollment of all courses offered. This course would start with the barest rudiments of music and continues into four-part reading. We might mention here that in some of our Mennonite groups "shaped" notes are still employed as a "crutch" in sight-singing. 4. Certainly the choirs as joint organizations should meet several times a week during the institute for intensive training in tone production, phrasing, balance, and interpretation. The choir should, of course, be conducted by the director of the institute. A class in "class voice" could be incorporated in this, or could be conducted as a separate class. 5. A class in desirable "chorus materials" for choir directors in which suitable materials are read through should be included in the course offerings. 6. A class in the "Art of Accompanying" should be very valuable and is a positive "must" in such an institute.

During the day when classes are not in session the instructor or instructors could offer private lessons in voice, organ, and piano, to interested individuals. While there would be only enough time for three or four private lessons per individual it would be enough (in voice) to diagnose for possible vocal faults, and suggest correct methods of tone production.

This, briefly, is a nucleus of a plan that should work. The interest and the desire are there in most communities. Given the right organization such a plan should raise our musical standards to commendable levels.

We trust that the time is not too far hence when we will, in the Mennonite churches, as many congregations in the larger urban centers are doing, employ a full-time minister of music whose sole endeavor it will be to propagate the musical worship in the church, for interest in the general work of the church makes the expression of the music produced more sincere and significant.

ON THE USES OF ADVERSITY

It is good for us that we sometimes have sorrows and adversities, for they often make a man lay to heart that he is only a sranger and sojourner, and may not put his trust in any worldly thing. It is good that we sometimes endure contradictions, and are hardly and unfairly judged, when we do and mean what is good. For these things help us to be humble, anl shield us from vain-glory. For then we seek the more earnestly the witness of God, when men speak evil of us falsely, and give us no credit for good.

Therefore ought a man to rest wholly upon God, so that he needeth not seek much comfort at the hand of men. When a man who feareth God is afflicted or tried or oppressed with evil thoughts, then he seeth that God is the more necessary to him, since without God he can do no good thing. . . By all this he is taught that in the world there can be no perfect security or fulness of peace. —Thomas A. Kempis

The Appalachian Trail

Spring is here! And with it comes the age old yearning to get out—out in the beauties of nature—out to witness again the miracle of life springing from America which will draw us this summer. For the the earth. There are many natural places of beauty in hiker, the Appalachian Trail is hardly surpassed. It is a foot path 2,400 miles long running from Georgia to Maine. The Luray and Grottoes, Virginia, C.P.S. camps were located along this trail. Men in these camps have both worked on and hiked along this trail on the back of the Appalachians. Here is a description of this trail.

The Appalachian Trail is a continuous marked footpath extending through the mountain wilderness of the Atlantic States. It is a skyline route along the crest of the ranges generally referred to as Appalachian; therefore the name of the trail. It extends from Katahdin, a massive granite monolith in the central Maine wilderness, two thousand fifty miles to Mt. Oglethorpe in northern Georgia. At the present time this trail has been completed, marked and measured and is in use throughout its entire length.

The Appalachian Trail was originally started in 1921 by Benton MacKaye of Shirley, Massachusetts. Mr. MacKaye was a forester and from his wandering in the New England forests had conceived the vision of a trail which for all practical purposes should be endless. He gave expression to his plan in an article in October, 1921. Others had proposed extensive through trails, but the conception of the Appalachian Trail was solely MacKaye's. His proposal aroused interest among the clubs in the vicinity of New York City and, in 1922, the first part of the Trail was constructed in the Bear Mountain Section of the Palisades Interstate park by clubs affiliated in the New York-New Jesrey Trail Conference. This interest soon spread to New England and Pennsylvania. Early enthusiasm died out before much work was completed. In 1926, Arthur Perkins, a retired lawyer, undertook to translate the conception of an endless trail into an actual one. At this time various groups became interested and began cutting foot paths through the wilderness which had been discussed for the past five years; the trail was now a reality and not just a fireside philosophy. Mr. Perkins' enthusiasm and momentum continued during the practical completion of the trail.

In the meantime a need arose for campsites and open and closed shelters. A program to provide for these needs was made available by the Trailway Agreement. The regions to which this agreement is now applicable are the White Mountain National Forest in New Hampshire, the Shenandoah National Park, the George Washington and Jefferson National Forests in Virginia, the Great Smoke Mountains National Park, and the Pisgah and Cherokee National Forest in North Carolina, and the Chatahoochee National Forest in Georgia. In all, the Appalachian Trailway embraced in the eight National Forests and two National Parks some seven hundred miles of its 2,050 mile route.

While hiking along this trail there are some rare sights and views to be seen from Maine to Georgia. Over one hundred varities of wild flowers grow along the Appalachian Trail in the Shenandoah National Park. Varieties from the Lily Family to the Ladyslipper. Also, there are about fifty species of trees along the trail in Virginia. There are a number of varieties of pine trees and a large number of various oaks that over-hang the trail, making it a beautiful and shaded trail during the Summer months. These trails are accessible to hikers the year around. However, most hikers use the trails during the summer months. The shelters are so arranged that hikers can hike from at least one shelter to another during the day. At these shelters they can build a fire do their cooking use the bunks in the shelter and get a fresh start the following day.—Skyliner, August, 1945

Northern District Young People Make Contribution to Missions

The Young People's Organization of the Northern District Conference recently gave five hundred dollars for various home mission purposes. Two hundred dollars of this amount was given to Rodolphe Petter to assist in remodeling the old church in the area in which he is serving into a home for the Petters. Mr. and Mrs. Petter have spent many years in faithful service among the Indians in Montana. A sum of one-hundred dollars each, was given to Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Fast who are engaged in church renovation work in Toronto, Canada, to Miss Elsie Grantland who is engaged in missionary work in the Kentucky Mountains, and to the Evangelization Committee of the Northern Conference for providing daily vacation Bible schools in needy areas.

Discuss "Missions in India" at Rosthern

We were very fortunate in having Miss Martha Burkhalter, missionary to India, with us for a few days. We believe that God sent her and that He spoke to us through her. She arrived in Rosthern on March 6th and left for Swift Current Bible School March 8th.

During her brief stay here she spoke in the Bible School, the Academy and in church. At the latter place she showed moving pictures of the Janjgir station, where she had been working.

Miss Burkhalter stressed the fact that forty-six years ago there was no Christian church in India, that is in our field; now there are ninety-six places of worship. At Janjgir the church has approximately three hundred members. They are planning to build a Bible school, the cost of which is estimated at about fifteen-thousand dollars, af which thirteen-thousand dollars has already been donated. John 14: 12 is as true to-day as it ever was: "Verily, verily I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father."

Miss Burkhalter has been missionary for twenty-eight years, and is now on furlough since 1945. If it is the Lord's will she hopes to return again to the India she loves, at the end of March, accompained by Miss Anne Penner from Rosenfeld, Manitoba.

We still need more missionaries. There are so many, who have never heard the Gospel of Jesus Christ. "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few; Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send laborers into His harvest."

We cannot all go to the foreign fields, but we can all yield ourselves entirely to the Master. Let us go where He wants us to go and do what He wants us to do, whether it be here or abroad. Let Him speak and work through us. God-yielded wills find the God-planned life.

Youth Events

One World Or None. A Report to the Public on the Full Meaning of the Atomic Bomb. This is the name of a seventy-nine page booklet edited by Dexter and Katherine Way. This booklet is compiled of contributions made by the leading physicists of the country. Eleven of these participated in developing the atomic bomb. The theme of the booklet is a desparate plea for the complete abolition of war. From sheer fear scientists have united and given voice to the awesome danger of their child—the atomic bomb. "If," Dr. Phillip Morrison says, "the bomb gets out of hand, if we do not learn to live together so that science will be our help and not our hurt, there is only one sure future: the cities of men on earth will perish." We thank God for this deeply felt concern and pray that the Church may give voice to the solution of man's ills and sins. You and I need to be very humble and self-searching as well as straightforward in heralding the one solution—that of the way of love and forgiveness Christ so clearly proclaimed.

The tension between Russia and Iran is reported to strengthen the idea of extending the life of the Selective Service Act. How long such an extension may be granted is not known. That there is strong support of the idea is evident. This, in turn, will mean the extended life of the Civilian Public Service program. As yet, permanent conscription is not being recommended. However, a Denver poll of public opinion indicated seven out of ten people favor permanent conscription.

In the cases of Estep and Smith, Jehovah's Witnesses, the Supreme Court ruled that C.O.'s who refuse to obey illegal orders of draft boards should be permitted to defend themselves against those invalid orders in court. Previous to this, many incorrectly classified C.O.'s were unable to prove in court that local board action violated the law and regulations. As a result, they are serving prison terms. "There is something basically wrong and unjust about a juridical system that sanctions the imprisonment of a man without ever according him the opportunity to claim that the charge against him is illegal," said Justice Murphy.

From a letter in the New York Times: "... eight million Belgians contral ten million Congolese who have no voice in their Government. Nine million Netherlanders represent sixty million brown men in the South Seas. In the Union of South Africa, two million whites hold eight million black natives in virtual slavery; and taking the British Empire, we find that fifty million whites control the destinies of four hundred and fifty million yellow, brown and black people."

In an interracial effort to reduce delinquency in one of the most congested areas of Philadelphia, young people from eight white and Negro Presbiterian churches have banded together to sponsor a neighborhood center called Camac House. At this house Sunday School classes, manual art classes, discussion groups, and a recreational program are being undertaken. An effort is thus being made to reach a delinquent area.

Under consideration at present is the future use of the former League of Nations buildings at Geneva, Switzerland. One proposal has been to turn them into an international universary. Both Korea and Japan are to have large Christian universities, it is reported.

A world student conference was recently held at Prague, Czechoslovakia, at which five hundred students gathered. Students from twenty-one countries in Europe and Great Britain and the United States participated in the Congress which saw the ravishes of war and the suffering coming in its wake.

Devoted to stimulating Bible reading among young people, the Gideons are distributing fifty million copies of the New Testament.

The yearning to establish ties with Christians after black-out of the war is resulting in correspondence fellowships being established across borders. Ninety Mennonite young people in Holland have submitted their names expressing a desire to know about American Mennonites. The M.C.C. is aiding in making the contacts for this fellowship by letter.

Edwin Schrag of Moundridge, Kansas, is the first C. P. S. man to leave for China. Eddie boarded ship at Houston, Texas, headed for Shanghai. He will join the Mennonite relief workers in Honan Provience.

JOTTINGS

—Dr. H. A. Fast, Vice-Chairman of the M. C. C. returned to North Newton on March 31 after participating in a M.C.C. session held in Chicago. Among other matters the Committee discussed he relocation of the displaced Mennonites of Northwestern Europe.

—Hoffnungsau Church, Inman, Kansas: Rev. Philip Wedel will give a series of messages April 14-19. Funeral services for Marie Sperling were held March 29. During the past year all Sunday School classes took part in some mission project. Two young people's classes had as their project a reserve fund for all returning C.P.S. and regular service men, amounts from this fund to be given o the men upon their release. The fund totalled $179. They have the same project for this year. Several classes made kits for relief. Others did still other relief work. Some had foreign mission projects. Some contributed for hospital aid and purchased Bibles where needed. The Kindergar-en had a total of $68.96. These little folks take a great interest in mission work, and they have their collections every Sunday, whereas most of the others had their project collections once a month. A total of $840.88 was contributed for all projects. —Mrs. J. V. Regier, Corr.

—Mary J. Loewen wrote on March 14 that she and ix other M.C.C. workers were scheduled to leave he following Sunday. Her new address will be UNRRA Italian Mission, A.P.O. 394, C/o Postmaster, New York City, N. Y.

—Dr. P. A. Penner, who was stricken ill recently, s reported by Mrs. Penner to be getting along very well. He is at home and can eat regularly and leep. Dr. Penner has resigned from his work at General Conference Headquarters; the resignation went into effect March 31. It was Dr. Penner's ope to remain in active work until his seventy-fifth birthday which was commemorated April 2.

—Dr. P. H. Richert, who has suffered a stroke and s in the Bethesda Hospital, Goessel, Kansas, is reported to be just a little stronger.

—The Mennonite Clothing Center, Newton, sent a arload of relief clothing to New York during the ast week. The 375 bales were loaded into the car y some Old Mennonite brethren from Hesston nd by some local men.

—Bruderthal Church, Hillsboro, Kansas: Dr. H. . Fast of Bethel College brought the message March 24 in the absence of our pastor, A. E. Funk, who underwent an operation. Rev. Funk is re-overing speedily, and we hope to see him active in his work soon. A number of members canned 33 quarts of meat, consisting of beef, pork, and hicken, for relief, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. . E. Nickel. The choir is to give the cantata, "The Thorn Crowned King," on Easter Sunday vening.—Mrs. Edwin R. Funk

THE READER SAYS:

LET LOVE SPEAK

Editor, The Mennonite:

"When we read the New Testament the transforming power of God's seeking love manifests itself in our lives. We feel compelled to acknowledge that the divine commandment is true and that therefore life in this world, with its difficulties, dangers and failures, is just the kind of life a person should expect who wants to live independent of God. But the Christ of the Gospels has the power to exact such humiliating confession from us because in him the seeking love of God goes to the uttermost limit by giving itself to death for the benefit of a sinful mankind. The New Testament writers describe the work of Christ under various images—as atonement, as reconciliation, as substitution. But they all bear witness to its effectiveness. Through him we are able not only to know the truth concerning ourselves but also to live in the truth." (See Christian Century of March 13th.) If our lives are guided by this motivating power of God, we will be able to make the needed adjustment in these trying times when our papers begin to arouse the passions for war with Russia. We will not repeat the words of our war-minded press. We will be lead by the Holy Spirit to the task of reconciliation and understanding. That is what we need as individuals in our relation to each other. And through this spirit, we as a group can also help our nation in the great task of reconciliation and understanding. Let us therefore not forget our calling as Christians: Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God.—J. P. Boehr, North Newton, Kansas.

REVISION OF MINISTER'S HANDBOOK UNDERTAKEN

The General Conference Executive Committee was encouraged at the recent Council of Boards Meeting, February 19-21, 1946, to arrange for a further revision and integration of suitable "Forms of Service for the Use of Ministers." The following men have accepted appointment on this revision committee:

David C. Wedel, Halstead, Kansas, Chairman; Howard G. Nyce, Allentown, Pennsylvania; Russell Mast, Wadsworth, Ohio; R. L. Hartzler, Boomington, Illinois; I. I. Friesen, Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada; Willard Claassen, Freeman, South Dakota; Earl Salzman, Upland, California. For the General Conference Executive Committee, Walter H. Dyck, Executive Secretary.

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

BETHEL COLLEGE

It has been the custom for a number of student groups to reorganize during the spring quarter for the next year. Largest of these is the Student Christian Association, which recently has elected the following to leadership: Faire Stucky (Hutchinson), president; Loris Habegger (Berne, Indiana), vice-president; Norma Tieszen (Marion, South Dakota), secretary; and Earl Franz (Marlin, Washington), treasurer. The Student Volunteers have elected: Hermie Preheim (Freeman, South Dakota), president; Richard Ratzlaff (Pretty Prairie), vice-president; and Marjorie Linscheid (North Newton), secretary-treasurer. New presidents for other organizations include: Meribeth Nachtigal (Dighton), International Relations Club; Lola Mae Regier (Mt. Lake, Minnesota,) Home Economics Club; Gilbert Goering (Moundridge), Cheminar; and Norma Tieszen for the Beta Kappas. Serving throughout the year as class presidents have been: Hazel Senner (Freeman, South Dakota), Senior; Florine Waltner, Junior; Norma Tieszen, Sophmore; and Widick Schroeder (Newton), Freshman.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

Dr. Allen Wehrli, Professor of Old Testament in Eden Seminary, Webster Grove, Missouri, is to be the Bible lecturer next fall. The lectures will be held during the week of November 17. The Bluffton College Bulletin, a four-page folder published six times per year, is sent free to a large mailing list. If you would like to receive the Bulletin and are not now on the list you may receive it by sending a card to Bluffton College with this request and your name and address. The North-West District High School auditions in orchestra, band, boys' glee club, girls glee club, and mixed chorus will be held in Buffton, April 27. It is likely that at least fifteen hundred high school pupils will be brought to Bluffton by this event. Prof. Lantz is chairman of the auditions.

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

The National High School debate question this year was of special interest to Mennonites since it dealt with the problem of peace-time military conscription. Much interest in debate was shown by the Academy students. This week they finished a successful debate season by taking sweepstake honors at the Interstate Academy Debate Tournament at Orange City, Iowa. Miss Kathryn Kaufman, head of the Speech Department, directed their work. The juniors were in charge of the Student Program presented this month. Each class is responsible for one such program during the year. The various campus organizations have had their election of officers. New officers take office at the beginning of the third quarter and carry on for the first two quarters of next year. This gives them an opportunity to get orientated and to plan ahead for next year and so eliminates the period of unorganized delay at the beginning of the school year. Erwin Schrag, a graduate of Freeman, who recently returned from three years service in Puerto Rico gave an interesting report of the project in chapel.

JOTTINGS

—First Church, Colfax, Washington: Rev. J. M. Franz preached the first of a series of sermons on March 17. We're looking forward to a blessed week. Several of our young people are helping in the choir of the Whitman County Youth Rally. Twelve denominations are cooperating in these services. Women's Missionary Society, with the help of the Methodist co-workers in our congregation, are working hard on comforters for relief. Nearly a dozen are on the way to the M.C.C. and several more are in the making. Used clothing was also included in these shipments.—Mrs. Alvin Rubin, Corr.

—Pandora, Ohio: Rev. Frank S. Harder has accepted the call extended to him by the St. John Mennonite Church. The Harders expect to take up their new duties July 1, 1946,—Mrs. Moser, Corr.

—West Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pa. The C. E. societies of the three churches in the Swamp charge recently sponsored a retreat with Carl Lehman, M'Della Moon, and Edna Ramseyer of Bluffton College as speakers. Rev. Alfred Regier of Henderson, Nebraska, spoke at the pre-Easter services, March 26 to 29. He also brought the message last Sunday and is to bring the one next Sunday.—Mrs. Earl Schmeck, Corr.

—Walton (Kansas) Church: The C. E. recently sponsored a banquet for approximately 150 guests. Prof. B. Bargen gave an inspiring talk to the group. Ed Stucky was guest speaker on March 10. Rev. Gerhard Friesen was in charge March 24, in the absence of Rev. von Riesen, who was ill with the measles.—Mrs. R. von Riesen, Corr.

—Zion Church, Elbing, Kansas: Dr. C. Krahn of Bethel College has given illustrated lectures on the following topics: "The Beginning of the Christian Church," "Mennonites in Switzerland," "The Mennonites of Holland," "The Mennonites of West Prussia." —Mrs. Louis A. Janzen, Corr.

—Ebenezer Church, Bluffton, Ohio: Rev. Richard Reilly occupied the pulpit on March 17. Rev. Reilly and family are preparing to go to the China mission field. The youth group C. E. and the Senior C. E. gave a program Sunday evening March 17 at the St. John Church. Alvin Becker, representative of the Northern Bible Society, brought the morning message March 24. In the evening the Bluffton College Women's Choir, under the direction of R. A. Lantz, gave a sacred concert to a large and appreciative audience.—Mrs. Hiram Neuenschwander, Corr.

—Gospel Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: Rev. J. D. Unruh, a missionary to Brazil and now on furlough, showed slides of his work in Brazil at our midweek prayer and Bible hour on March 20.—Elizabeth Lohrenz, Corr.

—First Church, Burns, Kansas: The Student Volunteers of Bethel College gave us a very inspiring program on March 24.—Mrs. Sam Stucky, Corr.

—The Northern District Conference will hold its fifty-fourth session June 1 to 5 in the Salem Church, Freeman, South Dakota.—L. H. Linscheid, Sec.

—R. C. Kauffman, relief worker in India, heads a huge program of buying up left-over U. S. army supplies, etc. He purchases these supplies for the Christian missions spread all over India. In a letter of March 10, he writes: "... my work with the Liquidation Commission continues. It is almost finished, but not quite. This last period has been a very busy one. Altogether, I think we have now purchased about Rs. 2,000,000 worth of goods. Within the last week and a half, I signed one contract for Rs. 550,000 worth of vehicles—about 200 of them, including Jeeps, trucks, trailers, motorcycles, ambulances, etc., another for Rs. 69,000 for a hospital unit; and other smaller contracts ... We have, among other things, bought typewriters (over 900 of them), refrigerators, electric power units, tools, horses, mules, x-rays, 8,000,000 Atabrin tablets (for Malaria), miles of galvanized pipe (a scarcity here), tons of food-stuffs and thousands of clothing items. Most of the clothing items are in very serviceable condition, some almost new, but were bought as 'salvage' at an average cost of perhaps 3 or 4 cents each. This is great stuff for relief purposes. While the purchasing is about over, the big job now is that of taking delivery and shipping of all this stuff."

—Johannestal: We have sold our parsonage and plans are being completed to build a new one. We are trying out a church bulletin this quarter. Two days last week several church members helped two young men, who recently returned from C.P.S., pour floor for the garage they are starting.—Mrs. Arnold Plenert, Corr.

—Bethel College Church: Dr. Eugene Enns received his discharge in February and entered Harvard Medical School in eye, ear, nose, and throat. Willard Linscheid from the C.P.S. unit of the Hudson River Hospital, Poughkeepsie, New York, arrived Friday for a brief furlough. He will transfer to the Hospital at Cleveland, the Hudson River unit being closed. Rev. J. J. Ratzlaff returned to the Bethel Hospital after only a short time at home. Church letters have been granted to Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Kreider. Mr. Kreider stated that since the Central Conference is now a member of the General Conference, they wish to transfer their membership to the Eight Street Mennonite Church, Goshen, Indiana, which he serves as pastor.—Eldon Graber, Corr.

—First Church, Sugarcreek, Ohio: Our relief offering almost hit the one thousand dollar mark. The council voted to make it an even thousand. The money has been sent to the M.C.C. for the purchase of a carload of condensed milk which is to go to Holland. Rev. Russell L. Mast spoke on the following subjects during the pre-Easter services: General theme: "The Characters of Calvary;" others: "Peter, Who Never Ceased To Grow," "Judas, the Lonely Disciple," "Pilate, Who Tried To Be Neutral," "Barabas, the Apostle of Force," "Caiaphas Who Misused His Power," "Simon of Cyrene, A transforming Friendship," "The Male factors, Who Shared His Fate," "The Centurion, An Unbiased Testimony," "Joseph of Arimathea, A Secret Follower."—Wiley McDowell, Corr.

—First Church, Halstead, Kansas: Rev. D. C. Wedel resigned Sunday after having been our pastor the past ten years to take up teaching in Bethel. His resignation will be effective June 3. The ladies were busy all day Thursday mending for relief and tying comforters. Thirty-two comforters and blankets were sent for relief. We have a Sunday School teachers' meeting every two weeks. —Mrs. Carl Dettweiler, Corr.

—Bethany Church, Freeman, South Dakota: March 17 was a day of special blessing. Rev. Louis Linscheid was ordained as deacon. Dr. Harold Gross officiated. Rev. Hugo Mierau was a welcome visitor. Due to the death of his father at Henderson, Nebraska, he and his family were on their way back to Hartford Seminary. The offering for the rebuilding of the new church amounted to $275.27. The choir is planning a cantata for Easter.—J. M. Hofer, Corr.

—Zion Church, Donnellson, Iowa: The Mission Societies special offering for relief amounted to one hundred dollars. The members have also been sewing for relief. Some garments are made from feed sacks. Used clothing and six blankets have been sent. In March we resumed our evening services. These will be held twice a month.—Pearl Krebill, Corr.

—Water-Kitchner United Mennonite Church: March 24th marked the farewell of Rev. Jacob Braun from this church. Rev. Braun, who for the past eleven

---

NOTE CHANGE OF ADDRESS:

The Rev. Walter H. Dyck family, residing for he past six years at 14z8 North 9th Street, Beatrice, Nebraska, is moving (April 1, 1946) to 417 West th Street, Newton, Kansas. Please address all communications intended for the executive secreary of General Conference to Rev. Walter H. Dyck, Mennonite Headquarters, 722 Main Street, Newton, Kansas.

years served as assistant to Rev. J. H. Janzen, plans to go on a farm that he has purchased at Port Rowan. Here he will continue in the ministry as much as time permits. As a token of esteem and appreciation the congregation presented Rev. Braun with a purse of money. The Gospel Team from Bluffton College had full charge of the service on Sunday morning, March 24. Rev. Paul Shelly, who headed the group, and Miss Margaret Chase were the speakers. The remainder of the day the group, which had visited Ontario churches in the past week, appeared at the Sterling Avenue Church, Kitchener, and also sang over the local broadcasting station.—Herbert P. Enns, Corr.

—Dr. George Buttrick, who is to be the speaker at the Bethel College Booster Program, April 26, is the author of numerous books. Among them are:The Parables of Jesus, Jesus Came Preaching, The Christian Fact and Modern Doubt, and Prayer. His most recent book is Christ and Man's Dilemma. This has been chosen as the April selection by the Pulpit Book Club, which is an organization that recommends outstanding books to ministers.

—Salem-Zion Church, Freeman, South Dakota: This church and community was richly blessed through the ministry of Rev. Andrew Shelly of Kitchener, Ontario. His sermons on the "Triumphant Christian Life" were given at joint meetings of this church and the Salem Church. The ladies have been busy making comforters for relief. Recently over three hundred pounds of old clothing and blankets were also sent for relief. Most of the C.P.S. and army boys have returned.—Marian Graber, Corr.

—Bethel College Fellowship Committees in various churches are now soliciting gifts for Christian education. Some made the announcements of their plans on March 24. Undoubtedly, most or all will have finished their canvass by April 26, the date of the Booster Program. The churches work out their own plans for the canvass. One large church had enough teams to cover the membership in one day. Among the teams was one composed of two carpenters, who had taken the day off from their work and were enjoying doing their bit for Christian education. In another church the names of the families were divided, and the visitors called on the homes during the evenings of one week. The college furnishes workers for only those churches which do not have the self-initiated every member plan. More and more churches are initiating their own campaign and assuming full responsibility for it.

—Menno Church, Lind, Washington: The Washington Youth Institute met March 24 with Elmer Ediger, President of the General Conference Y.P.U. A good representation from Colfax, Newport and Lind was present. Mr. Ediger brought the morning message, "In the Name of Christ." The afternoon and evening were devoted to the work and future plans of the Union.—Mrs. Henry J. Franz

Mrs. C. A. Linscheid
222 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

ORDER BLANK

The subscription price for The Mennonite for 1945 is: New Subscriptions $1.25 for the first year, Renewals $1.75 per year.

Please use this Order Blank when sending in your subscription and underscore the word New or Renewal to correspond with the type of subscription you are to pay for.

Name ____

Street or Route ______________________________

Address _____________________________________

Remittances from Canada should be made by Postal Money Order only. Please write name and address plainly to avoid errors.

Mennonite Publication Office
Newton, Kansas

THE 1945 "Mennonite Year Book"

Many subscribers to "The Mennonite" have been waiting anxiously for the new "Mennonite Year Book." This should have been ready for distribution in January, but due to shortage of help at the printing plant, difficulty in obtaining materials, etc., the completing of the book has been delayed. However, the printer has reported that the bulk of the copies will be completed during the first week in April.

Every subscriber to "The Mennonite" whose subscription has been paid in full for 1946, at the regular renewal rate of $1.75, is entitled to a free copy of the "Year Book." A record has been kept of all readers who are entitled to a free copy, and the books will be mailed to all of these as soon as they are ready. In case anyone does not receive his or her copy by the middle of April, please, notify the Mennonite Publication Office, 722 Main Street, Newton, Kansas, and a copy will be mailed at once. It should be noted, however, that the "Year Book" is not given free to new subscribers who have paid only $1.25 or their paper, nor to those who are receiving the paper on the 100 per cent Church Subscription Plan and also pay only $1.25. But anyone desiring a copy of the "Year Book" can obtain one by sending twenty-five cents to the Mennonite Publication Office at the above named address. A sufficient supply will be on hand to accomodate all all who act promptly.

The Mennonite

Volume 61 — April 9, 1946 — Number 15

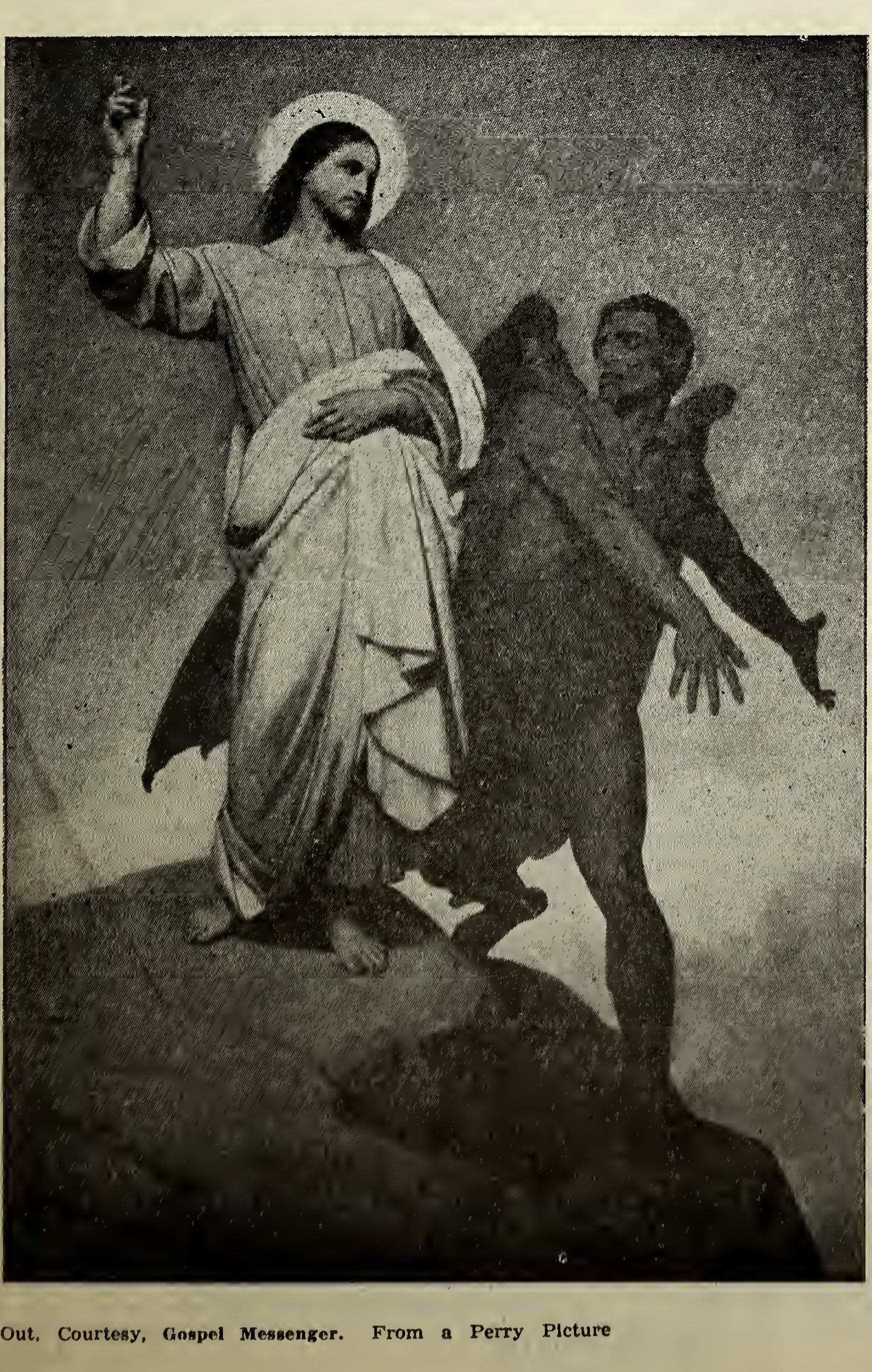
He Chose To Be a Kingly Servant



Cut, Courtesy, Gospel Messenger. From a Perry Picture

The outcome of Palm Sunday was decided when Jesus, on the mount of temptation, chose to be a kingly servant rather than a king who lorded it over others. Jesus had the welfare of mankind at heart. Should he perhaps by force conquer and then rule to the benefit of all concerned?

How tempting! But Jesus readily perceived the futility of worshipping the devil in order that good might result. He saw and decided that His kingdom must be built on loving service.

Marshal Lyautey, veteran French colonial administrator is credited with saying, "In that kingdom of which Jesus dreamed and spoke there was no room for Caesar, or for Pilate, or for the princes and mighty ones. . . . If Jesus' ideas had been translated into reality, not only in Judea, but in the world at large, . . . I do not think . . . we would be in Morocco now, or the British in India." (from "Days of Our Years" by Pierre van Paassen)

Frank Laubach, that great servant of the illiterate peoples of the world says, "God always opens a door. Often that door opens down-

(See page 14)

From the editor's point-of-view:

GOOD FRIDAY is a day of deep spiritual significance and ought to be observed in a fitting manner. The council of churches of Detroit, Michigan, has asked the mayor of that huge, industrial city to set aside Good Friday as "a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer," so that the day may be given to "quietness, confidence and religious observance." It is hoped that the day will be observed with "fasting, humiliation and prayer from sunup to sundown," and "that suitable services be held in the churches devoted to imploring divine intervention in human affairs to avert further heavy calamity which threatens mankind." Attendance at union church services on Good Friday, or an hour or two of quiet meditation on God's love and one's own life, or a re-reading of the crucifixion account, or some loving service to someone in need, or some hours with a soul-nourishing book, might one, some, or all help to make Good Friday a day of deep spiritual experience. The day which commemorates the event which made God's saving grace clear and available to mankind is a significant one.

GOD'S SPIRIT is the means of bringing about proper relationships between individuals and nations. Military might and atomic power can blast things to pieces, but they cannot make a human heart freely loving. Could America be professing to act in a Christian way (or even according to Old Testament standards as given in Zechariah) if it went through with the Bikini atomic bomb demonstration? The blasting, blinding, blighting explosions of atomic bombs would hardly be a manifestation of the Holy Spirit, which brings about wholeness within individuals and among individuals. Washington's announcement that the tests, scheduled for May 15, will be "delayed for about six weeks," gives renewed hope that they may never be held and that the United States will give more consideration to winning good will by manifesting good will. This seems immeasurably better than instilling fear and hatred by a manifestation of atomic power. God says, "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit. . ."

UNDERSTANDING is one of the best ways for overcoming one's allergy towards certain people. Understanding as here used is of the friendly, unselfish type, which is sometimes spoken of as empathy or "Einfuehlung." It is of an analytical, comprehending nature. One feels for the other and not for himself. This makes for that calmness and insight necessary for helpful action. The doctor working on an accident victim exhibits it. When we are irritated by someone, we can lessen our feelings of hostility and anxiety by understanding him. A young man's wife was generally nasty to him. Once she threw a cup of coffee into his face. The report goes on to say that Abraham Lincoln, the young man, refused to get upset over his wife's rather continuous ill-will and that instead he sought to understand her behaviour. If someone irritates us we can well afford to ask what it is that we are defending. Is it some picture of how we want the other person to behave? If it is, then we can question our right to make "arbitrary demands" upon the life of another. Next we can learn to understand the person who makes us nervous. We can ask ourselves: How he got that way? What is he trying to get out of life? What experiences have misdirected his energies in such a way that they now tend to irritate me? Then, as understanding dawns we feel the capacity to forgive, and the nerve-tearing hostility and anxiety fade away. Understanding helps us and it helps the other fellow. (For considerable of the above thought we are indebted to David Fink, M. D.)

RUSSIA stimulates a great many people into "seeing red." Perhaps, this is not so strange in the light of the fact that most people have a rather hazy conception of how and why Russia has come to be what it is, and because they are not too clear on what Russia is trying to achieve. Some terrible things have happened in Russia, as well as elsewhere (for example our Civil War). Failure to keep in mind why these things came to be will make forgiveness difficult. "Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors" is a difficult prayer, but it was given to Christendom by One who forgave those who mocked him, spit upon him, hit him in the face, put a crown of thorns on his head, and finally crucified him.

What a King!

by J. H. Langenwalter

Great experiences have a way of crystallizing themselves into rather simple phrases or attitudes. This was also true of the career of Jesus immediately before His crucifixion.

The trial of Jesus before Pilate, as related in the Gospel according to John, 18:28-19:16a, shows how the idea of looking upon Jesus as a King had been crystallizing until even the Roman representative in Jerusalem used the term very definitely.

"Art Thou a king then?" This question put into words the thinking of many people before the crucifixion of Jesus. They were spoken by Pilate, a puppet politician of Rome—Rome in her pride, despite her imminent fall. The Rome which still thought of her Caesars as super kings.

Pilate was puzzled, hence his question to Jesus, a prisoner before him. The thinking and conduct of this Jesus had disturbed both Roman and Jewish leaders increasingly. Now the Jewish leaders were demanding of Pilate that he condemn the prisoner before him in order that they might be rid of Jesus whom they feared and yet be ceremoniously clean of having shed His blood. Pilate, on the other hand, was anxious to escape a situation of which he was clearly afraid.

The answer of Jesus added to the surprise and the discomfort of Pilate. "You have said it. I am a King. To this end have I been born, and to this end am I come into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth. Every one that is of the truth heareth my voice!" The words of Pilate, as reported, are, "What is truth?" His attitude reveals his deeper thinking, "What a King!" A man like Pilate saw no importance in truth. Nevertheless, the attitude and the words of Jesus compelled him to pay more than passing attention to Jesus as well as His words. He could not ignore the fact that he had before him a strange prisoner with a message that did not fit into his thinking as a Roman officer at all. Pilate was so affected by his experience with Jesus that he confessed to the accusing crowd that he could find "no crime in Him."

Pilate was not ready for the deeper implications of what he had just experienced. That is why he could drive the bargain with the accusers of Jesus. The result was that Pilate betrayed himself as unfit of being a representative of the idea of justice according to Roman law and the Jewish leaders proved themselves unworthy of the Hebrew idea of moral justice. Both did so at the expense of Jesus. Both excused themselves by pretending to cover their misdeeds with their attitudes of, "WHAT A KING?"

In addition to the Roman and Jewish leaders there were others who wondered about Jesus as a King. Two of His disciples had asked to be given primary positions in the Kingdom they expected Him to establish. They had not gotten over trying to fit Jesus into their idea of the kind of King whom Israel should have. They had yet to learn to fit themselves into the idea of Jesus about the Kingdom of God. Other disciples gradually lost interest in Jesus until He stood virtually alone during the most trying days of His life. They felt that He was not the kind of King they had expected and wanted.

However, when His Day of Expression—the day when Jesus' ride into Jerusalem gave all kinds of people a chance to express themselves—two of His disciples obeyed Him about getting a colt from the home of an unnamed man. Placing their garments upon the back of the colt was a recognition of something in Jesus which may best be expressed by the word King used upon a higher plane than they probably had ever used of Him before.

Most interesting is the re-action of the crowd on that day. They caught the spirit of the occasion. They sang. One wonders how great a part the children played in this scene. They sang the messages they had learned in the synagogue without prejudice of interpretations by the leadership of their day. They praised God in words and performed acts of respect toward Jesus which at heart were expressions of honor due a King who meant as much to them as Jesus did. They had not forgotten the deeper meanings of the messages they had learned in childhood. They could not have answered the catch questions about this carpenter Jesus from Nazareth, but they acted as though they believed in Jesus as the Prophet, yea the Great King, and What A KING!

If the kingly Spirit of Jesus was ever needed it is today! People are as divided about Him as they were in the days of Pilate and the leaders "who sat in Moses' seat." The needs of human kind still call for His helpfulness. His helpers are still those who are willing to learn from Him and then through their deeds and, or words give convincing evidence that to them also He is: WHAT A KING!

Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, past president of Bethel College, Bible teacher and pastor for many years, is now pastor of the Lorraine Avenue Church, Wichita, Kansas.

Home Missions:

Material appearing under "Home Missions" is contributed by A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary of the Home Mission Board, Quakertown, Pa.

The Need for a Place To Worship

Nipawin, Saskatchewan
February 25, 1946

It is indeed a pleasure to be able to again come into your homes through the medium of the paper.

This little town is going right ahead. Some one said that more than four hundred building permits for 1946 had been issued. Everywhere one turns to, lots are rising in price and buildings are brought in from farms and other towns nearby, or are newly built. People are on the go all the time, trying to make life a thing of pleasure as well as of money. In all this the Lord is forgotten. How few really turn to Him!

So far the Lord has shown us that He would want us to go ahead with the erection of a place of worship. The people here are poor. There are those that are spiritually inclined and are willing to help all they can. An old lady of seventy-four has promised us a lot. It is in a fine location. This dear soul loves the Lord with all her heart. She is a half-breed by her first birth, and a child of the King by her second birth. The home she lives in is very poorly constructed. Her floors are of wide boards; the walls are not plastered, but are plain boards. She could sell that portion of land that she wishes to donate to the building of the church for at least three hundred dollars. She does not believe in just giving the Lord one-tenth but in giving all she can give. She has a real burdened soul for the lost, and oh I wish you could all visit her home and feel the love that flows from it. She too, like Paul of old can say, that there is a thorn, for she cannot read or write, and oh how she takes in every word that is spoken of the Bible and above all of Him who has become her Saviour.

Besides this wonderful donation we have received one hundred and eighty-three dollars from various sources. But we still need much more to be able to build.

May I here give all of you an idea of the great need. There are only about 185 souls in this town of about three thousand that hear the true word of God, not saying anything of the country people. There are quite a few Mennonite families, but they are poor. Yet they are doing fine in contributing toward this cause. If the Lord so leads and funds permit we will have to erect a church of quite a size, as we are certain that there are many that will attend. There are quite a few of our Mennonite families that live in the country within driving distance, who will make this their church, when it is finished.

All contributions towards this fund will be personally acknowledged, and will without a doubt be rewarded by the Master Himself. Above all be much in prayer for the work and for the worker as well.

I might say that since it is so hard to obtain materials for building, I must buy when the opportunity presents itself. The other day I was able to get shingles for the roof. I bought them just in time, for the next day they were all sold. They are No. 2 shingles and cost $7.90 a thousand.

Let us pray that the Lord may get great glory through this work. Your Brother and Sister in Christ, Rev. and Mrs. Charles B. Dirks

IN MEMORIAM

Dietrich J. Mierau was born at Henderson, Nebraska, May 22, 1879. In 1900 he was baptized and received into the Bethesda Church. He and Margaretha Epp were united in marriage in 1901 and lived together until 1938 when death claimed his wife. The farm was a definite calling of God for him and he made a success of it. March 11, 1946, he died suddenly from pneumonia and a severe heart attack. He is mourned by one daughter, Mrs. Theodore Schmidt, North Newton, Kansas; one son, Hugo, Hartford, Connecticut; and six brothers, John Henry, and Isaac of Henderson, David of Fresno, California, Cornelius of Hastings, and Frank of York.

Mrs. Anna Lehman, wife of Noah A. Lehman was born March 28, 1867, in Clinton, township near Goshen, Indiana, the daughter of Abraham and Fanny Martin Garber. She was a life-long member of the Mennonite Church. She had been in failing health a number of years and died at her home in Nappanee on March 15, 1946. She leaves to mourn her passing, her husband, two daughters, and one son.—Mrs. Loyal Corwin, Nappanee, Indiana

Herman Penner, son of Heinrich and Marie Penner, nee Penner, was born August 19, 1870, in West Prussia. He was baptised in 1888 and received into the church. In 1890 he came to Beatrice, Nebraska, where he lived on a farm until 1941, when he retired to town. He became ill on March 16th and was taken to the hospital, where he passed to his reward on March 27. He is mourned by one sister, and three brothers.

Edmund Daniel Miller, son of Daniel and Magdalene Miller, was born August 26, 1877, in Lemberg, Austria and passed away March 12, 1946. When five he came to America, where his parents homesteaded in Pratt County, Kansas. When his mother passed away, he made his home with his sister, Mrs. W. D. Fast until he was twenty, when he left for Minnesota. When fifteen he was baptized by Rev. Wm. Ewert. In 1903 he married Elizabeth Rupp. Upon moving to Newton, he transferred his membership to the First Mennonite Church. He leaves to mourn: his wife; five children, Arthur E., Los Angeles; Herbert E., Belmont, Kansas; Agnes E. Schowalter, Scott City; Hilda of the home, and Eldor R. overseas; one sister, Mrs. R. J. Hubin of Warwick, North Dakota; two brothers, Peter E. of Karvel, Colorado; and Edward W. of Little River.

The Expectations of the Kingdom

by Arnold Regier

"Look, Joshua, here comes our king! Here comes the Messias riding into Jerusalem."

"He has come to free Israel from bondage. Don't you hear the people shouting?"

"Hosanna to the Son of David: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord. Hosanna in the highest."

These might have been the exclamations of some of the people on that memorable event when Jesus rode into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday. We can see his warm smile as he greeted the people along the roadside, but we also note a strained look in his eyes. They were tear-stained. He was riding into Jerusalem as one ushering in a new kingdom, but not one of worldly power and grandeur. His kingdom was to be established through love and spiritual persuasion. He had entered into Jerusalem for a different purpose than what the people had anticipated. The persistent blindness of his own people deeply grieved our Lord as he anticipated the experiences of the passion week.

For our own consideration during this lenten season let us contemplate a few of our own expectations regarding the Kingdom of God which Jesus came to establish while on this earth. If we turn to the Old Testament we can trace various stages of God's reign in and through his people, the Israelites. A theocratic Kingdom retained its highest ideal through the Old Covenant. It was realized to some extent in David's reign. But in times of apostasy and exile they were enjoined to look forward to a future realm in which God would establish a universal and an everlasting kingdom, one of far-reaching significance

Therefore, in Jesus' reference to the Kingdom he used a common term in the language of his people. The expectations of the Messianic kingdom were very high among the Hebrews as they longly sought release from foreign rule. He used these familiar associations to usher in the higher conceptions of God's eternal realm both in the present and in the future. It proved to be highly suggestive for instruction and contemplation.

The teachings of the kingdom can be compared to a many-sided figure. It is difficult to encompass all of its aspects and not allow one or the other to slip by. To consider all of Christ's references to the Kingdom is indeed a fascinating study. Some deal with the present manifestations in which God reigns in and through the hearts of men and women, while others contemplate a fuller consummation at the end of this age. These two phrases of Christ's teachings are quite distinctive and need to be studied in the light of his other statements.

On two occasions Jesus set a child in the midst of the disciples to represent some of the less prominent features of the Kingdom. He, thereby, recognized certain inherent qualities within man that contributed to its concepts. When the Pharisees asked for signs to confirm Christ's Messiahship Jesus replied by saying, "the Kingdom is within you." They had failed to see the true nature of that inner spiritual realm. Too often man's spiritual eyes are blinded by personal prejudice and selfishness to the extent that he is not abe to comprehend its fullness among those about him.

It is easier to see the significance of the Kingdom in its outer manifestations. Through the study of the development of the Christian Church we view the growth of the kingdom as a mustard seed. Despite its seemingly small and insignificant beginning it has now developed into a world influence of great proportions. The fowls of human destinies have rested on the branches of its spiritual and moral bulwark. The lowly man of Galilee who rode into Jerusalem truly instituted the greatest kingdom of this earth. Though the people of his day were not able to view the scope of its influence we are privileged to see its far-reaching significance.

However, our hope also rests in a greater unfolding even as the Hebrews of old. The Christian's faith does not rest upon a glorious past but in the expectations of a brighter future. Christ's entry into Jerusalem is symbolic of that day when he shall come in the fullness of his power and the glory of the Father. Then will God's reign be fully established; then will the warfare between good and evil be accomplished; there will the redeemed join voice with those of old,

"Hosanna to the Son of David: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord. Hosanna in the highest."

Are God's children today filled with expectations as the Jewish people were in Jesus' day? If so, then we must be conscious of God's reign in and through our lives today. We must be dedicated to the fulfillment of his kingdom.

Rev. Arnold Regier, who served the Alberta Community Church, Portland, Oregon, and then taught at the Mennonite Bible Academy, North Newton, is now a student at the Mennonite Biblical Seminary, Chicago.

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

More and more letters writen by Mennonites from Russia, reach us. The following letter published in Der Bote is typical of many. Bear in mind that this letter was written by women whose husbands and sons are somewhere in Siberia. They fled thousands of miles and have experienced horrible things. We cannot imagine what our brethern have gone through and are still going through, but letters like this one give us some insight—Cornelius Krahn

Mennonites in Russia Before World War II

"June 22, 1941, was the beginning of the terrible war between Germany and Russia. In 1939 Russia and Germany concluded a non-aggression pact which was to last for ten years. We were happy for it, but it lasted only two years. Even though we Mennonites had nothing to do with Germany we were suspected. Even in 1937 fifty men were taken from Gnadenfeld (a district of the Molotschna settlement) to do forced labor. Only three of them who were sent to the Japanese border to build cities ever wrote home. Among them was our Jasch. October 25, 1937, he went to work on the collective farm whence he was taken by the N.K.W.D. (People's Committee in Matters of War). We have never heard from him.

War in the Ukraine

"When the Germans invaded the Ukraine in 1941 all Mennonite men of the Molotschna from the ages of sixteen to fifty-eight were sent by foot to northern parts of Russia. From our Gnadenfeld district 135 men left. October 2 the families of these men were sent to the depot to be transported to Kasakstan (Siberia). At our depot Stulnewo eight thousand persons were to leave and it was the same at other stations. The two districts, Gnadenfeld and Halbstadt, had fifty-seven Mennonite villages. Twenty-eight of them were evacuated to Siberia, and twenty-seven remained. We waited at the depot for seven days, but the German army moved in so rapidly that we could not be shipped to Siberia. . . October 9 we returned to Gnadenfeld.

Under German Occupation

"If only the Germans would never have come to Russia. They have completed our misery. For two years we were under German occupation. They had occupied so much of Russia . . . and thought that victory was theirs. Now they are completely defeated and can never rise again. It couldn't be different! What haven't they done to Russia and the Jews! Thousands and thousands were shot. We couldn't believe our eyes and could defend and protect no one. Again and again we asked ourselves, 'What will the outcome be?. . .' "

Leaving the Home

"September 12, 1943, we were ordered by the Germans to put our belongings on a wagon and leave our homes. The Red Army was returning... We couldn't take much feed for four horses and two cows. It was almost impossible to get. It rained and froze. In holes along the roads we cooked our meager meals. After we had traveled a thousand miles we had to leave our cow. Her feet were worn out . . ."

A Broken Wheel on the Dnieper Bridge

"We traveled in a large group of covered wagons. It took a long time to cross the Dnieper River. Our wagon had nearly crossed the brilge when one of the wheels broke, causing great confusion. Finally some soldiers pushed the wagon off the bridge. The group had left us and we were alone in a pitch dark night. Aunt Tina and Gertrude Toews were the only ones able to do something. Mr. Toews had been blind for several years and I was lying in the wagon with an injured foot. The soldiers got us another wheel, and we continued the journey with the four horses . . . So we drove for fourteen days. Finally we were quartered in a large Russian village where we remained for a month. October 25 we continued our trip. . .

Fleeing West

"For an entire month we continued our trip over high mountain ranges and deep valleys with snow or rain falling nearly every day. Sometimes we had to wait a day for the roads to clear. Our horses were not shod . . . Aunt Tina and I were exhausted and could no longer drive. Again we had to part company with the group. We could not climb the steep mountains with our wagon and cried to God for help. A pedestrian in rags, with one shoe and one rubber caught up with us and we asked him to ride with us. We were very happy that he accepted. For five days we continued our trip arriving in a city where we were put into louse-ridden camp. For the first time after months we were able to change our clothes . . .

In a Freight Car

"Now we were put into freight cars which were infested with horse lice. Seventy persons and all their belongings were packed into one car like sardines in a barrel. We couldn't even sit down, not to mention lie down. We were taken up and down and finally stopped for three days. At last we were taken on wagons to a Russian village where we were placed in a small hut that was already occupied by the owner and his family of three small children. We were wet, the room was cold, and nothing could be dried. We remained there for a week without being able to dry our clothes or de-louse them. Finally we found better quarters where we stayed for three months. This was in the vicinity of the Polish border . . .

In Poland

"March 3 we continued our trip by train. Many detours had to be made because the rails had been destroyed, You cannot imagine how many fears occupied our minds. March 11 we arrived in Lasko seventy miles from the province of Posen where we stayed ten months. Finally we arrived in the Warthe where we were supposed to settle. It took us six weeks to find a place to stay. The Poles were evacuated and we were given their homes. Temporarily three families lived in one house. Later we were to get farms . . .

No One Wants Us

"In the Warthe we were examined and made

C.P.S. Rehabilitation Fund

TO THE CHURCHES OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE

We wish to bring to the attention of the churches of the General Conference the resolution that was passed at the last session of conference held at North Newton, Kansas, May 31-June 5, which reads:

"That since according to statistics, 26 per cent of the General Conference C.P.S. men wish to continue their education after the war, and since the government in its G.I. Bill has made liberal provision for all discharged service men, but especially for those who wish to continue their education and since our C.P.S. men have received no help from the government while in camp nor will they receive any when they get out, and since some of our most promising young men are in C.P.S. and should be helped to continue their education if they so desire, and since the Board of Education, the Home Mission Board, Relief Board and the Peace Committee are co-operating in working on this problem, it is recommended that the conference approve of this effort and encourage special contributions for this Educational Rehabilitation Program for C.P.S. men."

The Board of Education meeting in North Newton, February 19-21, decided that discharged C. P. S. men continuing their education should be given their tuition in General Conference Schools. In general this fund will provide one month's tuition aid for every month they were in C. P. S. providing they were in longer than six months, and through graduation or a total of twenty-seven months, whichever comes first. This aid is available only during the first five years after discharge from C. P. S., and will be paid by the Board of Education of the General Conference directly to the schools attended. Regular tuition will be paid as published in the school catalog.

At present about ninety C. P. S. men have expressed their desire to continue their education in General Conference Schools. Also a number of men wish to enter fields of preparation not provided by Conference schools. It is hoped that sufficient funds will come in that those entering school will also receive their tuition and that special aid will be available in emergency cases for married students with dependents. It is estimated that this effort will require a budget of approximately twelve thousand dollars a year. We wish to lay this matter before our churches and hope that all will prayerfully consider the need and the challenge of this united effort. We would like to encourage the churches to hold special offerings for this fund. We would also like to encourage other organizations within the church to make this effort a part of their prayerful concern.

All contributions should be mailed to Conference Headquarters, 722 No. Main Street, Newton, Kansas, and should be earmarked for "C. P. S. Educational Rehabilitation Fund."—Ronald von Riesen, Executive Secretary, The Board of Education of the General Conference.

German citizens . . . The Germans went through much effort of evaluating our losses in Russia and made many promises. And now they want to get rid of us. But that does not offend us . . .

The Lord is leading us difficult ways. So much suffering and fear. We ask again and again, 'Why did it have to happen?' Loved ones are taken from us. We have not heard from them for a long time. So many tears have been shed! For two and a half years now we have been wandering. No one wants us. If we did not believe that it is the will of the Lord that this tribulation was to come over us, we could not endure it. This faith is our comfort.

Fear a Return to Russia

"We do not wish to return to Russia and yet Russia does everything to send us back. May the Lord protect us from this fate. Another fear that haunts us is approaching starvation. We know from our experiences in Russia what that means. In Poland we received thirteen pounds of rye bread and three pounds of white bread per person per month . . . For work we were paid with milk.

Under English Occupation

"Everything we had brought along from Russia was left in Poland. Our clothing and linens have worn out during the trip. We were supposed to receive some but have as yet received nothing. We are living with a tailor next to the headquarters of the English occupational forces.

Let me conclude. We hope to meet you again, if not here then in heaven where there is no longing, no fear, no turmoil.

Lovingly,
Aunt Susa and Tina

Fear Without End

"January 1, 1946. We have been very excited for a number of days. The Russian Commissars are driving up and down searching for former Russian citizens. The Mayor has received orders to hand in a list of all former Russian citizens. We fear that we will be sent back into the misery of Russia. We will do everything possible to prevent this. May God protect us. Aunt Tina is sick because of the nervous strain. She fears the Russians. J. Toews has escaped from the Russian zone into the English zone arriving here ten days ago. They are staying with us in our room. They have few clothes, one pillow and nothing else."

The Church and the Returning C. O.

by Aaron Epp

In the early stages of Civilian Public Service the attitude of the home people towards a drafted C.O. was quite warped in a sense. The individual perhaps had been a church member for several years, but perhaps had never contributed to the church nor had the church offered any special help to him. Nevertheless, now in a critical time the church member was cautiously observed to see what stand he would take. If he would go to the army, one would hear a unanimous sigh, "I didn't think Bill would go to a C.P.S. camp, etc. . . ." Thus implying that Bill's choice of the army justified his behavior prior to induction . . . Now let us turn the picture around and have the same Bill register as a C.O. We again hear the unanimous sigh, "I didn't think Bill would go as a C. O. . . . He'd better forget some of the things he has been used to doing, or I give him six months time until he changes over, etc., ..."

Whatever the case, every boy at home was waiting for news as to how the C.P.S. program was materializing. News leaked out that there was trouble in some of the camps and that certain individuals were not behaving as seemed adequate in the eyes of the camp officials. Upon questioning, one could only hear the answer, "We are sorry that it happens to be so, but your son is in camp just as you sent him. Your son is now in camp what you allowed him to become." And thus the buck was passed back and forth.

The C.P.S. population is made up of a large variety of people, the colored and the white, rich and poor, pious and sacrilegious, believers and unbelievers, or anyone else you want to think of. These all live, work and play together. Their thoughts are freely exchanged; yet in the mind of a C.P.S. fellow a lot of thinking is being processed which is never exposed. Men have been in camps since 1941; they have been shipped from the East to the West, from digging a ditch to the office, and from the forests to the cities where the underprivileged are penned up. Men have come to camp in fear. They lived in fear enroute to camp, afraid some one might ask them a simple question, "Where are you going?" Of course the answer was planned long before he got on the train, "I'm going to join the Navy." A few now and then would brave the situation and say, "I'm working for the Soil Conservation Bureau." Months of service in camps has somewhat established the individual, and after his first six months of camp he takes a furlough and then upon inquiry is able to say, "I'm in a C.P.S. camp," and leave the inquirer in the dark. A year later when he takes his second furlough and is asked on the train what he is doing, he quietly replies, "I'm a Conscientious Objector and am in camp. Thus baffling the questioner and ending the conversation. If a man has become well enough established in his thinking within a year and a half and not afraid to say what he thinks is right, don't you think that he too might carry over some of the same tendencies when he gets back to the church?

The C.P.S. man has left his home community, where in many cases he has been sheltered from any serious opposition to his beliefs. He comes to camp thinking that he again will find his own. But the individual is completely stunned upon his arrival. He observes and watches carefully and finally decides that he doesn't know for certain that that which he believes is necessarily the only right belief. There is a period of hesitancy, followed by a complete recovery and he once more becomes himself. All these forces are bound to have an effect upon the individual. His experiences, environment, and his training have made an altogether different person out of the returning C.O. who entered camp three or four years ago.

But in spite of all this, the C.P.S. man is not as different from the civilian as we are prone to think at times. For we must remember too, that the home of the drafted man is also shaped by the war. The C.P.S. man is getting ready to go home. He is becoming anxious to know what the experience will be like. He begins to rethink the whole situation. He goes on: "What will the people think of me? Will they believe me when I say I'm interested in religious work now? Will they still think I'm the black sheep of my family? What will they say when I tell them that some of the church's program should be revitalized? What will they think when I do not agree or conform to the old standards? Will they believe my sincerity? Wll they condemn me for siding in with a minority group?" These are all questions that come to the mind of the individual.

Every C.P.S. man is anxiously awaiting his return to freedom. The tide has changed. No longer can the camp officials say, "Your son is just like you sent him to us." Many a C.P.S. man has said, "I can do as I please now; when I get out I'm going to be different," but here is where the break comes. The C.P.S. man will be at home just like he was in camp. Therefore, we must conclude that if the pastor has kept in touch with his C.P.S. member, he will know what the returning C.O. will be like.

Aaron Epp, son of Rev. Johann F. Epp of Henderson, Nebraska, was the educational director at the Downey, Idaho, camp just previous to his release from C.P.S. He is married and plans to continue his schooling.

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Vice President
Verney Unruh
Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

A Mennonite Youth in Holland Writes

The following exchange of letters will be of interest to Mennonite young people in America as it opens up the possibility of a closer fellowship with Mennonite young people of Holland. Altogether about 100 names of Mennonite youth in Holland who wish to correspond here have been received at Akron headquarters. These will be distributed to persons in C.P.S., colleges, and the churches who would be interested in writing about American Mennonitism.

Aalsmeer (Holland)
November 22, 1946

Mennonite Central Committee
Akron, Pa., U. S. A.

Dear Sirs:

The Mennonite Youth Movement in Aalsmeer would like to enter into relations with the Mennonite Youth Movement in your country. Having no addresses I wrote to Mr. P. J. Dyck of the Holland office of Relief Service of the Mennnonite Central Committee. He highly enjoyed the initiative but regretted to say that there was no special Mennonnite Youth Movement, but suggested the C.P.S. in which are organized several thousand of young people who would love to get into touch with us here in Holland.

We intend to publish letters in our fortnightly paper "Torch," a paper for young people between sixteen and twenty-four years old and we therefore kindly request you to bring us into touch with one or more young men or women, willing to write us about Mennonite life in the U. S. A., about their church, their services, their belief, their history, their point of view regarding non-resistance, their attitude in wartime, their habits and institutions.

It goes without saying that we are highly interested in our brothers' life on the other side of the Atlantic, as there is a strong tie in Christ, binding us together. Especially the attitude of non-resistance is a thing we highly admire.

I hope that you will be able to find young Mennonite people who would be ready to write us concerning Mennonite life in your country.

Sincerely yours,
Johan Hilverda

Akron, Pennsylvania
December 11, 1945

(In reply to this letter, Irvin Horst, who was at Akron, Penna. at the time, wrote describing the M. C. C. organization, and giving a general introduction to the Mennonite church in America as well as the Civilian Public Service program. In reply came the following letter. Ed.)

Aalsmeer, (Holland)
December 24, 1945

Irvin B. Horst
Mennonite Central Committee
Akron, Pennsylvania

Dear Friend:

With great interest and gladness I received your letter of December 11. I hope we'll hear from you again. Also the pamphlet about CPS was very interesting. Parts of your letter and some parts of that pamphlet will be published in our youth paper, "Torch."

One of the reasons our interest in Mennonite things in America and Canada is so great and warm is the following: In Holland is our Mennonite life and church no more so much "Mennonite" as it used to be. Great typical Mennonite things as non-resistance'" "soberness in the way of living" etc. we have lost and the typical Mennonite accent in our life and church and institutions has gone away, so that there is not much difference between us and other protestants .... Now in the last five years of war and cruelty and terrible hunger and death and sorrow we have learned all again what it means to bear arms, what war means. These five years have whipped us back to the center of the Gospels. But now there is a strong and burning movement, among our young men and women especially, that wants to accept again the old principles of our fathers. Among us, in our Aalsmeer youth movement there is very much written and spoken about these things. Perhaps you can understand how we, young pepole, were gladly surprised when we heard about your attitude in wartime. I hope it may be so that our Mennonite church in Holland will now stand upon the threshold of a new future, and that God will give us strength and love to stay so warm and close to Jesus and to the Gospels as the terribleness of these years have brought us.

Indeed these five years have been terrible and almost like a dream. Many of our friends were arrested, others brought to Germany to work like slaves, and the greatest number of us, young men, stayed hidden for years, sometimes under ground and in the lakes near our village when the German SS held "razzia's" whole night and day long. One time I sat with one of my friends in a boiler while the seeking Germans walked an hour around us without seeing and finding us of course. All sort of youth organizations were forbidden by the Germans except youth movements of churches. Also that is one of the reasons we had such a great and flourishing Mennonite youth movement in wartime. In Aalsmeer we have over 200 youth in our youth movement from 17 years (age). The Mennonite church in Aalsmeer has 800 members. Aalsmeer lies twelve miles from Amsterdam. Most of our Mennonite brethern in Aalsmeer are nurserymen. In summer-time our whole village seems one great field of beautiful flowers. The village lies along a beautiful lake.

In my following letter I will write how we organized our Aalsmeer youth movement for Mennonites, how we work, what we are doing. The "Torch" is our fortnightly paper with 800 readers. Only youth are writing in it. In Aalsmeer we have surely one of the most flourishing youth movements of our country. It is a part of the greater D.J.B. (Doopsgeminde-Jongeren-Bond) the youth organization for our whole country.

At the end of this letter I'll give you some addresses of young people who like to get into correspondence with young people at the other side of the Atlantic. We should appreciate it very much if you could move some of your young people to write them on receipt of this letter.

I'll try to get as soon as possible a sort of article ready for you about our youth movement in Holland. I hope to receive soon an article from you about all things concerning Mennonite life in America. I'll do my best to tell you also much about our trials in wartime and about the spiritual struggle of these years. Hoping that the fellowship beween us and our brethern over the Atlantic will be strong and pure, and that it may help to build the Kingdom of God,

I am very sincerely yours in Christ,
Johan Hilverda

PREJUDICE

A prejudice is literally a pre-judging, a judgment made before we have all the facts, or a judgment made on almost no facts at all, or sometimes a mistaken extension to a large area of truth applying only to a small area. —Winslow Ames

Valiant Young Pagans

"The churches these days are devoting much time and thought to the veterans who are returning from the war. . . It might be just as well to recognize frankly that . . it is going to be far from easy for the churches to persuade the veterans that Christianity has relevancy to life. . . ."

Dr. Bernard Idding Bell makes this statement in the Atlantic Monthly and continues stating that four out of five servicemen are "valiant young pagans" who "know little and care less about Christainity. . . They will come back sure that the churches have small influence on American life. . . ready to do little more than to give those churches a chance to prove that they have life, vigor, sincerity and pertinency."

No church which is only "a polite club of nice people with a faint flavor of well-washed piety" can offer convincing proof, concludes Dr. Bell. "The veteran does not need readjustment soothing syrup, coddling, flattery; he needs to be told. . . that if he has any real manhood in him he will regard America as something more than a glorified factory, movie house, ball park, and corner drugstore. He needs churches which make it clear that they care about him. . . that the things that really matter . . . lie beyond his untrained cognizance. . . that things seen are temporal, relative, secondary; that it is the unseen which is eternal, absolute, primary."

Dr. Bell, a brilliant Episcopal rector, strikes a deep and true note in speaking of the cry of the day. That cry for reality must be answered and it can be by a church which sees its message clearly and proclaims it fearlessly. Indeed youth wants realism, not just returning, servicemen, but youth, all youth.

Coupling Dr. Bell's statement in the New York Times Book Review that the militarist is the dreamer and the pacifist the realist to us points in the direction of gospel truth. The church does have something to proclaim from every street corner and every hamlet—a gospel so real. Yet, men, preferring darkness, grope in the paths of hate, envy and strife.

Youth has a glorious opportunity of again proclaiming the Gospel of Jesus Christ—the only salvation for us individually and for the world.

Which of these two is really convinced that justice exists in the world: the one that suffers wrong for doing the right, or the one that does wrong in order to abtain his right? —Kierkegaard

Looking Back on the C.P.S. Experience

by Karl V. Schultz

What has happened to men who have left Mennonite communities and lived for several years in the new environment of a Civilian Public Service experience? The same question might be put to anyone who through the war felt individual, group and international tension upon him to make more than the usual number of intense adjustments. Many strong influences upon any personality cause him to sway under pressure but probably at the same time causes him to find new strengths or rediscover latent ones.

Taken from Comfortable Environment

As with men in the armed services, so with men in C.P.S. They were taken from a complacent natural environment and placed in a new physical, social and spiritual atmosphere. Each man in C.P.S. found himself living in a close masculine community, composed of individuals who had in common the non-resistant testimony against war but who differed greatly in interests, attitudes and religious emphasis. Along with this adjustment to his immediate circle came the need for finding a proper relationship with the community—whether it was that of the base camp or that of patients and state employees in a mental hospital.

This combination of living accelerated the maturing process by setting in unusually sharp contrast forces which normally would have less occasion to come in such close contact with each other. The experience has compelled men to think, search, and in part to find that which new insight gives to satisfying a quest for a purposive life.

Day by Day Contrasts

The day to day intimate contact with twenty-five, fifty, or one hundred and fifty other men in a quasi-family relationship has brought an appreciation for personalities representing different approaches to the same goal. The variations may have caused initial tension but through the years this "spiritual distance" has melted away into a mutual understanding and genuine appreciation for the unique contribution each branch has to give to a balance of the common Mennonite tree—a tree which draws its vitality from its roots in the total Christian faith.

In meeting the community, men have been confronted with the question of what level of association should be established with those about them. It has been a continual "alert" in trying to be true to their conviction and in interpreting their way of life to those about them. In some cases there was found a confirming faith in the "spark of goodness in every man." In other cases the call of Christ to go the second and third mile met with human weakness.

Common Threads of Experience

A number of common threads seem to run through the experience of C.P.S. men. Perhaps, foremost is a more complete conviction in the validity of the choice they made in electing non-participation in international armed conflict. The churning of human events seems to have give new credence to the cry for peace within and among men. Even though the work assigned to the men seemed at times ill adapted to individual aptitudes and interests, the total opportunity of C.P.S. appears to be a positive one—positive in offering evidence of gratitude and service to the nation and positive in individual and group development. All C.P.S. men have had their moments of wavering faith but few would choose differently if the decision were to be made again.

Along with a strong faith in the non-resistant position has come a greater sensitivity to the all-embracing implications of the Christian gospel. If non-resistance is held in regard to war only and not in attitudes toward the mentally ill, the negro, the underprivileged employer and fellow employees, then non-resistance finds itself on the same level as a "Sunday religion." In appreciating the totality of the "way of love" there comes a deep awareness of individual inadequacy yet a drawing responsiveness to the call of Christ to permit Him to penetrate every thought and act of our being.

Deepening Religious Experience

It would be difficult to escape a commensurate deepening of personal religious experience. In a reexamination of themselves men have gained a certain new perspective and made adjustments in their sense of values. They have discovered or rediscovered the Christian faith and the contribution of the Mennonite heritage in relation to the Christian faith. They have become sensitive and critical of that in themselves and their church which has permitted a lethargic entangling in detail to dampen the will to explore and tap the infinite possibilities which God beckons for realization. A personal God, coming in touch with God through prayer, meditation and inspirational reading have become less something to talk about and more a reality of experience.

---

Karl Schultz was until March a C. P. S. man having experience in base camps, the Ypsilanti hospital and serving as director of the Roseburg, Oregon unit. He is a graduate of Bluffton College, spent a Winter at Pendle Hill, a Quaker adult school, and is now studying at Chicago Divinity School.

It is premature to know whether the total C. P. S. experience will permanently change the emphasis and direction of post-demobilization living. That is dependent upon the men themselves as well as the encouragement they find in the community to which they return. There does seem to be a desire on the part of many to give more complete expression in vocational plans to that which has been the result of a wartime experience.

Men have become more patient though not pessemistic. Men have renewed their faith but they are not without doubts. They have become more self-confident in their belief while conscious at the same time of their limitations. They are appreciative of the values which only the experience of these years could give them, but simultaneously they anticipate a return to a life of their choosing, leaving one of limited regimentation.

Youth Events

Voluntary Summer Service Units have been announced by the Mennonite Central Committee to be held this summer at Norristown, Pa., Howard, R. I., Cleveland, Ohio hospital units and a unit of ten at the Gulfport, Mississippi public health unit. The units will be open for both men and women. They will run ten weeks and begin June 4. Special areas of study will be conducted during off-hours. This specialized study has been tentatively designated as follows: Norristown, recreational leadership; Howard, relief training; Cleveland, young people's church work. At Gulfport, spare-time emphasis will be on religious and recreational work in the community.

For those interested in nursing and in general hospital work, the monthly periodical, "In the Service of the King" issued by the Bethel Hospital, Newton, Kansas is very interesting. It contains articles describing new developments in the hospital, personal articles about student nurses and the sisterhood. The periodical is sent free of charge to interested people in Bethel Hospital.

The American Friends Service Committee, Philadelphia, Pa. is continuing its program of voluntary service projects for 1946. A bulletin recently issued describes the work camps, peace caravans, and institutes that are to be conducted during the summer months.

A report of the comparison of treatment of COs in Britian and the U. S. made by Norman Whitney who recently visited England states: "I do not find the differences in treatment so great as we have often thought in America. There have been very similar problems in securing classifications from tribunals; there is the same sense of frustration at wasted talents and misplaced energies; there is a deep seated concern at having made an inadequate witness. The CO Release Bill has been delayed in the House of Lords. The opposition contends that COs should not be released until after the armed forces have been released. . . ."

The Aberdeen, Idaho, young people have been giving programs to the small church at Caldwell, Idaho 250 miles away. This and Mexican services in a Mexican labor camp has proven to be a source of real inspiration to the church's young people group.

A Retreat Leaders Workshop was held at North Newton, Kansas, March 30. This workshop had as its purpose the preparation of retreat leaders for their task this coming summer. Mr. R. R. Peters of the Church of the Brethern and a man of much experience with retreats spoke to the group.

What Can Students Do To Promote World Peace?

By Jean Leisy

(The following one hundred word essay is the winner of the Nebraska "State Good Citizenship Pilgrimage Contest" sponsored by the D.A.R. Miss Jean Leisy is a member of the Wisner, Nebraska, church and a student at Wisner High School.)

It is the students, the youth of today, who have the responsibility of promoting world peace.

Through the teaching of social studies and current reading material, students have the opportunity of acquainting themselves with world affairs.

Studying the individual countries, considering their origin, standards of living, social, economic, and political problems will enable students to better promote world peace.

Although these are important, personal interest is the deciding factor. Students must, within themselves, have interest, inspiration and initiative before they can hope to promote world peace.

The basic essential for promoting world peace is a Christian outlook and a sympathetic understanding of the problems of the world.

POSTAL SERVICE TO GERMANY

Postal Service to Germany re-opened. Since April 1 ordinary letters and post cards can be sent to Germany. These messages should be personal containing nothing political, commercial or financial and are subject to censorship. The postage for a card is three cents and for a one-ounce letter five cents. No airmail, registered or insured letters, money orders, or packages can as yet be sent.

RELIEF

New Warehouse and Clothing Center at Reedley

A new center for processing clothing and food for overseas shipment is being opened at Reedley, California. This center will serve the Mennonite and Brethern in Christ communities in California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho. All food and clothing from this area should be addressed to Mennonite Central Committee, Reedley, California.

Robert Kreider in Germany

Robert Kreider, MCC worker in Europe, is now in Germany as one of eight representatives of the Council of Relief Agencies Licensed for Operation in Germany. Initial contracts are being made with the American Military Government and the German Central Committee which has been organized to distribute the relief goods in cooperation with the committee of eight. Brother Kreider's address is CRALOG, PHW BRANCH AMGUS, APO 742, New York City, New York, U. S. A.

Displaced Mennonites Cared For

About 450 Mennonite refugees are now being cared for in Holland until a permanent refuge can be found for them. Many of these are in large homes such as "Roverstein" where over two hundred are now located; others are being cared for in Dutch private homes. Large numbers are also in camps in the American-occupied zone of Germany. MCC workers have taken several truckloads of food from Holland into Germany to where they are located, but still their need is acute and suffering intense.

Shipment to Germany

Official confirmation was received at this office on March 29 that 422 tons of relief goods for Germany are on board ship ready to leave port. Included in the shipment are 8 carloads of flour, 2 carloads of meat, 1 carload of clothing, 2 large truckloads of canned goods, 2 large truckloads of blankets. This is a total of 790,678 pounds of food valued at $103,480.50 and 54,533 pounds of clothing valued at $63,930.40.

C. P. S.

April Discharges Pending

Selective Service has announced that all men who have had three years of C.P.S. as of November 30, 1945 will be eligible for release on or after April 1. This ten-day push-up on the original schedule will effect April discharges for sixteen additional men. Total discharge eligibilities for the month of April are 232.

Counsellor for Cattleboat Units

Roy Umble, of the M.C.C. educational section, will henceforth be giving a portion of his time to the large numbers of men who are serving in the C.P.S. Reserve cattleboat units. Although he will continue to carry on his work at M.C.C. in the field of educational liason, Mr. Umble will be spending a part of every week at the Brethren Relief Committee New Windsor, Maryland. This is the point of departure for all C.P.S. men sailing on UNRRA cattleboats. Religious and educational guidance and counselling are some of the functions that will be under his direction.

C.P.S. Briefs

Over one-fourth of M.C.C. relief workers have been C.P.S. men at one time or another. As of March 26, there are twenty-four C.P.S. men on the relief field (Puerto Rico) and fifteen ex-C.P.S. men either enroute to or on the field of relief. Along with these are twenty ex-C.P.S. men under appointment by M.C.C., all in various stages making ready for sailing.

Voluntary Service Program

A new pamphlet entitled "Voluntary Service Program 1946" is being mailed to Mennonite and Brethren in Christ ministers and college presidents. This pamphlet gives full particulars of the several Summer Service units being planned in the field of mental hospital and public health work. Now in the post-war period is the ideal time to extend our nonresistant witness by such a period of service. Copies of this pamphlet may be obtained at no charge by addressing the Hospital Section, Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pennsylvania.

ARE YOU OPPOSED TO THE EXTENSION OF THE DRAFT?

Indications now seem to be that the draft will be extended UNLESS this is prevented by a tremendous expression of opposition throughout the country. Those who do not believe in the extension of the draft can do something by getting in touch immediately, either by phone, wire or letter, with their congressmen and with members of the House Military Affairs Committee (Especially Chairman Andrew J. May, House Office Building, Washington, D. C.)

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

Students enrolled in the Normal Training Course have just finished their practice teaching. This year they did all of this work in the grades of the local public school. A large percentage of the rural school teachers in the surrounding counties have for some time been graduates of our normal training department. This has meant a big opportunity as well as responsibility for the school. Rev. Solomon Mendel from the Lincoln Avenue Gospel Mission of Chicago was the chapel speaker on Wednesday of this week. The Academy Chorus gave a program in the Methodist church at Hurley the past Sunday. Next Sunday they are to sing in the Mennonite Church at Avon. Professor Toews directs the work of this chorus. The members of the Emoh Cimonoce Club have been doing relief sewing at their last two meetings. Miss Kaufman is busy directing the work of the college play cast which will give its performance on the fifth of April.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

W. Brooke Morgan is to join the staff next year to teach mathematics and physics. He received his A. B. degree from Haverford College, his A. M. from the University of Wisconsin, and he has completed the residence work necessary for the Ph. D. degree at the University of Pennsylvania. He held teaching assistantships during his graduate work. During the war years he has been in Civilian Public Service. He has been active in youth church work. The week of April 1 was Christian Life Week on the campus. Meetings were conducted by Rev. Olin Krehbiel, Berne, Indiana. The general theme of the morning messages was "The Christian Life" and of the evening messages "Some Requisites of Discipleship." Myron Carlisle, baritone, gave the final concert of the year's musical series Friday evening, April 5. A number of faculty members attended the meetings of the Ohio College Association in Columbus April 5 and 6.

BETHEL COLLEGE

Leading in the various phases of the spring testing program are the Senior Comprehensive Examinations, which run from April 1 to 18. The Seniors will write on their major fields on April 15, while the orals are conducted before various faculty groups with the major professor as chairman. Hildegard Peters (Henderson, Nebraska) and Arnold Wedel (North Newton) have been appointed by the Student Council as next year's editor and business manager respectively of the Bethel Collegian, the duties of the new staff to begin this quarter. An audience of a thousand, well representing the surrounding communities, greatly enjoyed the Swiss and Low-German readings and the play "De Bildung," by J. H. Janzen, put on under the direction of Dr. Krahn on March 29. During Thursday's chapel period the student Volunteers presented the play "Garib," written by Dr. and Mrs. P. A. Penner, while the Peace group also ably presented a program this weekend featuring a play by Rosella Reimer, Goessel, and Glennys Henry, North Newton.

He Chose To Be a Kingly Servant

Continued from Page One

ward. As a matter of fact, there is the greatest unmet need. The three-fifths of the human race who could not read and write had been neglected by everybody except the missionaries. If I had taken any position in what are commonly regarded as the upper levels, somebody would have envied me that position and would have been glad if I stopped. But when I took the door downward among the illiterate I found no competition, nobody hoping that I would quit. I had no competition and very little help. What looked like closing the door on opportunity has turned out to be an opportunity all over the world, infinitely larger than I ever dreamed."

"But Jesus called them unto him, and said, Ye know that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and their great ones exercise authority over them. Not so shall it be among you: but whosoever would become great among you shall be your minister; and whosoever would be first among you shall be your servant: even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many," Matt. 20:25-28.

The Servant of all mankind is the King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

JOTTINGS

—The Seven Last Words of Christ by Theodore DuBois, the twenty-fourth annual presentation, will be given by the Bethel College A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Walter H. Hohmann, in the Jolliffe Auditorium of the Bethel College Memorial Hall on Palm Sunday afternoon, April 14 at 3:00 o'clock. The soloists in the cantata will be soprano, Mrs. Alma Nolan Sapp of Wichita, Kansas; tenor, Mr. Theodore Owen of Emporia, Kansas; and bass, Mr. Oliver Sovereign of Joplin, Missouri. Miss Meribeth Nachtigal and Mrs. Esko Loewen will accompany the choir. A silver offering will be taken at the concert.

—Bethel Church, Fortuna, Missouri: Three of our boys are serving as cattle attendants on relief ships to Europe. On March 17th an all-day service was held in honor of two of our older members. Rev. P. P. Hilty, who came here from Donnellson, Iowa, in 1919, served as our pastor for many years. Since his resignation he has served in various offices in church and Sunday School. S. J. Moser, youngest son of Rev. John Moser, came here in 1893. He served as deacon for more than forty years and also was Sunday School superintendent for many years. Talks were given by Rev. Le Roy Gingerich and Rev. Albrecht. Prayer meetings are being held in the homes of members each Wednesday night. —Mrs. J. Lehman, Corr.

—Rev. J. J. Voth of North Newton, Kansas, will be guest speaker at the fiftieth anniversary of the Sichar Mennonite Church, Cordell, Oklahoma. The anniversary is to be observed April 14th with an all-day program. The morning session will begin at 9:45, the afternoon program at 2 p. m., and the evening program at 8 o'clock. Besides the three messages by Rev. Voth, a message and a history of the church will be given by the pastor, Rev. Menno H. Kliewer. The afternoon program will also feature "reminiscences." Friends are heartily invited to attend.—Walter H. Foth, Secretary.

—Alberta Community Church, Portland, Oregon: The ministers of the Oregon Mennonite churches again exchanged pulpits on March 24. Rev. Homer Leisy brought us a very inspiring message by his clever and artistic charts. Rev. Dirks preached at Pratum. Two hundred fifty pounds of relief clothing were shipped last week. Rev. W. A. Regier of Pratum will hold evangelistic meetings here April 3rd to 14th.—Mrs. F. J. Wiens, Corr.

—Swiss Church, Alsen, North Dakota: Don P. Shilder, Vice-President of the Gospel Missionary Union, was with us March 14-15. He showed pictures of mission work in Africa and South America, as well as a sound film of a mission message by Dr. Oswald J. Smith of the People's Church, Toronto Canada. Our Ladies Aid Society is busy making comforters, children's garments, and collecting new and used clothing for relief. Three hundred thirty pounds of clothing have been shipped lately. Also $725 have been given by the church towards purchasing a carload of flour for relief. ;Our pastor, Rev. Waldo Flickinger, is bringing a series of pre-Easter messages on "Lessons on the Cross."—Corr.

—The Salem Church, Dalton, Ohio, greatly enjoyed a visit from Prof. H. W. Berky and Lawrence Burkhalter of Bluffton College, March 22-24. About one hundred enjoyed the fellowship supper. and a full house enjoyed the splendid program given by the two men. The young folks are looking forward to the Wayne County C.E. Convention to be held at Rittman, April 28, ard to the state convention to be held at Columbus in June. Passion week service for April 17-21 are to be conducted by Rev. Don E. Smucker.--Mrs. Edward Miller, Corr.

—Fairfield Church, Fairfield,Pa. At a special meeting it was voted to seek a location in or near Orrtanna, Pa., to build a new church and parsonage and to launch an enlarged program of Christian service and education. Committees on building, finance, service, and publicity have been appointed and the work will be pushed as quickly as conditions permit.--Henry Burkhart, Corr.

—First Church, Beatrice, Nebraska: On March 10th we were privileged to have the Bethel College A Cappella Choir. They gave a program in the Mennonite Hospital in the afternoon and one in our church in the evening. Willard Wiebe, a student at the Mennonite Biblical Seminary, has consented to serve our congregation during the summer. He brought the message on March 31st. Rev. Walter H. Dyck and family have moved to Newton, Kansas. Margaret Albrecht, Corr.

—Rev. P. H. Richert wishes to express his sincere thank you through this paper to all dear friends who have so kindly remembered him with their prayers, with get-well cards, and letters, and other tokens of love in his present illness. After two months in the hospital there has been only slight improvement in his condition.

—First Church, Paso Robles, California: Some of our members attended the Sunday School and C. E. Convention held at Reedley the first week of April. The church has purchased a seven-room house and moved it on to the church property. It is to be used as the parsonage when repairs have been made. In the absence of our pastor, Rev. Orlo Kaufman, Rev. D. D. Schultz, brought the message on March 18. He spoke on the seven seals in Revelation. Some time ago the Chris Ummels visited us. The forty children, which they brought to Paso Robles, gave a program in the Baptist Church since ours was not large enough. The program helped to present the work that the Ummels are doing. We have also had a church dinner in honor of the returned service men. The one still in service hopes to be home soon.—Gus Toevs, Corr.

—Wolf Point, Montana: The ladies of the church have made 23 large quilts and 12 crib quilts for relief. We had the privilege of having with us workers who presented the missionary work in South America and Africa. Margarate Toavs and Thomas Hiedner were married on March 22nd. —Corr.

—Menno Church, Lind, Washington, is planning an Easter sunrise service with the town churches of Lind.—Mrs. Henry J. Franz, Corr.

—Salem Church, Munich, North Dakota: Don P. Shidler of the Gospel Missionary Union showed slides of South America head hunters on March 13th. The "Be Ye Doers Mission Society" has sent thirteen pair of pillowcases and six blankets for relief. Five students were graduated from the Bethany Bible School, Munich, April 5th. Almost all of the snow is gone. Better roads have made possible large church attendence.—M. Ortman, Corr.

—Bergtal Church, Pawnee Rock, Kansas: The mission workers have sent over four hundred pounds of new and good used clothing to the clothing center in Newton, Kansas. Thirty new blankets and thirty-seven comforters were sent to the M.C.C.--Mrs. John Dirks, Corr.

—Grace Church, Dallas, Oregon: March 24th we had a real spiritual day in the house of the Lord. Since it was pulpit exchange Sunday, Rev. Paul N. Roth of the Calvary Church of Barlow, brought the message. In the evening we had a real surprise. The Leisys' cousin, Rev. Theo. Roth of the Swiss Church, Whitewater, Kansas, brought the word. Many blessings were received.--Mrs. Dave Balzer, Corr.

Mrs. G. A. Linscheid
222 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

—Johannestal Church, Hillsboro, Kansas: Dr. Farley, Superintendent of the Kansas United Dry Forces, spoke in our church on March 31 in the interest of keeping Kansas "Dry." Mrs. Dena Schroeder is to be united in marriage with Mr. Cornelius Frantz. We have had a very mild winter and an exceptional mild March. Therefore the vegetation is far advanced especially the wheat and oats.—Mrs. Arnold Plenert.

—Schoenwiese Church, Winnipeg, Manitoba: "Christ's Atonement", an oratorio by Carl Loewe, will be presented on Good Friday by the Mennonite Philharmonic Choir (our church choir augmented to seventy voices) in the Grace United Church, at 8:05 p. m. It will be conducted by John Konrad with Mrs. Emma Konrad, soprano, Miss Alvena Loewen, contralto, Victor Klassen, tenor, Ernest Enns, baritone, and Siegfried Enns, bass. Admission is fifty cents. Proceeds are to go to "Betania", home for the aged and infirm. The oratorio will be sung in the original German.—E. J. Enns, Corr.

—Grace Church, Enid, Oklahoma: New members are. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wiens and Mr. and Mrs. Jake Toews. They farm north of town. The Meno Male Chorus gave us a program recently. Rev. and Mrs. Rahn visited at Henderson and Omaha, Nebraska, and then Rev. Rahn attended the Western District Ministerial Conference.--Mrs. J.T. Kliewer, Corr.

—Toronto, Ontario. Rev. Arnold A. Fast, pastor of the Toronto United Mennonite Mission since September, 1943, has resigned his charge, to take effect the end of May. He plans to take up studies this fall at Goshen College toward an Arts degree. Both graduates of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicigo, Ilinois, Mr. and Mrs. Fast have done monumental work here by seeing the mission through its most critical years and in helping to secure a mission building. Mr. Fast is a member of the Butterfied, Minnesota, Mennonite Church, while Mrs. Fast, the former Adelaine Becker, is a native of Marion, South Dakota. I. G. Neufeld —Goessel Church, Goessel Kansas: The fiftieth anniversary of the ordination into the ministry of four brethren was observed at the Alexanderwhol Church on March 31. Rev. Peter Buller, one of the four, has served as our minister for twenty-three years. The weather was ideal, and the big church was filled to capacity. Rev. P. H. Richert at the hospital and the inmates and workers at the Home for the Aged as well were happy to be able to hear the program over the radio, through efforts of members of the Tabor Church.—Margaret R. Schroeder, Corr.

—First Church, Philadelphia, Pa. Fifty-two members and friends conducted a service at the Home for the Aged, Frederick, on March 31. Rev. John Boehr, who was the speaker, has supplied our pulpit since Rev. J. J. Plenert left March 10 to take over the Lansdale charge. Twelve attended the Eastern District Brotherhood Father and Son Fellowship Service held at East Swamp Church, Quakertown. First Church is looking forward to the special Easter services when Dr. J. E. Hartzler will speak on Apri 17, 18, 19 and 21.—Mrs. H. S. Weiss, Corr.

—Grace Church, Dallas, Oregon: Many attended the welcome home for our boys. The boys told of their experiences and trip across the seas and in the services. This was quite interesting. The pastor had a message for the boys Sunday morning: "Paul, the Commando for Christ," was his theme. The young people went to Valetzs to give a program. Pa and Ma Leisy went with the group. —Mrs. Dave Balzer, Corr.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchanges to THE MENNONITE. North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS

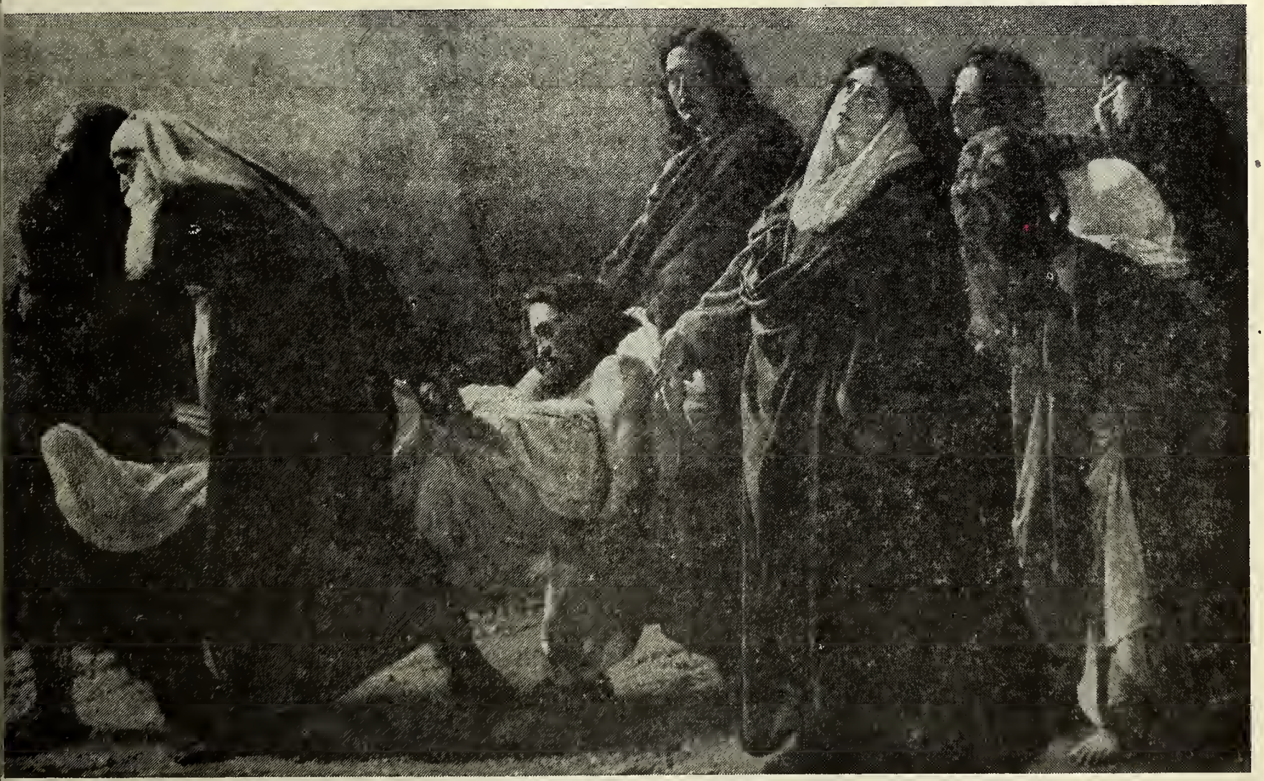
THE 1946 "MENNONITE YEAR BOOK"

Many subscribers to "The Mennonite" have been waiting anxiously for the new "Mennonite Year Book." This should have been ready for distribution in January, but due to shortage of help at the printing plant, difficulty in obtaining materials, etc., the completing of the book has been delayed. However, the printer has reported that the bulk of the copies will be completed during the first week in April.

Every subscriber to "The Mennonite" whose subscription has been paid in full for 1946, at the regular renewal rate of $1.75, is entitled to a free copy of the "Year Book." A record has been kept of all readers who are entitled to a free copy, and the books will be mailed to all of these as soon as they are ready. In case anyone does not receive his or her copy by the middle of April, please, notify the Mennonite Pubication Office, 722 Main Street, Newton, Kansas, and a copy will be mailed at once. It should be noted, however, that the "Year Book" is not given free to new subscribers who have paid only $1.25 for their paper, nor to those who are receiving the paper on the 100 per cent Church Subscription Plan and also pay only $1.25. But anyone desiring a copy of the "Year Book" can obtain one by sending twenty-five cents to the Mennonite Publication Office at the above named address. A sufficient supply will be on hand to accommodate all who act promptly.

The Mennonite

olume 61 — April 16, 1946 — Number 16



The Entombment—Ciseri. Photo by Courtesy Colonial Art Company, Oklahoma City

They Laid Him in the Grave

They laid Him in the grave. Undoubtedly, they thought that this was the end of his life. In their own lives and in the lives of others they had experienced an incessant re-echo of that age-old human assumption that to lose one's life is really to "lose" it and that to cling to life and to defend it is the only way of making sure of it. Judging from ourselves they must have been under a strong compulsion to hold on to life. For its sake the most intimate friends of Jesus deserted him. Life was what they wanted.

And now He had voluntarily given up His own ("for this cause came I unto this hour"). What should they make of it? Undoubtedly, the age-old human assumption largely controlled their thinking and feeling—to lose your life is to "lose" it and to cling to your life is to possess it. It was a time of heavy hearts and tear-stained eyes. They laid Him in the grave.

And then while His death weighed heavily upon them, something was proved clearly and definitely forever. The age-old human assumption was shown to be wrong, and proof clear and final lifted up to glory the words of Jesus: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit. He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal." The Resurrection became a fact, and today men and women who fellowship with the living Christ rejoice in the life abundant and eternal which is theirs through His unmerited love.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point-of-view:

DEATH, feared by mankind throughout the centuries, can be adequately met by the person who possesses the high quality of life in Jesus Christ. Human beings have faced death in many ways. Some of the means utilized for facing death seem like wishful thinking and feeling. But what else could they be? The true solution of death does not come easily. The Christian victory over death is a matter of high maturity. It presupposes a high quality of life preceding it,—a deep experience with God. He who hasn't something great for which to live, hardly can have something great for which to die. But let a man become straight with life here and now, and he will know eternal life. Dr. Fritz Kunkel suggests that it takes a deep growth into maturity to accept death and that many face death without such an acceptance of it. The Resurrection comes to us after the Crucifixion. As we experience the unmerited love of God, made clear and available to us on the Cross, we have our eyes opened to the high quality of life eternal through Jesus Christ.

THE MENTALLY ILL of today and especially of the future will greatly benefit from the National Mental Health Foundation, which has been organized by C. P. S. men who have served in mental hospitals. A letter from this Foundation begins: "If one of your family were a mental patient, you would naturally try to give him the best care available. But what if he were in one of the state institutions where we have seen patients:—slapped through food lines with stinging wet towels—strapped into bed for months at a time—sick and well, tubercular and dysenteric herded together into cellar dormitories to sleep on filthy mattresses teeming with insects—beaten with clubs and punched into submission—served in dirty dining rooms on unwashed tables in the deafening noise of crashing metal plates—forced to sit silent for hours at a time, although only children—mentally deficient? You would be shocked and frightened. Like any of us who have seen these things, you would be determined to do something about it. But what could you do alone? Three thousand of us who have worked in state mental institutions during the war have a program of action. We work for better mental institutions, better public understanding of what it takes to make them, and more effective ways of preventing mental illness and deficiency."

WHEN TROUBLE COMES it is often very helpful to look within oneself for the source of some or a good deal of it. One of our most pronounced human tendencies is to alibi ourselves, and that to our harm instead of to our good. True the physical equipment with which we start life sets certain limitations, but Sir Walter Scott was lame and sweet and Lord Byron was lame and bitter. True our environment limits us, but it cannot keep us from responding to that environment to the best of our ability. The oyster may not be able to keep out the grain of sand, but it may make a pearl of it. As human beings we are capable of responding to all that heredity and environment offers. Furthermore, our Father is ever seeking to help us. His saving grace may not be evident to a heathen who has never heard the Gospel as it is to those of us who know the old, old story of Jesus and his love. That is true. Because it is true, it makes us all the more "responsible" (able to respond), and as we draw nigh unto God, we will find him drawing nigh unto us, for he is ever seeking us. To draw nigh means to admit our weakness, confess our faults as we are able to see them, and depend upon the unmerited love of God as partially revealed in someone who is willing to befriend us and tell us of God and his ways. If we find ourselves in trouble, we can be quite sure that there is some trouble in us. Because this is hard to see and admit, we often miss out on the help which is available. True some trouble may not be of our making. Yet even here there is the possibility of responding in such a way as to remain "untroubled," difficult as that may be. In our response to all that life may bring are possibilities which we dare not ignore if we would have hope in our heart.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorised Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchange to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON KANSAS

The Light of Easter Morning

by J. N. Smucker

That first Easter morning marked the dawn of a great New Day. The darkness of a black Friday is banished by the glow of light breaking on Easter morning. The mists of fear are dispelled by the Light of Life, for in Him was life and the life was the light of men.

LIGHT ON THE NIGHT OF LIFE

How deep was the darkness of death before Easter. "It is impossible to be cheerful about life till we have made our peace with death." Now Christ has conquered death, and its sting has been removed in the radiance of Easter morning. The age-old question, "If a man die shall he live again?" has been answered by the resurrection of the Christ who says, "I am the Resurrection and the Life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die."

So Easter has lighted life's deepest night. We now see death not as the end, but as a new beginning; a gateway into a larger life. Death's fears and terrors have been dissolved in the brilliant light of Easter morning.

LIGHT ON THE MEANING OF LIFE

How men through the ages have puzzled themselves with the problem of the purpose and meaning of life. But the light of Easter morning illuminates that perplexing problem for us also. We see that life is of eternal worth with only a small beginning here and its fullness over there. "Our life is not a land-locked lake enclosed within the shore-lines of seventy years; it is an arm of the sea. So we must build and plan for those larger waters." So life is of one piece, briefly lived here then passing through the door of death into the bright morning of real life beyond. This thought puts rich meaning into life for the Christian. Life is of deep spiritual significance and does not consist of the abundance of things which a man possesseth, but is abundant in the riches of spiritual experiences and values. Our trials and difficulties and hardships can be used to prepare us for the life beyond. With Christ as our Savior and joining our life with His, life becomes rich with meaning and worth as we catch a glimpse of it stretching on beyond the door. Easter sheds light on the meaning of life.

LIGHT ON THE PRINCE OF LIFE

But the most radiant disclosure that comes to us from the light of Easter morning is the revelation it brings to us of the Prince of Life Himself. He has triumphed over the worst that the forces of sin could do. He has met and conquered all the sins of the world and stands out as the Victorious Conqueror. With Him we, too, are on the overcoming side. "The Light of the world is Jesus," who shines on us today. "If we walk in the light as He is in the light we have fellowship one with another and the blood of Jesus Christ His son cleanseth us from all sin." So He is for us the Living Lord who said "Lo, I am with you alway." He will walk by our side down the pathway of life and take us by the hand as we approach the door into the fullness of life beyond. His nearness enables us to meet life's strains and difficulties and His Presence gives us courage and strength. He lives; and because He lives we shall live also. He is our Savior, our Leader, our Friend and our Life and Light.

So the light of Easter morning banishes the terror and fear of death; in its glow, life takes on eternal significance; in that light we see Him, who is the Light of Life. Let us evermore walk as children of Light!

Rev. J. N. Smucker is Pastor of the First Church, Bluffton, Ohio, and President of the General Conference.

My Master's Face

No pictured likeness of my Lord have I;
He carved no record of His ministry
On wood or stone.
He left no sculptured tomb nor parchment dim,
But trusted for all memory of Him
Men's hearts alone.

Who sees the face but sees in part; who reads
The spirit which it hides, sees all; he needs
No more. Thy grace—
Thy life in my life, Lord, give Thou to me;
And then, in truth, I may forever see
My Master's face!
—William Hurd Hillyer

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

A Constant Threat. The thousands of Mennonites originally from Russia now living as displaced persons in the Russian, American and English zones of occupation in Germany are not only in constant danger of being sent back to Russia, but they are actually being sent back in large numbers.: The following is an excerpt from a letter written by a Mennonite in the English zone. It appeared in Der Bote.

"During the last days the English army is helping the Russians to send the poor, unfortunate persons (former Russian subjects) into death. Most of them flee, but those who do not manage to escape are sent to Russia. We, too, want to leave next week. If the Lord doesn't protect us it will be bad for us. It is a pity to see a weary woman with her ruck sack and her children walk to the depot."

Many are sent to Siberia. Many of these women, whose husbands were exiled in Russia long ago and who had hoped to come to America, are finally caught by Russian agents, put into box cars. and are sent to Siberia to do slave labor. The following excerpt is from Lena . . . who was sent all the way from Germany to Irkutsk in Siberia.

January 19, 1946

"Dear Brothers, Sisters, and Children,

It is long ago since we have heard from you and you from us. Now I can report that we are still living. Even mamma has survived all the hardships. She is now seventy-nine years old and very weak, but is still sewing if there s something to sew. . . . Tina has rheumatism and can hardly walk. . . . We know nothing about brother Isaac's wife and sister Sarah and their children. The cold climate is very hard on us." (Der Bote)

Life in Siberia. When the Germans overran the Ukraine many of the Mennonites were sent to Siberia where they experience untold hardships. Here are a few lines from a letter that a Mennonite woman writes.

North Kasakstan, Russia
January 3, 1946

My dear Ones,

After many years I want to write you a few lines. . . . My dear ones, much has happened. My husband, my son Franz, and my daughter Kaeti have passed away. Only my youngest daughter Anni is living. Our dear son died in 1940. . . . In 1941 came the terrible war. We were exiled to Kasakstan (Siberia). In 1942 my husband was drafted into the army. We never heard from him. Kaeti was drafted in 1943. My dearly beloved husband died in March and in October our Kaeti died far away from us. She was only 19 years old. If I only could have taken care of them. Often I have cried to God out in the open where no one could hear but He. The Lord has comforted me. Yes he has led me on a path which I did not expect. I have no wishes but that He will give me strength to follow Him. . . . (Mennonitische Rundschau)

We are but three Mennonite families in a Russsan village and long for fellowship with Christians which we have missed for years. . . If possible, arrange that we can come to Canada. . .

The Christian Press Ltd., Winnipeg, Canada, formerly owned and operated by H. H. Neufeld has been purchased by the Mennonite Brethren Conference of Canada. The new editor of the Mennonitische Rundschau is H. F. Klassen. This paper has a long history and was started in Scottdale. Under the new management and editorship it has made considerable progress.

Paying off a Debt. Most of the Mennonites that came from Russia to Canada between 1923 and 1930 were penniless and owed the Canadian Railroad Companies for their passage. This debt is being liquidated now. Only a fraction is left. This is especially important since many more Mennonites would like to enter Canada.

A Unique Pulpit Language. In 1930 some German-speaking Mennonites from Russia settled in Brazil. In 1937 the Brazlian government prohibited the use of the German language in religious services. For a long time the Mennonites could, therefore, not conduct any services. Now the difficulty has been overcome. For the young people they preach in the Portugese language and for the old people they have permission to use the Low German. Thus our Brazilian brothers and sisters worship God in a language that we thought suitable only for use in the kitchen, yard, and field.

A Significant Publication. H. H. Ewert was a lifelong, outstanding Mennonite educator in the United States and Canada. The Collegiate Institute, Canada, was his creation. Paul J. Schaefer has written the life story of Professor Ewert under the title Heinrich A. Ewert Lehrer, Erzieher und Prediger der Mennoniten.

THE UPPER ROOM

There is a little chamber kept for me
By hands I see not, yet, unseeing love
Where I may enter still alone and free.
Its open windows look afar and near.
It has the scent of field and piney grove.
The sea's low song drifts in with quiet cheer.
Its walls are hung with gathered memories,
Dear tokens of the scenes and souls I love,
And trophies of remembered victories.
Here the swung door all alien sound debars
And day is peace; and through the dome above
Shine down by night the sympathetic stars.
It is so sweet, familiar! Here I come
From eager toil or fields where virtue strove
When the heart needs the ministries of home.
It is the little secret chamber, Prayer:
Where the spent soul its unspent life may prove.
God opens such for all men, everywhere.

Charles Poole Cleaves

This Do in Remembrance of Me

by A. S. Rosenberger

The observance of the Lord's Supper is one of the deepest of spiritual experiences to those who enter rightly into it. This season, in which we are again reminded through Good Friday and Easter of the suffering and death of our Lord, and of his triumphant resurrection, is climaxed for many by the observance of the Supper. We take part in this sacrament at the request of Jesus, and we think of his words, "This do in remembrance of me." The object of this article is to offer some suggestions of what we need to keep in mind to make participation in the Supper most meaningful.

We should consider it a privilege to participate in this sacred service. An opportunity is hereby offered for a spiritual experience that does something for the soul. There are, no doubt, those who look upon participation in the communion service as primarily a duty. It may even be that there are those who attend largely because it is expected of every church member to be present. If any benefit is received by those who do so, it cannot possibly compare with that experienced by the regular worshipper who has looked forward with anticipation to the observance of the sacred meal and who comes with heart and mind prepared by prayer and fellowship with God through Jesus Christ. To such a one participation is not a duty but a blessed privilege that is offered for a deep and satisfying spiritual experience.

We should expect a real blessing when we partake of the Lord's Supper. This can be a soul-stirring experience. Here we partake of the bread and the wine which represent the body and blood of our Lord. The bread and wine are only symbols, but they do have the deepest meaning. We cannot physically clasp the hand of the Lord we revere, or gaze upon him in adoration, but we can accept the physical symbols which make us intensely aware of his sacrifice on Calvary. The bread represents his body which was broken for us, and the wine his blood which was shed for us. Then, as we also think of him as rising again and triumphing over death, we can enjoy something of the rich experience of those disciples on the Emmaus road who exclaimed, "Did not our heart burn within us while he talked with us by the way?" Luke 24:32.

We should focus our attention on the cross in participation in the communion service. The thought of the cross and the One who hung there should be much in mind. To so dwell on all that Christ suffered brings a deeper realization of what he did for our redemption. We should think of the agony in Gethsemane, the betrayal, the desertion by his followers, the trial, the mockery, and the crucifixion. Then we need to ask ourselves, why did Jesus have to go through all this? Why was he willing to do so? The answer comes, that it was in order that he might pay the price of man's sin and so redeem the world, and give salvation and eternal life to all who believe in him. His death opens up new life and hope for all humanity.

A testimony has been given by someone that whenever temptation comes, he brings to mind the cross and the suffering face of the one who died there in agony. In the light of this all else but that which is pleasing to him seems most unworthy, and in this direction of thought comes power to meet the test.

We should come to the Lord's Supper in a repentant spirit. Here we see sin in its right viewpoint. It was because of sin that it became necessary for the Son of God to accept the way of suffering and death. Partaking of the elements representing this sacrifice, we are made to think of how terrible sin is. In such moments, when we are touched by the overwhelming love and sacrifice of Jesus, all that is contrary to his way of life seems small and petty. God's spirit then has its opportunity to fill us with nobler and higher aims. Turning from that which should not be, we press on with his help to higher ground as we go from the observance of the Supper.

We should ask for new faith, strength and courage as we participate in the Communion service. A nourishing meal is the basis of physical sustenance. A spiritual meal is the basis of spiritual sustenance. In this service we partake of the Bread of Life. The beautiful passage in the sixth chapter of the Gospel of John suggests what feeding on the Bread of Life means. Here is the source of the abiding life. One of God's ways of touching the human heart to give us faith, strength and courage is right in the communion service. Weak moments come to us. There are times when doubts seem to overwhelm us and we do not know where we stand. The joy that we should have is conspicuous by its absence. My peace I give unto you, said Jesus. So he also gives faith, strength and courage. These qualities are always available when we turn to the spiritual resources but never more so than in the Communion service. Partaking of the elements representing the out-pouring of his life for us, conscious of his very presence in our midst, and joined in fellowship with those like-minded in our faith, we have opportunity to renew the resources of life. Thus we can "go in peace, with a triumphant faith."

---

Rev. A. S. Rosenberger is Pastor of the Salem Church, Dalton, Ohio, and Chairman of the Seminary and Bible School Board.

Edmund Miller To Become Field Secretary for Mennonite Seminary

Walter Dyck To Fill Headquarters Vacancy for Time Being

A Notice to the Treasurers of All Churches

The Seminary Board has asked Rev. Edmund Miller of Lind, Washington, to become Field Secretary for the Mennonite Biblical Seminary and Mennonite Bible School. We are glad to announce that Brother Miller has accepted the invitation. He has tendered his resignation to the Lind Church and will begin his new duties on June 1. He plans to give full time to this work until the opening of school in the fall, after which he will devote part-time to the Seminary and continue his further studies in our Seminary.—A. S. Rosenberyer, President; J. N. Smucker, Sec.

Because of the resignation of Rev. P. A. Penner as Office Manager of the General Conference Headquarters, the Executive Committee unanimously agreed to ask Rev. Walter Dyck to fill this vacancy in connection with his duties as Executive Secretary, for a period of at least six months. After Brother Dyck has become thoroughly familiar with the work and duties of the two offices, some arrangement can then be made for the permanent care of both.

We deeply appreciate the faithful and conscientious service that Brother Penner has rendered in this capacity and extend to him our heartfelt thanks and best wishes for the future. We also request the prayers of our people for Brother Dyck as he enters upon his new duties.—For the Executive Committee of General Conference, J. N. Smucker, Chairman.

It is very necessary that ALL monies intended for General Conference causes be sent to: General Conference Headquarters, 722 Main Street, Newton, Kansas. Please make checks or money orders payable to: GENERAL CONFERENCE HEADQUARTERS (not P. A. Penner or Walter H. Dyck). Be sure, also, to specify the purpose for which the money is to be used and the name and address of the donor.—Walter H. Dyck, Office Manager

---

Home Missions:

Material appearing under "Home Missions" is contributed by A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary of the Home Mission Board, Quakertown, Pa.

New Church To Be Built

East Freedom, Pa.
March 21, 1946

Beginning about the middle of February we began a series of sermons on the subject "A Period of Time With Christ." We hope to continue them until Easter when we expect to enjoy Holy Communion. In these sermons we endeavor to point out that Christ is for every day use as well as for Sunday worship.

After a long winter of cold, ice, snow, sleet and rain making travel difficult, we are glad when we can once again see the warm sunshine and the grass growing and the buds appearing. It is then we remember "This is my Father's World," and we are again reminded that after every Calvary there is an Easter.

For a number of years past we have enjoyed special meetings for one week just before Easter. However, this year we are not sure yet if this will be carried out or not.

This year at Smith Corner finds us "new Church minded." We need to take some action on this because of the poor condition of the present building. And plans are going into effect as soon as possible.

The peace and quiet of a country-side such as this on a spring Sunday makes one wonder that it is actually a part of the world in which so many cruel men are. While those faithful ones worship God on Sunday, they must go out into such a world the rest of the week and mingle with others who are not like-minded. We hope that the God of All Grace will give them strength that they may remain unspotted from the world though mingling with it. Communion on Easter Sunday is a time of spiritual strengthening. We here at Smith Corner hope for this to be true in our lives. And again may we all be reminded that "As Oft As Ye Eat This Bread and Drink This Cup Ye Do Shew The Lord's Death Till He Come."—John Raugh

---

Program for the Northern District Conference
Salem Church, Freeman, South Dakota
June 1--5

Theme: "The Teaching Ministry"

Motto: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son, and of the holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you; and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." Amen. Math. 28:19, 20.

Chorus: (Tune: Near the Cross)
In my heart, in my heart
Send a great revival
Teach me how to watch and pray
And to read the Bible.
In charge of George Dick.

Saturday, June 1 at 2:00 p.m.
Pastor's Conference
Theme: "The Pastor as an Instructor"
Conference Chorus
Song leader - Elias Schrag
Chairman - Joseph J. Hofer
Scripture reading and prayer service - Helmuth Ortman
Music - Salem Men's Chorus
Message (20 min.): "The Pastor's Sources of Instruction"
Testimony (45 min.): "The Fruits of Instructing" Rev. A. E. Kreider, Goshen, Indiana
Message (20 min.): "The Pastor Making Disciples" Jacob B. Hofer
Music - Salem Men's Chorus
Open Discussion - Leader, Arthur Ortman
Closing prayer - person appointed by chairman.

Saturday evening at 7:45
"Teaching" in the Northern District
Conference Chorus
Song service (15 min.) - Prof. W. H. Hohmann
Chairman - Vice president, George Dick
Devotions (10 min.) - Chairman
A word of Welcome - Willard K. Claassen
Music - Bethany Church Choir
Conference sermon - Willard K. Claassen
Season of prayer - led by the president
Appointment of temporary committees
Music - Bethany Church Choir
Offertory prayer - Chairman
Offertory music - local church
Offering for Civilian Public Service

Sunday morning - Mission service - arranged by host church
"Teaching" in Music

Sunday afternoon at 2:00
Conference Chorus
Leader - Gerhard J. Toews
Pianist - Mrs. Oscar Gerling
Devotions - by the leader
Roll call of all choir directors and song leaders (Each responding with a fitting verse of praise)
Music - Freeman Jr. College A Cappella Choir
Men's Quartet - in charge of Elias Schrag
Message: "The Meaning and Appreciation of Church Music" Prof. W. H. Hohmann
Music under the direction of Prof. W. H. Hohmann
Closing prayer - person chosen by the leader
Close at 4 o'clock

Sunday evening at 7:30 Motto: II Tim. 2:15
"Teaching" in our Parochial Schools
Conference Chorus
Song service in charge of the local church
Chairman - Waldo Flickinger
Devotions - Frank Ewert
Boys Quartet - Freeman Jr. College
Living Witnesses of Christian Teaching:
Bible School of Mt. Lake, Minn.
Freeman Jr. College, Freeman, S. D.
Bethany Bible School, Munich, N. D.
Bible School, Henderson, Nebraska
Bible School, Lustre-Frazer, Mont.
Music - 1st. Mennonite Church, Mt. Lake, Minn.
Message: "Christian Education in the Four Dimensions of Life." Rev. A. E. Kreider
Offertory prayer - Jacob A. Tieszen
Offertory music - Janis Krehbiel
Offering for Foreign Relief
Closing prayer - Rev. A. E. Kreider

Monday morning Conference Business
Prayer service 8:30-9:00 led by Victor Graber
Conference Chorus
Chairman - Willard K. Claassen
Singing - John G. Unruh
Devotions - I. J. Dick
Message: "Lord teach us how to pray" - Rev. A. E. Kreider
Music - New Hutterthal Church
Conference Business - starting at 10:00 o'clock
1. Consideration of the minutes
2. Reading of Delegate Certificates
3. Treasurer's Report
4. Solicitor's Report
5. Complimentary Votes Report
6. Statistician's Report
7. Report of Educational Committee
Closing prayer - Michael J. Hofer

Monday afternoon at 1:30 - Continuation of Business
Conference Chorus
Reading of Scripture and prayer - P. J. Stahl
Message (30 min.): "Religious Instruction in the Home" - Rev. A. E. Kreider
Music - Salem-Zion Church Choir
Business continued - 2:15 p.m.
1. Report of Peace Committee (1 hr. 15 min.)
2. Report of Examining Committee
3. Report of Evangelization Committee (2 hrs.)
4. Election of Officers
Closing prayer - Jacob Hoffman
Close at 5 o'clock

Monday evening at 7:30

The Sunday School as a Workshop

II Tim. 3:15; Prov. 22:6

Leader - S.S. Superintendent of Salem Church
General singing led by Prof. W. H. Hohmann
Devotions - Frank Harder
Special music - Primary Group, Bethesda Church, Marion
A Primary Dept. Class Demonstration - Mrs. A. E. Linscheid
Bible choruses - All children up to age 12 in charge of Joe G. Graber
An Intermediate Class Demonstration - Mrs. Robert Graber
Message: "The Place of the Sunday School in American Life" - Erland Waltner
Offertory prayer - Rosemary Linscheid
Offering for District Evangelization Work

Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock

Conference Chorus
Song service - led by Prof W. H. Hohmann
Memorial service and season of prayer August Ewert
Communion Sermon - Rev. A. E. Kreider
Communion service in charge of the host pastor
Hymn
Prayer
Business continued

1. Report of Tellers Committee
2. Extension of Evangelization Committee Report
3. Registrar's Report
4. Invitation for the next Conference
5. Report of Resolution Committee

Closing prayer

Tuesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock

Women's Missionary Program

Chairwoman - Mrs. Ed. P. Graber
Devotions (10 min.): - Mrs. August Ewert
Music - Bethlehem Mennonite Church, Bloomfield, Mont.
Chalk Illustration: Swiss Menn. Church, Alsen, S.D.
Music - First Mennonite Church, Madrid, Neb.
Talk - Mrs. H. J. Brown
Music - Bethany Mennonite Church, Freeman, S.D.
Music - Hutterdorf Church, Freeman, S.D.
Reading - Friedensberg Mennonite Church, Avon, S.D.
Poetry: - Bethesda Church, Marion, S.D.
Ladies Chorus (2 Nos.) North and South Churches combined
Offertory - Mrs. Ben Nickel
Business and Roll Call

Tuesday evening at 7:30 Christian Endeavor Convention

Conference Chorus
Chairman - Frank W. Loewen
Song service - Prof. W. H. Hohmann
Devotions - George Hoffman
Special Music by the local church
Message: Exposition of Psalm 1 Rev. A. E. Kreider
Mass Chorus of all church choirs - led by Prof. Hohmann
Offertory prayer - Jacob B. Hofer
Offertory music - Betty Preheim
Offering for Northern District Conference
Closing prayer

Wednesday Young People's Day Program

Speaker and Song Leader - Rev. Marvin J. Dirks

I. Morning 9:00-11:15

General singing - Woodland, Minn.
Prelude
Devotions - Warroad, Minn.
Music - Bethesda, Henderson, Neb.
Message: - Rev. Marvin Dirks
Music - Freeman College Girls' Trio
Presentation of Gen. Conf. Y.P.U. (its aims, activities and purposes) - Verney Unruh, Bethlehem Bloomfield, Mont.
Music - Swiss Menn. Church, Alsen, N.D.
Closing
Choir practice 10:30-11:15

II. Young People's Social Hour 11:15-2:00

III. Afternoon 2:00-5:00

Round Table Discussion - Rep. from Bethlehem, Bloomfield, Mont.; Bethesda, Henderson, Neb.; Gospel, Mt. Lake, Minn.; Salem-Zion, Freeman, S.D.; Salem, Munich, N.D.
Business Meeting - Reports, Election, Recommendations

Choir Practice 4:00-5:00

IV. Evening

Prelude
Young People's Chorus - Rev. Marvin Dirks
Devotions - Bethel, Wolf Point, Mont.
Special Music - Bethel, Mt. Lake, Minn.
Message: - Rev. Marvin Dirks
Young People's Chorus - Rev. Marvin Dirks
Closing

**

—Busines Committee: L. H. Linscheid, Ed. Duerksen, B. J. Nickel

World Food Crisis

(Statistics by Emergency Economic Committee for Europe.)

1. Approximately 100,000,000 people in Europe will be receiving an average total diet of 1500 calories per person per day or less. These are largely non-farm people, which includes about 74 per cent of the population of Austria, 75 per cent of Germany, 50 per cent of Hungary, 59 per cent of Italy, 40 per cent of Spain, 43 per cent of Finland, 30 per cent of Romania.

2. About 40,000,000 people in Europe will receive an average total diet of over 1500 but less than 2000 calories daily.

3. Between 2000 and 2500 calories is the estimated average in the cities of Belgium, Norway, Poland and the Netherlands.

4. An average of over 2500 calories will be available only for the non-farm populations of Denmark, Sweden, Switzerland, the United Kingdom and for the farm populations of many of the countries previously mentioned.

IT IS ESTIMATED BY HEALTH AUTHORITIES THAT 2650 CALORIES ARE NEEDED ON THE AVERAGE TO PRESERVE HEALTH AND EFFICIENCY.

Contrast with America. The United States News for February 22, 1946 reports that the people of the United States will eat better in 1946 than in any previous peacetime year. U. S. civilians will get close to 90 per cent of our production, the military about 4 per cent, anl exports for both relief and commercial trade abroad will be only 5 to 6 per cent of our total food supply. U. S. consumers will average about 3360 calories per day.

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Vice President
Verney Unruh
Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

The Meaning of the Crucifixion and the Resurrection of Christ

by Orlo Kaufman

The life of Jesus is a unit. The whole of it gives meaning to the separate parts. The crucifixion without the resurrection would mean moral chaos. The resurrection without the crucifixion would offer no hope of redemption to man. And even the two together without taking into account the life of Jesus would be meaningless, for it was Christ's love for those who recognized their sinfulness and and sought help, His compassion for the ill and sorrowing, and His judgment upon the self-righteous and self-sufficient that gives meaning to these events. It was His life that caused the disciples to look for and find meaning in the cross and in the resurrection.

The disciples prior to His resurrection misunderstood the nature of His Messiahship. They anticipated a national kingdom with all the nations being made subject to the Jewish state. It appears that they expected an establishing of it even on their last journey to Jerusalem for they disputed among themselves as to who was the greatest. Their expectations however ended tragically and they were "scattered as sheep without a shepherd." That which they had expected to end in victory and deliverance ended in shame and defeat. The one whom they thought to be the anointed of God was nailed to the cross, the symbol of being accursed.

There Was Darkness

The Gospel writers have by various means tried to give us a picture of the tragedy of this hour. The writer of John suggested it when he wrote, "he (Judas) then having received the sop went out straightway, and it was night." Luke expressed it when he recorded the words of Jesus, "this is your hour, and the power of darkness." In Matthew immediately following the crucifixion we read, "now from the sixth hour, there was darkness over the whole land until the ninth hour. . . . And behold, the veil of the temple was rent in two from the top to the bottom; and the earth did quake; and the rocks were rent."

The darkness however lay much deeper than physical darkness; this was but a suggestion of a greater darkness.

First it was an hour of darkness in that these events were misunderstood. Jesus had on various occasions told the disciples of these coming events but their hearts and minds were set on an earthly kingdom and when this failed to materialize they all fled. They failed to realize, as did the soldiers who mocked Him, that if He saved Himself, He could not save others, that the giving of His life was essential to the establishing of His Kingdom of love and righteousness.

The darkness and tragedy however lay deeper than in just a misunderstanding of the events.

The crucifixion was a rejection of Christ, the son of God. The Jewish religious leaders were so engrossed in the legalism of the "traditions" and in the preconceived notions of the coming Messiah that they had no place for Christ and His demand for righteousness. Their laws of cleanliness were so rigid and final that they offered no hope to the "publicans and sinners." Their laws governing a person's life were so detailed and external in demand that the spirit of love and goodwill was crushed. Their worked-out concepts as to the coming Messiah were so logical that acceptance of Christ as the Messiah was unthinkable.

But not only was the Jewish religion bankrupt, so were the hearts of the multitudes. The multitudes heard Him gladly, yet when He failed to become their King on their demands they cried, "Crucify Him, crucify Him!" The crucifixion was an hour of darkness in that it was a rebellion of man against God.

The true tragedy and darkness of the hour was in the triumph of evil and the power of sin. Christ, who was the Son of God, was rejected, died the death of a traitor and was laid in the tomb. This indeed was the hour of darkness. In it evil was triumphant over good, wrong proved greater than right, unrighteousness was victorious over righteousness, injustice defeated justice.

Man's Hope of Redemption

This tragedy of Good Friday, however, became the hope of man on Easter morning, for Christ arose and the forces of evil and unrighteousness were defeated in what was their greatest victory. While the tragedy still remained towering above and overshadowing, it was the love of God revealed in these events man's hope of redemption through the risen Christ, and the triumph of righteousness over unrighteousness.

The crucifixion of Christ which they had interpreted to mean that God had rejected Christ as the Messiah had to be reinterpreted in the light the resurrection, for the resurrection meant to them that the death on the cross was according to God's will and purpose, that the suffering and agony of Christ was for the sins of the world, that it was a deed of God in behalf of man's deliverance from the forces of evil and the power of sin.

God doing such a deed in behalf of man meant to them that God loves man and that He seeks to save him. John expressed it beautifully, "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life." The depth of love they saw in this deed is further indicated in the following words, "herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins." In this supreme sacrifice which Christ accepted willingly and without apology was revealed to them the love wherewith they are loved, and the intense longing where with they are sought after by God.

In the second place, they saw that this was an act of judgment upon sin and death. In the crucifixion was revealed all the tragedy and horror of sin. For here Christ the Son of God, who loved, who served, who healed, who gave His very life was being nailed to a cross by those who were self-centered, proud, and self-righteous. The contrast between the two was never more clearly and dramatically revealed. But even more significant was the defeat of the forces of sin and death. Sin had done its greatest work but Christ arose and this meant that they through Christ can have the same victory. That through union with Him, Christ living in them, these forces can have no power over them.

A New Joy, Peace, and Power

Seeing the meaning of these events they experienced a new joy, peace and power. The spirit of Christ was poured upon them; they became new creatures in Christ. Peter who three times denied his Lord now stood before the multitudes daring to declare Christ as the Messiah, and multitudes were converted. Converts as they were scattered abroad because of persecution went everywhere preaching the gospel. Paul who first was the early Christians' greatest opponent, became a convert and traveled over the known world as Christianity's greatest missionary.

As we look back at these events and the early Christians' interpretation of them we need ask ourself, what do they mean to us.

As Christians the meaning of these events to us in the same that it was to the early Christians, which I have indicated and will here summarize. The first is that God loves man and that He seeks man's redemption. That it is His deepest desire that man be reconciled unto Him so that he may receive and enter God's Kingdom. Second, that the death and resurrection was a deed in behalf of man, that only in the acceptance of them as such for us is there hope for man's redemption and power of a new life in Christ. Third, the cross must be accepted by Christians, as the early Christians did so magnificently, for only as Christians walk across the ways of the world and accept the tragedy and suffering of sin upon themselves as Christ accepted the sin of the world can they

Calvary and Easter

A song of sunsine through the rain,
Of spring across the snow;
A balm to heal the hurts of pain
A peace surpressing woe.
Lift up your heads, ye sorrowing ones,
And be ye glad of heart,
For Calvary and Easter Day
Were just three days apart.

With shudder of despair and loss
The world's deep heart is wrung,
As, lifted high upon his cross,
The Lord of Glory hung—
When rocks were rent, and ghostly forms
Stole forth in street and mart;
But Calvary and Easter Day,
Earth's blackest day and whitest day,
Were just three days apart.

—Author Unknown

be the channels of the transforming power of Christ. Fourth, these events are the assurance of the final triumph of good over evil, of righteousness over unrighteousness, of love over hate, etc., beyond history. And that as Christians we may without fear remain true to Christ's demands knowing that beyond history His kingdom shall be established and we shall share in its blessings.

Experiences in Dutch Relief

So far the clothing distribution has been our main interest and work in Holland. However, with the increasing tide of Russian Mennonite immigration, it is becoming a lesser part—and yet by no means unimportant as far as needs go. More requests are flooding in every day.

Our group has become a regular roving group. Monday morning is usually a busy time at our home in Amsterdam. The trucks, which have been loaded on Saturday with bales of clothing and cases of shoes and soap stand ready while the last minute rush of gathering the packages of food rations, sandwiches, suitcases and blankets goes on. When everything is on the trucks a few girls get into the cars and the others find cozy seats among boxes and bales and wrap up in blankets like Indian squaws to keep warm. Our drivers—first Siegfried Janzen, then Corny Dyck and now Bob Goering, have become very apt at finding their way through small village streets and along cannals without taking off the corners!

Upon arrival in a new city the problem of arranging our clothing for efficient distribution always faces us. At some places the facilities were very meager, and at others one merely said the word and had more than you could wish for! We have found that some church pews almost seem to be made to order for clothing distribution. And the steps leading up to the pulpit are ideal for a display of shoes.

In each church several Dutch Doopsgesinde women help us. It is an excellent means of fellowship to work side by side with our fellow church people. And what haven't we learned of Dutch life and cutsoms by living in their homes?

When the clothing has been unpacked and laid out, the really interesting work begins—the distribution. In almost every instance the people are fairly overwhelmed with the amount and the quality of the clothing. It is something they have not seen in the last few years. Many a person has expressed gratitude and thanks with tear-filled eyes—and it has meant ever so much more to them because it came from their brothers in the faith in America. It is indeed a happy work making others happy.

And so the work continues, amidst various conditions, until young and old have been helped. At the end of the week or when a distribution has been completed we all return to Amsterdam for a Sunday together as a unit. —Elma Esau.

Conditions on Walcheren

Last week we distributed clothing at Middleburg and Vlissingen, Walcheren, and this week we are down here in lower Zeeland in the town of Aadenburg. We have seen much of war's destruction in the Hague, Rotterdam, Arnhem and over the countryside, but the desolation of the erstwhile beautiful island of Walcheren is almost beyond description. In addition to being bombed and shelled the land was also flooded and the receding water leaves the ground absolutely barren.

In Vlissingen, a town of 20,000, there are very few houses that were not destroyed to a greater or lesser extent by shells or by water. So much of the shelling was done indiscriminately from the sea. On every street can be seen the evidences of war..... All in all, the land spells desolation.

One of the remarkable things is the indomitable courage of the people. They are happy that the war is over and they are facing the future with new hope, being thankful for all small favors. Our clothing is to them a Godsend, and when we presented our hostess with a can of chicken the other day she said, "Well, my children do not know what this is." They are three boys—ten, seven and three —and to think they don't know what chicken is!

We are busy in our work, but we like it. We feel richer for the experience of living in a house that has hardly any conveniences. The windows are boarded up, every wall is shell-marked and even the bed in which we sleep has shell holes through both the foot and head ends. Rain comes through the ceiling freely. Each week takes us to a different community. Two weeks ago we distributed over 10,600 pieces of clothing to non-Mennonites in Haarlem, and next week we go to Nijmegen.

—Lulu Smith

—First Church, Berne, Indiana: On Sunday evening, March 17, Dr. Carl Armerding of Moody Bible Institute completed a week's series of services, sponsored by the C.E. Society. His messages were of the expository type and were deeply appreciated. On Saturday night a color, sound film was shown on the "Wonders of God's Creation" in the telescopic and microscopic world, and were actual photographs taken. At the morning service an offering was taken for the "Heifers-for-Relief" project.—Martha Gilliom, Corr.

Youth Events

On March 27, a program was given at the First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho, at which Elmer Eliger, president of the Young Peoples Union described the work of the General Conference Young People. The different Christian Endeavor groups of the church were represented. A song service was led by Arthur Isaak, president of the Young Peoples Christian Endeavor. Rev. H. N. Harder led devotions. The program consisted of talks by Alice Lehman and Mrs. H. N. Harder. Reported by Elsie Wiebe.

The conscription question has been facing the Senate Military Affairs Committee with considerable urgency. The recent crises with Russia have added fuel to the fire as the military group urges an extension of the Selective Service Act. On Tuesday, March 26, the Senate Committee voted on such an extension with the War Department pressing for a year's extension to the draft as a compromise for permanent conscription. This was voted down and an extension of the draft to July 1 was favored. The present chaos internationally, and with many a person stubbornly saying the only protection is a nailed fist, all contributes to the military way of doing things. In the light of this, it is almost surprising that the Senate Committee gave their nod to such a short extension of the draft. People must be sick of war.

The Senior Class of Bethel College is preparing to give a play, "The Brother" which portrays the life of James the brother of Jesus.

There were 5623 men in Civilian Public Service, March 15, 1946. About 500 of these had discharges pending. At its peak in October there were 8591 men in camp which means approximately 38 per cent of the October manpower has been released. At the end of March, CPS still has about 65 per cent of its maximum strength.

There are at present about 2,600,000 men in the army which has shrunk to 31 per cent of its maximum strength. This means the army has shrunk two-thirds while CPS has shrunk one third.

Since one of the four groups held in horror camps by the Nazis in Germany were conscientious objectors, the following statement appearing in "Christianity and Crisis" is of interest: "The simple fact is that few Americans have any adequate notion of the truth about the brave minority in Germany who risked their lives to stand by their convictions; nor, apparently, have our fellow citizens been given any understanding concerning the numbers who were killed because of this kind of opposition to the cruel and ruthless Nazi machine." Amazing stories are filtering through about the bravery and strength with which certain German citizens refused to bow to a man-made government.

One fourth of all relief workers out under the M.C.C., are or have been C.P.S. men at one time or another. This includes the unit at Puerto Rico which is considered a relief project.

Six years ago, Mr. Perry Hayden of Tecumseh, Michigan, a Quaker miller, planted one cubic inch of wheat. At harvest time, a ten per cent tithe was given to the church and the remainder was planted. The first five years Mr. Henry Ford furnished the land for the "Biblical Wheat." The fifth year 230 acres were planted after 10 per cent was given to the church. This year 2,500 acres have been planted by 250 farmers who will harvest the wheat and give 10 per cent of the yield to 150 churches. If the experiment were continued, it is estimated that the cubic inch of wheat would cover the U. S. in the tenth year anl cover the globe in thirteen years.

During the war, the Netherlands Bible Society, under the most adverse circumstances succeeded in publishing the Bible or portions of it in four new languages. The entire Bible was translated and published in the Frisian language spoken in a northern Dutch province. The Dutch Psalms were revised into the current language of the people. A Javanese New Testament was published and a Sangir New Testament. The later two were provided for missionary work in the Dutch East Indias.

"True godliness does not turn men out of the world, but enables them to live better in it, and excites their endeavor to mend it. . . . Christians should keep the helm, and guide the vessel to its port—not meanly steal out at the stern of the world and leave those that are in it without a pilot, to be driven by the fury of evil times upon the rock or sands of ruin." — William Penn

"The presence (of God) is given to be received; when received it incorporates us into the body of Christ, so that in 'the power of His eternal sacrifice we may take our allotted share therein, 'filling up what is lacking of the sufferings of Christ for His body's sake, which is the church'. The proof that we have received the Presence is the increase of love in our daily lives. . . If a man goes out from his communion to love and serve men better he has received the real Presence. If he feels every thrill and tremor of devotion, but goes out as selfish as before, he has not received it. It was offered, but he did not receive it."

RELIEF

lans Made for Builders' Unit.

On March 21 and 22 a meeting was held at the overstein refugee home in Holland to make plans r the builders' unit in Europe. Work will likely egin on the Island of Walcheren in Holland where wo large Mennonite congregations are located. The ork will consist of repairing and rebuilding homes hat have been damaged or destroyed by bombing, helling and flooding. The M.C.C. group will consist at first of eleven members; nine of this number re under appointment and will leave as soon as ossible. Henry Detweiler and Irvin Horst are now oing contact work preliminary to beginning actual perations.

Vorkers Leave

Brother and Sister Gerhard Buhr are scheduled to eave for Paraguay on April 8 from New Orleans. hey will probably be located at the Mennonite enter in Asuncion, serving as Secretary-Treasurer nd Matron respectively, succeeding Brother and ister Elvin Souder in these services.

elief Worker Summary

The number of M.C.C. and M.R.C. workers now on he field or enroute is 138. This is 29 more than were n the field on January 1, 1946. They are distributed as follows:

Latin America		58
Paraguay	17
Puerto Rico	41
Middle East		18
Italy	13
Ethiopia	5
Far East		15
India	7
China	8
Northwestern Europe		47
Northwest Europe	3
Germany	1
Denmark	1
England	10
France	15
Belgium	5
Switzerland	2
Holland	10
TOTAL NUMBER MCC and MRC workers		138

Relief Workers Appointed

The M.C.C. Executive Committee, meeting in Chicago on March 30, made the following appointments to relief work:

Philippine Islands

Roy Smucker, Smithville, Ohio

Builders' Unit

Herman Ropp, Kalona, Iowa; Virgil Brenneman, Kalona, Iowa

India

Mary Elizabeth Amstutz, Pandora, O.; Esther Grace Book, Upland, Calif.; Vera M. Good, Waterloo, Ontario.

Holland

Mrs. Irvin B. Horst, Harrisonburg, Va.

Paraguay

Ernst Harder, Chicago, Illinois; Gerhard Warkentin, Los Angeles, California; Mrs. Gerhard Warkentin, Los Angeles, California.

Paraguay to Admit Mennonite Refugees

Official confirmation has been received at this office that the Department of Land and Colonization of the Government of Paraguay has given their consent to the immigration of Mennonites from Europe. According to the provisions of Law No. 514, July 26, 1921, immigrants shall enjoy the right to "practice their religion and to worship with absolute liberty without restriction and, consequently, to make affirmation by simple 'yes' or 'no' in courts and justice instead of by oath; and to be exempt from obligatory military service either as combatants or non-combatants both in times of peace and during war." Numerous other privileges and franchises are granted under the same law.

Clothing Distribution in Italy

A shipment of eight tons of clothing and soap has arrived in Italy and has been distributed in Jewish Displaced Persons' Camps and to needy Italian children. A letter of gratitude was received from the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee expressing their "deep appreciation to the Mennonites for this characteristic action and concern for the welfare of persecuted and distressed human beings. . . . The spirit which prompted the giving fortifies the courage and spirit of our unfortunate brethern."

RELIEF BRIEFS

Vera Yoder and Verna Zimmerman have had their passports validated for Hankow, China.

C. P. S.

Recent Staff Appointments

Following are some staff appointments recently approved by the MCC Executive Committee:

Harvey L. Goering, Assistant and Educational Director; Belton, Montana

Ralph K. Bargen, Business Manager; Three Rivers, California

Arthur Smucker, Educational Director; Norristown, Pennsylvania

Richard Jantzen, Assistant Director; Allentown, Pennsylvania

Virgil Flickinger; California, Oregon, Washington Area Supervisor

Richard Weaver, Director; Belton Montana

Mrs. Richard Weaver, Dietitian; Belton, Montana

Headquarters Personnel Additions

Three CPS men have recently arrived at MCC headquarters and have taken up their respective duties as follows:

George Falb, replacing John Jennings as Pennsylvania-Maryland Area Supervisor of diary farmers and herd testers; Harry Wenger, Field Auditor, helping in the dissolution of closing units and camps; Paul Neuenschwander, electrician and maintenance man.

C.P.S. BRIEFS

Total expenditures for MCC-CPS for the year starting December 1, 1944, and ending November 30, 1945, were $824,993.78.

The Livermore, California Hospital unit has requested a twenty-man decrease in unit strength.

A weekend conference with the theme of "The Anabaptist Vision" is to be held at Akron headquarters, Pennsylvania on April 5, 6, and 7. Speakers are H. S. Bender, Donovan Smucker, F. H. Littel, and P. C. Hiebert. Littel is the director of religious life on the campus of the University of Ann Arbor.

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

The past week we had our annual Clean-up Day sponsored by the Students' Association. On the appointed day students and faculty members come appropriately dressed, bringing the necessary tools. Boys with trucks are joined by boys with shovels to haul away ashes and other debris. Boys armed with spades dig around trees; others with pruning shears give the hedges their spring haircut. Brigades of girls scatter over the campus and comb it with rakes until the most elusive leaf is banished. Bonfires appear and the smoky air adds to the mounting appetites. Others are busy bringing order in neglected nooks or cleaning exhibits in the museum. From the somber offices of the school's hierarchy comes the sound of exuberant music and youthful hilarity. A group of especially enthusiastic College girls wield paintbrushes, accompanying their music witr rythmic strokes and spatters. Tantalizing odors waft from the Foods Room, and as soon as the dinner call is sounded the food line is formed and everyone joins in a song of thanksgiving. Ravenous appetites are satisfied by the huge helpings of delicious food prepared by the Home Economics girls. Sociably everyone visits with his neighbors. Blisters are compared, aching muscles are predicted and everybody goes back to complete the job. There is a feeling that working together with our hands develops a unity and fellowship that is hard to equal. —Marie Waldner

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

Faculty representatives will hold a week-end Christian Workers Institute in the church at Summerfield, Illinois, April 27 and 28. Carl Lehman, Paul Shelly, and I. W. Bauman will make the trip. There will be Saturday evening and Sunday morning and afternoon sessions. Carl Smucker is expected to join the College staff next year, introducing a new course leading to specialization in the field of social service. Mr. Smucker is well prepared in that field, since he has worked with the welfare department of the State of Ohio for a number of years. He is now doing graduate work and teaching at Ohio State University as well as working part time in the welfare department. He will likely continue part time work in that department next year. The Junior Play, The Little Minister was given April 12. President Ramseyer and Professor Lantz represented the faculty at an alumni meeting in Columbus April 10. The semi-annual meeting of the Board of Trustees was held April 9.

BETHEL COLLEGE

To the names of four new faculty members welcomed for the new school year of 1946-47, the President's Office has recently announced two more additions. Rev. David C. Wedel, B.D., who has in the past few years been teaching Church Administration in the ministerial training course, comes now as full-time Assistant Professor of Bible and Religious Education. A graduate of Bethel ('33) and Colgate-Rochester Divinity School('36), he has served the Halstead Mennonite Church as pastor for ten years and has held various positions of leadership and responsibility in Conference activities and on the College Board of Directors. William L. Friesen, B.S., ('41, from the University of Nebraska) will be the new Instructor of Agriculture and Farm Manager. For the past several years he has been teaching vocational agriculture in Nebraska high schools and has done graduate work at Colorado State College of Agriculture.

OUR SEMINARY AND BIBLE SCHOOL

We are glad to have our President, Dr. Warkentin, back in our midst again after a week's absence during which time he served the First Mennonite Church of Nappanee, Indiana, with a series of pre-Easter messages. These messages centered around the theme of "Meeting the Master." In connection with these meetings, the majority of the Mennonite students drove to Nappanee Friday evening to take part in the services. An octet sang four numbers, Willard Wiebe spoke briefly on "Why Did I Choose The Ministry" and Miss Ruth Ewert spoke on "Why Did I Choose Religious Education." The entire group enjoyed a delicious meal and Christian fellowship in the home of the Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Shrock.

On April 2, all those taking degrees from the School took comprehensive examinations. Three of our students who are planning on taking the Master Of Religious Education Degree were in the group. They are Robert Hartzler, LaVerne Rutschman and Gerhard Neufeld, Robert W. Hartzler and LaVerne Rutschman are having pre-Easter evangelistic services at Pekin, Illinois, in one of the Central Conference Churches, during the week of April 7. After this series they will also serve the Silverstreet Church at Goshen, Indiana, during the week of April 14. We pray that the Lord may richly bless their ministry in these churches.

IN MEMORIAM

REVEREND D. D. UNRUH

Reverend D. D. Unruh, son of Reverend D. H. Unruh and Sara (Kliewer) Unruh, was born on May 20, 1859, in the village of Alexanderwohl in South Russia. He spent his youth there and received his early training in the village school of that country.

In 1874 he came to America with his parents, during the great Mennonite emigration to this country and found his home in McPherson county, Kansas. Here, in the home of his parents, he often experienced the hardships of pioneer life in a new and strange country among a people whose language and ways he knew not. He tried to adapt himself to the new surroundings and attended the school arranged here and at Alexanderwohl and later at Halstead, Kansas. He entered the teaching profession and taught German school for eleven years.

Pioneer Days

He often told of the hardships of these days; how his grandfather died on the way to his new home in America and was buried in Topeka, Kansas; how their money was stolen on the trip to their new home. But he said that God wonderfully provided, and this strengthened his faith in His guiding and protecting hand.

Having accepted Christ as his personal Savior, he was baptized by Reverend Dietrich Gaeddert on September 16, 1883, and accepted as a member into the Hoffnungsau church, whose faithful member and servant he remained till his death.

On April 18, 1886, he united in marriage with Susanna Gaeddert, daughter of Reverend Dietrich Gaeddert. Into this home eleven children were born, eight sons and three daughters. Of these, five sons and one daughter have preceded him into the Great Beyond, as also has our mother on May 7, 1945.

Elected to Ministry

On January 16, 1904, he was elected to the ministry of the Hoffnungsau church and was ordained for this work by Reverend Abraham Ratzlaff, on May 20, 1905. He served in the ministry for about thirty years, resigning in 1934 because of advanced age and failing strength. He was deeply interested in the youth of the church, helped to organize the Hoffnungsau Christian Endeavor Society, and was active in Sunday School from its very beginning. He served as Sunday School teacher for a long number of years, and also was on the board of directors of Bethel College for nine years.

Entered Home for Aged

In 1925 he retired from the farm and moved to Buhler, where he lived till after the death of mother. After this he made his home with his children, but spent the last years of his life in the Home for The Aged at Goessel, Kansas.

Celebrated Golden Wedding

On April 18, 1936, the parents were permitted to celebrate their golden wedding with all children and grandchildren about them. In all they were permitted to share joys and hardships for fifty-seven years.

He reached the age of 86 years, 9 months, and 21 days. He leaves to mourn his departure, three sons and their wives, John of Sedgwick; David of Inman; and Otto of Clay Center, two daughters and their husbands, Maria, Mrs. Peter Wall of Buhler, and Martha, Mrs. Ferdinand Regler, of Moundridge. Surviors are also ten grandchildren and four great grandchildren. Four sisters, Mrs. Sara (Unruh) Hiebert, Miss Maria Unruh, Mrs. Katharina (Unruh) Buller and Mrs. Agnes (Unruh) Janzen, all of Newton; and a great number of relatives and friends and a loving congregation which he loved and for which he prayed much. May his memory be blessed.—The bereaved Family —"What Is Freedom?" has been announced as the subject of Dr. George A. Buttrick's address to be given at the fifteenth annual Bethel College Booster Program, which begins with a reception in Memorial Hall on Friday evening, April 26, at seven o'clock. All of the churches conducting every-member visits in the interests of Christian education at Bethel College have not sent in their reports, but it is hoped that not less than two thousand generous friends will receive invitations and attend this event.

JOTTINGS

—Correcton: In the financial report given in the issue of March 26, the Mennonite Bible Mission, Chicago, should have been credited with all the amounts listed for the Mennonite Country Church, Monroe, Washington. The figures slipped down one line too far. So the Bible Mission gave a total of $118.16 and not the Monroe Church.

—First Church, Nappanee, Indiana: On March 31 we observed Roll Call Sunday in our church. This was the first Sunday of our week of Lenten services. On Friday evening the Mennonite Seminary quartet will furnish us with special music.—Mrs. Loyal Corwin, Corr.

—West Zion Church, Moundridge, Kansas: Rev. W. F. Unruh prepared daily meditations for Passion Week. These could be used for daily devotions. Loris Habegger student minister, preached March 17; he will preach again on Good Friday. A playlet, portraying the life of migrant peoples in our country, was presented at the last program of the Mission Workers. The Student Volunteer Band of Bethel College gave us an inspiring program on a recent Sunday evening. Twelve other churches came to our church to observe jointly the World Day of Prayer.—Mrs. Ernest Miller, Corr.

—Zoar Church, Goltry, Oklahoma: Our choir and chorus have recently given programs at the Meno Church, at the Nazarene Church in Clear Springs, and in the the community building of our town. The A Cappella Choir of the Grace Bible Institute is to sing for us Good Friday morning.—Mrs. J. W. Bergen, Corr.

—First Church north of Butterfield, Minnesota: Four successive messages were spoken on I Cor. 1:30 with the respective topics: "Wisdom," "Righteousness," "Sanctification," and "Redemption," by the Rev. M. M. Lehmann of Page, North Dakota, at the evening services held during the last week in March. The ladies purchased an electric range for the church kitchen. Brother Rudolph Toews of our church leads a rural Sunday school in an unchurched vicinity. Provision has been made to hold a monthly Sunday evening service in the same neighborhood. —Mrs. C. S. Harder, Corr.

—First Church, Reedley, California: The Ladies Missionary Birthday Luncheon was held March 21 with approximately 140 ladies present. Ida Stein of Oakland was the guest speaker. The collection amounted to over two hundred dollars. The California S. S. and C. E. convention will be held in our church April 5-7. Contributions for a total of 176 blankets for European relief have thus far been made by members of our church. For the past several years our church budget, which is for church expenses only, has been raised by subscription. All offerings taken at church services are used for benevolent causes. The collections on the first Sunday of the month go toward foreign missions, on the second for home missions, on the third for foreign relief, the fourth for Pacific District Conference, and on a fifth Sunday the collection is divided equally for education and publication of our General Conference. Our quota for the C.P.S. camps is raised by private subscription.—Mrs. R. Ewy, Corr.

—The announcement of the University of Chicago Round Table discussion of "America's Economic Future" as the fifth number of the 1945-46 Bethel College Memorial Hall Series has been received with widespread interest. At a season ticket cost of $1.00 plus tax nearly three thousand friends during this school year have had the opportunity of hearing Roland Hayes, Negro tenor, Ruth Bryan Owen Rohde, America's first woman diplomat, Percy Garinger, pianist and composer, the original Don Cossack Chorus, and now on May 3, the University of Chicago Round Table.

—Grace Church, Dallas, Oregon: We have had to enlarge our building for more Sunday School room. On March 31 we knocked the top off the building thermometer with an offering of $710.43. Every fifth Sunday we had an offering for the building fund. The average attendance in Sunday School so far this year has been 221½, or an increase of 27½ over a year ago. We want to go over the three hundred mark. Forty-five of our young people gave a request program on the evening of March 31. It sure gives us great joy to see a group of young folks on fire for God.—Mrs. David Balzer

—Bethel College Church: A daily vacation Bible school is again being planned to be held in the First Mennonite Church, May 27 to June 13. Our Education Committee, H. A. Fast, Chairman, J. W. Fretz and Cornelius Krahn is assisting the committee of the First Mennonite Church in setting up the school. The catechetical class is discussing "Worship in the Church." After finishing this subject the remainder of the year's work will be given to the story of the Christian Church with special emphasis upon the origin, work and teachings of the Mennonite Church. Baptismal service will be held on Pentecost Day June 9. At their monthly meeting last Monday, the ministers of Newton went on record as being opposed to any race segregation or discrimination against colored people in the proposed recreational facilities which the voters are asked to endorse in the coming city election. There is considerable race discrimination among certain business establishments in the city. It is good to know where the representatives of the Christian churches stand on this issue.—Bethel College Church Tidings

Mrs. G. A. Linscheid
222 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

ORDER BLANK

The subscription price for The Mennonite for 1946 is: New Subscriptions $1.25 for the first year, Renewals $1.75 per year.

Please use this Order Blank when sending in your subscription and underscore the word New or Renewal to correspond with the type of subscription you are to pay for.

Name --

Street or Route --------------------------------

Address ---------------------------------------

Remittances from Canada should be made by Postal Money Order only. Please write name and address plainly to avoid errors.

Mennonite Publication Office
Newton, Kansas

THE 1946 "MENNONITE YEAR BOOK"

Many subscribers to "The Mennonite" have been waiting anxiously for the new "Mennonite Year Book." This should have been ready for distribution in January, but due to shortage of help at the printing plant, difficulty in obtaining materials, etc., the completing of the book has been delayed. However, the printer has reported that the bulk of the copies will be completed during the first week in April.

Every subscriber to "The Mennonite" whose subscription has been paid in full for 1946, at the regular renewal rate of $1.75, is entitled to a free copy of the "Year Book." A record has been kept of all readers who are entitled to a free copy, and the books will be mailed to all of these as soon as they are ready. In case anyone does not receive his or her copy by the middle of April, please notify the Mennonite Publication Office, 722 Main Street, Newton, Kansas, and a copy will be mailed at once. It should be noted, however, that the "Year Book" is not given free to new subscribers who have paid only $1.25 for their paper, nor to those who are receiving the paper on the 100 per cent Church Subscription Plan and also pay only $1.25. But anyone desiring a copy of the 'Year Book" can obtain one by sending twenty-five cents to the Mennonite Publication Office at the above named address. A sufficient supply will be on hand to accommodate all who act promptly.

The Mennonite

Volume 61 April 23, 1946 Number 17

General Conference picture taken at session held at Memorial Hall, North Newton, Kansas, May 31 to June 5, 1945.

The General Conference Is Still Growing

The General Conference was born at a conference held May 28-29, 1860, by the Zion and West Point Mennonite churches, near West Point, Iowa. It seems that not more than four outside visitors were present. However, one of these, J. H. Oberholtzer, was elected chairman of the conference. Additional conferences were held in 1861, 1863, 1866. By 1869 "the conference was functioning on basically the same system as at present." Represented were churches from Iowa, Illinois, Ohio, and Pennsylvania.

In the following decades more churches joined. A great many additions came from the settlements of the Russian Mennonites. In recent years many of the Canadian churches have joined, and on February 19 of this year the whole Central Conference of Mennonites joined the General Conference. The Central Conference numbers twenty-two churches with about 3,185 members.

Today the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America numbers approximately two hundred churches and fifty thousand members.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point-of-view:

AN EXPERIENCE of and with God is very essential to the effective functioning of our Conference. Albert Edward Day, Methodist evangelist who in his travels over America meets a great many laymen and ministers, tells of a vigorous young minister in one city who said: "If I do not find God, I am going to resign my pulpit." Day goes on to comment: "He knew all about God that the theologians could tell him. He preached about that God on Sunday. But he was weary of that kind of preaching. It lacked validity of the witness who speaks of what he has seen and heard and felt." Such an experience of and with God cannot be forced. When lacking it may take much painful inner and outer suffering to bring about confession and repentance, some of the first steps towards such an experience. Such an experience brings release from resentments, fears, selfishness, guilt, and inner division. The love of God radiates from it. The degree of experience of and with God that our ministers and Conference leaders possess largely determines how graciously and effectively our General Conference functions.

EMPTINESS within is as clear an indication for the need of conversion as a "morally-in-the-gutter" condition. The latter seems very obvious in comparison with the former condition, for emptiness within may be covered over with conventional moral respectability, words rightly spoken, and even fervently spoken—as compensation for the inner emptiness. Not only do we feel wrong when we do wrong, but we also feel wrong when the self is not completed. Tagore says, "Everything lifts up strong hands after perfection." We are made for completion, for integration and wholeness. When we fail to find that completion, we experience an emptiness within us; life becomes dead and dull. This painful condition may make one withdraw or it may make one thrash about wildly. The right use of this painful condition leads to a fundamental change in life, called conversion. This experience brings an all-pervading purposiveness and a deep inner richness. Emptiness within is a clear indication of need for a life-changing experience.

A SUPREME PURPOSE for life is a great energy and time saver. A young man reports that when the pilots of some of the clipper planes have set the nose of the plane towards its destination, they lock the controls and the plane flies by itself, allowing the officers to give their attention to other matters. A master-purpose for life is much like this. It locks the controls and gives us extra energy and time for the multitudinous demands of life, which without a master purpose might be too much for us. It is true that one can adopt a master-purpose other than the Christian one, but it is only the latter that brings the greatest possible fulfillment to life.

GERMANY'S RELIGIOUS ATTITUDE is Convincingly described by F. Siegmund-Schultze, former prominent leader of German church social work and professor in the University of Berlin. Siegmund-Schultze, who has been living in Zurich, Switzerland, for the last dozen years, says of the German people: "Most of the people lost their faith in God because they had no more trust in man. This is still today, perhaps, the outstanding characteristic of the inner attitude of the German people. . . These people need encouragement, at least on the part of those who claim in their actions toward them to be determined by God. If those who believe in divine power and who believe that such power is operative in history do not help, then those who live today in despair will not actually be able to find God . . . Only if Christianity proves itself as a power which reaches beyond the limits of nations, will Christianity again be (in Germany) a power which renews humanity from within. That upon the Anglo-Saxons, who carry so emphatically the Christian message on their lips, devolves a special task, no one who knows the circumstances will doubt." (Quote from The Journal of Religion).

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorised Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchange to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON KANSAS

LIFE'S SUPREME PURPOSE --- As I Put It for Myself

(A symposium in a periodical may be defined as a collection of views on a subject. Believing that the readers will enjoy such a treatment of a subject, we are happy to present this symposium on the subject of "Life's Supreme Purpose."—Editor)

By Mrs. S. F. Pannabecker, formerly missionary in China and now instructor of Bible in the public schools of Bluffton, Ohio:

A returned missionary was speaking at a Student Volunteer conference: "That I may know Him and the power of his resurrection and the fellowship of his suffering, being made conformable unto his death." Like the tone of a golden bell that message rang in my soul. TO DO THE FATHER'S WILL was the supreme purpose of my life, but until that day my immature conception of it was to cross the ocean to touch twisted lives.

"That I may know Him"—how can I? To know Him I must understand the rest of the verse in Philippians 3:10.

"The power of his resurrection—the same power that was exhibited that first Easter morning "which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and set him down at his own right hand in the heavenly places." Can this power be for me? Yes, Paul says it can be: "And what is the exceeding greatness of his power to usward who believe."

But wait, I am not ready for that power. God cannot entrust it to me until I have caught the meaning of the rest of the verse.

"The fellowship of his sufferings"—Jesus knew physical pain. Yet that is not the deepest pain. When He stood on Mount Olivet and looked across the city, out of the anguish of His heart He cried: "Oh Jerusalem, Jerusalem. . . how often would I have gathered thy children together . . . and ye would not." That agony of soul was more excruciating than the crown of thorns. The torture of the body on the cross seemed insignificant to the load of the sin of the world. Can I enter into the "fellowship of suffering" as poignant as that?

It takes a lifetime to approximate it even slightly. It puts before us a goal to achieve: to die even as He died, to live as He lived, to "bear his glory." For Mrs. Tuan it meant giving up a husband and three children within a period of four months. Standing beside the casket of her husband in church she brokenly uttered, "God has put me into the crucible. May He grant that I come out pure gold." Lately the news has come from China that the only child left to her, a son, has tuberculosis. As teacher in the Bible School her life has been a constant witness to the ennobling influence of the Refiner's fire.

We dare not tell God what color of circumstance to give us in order "to know Him," for in so doing we may experience Israel's plight in the desert—"And he gave them their request; but sent leanness into their soul." Ps. 106:15

By B. Bargen, Teacher of commercial courses, Bethel College, North Newton, Kansas:

The crowning purpose of life, as given to us in the New Testament, is to overcome. "To him that overcometh, the crown of life shall be." Life's finest prize is given for meeting life's supreme purpose.

It is in the overcoming of difficulties—as we use our talents—that we achieve life's supreme purpose. This is how the latent talents which God has placed within us bear fruit. It is not by wrapping our talents in a handkerchief and burying them, until the return of our Master, but in the use of them. In overcoming the obstacles and frustrations which lie across the path of our progress we honor God. Not as those who slumber, waiting "to be ministered unto," but as those who with lamps lit, with mental and spiritual awareness attack their problems and overcome temptation to live on a low plane, are we to bring about the kingdom of God here upon earth.

All talents and all strength are God-given. The best way to honor Him and to achieve and fulfill His expectations of us is to use that strength and those talents in His service. And, since our religious convictions must somehow get down to earth, that means to me that our total life's energies are to be applied to the community of God's children--"the beloved community"—which is the seedling here upon earth which is to develop some day until it covers the entire earth.

That puts the supreme purpose of life very near to our everyday living, and it puts the crown, the highest prize, within our immediate reach. There is nothing that we do in our day's work which does not suggest, if we but listen, a corresponding application of our talents and our energies in the kingdom work. In fact, the use of our talents as here described, IS kingdom work. Viewed in that sense no task is menial, no task is great—all tasks are essential and all our visits with meaning and wrought with significance. Every contact with some fellow human being takes on an import much beyond a mere social significance, and every obstacle, every frustration, is God knocking at our doors encouraging us to overcome with His truth what seems always so impossible with our present knowledge.

"Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good."

(Continued on next page)

By Sister Lena Mae, Deaconess Mother, Bethel Deaconess Hospital, Newton, Kansas:

It has been said that the one task of the Christian church is to make Christ known. The purpose of each individual member of the church then would be to introduce or present Christ to others. The apostle Paul states this purpose in these words: that we should be to the praise of His glory. (Eph. 1:12) When I, in my daily life, portray Christ, then I praise Him.

Our Lord is presented to us as: the Son of God, the Righteous One, and the Holy One; He is merciful, long-suffering, gracious, and kind; He is the Good Shepherd, the Way, the Truth, and the Life; He came that we might have life and that we might be free. In each of these aspects, His glory is revealed. For me to be to the praise of His glory would be that I, as His representative, yield my life so that His righteousness, His mercy, His truth, and His life be reflected in my daily walk.

Paul was a tentmaker, but in his business of earning for his physical well-being, he also preached Christ. You may be a farmer but as a farmer, you may reflect God's love, grace, mercy, and, in general, His righteousness in your family life as well as in your business. I may be a student, a deaconess, a teacher, or a housekeeper. I shall be to the praise of His glory if in any position I follow the admonition of Paul in Galatians 6:10, As we have opportunity let us work that which is good toward all men.

The other day, a neighbor came to see me. She had only a few minutes to spare. We exchanged a few words, but the smile and the expression on her face served as a window through which the love and beauty of her soul were reflected. It was the love that God had shed abroad in her heart. She went on to her duties. But the day was changed for me—somehow I had caught a vision. I wanted to be a little kinder, a little more gracious to those about me. A living epistle had preached a sermon without words. She praised Him, but also served me and undoubtedly was blest. It may not always be that easy—and we fail often—but the supreme purpose remains: that we should be to the praise of His glory.

By Dallas Voran, Educational Director, C.P.S. Camp, Gulfport, Mississippi:

A famous early Christian expressed the supreme purpose for his life when he said, "For me to live is Christ." Centuries later Menno Simons echoed the same idea when he impressed upon his people the importance of following Christ (Nachfolge Christi). And this Christ who is held up as the ideal, what did he consider of most importance? He said, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness."

This, then, should be the supreme purpose for every Christian—to seek God's kingdom. Each of us has a different understanding of God and his kingdom. And consciously or unconsciously, every man's actions depend directly on his idea of God. If we are growing in our Christian experience, our understanding of our supreme purpose will also grow. The New Testament writings are a great help in understanding God's kingdom. From them we know that the ruling force in the kingdom is love, for God is love. And we have an excellent description of love and its qualities. Insofar as we demonstrate these qualities in our lives, we are living up to life's supreme purpose. How much we fall short may be determined by submitting our performances to judgment by comparing them with the Standard, the life of Jesus.

A Christian living up to his supreme purpose should feel a close communion with God and be able to see God in all of his Creation. Such a person will be concerned for the material and spiritual welfare of people everywhere. And his life will be so winsome others will be attracted to his way of life, others will raise their supreme purpose to the very highest, seeking first the kingdom of God.

OUR SEMINARY AND BIBLE SCHOOL

The Mennonite Biblical Seminary and Bible School, Chicago, Illinois, will soon have reached its first milestone: the end of a nine months term of study and service. The Lord has graciously sustained and supplied all our needs. We thank Him and all the friends who have had a part in this great venture of faith.

This year has been a year of deep and lasting experiences. God in Christ Jesus has become more real to us and His word more inspiring. The fellowship with the Brethern has been and is very enriching, and the challenge for more complete consecration to Christ and His cause has borne a hearty response. We were permitted to serve in many of our churches, Sunday Schools, and CPS Camps. These have been strengthening experiences.

This is a venture of faith. In prayerful submission to God the institution was opened, in faith it has been carried on, and by faith it shall grow. Again and again students and faculty members have gathered in prayer, praising God for His sustaining grace and laying before him our needs.

We deeply feel that our spiritual needs are by far the most important ones. We covet your prayer. Please pray with us that our faith may continually grow and our consecration may be complete.

But we pray also for our physical necessities. In order to balance our budget we will need about $1,000 each month until August 1. We lay this matter also before the Lord and our churches, and we have good reason to believe that our prayers will be heard.

Our experiences this year make us confident that for next year an increasing number of young people will consecrate themselves to the service of the Lord and come to our fellowship here at our Conference school for further training.—Students and Faculty of the Mennonite Biblical Seminary and Bible School

A Short History of the Central Conference

by Raymond L. Hartzler

The history of the Central Conference of Mennonites begins with the migration of Amish settlers from Pennsylvania and Ohio to central Illinois, which reached major proportions just before and after the middle of the last century. Some of the venturers traveled overland by ox team and Conestoga wagons, but most of them journeyed down the Ohio River and up the Mississippi and Illinois river by flatboat to the vicinity of Pekin or Peoria, thence by wagon to what are now Mennonite communites in McLean, Tazewell and Woodford Counties. The first settlements were made in the timbered sections along the streams, but when the surpassing fertility of the prairies was discovered, major removals to those sections ensued. Later these people were joined by others of Amish or Mennonite faith or background who came direct from southern Germany, Alsace-Lorraine, and Switzerland.

Amish ministers who joined the migration held occasional services for the early settlers, but the first church was organized in 1851 under the leadership of Rev. Jonathan Yoder and was known as the Yoder Church. Two years later the first church house was built about three miles northwest from the present site of Carlock, near what later became the Rock Creek Fair Grounds. At this time the church had a membership of one hundred, which by 1872 had increased to four hundred. The members were considerably scattered but nevertheless wished to be enrolled as members of the organized body.

Then two major changes took place. First, Rev. Yoder died in 1869, and from the ranks of his assistant ministers Rev. Joseph Stuckey emerged as the outstanding leader of the church. Second, in keeping with the migration to the prairie, the location of the church was moved two miles southeast where a new building was erected. The church then became known as the Stuckey Church, and latter the North Danvers Church. Rev. Stuckey was a vigorous and effective leader and soon became a prominent bishop in the Amish church in other states, as well as among his own people.

In time, however, with the larger dispersion of the Amish, changes in emphasis and practice began to appear. In an effort to stem this movement conferences were held in various parts of the country. Bishops Yoder and Stuckey were both active participants in these conferences. But it became apparent that the differences were not being resolved. Rev. Stuckey in particular could not bring himself to accept and enforce certain positions which others demanded. Finally the divergence became so pronounced that the others withdrew their fellowship and cooperation from him, leaving him alone with his church of about six hundred members.

This membership being considerably scattered, churches were then organized in other communities more or less removed from the North Danvers vicinity, and ministers ordained to serve them. Thus a small family of churches grew up, known as the Stuckey Amish. Also in course of time group in certain Amish or Mennonite centers in Illinois and Indiana, feeling they could not accede to certain insistences, withdrew and appealed to Rev. Stuckey for pastoral service and church leadership, which he was glad to give. Later when the conference was organized, these churches naturally wished to become a part of it.

Further, as a result of migrations from Illinois, churches were organized in other states, who desired to retain their connections with the Illinois group. Churches thus grew up at Aurora, Nebraska, Columbus, Kansas, Kouts and Goodland, Indiana.

While this group of churches was thus in the making, Rev. Stuckey kept in close touch with Mennonite and Amish churches and movements; yet he always maintained a considerable measure of aloofness, due to his disinclination to risk a repetition of his former experience at the hand of a church organization. He was in touch with the movement which gave rise to the General Conference, and in 1898 the Middle District Confrence was held at the Rock Creek Fair Grounds with North Danvers as the host church, but Rev. Stuckey still demurred from joining the movement.

By this time, however, his assistant ministers keenly felt the need of closer fellowship and regular counsel in their common problems. At length Rev. Stuckey consented, and such a meeting was held August 5, 1899. This meeting was considered so helpful that another was arranged and held at the North Danvers Church, September 26, 1899, at which time Rev. Peter Schantz was elected chairman. Realizing what had happened, Rev. Stuckey said, "The child is born, name and nourish it; but be careful how." His last message to his fellow ministers before he died in 1902 was, "Much hard work lieth before you."

From 1899 to 1907 the conferences were largely inspirational in nature, the time being given to Bible and doctrinal discussions. But in 1907 it was decided to draft a constitution and effect a permanent organization. The constitution was adopted at the conference

---

Raymond L. Hartzler of Bloomington, Illinois, is Field Secretary of the Central Conference of Mennonites anl also the editor of the Christian Evangel, the official publication of the conference.

a year later, the new organization assuming the name Central Illinois Conference of Mennonites, although three of the twelve charter churches were outside the state. Six years later with more churches outside Illinois coming into the conference the name was changed to Central Conference of Mennonites. The Dortrecht Confession of 1632 with some modifications is the accepted conference statement of faith.

The conference meets annually, the business being, done by delegates from the committee, consisting of the president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and field secretary who serves in a full capacity. At present there are twenty-two churches with a membership of 3185.

One church is located at Comins, Michigan, about ninty miles north of Bay City; one at Aurora, Nebraska, between York and Grand Island; and one in the extreme southeast part of Kansas, near Columbus. Six are in Indiana. Eighth Street is in Goshen, with Silver Street, Warren Street (Middlebury) and Topeka in the area north and east of Goshen. Kouts and Zion (goodland) are in the northwestern part of Indiana, the former near Valparaiso and the latter between Logansport and the state line. The others are in Illinois with the Chicago Mission at 6201 S. Carpenter street, and Tiskilwa in Bureau County, near Princeton. The rest are in the heart of Illinois in the general Peoria-Bloomington area,- viz: Peoria Mission, Bethel (Pekin), Boynton (Hopedale), Calvary (Washington), Flanagan, Meadows, Congerville, North Danvers, Carlock, Normal, and Anchor.

I Like To Know What's Happening in Our Conference

by Helen H. Mueller

I like to know what's happening in our conference and I suppose everyone who reads this does too. However, merely attending conference sessions is not enough to keep me informed. If conference proceedings are to "make sense," I must follow closely the various board reports which appear periodically in The Mennonite.

But that is where my troubles begin. I like to read, but I have difficulty in finding inspiration in something like this: "1. Resolved, that . . . . 2. Resolved, that . . . " and so on, through to the end. No doubt that data is necessary for the board members, but the general public finds it dreary reading.

Wouldn't it be possible for boards to report their proceedings to the church papers in news style, rather than giving--as someone has called it--"all the dreary minutes"? Some items in the minutes are not for "public consumption." In other there are references to transactions of which the reader knows nothing, and so he is left with a feeling, "Well, I wonder what this is all adout?" If the report were done in news style, ambiguities could be eliminated. Any action or resolution that could not be explained or which would not be of interest to conference members, could be omitted. Still there need be no gap in the report. The financial report could be made brief and general. The average person can better understand a statement which compares the incomes and expenditures for two fiscal periods than a statement giving details in dollars and cents.

Another type of reporting that too often leaves the reader in the dark is the kind which frequently presents a lot of trivialities bound together with pious phrases. Persons who are genuinely interested in our conference work read this material with disappointment. The expressions of praises to God are not to be belittled. It is the failure to draw a comprehensive picture of the work that is he disappointing thing. If the work and the need were clearly presented, those who love the Lord and His work would be praying more fervently and giving more generously because they understand better.

Finally there are those boards which don't report. Occasionally the names of the various conference boards and committees appear in print, and we hear people ask, "What kind of board is that? What work does it do?" Sometimes it almost seems as though some of our boards were secret societies! An explanation of the work of each board might well be published once or twice a year in our church papers. This could contain a statement of the part the board plays in the total conference set-up; it could give a brief review of the work that has been done since the last report was published and perhaps give brief and informal information concerning the financial status of the board. A tentative statement of plans for the future might not be amiss. All this would help to create understanding of the work and would move the people to intelligent participation in conference activities. The needs in every phase of the conference program can be adequately met when people serve and love and give because they understand.

Helen Hiebert Mueller "opened the books" at General Conference Headquarters and served as the secretary of P. A. Penner, Manager, until June, 1945.

A Social Program for the General Conference

By Menno S. Harder

With the settlement of the Hebrew tribes in the land of Canaan and the development of agriculture and commerce, the social relationships became more complex. New problems arose which had to be solved. Hence, in the days of the great writing prophets,—Amos, Isaiah, Hosea, and Micah—religion received a new social emphasis. A large part of this emphasis grew out of the development of new social classes consequent on the rise of commercialism among a hitherto pastoral and agricultural people. Since they had had no experience in regulating these relationships between the rich and the poor, the noble and the peasant, serious problems of injustice and heartlessness arose. These prophets saw clearly that the ancient tribal solidarity was threatened. Since religion was interwoven with the ideas of tribal welfare, they challenged in the name of religion the injustices which had appeared and demanded that the rich consider the welfare of their less fortunate brethren.

Jesus challenged the whole unsocial and sometimes antisocial attitudes of the religious leaders of His day. Returning from the temptation in the wilderness to His home in Nazareth He went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day. When He was asked to read the lesson for the day He chose the passage from Isaiah: "The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me because He hath anointed Me to preach the gospel to the poor; He hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord." (Luke 4:18-19)

The growing attention of religious people to social and economic questions betokens the feeling that religion may aid in the solution of these problems. It would be a pity if the potentialities too often lying dormant in the churches could not be turned to the service of social relationships. Too often religious enthusiasm is turned in upon the individual's own subjective interests. In order to be vital, religion must link the awakened enthusiasm for good with the problems of life.

Some of us who meet people outside of our faith are sometimes confronted with the question, "What is your Church doing to solve the perplexing social problems of our day?" And another common question is: "Does your Church have a program of action which shows what it plans to accomplish?" To both questions we are unable to furnish satisfactory answers. We are not even quite certain whether our Church is sensitive to present-day social problems.

At this point special recognition must be given to the new Mutual Aid Committee our Church called into existence at the last General Conference held in June, 1945. This committee is just beginning to function, and our prayers are that God may bless it.

The membership of the various General Conference churches lives in a world full of problems, warfare, and social conflicts. The General Conference is hard pressed for an explanation and for a constructive program of action. It has become necessary for the General Conference to define its position relative to the various social problems of the present time. To stimulate our thinking and, maybe, to promote discussion, the following social program for our Church is presented:

1. We believe that an adequate social program of the General Conference must have adequate financial support. Hence all members of the Conference practice the Christian principle of tithing.

2. We believe that all young people, members or adherents, in our Conference be urged to devote one full year to some social service. (Mental hospitals, relief work, city mission, social welfare work, etc.)

3. We believe in educating our youth for an eternal destiny. We believe next in the education of our youth, each, for a useful life here and now. We believe that our Conference should educate those who without its aid would not be educated.

4. We believe that recreation is a basic human need. We believe that each local church be responsible for such Christian recreational facilities as will satisfy its youth.

5. We believe in caring for our mentally ill in the most Christian and scientific manner.

6. We believe in the medical (and, or) vocational rehabilitation of the handicapped in order that they may become economically self-sufficient.

7. We believe that our aged be adequately cared for. They must be assured of the feeling of security and happiness to the end of life.

8. We believe that there must be no discrimination of races. Any act of discrimination is morally and spiritually wrong.

9. We believe in the application of the principles of scientific social work in dealing with the poor.

10. We believe in encouraging and aiding (when necessary) all of our members to become economically self-sufficient.

11. We believe in equal rights and complete justice for all men in all stations of life.

Menno S. Harder teaches courses in education, English, and the Social Sciences at Bethel College.

12. We believe that every man, woman, and child in our Conference should be protected in case of ill health, death, or against one of the forces of nature.

Such a social program does not cover every aspect of life. Our social problems are too many and complex. But to us comes the call of Abraham. Let's move out, and with God's direction, we shall move in the right direction.

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

Search for Relatives

Note: This letter was written by Mennonites from the Ukraine who managed to survive all hardships and reached Holland whence they would like to come to America. It was published in the Menn. Rundschau, March 27, 1946:

February 10, 1946

Dear Relatives in America,

First of all we wish you health and God's blessing. On our way to America we have reached Holland. We now call on you in our distress to find a friend who is willing to help us.

The Final Race

We had to leave Germany quite suddenly because the Russians wanted to send us back to the Ukraine. Fortunately they had announced their plans so that we could escape. Friday, February 1, we had our rooms full of refugees from our neighboring village. When the Russians arrived in that village accompanied by English soldiers they found none of them in their homes. They asked the mayor when these people would be back in their homes. He replied, that they would come whenever they would be hungry. So the Russians had to leave with out the refugees. For that reason we decided to flee to Holland as quickly as possible. None of us want to go back to Russia.

Fear for Siberia

It is terrible the way our people are being sent to ice-cold Siberia, where they are placed on the barren steppes without food or shelter. A return to our former homes and villages is impossible because they are burned to the ground. We are homeless and have lost everything through our flight. The little bedding that we had, we left in Germany, crossing the boundary with two suitcases and knapsack on our back and a lunch basket in our hands.

In Holland at Last

We left February 2. A Canadian soldier helped us by wiring to Holland whether we would be permitted to cross the border. He received an affirmative answer immediately. We went from Celle via Hanover, Munster to Gronau. Here we walked across the border. God has heard our prayers and helped us wonderfully. We are now in a camp in Amsterdam. We have some cousins in America: Peter Dirks, Mrs. Andreas Voth (both of Washington) and J. Schultz, Mountain Lake. Thanking you in advance, Sarah Sawatzky and two children and W. Dirks and wife and daughter, formerly Gnadenfeld, Molotschna, now M.C.C., Singel 452, Amsterdam, Nether.

A HISTORY OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE

How did the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America come about? Is it not a miracle? Just think of the diversity of background represented in the 147 congregations of the Conference. Some of them are of Swiss, some of German, and some of Alsatian stock. Others can be traced back to Holland and have a Prussian, Russian or Polish coloring. Some families and congregations have been in America for more than two hundred years. Others just arrived a generation or two ago. Some lived for generations in the Eastern States and others have pioneered in the prairie or in the Pacific States. Some were influenced by Lutherans, Reformed, Baptists, Presbyterians, Pietism, Revivalism and by other groups and movements.

Brother S. F. Pannabecker has written a Ph. D. thesis (typewritten 672 pages) on the topic The Development of the General Conference of the Mennonites of North America in the American Environment. He presented it to the Graduate School of Yale University in 1944. A review of this most thorough study of the subject will, no doubt, be given at a later date. We would however, like to call attention to this significant contribution and encourage the publication of the manuscript or a rewritten semi-popular condensed form of it. This should become the standard source of information concerning the background, beginning, growth and present status of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America for years to come. It is at the same time one of the most valuable studies on Mennonitism in America in general.—Cornelius Krahn.

THE PLACEMENT COMMITTEE OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE

At the last session of the General Conference at North Newton several new members were elected into the Placement Committee. The complete Committee as now organized is as follows: Rev. Freeman H. Swartz, Chairman, Norristown, Pa., Rev. P. K. Regier, Secretary, Reedley, California; other members of the committee are: Rev. H. J. Dyck, Elbing, Kansas, Rev. E. J. Miller, Lind, Washington, Rev. P. E. Whitmer, Bluffton, Ohio, and Rev. A. W. Friesen, Henderson, Nebraska.

Churches which are in need of ministers and ministers who are contemplating a change, or who have no charge at present and would consider a call to a church, may contact any member of the Commttee individually and thus enlist their help. The members of the Committee are geographically quite well distributed throughout the country, and in general it would be a good procedure for ministers and churches to contact the members closest to the area in which the minister lives or in which the Church is located which is seeking assistance. —P. K. Regier, Secretary Placement Committee.

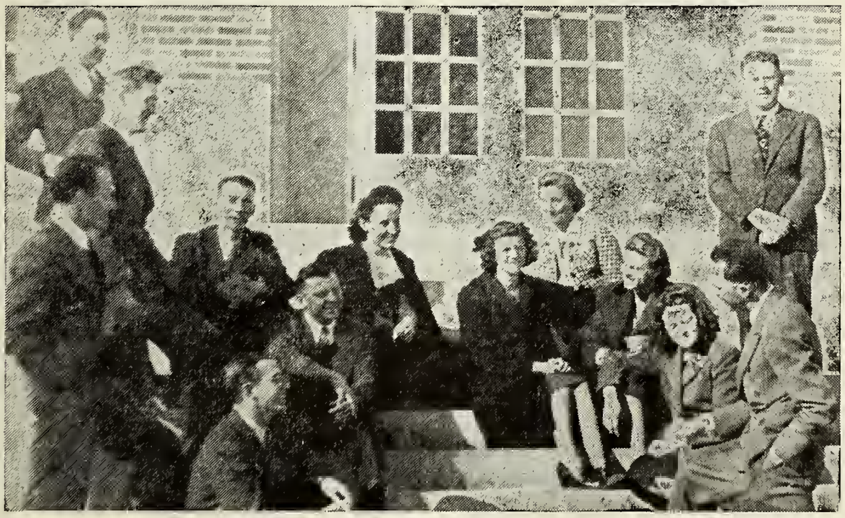
Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Vice President
Verney Unruh
Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

Young People's Union Board Meets



Appearing in the above picture is the group of young people which attended the Young People's Union Board Meeting held at North Newton, Kansas, February 19-21. For the first time in five years, young people representing the different districts of the Conference were able to come together. Out of this meeting came the decisions listed in the article by Elmer Ediger appearing in this issue.

Those attending these sessions were the following: Elmer Ediger, Akron, Pa.; Verney Unruh, New York City; Ruth Ewert, Chicago, Illinois; Esko Loewen, Newton, Kansas; Henry W. Friesen, Rosthern, Saskatchewan; Peter Epp, Leamington, Ontario; Jacob Enz, Nappanee, Indiana; Genevieve Buhler, Bluffton, Ohio; Alice Lehman, Aberdeen, Idaho; Arnold Nickel and Hazel Senner, North Newton, Kansas; Delsie Tieszen, Newton, Kansas; Amanda Ediger, Buhler, Kansas; Roland Goering, McPherson, Kansas; Helen H. Mueller, North Newton, Kansas; Ronald von Riesen, Walton, Kansas; Frieda Claassen, Beatrice, Nebraska.

April 28 is being observed as Conference Sunday. We are devoting this issue of MENNONITE YOUTH to the various Conference activities and program being carried on by our youth organizations. We wish in this way to acquaint ourselves and each other with the goings on of our fellowship.

It will be noted that many activities are being carried on by the young people's group. This does not suggest that we are active enough. Doubtless, if our vision and commitment would permit us, we would be doing far more than we are. But, the program now being undertaken is worthy of prayerful support.

As we consider our Youth Program, let us consider it as the work of a spontaneous fellowship. A fellowship drawn together by a mutual love of one another and of Christ. A fellowship which desires to share a rich experience with others. For it is the amazing love of God which has always made the fellowship of the church a vital force. When that love has been replaced by envy or fear, the church's fellowship has become flat and tastless. Also, its message.

So, as we consider the articles appearing in this issue, let us partake of the love and fellowship which has brought this work about. Let us in spirit share with one another the joy which comes to us when our hearts and souls are committed to the work of the Spirit. Let us prayerfully consider the works we are doing and seek ways that we may build together within ourselves and with others that spiritual Kingdom which is the promise and hope of men. E. L.

The Program of the Young People's Union

The leaders of the district organizations and the Young People's Union Council have felt their limitations but also the clear leading of the Holy Spirit. Here are some of the needs on which we are working and which we hope others will support prayerfully. We welcome suggestions for improvement.

1. We are trying to strengthen the local church activities for young people in the areas of meetings, service projects, and fellowship. We are studying the weaknesses and strong points of local groups and the larger organization. For this purpose of study and sharing suggestions on methods, institutes are beng arranged in as many states and districts as possible. Visitation of local church groups by youth leaders is encouraged.

2. Retreats are being sponsored by the young people in most of our districts by the district or state organization. This has probably been the most successful aspect of the church's work for and by young people. It should again be enthusiastically supported and improvements made where possible.

3. The institutes are revealing an unusually great need for program materials which suggest subjects and are particularly helpful for working out methods of presenting programs in an interesting manner. Some steps will be taken this year to provide some materials, but there is need to work out a literature producing programs that will cover several year periods.

4. We should increase the challenge to young people to take up full time Christian service for the church. But our church should also challenge and provide opportunity for those who feel they could give three months or one year or two year periods of voluntary service. At the recent joint board meeting in Newton, the boards concerned asked the Peace Committee and the Young People's Union to take the responsibility for developing a voluntary services program with other Mennonite groups and as a General Conference program. Service in the M.C.C. relief program should be made a challenge to young people (and older people) in the local church. The Mennonite groups together will need volunteers to continue Puerto Rico and Mississippi projects.

As an experiment of what the General Conference might sponsor on its own during peacetime, this summer the G.C. would like to have ten men and women volunteers so that the work of the Home Mission in Chicago can enlarge its work. In addition to this a number of volunteers will be used individually this summer.

5. A Missionary Education Fund of two thousand dollars a year was accepted by the recent meeting of the YPU Council as a project to be heartily recommended to the districts and local churches. Several years ago the young people of our conference felt the need of aiding in this manner the young people and the cause of Jesus Christ in the Paraguay Mennonite colony. Today the student from Paraguay, the product of such a fund, is almost ready for full time Christian service. This fund will be used to bring other deserving young Christians from mission and relief fields of concern to our church to this country to be given a Christian education. Another student from Paraguay has already been chosen to begin his education this coming fall. Financial support of this fund will be an answer to our prayer.

6. The MENNONITE YOUTH section of our church paper is a project of the young people of our conference to bring us toward being "A united Mennonite youth in Christ," our motto. The paper is young and needs to be brought to the attention of the young people. Suggestions would be welcome on how to improve it, on who of your church might contribute to its writing. We hope the paper may become one which the young people will be eager to read.

7. Around the World Mennonite Youth Fellowship is the name of the project to encourage correspondence between young Mennonites of this country with those in others—Holland, Germany, France, India, China, Paraguay, etc. Recently the Youth Movement of our Holland Mennonites wrote us inviting such friendship by correspondence. This is a new step to what may become a genuine spirit of "a united Mennonite youth in Christ" the world over.

We pray, and have faith, that if these matters are brought to the attention of the youth in each local church that it may be a means of their becoming more interested in the work of the local church and in the work of this family of churches, our conference.

Service to These Forgotten

by Frank Wright Jr.

Opportunities for Service to the Mentally Ill and Deficient

One of the most touching stories about Jesus' healing mission is that of the Gadarene lunatic. After years of being bound anl manacled with chains, of running naked and screaming about the hills and tombs, this lunatic came under Jesus' influence for a short time anl was almost immediately "clothed and in his right mind." (Mark 5:1-20)

There are over 700,000 persons confined in the mental institutions of this country today. They are not greatly different from the poor man on the hills of Gadara. They too need someone to come to them, to show concern for them, and to lead them to better health. Jesus has set the example and the way is open for His Church and His followers to despond.

Just now there is a special interest in this long-neglected area among Mennonites. The M.C.C. hospital survey has shown that some 1,500 Mennonites in this country are mentally deficient, and that about 500 of them are in institutions. Another 1,500 Mennonite young men and women have served in mental institutions as attendants and therapists during the war.

These two facts make the present an unusually advantageous time for Mennonite young people to consider opportunities for serving the mentally incapacitated. Some of the opportunties for direct service to these forgotten are:

1 — To work in mental hospitals through M.C.C. Service Units.

Units at Norristown, Pa., Howard, R. I., and Cleveland, Ohio, this summer will give young men and women an opportunity to give much-needed service, to gain a deeper understanding of problems of mental health, and to study and live together in a mutually stimulating group. Here is a chance to make your summer really count for something, and to earn a little money while doing it.

Details are available from the M.C.C. office in Akron, Pa.

2 — To provide volunteer services for patients in mental institutions.

While there are many persons and groups giving volunteer services to patients in general hospitals, the much greater needs of mental patients go unheeded. At a few hospitals and training schools, volunteers are providing religious services, social events, reading material, games and personal comforts for mental patients. Some individuals in Massachusetts make a practice of adopting forsaken mental patients and acting as substitutes for lost or disinterested family and friends. Such groups all report great satisfaction in their services.

If there is a mental institution near you, ask the superintendent how you can help.

3 — To give foster home care to feebleminded, mildly-ill, or canvalescent patients.

The plan of caring for mental patients in foster homes is just beginning to spread in this country. In Gheel, Belgium, where the plan has been operative for many centuries, nearly every family cares for a patient—in fact, it is considered something of a disgrace if your family does not care for one. Foster home care offers one progressive answer to some problems of the mental institutions.

Twelve states—California, Connecticut, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and Utah—have arrangements for placing patients in family care and paying for their maintenance. In addition, there is great opportunity to care for persons who are feeblemined, mildly ill or convalescent in any community, even where no state pilgrim exists.

Your state department of welfare or the M.C.C. office can supply further information.

4 — To assist in rehabilitating former patients into normal community life.

Often patients who have recovered from their mental illness or who have made a social adjustment to their mental deficiency can not leave an institution because they have no home or job awaiting them. Mennonite homes and churches could offer homes and jobs to patients on trial visit or discharge and thus help them to readjust to normal life.

Get in touch with the social service department of the closest mental institution to explore these possibilities.

5 To consider the possibility of choosing vocations in this field.

It is people, not things or theories, that cure mental patients. But the people in the field are too few, and often too inferior. There are 3,500 psychiatrists in the country; we need about 14,000. Similar shortages are apparent in the ranks of nurses, therapists, aides, attendants, teachers and social workers in this field. Young people are need-

---

Frank L. Wright, Jr. is now connected with the National Mental Health Program, an organization devoted to improving conditions in mental hospitals, disseminating information about mental health and encouraging those working in mental institutions and those interested in mental health in the full understanding of the problem. This organization is a result of C.P.S. Frank served in C.P.S. in his day at Norristown, Pa., and Greystone Park hospitals.

ed in these vocations—and they should be young people who are motivated by Christian ideals of service.

Your teachers, ministers and doctors should be able to tell you of these opportunities, or you can request information from the National Mental Health Foundation.

6 To see that the Mennonite Church considers its responsibility to the mentally ill and deficient.

The church has been discussing the possibility of establishing a Mennonite mental institution, or of adding psychiatric wards to some of its general hospitals. It may be impossible to do either of these things in the immediate future. It is up to the young people to keep alive enough interest and concern about this need that the church finally does something to care for the mentally ill and deficient.

Talk to your own pastor, the officials of your conference, and members of the M.C.C.

Not all young people nor all groups can do all of these things in an effort to serve the mentally ill and deficient. But everyone and every group should find some way of giving direct service to these forgotten members of mankind.

(to be continued)

Plan Third Annual Christian Worker's Institute

The General Conference of Mennonites of North America is sponsoring the third annual Christian Worker's Institute. This will be held on the Bluffton College Campus, Bluffton, Ohio, June 5-7. Some of the leaders who have already given their consent to serve at this institute are: Rev. R. L. Hartzler, Field Secretary Central District of the General Conference; Dr. L. L. Ramseyer, President of Bluffton College; Dr. Abraham Warkentin, President of the Mennonite Biblical Seminary and Bible School; Rev. Olin Krehbiel; Rev. Don Smucker; Professor J. P. Klassen; Mr. Esko Loewen; and Mr. Elmer Ediger. The program will be printed as soon as it is completed.

This program is again arranged for our young people who are planning to go into full time Christian Service as in former years. The traveling expenses and room and board will be paid for C.P.S. men. All young people in our colleges are invited to attend, but we will not be able to take care of the expenses of this group.

The more specific details as to program will be sent to all those concerned within the next week or two.

Youth Events

One of the cattle boats made a trip to Germany. One of the cattle attendants on that trip had the following to report about his experiences in Germany. The group visited in the city of Bremen and found a Quaker lady there who one of the group knew. The sector of Bremen in which she livel had been flattened and she was living in another part of the city in the miserable crowded conditions that exist all over Germany. After the visit and when the group was leaving, this lady said, "We deeply appreciate this visit. We are cold and hungry and need much for our physical comfort. But, that is not so important as this visit. Our only contact with America now is when the soldiers come in and say they neel our stove or tell us to move out, they want our house. To know that people are concerned about us and care for us is most heart warming."

* * *

It is no wonder that the Church of Jesus Christ at its best can have no enthusiasm for the military way. The impersonal, crushing, and over-bearing methods of the military runs exactly counter to the warmth, love, and fellowship which comes to the Christian soul. It seems of no importance to the military whether a German supports or does not support the fanaticism of Nazism. A German is a German and must be treated as a German!

* * *

To re-establish fellowship with fellow Christians the world over is of great importance. The broken ties caused by the war need to be bound up again. For the essence of love has to a great degree within it the bond of fellowship. All we can do to make the bond of fellowship strong and vital should be done. One way that this can be done is by the way of letter writing. The writing of letters to fellow Christians in other lands is not only an adventure, but is partaking of the very essence of Christian faith.

* * *

Reports have come in that a group of college students desire to write letters to Holland. This is most encouraging. Others are encouraged to volunteer to participate in the letter-writing fellowship. .If you wish further information on this, the editor of this section will be glad to do what he can.

RELIEF

Arrivals on the Field

C. L. Graber arrived in Manila on April 7. His work in the Philippines will be to make preliminary investigations looking forward to beginning a program of relief and rehabilitation similar to that in Puerto Rico and Ethiopia.

Robert Kreider in Berlin

Robert Kreider is now in Berlin assisting with preparations for distributing the first allotment of food and clothng to Germany. The first shipment was due to arrive in Germany on April 3 and the remainder of the 2,000 tons to follow shortly. The second M.C.C. shipment of approximately 300 tons of goods is now in New York awaiting shipping space. Brother Kreider in a brief statement describes Berlin as "a land of desolation with 95 percent of the heart of the city in miserable ruins."

Denmark Unit Ready for Work

According to a cable from Copenhagen dated April 11, the new unit in Denmark is ready to begin relief operations. Workers there, Walter Gering and Elma Esau, report splendid cooperation. A shipment of clothing from the M.C.C. is being cleared through customs officials and will soon be distributed among the Mennonite refugees there.

Interest in Heifer Project Continues

The Heifers for Relief project which was started by the Brethren Service Committee continues to grow in interest and support. By January, 1946, 939 heifers had been shipped to needy families in Poland, Belgium, France and Czechoslovakia. The project has grown now to where quite a number of denominations including the Mennonites have been invited to contribute to the program and interest is increasing. It is not certain at this time just what direction the project will take as there is agitation to enlarge the program beyond the scope of a church project. As information concerning the program and the relationship of the Mennonite Central Committee to it becomes available, it will be announced through this column.
Church Groups

Church Groups Request Return to Rationing

The Foreign Missions Conference, representing 127 church boards, at a recent session spoke out clearly and forcibly in favor of an immediate return to rationing, enabling government agencies to cope with famine conditions which threaten many areas of the world. The proposed rationing would include wheat, grains, fats and oils—food absolutely essential to the overcoming of famine. President Truman has requested U.S. citizens to adopt a policy of voluntary rationing. This request is certainly pertinent to us as Christians who are stewards of the great material blessings God has so graciously entrusted to us.

March Shipments Largest Thus Far

The greatest amount of Relief goods to go overseas in any given time was sent during the month of March. Twenty shipments were sent to France on four different sailing dates, eight shipments left port on March 28 for Germany, one shipment to Belgium on March 22 and three shipments to Holland on March 20 and 28.

These were only Food for Relief shipments which included such items as: tools, canned fruits, vegetables, meats (pork, beef and chicken) evaporated milk, flour, raisins, anl beans; 25,000 lbs. of sugar were sent to Hollanl. The M.C.C. Relief office was fortunate in obtaining an allotment of this scarce product which was made available for foreign relief shipments but as yet has not been released for Relief canning purposes.

The total weight of these shipments was 2,244,948 lbs., which is almost equal to the total weight of all the food shipments sent in the eleven months' period of April 1, 1945 to March 1, 1946. The value of the March shipments amounted to $291,512.44, this total being somewhat higher than for the eleven months' period previously mentioned.

C.P.S.

Two Units to Close. Due to the availability of labor from their localities, the Units at Vineland Training School, New Jersey, and Allentown State Hospital, Pennsylvania, are to close May 15. Releases and transfers have lowered the man-strength of both of the units; the remaining men will either be getting discharged in the near future or will be transferred to other units.

Units Get New Pastors. Bro. J. N. Smucker of Bluffton, Ohio, and Bro. O. N. Krehbiel of Berne, Indiana, have recently assumed pastoral charges at the Lima, Ohio and Ypsilanti, Michigan, hospital units, respectively. This is part of an attempt by the C.P.S. Section to provide a more personal and comprehensive religious program for the men in the unts, particularly in these days of C.P.S. that are colored so much by indefiniteness and insecurity.

GIFT PARCELS

As a result of recent relaxations of U.S. Department of Commerce regulations, it is now possible for individuals in the United States to send gift parcels via parcel post to most foreign countries. The Mennonite Central Committee has been receiving frequent inquiries along this line, and herein wishes to clarify the situation inasmuch as it is possible with present information. A "Gift Parcel," under the following provisions, is defined as a "parcel containing commodities to be sent free of cost to the person ultimately receiving them."

Postal restrictions, of course, must be met in the packaging of these shipments for mailing. Since regular Parcel Post service has not been restored in Austria, Bulgaria, Germany, and Japan, it is not possible to send Gift Parcels to these countries under the same set of regulations as applies to other countries. Postal regulations restrict the weight of an individual parcel to a maximum of eleven (11) pounds, the value of an individual parcel to $25 or less, and the measurements of the parcel to a maximum of three and one-half (3½) feet in length or six (6) feet in length and girth combined. The content of a package is limited to items of personal nature, such as: clothing, piece goods, toilet preparations including soaps and shaving creams, writing materials, medicinals including vitamins, and non-perishable food-stuffs. It is necessary to place on the addressee side of the package the words "Gift Parcel" in order to comply with Department of Commerce regulations. There are also restrictions regarding the intervals at which packages can be sent to one addressee from the same person which should be checked with your local Post Office.

We wish to point out that the cost of shipping such individual Gift Parcels to foreign addresses is very large, compared to the cost of sending an equal amount of relief goods as part of a larger shipment by ocean freight. In fact, the cost by Parcel Post is more than twenty times the cost by ocean freight in some instances. Since the emphasis of the Mennonite Central Committee is on doing the most possible good with a minimum of expense, it seems that the emphasis in giving of materials for relief should remain in the area of larger contributions of materials to be shipped in a more concentrated and less expensive manner. It is realized, however, that individual gift packages to needy friends or relatives will have a stronger personal appeal than the receipt of portions of larger contributions, even though all is given "In the Name of Christ."

Another recent development is the opening of regular mail service to all portions of Germany. This does not include Parcel Post service, however. It is possibe, as has been the case for some time, for any person who has received UNRRA Postal Form 1 from a displaced person in the American Zone of Germany to send a Gift Parcel at regular intervals to this person. UNRRA Postal Form 1 is a request from the displaced person in Germany to definite individual in the United States for Gift Parcels. Further information with regards to Postal regulations and Parcel Post rates can be obtained from your local Post Office.

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

The Women's Choir gave a sacred concert as a Vesper Service in Ramseyer Chapel Sunday afternoon, April 14. At the meeting of the Board of Trustees April 9 reguirements for entrance into the North Central Association were discussed at considerable length. An intensive program for full accreditment is planned. A tour of campus buildings was made by Board members. After this tour it was decided that better facilities for physical education and an auditorium were urgent needs and a committee was appointed to make further investigations and make concrete plans. President Ramseyer plans to spend several days in field work in Iowa immediately after Easter. Rev. Howard Raid, formerly pastor of the church at Fortuna, Missouri, now in school at Ames, Iowa, is to join the staff in the fall of 1947 to take charge of economics and business instruction. Rev. Harry Yoder will begin work for the College May 1 and expects to move to Bluffton about June 1.

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

The YWCA installed its new officers last week. A candle light service was held in connection with their dedication to the new task. The next performer on the University of Minnesota community program service will be Bert Harwell, who will present an all-color motion picture on natural history subjects augmented by his remarkable whistling. He will present his program on May 2. The subject discussed at the last Cimonoce Emoh Club meeting was "Hobbies." Several interesting reports on hobbies were given, anl a hobby exhibit added to the interest of the meeting. Dr. Gross and Prof. Graber attended the South Dakota Higher Education Conference at the State University, Vermillion. President Unruh was a member of the committee in charge of program arrangements for this conference.—Marie Waldner

BETHEL COLLEGE

Another high quality performance marked the twenty-fourth annual Palm Sunday rendition of DuBois' "The Seven Last Words of Christ" by the A Cappella Choir under the direction of Professor Hohmann, assisted by three outside soloists and Dr. Fast as narrator. Students also participated in the first three evenings of Holy Week services arranged by the College Church, their Easter recess beginning late Thursday afternoon. A number of faculty members attended the Four-College Conference at Lindsborg on April 8. Dean Goertz prepared and presided at the divisional program on Philosophy and Religion. Presdent and Mrs. Kaufman gave their annual dinner for the Seniors on Saturday evening. At a recent chapel service President Kaufman announced and explained his trip this summer with Presilent Miller of Goshen College to European schools and Mennonite communities in the interests of the M.C.C. and a Mennonite student exchange.

THE BIBLICAL SEMINARY AND BIBLE SCHOOL

The students and faculty members of the Mennonite Biblical Seminary and Bible School in Chicago join with our churches on Sunday, April 28, in praise and prayer for the many blessings of the Lord, the privileges of service and in complete consecration to His cause.

We praise God especially for His greatest gift, Jesus Christ our Saviour and Lord, and for the Comforter and teacher, the Holy Spirit, and submit ourselves to serve Him in our churches and mission fields or wherever God bids us to go.

We are truly thankful that we have such a large fellowship as our General Conference. We have just cause for praise to God because of the manifold fields of witness and service which have been made possible through the consecration and the banding together of men and women in these common concerns of the Church. The world knows that "In Unity there is Strength." The Church also has realized this, but must realize it anew and to a greater degree in order to be most effective. May we all have that mind which was also in Christ Jesus.

The Seminary and Bible School enjoyed a vacation during the pre-Easter week. The Church of the Brethern quite universally observes Holy Week by conducting evangelistic services. Since many of their seminary students participate in these services, school recesses for the week.

On Sunday, April 14, the Mennonite fellowship here in Chicago gathered together in a room of the Methodist Temple in the Loop to observe Holy Communion. A majority of our Seminary and Bible School students joined in this service. Rev. John T. Neufeld had charge of the service; Rev. Marvin Dirks gave two messages in song, Rev. Waldo Harder brought the message, and Dr. A. Warkentin served the sacraments. Forty-six individuals partook of the bread and the cup, witnessing to the world in this way to the efficacy of Christ's death, our Faith in the Risen Lord and our hope for eternal Life.

JOTTINGS

—First Church, Nappanee, Indiana: An octet from the Mennonite seminary and eight other people from Chicago joined us one night during our Lenten services. The film, "Windlings of the West," was recently shown to the Missionary Circle. The picture dealt with the life of migrants.—Mrs. Loyal Corwin, Corr.

—Ebenezer Church, Bluffton, Ohio: Dr. Don R. Falkenberg of Columbus gave an interesting sermon April 14. That evening the choir sang the cantata, "The First Easter."—Mrs. Hiram Neuenschwander —Gospel Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: Subjects used by Rev. John Esau in his meetings from April 7 to April 14 were: "God's Faithfulness," "Biblical Christianity," "Reasons Why Pray," "My Aspirations," "How To Get into the Door," "The Supreme Question," "Who Is This?" and "Why I Glory in the Cross of Christ."—Elizabeth Lohrenz, Corr.

—Bethany Church, Quakertown, Pa., Pre-Easter services were conducted on April 4, 5, 6, 7 by Rev. Alfred Regier of Henderson, Nebraska.—Mrs. E. K. Stoneback, Corr.

—Medford Church, Medford, Oklahoma: The O.B.A. Girls Glee Club gave an inspirational program March 31. The women have cleaned up the interior of our church. The C.E. is to give a program on the second holiday.—Pete Neufeld, Corr.

—Eicher Emmanuel Church, near Noble, Iowa: Easter Sunday evening "The Life of Christ" will be shown in pictures, and the choir will sing. The Sunday School children will give a program in the morning. A questionnaire sent to all homes reveals a strong interest in daily vacation Bible school.

—Menno Church, Lind, Washington, had its evening communion service on Good Friday. The church now has electric lights. Rev. Miller spoke Sunday on "The Voice of Dismas."—Mrs. Henry J. Franz, Corr.

—Bergtal Church, Pawnee Rock, Kansas: During the past six months the various church organizations have contributed approximately five thousand dollars for missions, relief, Bethel College, C.P.S. and local expenses. The semi-annual brotherhood convened April 2.—Mrs. John Dirks, Corr.

—First Church, Pretty Prairie, Kansas: Rev. and Mrs. Barkman, missionaries to Africa for thirty years under the Central Conference, told many of their experiences here April 7. Rev. Barkman was a school teacher in this vicinity forty years ago. The G.B.I. chorus, accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. Suchau, will present a program here April 4. The church is being re-decorated.—Ralph Krehbiel, Corr.

—Hereford (Pa.) Church: A welcome home service for returned service men and women was held April 7. Rev. Hugo Mierau gave the sermon. A covered dish luncheon was enjoyed at noon and there were speeches by Dr. Elmer E. S. Johnson, pastor; Rolland Johnson, Sunday School superintendent, and Rev. Mierau. The luncheon was in observance of "Everybodys' Birthday Party." Three comforters, one quilt, two layettes, and two children's kits have been prepared for relief.—Mae Latshaw, Corr.

—First Church, Sugarcreek, Ohio: Palm Sunday and Easter climax our church year. Easter Sunday evening the choir gave a splendid program of Easter music. This was followed by a special service of Thanksgiving for the guidance and protection of all our boys through these war years. The Women's Missionary Society, the Home Arts Club, and the Batasma Girls, each gave thirty dollars, making a total of ninety dollars, to be used for the repair of Ropp Hall at Bluffton College.—Wiley McDowell, Corr.

—Deep Run (Pa.) Church: A very impressive ordination service was held for our pastor, J. Herbert Fretz, on April 14. Rev. Howard Nyce, President of the Eastern District Conference, was in charge of the service. Rev. J. J. Plenert, Rev. Freeman Swartz, and Rev. Ward Shelly also took part in the service, while other pastors and their wives gave a word of testimony. We were also favored with the presence of missionaries Desters and Duerksens, who just returned to this country on furlough.—Mae Gross, Corr.

Mrs. C. A.
222 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

—First Church, Fredonia, Kansas: Dr. J. Winfield Fretz of Bethel College gave us an interesting message on the morning of April 7. A basket dinner was served at noon, and in the afternoon we discussed "How To Enlarge Our Group" at the short business meeting that was held.—Mrs. Ben Decker, Corr.

—Richfield (Pa.) Church: April 6 two adults were received and fourteen young people baptized. The following Sunday 195 people observed Holy Communion. The offering of $252 was given for missions and relief.—Ruth Hoffman, Corr.

—Bethel Church, Inman, Kansas: Rev. Philip A. Wedel of Goessel recently conducted a series of meetings in our church. Many came from surrounding churches. One night the male chorus of the Alexanderwohl Church sang for half of the program time. A number of C.P.S. campers have been home. The choir is to give a cantata on Easter Sunday.—Dan Neufeld, Corr.

—Hebron Church, Buhler, Kansas: The funeral of Ernest Ediger was held March 26. He reached the age of forty-six years. Raymond Regier, who went to Yugoslavia with a shipload of horses, reported on his trip at a recent meeting. He told of duties on shipboard and gave his impressions as to whether the horses had arrived at their supposed destination. On the afternoon of April 7 the Helping Hands girls mission society entertained the girls mission society of the Buhler church at a wiener roast. Mrs. Maddox gave a talk on "Youth." About thirty girls were present. Norman Enns and Velma Martens were married on April 7. They will be at home in Guymon, Oklahoma.—Corr.

—The Western District Sunday School Convention was held at the Emmaus Church, Whitewater, Kansas, April 7. Rev. Willard Claassen of Freeman, South Dakota, was the convention speaker. Mr. John W. Unruh of Newton was elected president, to succeed Rev. D. J. Unruh. Rev. Herbert Miller was elected treasurer. A delicious lunch was served in the basement.

—Waterloo-Kitchener United Church, Waterloo, Ontario: Our young people are manifesting a great deal of interest in regard to the coming Young People's Retreat to be held at Niagara-on-the-Lake on July 8, the Sunday after the session of the Canadian Mennonite Conference. It is hoped that one of the principal speakers will be Professor Walter H. Hohmann of Bethel College. The ministers of the Ontario churches gathered here on April 27-28 for a Bible convention. It was presided over by Rev. J. H. Janzen, D.D., and the theme was "Lovest Thou Me?" The choir sang the Lenten cantata, "Up Towards Jerusalem" on April 14. J. C. Enns, choir leader, plans to attend a leadership training course at Winkler, Manitoba, April 24-28.—Herbert P. Enns, Corr.

—Zion Church, Souderton, Pa., has during the last five weeks contributed 1,401 pounds of new and used clothing for relief and 208 blankets and comforters. Some of the blankets were purchased by the Relief Committee which in its recent canvass received $760 towards such a purchase. The Cantata "The Seven Last Words of Christ" by Dubois was sung to a capacity audience by a choir of fifty-three voices on Palm Sunday evening. We were happy to have six workers of the M.C.C. at Akron as members of the chorus.

—Mennonite Church, Madrid, Nebraska: On March 31 we had the privilege of having with us the King's Messengers Male Quartet from Grace Bible Institute. Joseph Schmute brought the message. —John G. Unruh

—First Church, Bluffton, Ohio: The annual union missionary meeting of Grace, Ebenezer, St. John's, Lima, and Bluffton churches was held the evening of April 7. Each society contributed to the service, and the speaker of the evening was Dr. Samuel Yoder, recently returned from relief work in the near East. His lecture was illustrated with pictures of scenes from Ethiopia, Egypt, and Palestine. A substantial offering was received and divided between relief and missionary work.—Mrs. C. H. Smith, Corr.

—Rev. Ronald von Riesen conducted evangelistic services at the Herold Church, Bessie, Oklahoma, April 7-13.

—Goessel (Kansas) Church: On the evening of April 7, Ernest Bachman, recently returned from accompanying a relief shipment of horses to Yugoslavia, gave a heart-searching talk on Deutoronomy 8 and showed slides. He made us realize the necessity of sending relief now so that hearts may be prepared for a later reception of the Bread of Life. He pointed out that there are only a few Protestant churches there. The collection went for relief purposes.—Margaret R. Schroeder, Corr.

MISSIONARIES COME AND GO

The following telegram was received April 18 from Rev. Howard G. Nyce of the Foreign Mission Board:

"We praise the Lord for the safe arrival from India of Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Dester and the Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Duerksen and family. The Duerksens arrived in New York Tuesday evening, the ninth, and the Desters arrived in New York the following day. We are also glad to announce that Miss Anna V. Liechty and Miss Selma Unruh leave from New York by plane to Leopoldville to go to their field of labor in Africa on Wednesday, April 24."

(According to reports received by the editor, the Desters are now visiting at Quakertown, Pa., and the Duerksens around Newton and Goessel, Kansas.)

The Mennonite

Volume 61 — April 30, 1946 — Number 18

How Shall These Feet Be Guided?

From the editor's point-of-view:

NATIONAL FAMILY WEEK will be observed this year from May 5-11, culminating in the Festival of the Christian Home on May 12. We need to emphasize family life. The very fact of a pressing need for this emphasis helps to show that we have perhaps been too sentimental about "Mother" and have fallen short on deep, enduring relationships within the family. The quality of family life to a very large extent depends upon the quality of father and mother. If these have experienced the love of God to the extent that they have within them an abundance of that patient, forgiving, hoping, non-resistant love of God, then the children will enjoy one of the most essential conditions for spiritual growth. They will not have to be pressed or reminded to honor father and mother. They won't be able to help honoring them, for the love that is conducive to growth draws honor unto itself. It's the parents rather than the children who fail. Let them be of the right quality, and no one will have to worry about bestowing honor upon them. Honor can not be forced; it must be won by true worth. When parents do not provoke their children to wrath, then they have happy, loving, growing children. When children are frustrated in the expressions of their energy, then they become angry. Naturally, they cannot be permitted to do as they please. They must learn to be pleased with what they ought to do. This is a matter of growing. It is a matter of parents taking the raw, undeveloped energy expressions of the child and guiding them into socially useful and approved channels. This demands of the parents a knowledge of goals, insight, and unlimited patience. The energy of a child is like high, pressing water in a dam. If that water cannot be channelled into turning massive turbines for the production of electricity, then it must be permitted to spill unused over the dam. When the energy of a child is not guided into constructive and productive channels, it has to spill over the dam in an uncontrolled and sometimes damaging way. To guide that energy is a tremendous problem for any parent. Just because it is so big, it suggests that one of the best ways for parents to observe National Family Week would be for them to check out and dip into books that have to do with this very subject. Teachers of child guidance courses in our colleges or one's minister would undoubtedly be willing to suggest such books.

MENTAL ILLNESS in many people could be more adequately cured or prevented if there were more psychiatric wards in our general hospitals. A quotation from the March issue of the Hospital Survey News Letter points this out when it says, "Many individuals in need of medical assistance of a psychiatric nature do not now receive it because of the stigma attached to being committed to an insane asylum. A far greater percentage of the population would receive adequate mental therapy if it were more readily available in general hospitals." The American Medical Association has officially declared that "about fifty per cent of all diseases are rooted in the mental and spiritual and fifty per cent in the physical." Plainly most general hospitals are not geared to this declaration of the Medical Association. It is noteworthy that the Bethel Deaconess Hospital of Newton, Kansas, touches upon this issue in its April issue of In the Service of the King.

SUBLIMATION is the way out in many a difficulty. To sublimate is "To direct the energy of (an impulse) from its primitive aim to one that is culturally or ethically higher." A human being is full of energy which he uses either destructively or constructively, either on a lower level or a higher level. His energy will express itself in some way. Basically that energy is neutral; we decide whether it is to be used for good or ill. The youngster in the city slum, who for lack of something better to do pilfers from the fruit stand, breaks windows, or steals tires, experiences sublimation when he is won into a boys' club where he learns to make model airplanes, takes lessons in swimming and plays hard at basketball. Again the three-year old who likes to mark up the wall may enjoy coloring on a large sheet of paper just as much when this is provided for him. But sublimation is not confined to infancy and childhood. It is a part of the whole maturing process of life. The greatest possible sublimation takes place when God makes a saint out of a sinner. Sublimation is a possibility which is always at our elbow. With it we can make many a desert area of our life into a fruitful garden.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorised Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchange to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON KANSAS

The Home God Meant

by H. T. Unruh

The heart of God must have throbbed with joy when He planned the home with family love, and intimacy, companionship, fellowship, counseling, guidance, care, sympathy, pleasure, cheer and all. Indeed, be it ever so humble, there is no place like home as God meant the home to be. Surely there is no substitute for home—home life or home training.

We hear a great deal said against our youth of today and certainly not without reason. However, I believe that our delinquent youth of today is but our sin of our delinquent home finding us. Many say we need the old-fashioned discipline, but where it exists, it does not bring desired results but often makes matters worse. Others say we need conversion in the home. Others blame our high schools, movies, pleasure resorts and many other things for what our youth is today. I still hold that the home of today more than movies, cars, or pleasure resorts is to blame for our delinquent youth as we see it today. The home has forgotten its important role in the life of society and the world in this age as in every age. The home is the very foundation of society. In the home each member of the family faces a miniature society or world. We in America who strongly believe in a democracy should say that the home is a small democracy. The home is the bed-rock of a democracy, and yet how many of us realize this. Too many homes, I am sure, are too much of a dictatorial way of life and living. Others too much of the "do as you please" way with no guidance or idealism to determine the way of life for the youth. Two extremes. Homes are different, I know. What works well in one home may not work out so well in another. Even in the same home children are different. Be that as it may. There are some things that homes should share so as to make our homes more efficient. The child should as soon as possible learn to decide what is right and expedient and what is not. Parents too often insist on making such decisions for the child even when the child has reached the age when it should determine such for itself, guided by the wise counseling of parents. Here, too, we should remember that we as parents are not infallible, nor are we always right. Very often the child is right. The home should be a place of counseling and talkings things over. This should be especially so when youth reaches the teen age and above all before the youth steps out of the home to establish his own. The home is the place where youth should learn the art of selfdiscipline. Here too, the parents too often think that they must do for the child what the child should do for itself. Too often when the child is faced with problems and temptations it is unable to stand the test because he has never learned selfdiscipline.

Furthermore, the home should be the place where the child gladly and willingly accepts the presence and fellowship of God. A sweet, calm Christian atmosphere in the home will do more than words or rules ever will or can do. It is through the home that the child should learn to love and attend the church and church worship. All in all the home should be the place where the youth of today accepts the presence of God, finds a great deal of pleasure, wholesome fun, and recreation, learns to eat, play, read and live together. Home should be the place where youth awakens to manhood or womanhood under the wise guidance of a father and mother who have made that hurdle in life and know of its dangers and consequences.

Christ's way of life was a way of kindness and goodness, helpfulness, forgiveness forbearance, love, and above all a companionship with his heavenly Father. In "The Home God Meant," Christ's way of life should become the way of the home. The backwash of the war is upon us. Ideals are blurred—ethics and morality discarded by so many. We must once more recapture the value and far-reaching influence of the Christian home. It is too common to hear people talk of our delinquent young people and talk of drastic rules to be enforced. I have little hope that such will remedy conditions as they are. Not until our delinquent homes will change to homes as God meant them to be will our youth be what they are called to be. I would recommend to every family the book "The Home God Meant" by George Luccock. This book should be read by all who plan to establish their own home some day in life.

—Elgin, Illinois: Members of the Church of the Brethern are good neighbors. As the result of appeals based on the general theme, "My Brother is My Neighbor," officials announced here today over-the-top goals which have been reached by the church's 180,000 membership. In 1945 the Church of the Brethern appropriated thirty-nine per cent of all gifts received from members to benevolences outside the local congregations. This is the best record of any church listed by United Stewardship Council statistics. Congregational expenses for 1945 were the third lowest reported for any church group in America. Gifts specifically designated for Brethern Service (princpally foreign relief and civilian public service) increased 147 per cent over the previous year.

What It Means To Be a Deaconess

(May 5, has been designated as Deaconess Sunday for the Western District Conference, at which time special emphasis is put on the importance of the work of a Deaconess. We have often given our version with reference to the work of a Deaconess, but sometimes it is helpful to know what others think of the subject. The following article on, "What It Means to be a Deaconess," by Gonzalo Baez Camargo, missionary worker in Mexico, and published in Antorcha Misionera, hah been translated from the Spanish.)

Ex-King Edward VIII, when he was Prince of Wales, bore on his shield this device: "Ich dien," which means "I serve." This is indeed a royal device, not only for kings, but also for the disciples of Him who said: "I have come to serve."

Men love titles of nobility that are based on blood; military titles which speak of force; academic and scientific titles which are a premium of intelligence; political titles which signify power and domination. But the supreme title is: "He who serves."

According to the Apostolic Constitution, a very ancient document which speaks of the organization of the Primitive Church, the work of the deaconess consisted of helping in the baptism of women, visiting sick and afflicted women and ministering to their necessities; acting as doorkeepers in the churches and as ushers for the women. They also helped and counseled the young women in their personal problems. The feminine "diaconate" flourished in the Eastern Church but in the Western or Roman Church this office was condemned by the Council of Orange and Epaon in Burgundy and by the second Council of Orleans. Owing to this situation it disappeared almost completely.

In 1833, Pastor Fliedner resuscitated this feminine ecclesiastical office forming an "Order of Deaconess" in Kaiserworth, Westphalia, Germany. And in 1862, it was introduced into the Church of England (Anglican) from which it passed to other Protestant denominations.

The world in which we live is full of physical pain, moral affliction, spiritual misery, sin and degradation. It is world in which reign egotism and lust for power; a world in which all wish to dominate and to conquer. In such a world the supreme necessity is to serve. In such a world, where there are so many that hurt, divide, and make sad the lives of others, a self-denying legion of disciples of Christ who go forth to serve is made indispensable.

But in order to be fruitful, service needs to fulfill certain requirements. First of all, it must be impelled by love and impregnated with love. One may serve of necessity or as an obligation; but only the service of love is true service. The service full of love is a service which gives itself not with sadness nor in a grumbling way but with joy.

The one who serves, moreover, must be full of humility. The most subtle temptation is that which moves us to pride ourselves in the service which we give. The most diabolical form of pride is that which boasts of virtue. To serve with humility is to serve even in the simplest, most silent and most obscure ways, without feeling any anxiety for receiving recognition, recompense or gratitude.

Service should also be full of wisdom. It must be intelligent. Otherwise, in spite of good intentions, it may injure greatly the very one it is desired to serve.

Service is not a path of flowers, but of thorns. It is full of difficulties and of trials, of hardships and suffering. Therefore service must be full of faith and self-denial.

As may be seen all these requirements are none other than the fruits of the Holy Spirit of which the New Testament speaks. Therefore it can be said that Christian service must be full of the spirit of Christ.

When the Apostle Paul sent Phoebe, the deaconess of Cenchrea with a commission to Rome, the best and highest recommendation that he could make of her was stated in these words: "She has helped many" (Romans 16:1) What better recommendation? That which a Christian woman can do may be humble and silent. Her name may not shine in the constellation of women of wisdom or of beauty or of influence. The best thing that can be said of a Christian woman is that which was said of Phoebe: "She has helped many."

May this prayer be ours, which according to the Apostolic Constitution, was made to consecrate the deaconesses of the Primitive Church:

"Eternal God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Creator of man and woman; Thou who didst fill with Thy Spirit, Miriam, Deborah, Anna and Huldah; Thou, who didst intrust to woman the birth of Thine only-begotten Son; Thou who didst in the tabernacle and in the temple place women as guardians of Thy holy gates, look upon this Thy servant and grant to her the Holy Spirit that she may worthily perform the work intrusted to her for Thy honor and for the glory of Christ." Amen.

Visiting the Sick in the Hospital

by Herbert R. Schmidt, M.D.

Lazarus was a beggar who tried to live by the crumbs while the dogs licked his sores, and he died because no one visited him. Jesus tells us that we must look up the patient that needs our help. Our help is not needed by all the patients that are hospitalized today and attended by adequate staffs of doctors and nurses. Hospitalized patients often receive too many visitors whereas many down-and-outers need our attention. In every neighborhood there are sick people who are poor, probably even thrown out by their friends and relatives, and left to their sickness and misery. They need our attention. When we have taken care of the sick that do not have hospital privileges, then we must think of what can be done with those in hospitals.

Visiting hospital patients is an art which calls for refinement. Several questions might be considered in visiting the sick.

How long should a visit be? Almost invariably it is too long. And if you should make the mistake to want to make it too short, the patient will be sure to ask you to stay. One of our Mennonite pioneers has said that five minutes is a visit; ten minutes is visiting; and fifteen minutes is a visitation.

What should you talk about? Don't plague the patient with your own illnesses, complaints, or hard luck stories. Don't tell the patient of another patient with a similar ailment who made a poor recovery or possibly died. The patient should be cheered. Usually the patient is interested in the progress of things that he was actively engaged in or interested in before he became ill. Pleasant memories will encourage even the most hopelessly sick. Sometimes a word of special greeting to the very sick is enough.

How many people should come to see a sick person? Never at one time or even in one day should a large group of people see one patient. One should not make the sick room a place for a family reunion. More than two visitors in a sick room at one time is oppressive to most patients. Although most patients may not feel that too many visitors are harmful to his recovery, the doctors and nurses feel that a patient who is sick enough to be in a hospital is too sick to have a room full of visitors or to have visitors too often. To all patients in the adjoining rooms who spend valuable time and money to make a convalescence, it is a great injustice for many visitors or even curiosity seekers to be milling through the hall way.

When should one visit hospital patients? Visiting hours in most hospitals are from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 8:30 p.m. But it is always necessary before visiting a hospital patient to stop at the hospital office and inquire whether the time is appropriate.

What patients should be visited? Again the hospital office must be consulted. Our patient may be too sick to see visitors, or he may have had enough visitors on that day. Maybe he has had treatments or medicines that will not permit visiting. There are types of patients that will be greatly benefited by visits. These are patients that have organic lesions that do not require mental rest, such as fracture patients who have to lie in traction for weeks and months.

How should we conduct ourselves while visiting the sick? All visitors should be as quiet as possible while going in and out of the hospital. Noises deter the patient from the rest he needs. Smoking should not be done in the hospital anywhere if one wants to be courteous to the patients. Anyone that has been exposed to or is suffering with a cold or an infectious disease had better wait with his visits to the hospital.

Finally a visit to the hospital sick room judiciously executed is a service much to be desired, welcomed by the hospital, and encouraged by the doctor. A visit to the hospital sick room made with lack of forethought can be very harmful.

Dr. Herbert R. Schmidt has been a member of the staff of the Bethel Hospital, Newton, Kansas, since 1935. Several years ago he spent some time in Paraguay, ministering to the medical needs of the Mennonite settlers there.

Rev. H. T. Unruh is pastor of the First Church, Hillsboro, Kansas, and Chairman of the Peace Committee of the General Conference. He is the father of a son and a daughter, both of whom are married. He also has the title of "grandfather."

Grant Stoltzfus, former publicity director for the M.C.C. and then later head of a C.P.S. unit in a state institution, is now in Philadelphia doing work in the Mental Hygiene Program.

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

A Letter From Siberia

Note: The writer of this letter is a Mennonite woman formerly from the Ukraine. The family was taken along with the retreating German army and are among those who, after the defeat of Germany, hoped to be united with their relatives in Canada. Instead the Russians sent them to Siberia. This letter was published in the Menn. Rundschau, March 27, 1946.

Dear Children,

Nearly ten years have passed since we received your last letter. We inquired whether it was possible to write to America and received a positive answer. First of all I would like to find out whether all of you are living and to wish you the peace of God which the world cannot give and health which we enjoy to a certain degree.

An Endless Journey

We have become eternal wanderers. First we were taken to Poland, then to Germany, back to Russia, and now we landed in the Ural Mountains. Mariechen, Anna and I are here and Peter and Neta were separated from us enroute. On our journey we found Neta's husband whom she had not seen for four years . . .

Life in the Ural Mountains

We live here in barracks. Fifty-seven persons in one room, twenty-six of which are children. Thus you can imagine that we cannot always keep our wits about us. The endless journey and the serious thoughts have also added their share. I am sixty-nine now and will soon go to rest. Life has become difficult. I will list the persons who live in this barrack . . . We have no men. (They were sent to a different place in Siberia before the Germans invaded the Ukraine. C. K.) . . .

Work in the Ural Mountains

May God see to it that this letter reaches you and my fondest hopes be fulfilled: namely, to receive a sign of life from you. May God be with you and us until we meet in His presence. We have as much as six feet of snow here. Anna and Mariechen are shoveling snow. The other girls are cutting trees in the forest which is very hard work for women. I will have to close. There is too much noise in the room. Farewell till we meet again. Your Mother and Grandmother, Elizabeth Federau.

MENNONITE AID SECTION NOTES

Information Wanted about relatives and friends

President Truman on December 22, 1945, requested the State Department to fill all immigration quotas of European countries from which there are a great number of displaced persons. Accordingly the Department of State has set up consular offices in several cities in Germany to process applications for immigration to the United States. The quota for Germany is comparatively large and it is hoped that a goodly number of our own brethern may be helped to immigrate to this country. All applicants must have been resident in the American-occupied zone of Germany on December 22, 1945. They will be given a stringent physical examination and will also be investigated by the Intelligence Service; in addition, guarantees of support must be furnished for each applicant. In filling the quotas, immigration permits will be charged to the countries of their birth; they will be distributed fairly among persons of all faiths, creeds and nationalities.

This program has only very recently been put into action and there are still uncertainties of detail. In order to give all possible assistance to Mennonite refugees in securing immigration permits, the Aid Section of the M.C.C. is requesting that those who have relatives and friends who are now refugees in American-occupied Germany send the names and addresses of those persons to the Aid Section, Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pa.

THE BOOK REVIEW

THE CHURCH AND RETURNING CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTORS, a 35-page pamphlet just published by the Federal Council of Churches, is an exceedingly lucid and helpful statement of the background and religious basis of conscientious objection, the government's recognition of objectors, who the C.O.'s are, what they have been doing, their attitudes and aspirations and problems. Part II of the pamphlet deals with the task and opportunity of the local church and suggests how their needs may best be met. The concluding statement says:

"The Christian Church in America has within its membership a body of men who from deep religious convictions, found by the Government to be sincere, have been unable to join their fellow citizens in waging war. They are, on the whole, men of superior training, spiritual maturity, and personal dedication to God. They have served honorably in tasks beneficial to the national welfare. They return home faced by many problems, not the least of which is misunderstanding, with attendant discrimination. The church has an opportunity to include these men and their families in warm fellowship. Such consideration will be richly repaid in leadership and service."

The author, Roy A. Burkhart, is a prominent protestant minister born of Mennonite parentage. The foreword is written by Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam. The pamphlet is distributed by the Literature Department of the Federal Council of Churches, 297 Fourth Avenue, New York 10, N.Y., Price, 10c each, $7.00 a hundred.—Lester Hostetler

Experience in Mental Hospitals Raises Question
A MENNONITE MENTAL HOSPITAL?

By Grant Stoltzfus

"If I were an attendant, I would try to learn psychology first hand from the patients with an occasional glance at my fellow attendants, the physicians, and myself." These words come from Dr. Earl Bond, and were his advice to CPS men through The Attendant magaine. He goes on to suggest that attendants can learn from their patients why people are fearful, why groups of persons are suspicious of others, and what leads people into unreal worlds created by their bewildered minds. By learning to handle such people with sympathy and goodwill, the attendant himself can become more understanding of the human personality, and can be more effective with so-called normal people. Mental victims in their extreme behavior simply reflect our own shortcomings. To say that they cannot be taught by us, is to betray the fact that we refuse to learn from them.

Did Non-resistance Work with the Mentally Ill?

This question is part of a larger one: How well did we live the Christian life? How sensitive were we to the challenge to translate our beliefs into action? Were we "conscientious conscientious objectors?' There is a place to confess our failures. Too often the strain of long hours and the monotony of ward work became the basis to excuse the kind of care that was not always too far above average. "Everyone else treats the patients this way. If you worked in the ward where I do you would treat them the same."

But there were those who refused to use methods of care that were abusive or negligent. Some men, after being on the wards, began giving patients more frequent baths; others provided recreation for some of the lonely patients who were without it. Many participated in the Mental Hygiene Program's efforts. It must be said that many were quite serious in their attempt to find better means of restraint and control for the more difficult patients.

At one unit a man protested to the superintendent when, for the evening meal, he was given rotten potatoes to serve in the patients' dining room. The superintendent appreciated this and ordered a better diet. At another unit our men reported serious abuse of patients by regular attendents. The superintendent accepted their evidence and discharged several men. At a few institutions the shocking conditions led C.P.S. men to make public their protests and several superintendents were removed as a result. Investigations have been made in a number of states.

Lessons for Everyday Life

If men were awake to the mental hospital experience, they came to understand better both themselves and others. This understanding can be a great help in serving people everywhere. Many folks that we meet daily who seem "queer" and hard to work with may be suffering from mental illness and should be under a psychiatrist's care. As C.P.S. men return to their homes from mental hospitals they can do much to help the mentally unfortunate which every community has. One such man says:

"Since working in a mental institution, I feel an obligation to the community when I return home after the war. Since learning the various causes which place people in these institutions, I feel it is my duty to correct these conditions. I see the need of a higher standard for well-balanced moral and Christian living I feel we shoud provide similar institutions for our own people."

A Mennonite Mental Hospital?

The sentiment of this C.P.S. man is one shared by many of our people. Many men in the hospital units testify that Christ's ministry to the suffering has come to have new meaning to them. What should the Church do?

A survey of our congregations indicates the extent of mental illness and mental deficiency. How many are in institutions, and how many are cared for at home? How do our church leaders feel about sponsoring our own institution to care for them? The survey, which included all Mennonite branches, showed over three hundred mentally ill in institutions, and a slightly higher number cared for at home. Only sixty-eight feebleminded children or persons from our churches are in institutions, while over five hundred are cared for at home.

Of the church leaders replying, a strong number favored having our own mental institution. Superintendents of old peoples' homes favored such institutions also. There are some practical problems in establishing such institutions. Would relatives of a patient in Kansas want to place their mentally ill in an institution located let us say, in Ohio? Are we willing to raise the money for such an institution? Also this important consideration: Do we, as yet, have the trained doctors and nurses that such institutions must have? Many progressive general hospitals have psychiatric wards, and this service is to be highly recommended where expense and other requirements can be met. Perhaps our Mennonite general hospitals can consider this service to the mentally ill. A few of our young men and women who hope to enter medicine plan to specialize in psychiatry.

The report of this survey contains some recommendations:

1. That convalescent homes or farms be established for the type of mentally ill who would profit by them.

2. That returned C.P.S. hospital men use their experience to care for mentally ill in their homes where possible. Many of our quiet farm communities with homes where a devotional spirit pervades would be restorative to certain types of mental illness. Around ten states provide remuneration for foster home care which is beginning to gain recognition as a means to provide for the mentally ill.

3. That our young people continue to serve in volunteer service units in mental institutions. The Mennonite Central Committee will furnish information on units for the summer of 1946 at Cleveland, Ohio; Howard, Rhode Island; and Norristown, Pennsylvania.

4. That our schools teach and stress mental health along with the other emphases in building Christian character.

"We Are Accountable"

Let the Church see that God has led a great field of witness and service. Hundreds of our young men have come to see the sorrowful plight of thousands of mental sufferers. The state and science are doing the best they can for these stricken ones. Will the Church, like the priest and Levite, walk by on the other side?

JOTTINGS

—Calvary Church, Barlow, Oregon: The Women's Missionary Society of our church recently sent a shipment of wool sweaters, wool comforters, wool socks, and miscellaneous clothing for children and adults to the Mennonite Clothing Center, Newton, Kansas. There were 151 new articles among the 1,243 pieces. Twenty-two dollars in cash was also sent to the Akron office for blankets for Europe.—Paul N. Roth, Corr.

—Bethel College Church: Holy Week services began on Palm Sunday with The Seven Last Words by the Bethel College choir. On Monday evening colored slides depicting the events of the Passion season were shown. Tuesday evening the Bethel Academy chorus assisted with the service and on Wednesday, Holy Communion was observed. Rev. John Loewen, Swift Current, Canada, who is at present a Bethel College student, brought the message on Good Friday morning.

—First Church, Hutchinson, Kansas: A young people's fellowship organization has been formed. The various musical departments of the church gave a program on Easter Sunday evening.—Mrs. J. S. Friesen, Corr.

—Alexanderwohl Church, Goessel, Kansas: Good Friday morning, Miss Bernice Klassen and her pupils from the North Springfield school gave an inspiring portrayal of the Easter story in song and scripture, after which Rev. P. A. Wedel spoke on the text, "It Is Finished." Quite a number of schools in this community had their closing programs and picincs in the afternoon on Good Friday. Christian community organizations again held an outdoor Easter sunrise service. Rev. D. C. Wedel of Halstead delivered the message on Monday, April 22. Funeral services for Mr. Henry A. Hiebert of Deschner, Nebraska, were held April 10. Mrs. Margaret (Jacob) Schroeder of the Bethesda Home for the Aged passed away April 17. Rev. P. A. Wedel is to speak at the M. B. Church, Hillsboro, on April 23, upon invitation of the Christian Business Men's Association of that town.—Mrs. A. Adolph Duerksen, Corr.

IN MEMORIAM

REV. DERK P. TIESZEN

Rev. Derk P. Tieszen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Tieszen, was born March 7, 1859, in the village of Paulsheim in South Russia. In 1874 at the age of fifteen he with his parents migrated to America and settled in the plains of South Dakota three miles west of Marion. He was baptized in 1878 and received as a member in the Schartner Church which divided in 1883. The part that broke away became what is now the Bethesda Church which he joined.

In 1890 this church was without a pastor. An election was held, and the choice fell upon father. In the spring of 1891 he was ordained to the ministry of this church. On April 1, 1894, he was elected as elder and ordained into the eldership the following November. He faithfully and without interruption served his church for forty-eight years.

In Helena Deckert he found a very devoted and helpful helpmate. He was united with her in holy matrimony on December 4, 1880. They lived on a farm joining the old parental place. This union was blessed with thirteen children, four of which preceeded in death. They celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in 1930. In 1925 they retired from the farm and moved to Marion where they lived until the fall of 1945, after which they made their home in Freeman with their youngest daughter and her family. Around Thanksgiving time in 1941 he suffered a stroke from which he recovered quite well. Last fall a minor stroke was again noticed. He also had an eye trouble which dated back to 1895. In 1904 he underwent an operation on his eyes, but his sight diminished until 1926 he became totally blind. He had been ailing for some time, but was able to be up until the last week or so when he was confined to bed. On Sunday morning, April 7, another stroke came and he was called to rest at 5:20 a.m.

He is survived by his beloved wife and nine children: Abraham, Anna (Mrs. Dan Becker), John and Benjamin of Marion; Susanna (Mrs. Toby Becker) of Dolton; Derk of Albany, N.Y., Eva (Mrs. O. C. Krehbiel) of Hutchinson, Kansas, Agnetha (Mrs. L. H. Linscheid) and Amalia (Mrs. J. D. Unruh) of Freeman. Besides these he has one brother, Jacob P. Tieszen ,and one sister, Maria (Mrs. John Engbrecht) both living in Marion.—Mother and children

Y.P.U. OFFICERS

Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.

Vice President
Verney Unruh

Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference

Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

Service to Those Forgotten

by Frank Wright Jr.

(Continued from last week)

Indirect Services

In addition to direct ways of serving the mentally ill and deficient, there are opportunities for indirect service—both to those who are now mentally ill and to those many who will be in the future. At the present rate, one out of every twenty persons in this country will spend a part of his life in a mental institution. Among the ways you can serve this one out of twenty indirectly are:

1 To work for improvement and expansion of facilities for care in the community.

Since over 97 per cent of the mental patients in the United States are cared for in city, county, state or federal hospitals, the responsibility for their care rests on the people. We should know what facilities are available in our communities (clinics, hospitals, guidance centers, etc.) and know how to use them to the best advantage. Then we should see to it that the provisions are improved and increased until we know we are beginning to control the specter of mental illness.

Ask your teachers, ministers and community leaders what you can do toward this end.

2 To support the National Mental Health Foundation and local mental health groups.

Perhaps the most significant development to come out of Civilian Public Service is the National Mental Health Foundation. Its broad, comprehensive program to improve mental institutions and to educate the public about mental problems deserves your support. It can provide specific suggestions for study and action on all of the opportunities mentioned in this article. It can also supply information about groups in your own state and community which are working in the field of mental health.

Write the Foundation at Box 7574, Philadelphia 1, Pa., for information about how you can help.

3 To learn more about mental illness and mental deficiency.

The average person knows very little about these disorders, which are now classed as "America's number one health problem." Yet knowledge and understanding on the part of the general public are essential to prevention and proper treatment. Speakers, discussions and book reviews on topics in this area can provide interesting and informative programs for church and club groups.

Ask former C.P.S. men, psychology and sociology teachers, doctors and ministers for suggestions.

4 To learn more about mental health and to practice good mental health as individuals and groups.

Christ came that many might have more abundant life—a balanced life in which the physical, mental, social and spiritual life are harmonized into a whole life. Achieving such a life is not easy—but achieving it is the aim of good mental health, just as it is the aim of the good Christian life. Henry C. Link in his Return to Religion points out that the findings of psychology in respect to personality and happiness are largely a rediscovery of old religious truths. Mennonite young people need to bring these old religious truths to life in their own lives and to see that they are relevant to personality and happiness today.

Ask your minister, your teachers and your parents to help you do this, and make your personal and group studies and worship contribute to this end.

5 To work at reducing conflict, insincerity and repression in our social order and at increasing peace, security and opportunities for growth.

Here is the ultimate problem. Mental illness is not just the isolated factor, unrelated to the rest of life. Like war and industrial strife and racial discrimination, mental illness is a symptom of the deadly degenracy of our civilization. All of these are results of the "soul-sickness" which pervades and dominates our world. To eradicate one, we must work at eradicating all. And the solution must begin at home—in ourselves, our family, our church, our colleges, our work and our community.

So the call to serve these forgotten is, at last, a call to serve mankind. It is the age-old call to make the Kingdom of God first in the hearts of men wherever they are found. But, among the mentally ill and deficient, are to be found new and challenging opportunities to be at work in establishing the Kingdom. You are called into service to these forgotten!

—Frank L. Wright, Jr., Educational Division, NATIONAL MENTAL HEALTH FOUNDATION, Box 7574 Philadelphia 1, Pa.

Program of Christian Workers' Institute

The third annual Christian Worker's Institute will be held June 5-7 on the Bluffton College Campus, Bluffton, Ohio. This conference is planned in the interest of bringing young people entering Christian work together to discuss the possibilities of such service and to become acquainted with the scope of Christian work.

The program of the Institute is printed below. Anyone interested in attending the meeting, should contact Dr. Paul Shelly, Lincoln Hall, Bluffton College, Buffton, Ohio.

PROGRAM

	Wednesday	Thursday	Friday
8:30-9:00	Worship	Worship	Worship
9:00-9:15	Announcements	Announcements	Announcements
9:15-10:00	Great Christian Teachings—J. N. Smucker
	God	Christ	Sin and Salvation
10:00-10-15	Recess	Recess	Recess
10:15-11:00	The Challenge of Christian Service: The Task, Qualifications, Preparation, and Opportunities
	The Ministry— Olin Krehbiel	Christian Education— L. L. Ramseyer	Missions— Howard G. Nyce
11:00-11:45	The Heritage and the Outlook of the Mennonites—Don Smucker
	Lunch
1:45-2:00	Worship	Worship	Worship
2:00-3:00	Our Conference Program
3:00-4:00	The Pattern	An Emerging Plan—The Joint Meetings of Boards H. A. Fast	Young People's Program Elmer Ediger
4:00-530	Mennonite Service Units Elmer Ediger	Mennonite Biblical Seminary and Bible School A. Warkentin	A Mennonite Pattern of Life William Stauffer
4:00-5:30	Recreation
	Dinner
6:30-7:30	Opportunities for personal conferences with leaders
7:30-7:45	Worship in charge of local ministers
7:45-8:30	"Our World"	Illustrated Message J. P. Klassen	Question Period
8:30-9:15	Party with College Students	God's Call to Service— "Our Message" Andrew R. Shelly	"The Messenger" Consecration Service Andrew R. Shelly

Voluntary Service Units and Living "Statistics"

by Dallas Voran

(Editor's Note: Dallas Voran is the Educational Director of CPS No. 141, Gulfport, Mississippi. A Summer Voluntary Service Project is being planned for this unit during the coming summer, and is to be open for both young men and young women, who are interested in this vital program of the churches.)

When we read that 43 percent of Harrison County's children have intestinal parasites—that there is a high rate of venereal disease, that there is discrimination against Negroes, that the South is poor economically, that many communities do not have adequate spiritual guidance—when we read these things, they don't mean much to us. Statistics never do. We don't cultivate the practice of translating figures into people, or of putting ourselves into the places of those people.

We are more impressed when we are thirsty from digging a privy pit and can't drink water from the family's open well because we know it is polluted. It means somethng to us when we try to convince a tradition-bound father that he is not doing right by his children by not having a privy—or a mother that her child's illness is a result of improper diet. We are given a jolt when we see three colored pupils try to crowd into one small seat at a desk that was built for one, because there aren't enough seats to go around; and their teacher trying to teach over sixty pupils in all grades single-handed, besides having three classes a week at the high school.

One of the things that our experience in this war has done is to scatter us to all sections of the country. We have met and learned to know living "statistics." And our church is beginning to realize in a more real way the social implications of the religion we profess. We are waking up to our responsibility to our fellow men.

Voluntary service units are becoming a reality—opportunities for our young people to demonstrate that Christianity is as distinctive in peace as it is in war, and a chance to say that we believe that Christianity has the answers to men's problems. The field of public health work in the South promises to be an important one for such units.

The South, old as it is, is still an undeveloped part of the country. Its great natural beauty is in sharp contrast with the ugliness of the ignorance, poverty and prejudice existing among many of its people. Our experience has led us to believe that the service we can give is very important and that the quality of work we can do does stand out. We have had a vision of the Christian message as having something to contribute to all areas of human activity. And the only way to "make the vision live" is to live it ourselves, live it in selfless service to our fellow men.

Lay Plans for California Retreat August 10 to 17

The California Retreat Committee has secured the services of the following men as members of their faculty for their 1946 retreat, to be held August 10 to 17. Rev. Clyde Dirks of Portland Oregon, will teach Bible, and also bring the closing messages each evening at the Campfire services. Rev. Walter Dyck, the General Conference Executive Secretary, will attend, and also teach several Bible Courses. Rev. and Mrs. Aaron Jantzen, both former retreaters at the California retreat prior to going to India, will bring the mission challenge. Professor L. J. Horsch of Chaffey College has been secured to lead discussions on the layman's views of our denomination, especially pertaining to the present and the future of our Mennonite Church.

Also serving will be Alfred Heer of Paso Robles, as retreat chairman, Vernon Neufeld of Shafter, as dean of men, Katherine Rogalsky of Reedley, as dean of women Mrs. June Moser of Upland, music leader, and Mrs. Grace Boshart of Upland, as retreat hostess.

C. E. Plants "Lord's Acre"

The Halstead C. E. has undertaken a new money raising project called "The Lord's Acre." Almost an acre of potatoes has been planted at the farm home of one of the members. An enjoyable evening was spent in preparing the potatoes for planting. A large and enthusiastic group turned out for the job. After the work was done, there was still time for several games. Evenings such as this will be spent in caring for the potatoes this summer. The project will be used for Y.P.U. projects.

Youth Events

The Rosthern Youth Farm has for sometime desired to establish an orphan's home on the farm. Word from Rev. Henry Friesen of Saskatchewan states that recently a man donated $5,000.00 to the farm for the purpose of establishing a Children's Home.

Reports have been made in Canada by Henry Friesen on the resolutions of the Young People's Union to the Altona Bible School, Swift Current Bible School, the Manitoba leaders. Brother Friesen states further, "I was very glad that everywhere my report from the conference was welcomed and I believe God really had his hand in our work at Newtion. He will help us in the future to put everything into practice."

On March 26, a meeting on mental health problems was held at the Broad Street Church of Christ (Disciples), Columbus, Ohio. Represented at the meeting were the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, the National Mental Hygiene Foundation, the Columbus Council of Churches, C.P.S. hospital unit in Ohio, the M.C.C. and the Brethern Service Committee.

At this meeting the group organized the Ohio Mental Hygiene Program. Paul L. Goering, assistant director of the C.P.S. unit at Cleveland State Hospital, was elected interum chairman and will head up the effort to stimulate and support a program in Ohio. The following program was outlined: (1) To keep men now in Ohio C.P.S. units and ex-C.P.S. men in Ohio informed about the activity of the Ohio Mental Hygiene Association, looking toward broader popularization of needs and a larger association membership; (2) To assist in the foster home care program for mental patients by supplying names of persons interested in offering home-care for released patients; (3) To explore the possible use of the Columbus Committee as the contact agency between the OMHA and the constituent churches; (4) To recruit former C.P.S. men and women with hospital experience for staffing one of the new receiving hospitals for handling mental patients in the early stages of mental disorder. (Such hospitals are relatively new in Ohio and have been highly successful. Plans are underway to have receiving hospitals in Cleveland, Akron, and Toledo.)

Paul Goering, elected as chairman of OMHA comes from the Moundridge, Kansas, community.

VICTORY IS A TWIN

True victory does not arise from the defeat of an enemy, asserting one's superiority over others, and claiming special privileges. True victory is a twin and must be shared. Victory is real only when it is mutual. We are victorious when others are victorious. Victory is not victory when half the world is defeated. A consistent way of expressing joy for the cessation of hostilities is to recognize our obligations to that part of the world that is defeated and humiliated. Extending a hand of brotherly love, returning good for evil, doing good to them that hate you, and sacrificial service, are the keys to victory. A military victory hardly belongs to the non-resistant Christian. Our rejoicing should be in victoriously demonstrating the Christ-like way of life to our neighbors and enemies. CHRIST IS OUR VICTORY. —Pike View Peace News

MILLIONS OF DISPLACED PEOPLE

In these post-war days when the facts of the ravages of the war become common knowledge the world is distressed by the recurrent news about the suffering of homeless dislocated people. All outer and physical moorings of hundreds of thousands of families are dissolved to nothingness. And a very large percentage of these people have lost all inner moorings if they ever had any. UNRRA is spending millions of dollars to help these dislocated people to find a home again. And our own MCC is royally carrying a good share of that load. That is the way it ought to be. This is obeying the injunctions of Jesus when He says: "I was naked—imprisoned—sick—etc. and ye helped me." God forbid that we should be negligent during this time of unprecedented world-wide suffering. But with this short article I would like to remind us all not to forget the millions of spiritually dislocated people in Asia and Africa and other parts of the world. It may take about ten years to locate the physically dislocated people of Europe and China. But it will most certainly take many decades to locate the spiritually dislocated people who have wandered away from the Father-heart and home of God. These millions are wandering in the jungles of superstitition and Godlessness, and they have wandered there so long that many of them have lost the desire to be established in the eternal home of the Father. Yet the Father-heart yearns for these prodigals, and the shepherd of the souls will search until He find. So in all our help for the physically dislocated people, let us not forget the spiritually dislocated millions. To get these latter located in the Father's home will take very much patience, endurance and sacrifice in personnel and means. But let us not overlook this fundamental need during these times when we are so forcefully confronted by this post-war need.—John Thiessen

RELIEF

C.A.R.E. Now in Operation

It is now possible for individuals in this country to send ready-made food packages to friends and relatives in seven European countries. C.A.R.E., which was described in this column some time ago, is a nonprofit organization set up by twenty-four American Agencies engaged in foreign relief through which indivduals, groups and organizations may order "standard food packages"' for delivery to designated relatives, friends, groups and organizations in certain European countries. Countries to which packages may be sent are Czechoslovakia, Finland, France, Italy, Netherlands, Norway and Poland; it is anticipated that orders soon may be accepted for Austria, Belgium and Greece.

To buy a package it is necessary to get a food remittance blank from your local bank, from the M.C.C., Akron, or direct from C.A.R.E.; fill in your name and address and that of the person to whom you wish to send the package (be sure that the address of the recipient is recent and correct). Enclose a money order, cashier's check or personal check of $15 and mail to C.A.R.E., 50 Broad street, New York 4, New York. Delivery will be made from stockpiles in CARE's overseas warehouse; if delivery cannot be made within a reasonable length of time, the purchase price will be refunded.

The packages now being sent are "10-in-1" food packages which C.A.R.E. was able to buy from army surplus; they contain approximately thirty pounds of food, about one-third of which is meat; they also contain considerable milk foods, processed fruits and vegetables and sugar products. Designed by the army, the packages contain a quantity of cigarettes, which makes it impossible for the MCC to endorse the current package; future packages made up for C.A.R.E. will not contain cigarettes.

To date no word has been received from Canadian officials as to the operation of C.A.R.E. in that country. As soon as information is available it will be announced in this column.

Relief Worker Departures

Boyd Nelson sailed from Philadelphia on April 15 for Naples, Italy, where he will be succeeding Delvin Kirchhofer as director of the unit there; Delvin will be returning to the States in the near future. Edwin Schmidt was scheduled to sail on April 18 from Philadelphia for Buenos Aires enroute to Paraguay; he will likely assist in building the new leper asylum.

MCC Relief Goods Being Distributed in Germany

A cable received from Robert Kreider on April 18 states that the German Central Committee which is responsible for the distribution of CRALOG relief goods has given highest priority to refugee groups. In line with this policy, the Evangelisches Hilfswerk is distributing MCC food and clothing in refugee camps where displaced Mennonites are among those aided. Brother Kreider will be working in and around Wiesbaden, a section where quite a few of our own Mennonite folk are located.

Food shipments to France

Two shipments of food left for France the first week of this month. The first shipment leaving New York April 3 was comprised of two carloads of home processed fruits, vegetbles and meat and some commercially processed rice and canned milk; also a carload of tools and utensils. The other shipment left on April 5 and consisted of four carloads of evaporated milk. Together these two shipments totaled 355,661 pounds, and evaluated at $56.867.27.

Relief Briefs

Esther Detweiler has transferred to Forli in northern Italy where she will be serving as laboratory technician for the refugee camps in that area. Up to this time she has been located at Lecce in the heel of Italy.

Vera Yoder and Verna Zimmerman arrived in Hankow, China, on April 15 after spending over five months in India awaiting passport validations to China.

Edwin Schrag arrived in Shanghai, China on April 17.

CPS BRIEFS

There were 5,185 men still in CPS on March 31; of these, 2,609 were in M.C.C. administered camps and units. Discharges from M.C.C.-C.P.S. in March totaled 527.

A total of ten thousand dollars has been given to relief by CPS men during the four-month period between December 1 and March 31.

One-hundred thirty-four men from M.C.C. camps and units have been released into the C.P.S. Reserve, and are sailing on Europe-bound cattleboats.

—Consecrated young people will again work among the migrants this summer, according to a report by Mrs. Wm. C. Voth, Secretary of the Women's Missionary Association. Mrs. Voth states, "The Roman Catholic Church is entering the field with mobile units fully equipped with all the wealth of their church at their command. The challenge comes to Protestant churches to bring the Word of Life to these thousands who provide our tables with the necessities of life. Our denomination with its unique mission of an evangelical witness combined with a prophetic insistence upon social righteousness has a real contribution to make in this field. Reporting on another phase of work, Mrs. Voth states that it is "the hope of the Women's Missionary Association that every General Conference church in the United States and Canada may be visited before next General Conference in the interest of mission society work." "The purpose of this visiting is to promote the work for missions in the church through mutual acquaintance and encouragement, to organize new societies where needed, and to acquaint the women and girls of our churches with the whole scope of missionary endeavor of our Church."

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

BETHEL COLLEGE

The fourth in the series of spring recitals in the Music Department was given by Lois Lohrentz (McPherson), organist, on April 24. To follow are a duo-piano concert by Linda Klein (Newton) and Walter Jost (Hillsboro), recitals on April 28 and May 12 by nine of Mrs. Ferd Voth's advanced students in voice and piano, and on April 8 her piano students in lower grades will appear. Eight instrumental students of Mr. Vilas Gerber gave a program on April 8. The two graduation recitals of the year were given in the previous week by Alta Unruh (Harper,) piano, and Elvera Voth (Walton), organ—students of Professor Hohmann. The fifty-piece Bethel College Community Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Gerber, will give its home concert on April 29 in Memorial Hall. Professor Hohmann will again direct the combined Mennonite choirs in the annual Song Festival scheduled for May 5 on our campus.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

Student organizations are in the process of electing officers for next year. Robert Blough, Middlebury, Indiana, has been elected president of the YMCA; Camilla Gorby, Rawson, Ohio, is to head the YWCA; Clymenia Hamman, East Greenville, Pennsylvania, was elected president of the Girls' Gospel Team. The new college catalog has just come off the press. Anyone interested may receive a copy by sending a request to the registrar of the college. A new roof is being put on College Hall. The old roof has leaked for a good many years. Interior redecoration is to follow during the summer. Rev. Harry Yoder and President Ramseyer plan to attend the Eastern District Conference to be held in Souderton, Pennsylvania, May 2-5.

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

Easter Monday is the time for the traditional Community Music Day. During the forenoon a program is given by some fifteen choirs from the surrounding churches. There is probably no other single event that brings the different branches of Mennonites found in the community together so effectively as does this one. The afternoon program is presented by the school. It is opened with a piano concert. Five pianos are used, with three people at each instrument—fifteen players in all. Mrs. Oscar Gering, instructor in piano, has charge of this part of the program. This is followed by the singing of the academy chorus and by vocal and instrumental solos. Professor Toews, assisted by Professor Graber, directs this work. Last week several of Professors Toew's music students and the academy chorus participated in the State Regional Music Contest at Yankton. The chorus and the boys' quartett received "excellent" ratings. For individual work Delmer Miller's tenor solo and Werner Kroeker's baritone solo were also rated "excellent" by the judges.—Marie Waldner.

JOTTINGS

—Missionary Arthur Friesen writes: "On Palm Sunday evening, the Baptist and the Mennonite missionaries among the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indians of Oklahoma conducted a consecration and decision service at the Government Boarding School at Concho, Oklahoma. Quite a number of students that evening made their first decision of accepting Christ as their own Savior. At the close of the service these students then met for a short time with the missionary from their respective fields.

—Hebron Church, Buhler, Kansas: A series of Passion Week meetings were held with Rev. D. C. Wedel of Halstead as speaker. On April 19 the three mission societies presented a worship service centered around the "Seven Last Words." The free will offering which was taken will be used for the two native workers in India whom our societies are supporting.—Corr.

—First Church, Hillsboro, Kansas: On April 18 a quiet meditation on scripture and hymns on "Christ in the Garden" prepared us for Good Friday and Easter Sunday. Fourteen young people joined church on March 31. In the evening Ernest Bachman gave an illustrated report of his recent trip to Europe on a cattle boat.—Mrs. B. A. Goertz, Corr.

—Garden Township Church, Halstead, Kansas: On Good Friday evening the men's chorus, the ladies quartet, and the Ruth sisters gave a program of song and music, and Helen Vogt favored us with a chalk picture of the tomb. Easter Sunday we remembered the Lord's death by partaking of holy communion.

—Rev. Ronald von Riesen, Executive Secretary of the Board of Education, conducted Holy Week services at the Brudertal Church, Hillsboro, Kansas. Subjects used by Rev. von Riesen were: "Jesus—the Set Face," "Jesus—the Man of Means," "Peter, the Man Who Found Himself," "Judas—Opportunity Cast Aside," and "The Three Crosses."

—Zion Church, Elbing, Kansas, has announced the opening of three daily vacation Bible schools. Four teachers and one assistant are to instruct about sixty children of kindergarten and grade school age in Bible studies and song. It was in 1921 that the church sponsored its first Bible school, combined wth German school. In 1925 the congregation voted to discontinue the German language, and make it a daily vacation Bible school. All schools, since its organization have been open to the general public regardless of church affiliation. Rev. P. P. Tschetter of the Pretty Prairie Mennonite Church will conduct a series of evangelistic meetings from May 5-10. Due to the illness of our pastor, Rev. J. E. Entz of Newton brought the Good Friday Message.—Mrs. Louis A. Janzen, Corr.

—Grace Church, Dallas, Oregon: We had a union Good Friday service at the M.B. Church in the afternoon and our own in the evening. On Easter Sunday morning, we had a sunrise service.—Mrs. Dave Balzer, Corr.

—Arlington (Kansas) Mennonite Church: Members from our church participated in the community Easter cantata, "Eternal Life," which was given on Good Friday in the Methodist Church. Our pulpit is being filled temporarily by David Cone of the Manhattan Bible College. On Easter Sunday we commemorated the Lord's Supper.—Mrs. Lester Ewy, Corr.

—First Church, Nappanee, Indiana: The April Workers' Conference had for their topic the subject of "Plant and Equipment: a Rule to Grow By." Our three choirs sang at the annual Easter sunrise service and gave a special program in the evening. The Bluffton College Men's Gospel Team Quartet will have charge of the evening service, May 5.—Mrs. Loyal Corwin, Corr.

—Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: During the Lenten season, our pastor presented to us, in a series of services, Christ as found in the Gospel of John. He called John a picture album of Christ. Pre-Easter services were conducted by Rev. Lando Hiebert with Rev. C. M. George as songleader. Both from Omaha, Nebraska. The services were well attended. A recent cause for joy in our pastor's family and in our congregation as well was the arrival of a baby daughter. The Easter sunrise service was quite well attended, especially by the young people. Rev. William Neufeld of the Carson Church was the guest speaker. Our oldest Sunday School teacher, Mr. John Jungas, was called to his heavenly home early Easter morning while sitting at his desk preparing his Sunday School lesson.—Helen Penner, Corr.

—Dr. D. Gale Johnson, Research Associate in Agricultural Economics at the University of Chicago, will replace William D. Spencer on the University of Chicago Round Table on Friday evening, May 3, at 8:00 o'clock in the Jolliffe Auditorium of the Bethel College Memorial Hall. Dr. Spencer, due to illness, will not be able to appear as announced previously.

—The Beatrice Church, Beatrice, Nebraska, like many other churches, has long felt the need for more room for Sunday-school classes and other church activities. This need has been met by our congregatiin with a greatly enlarged and well equipped church basement. Dedicatory services were held on Palm Sunday. Professor Menno Harder of Bethel College brought the morning message. Everyone was invited to remain for the noon meal. This was followed by a dedication service under the direction of our pastor, Rev. Elbert E. Koontz. Professor Harder spoke on the need of greater spiritual life, and representatives of our various church activities expressed their appreciation for there added facilities.—W. C. Andreas, Corr.

—Gnadenberg Church, Whitewater, Kansas: New members are: Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Jantz, formely of the Pretty Prairie Church, and Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Rempel, formerly of the Brudertal Church.—Mrs. Leo Voth, Corr.

—First Church, Aberdeen, Idaho: Chaplain Arthur Wenger, home on furlough from Europe, told us about some of the experiences of an army chaplain. Lois Wenger and Maurice Wedel were married April 5, and Mildred Dick and Orval Brown were married April 7. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Becker went to Caldwell on April 14 to hold services for the Mennonite group there. The men of the church have organized a brotherhood with Waldo Friesen as chairman.—Arnold E. Bartel, Corr.

—Immanuel Church, Los Angeles, California: Twenty-two new members and two "fellowship friends" were received on Palm Sunday. Dr. Paul Bauman, of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles, brought us an Easter sunrise service at the church. After this the young people breakfasted together in the church basement. The color, sound film entitled, "The God of Creation," prepared by Dr. Irvin Moon and sponsored by the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, was shown in our church on April 26. The Lord willing, we shall have our first missionary conference May 5-12. We are looking forward to having with us: Rev. D. J. Unruh of the Foreign Mission Board; Rev. and Mrs. John Suderman of Oraibi, Arizona; Rev. and Mrs. Aron Jantzen on furlough from India, as well as other missionaries representing the work in South America, Africa, China, Japan, and several of the home fields. The California churches are invited to send delegates to this conference. At a special church meeting, our pastor, Rev. H. D. Burkholder was re-elected for a three-year term, beginning July 1, 1946. At present he is also enrolled as a Junior at Pepperdine College of this city.—Mrs. Ira J. Stevanus, Corr.

—The Sichar Church of Cordell, Oklahoma, commemorated its fiftieth anniversary on April 14, with Rev. J. J. Voth of North Newton, Kansas, as guest speaker. Other visiting ministers who participated were: Rev. Henry Hege of Corn; Rev. C. B. Friesen, Bessie; and Rev. H. R. Wiens, Corn. Rev. Menno Kliewer, paster, gave the history of the church.—Corr.

—Toronto, Ontario: Rev. Wesley Ewert, graduated April 15 from Emmanuel College, from a three-year theological course. He was the only Mennonite student among the forty graduates. Emmanuel College, affiliated with Victoria University, Toronto, is the offical training center for the United Church of Canada. After studying in the United States, Mr. Ewert returned to Canada to become a director in C.O. camps. Later he served three small country churches while pursuing his studies. Mr. Ewert is married to the former Genevieve Jacobs of Upland, California. They have one daughter, Jane.—I. G. Neufeld, Corr.

—Friedensburg Church, Avon, South Dakota: Rev. John Esau, "Blind Evangelist" conducted services from March 24 to March 29. The Freeman Junior College choir of thirty voices brought us an excellent program on March 31. A capacity audience heard them. After the program, a fellowship luncheon was enjoyed in the church basement. Missionary H. J. Brown gave us a heart-searching message on Palm Sunday. As in other years, the churches of this community again "joined forces" to present an Easter cantata. This year they presented "When Christ Arose," under the direction of the Methodist minister, in the high school auditorium. "Youth for Christ" services were held during Passion Week with Rev. James Cunningham, Calgary, Alberta, as speaker. Churches participating were: First Baptist, First Presbyterian, German Presbyterian, Mtehodist, and the Friedensberg Mennonite. Meetings were held in the Baptist Church, the largest one. The past winter was unusually dry in this part of the state, but the spring rains came to put the ground into fine condition for seeding.—Anna Uruh, Corr.

—Bethesda Church, Marion, South Dakota: Last week's shower very much helped the grain in the dry ground. Some fields are green already. It has been rather cool with frost on some mornings. In the absence of the pastor, Alfred Waltner, on April 7, Rev. David Tieszen brought the message. News came on that Sunday of the death of Rev. Derk P. Tieszen of Freeman. He spent forty-eight years preaching the gospel, became totally blind in 1925, and died at the age of eighty-seven. The Funeral was held in the Bethesda Church, where he had served so long. Derk V. Tieszen, who lives in Albany, New York, Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Krehbiel of Kansas—Mrs. Krehbiel being the daughter of Rev. Tieszen—came to attend the funeral. Henry Wiens, who reached the age of eighty, was laid to rest April 13. The churches of the community joined in giving a musical program in the Freeman College gym on Easter Monday. Rev. Alfred Waltner is planning to attend a missionary gathering to be held in Minneapolis the last lays of April.—Bernhart H. Ewert, Corr.

CENTRAL CONFERENCE NOTES

Rev. Harry Yoder has resigned as pastor of the Carlock, Illinois, Mennonite Church to serve as student solicitor and field worker for Bluffton College. He took up the Carlock pastorate in the fall of 1941 and plans to enter upon his new duties May 1. He will move his family to Bluffton in the near future. Being at present president of the conference, his leaving is deeply significant beyond the fact that it adds one more to our list of churches without regular pastors.

* * *

Central Conference is pleased to be able to profit in various ways by the services of students from Mennonite Biblical Seminary. Maynard Shelly, a graduate of Bluffton College now in his first year at the Seminary, is serving as student pastor of the Boynton Church at Hopedale, Illinois. Revs. Robert Hartzler and LaVerne Rutschman spent the week of April 7-14 in evangelistic meetings at the Bethel Church near Pekin, Illinois. Students have also served on numerous occasions as supply preachers in our churches.

* * *

Mrs. G. A. Linscheid
222 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

C-6

The young people of the Topeka, Indiana Church have shown great interest in the Heifers-for-Relief project, sponsored by the Brethren Service Committee. Recently they sent four heifers which had been grown for this purpose on farms owned among the brotherhood. Three of these had been purchased by the young people, and one was donated by one of the brethren.

* * *

Six of our Central Illinois churches (North Danvers, Carlock, Congerville, Normal, Meadows and Flanagan) united in a Food-for-Relief project. A carload (1,750 cases) of canned peas, 200 cases of chicken noodle soup, and 8 lbs. of powdered milk were purchased, with approximately $200 remaining which was sent to M.C.C. as a cash donation.

* * *

For some time plans have been made by the Congo Inland Mission Board to send the executive secretary of the board, Rev. C. E. Rediger, to visit the field in the Congo. After a prolonged delay in getting the necessary visa, passage, etc., he now has arrangements made to leave May 1. A new air service making the trip from New York to Leopoldville, capital of Congo, in three days has just been instituted, and Rev. Rediger was able to secure passage on this improved service. With the prolonged terms of service for missionaries because of travel restrictions and hazards during the war, his coming to the field is eagerly awaited by the workers.

* * *

Palm Sunday and Easter were observed as membership and communion Sundays by a number of our churches. Reports indicate goodly ingatherings in several instances. Candle-light communion services on Thursday evening of Passion Week are also gaining in number and favor among us.

* * *

The appointment of local Mutual Aid committees by our various churches is being encouraged by the conference organization. A number of churches have already made such appointments. A survey of the effects in our church communities of the tendency to lessen the number of opportunities for people to live and maintain themselves in such communities, indicates that this movement to promote the spirit and practice of Mutual Aid should attain great significance for our Church of the future.

The Mennonite

Volume 61 — May 7, 1946 — Number 19

Photo by Philip Gendreau, N. Y.

The Task of the Christian Home

By Mrs. Willis E. Rich

Almost every day we may read in our newspapers, periodicals, or in recent books that we have entered a New Age. Someone is throwing out warnings, making dire predictions, explaining implications of terrifying things to come. And the men who are most alarmed and telling us about it are not scatterbrained alarmists at all. They are our most respected educators, our greatest scientists, our best church men. They are the men to whom we look for illumination, for leadership.

Another note we hear over and over again is that we can no longer depend on our great politicians and statesmen, on the leaders of our governments, on our military generals and admirals. We are made aware that they are for the most part weak and blind and blundering human beings, like most of the rest of us, trusting only in short-range policies.

No wonder people everywhere are full of fear. The future looks so uncertain and insecure. Parents are asking themselves "what can we do for our children to prepare and fortify them for such a future as we face today?" Isn't it silly for mothers to teach their sons to pray "make me a good boy," when our national heroes are demanding our sons and spare no efforts to make bad boys of them?

(Continued on page 5)

From the editor's point-of-view:

EMOTIONAL SECURITY is something which every human being needs. A child may have abundant food, clothing, and shelter, but if he lacks the assurance of patient, forgiving, self-giving love in someone, he will feel restless and puzzled. Stern parents can perhaps maintain an "obey-the-law" discipline, but they can hardly provide emotional security. Firmness is needed instead, for it shows love to the child while securing development in him at the same time. God-like love in parents can be likened unto the steady, gentle warmth that a hen gives to the eggs under her and by which she in due process of time brings about the living chick. Such a hen must be firm in her conduct; she dare not let the eggs get too cool; she must apply a gentle warmth continuously. Fortunately, a hen cannot be stern. If she could, then she might put the eggs into an oven and hope that they would hatch in less than the accustomed time because of the bountiful heat applied. Firm love that is conducive to development is the result of an experience of grace. To the extent that the parents of America possess such an experience of unmerited love to that extent will they be able to give their children the emotional security that they need to have while growing up in life, which at its best is slightly bewildering. It is this kind of love in parents that will help to make the Festival of the Christian Home on May 12 a true festival.

HOW CHRISTIAN ARE WE?, an editorial in the May 1 issue of the Christian Century, is an editorial which goes so directly to the heart of our Christian profession that we are reprinting it here. It is true that the Mennonite Church has given much for relief. However, does our responsibility perhaps go farther than this? Should Christians try and do without that food which they do not absolutely need and share it with the starving across the waters? Christ faces us in the least of these needy. What would He have us do?

How Christian Are We?

Words are probably incapable of making a stronger plea to the consciences and generosity of mankind than President Truman and former President Hoover made on Good Friday. There are, said Mr. Hoover, 150,000,000 people in Europe between the English channel and the Russian border who must have food from abroad within the next four months if that entire continent is not to be swept by starvation. There are 13 countries in which the non-farming population receives less than 1,900 calories daily; there are six in which the caloric level is below 1,500. Millions are living on less than 1,000 calories a day. The best the world can now hope to do is to raise the level to 1,500 calories. "It is a sad job to make such a base," said the former President, "for under it many of the childeren and the aged will fall by the wayside."

President Truman spoke with as much gravity as Mr. Hoover of "the greatest threat of mass starvation in the history of mankind." And he did not confine himself to exhortation. On the same day he approved a 25 per cent cut for the next month from the flour milled in 1945, with the saving thus made going to UNRRA; a 25 per cent cut in wheat used by food manufacturers; a 30-cent bonus on every bushel of wheat delivered by farmers to the government before May 25, an equal bonus on 50,000,000 bushels of corn. Having already set the example in the White House of one entirely wheatless day every week and two wheatless meals every day, Mr. Truman went beyond that to appeal to his countrymen to join with him in observing two days a week on a "European diet"—which we interpret to mean a diet of not more than 1,500 calories. The American average is now 3,200 calories a day.

All over the world, governments which have food surpluses at last are acting with the sense of urgency that has too long been lacking. The British govern-

(Continued on next page)

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA
Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.
Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorised Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchange to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.
Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON KANSAS

ment is reported to be about to divert grain ships now on the high seas to the ports of needier countries, and to offer to make a loan of as much as half a million tons of Britain's precious wheat reserves. Canada, which had already cut wheat supplies to millers 10 per cent, is making available to UNRRA another 5,000,000 bushels of oats and 2,500,000 of wheat. The Argentine has given 150,000 tons of wheat and is reported to be taking extraordinary measures to double that gift. Egypt has made an emergency shipment of 30,000 tons of corn and offered a loan of 200,000 tons of wheat. Henry Wallace has been made chairman of a national drive to obtain voluntary food contributions in this country. And Mr. La Guardia, as director of UNRRA, is putting into the work of that body a drive and an appeal which has hitherto been sadly absent.

All this is fine, but it by no means insures the rescue of millions now facing starvation. Mr. Hoover estimated that after all the grains now in sight for government purchase had been obtained, their would still be 5,000,000 tons of cereals needed if mass starvation is not to make a charnel house of Europe and Asia before the next harvest. We believe that the United States, as well as other countries with food surpluses, should institute consumer rationing to make up that missing 5,000,000 tons. However, the government is not yet ready to restore consumer rationing; Mr. Hoover continues to advise against it. That means that the salvation of millions from death by starvation depends on the extent to which voluntary reductions in diet are made by the people of this country and other countries which know no food shortage.

The fate of the world, Mr. Hoover rightly insists, depends on what happens during the next four months. The fate of the efforts to feed those now facing starvation depends on the degree of voluntary cooperation food-saving programs. And the voluntary program depends on the spirit engendered in our local communities. It won't take much to sabotage beyond hope the feeding of Europe and Asia. Farmers can still hold their grain, despite the certificate plan which guarantees them the highest prices reached by next March and now an additional 30-cent bonus. City dwellers can still flock to black markets and draw the food that would otherwise keep little children alive into those channels of illicit profiteering. The danger is not that these things may happen; they will happen, and the feeding program will fail, and human beings by the millions will die while we live in plenty, unless a sense of responsibility for the voluntary program of food saving becomes far more pressing on the individual conscience than it now is.

How is this sense of individual responsibility to be aroused? Appeals like those from Mr. Truman and Mr. Hoover and Mr. LaGuardia will help. So will newspaper editorials and feature articles. So will movie shorts, if the movies can get into action in time. But more responsibility in the local community rests on the churches, on Christian ministers, on Christian laymen and laywomen than on any other institution or persons. Fifty million Christian churchmen could change the whole attitude of America toward this food-saving program within a month. By so doing, they would help to change the attitude of the hungry parts of the world toward America. But if the churches, if individual pastors and church members do not begin immediately to challenge the conscience of the local community, we do not believe that the savings Mr. Hoover says are absolutely required can possibly be gathered.

The churches must do this thing or it will not be done. And until it is done, the churches that spend their time or strength or resources on other things are risking some bad future hours with their consciences. What differences will it make if denominational programs for overseas rebuilding are fully subscribed, and the people overseas die of starvation?

Will the churches do it? Not enough are doing it so far, as the figures from the church relief agencies show. It is time to carry this issue right down through every congregation. It is time for pastors to see that in every congregation such questions as these are faced and answered: How many have Mr. Hoover's "unseen guest" at every meal, or in other words, how many at every meal are contributing the money that would feed one other? How many are meeting Mr. Truman's call for two days of "starvation diet" a week? How many are giving regularly to the church agencies for overseas relief? How many, if they have grains or fats, are bringing them out of storage for immediate sale? How many are leaving the black market to choke to death in their own greed? As we answer these questions we are also answering another: How Christian are we? (The above editorial on "How Christian Are We?" is reprinted from the May 1 issue of the "Christian Century.")

IN MEMORIAM

Agnes Williams, daughter of Abraham J. and Maria Siemens Williams, was born April 30, 1887, near Buhler, Kansas, and passed away April 10, 1946. In 1906 she was baptized by Elder Abraham Ratzlaff and received into the Hoffnungsau Church. Later when the Buhler Church was organized, she joined it. She leaves one brother, A. A. Williams, Woodland, Washington; and six sisters: Mrs. Anna Johnson, Escondido, California; Mrs. Justina Neufeld, Wasco, California; Mrs. Lena Dick, Hutchinson; Mrs. Elizabeth Reimer, Pretty Prairie; Mrs. Marie Buller, Buhler; and Mrs. Eva Sawatzky, Buhler.

Gave Over Million Dollars Worth for Relief

by Atlee Beechy

Our radios and newspapers have been bringing us the startling news that within the next year more people may actually starve to death than in any single war year and perhaps more than in all the war years combined. It is generally agreed that if the people of this country are really to help these millions of starving people they will need to deny themselves of some of the luxuries to which they have been accustomed. An appeal of this kind is being made to the people of the United States. Should not Christians take the lead in this effort?

Governmental relief agencies can in a measure minister to physical needs. However, the only way to bring about a resurrection of some measure of hope and spirit among these broken people is through a relief program thoroughly saturated and motivated by Christian love by those who give, those who process, and those who distribute the goods. "But whoso hath of this world's goods and seeth his brother in need and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?"

The relief effort has received a generous support by the Mennonite Churches of Canada and the United States during the past year. During the period from January, 1945, through March, 1946, shipments of clothing totaling 262 tons and evaluated at $518,935.92 were sent to foreign countries. Within the period of April, 1945, through March, 1946, shipments of food totaling 3,234 tons and evaluated at $593,109.39 were sent to needy countries. The food and clothing was sent to Egypt, England, France, Holland, Puerto Rico, Paraguay. Tools and kitchen utensils weighing nine tons and evaluated at $5,187.08 have been shipped to Holland and France. This makes a total of 3,507 tons of goods with an evaluation of $1,117,232.39 which have actually been shipped by the Churches of Canada and the United States.

Included in the above totals was our initial shipment to Germany. This consisted of 5,600 bags of flour, 4,700 cases of meat, 480 cases of evaporated milk and 601 bales of clothing totaling four hundred and twenty-two tons. This was our share of the total allotment of 2,000 tons per month which are now permitted to be shipped to Germany by all of the private relief agencies. The Mennonite Central Committee has been given an allotment of three hundred tons for each of the next three months. Since it costs approximately $23 a ton for ocean freight for canned goods, $16 a ton for flour and $92 a ton for clothing, this item runs into a very considerable sum. The ocean freight for shipments to Holland and France has been paid by relief agencies of the country or by their governments. This is not true of Germany, so the burden of the expense is being borne by the Mennonite Central Committee in order that goods may be shipped to this area of extreme need. Some groups may wish to follow their donation to its destination and pay for the ocean freight. In addition to the above mentioned articles some 15,000 blankets have been received and processed at the Akron blanket center. German Bibles and hymn books are also being prepared for shipment.

There is a considerable amount of red tape which needs to be gone through in order to complete a shipment. This includes obtaining subsidy clearance on certain items, getting proper licenses for export, obtaining shipping space and complying with a number of governmental regulations controlling exportation and the work involved in connection with the preparing and processing of food and clothing for export. If the food is canned in glass, each jar must be wrapped separately with single faced corrugated paper. These jars are placed in regular cartons. These cartons in turn are placed in special export cartons which are glued and strapped with steel strapping. Each carton must be marked in a special way. The clothing must be sorted, baled and marked. All items carry a label which includes the phrase "In the Name of Christ."

The reports from the fields indicate that the goods are arriving in good condition and are much appreciated by those who receive them. We quote the following from one who has received: "And you send us the dresses in the name of Christ; therefore we are very thankful. If we did more in this world in the name of Christ, it would be very much better everywhere. We feel our brothers and sisters far away helped us."; and from a letter of a governmental official—"Will you kindly thank your committee and all the donors for the splendid work they have been doing for our poor Dutch people. I can assure you that we all are extremely thankful to find such a Christianity among our American friends." Henry Buller, M.C.C. relief worker, writes: "John Fretz, who was in charge of the unloading, estimated that about five percent of the sacks (617 bag shipment) had holes in them. Further he estimated that probably in all about one sack full of flour has been lost as a result of spilling through tears."

The Task of the Christian Home

(Continued from page 1)

A third clarion which is making itself heard more and more through the voices and pens of our best thinkers is that the hope of the world now lies in the plain men and women, the average people, aroused by mankind's catastrophe. The common people, they say, still have the power to revolt. Says Struthers Burt "Make no excuse, anyone, that he is too busy or unimportant. Or remote. Or that, one of many millions, he exercises little power or control. The opinions of individuals make the opinions of communities. The opinions of communities make the opinions of counties. The opinions of counties make the opinions of states, and the opinions of the states make the opinion of the federal government. Man can do just about what his courage and vision dictate."

Fathers and mothers, where do we come in? We are the plain men and women, the average people. We watch our children, brimful of enthusiasm, build model airplanes, or set up crude electromagnets, or tinker with an old radio-set. One day a child comes home from school exclaiming, "say, do you know what you are drinking when you drink a glass of water? Today I saw what's in it."

Sometimes we feel that we are left behind. Our children are learning things we never learned; they are interested and enthusiastic about things we never dreamed of, and we are afraid. It is natural to be afraid of what we do not understand. Many parents make the mistake of shutting themselves out from the world of their children. "It's beyond me" they say, and let it go at that.

It is generally agreed that as far as the education of the mind is concerned, our schools are doing a very fine job. The fund of factual information our young folks are getting is amazing. And our schools are sure to point out that the possibilities of research and discovery are almost limitless. No wonder our children get all starry-eyed and inspired when their imagination and their spirit of adventure have been set on fire. The door of the mind is being opened to many new fields. New textbooks are being added from year to year revealing more and newer discoveries and possibilities. Such periodicals as Popular Science and Popular Mechanics are enjoying a wide circulation. All this fund of information is putting more and more equipment in the hands of and at the disposal of anyone who wishes to make use of it.

The tragedy of our times seems to be that along with the education of the mind, the education of the heart has been forgotten. Those now in power seem bent on demonstrating just how big a noise they can possibly make, just how enormous a destruction they can bring about in a blast, and after that they want to work towards a still bigger noise and a destruction of still more devastating proportions. And we notice that many professing Christians have allowed themselves to become involved and concur with it.

We canot take ourselves or our children out of this world. We are in it. But we can, in our homes, do a great deal about educating the heart. What do we talk about at home? Is there an effort made to foster great interest in world reconstruction, in overcoming race prejudice, in being sympathetic and actively concerned about the millions of miserable, sick and hungry people? Do we actually do something about it as a family? (One family I know of ate no desserts for six weeks and gave the equivalent amount to relief.) I believe almost all of the members of our churches have contributed to the offerings taken for relief. Are our children aware of it and do they feel they have a share in it? This seems to me to be important. This is heart education. We can read to them, or relate to them at the supper table or some other time excerpts from articles in the Mennonite written by our relief workers, and keep alive a keen interest in the efforts of good-will. Our conversation can be full of items we hear over the radio or elsewhere, where good-will is carried out or emphasized, or where barriers are broken down that hinder the fellowship, understanding, and brotherhood of God's family the world over. Parents can do much in the home to train the heart, the feelings, the attitudes. The education of the mind is dangerous, terribly dangerous, without the educaion of the heart.

Two boys are intrigued by the blasting power of dynamite. One boy visualizes the demolition of costly bridges, great industrial plants, or entire populations. The other boy dreams of removing barriers for international highway construction, of building great dams to make our deserts fruitful. What made one boy so different from the other? I believe you can find the secret in the homes of the boys. Dynamite in itself is neither good nor evil. It is what men do with it that is good or evil.

The present generation has access to many great powers, and anyone so inclined can learn how to use them. If they get into the hands of a good man, it will be as natural as breathing for him to do good with it. If they get into the hands of a purely materialistic person, who cares nothing for God or his neighbor—! (words fail me).

It boils down to this: Fathers and mothers of the children of today will have to take seriously the first and second commandments according to Jesus, and to sing with real conviction, "O Pow'r of Love, all else transcending," and to be able to impart these convictions to their boys and girls. That is our task and it looms today as the biggest and most important task on earth.

IN SUCH AN AGE

To be alive in such an age!
With every year a lightning page
Turned in the world's great wonder-book
Where on the leaning nations look
Where men speak strong for brotherhood,
For peace and universal good;
When miracles are everywhere
And every inch of common air
Throbs a tremendous prophesy
Of greater marvels yet to be.
O, Thrilling Age!
O Willing Age!
When steel and stone and rail and rod
Welcome the utterance of God
A trump to shout His wonder through Proclaiming all that man can do.
To be alive in such an age!
To live in it!
To give in it!

Angela Morgan
from Quotable Poems by Thomas Curtis Clark

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

The Coming Great Church by Theodore O. Wedel is a signifiicant recent publication in whch some vital problems that the church unity movement of our day confronts are discussed. Canon Wedel is Warden of the college of Preachers and was ordained into the ministry of the Episcopal Church in 1929. Mennonite readers will be interested in the background of this Episcopal minister. In the introduction to the book he says about himself: "My ancestral Church is that of the Mennonites. I was born in a Mennonite parsonage, on a college campus in a midwestern, typically American, town."

Conversion to Anglicanism. About this the writer says: "At the youthful age of eighteen I became organist in the little Episcopal Church in our community. My conversion to Anglicanism was almost immediate and complete, and I was shortly confirmed... Twenty years passed before I entered the ministry." The writer explains that the entrance into a relatively more "Catholic" form of church life saved him from some of the dangers surrounding his disturbed generation, such as "Liberalism" and half-agnosticism.

Recognizing Again the Full Value of the Evangelical Heritage. "It has taken me many years, indeed, before I have come to recognize again the full value of the evangelical heritage with which my life in the Church began. I see that value now—and the rediscovery has led me to appreciate once more Reformation evangelicalism generally." What now is the heart of that Evangelical (Mennonite) heritage that the writer of The Coming Great Church refers to? He discusses the ecumenical movement, the liturgical movement, the return to orthodoxy, the problems of authority, tradition, apostolic succession, etc. In all of them we find very significant light shed on the problems that the Church confronts today. We may be prejudiced when it seems to us that by far the most convincing arguments and the central problems are advanced and cleared in the chapter, "The Church of Christian Faith."

The Church of Christian Faith. The writer states that the greatest weakness of the Church is that it has said so little about what constitutes a Christian Church. With Paul he believes that the "Church is 'Jerusalem which is above ... which is the mother of us all' (Gal. 4:26), 'the temple of God' (I Cor. 3:16) and the 'Bride' of Christ. Where does the writer get this insight and emphasis? Let him tell us: "As I look back upon the experiences of youth, I must admit that my ancestral communion could boast of a quality of Christian social living which I have not seen equalled anywhere since. Corporate brotherhood approached New Testament patterns... It was a Church order which reduplicated what might have been found in many an early Christian congregation. This evangelical primitivism was a mark of Christian life throughout."

The Mennonite Concept of the Christian Church. We do not know to what extent Rev. Wedel, who is a son of the late C. H. Wedel, the first American expert in Mennonite history, gained his concept of the Christian Church through a study of the Anabaptists or through the influence of his parental home. But it is evident that in no other chapter of the book does he come so close to Mennonitism as in his chapter on the Church. We will rejoice if Mennonitism can, in this way, contribute something to The Coming Great Church. And with him we agree that "the Great Church needs the Little Church. The Little Church needs the Great Church. The Church of God in its wholeness cries out for a rebirth and a revival."

We Were Shocked When We Saw Bremen

(The following is taken from an article of this title by D. Paul Miller; part of the material was gathered from an outline on "Conditions in Bremen" by Daryl Frey and Jim Cope. These men were cattle attendents aboard the S. S. Gainsville Victory which was in the port of Bremen, Germany from March 1 to 10, 1946.)

Our first glimpse of Bremen was shocking! There is no danger of taking too literally the phraseology when we say "Germany is smashed." In our first street car ride from the shipping docks to the center of the city—approximately three miles—we saw street after street, and mile after mile of practically nothing but rubble and ruin—a picture of utter destruction and waste. Walls emerged from heaps of brick and ruin, or a steel framework stood with all construction burned out or perhaps a large church building appeared with the steeple blown off, or a wall on one side completely demolished. The historic Bremen Cathedral, nine centuries old, was bombed for the first time and quite badly damaged on February 22 1945. The streets are dark; electricity and lighting is very limited. Occasionally a dim light would appear from cracks in a boarded window. Maybe one room of a large apartment section had been left intact. Perhaps a faint wisp of smoke would rise through the waste and rubble from a rudely constructed chimney—heavy smoke wasn't possible. Most rooms were cold. Coal is highly rationed and distribution is so poor that the German civilian seldom receives his full ration (50 pounds per month.) It was common to see a German woman picking up particles of coal and cinders beside an American occupied building or along a railroad or near the shipping docks, and placing them carefully in her handbag. Shipyard workers would save every piece of wood available from the ships and tie on the back of their bicycles before going home.

One received the impression that the port and dock area and aristocratic residential sections were very lightly bombed and in many cases left undamaged. These of course are vital sections for the occupation forces and are employed by the military government in charge. Also, some of the large and beautiful buildings in the center of the city were not damaged. Here the military has set up Red Cross and recreation centers, ice cream parlors, beer bars, and country club facilities which are guarded by M.P.'s, and all German civilians except those employed as servants, are strictly barred.

The German people are hungry. A little girl, eight years old, and her father were gathering some grain that was scattered from the ships in unloading. Snow was on the ground. Water was standing in places. With bare fingers the little girl was combing the water for what few grains she could get. As we passed she stood up and shook her cold, wet hands pitifully in an effort to warm them. Occasionally we would have opportunity to pass a bit of food. Common remarks were: "It's the first white sugar I've seen for four years." "Oh, if I could just have a piece of bacon again." Or, "I haven't seen a fresh apple in six years."

All Americans, G.I.'s seamen, etc., have access to trolley, trains, American provided recreation centers, musical concerts, etc., with no charge. This naturally is very humiliating and builds up attitudes which are harmful to any spirit of confidence or voluntary cooperation. People in general have a very pessimistic outlook on life. They have endured six years of war hardships. Families have been severed, homes lost, and loved ones killed. There is constant movement and extreme congestion on trains. Depots are filled to an impossible capacity. Dislocated families are seeking relatives or loved ones, looking for homes, food, or shelter. With pangs of hunger, no assurance of food and the unpredictable future, there comes much anxiety and worry. Moral standards are extremely low. Suicides are prevalent. One minister remarked, that of four funeral services he conducted the past week, all were suicides.

We in America should realize how rich we are even when we have nothing! Our mission is great! There is plenty of food in the world for all people to thrive. Why must millions starve?

IN MEMORIAM

Mrs. Fannie Kaufman Voran, daughter of the late Joseph and Fannie Albright Kaufman, was born June 5, 1876, near Moundridge, Kansas, and quietly passed away February 10, 1946. She was baptized on October 4, 1891, by Rev. Jacob Stucky in the Hopefield church. Later she transferred her membership to the Garden Mennonite church. In 1893 she was joined in holy wedlock with Tobias Voran. She left to mourn her sudden departure her aged husband, Tobias Voran; one daughter, Katie of the home; two sons, David and Willie of Hesston; two daughters-in_law, six grandchildren and one sister, Mrs. Henry Niehage.

Tobias Voran, son of Christian and Katharina Goering Voran, was born May 15, 1861, in Edwardoff, Wolhynia, Russia. On April 19, 1878, he was baptized in the Hopefield church. Later he transferred his membership to the Garden Mennonite church, where he remained a faithful member until death. In 1893, he was joined in marriage to Fannie Kaufman, with whom he shared life's joys and sorrows for over fifty-two years. His faithful companion preceded him in death three days. He passed away on February 13, 1946, (only three days after his wife).

Home Missions:

Material appearing under "Home Missions" is contributed by A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary of the Home Mission Board, Quakertown, Pa.

New Pastor at First Church, Chicago

April Events

On April 1, Rev. A. H. Leaman, 4216 Greenview Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, assumed the leadership of the First Mennonite Church, at 73rd and Laflin Street. Rev. Erwin A. Albrecht had served as leader of this church from October 1940 to January 15, 1946. Rev. Leaman was pastor of this church once before. The board and the congregation jointly extended a call to Rev. Leaman to assume the direction of this church.

A member of First Mennonite Church, Mrs. Harry Lutz, is conducting an extension Sunday School in the southern part of the city. Two students from Mennonite Biblical Seminary teach regularly in this Sunday School.

Toronto, Ontario, Pastor Resigns

Just when the Board of Home Missions was happy that a new pastor had been found, by the grace of God, for First Church, Chicago, the message came from Toronto that Rev. Arnold A. Fast, had resigned. The Board has accepted the resignation which is to take effect on May 31. Rev. and Mrs. Fast plan to return to the States, and Rev. Fast plans on entering college in the fall.

The Board is looking for someone to take up the work in the United Mennonite Church, at 140 Victor Avenue, Toronto, Ontario.

On Sunday, April 14, the congregation occupied their new church home for the first time.

Nebraska Pastor Ordained as Elder

Rev. John G. Unruh, who assumed the leadership of the Mennonite church at Madrid, Nebraska, April 15, 1945, was ordained as Elder, on Sunday, April 14, 1946. Early in the year, the congregation took action that their pastor be ordained as Elder, and the Board of Home Missions recognized the faithful work of Brother Unruh and agreed that the ordination be performed. Rev. D. J. Unruh, Elder of First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas, and a brother of John, performed the ordination.

Prayer for These Persons and Fields

The Board of Home Missions realizes that only as the Lord blesses the work will there be progress. For this reason we ask a faithful and regular prayer interest: First, for Rev. Leaman and the First Church, Chicago. In asking prayers for the field Rev. Leaman said: "This will be the arm of strength." Second, That the Lord's choice of a worker might be found for United Mennonite Church, Toronto, Ontario. Third, That the blessing of the Lord might rest on Brother Unruh and his church in the enlarged sphere of usefulness.—A. J. Neuenschwander.

Foreign Missions

(Temporarily all Foreign Missions correspondence should be sent to Rev. Howard Nyce, 1528 Chew Street, Allentown, Pa.)

HOLY WEEK

For sometime I have been listening to the radio broadcasts here describing and discussing the "Holy Week" in the life of our Lord. For a whole week there are special services, many processions, much music and many, many, people nicely dressed walking from one church to another to worship, to see, and to be seen. One would indeed have to be deaf, dumb and blind not to know that there is a very special celebration in process. Yesterday, Thursday in the Holy Week, was a day of pilgrimages wherein thousands of people visited one church after another, recited their prayers, looked at the beautifully decorated altar, and then again went on their way. Everyone was "dressed up" much in the same way that millions of North Americans do on Easter Sunday morning. We were told that the more churches visited—the greater would be the credit earned. Whether this is so or not—I think it would be safe to say tht there were those among the "pilgrims" that were sincere, there were many who simply wanted to see what they could see, and there were multitudes who wanted to "be seen." Undoubtedly, the most spectacular part of the Holy Week celebrations here are the parades—wherein life-size figures of Jesus and his disciples are taken down the streets in an attempt to re-enact some of the incidents in the Holy Week of long ago. Huge crowds are always at hand to see the processions. Great is the drama, great is the spectacle, and immense are the crowds. Underneath all the demonstrations and excitement, there are here as everywhere, a host of people who are lonely, spiritually unsatisfied, lives that are aching for the peace and joy and the blessing of God. One by one these people, one by one our fellowmen throughout the world, must be won for Christ. Each must experience the "power of God unto salvation" and receive the great gift of God.

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Vice President
Verney Unruh
Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

Youth Organizations in Canada

(Editor's note: It is with much pleasure that we introduce to the readers in this issue the Canadian youth organizations in the different provinces. As has been said before, the border line drawn by national states whether we want it or not, seems even to keep Christian brethren from knowing intimately what is happening across the line. We deeply regret that this seems to be a fact. For this reason, we are especially grateful and happy to be able to share information about brethren north of the border.

The material for this issue on Canadian youth organizations has been gathered by Rev. I. Epp of Waldheim, Saskatchewan. Brother Epp is editor of "Saskatchewan Mennonite Youth," a printed journal issued by the youth if that province. He is also secretary-treasurer of the Saskatchewan Youth Organization.

We wish to draw your attention to the fact that youth organizations in Canada were not attempted until after the General Conference at Saskatoon in 1938. In the eight years since that time, all provinces have organized their own youth organizations. They have done this whether they had many or few churches. And it has been wise so to do because of the factor of space between provinces and churches. It should also be noted that the Saskatchewan youth have taken on two projects which have required the raising of thirty-two thousand dollars, the Rosthern Youth Farm and Elim Gospel Beach. This money is yet being raised. Most of it has already been raised and paid out.

To date, no other youth group has undertaken such an ambitious and fruitful work. We have heard the story about these projects at first hand from Henry Friesen of Rosthern. We know that it was undertaken in faith that God could use their labors in the projects they undertook. And, they had faith that their churches would support the plan. The fruits of their efforts already indicate that they have been right in taking on such a large task.

With this issue of the story about Canadian organization, we wish to express to our brethren the fellowship we feel as brethren. We pray that that fellowship will blossom forth in greater works together in the kingdom.)

YOUTH ORGANIZATIONS IN CANADA

By Rev. I. Epp

The possibilities of organizing our Canadian Conference young people for an active part in the cause of Christ were first seen at the General Conference session at Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, in 1938. Since that time the efforts put forth in this direction have not been fruitless. Today each of the five provinces in which General Conference churches are found—British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario—possesses a group of young people who are not content merely to remain passive and have things done for them, but who are anxious to contribute unitedly to the cause of Christ.

The youth organizations in Canada are separate provincial organizations that have not as yet been fused into one union. It seems apparent that this would have to be done in order that the Canadian organization function as a Canadian District Y.P.U. in the Young People's Union of the General Conference of North America.

The brief write-ups that follow will give our readers a cross-section view of what is being done north of the border. We trust that the reports will serve to make us better acquainted with each other.

British Columbia Division

By Rev. J. W. Nickel

Name

The name of the organization is "Youth Organization of the General Conference Churches of British Columbia." There are seven churches represented.

Projects

Our young people have bought a projecter and a set of Bible slides which are used for illustrated lectures. The organization assists the Bible schools. Lately a youth paper for the province has been prepared. We are anticipating building a hall for the organization which would serve as a Youth Centre.

Other Activities

Once or twice every summer retreats are held. Youth conferences take place once every winter. Sunday school teachers' courses of a week's duration are conducted at the beginning and the end of the Bible School term.

Officers, Addresses, Duties

President: W.W. Remple (1945)—the 1946 officers are to be elected in the near future), R. R. 2, Sardis, B. C. His duties are those that are generally expected of the president as leader of the organization.

Vice-President: J. W. Nickel, R. R. 1, Mission City, B. C. General duties as assistant of president and to act in his absence.

Secretary-treasurer: Cornelius J. Regier, R.R. 1, Sardis, B. C. Handling of monies and most of the correspondence.

Other committee members: Each church belonging to the organization has a representative on the committee. It is their duty to carry out the work of the organization in their respective groups and in turn to inform the committee about the needs and wishes of each group. They are: Miss Helen Peters, Sardis; Jacob Teichroeb, Yarrow; John Latkemann, Abbotsford; Jacob Berg, Coghlan; Jacob Neufeld Vancouver; Peter Klassen, Mission City.

Ontario Division

By Cornie Kaethler

Name

The name of the organization is "Jugendorganisation der vereinigten Mennonitengemienden in Ontario." Five churches are represented in the organization.

Projects

Retreats are being sponsored. The young people support the Bible School. Relief work has been and is being done. There are no special plans for future projects.

Youth Paper

The "Vereinsglocke" is the name of the paper published by the Ontario organization. Wilhelm W. Dick of R. R. 1, Leamington, Ont. is the editor.

Other Activities

Our first Retreat was held on October 21, 1945, in St. Williams at the Dominion Forestry Station. We have occassional youth conferences and committee meetings which are very essential to the growth of the organization.

Officers, Addresses, Duties

President: Peter Epp, R. R. 2, Leamington, Ont. Calls meetings and presides at them.

Vice-president: None at present.

Secretary: Cornie Kaethler, Box 133, Vineland Station, Ont. Keeps minutes and takes care of correspondence.

Treasurer: John Willms, 22 Bricker Ave., Waterloo, Ont. Assumes general duties of treasurer.

Other committee members: There are two advisory members, Nick Rempel, Niagara-on-the-Lake; and C. Berg, St. Catherines; and an Advisory Board of Ministers: Rev. H. P. Lepp, R. R. 1, Harrow; and Rev. J. Wichert, Box 214, Vineland. It is the duty of the members to attend all committee meetings. The Advisory Board of Ministers give advice when various problems must be solved.

Alberta Division

By Rev. A. B. Koop

Name

The name of our organization is "The Alberta Mennonite Youth Organization."

Projects

Our present projects include Daily Vacation Bible School work, a library, annual retreats, and one day business meeting yearly at Mennonite Bible Institute Didsbury, Alberta

For the future we are planning on extending our library. We are also in search of central grounds and the establishment of a Youth Centre.

Our youth paper made its first appearance on March 28, 1946. It is called "Youth Leader," and comes out in mimeographed form. Later on we expect to have it printed. The editor is Nick Vogt, Box 70, Coaldale, Alberta.

The librarian is John A. Neufeld, R. R. 2, Didsbury, Alberta.

Officers, Addresses, Duties

President: A. B. Koop, Glenwood, Alberta. He presides at all meetings; is also in charge of D.V.B.S.

Vice-President: Rev. David P. Neufeld, Rosemary, Alberta.

Secretary-treasurer: David Janzen, Springridge, Alberta (at present attending Bible College in Winnipeg, Manitoba) He does all the bookkeeping, handling of monies, and takes care of correspondence and statistics.

Saskatchewan Division

By Rev. I. Epp

Name

The name of our organization is "Mennonite Youth Society." At the last annual business meeting there were thirty-six C. E. Societies represented.

Two major projects are the purchases of the Dominion Experimental Farm at Rosthern and Iversen's Beach south of Swift Current. The former consists of 640 acres, most of which is under cultivation, and a set of well built buildings. It was purchased at $20,000. Payments have been made on or before due dates. The last payment of $5,000 is due next fall. Iversen's Beach (now called Elim Gospel Beach) was bought for $12,000. Approximately $5,000 is left to pay here, too. We would like to express our sincere thanks to the other provinces and U. S. district Young People's Unions for their donations.

On the present Youth Farm there is an Invalid Home with fourteen inmates who are under the care and supervision of a qualified staff. Miss Margaret Berg, R. N., is in charge. This summer a wing is to be added to the Home so that there will be room for another thirty patients. In addition, a Children's Home is to be built.

Elim Gospel Beach is an excellent site for retreats and summer camps. It opens about the middle of June and closes at the end of August. Services are held daily for any and all campers. Special features are the retreat for young people and a Bible Camp for children. These take place in July.

Daily Vacation Bible schools are conducted by volunteer teachers under the auspices of the organization. A full-time evangelist and colporteur is engaged.

Projects anticipated for the future include 1. the opening of a Children's Home mentioned above;

2. a book shop handling fundamental Mennonite literature and supplies for the Sunday School, C. E. work, etc.

Youth Paper

"Saskatchewan Mennonite Youth" is the name of our paper. It is published quarterly. Beginning in July it is to be issued monthly. It serves to keep our young people informed regarding their work, brings news and views from the various groups, and in general helps to create a feeling of belonging together. I. Epp, Waldheim, Saskatchewan is the editor.

Other Activities

Retreats are held annually at Rosthern and Swift Current. Other activities not sponsored by the Youth Society but encouraged by it include a Bible Conference at Meadow Lake and music courses offered periodically at various points in the province, and the yearly Sunday School Convention of the Rosthern district.

Officers, Addresses, Duties

President: Rev. J. C. Schmidt, Box 116, Rosthern, Sask. The president shall preside at the sessions of the organization and see that all resolutions be carried out. He shall have the authority to appoint committees for special purposes: (Quoted from constitution.)

Vice-President: H. W. Friesen, Box 116, Rosthern, Saskatchewan. He shall assist the president and shall act in his absence.

Secretary-treasurer: I. Epp, Box 214, Waldheim, Saskatchewan. The secretary-treasurer shall (a) keep the minutes and conduct the correspondence of the organization; (b) receive and book all contributions as designated; (c) make disbursements, but only with the consent of the president; (d) submit books for audit annually. (Quoted from constitution.)

Other committee members: The provincial committee consists of the above executive plus one member from southern Saskatchewan, Rev. I. A. Derksen, Herbert, and one representative from the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Committee of the Canadian Conference, Rev. J. J. Thiessen, 443 Third Ave. North, Saskatoon.

Other Committees: (1) The Elim Gospel Beach Committee consists of: President: I. A. Derksen, Box 212, Herbert, Saskatchewan. Vice-president: Rev. Hans Dyck, Box 844, Swift Current, Saskatchewan. Secretary-Treasurer: Rev. V. E. Nickel, Box 95, Wymark, Saskatchewan. Committee members: Jacob Andres, Rush Lake, Saskatchewan. Jacob Wiebe, Swift Current, Saskatchewan. (2) The Invalid Home Committee consists of: J. C. Schmidt, Rosthern. H. W. Friesen, Rosthern. Rev. J. G. Rempel, Rosthern.

Field Secretary: Henry W. Friesen devotes a great part of his time in this work. His duties are to enlighten, inspire, and seek to unite our young people and C. E. Societies.

Manitoba Division

By Rev. P. A. Rempel

Name

The name of the organization is "Manitoba Jugendvereinsorganisation." There are about a dozen churches represented.

Projects

Two paid workers are giving instruction to local choirs in singing and instrumental music. One worker is conducting courses for Sunday School teachers. A program committee is publishing complete programs for the use of local C. E. societies. "H. H. Ewert's Lebensbild" has been published.

A youth Home or Youth Centre is being planned where all kinds of youth activities can be carried on.

Youth Paper

The name of our youth paper is "Manitoba Jugendblatt." Rev. J. N. Hoeppner of Altona, Man. is the editor. The first issue is to appear in March or early April.

Other Activities

The youth conferences and Sunday School Teachers' courses are quite helpful.

Officers, Addresses, Duties

President: Rev. P. J. Schaefer, Mennonite Collegiate Institute, Gretna, Man., is responsible for all activities of the organization.

Secretary-treasurer: P. A. Rempel, Gretna, Man., To keep the minutes at the meetings and to act as treasurer.

Other committee members: There are four other members in the committee. They are Rev. J. N. Hoeppner, Altona; Rev. Harry Friesen, Winkler; Rev. D. D. Klassen, Homewood; Rev. Jacob Toews, Glenlea.

Purpose of Christian Workers Institute

The third annual Christian Workers Institute will be held on the Bluffton College Campus, Bluffton, Ohio, June 5-6-7, 1946. This institute is sponsored by the General Conference.

The General Conference will again pay the expenses of all C.P.S. men who are planning to enter full-time Christian service.

Students in colleges, seminaries, and Bible schools who are preparing for full-time Christian service are also urged to attend. No funds will be available to pay expenses for this group, but it is hoped that many will find it possible to attend.

The purpose of this institute is five-fold:

1. To help young people to clarify their call to full-time Christian service.
2. To help young people to clarify and to commit themselves to the basic truths of our Christian faith.
3. To help young people to clarify our Mennonite heritage.
4. To help young people learn to know our conference organization: its origin, its aims, its vision for the future.
5. To help young people to meet with others who are planning to enter full-time Christian service so that we can prepare for a united Christian leadership for our churches in the future.

RELIEF

Farewell Services and Departures

Farewell services were held this week for four relief workers. Brother and Sister William Ewert of Bingham Lake, Minnesota, June Straite, R.N., Spartansburg, Pennsylvania, and Elvira Lehman, R.N., Berne, Indiana, are scheduled to sail for Shanghai, China, on April 30 from New Orleans on the S.S. Deborah Gannett. Also sailing with this group will be Ruth Fisher, Kalona, Iowa. Brother and Sister Clayton Diener and Wilbert Lind were scheduled to sail on the S.S. Glenbeg from Port Arthur, Texas, for Shanghai on April 25. This brings to 154 the number of relief workers on the field or enroute.

Revival in Mennonite Colonies of Paraguay

"A new life seems to be stirring in the Mennonite Church of Colonia Fernheim. During this period of awakening many have been led to accept Christ while others have determined to reconsecrate their lives to better Christian living. Especially encouraging is the number of young people who have decided for the first time to accept Christ and be baptized into the church.

"Many have been able to see the light and be gathered into the fold because God had led Rachel and Waldo Hiebert (M.C.C. relief workers) into their summer's evangelistic work. The extent of their influence in helping to bring reconciliation and better Christian living in Fernheim will ever be immeasurable."—PARAGUAY NOTES

Reedley Clothing Center in Operation

The Clothing Center on the West Coast is now in operation under the directorship of Anna Snyder, former director of the Center at Ephrata, Pennsylvania. Arrangements have been made to receive clothing either by express, freight or parcel post. Sister Snyder prefers that clothing be sent in currently as soon as small shipments are made ready rather than leave large amounts accumulate; this will enable the workers to keep it sorted and baled as fast as it arrives.

The Center will also process food for overseas shipment. Contributions of food can be shipped there either by rail or freight truck. All donations of clothing and food for relief from congregations in Californa, Oregon, Washington, and Idaho should be sent to the Clothing Center, Mennonite Central Committee, Reedley, California.

Inasmuch as it is quite likely that much of the clothing from this center will go to China and the Philippines it is suggested that special emphasis be put on lighter clothing for the warmer climates of these countries.

Holland Receives Flour

On April 10, seventeen carloads of flour and three carloads (4,290 bu.) of wheat left New York for Holland. The weight of this shipment totaled 1,438,235 pounds with a valuation of $53,610.20. This brings the total up to thirty-five carloads of flour and four carloads of wheat which have been shipped to Holland within the last year. It is quite likely that this will be the last shipment to Holland for several months and all flour shipments will be channeled to Germany.

C. P. S.

May Discharge Group Announced

Practically all of those men in the April group of discharges have now received final release papers, and the new eligibility classifications have been announced. The following groups of men will be applying for discharges after May 1: men who have had three years of service as of April 30, 1946; fathers of two children who have had eighteen months of service as of April 30, 1946; fathers of one child who have had thirty months of service as of April 30, 1946.

Cattleboat Unit Enlarged

Selective Service has given its approval for a hundred-man addition to the C.P.S. Reserve. This new quota of men is to be filled by assignees who were inducted into camp prior to June 15, 1944. Reports from some of the 250 men who are now in the Reserve indicate that this service is filling a vital need in the war-ravaged countries of Europe as well as broadening the perspective of the men through the graphic realism seen on their trips.

Side Camp Leader's Training School

For the benefit of newly appointed and potential leaders for some of the western camps and units, a leadership training school is to be held at Camino and Belton during the weeks of May 5 to 10 and April 27-May 2, respectively. Men from Livermore, Three Rivers, and Camino are to meet at the Camino school, and the Belton classes are planned for men from Belton and Terry. Rufus Franz, regional director, and Martin Schrag, M.C.C. educational secretary, are planning to be in attendance at the various sessions.

History of C.P.S.

The C.P.S. Research Section, which has been gathering materials and data for the use of future historians of C.P.S. has issued a "C.P.S. Evaluation Questionnaire" to 20 per cent of the men of Civilian Public Service. This is part of an attempt to obtain definite answers and attitudes of men concerning effect of C.P.S. on their lives, values of the program, defects in administration, etc. The information gathered by means of this questionnaire will be used by Dr. Melvin Gingerich of Bethel College in his writing of the History of Civilian Public Service, which is to be published sometime during 1948.

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

The large audiences for the Music Day activities effectively demonstrated the need for a larger auditorium. The "Gym" has served well, but the community needs have outgrown its capacity. Open House night this week showed that our visitors were especially interested in the museum and in the shop and mechanics rooms. An educational film was shown to the group at the end of their visit. The school recently purchased a 35mm slide projector which uses either 2x2" slides or 35mm slide films and single or double frame pictures. Several donations and loans for the museum were recently received. Dr. J. J. Krall of Tyndal loaned several items from his private collection. Among these were an old chair dating back to the early sixteen hundreds, an engraving set, old barbed wire, and a window frame through which Sitting Bull often looked at Firt Randal. Sam Hauch of Avon loaned an oxen yoke in excellent condition. Miss Ewert spent her Easter vacation in Chicago, returning by plane on Monday.

BETHEL COLLEGE

Over fifteen hundred friends of Bethel College responded to the invitations sent out for the fifteenth annual Booster program on April 26. Dr. George A. Buttrick, minister of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York City, author of several well-known religious books, and a leading thinker of our time, spoke on "Christianity and Education." Preceding this powerful and analytic address, a reception was held in the Memorial Hall basement, where a thousand guests were efficiently served from ten tables, with faculty members as hosts. Among the active supporters of the College are the many women working in the Women's Association, which reported at the annual business meeting on April 22 an unusually successful year not only in raising funds for their current project of a new girls' dormitory but in a variety of services to the community. Mrs. J. E. Entz was re-elected president for the coming year.

MENNONITE BIBLICAL SEMINARY

The Administrative Committee of the Seminary Board met on April 23. Future plans of the Seminary were discussed and several definite steps taken. The Easter vacation found the school rather deserted. Those going home or leaving the city for visits with friends or relatives were: Rev. and Mrs. Albert Jantzen, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Friesen, Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard Neufeld, Willie Unrau, and Robert Hartzler whose home is in Goshen, Indiana. Rev. and Mrs. Arnold Regier, Ruth Ewert, Ernst Harder, LaVerne Rutschman and Willard Wiebe remained in or near the school. Of special interest to the student body was the engagement of Ernst Harder to Miss Ruth Ewert. School activities remind us that the end of the term is near. One such highlight was the senior banquet on April 26. Recent visitors here have been Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Duerksen and family, missionaries to India, returning on furlough to their friends in Kansas. Also Mr. Irvin Richert from Los Angeles, just back from serving as an attendant on a cattle boat to Europe. Such visits are always appreciated and heartily invited.

JOTTINGS

Miss Anna V. Liechty left New York by plane on April 24 to fly to Leopoldville in the Belgian Congo enroute to the mission field where she is to serve under the arrangement that the Board of Foreign Missions of the General Conference has with the Congo Inland Mission Board. This is Miss Liechty's first term. Her home is Berne, Indiana. Miss Selma Unruh of Tampa, Kansas, accompanied Miss Liechty. Miss Unruh goes to the same field for her first term. We are sorry that we do not have a picture of Miss Unruh. (cut of Miss Liechty through courtesy of Frieda Lehman)

—Mount Olivet Church, Huron, South Dakota: Rev. Victor Graber of Delft, Minnesota, conducted a series of meetings recently. Rev. J. W. Kleinasser, Rev. J. M. Tschetter, and Rev. Joe Hofer assisted us with our Sunday morning services during the past few weeks. Our attendance record is being maintained nicely; Sunday School members present on April 21, totalled seventy-three. We have decided to have our C. E. program on the second Sunday of each month in order to avoid conflicts with the neighboring churches. A recent C.E. program presented at the Hofer Church included: selections by the girls' octet, girls' trio, girls' chorus, choir, and other numbers. Doris Tschetter and Robert Culver were married during the month of March.—Mrs. J. E. Walters, Corr.

—First Church of Christian Mennonite, Moundridge Kansas: Eleven members are still in government service. A quartet from Hillsboro presented a musical and testimonial program at the Christian Endeavor of April 28.—Linda V. Kaufman, Corr.

—The Eastern District Conference convened in the Zion Church, Souderton, Pa., May 2-5. Rev. Donovan E. Smucker, conference speaker, had as his main theme, "Keys to Unlock Holy Scriptures," and spoke on: "Faith," "Scholarship," anl "Crisis." At the Brotherhood meeting he spoke on, "A Twentieth Century Garden of Eden."

—First Church Fredonia Kansas: Our guest speaker for Easter services and communion was Rev. J. E. Entz of Newton, Kansas.—Mrs. Ben Decker, Corr.

—The Bethel Deaconess Hospital, of Newton, Kansas, has an announcement in its April issue of In the Service of the King relative to the proposed Sister Frieda Memorial Chapel. The statement reads in part: "To commemorate her life among us, we too have set for ourselves the task of building—building a chapel to be known as the Sister Frieda Memorial Chapel. The architect has provided us with a sketch which presents the plans that we have in mind. We hope to build the chapel of brick on the plot of ground south of Sarepta (the nurses' home) and east of the Bethel Home for Aged, facing Muse avenue. The auditorium shall have a seating capacity of two hundred. The basement shall provide a social room for the Bethel family. The need of a chapel and a social room was often mentioned by Sister Frieda, and we know of no more fitting project as a memorial."

—Another Word of Thanks! Since the Jubilee celebration is now over, it is high time that I give expression to my hearty thanks to the churches that arranged for it, and did it in such a splendid fashion by sending the whole program to me by wire to my hospital room. I can not tell in words how much I appreciate it all. This reminds me of the many Easter cards and greetings sent to me. We counted eighty of them in the last three days. Thank you to all dear friends who sent them. May the Lord bless all the kindness and love that has been shown—P. H. Richert, Bethesda Hospital, Goessel, Kansas

—Bethel College Church: Mr. and Mrs. James Smucker (Onieta Tiahrt) expect to do mission work, under the American Board, in a large rural area near Bombay, India. Wayne Quiring left Friday for New York to resume his work on a hospital ship. He recently made two trips to Europe. Owen Gingerich, John Harshbarger, and Richard Siemens are among a group of boys who plan to go to Europe after school closes, as attendants on a cattle boat. Dr. Melvin Gingerich will be in charge of the unit. Stanley Voth is in Europe now on a similar mission.

—Einsiedel Church Hanston, Kansas: Arnold Nickel and Richard Ratzlaff, ministerial students at Bethel College, and Rev. John Epp of Kingman have supplied our pulpit recently. The last Sunday of April the men's chorus from the West Zion Church, Moundridge, gave us a real treat. The Ladies Aid has made twelve comforters for relief and one for a family who lost their home by fire. They also made one small quilt and two baby blankets for relief. One large blanket was donated. A total of 310 pounds of new and used clothing have been sent to our clothing centers. Money has also been given for C.P.S. canning, relief canning, missions, and to help the family who lost their home.—John Lingenfelder, Corr.

—First Church, Beatrice, Nebraska: We were happy to have Rev. W. H. Dyck and family in our midst on Easter Sunday. Rev. Dyck had charge of the morning worship service. The a cappella chorus of the Grace Bible Institute gave a concert the following Monday. Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Suckau also accompanied the group.—Margaret Albrecht, Corr.

—Garden Township Church, Halstead, Kansas: The Light-House Male Quartet of the Alexanderwohl Church gave us an inspiring program of song and music on the evening of April 28.—Corr.

—First Church, Summerfield, Illinois: An Easter sun-rise service was held at the Evangelical Church. The young people gave an Easter play, and this was followed by a breakfast at their parish house. Bluffton College sponsored a Christian Workers' Institute in our church over the week-end of April 27-28. On Saturday evening Carl Lehman spoke and showed slides of the C.P.S. work being done in Puerto Rico. Sunday morning, he and Dr. I. W. Bauman discussed the Sunday School lesson. Rev. Paul R. Shelly preached on the theme, "From Easter to Pentecost." In the afternoon Dr. I. W. Bauman, of the Sociology Department, gave an address on "The Christian in the Present World Crisis."—Joyce Basinger, Corr.

—Apostolic Church, Trenton, Ohio: Bluffton College conducted a "Christian Workers' Institute" in our church on March 30 and 31. The program centered around "The Meaning of the Cross." Rev. J. E. Amstutz took part in the Union Good Friday services held at Middletown. He also recently preached in the Church of the Brethern church in Middletown.--Lydia A. Augspurger, Corr.

—Brudertal Church, Hillsboro, Kansas: Rev. Ronald von Riesen conducted pre-Easter services in our church. The choir gave the cantata, "The Thorn Crowned King" on Easter Sunday evening. The offering that was taken was designated for relief. Several comforters have been made for relief, and some patch work was done and turned in to the clothing center at Newton. Eunice Schmidt and Viola Ewert are teaching the Bible school conducted by our church.--Mrs. Edwin R. Funk, Corr.

—First Church, Nappanee, Indiana: The theme for the Easter sunrise service was: "Were You There?" The song by that name was used as a background with slides and narrations of the crucifixion and resurrection to fill in the rest of the program. The three choirs of our church, consisting of forty-three voices, participated in the morning services and gave the entire program. Monday afternoon the Junior choir had an Easter egg hunt at their weekly practice. The publication board of the central Conference is helping us to become better acquainted by sending us their official paper, the Evangel.--Mrs. Loyal Corwin, Corr.

—Bethel Church, Fortuna, Missouri: Earl Loganbill, who has returned from C.P.S., gave an interesting report of his trip to Germany. Ten young people were baptized in April 14. A Sunrise service was held at the church on Easter morning. A daily vacation Bible school is again being planned. A mother-daughter banquet is to be held in the church in May.--Mrs. Joe Lehman, Corr.

—Buhler (Kansas) Church: Melvin R. Siemens and K. Eugene Matthies have left Galveston, Texas, enroute to Paraeus, Greece, as attendants on a shipload of horses which are being sent for relief purposes. Agnes Williams, who was born April 30, 1887, passed away on April 10, 1946, after eight years of illness. She was very active in the sewing society as long as she could see. Arthur Dyck, who was born July 18, 1908, departed this life April 18, 1946. He was very active in church work.--Mrs. F.F. Matthies, Corr.

—Calvary Church, Barlow, Oregon, closd a succssful Passion Week series of meetings on Easter Sunday. Rv. J.M. Franz was the guest speaker. A mixed chorus from various churches sang the cantata, "Hosanna," to a wellfilled house in the evening service. Eleven people have been received into our church since January 1. Verly likely a number more will be received soon.--Paul N. Roth, Corr.

—First Church, Upland, California: On Easter Sunday our church had the largest number of communicants. The twenty-five voice choir gave the anthem, "Were You There?" The pastor's sermon was based on "The Walk to Emmaus." A five o'clock vesper service, with selections by the choir, male quartet, a violin solo and readings, closed the service for the day. Church night and fellowship supper were held April 25. The program consisted of pictures of C. P. S. These were shown by Rev. Heisy, who visited many C. P. S. camps and took pictures of the various phases of work done.—W. F. Detweiler, Corr.

—Grace Church, Dallas, Oregon: Easter Day was beautiful but a little cold. Sunday School attendance was 317. The enlargement of the building is almost completed.—Mrs. Dave Balzer, Corr.

—First Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: Two of our oldest members, Mrs. Peter Heinrich's, ninety-six years old, and Mrs. Peter Martens, eighty-seven years old, have passed away. Invitations were recently extended to twenty-one discharged servicemen and their wives or parents to a dinner sponsored by the church and served by the Oakleaf Mission Society. An interesting program had been arranged to welcome home the returned servicemen. —Mrs. Willmar Loewen, Corr.

Mrs. G. A. Linscheid
222 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

—Bergtal Church, Pawnee Rock, Kansas: Good Friday union services were held in Pawnee Rock, the theme: "The Words of Christ on the Cross." Seven ministers participated. The union Easter sunrise service was held in the park north of town. The Easter pageant, "The Way of the Cross," was given by eighteen resident characters. Singers from all the churches made up the choir which sang a group of Easter hymns each hymn being a part of the pageantry. This was the tenth year of the union Good Friday service and the eleventh of the union Easter sunrise service. Rev. J. B. Schmidt presented a deep spiritual message, "The Victorious Life through the Power of the Risen and Living Christ," at our Easter morning service. At noon we enjoyed a fellowship basket dinner. Many guests joined in this and for the day. In the afternoon the Easter story was given in verse by the children. This was interspersed with solos quartets, and men's and women's choruses. A goodly number of returned servicemen and families were present.—Mrs. John Dirks, Corr.

—"PRN" book describing the Marlboro, New Jersey, C.P.S. unit has been delayed, but it is hoped that copies may be available in June. Correspondence should be directed to Robert Ebersole, New Jersey State Hospital, Marlboro, New Jersey.

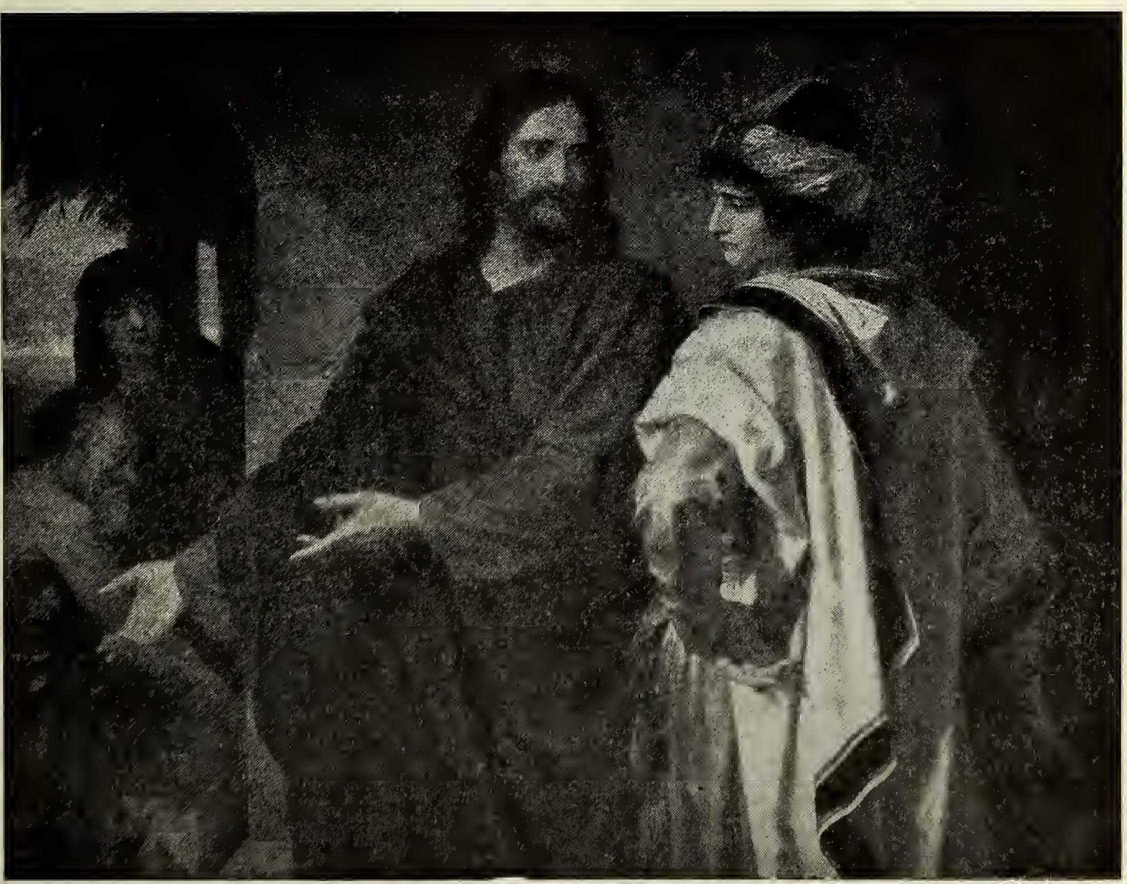
—Wymark, Saskatchewan: In connection with the close of the Swift Current Bible School, our regular spring baptismal and communion service was held on April 7. On April 6 the Bible School held three services. Graduation service in the forenoon, for which Rev. Benno Toews was the speaker, as well as for the mission service in the afternoon. In the evening the closing program of the Bible School was given. Sunday forenoon ten young people followed the Lord in baptism. In the afternoon 234 guests took part in communion. All these services were well attended, and the church proved far too small. Many could not get in. We must have a larger church.—Miss Ruby Brown, Corr.

—Salem (South) Church, Freeman, South Dakota: The Women's Missionary Society had another drive for blankets. Fifteen new blankets were collected and approximately two hundred dollars in cash. Meat, lard, vegetables, anl soap have also been sent. We plan to send another shipment of new and used clothing in May. The Northern District Conference is meeting in our church this year, June 1-5. Rev. A. E. Kreider will be our guest speaker. Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Brown, the missionary speakers and Rev. Marvin Dirks will speak to the young people. The Men's Club will be giving a program in the Bethel Church of Mountain Lake in May.—Mrs. Willard Claassen, Corr.

—The Senior Class of Bethel College will present as its class play "The Brother" by Dorothy Clarke Wilson on May 10, 8 P.M. at Memorial Hall. "The Brother" is a religious play based on the life of Jesus. The character and influence of Jesus in the lives of those about him is portrayed in all the characters and especially in his brother James who has a great struggle in recognizing Him as the Messiah.

The Mennonite

Volume 61 May 14, 1946 Number 20



Copyright by Perry Pictures Company, Malden, Mass.

He Was Rich but Hungry

He had great possessions, but they failed to satisfy him. He had lived a very respectable, commandment-observing life, but this also left him lacking. He had tried his best to achieve, and now he wondered what one more thing he could do to gain that satisfaction which was ever eluding him. He was hungry for that kind of life that would forever satisfy.

Undoubtedly, this rich young man had a rather strong and definite conception of what "he wanted to be." He had a high ideal for himself, but it was he that determined what that ideal should be and not God. He professed to have loved his neighbor as himself. Undoubtedly, he had convinced himself that this was true. Any admission to himself that he was not living up to the revered religious injunctions of his day would have been very painful to him. He had to be in his own sight what "he wanted to be." He loved himself more than God.

He loved his possessions more than God. He believed in them more than in God, for to believe means to live by (by-live or live by). His trust in his wealth was greater than his trust in the love which would have constrained him to share with those who were definitely in need of what he possessed.

(Continued on page 14)

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point-of-view:

THE EMERGENCY FOOD COLLECTION, a nation-wide campaign to obtain contributions of food from the American people for the starving in other lands is now under way, and it presents a concrete challenge to those who call themselves Christians. The campaign is headed by Henry A. Wallace, and the plan calls for the mobilization of every community. Each person in the United States is to be asked to share with the starving peoples of the world. Each person can contribute either food canned in tin or money to buy food. The proceeds will be distributed through the UNRRA on the basis of the greatest need. Receiving depots are to be set up in every city, town, and village where gifts or tinned food may be left. Cash or checks may be given to local emergency food collection committees. There is a shortage of wheat products and fats ond oils, and it is pointed out that the American housewife can do much to make more supplies available for relief. "Using plentiful foods, such as potatoes, instead of bread, serving fewer fried foods, broiling more foods, making maximum use of meat and bacon drippings, turning in used fats, which can no longer be used for cooking purposes, to butchers and grocers, and serving less pastries are practical ways each housewife has of cooperating in the emergency program and saving vitally needed foods for starving millions," it is suggested. Mennonites will find a channel for relief giving in the Mennonite Central Committee in the future as they have in the past. For M. C. C. plans see the article in another part of this paper. Both the present Emergency Food Collection campaign and the plans of the M. C. C. challenge Mennonites everywhere to do their utmost for the relief of the starving peoples in this world.

THE HEALTH of Americans could be vastly improved by a national effort to provide medical care for all people and to provide it on a preventative as well as on a curative basis. Just how that can best be done remains to be seen. Important health bills have been introduced in the U. S. congress, but it is predicted that only a very "widespread popular demand can force action of even a mild kind by the present Congress." A proposed National Health Act (Senate Bill 1606 and H. R. 4730) "would establish a national medical care system, and provide funds to help the states strengthen their community-wide public health and maternal and child health programs, and pay for medical care for needy persons." The Wagner-Murray-Dingell Social Security Bill would pay cash disability benefits to provide an income for the families of workers who are sick or permanently disabled. S 1318 is a separate maternal and child health bill "which would provide federal funds to help the states with their programs for child clinics, crippled children services and other medical services for mothers and children." A hospital-construction bill (S. 191), which would provide "federal funds to help states and localities build needed hospitals and public health centers, with relatively more federal funds going to the poorer states," has been passed by the senate and sent to the House. Thousands upon thousands of unnecessary deaths and millions of unnecessary physical handicaps could be avoided by more comprehensive and thoroughgoing national health measures than we have at present.

THE PURE in heart shall see. This is the significant conclusion of an editorial by Errol T. Elliot of the American Friend. Elliott refers to a book, the author of which "reminds us that fundamental insights come not from the learned students of philosophy, but from the saints, sages, and prophets who know from personal commitment, rather than at second-hand, the truths by which men live." Elliott then continues: "How easily one may learn by rote the traditions of the elders, the orthodoxy of the 'head,' and how slowly he may achieve a rapport with life—a communion with God. He so readily tries to be saved by what he knows, when it is also by what he is that the saving truth of life is opened to him. We should not pose "experience" against "knowledge," but the paths of knowledge are more clear for those who are inwardly surrendered to God who is truth. They who do shall know. The pure in heart shall see."

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorised Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchange to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON KANSAS

S. F. Pannabecker Accepts Deanship of Seminary

At the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Menonite Biblical Seminary and Bible School, March 13, 1946, the recommendation of the administrative Committee was adopted to call Rev. Dr. S. F. Pannabecker as dean of the Seminary for the coming year.

We have now the joy to announce that Dr. Pannabecker has accepted this call and is considering to begin his service on or before September 1, 1946.

Brother Pannabecker plans to return in July from China where he has served as representative of the M.C.C. in relief work for two years.

After finishing high school Brother Pannabecker continued his education in Bluffton College and graduated in 1917. The following year he received his A. M. degree from the Witmarsum Theological Seminary. Later he entered into more specialized theological studies at Garret Biblical Institute and Yale Divinity School, receiving his Ph. D degree in June 1944.

In 1921 he married Sylvia Lydia Tschantz of Dalton, Ohio, and two years later the family followed the appointment of the Foreign Mission Board to serve the Lord in the China mission field. Their much appreciated and blessed services could be continued until the outbreak of the second World War when the family was forced to return home.

Mrs. Pannabecker is serving as teacher in the public school system of their home town, Bluffton, Ohio. Their children are Richard, Robert Tschantz and Alice Ruth.

We are grateful to the Lord for His leading and to the Pannabeckers for their willingness to join the Seminary fellowship in the greatest task of our Conference, the education of ministers, missionaries, and other church workers. Let us all join in partnership of prayer for them and our institution.—The Mennonite Biblical Seminary and Bible School, A. Warkentin, President

Our Mennonite Biblical Seminary and Bible School

The friends of our Mennonite Seminary and Bible School will have recently read the article in our church papers in which the faculty and student body expressed their reaction in coming to the close of the first term of the institution's work. There was an expression of gratitude to God for the way in which He has blessed the school, for the rich fellowship that has been experienced during the year, a reminder that the institution is a venture of faith, and an appeal for the spiritual and physical needs to be remembered.

That article gives an insight into the attitude of the faculty and students with which Board members and other visitors to the school have become familiar. Some observations that come to one's attention are as follows:

1. There is a warm fellowship between the students, and Dr. Warkentin and other faculty members. There is a deep and appreciative regard for each other.

2. One notes an inspiring comradeship among the student group. These young people have learned to know each other in a way that will be an abiding tie throughout life.

3. A deep spiritual atmosphere pervades the group. Faith and prayer are key attitudes. There are many expressions of the enrichment of the regular and frequent periods of prayer and meditation.

4. There is evident a faithfulness in study and preparation for a life of Christian service.

5. One notes a real desire on the part of each one to serve Christ and the Church wherever possible, and much service has been given during this year in various fields of activity.

6. The students are intensely interested in the future of the institution and are thinking and praying about this in a very definite way.

7. The Bethany people speak highly of our faculty and student group, and they in turn of the entire Bethany group.

In view of a faculty-student group with such a spirit, it is understandable that together they would call attention to the spiritual and physical needs of the school. The Board of Trustees also asks that you pray with us for these needs, and for the solution of the problems that lie ahead of us.

First and foremost, may we all pray that in all things the school may have the leading of God, that our work might be acceptable to Him, and furnish capable spiritual workers to serve the Church and the Kingdom. We do thank God for his leading and for the blessings that have been experienced during this first year of our Seminary's work.

We also thank Him and our constituency for the support that has so generously come thus far. As the faculty and students pointed out in their article, we need about one thousand dollars per month till August 1 to balance the budget. We ask that all contributions be sent to our treaurer, Elmer Baumgartner Berne, Indiana.

We cordially invite all our young people to consider our Mennonite Seminary and Bible School for their training for Christian service. Write to Dr. A. Warkentin, President, Mennonite Biblical Seminary and Bible School, 3435 Van Buren Street, Chicago 24, Illinois, for information.—A. S. Rosenberger, President, Board of Trustees

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

An Inaugural Address by Dr. W. Leendertz was delivered at Amsterdam February 11, 1946, when he was installed as Professor of Theology and Ethics at the University of Amsterdam and the Mennonite Theological Seminary. The latter institution has been training Mennonite ministers in Holland for more than two hundred years. Dr. Leendertz spoke on the subject "De Middenweg en het Midden," pointing out that there is no "happy medium" for a Christian. Our lives are made up of a chain of decisions. Quoting Jaspers a philosopher, he states, Even the good will does not act without hurting. It acts on the borderline of immediate guilt." Reviewing the attitude of the philosophers toward human decisions between evil and good, Dr. Leendertz proves to be influenced strongly by today's "Existence" philosophy and the Barthian theology. He has written a number of books on the Danish philosopher and theologian, Kierkegaard.

The Mennonites in France. Robert Kreider reports about an attendance of the Mennonite Conference in France to which eleven congregations belong. The Alsatian Conference of fifteen congregations was also represented. The latter are German speaking while the former have adopted the French language. Originally most of these Mennonites were Amish. Names like Rich, Widmer, Yoder, Roth, Schowalter, Amstuz, Gingerich etc. are evidence that they have a common Swiss background with many an American Mennonite family. Robert Kreider reports that generally they have not suffered great physical want during the war, and since they are farmers they are not in great need now.

Peace Principles in Holland. A number of Dutch Mennonites appealed in a recent issue of the official Mennonite periodical, de Noodbrug, for a special meeting of those who are of the opinion "that the Christian principle of nonresistance has been justly accepted by Mennonites at various times and in various countries and that it is still significant for our society, which is especially the case when it is supported by constructive peace work." The first meeting of this group was to be held this spring.

Interpreting Geneva Convention and Potsdam Agreements. There are a few Russian Mennonite prisoners of war in this country who had been drafted into the German Army and were thus taken captive by the U. S. Army. These men much prefer joining their relatives in Canada to going to Siberia. Upon inquiry whether this could be arranged our government replied that according to Geneva agreements all prisoners of war had to be returned to their countries. However, in the Christian Century we read: "Now it is claimed that the United States, in closing out our prisoner camps, is shipping well fed and properly clothed prisoners to France, where they are stripped of the good clothing provided in this country, given a few rags to cover their nakedness and put to work clearing mine fields, razing shattered buildings and exploding ammunition." To this the Chicago Tribune remarked: "The bartering of captured enemy soldiers by the victors throws the world back to the Dark Ages."

Russian Life, published in San Francisco, reports: "The Russians offer the Japanese prisoners of war USSR citizenship in order to keep them for the reconstruction of Siberia." In this way the USSR gets around the Potsdam Agreement to free the prisoners of war and send them home. Many thousand Japanese are thus retained, and we send prisoners of war to France but refuse to keep a few in this country.

Looking for Relatives. Erich Regehr, formerly from Ladekopp, Danzig, now Camp Oxbol, Offiziersbaracke 9, Zimmer 7, Jutland, Denmark, would like to contact his cousin Gustav Regehr, formerly Mierau near Neuterich, Danzig, and his friends Heinz Neufeld, formerly Brodsack, Danzig, Otto and Erich Penner, formerly Tiege, Danzig, all of whom are supposed to be living in America.

Dr. Chr. Neff, Editor of "Mennonitishes Lexikon" Writes: "We are again permitted to write abroad. I am using the first opportunity to write you a very urgent letter. We have experienced much but I will write you about that later. God has graciously proected us, and we cannot be thankful enough for it. Today I am coming with a special request. There are prospects of continuing the printing of the Mennonitisches Lexikon. Now we need articles on the Mennonites in Oklahoma, Ontario, and Oregon. Would you see to it that we get them as soon as possible? Only the most important things need to be said. So much for today, I am very busy . . . "

Thus we see that the octogenarian is still busy completing his life's work. The Mennonite Encyclopedia which is published alphabetically in installments has been completed up to the letter "o." Now that the war is over the American Mennonites will, no doubt, continue to help support and help complete this unique and significant publication. Chr. Hege, the co-editor, passed away during the war.

Plans for the 1946 Food for Relief Program

At the annual meeting of the M.C.C. it was decided that there would be a 1946 food for relief program along the general lines of the program of last year. Further it was felt that the peak of this relief effort may be reached during this next year. We think in general terms of the year's program beginning around April 1 and extending to that date 1947. The major emphasis last year was upon those materials which were grown on our land, in our orchards and processed by the work of our hands. Through such a program we literally give of ourselves and through it give a strong personal testimony which is of utmost value. Relief gifts, to be of maximum value to those who receive as well as those who give, must carry with them part of the effort and spirit of the giver. Surely this ought to be for us a labour of love—an expression through our planting of additional acreage and through onr processing of these products of the soil —of our concern for our fellowmen and our brethren in the faith. Literally thousands of Mennonites and Brethren in Christ women and girls have given of themselves as they laboured over hot stoves in the kitchens of their own homes in order to process fruits and vegetables. In the light of great need, cannot—will not the Mennonite Church rise to meet the challenge and put forth even greater effort this year to give of themselves and their goods to those who are the unfortunate victims of this awful war?

As indicated earlier it is somewhat difficult to ascertain just what direction the program will take during the coming year. There are, however, certain general areas which appear to remain somewhat constant and for which there will be a great need. (The following points of emphasis are for the United States only. Latest reports indicate that Canadian government officials will permit a canning program. Canadian readers are urged to watch for more complete announcements concerning this program.)

I. The need for meats and fats remains a primary one—canning of all kinds of meat is encouraged.

2. Canned fruits and vegetables are not available in many countries and are needed for a balanced diet—due to continued sugar shortage, fruits may need to be canned without sugar or with a sugar substitute—no allotment for sugar for relief canning has been obtained to date—whenever possible canning should be done in tin.

3. Dried fruits and vegetables including peaches, apples, apricots, beans, corn, raisins, prunes (particularly applicable to those who have no canning facilities available).

4. Clothing of all kinds including bedding and blankets—particularly needed for next winter—(blanket goal of 50,000 has not been reached)—shoes, soap.

5. Tools—(mason's plumber's, mechanic's, carpenter's, general shop tools) needed for relief builders unit —utensils, sewing kits.

6. Basic foods such as flour and milk products will be needed.

All relief goods are sent in the name of Christ. It is our privilege to send goods of a high quality truly consistent with the spirit of the one in whose name they are sent. Those who desire to contribute cash to either the general relief program or for the purchase of food have opportunity to do so. Cash which is contributed to the general relief program in use wherever it is most needed. Operating costs have increased a very considerable extent because we need to pay the ocean freight on our shipments to Germany.

It would seem advisable for local groups and committes to get together and study their own situation and decide what projects are most adaptable. If you are in a fruit section perhaps now is the time to think of how this product might be canned when it ripens. If there are no canning facilities available perhaps you will want to dry your fruit and vegetables or take up some other project. A number of people have carried on canning projects in connection with a nearby community or commerical canneries. Several other groups have constructed portable canneries. This may seem like a large project yet groups have proved that it can be done. These groups have been enthusiastic about the results obtained. Conference groups may be interested in such a project. Later such a project might well be directed into city mission support, canning for colleges, for our summer youth camps, or voluntary service projects. Sunday School classes, literary societies, Bible study classes might want to plant additional acreage for such a program.

The major function of the material aid section is to set up channels through which the materials which you desire to give to those in need are processed and moved to their destination. In order that the above may be carried out forty-five CPS men are now working in the program. These men are working in food warehouses, clothing centers, portable canneries, on trucks and in the office at Akron. In addition a great many other people have given voluntarily of their time and effort to this program. Lewis Martin of Harrisonburg, Virginia, will be making a first hand investigation of relief needs in Europe this summer. He will evaluate the present food and clothing program and make recommendations for the coming year's program of material aid. The material aid section will be glad to assist individuals and groups in the working out of their relief projects.—Atlee Beechy, Material Aid Section of the M.C.C., Akron, Pa.

THE CHURCH'S OPPORTUNITY IN THE WORLD OF TODAY

Middle District Conference, First Church, Nappanee, Indiana, June 8 - 11

THRU OUR YOUNG PEOPLE

Theme Song: "The Church's One Foundation"—Theme Verse: "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." I Cor. 3:11.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Leaders' Institute

SATURDAY EVEINNG

Banquet and Program of Young People's Society

THRU RELIEF WORK

SUNDAY MORNING

Sunday Morning Service—Led by Rev. J. J. Enz
Sunday School
Communion Service
Conference Sermon—Rev. Sylvian Lehman

SUNDAY AFTERNOON

I. W. Bauman, Chairman
Report on Young People's Projects—Elmer Ediger
Message on "Relief" by some recently returned relief worker
Musical Program by Men's Chorus of Berne Church

SUNDAY EVENING

Layman's Program—C. Henry Smith, Chairman
"Discussion on Brotherhoods"
Theme: "How Can the Layman Help to Keep Unity in the Local Congregation."
Message: "The Challenge to the Layman"—E. W. Baumgartner

THRU WORLD WIDE MISSIONS

MONDAY MORNING

9:30 Worship Service
9:40 Business Session
11:00 Recess
11:40 Music
Sermon: "New Opportunities in Home Mission Work"—Rev. John Plenert
Discussion Period

MONDAY AFTERNOON

2:00 Worship Service
2:10 Business Session
3:45 Recess
Sermon: "The Churches Supreme opportunity in World Wide Missions"—Rev. J. R. Duerksen
4:00 Music
Discussion Period

MONDAY EVENING

Program of Women's Missionary Societies

THRU CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

TUESDAY MORNING

9:30 Worship Service
9:40 Business Session
11:00 Recess
11:10 Music
Sermon: "The Churches Opportunity in the Field of Church Operated Schools"—Rev. Harry Yoder
Discussion Period

TUESDAY AFTERNOON

2:00 Worship Service
2:10 Business Session
3:45 Recess
4:00 Music
Sermon: "Opportunities of Christian Teachers in Public Schools"—Rev. Harry Yoder

Conference Officers:

Rev. Sylvan Lehman, Chairman
Gerhard Buhler, Secretary
Prog. Com. E. W. Baumgartner, I. W. Bauman, John T. Neufeld

A Prayer for a Little Home

God send us a little home—
To come back to when we roam—
Low walls and fluted tiles,
Wide windows, a view for miles;
Red firelight and deep chairs;
Small white beds upstairs;
Great talk in little nooks,
Dim colors, rows of books;
One picture on each wall;
Not many things at all.
God send us a little ground—
Tall trees standng round,
Homely flowers in brown sod,
Overhead thy stars, O God—
Bless all the winds that blow,
Our homes and all we know.

—Selected.

Foreign Missions

(All Foreign Missions correspondence should be sent to Rev. Howard Nyce, 1528 Chew Street, Allentown, Pa.)

IN TIME OF SICKNESS

Where shall one find help in time of sickness and distress? Some people live in a Christian community where there is a doctor and maybe a hospital and they accept such health provisions in good faith. When a person, in addition to these, has a living faith and trust in the Great Physician then there is a calm and a peace that passes understanding. Such people know where they can find help for body and soul. Happy are they when they follow the suggestions and advice of the doctor and the commandments of the Lord.

It is not so with all our Indian people. On the contrary, it is a most pathetic case when there is no trust in any one belief, or religion, or doctor, or medicine. Still more pathetic is it when a person has expressed his faith in the Lord and has attended a certain church and then for another group of Christians to come during the dying days and by the hours try to convince the dying man that there is only one right church. His faith may have been rather weak in the first place.

Shall one get the advice of the doctor when sickness comes? There is always the old way. An Indian doctor can be called in. He will have his own cures to offer. Or some herbs may be brewed into a tea and this will deaden pain. Another possibility is to call the government doctor, or even the community doctor, and rely on his trained experience. Often all of these methods are used at one and the same time.

What about the medicine the doctor prescribes? Many times it may not be used as it was intended. One man boastingly explained, "While the doctor looked away I quickly slipped the pills under my pillow. I certainly fooled him that time." The consultation with the doctor as well as all medicine is free for the asking to the Indian. So is the use of the government hospitals. Many cases of sickness could possibly be cured quickly and completely if the hospitals were used in time and not only when the end is already near, or if the patient would stay long enough. Again it is discouraging when some Christian groups promise complete cure without any medcal assistance but only the use of prayer.

In nearly every Indian family, especially when there is sickness, is there a desire to have some form of a service. The ministers are usually welcome and the reading of the Scriptures and a word of prayer are gladly listened to.

What shall the Indian do? Thank God for the many who have learned to take medical advice from trained experts and for those who make use of the provisions in hospitals and the medicine provided for them. Thank God also for those who have also learned to trust the Great Physician and have accepted Him for the cure of the sin-sick soul.

—Arthur Friesen

"But I Don't Know the Way"

In one of our high school classes in Jagdeeshpore are a few non-Christian Hindu boys. They are bright and keen. In my scripture class we discussed superstition, and especially the scripture passage where the Ephesian people burn a large pile of books (Acts 19:19). Some students suggested that those people should have sold the books and should have done some good with the money thus realized. I told them that those people had gained a conviction that the books confused the way to God. Then I told the students further that there is a very clear way to God and that the way is open for all people of every country and race. Then one of the non-Christian boys said, "But principal, I do not know that way." I said, Ramkrishna (this is the boy's name) I am here to tell you and to point that way out to you. So I told him very simply and clearly about what Jesus has surely and truly been and done to establish His own saying, "I am the way." The whole class listened as though they had never heard this before, even the Christian students. The reason for the intense listening seemed to be that a really seeking soul—a class-mate of theirs—was directed to THE way which leads to the Father-heart of God.—John Thiessen Correction: We are sorry that the author of the article "Holy Week" was omitted last week. The article was contributed by Rev. Gerald Stucky of Columbia, South America.

Home Missions:

Material appearing under "Home Missions" is contributed by A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary of the Home Mission Board, Quakertown, Pa.

Ministering to the Sick at Cook County Hospital

by Ernst Harder

Four thousand beds filled with suffering people, that is Cook County Hospital in Chicago. Some of the best doctors practice in this institution, which is the largest of its kind, and thousands of interns get their first practical experience in its wards and operating rooms. Till recently there was no regular chaplain responsible for the spiritual welfare of the sick. Anybody could go into the hospital and do "personal" work. On visiting days the wards were swamped with people distributing tracts and hastily inquiring about the patient's soul. To say the least this service was very inadequate.

Some church groups like the Catholics, the Episcopalians, and the Lutherans had regular pastors contacting their members, while other sick had no contact with the church at all. The Home Mission Board recognized this need when they sent Missionary Henry Toews to visit the sick regularly during the months he waited for passage to Africa. In September, 1945, to Rev. Fredrick Keuther was given the challenge to organize a chaplaincy service at Cook County Hospital. During February Rev. Keuther was installed by the Church Federation of Greater Chicago as the head Chaplain of all institutions of Chicago.

Under his leadership, a student from Bethany Biblical Seminary and we three from our Mennonite Biblical Seminary began our work as ministers to the sick. Many of the readers will feel towards this work like we did when we first started. I cannot speak for the others, but after exchanging accounts of our first experiences, it seems that all of us had similar feelings. I was assigned to a ward which has one hundred beds. Most of the patients are old men suffering from urinary ailment. The air in the ward is "thick" and has a peculiar, sharp odor. All the men were strangers to me. The first man beside whose bed I stepped ignored me completely. Only after I addressed him in German did he answer my questions. With a feeling that I had definitely missed my calling I went to the next bed. But here was a man who either talked all the time or hadn't talked for so long that he began to unburden himself. For twenty minutes I stood beside him and listened not being able to insert a single word.

After two hours of visiting of that kind and in that peculiar atmosphere, I was thoroughly tired out. I felt very, very helpless. I knew that I would have to spend much more time in gathering inner resources from Above. It takes a large measure of God's grace and power to be able to meet troubled hearts on sick beds.

Since that first time, I have stood beside hundreds of sick people. The initial visit is usually very short. During this time I introduce myself and my work, inquire about the patient's condition, his church affiliation, and offer him my help. Most patients have time enough during this early contact to sense whether one is a friend or whether one cannot be trusted. Some confide very quickly.

The second visit is usually longer and the conversation soon steers to the subjects of God, suffering, the personal relationship to Jesus as our Savior, and the meaning of life and the hereafter.

Often these things cannot be discussed in terms just stated, since the patient may never have read the Bible or he may not have seen the inside of a church for twenty or thirty years. Sometimes the difficulty with which a patient struggles lies not primarily in the spiritual realm but in his home relationship, or in the church fellowship, or in his occupation. It seems that unless these difficulties can be removed, the patient is not responsive either to the doctors help or to the call of God. The patient needs primarily a friend whom he trusts and who tries to understand him. When he has found such a friend in the chaplain, he usually makes also the effort to read the New Testaments which we distribute.

The techniques of becoming an effective chaplain and problems with which we deal are discussed in a weekly seminar with Rev. Keuther. The task and the responsibilities of this job often rise high in our minds, especially when we think of the four thousand patients and the handful of chaplains most of whom work only part time. The job is tremendous and the field of Christian service to the sick is wide open.

Any suggestions of reactions in relation to this field of service would be welcomed by Ernst Harder, Mennonite Biblical Seminary, 3435 Van Buren St., Chicago 24, Illinois.

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Vice President
Verney Unruh
Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

A Visit with the Pacific District

by Elmer Ediger

After spending a month in California, Oregon, Washington, and Idaho I feel that I am beginning to know their young people and at least am at a beginning point for further cooperation in young people's work. When some of us were called to be executive committee members of the YPU we didn't know where to begin. One step in faith often revealed another so that finally we felt ready to undertake a program of conducting leaders' institutes together with district leaders in as many districts and states as possible. And so it was that we ventured forth with a series of letters to the state y.p. officers of the Pacific district and they in fine spirit, and faith, agreed that we together arrange for such institutes similar to what had been held in the Western and Eastern districts.

The Institutes

The trip although involving church and home visitation had as its pivotal point these institutes. These gatherings consisted of a day or more set aside for a study of young people's organization and activities by representative young people and sponsors from each church. Through these institutes we have been able to begin a study of our conference young people situation, get a vision of the direction our local young people work might move, share suggestions for the immediate problems, and very important—learned to know each other as individual workers. Actually a day's meeting is but a beginning, and we hope that they may be followed up by additional gatherings of a worshipful nature.

To give you a report of this Pacific District trip I will present a few representative mental impressions that remain rather clearly with me. . . . To get to the Shafter church for the state YPU Institute some car loads of young people left home at four in the morning! About forty representatives gathered, some from each of the seven churches. It seemed like a reunion of retreaters as one noted how the young people enthusiastically greeted one another. The first half of the institute was spent together as one group and the afternoon as three—Program, Fellowship, Service. I was impressed with the degree of organization for young people in most of the California churches and in the state set up.

For the next week each of the seven churches was visited; we had small group meetings of the young people and often others. Such evening meetings were varied according to church suggestions—usually a presentation of our part as a local group in the larger program of the church or a discussion on what more the local group could do. During the day I tried to write out notes while traveling by bus from place to place, or visited with pastors and young people leaders.

Visits in Homes

A very important aspect of the trip was the visits in the homes. I wish time had only allowed me to stay in a community for two or more days as I did at several. In this way one could learn to know the pastor as well as some of the young people leaders as was the case at Shafter and Winton. After church service at Winton, a spontaneous dinner invitation was given to a number of young couples to gather at one home. The discussion around the dinner table and in the kitchen were live ones—and perhaps as helpful as an evening meeting, certainly a good supplement. I also appreciated very much the spirit of generosity with which I was taxied from place to place in various communities.

No where on the west coast are five churches located so much in a cluster as in Oregon. This enables them to have a union meeting of all young people every three months for special speakers, singing, a period of social mixing, and more singing. The first evening of the Oregon Institute was such a meeting of an estimated one hundred fifty young people and a few elders with an emphasis on consecrated Christian living. During the following day, March 16, about thirty-five young people, sponsors, and pastors had two sessions similar to those in California. The Oregon institute had a higher per cent of the high school age group.

A New Approach to Organization

The state organization of the young people was at the time limited to the retreat committee. A very interesting experiment is being undertaken by the state in an effort to coordinate all of the church organizations such as sewing circles, as well as young people's fellowships and others into a state fellowship, one organization. Consideration is being given to drop the term CE from the young peoples organization and formulate names and concepts more fitting to their purposes.

The Washington Churches

The three eastern Washington churches met at Lind, March 24; about thirty young people were present at the meeting in the country church. Seeing the church surrounded by thousand and more acre farms leads one to appreciate the distance which people travel to church and how it effects their young people activities. Summertime at Lind when college students return is the time for vital youth meetings—that in contrast to the all too prevalent custom of discontinuing meetings during the summer months. (It is much better to alter their nature for the summer then to drop them.) Here I was also impressed with the purposive, well-organized Sunday School in which young people played a very essential part as teachers and from all indications it was a real joy for them.

Aberdeen is certainly a much larger church than I had assumed. About seventy young people gathered for an evening of good fellowship and a discussion of what a local young people's group shoull be and do. On the following day Alice Lehrman who represented the entire Pacific district young people on the Y. P. U. Council and Marvin Linscheid the District Y. P. Counsellor, and I laid some plans toward revitalizing the organization of the district.

This brief survey may help you a little to feel a part of our larger youth fellowship. There is good interest and a receptivity to a stronger Mennonite youth fellowship—locally and at large. Through our various youth retreats we have realized what one step forward together can mean for the church. In like manner there are other areas such as local program methods and subjects, voluntary service projects, which have as much room for development as retreats did twenty-five years ago.

There Is Work Among Migrants This Summer

(Editor's Note: The Women's Missionary Association announces that three workers will go forth this Summer to work among the migrants. For the reason, the following article giving information about the migrants and about the work being undertaken by the Home Missions Council is of special interest.)

This year the Federal Government estimated that 4,000,000 seasonal workers would be required to harvest and process the crops for the food supply at home and overseas. Much the larger group are native migrants: Negro, Spanish, Japanese, White Americans. The smaller groups are imported migrants from Jamaica, the Bahamas, the Barbadoes, and Mexico. These imported migrants—however —are to be returned now that the war is over.

The native migrant is not protected by governmental agreement and as a result has had to live in many cases outside government camps which were available to imported migrants. The problems of schooling for their children, undesirable working conditions, unfair recruiting practices, lack of medical care, religious ministry and cultural opportunity, as well as discrimination by local communities—all these still cause distressing limitations and hardship on the lives of a great group of our citizens .

New work was started in North Carolina, Virginia and New Mexico, and a Spanish-speaking minister has been added to the staff in Texas because of increased World Day of Prayer offerings. There are two Spanish-speaking ministers on the western staff besides the one in the mid-west, and five year-round Negro workers in the East.

A survey is being made and plans laid for the post-war era. Shipyards, defense industries and construction projects are beginning now to feed thousands of people back into the migrant labor stream and there is some prospect that returning service men may add to the number.

—Statements gleaned from the bulletin of the Home Missions Council, "Our Migrant Worker Can Now Look Ahead."

Immeasurably More

"We can only see a little of the ocean,
Just a few miles distant from the rocky shore
But out there—far beyond our eye's horizon,
There's more—immeasurably more.

"We can only see a little of God's loving—
A few rich treasures from His mighty store;
But out there—far beyond our eye's horizon,
There's more—immeasurably more."

—Selected.

Mission Work in an Idaho Mexican Labor Camp

by Arnold E. Bartel

"Go ye therefore and teach all nations"—Matt. 28:19(a). In the summer of 1943, Missionary Malcolm Wenger sent out Young People's society one dozen Spanish Gospel Recordings which we used for our missionary work.

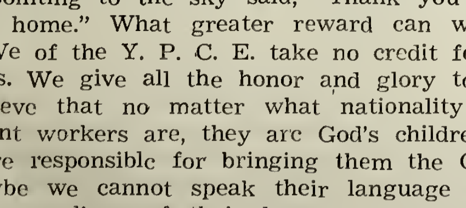
During the summer and fall of 1943, until the Mexicans left our community, we used an electric phonograph and the Spanish recordings to play half hour programs on Sunday afternoons. We also gave out tracts to the men as they came to listen to the hymns and messages.

In 1944 we ordered more recordings and tracts, for more variety of programs, and continued our Sunday programs from spring until late fall when the Mexicans again left us.

In 1945 we ordered more recordngs and tracts for our programs on Sunday afternoon. We now have about forty-five Gospel recordings which make a large variety of programs in the language these men can understand. We also added Spanish New Testaments to our program which were given free of charge to those who wished them. We gave about fifty-five New Testaments and sold two Spanish Bibles at cost to us.

We have no right to say what results have come from our efforts because we do not know. We know that the men read their Testaments and tracts with great eagerness and listened eagerly to the recordings of hymns and messages.

One Sunday afternoon one of the men came to us, showed us his Testament, held it over his heart and pointing to the sky said, "Thank you I am going home." What greater reward can we ask for. We of the Y. P. C. E. take no credit for any results. We give all the honor and glory to God. I believe that no matter what nationality these migrant workers are, they are God's children and we are responsible for bringing them the Gospel. Maybe we cannot speak their language but if these recordings of their language are available we can at least in part satisfy their hunger for the Gospel.



Leaders of Christian Worker's Institute

The following personnel are those that will meet with those attending the Christian Workers Institute to be held at Bluffton College, June 5, 6, and 7. Interested persons wishing to attend the Institute should contact Dr. Paul Shelly, Bluffton College, Bluffton, Ohio.

Personnel

Elmer Ediger—Former Educational Director, C.P.S. camps, Mennonite Central Committee; Director of Summer Service Units.

H. A. Fast—Professor of Bible, Bethel College, North Newton, Kansas; Vice President, Mennonite Central Committee.

R. L. Hartzler.—Field Secretary and Editor, Christian Evangel, Central District, General Conference.

John P. Klassen.—Assistant Professor of Art, Bluffton College, Bluffton, Ohio.

Olin Krehbiel.—Pastor, First Mennonite Church, Berne, Indiana; Member Educational Committee, General Conference.

Howard G. Nyce.—Pastor Allentown-Upper Milford Charge; Secretary, Foreign Mission Board.

Lloyd L. Ramseyer.—President, Bluffton College, Bluffton, Ohio.

Andrew R. Shelly.—Pastor, Stirling Avenue Mennonite Church, Kitchener, Ontario, Canada.

Paul R. Shelly.—Assistant Professor of Bible, Bluffton College, Bluffton, Ohio.

Don Smucker.—Student, Princeton Theological Seminary, Chairman, Committee of Doctrine and Conduct, General Conference.

J. N. Smucker.—Pastor, Mennonite Church, Bluffton, Ohio. President General Conference.

William G. Stauffer.—Pastor, Mennonite Church, Sugarcreek, Ohio.

Abraham Warkentin.—President, Mennonite Biblical Seminary and Bible School, Chicago, Illinois.

Beauty Forever

Be glad of happiness that is not yours,
Rejoice in beauty that you may not hold;
Then shall you know a rapture that endures,
A youth that grows not old.

The mountains that are mine, the woods, the sea,
The golden river winding on and on—
What joy it is to know that these shall be
When I am gone!

by Arthur Guiterman

Youth Events

Ernst Harder, student at Mennonite Biblical Seminary, is planning to visit the Canadian churches this summer. Ernst will go to the Canadian churches as a representative of youth in the States. He will also go representing Paraguay, his home. The trip is being sponsored by the Board of Education and the Young People's Union. All provinces are to be visited. Further announcements of the trip will be forthcoming.

* * *

Under consideration at present by the young People's Union is the plan to bring foreign students to our colleges for further training. A student from Paraguay is being arranged for. He will come to the States to get further training after which he is to return to the Paraguayan colonies to carry on leadership work there. The possibility of bringing students from other lands to America is also under consideration. It is felt that this is an excellent opportunity to give Christian training to native leaders in other lands, and at the same time a bond of fellowship can be developed through the contact with each other.

* * *

Carl Epp, recently discharged from the Puerto Rico C.P.S. unit and a native of Henderson, Nebraska, is presenting slides and lectures on Puerto Rico and the work that has been done there by the La Plata unit. He is making a tour of some of the C.P.S. camps.

* * *

A new C.P.S. publication is the "Marine Bull Pen" being issued by the Brethren Service Committee at Elgin, Illinois. This publication is for and about the sea-going cowboys who have been taking cattle across to Europe.

* * *

Bethel College and Bluffton College are planning a student exchange whereby two Bluffton students would spend a year at Bethel and two Bethel students would spend a year at Bluffton. The students must be sophomores or juniors during the exchange period to be eligible, and they must return to their own college for the senior year and graduation. The motive behind this exchange plan is to develop a closer tie between sister colleges.

* * *

"The Fate of One Man in Twenty" is the name of a pamphlet being published by the Coordinating Committee for Improving Iowa Institutions. It deals with the status and needs of Iowa State Mental Hospitals.

* * *

"The Church and Returning Conscientious Objectors" is a new pamphlet by Dr. Roy A. Burkhart. This pamphlet has been published by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in an effort to acquaint church people with the C.O. and his return upon being released. Dr. Burkhart is pastor of a church in Columbus, Ohio.

* * *

The National Opinion Research Center states that 68 per cent of the public in the United States express themselves as "willing to have meat and butter rationed again so that we could send more food to needy countries that fought on our side in the war." Twenty-nine per cent are unwilling to resume rationing. More than a third (35 per cent) of the American people believe we should send food to Germany as a gift if she cannot pay us. Thirteen per cent believe we should send no food to Germany under any conditions, 49 per cent believe we should sell Germany only what food she can pay for, 30 per cent of the public would send food as a gift to Japan, 46 per cent would sell or exchange food, 20 per cent would send none at all.

* * *

Ten thousand dollars has been given by M.C.C.-C.P.S. men for the relief of war sufferers during the four-month period of December 1 to March 31. At this rate of $2,500 per month, C.P.S. men can support the ex-C.P.S.-manned European Builder's and Transport unit (11 men) with its budget of $2,500 a month. Between 15 and 20 per cent of the five dollars per man monthly allowance is given back to relief.

* * *

The United States is 313,000 tons behind its scheduled quota of food shipments to famine areas, according to Chester C. Davis, executive chairman of the Famine Emergency Committee.

When the government ordered the requisitioning of 25 per cent of wheat at terminals for shipment abroad, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson received forty telephone calls registering protest which originated indirectly in the brewing industry which would be curtailed by the action.

Not Trivial Things

A butterfly poised on a red rose spray,
A bird's sweet song from the top of the tree,
A man intent on the work of the day,
Are never commonplace things to me.

For the glorious tints of the butterfly's wing
Were placed by an Artist supreme and fine,
And assured of His care are the birds that sing,
And noted their fall by the Eye Divine.

The tiniest flower is a thought of the God
Who planned and designed the heavens above
And the soul of that man who delves in the sod
Was bought—wth a price—by Infinite Love.

Joanna Palmer

RELIEF

Relief Unit Planned for Philippines

C. L. Graber, Relief Commissioner to the Far East, has completed his survey of relief needs on the Philippine Islands. Brother Graber recommends hat the work there be mostly medical work and emergency relief. The former will likely consist of a central hospital with several dispensaries in outying districts. In some localities there is desperate need for clothing and food; the special needs are for medium and light-weight clothing, shoes, all kinds of meat and milk. Work will most likely begin in the northern sector of Luzon Island. This area was heavily damaged during the war.

Selective Service has agreed to release to the C.P.S. Reserve ten men to serve in the Philippines; hese men must have served at least eighteen months in C.P.S. They will be used as truck drivers, mechanics, warehouse and supplies workers and as construction men.

Famine Picture in India

J. Harold Sherk, director of the M.C.C. unit in ndia, reports that there is likely to be serious disress in the area of the Steiner Mission in northern Bengal near the Tibet-Nepal border. Grain supplies are at a dangerous low and crop prospects are bad because of insufficient rainfall in the early part of the winter and now there is much damage from torms. If conditions become more acute aid will be sent to that area. Similar reports come from other parts of India; rationing now in effect in ome areas provides only subsistence diets and in other sections food from outside sources will have o be provided.

Clothing Folders Distributed

During the last few weeks the 1946 Clothing for Relief folders were mailed out to the churches in he M.C.C. constituency. These folders outline the lothing needs of the various fields and give instrucions for preparing garments, soap and shoes for hipment; there are also several pictures showing he past winter's distribution of clothing in Holland. t was our aim to get at least one copy into every ome. It is quite possible that due to wrong adresses and other unavoidable oversights some conregations may have been missed. If your church id not receive a supply of these folders we regret ery much this unintentional error, and we would ppreciate a card giving the name of your congreation, the pastor's name and the approximate umber of homes represented.

C. P. S.

hree Rivers to Close

Selective Service has officially confirmed the closing of C.P.S. No. 107, Three Rivers, California, by May 31. Many of the men who will not be discharged in the near future will be going to the camp at Camino, California. Located in the Sequoia National Park, Three Rivers camp has been in operation for three years and will be the eighth M.C.C. base camp to close since the beginning of systematic demobilization.

Service Unit Openings Announced

June 4 has been designated at the opening date for the Howard, Cleveland, and Norristown hospital voluntary service units. These summer projects are to continue for a period of three months closing on August 14. The Gulfport summer unit will open June 17, and continue until August 24. The leadership for these various groups have been announced as follows: Howard State Hospital: Clair Hoffman, C.P.S. leader; Mrs. Frances Smith, summer unit leader. Cleveland State Hospital: Paul Goering, C.P.S. leader; Mrs. Emma Rohrer and Esko Loewen, summer unit leaders. Norristown Frances Becker, summer unit leader. Gulfport, Mississippi: (Public Health) Melvin Funk, C.P.S. Director; (Mrs.) Mrytle Hertzler, women's unit leader. Applications are still being received for these several summer service projects for both men and women.

Goering Succeeded by Ediger

Erwin Goering, the general director of M.C.C.-C.P.S., left the first week in May to assume new duties in the extension division of Bethel College, North Newton, Kansas. He is being replaced by Elmer Ediger, assistant director of the C.P.S. program, who served for the last three years as educational secretary for the C.P.S. camps. Mr. Goering, who has been in the program for the last four years, has served as camp director, regional director, and more lately in the over-all administrative capacity.

Mulberry Health Unit Moves

The public health unit at Mulberry, Florida, is now in the process of being moved. Although remaining in Polk County, the unit will be located in an old army airbase near Bartow, Florida. The men will be in the vacated quarters and will have access to the recreational facilities connected with the camp plant.

New Wheat Ruling Affects Material Aid Program

In the light of recent Governmental developments indicating a desire of the United States Government to obtain all wheat anl other available grain products for foreign relief, we would recommend that our people sell to the Government any wheat or grain products which might be available, rather than contributing it to the Mennonite Central Committee. The higher amount gained by the sale of the wheat at this time could more fully be utilized in our program in the form of cash rather than the wheat products. This course appears to be advisable in view of the present regulations and will remain in effect only until new developments pertaining to the new grain crop changes this picture.

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

Chapel speakers this week were Dr. Delbert Preheim and Roland Brown. Dr. Preheim, a graduate of Freeman just recently returned from Puerto Rico, presented a vivid word picture of the conditions and needs of the island. Roland Brown, who is visiting at Freeman with his parents, Missionary and Mrs. Brown, showed films portraying the work of the C.P.S. Mental Hospital unit with which he himself is connected. From July 21 to 28 Dr. J. D. Unruh will be the special speaker at Elim Gospel Beach, Swift Current, Saskatchewan. This Beach located on the north shore of Lac Pelletier is owned and operated by the Mennonite Youth Society of Saskatchewan. It is open from June to August and provides spiritual and recreational opportunities for Canadian young people. Tuesday after school the faculty and faculty wives put on work cloths and planted potatoes for the dining hall. The co-operative effort was enjoyed and resulted in at least four distinct methods of proceedure.

BETHEL COLLEGE

The final number in the Memorial Hall Series this season was presented May third, when three experts of the University of Chicago Round Table—Louis Wirth, sociologist; Maynard C. Krueger, economist; and D. Gale Johnson, research associate in Agricultural Economics, ably discussed "America's Economic Future." Negotiations are under way for next year's series, and the securing of the Westminster Choir and Stuart Chase have already been announced. The old and new SCA Cabinet members, accompained by Dr. and Mrs. Fast and Mr. and Mrs. Esko Loewen, held a prayerful retreat at Harvey County Park on April 27-8. During the same week-end the foreign students from Tabor, Hesston, and Bethel College enjoyed an evening of fellowship on this campus. The final get-together of the year for the faculty and staff members and their families was the annual spring picinc on May 6, with 120 in attendance.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

One of the special features of the commencement program this year will be the unveiling of a bronze plaque which has engraved upon it the names of the members of the first Board of Trustees of Bluffton College, then Central Mennonite College. These men were J. A. Amstutz, J. F. Lehman, H. J. Krehbiel, J. H. Tschantz, J. W. Leatherman, Gerhard Vogt, P. C. Suter, J. C. Mehl, and P. E. Stucky. As nearly as can be determined, J. C. Hehl is the only living member of this Board. He now resides at Upland, California. Members of the families of these men are being contacte and given special invitations to be present. Th special program is to be on Saturday afternoon May 18. The names were originally engraved o the stone to the right of the entrance to Colleg Hall. However, they have been almost entirel obliterated by the elements. The plaque will b placed over this stone.

IN MEMORIAM

Howard Pierman Welty, son of Samuel A. and Fanni Pelrman Welty, was born June 11, 1915, at Lima, Ohio His mother died when he was three. Hereupon he was ta ken into the home of an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. W. V Jones. He was married to Wanda Moser, and to them wer born three children. As a farmer he specialized in cantaloup growing and marketing. He passed away of a rare illness De Vic's Disease, on February 28. At the time of his deat he was treasurer of the St. John Church, Pandora. H is survived by his wife and three children, Kay, Mona and Howard II; father; stepmother; foster mother; bro ther Richard of Ottawa, Ohio, and sister Mrs. Alvin Dunla of Cairo, Ohio.

Helena Schartner, youngest daughter of Cornelius an Eva Becker Unruh, was born January 30, 1872, in Russia In 1875 she migrated with her parents to Marion, Sout Dakota. She was baptized by Elder Friedrich Schartner In 1886 she was united in marriage with Jacob Schartner with whom she shared life for fifty-three years. When he husband died, the church, of which he was Elder, was dissolved, and she united with the Bethesda Church of which she remained a faithful member until her death on Good Friday, April 19, 1946. She is mourned by three sons, seven daughters, two sons-in-law, one-daughter-in-law, and six grandchildren.

Mrs. Emma L. Byers, wife of N. E. Byers former dea Bluffton College, died April 27, following an operation at the Community Hospital. She had been an invalid fo several years and bore this restricted life with unusual courage and Christian fortitude. She was born November 12, 1876, in Sterling Ilinois. In adition to her husband, she is survived by two sons, Floyd of Goshen, Indiana, and Robert of Lakewood, Ohio, and two grandchildren. Services were held at the First Menonite Church on April 29, conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. N. Smucker. Burial was in the Bluffton Maple Grove Cemetery.

HE WAS RICH BUT HUNGRY

(Continued from page 1)

This young man had carried a good thing to the extreme. Man has to provide for his needs. Wealth is a means, but it is not the end. The end is that kind of life which satisfies forever. This can only be found by belief in God, who is Love. He who "lives by" God in the sense of depending upon Him for ultimate support and value, will relegate possessions to the place of means and not ends. Furthermore, such a person will not determine what "he wants to be." Rather he will let God do the determining, and that will mean for him to be forever loving—and consequently forever satisfied in soul.

JOTTINGS

—Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebraska: The Freeman Junior College Choir plans to give a program on the evening of May 26. The Senior Mission Society is having its annual sale, May 30.—Mrs. R. H. Friesen, Corr —Deep Run (Pa.) Church: Thirty young people were recently received into our church through baptism. Some time ago twenty-five ladies from our Mission Society, together with a few from the Quakertown, Springfield Perkasie, and Philadelphia societies chartered a bus to Ephrata and helped out in the clothing center for one day. The group of forty women also made a short visit at the M.C.C. offices at Akron. We are looking forward to having a group from Akron visit our church on May 11, 7:30 P.M.—Mae Gross, Corr.

—The First Church of Monroe, Washington, is manifesting a great deal of interest in studying the Book of Revelations at the Wednesday night prayer meetings. On the evening of April 28 a birthday surprise was given to our pastor (George Kopper). Cake and ice-cream were served, at the close of which he gave his life story.—Eleanor Goerz, Corr.

—Goessel (Kansas) Church: A "welcome home fellowship" supper was enjoyed by all on April 22 in honor of Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Duerksen and family from India. After supper a short program was given. The Duerksen family also had a part in this. Rev. and Mrs. Duerksen each gave a short talk and also helped their children sing in the Hindu language. Rev. Duerksen gave the Sunday morning message on April 28,- -Margaret Schroeder, Corr.

—East Swamp, Quakertown, Pa.: Miss Lena Sellon, returned missionary from China and interned for three years by the Japanese was guest speaker at our morning worship service April 28, during a ten-day leave of absence of our pastor, Rev. A. H. Schultz, who is looking over the mission field of Rev. and Mrs. Abraham Unruh, our missionaries in Kentucky.—Mrs. Samual Bleam, Corr.

—First Church, Nappanee, Indiana:. On Conference Sunday, we as a church renewed our loyalty to the task that God has given us as a group of like-minded Christians. In our daily family prayers this week we remember one of the various phases of the conference work; the items were specified for each day in our bulletin. The pastor's Sunday School class gave the program last Sunday night, the theme, "With the Church Through the Centuries." Tuesday night Alfred Regier presented the Grace Children's Home of Henderson, Nebraska, to us in colored moving pictures. Friday night the public school children will give a spring program showing the results of Bible teaching in the public school. Six visitations teams will be out in the next two weeks to make our church more helpful to more people. This is a monthly project of our church.- -Mrs. Loyal Corwin, Corr.

—Eicher Emmanuel Church, near Noble, Iowa: Miss Selma Unruh, enroute to Africa as a missionary, stopped to spend Easter Day with our pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. Walter H. Regier. Dale Nebel has gone to China to do relief work with the M.C.C. Erven Graber is expecting to share in a similar service in Europe under the Friends Service Committee. A large enrollment is expected in daily vacation Bible school.—Corr.

—Upper Milford Church, Zionsville, Pa.: The yearly dinner luncheon and party of the Ladies Aid Society was held April 20. Both congregations of the charge worshiped together for a combined Easter service on Easter evening in the Allentown church.-Mrs. J. Miller, Corr.

—Zion Mennonite Church, Bridgewater, South Dakota, expects to have revival meetings and Bible school in the near future. Recently four new members were received into the church.—M. Hofer, Corr.

—St. John Church, Pandora, Ohio: Our church choir of forty-four voices presented Stainer's "Crucifixion" to a full house Easter Sunday evening. It was under the direction of Mr. Earl Lehman. Mrs. Edith Stuckey Lehman was accompanist. Marcele Reichenbach and Eugene Kohli were married in an open church wedding in St. John church on April 20.—Mrs. Josephine Moser.

—Topeka Mennoite Church, Topeka, Inliana: Our young people recently shipped four heifers under the Heifers-for-Relief project. Two of our members are at present enroute to Europe on cattle ships. Over the Easter season we received twenty new members into the church. Our church has raised over one thousand dollars for flour, and at present we aim to raise about a similar amount for processed milk for European relief. The Bluffton College Men's Gospel Team was here on the afternoon of May 5.

—The State of Pennsylvania has just issued a 175-page book in which the title "Pennsylvania's Second Year at War" is used. Considerable space is given to the discussion of what our farmers contributed to the National effort. The stand of the Historic Peace Churches—the Friends, Mennonites, and Brethren—is also reviewed, and considerable space given to the work of the C.P.S. camps and units at the various state hospitals under the title "Work of National Importance." About one-seventh of all C.O.'s in the U.S.A. are from Pennsylvania."—Brotherhood Briefs (Eastern District Conference)

—"YPSI" is the name of a book that the C.P.S. unit at Ypsilanti, Michigan, will have ready for mailing immediately after July 1. This book is especially recommended to the churches "at home" in order that the members may more fully learn of the conditions under which the Ypsilanti C.O.'s have lived for months and years. "Ministers can profit by gaining new understanding of their returning men. Libraries can offer such a book to the young people as an example of peace witnessing." The recent write-up on mental hospitals in Life magazine has given wide-spread publicity to the kind of work that such a book as "YPSI" describes.

Mrs. G. A. Linscheid
222 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

—Gospel Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: On May 4 the mission society of the Immanuel Church and the Kings Co-workers Society served a 6 o'clock dinner to the a cappella choir of the Grace Bible Institute. Dr. C. H. Suckau, President of the G.B.I., brought an inspiring message at the Sunday morning worship service. His theme was "Lifting up Christ in India." He illustrated it very effectively by relating personal experiences in India. The G.B.I. Men's Quartet served with special music.—E. Lohrenz, Corr.

—Liberal, Kansas: On April 17 the a capella choir of the Grace Bible Institute rendered a very fine program in our church. On April 26 a men's octet from the Oklahoma Bible Academy was in our midst. On April 28 a week's series of revival meetings were opened with Chaplain John Baergen of Villa Park, Illinois, as the evangelist. Brother Baergen served as chaplain in the armed forces for about three years, also performing overseas duty. His visit to the Holy Land was of great interest to all.—Mrs. V. J. Buller, Corr.

—Emmanuel Church, Galva, Kansas: Rev. Garman Wedel, who has served our church as pastor for the past three years, was re-elected, and he has consented to serve us for three more years. The parsonage in Moundridge is nearing completion. It is hoped that the Wedels can move in during this month. This will enable them to live closer to their flock. Members of the church have been working on the parsonage. In March we had a fellowship dinner of welcome in honor of Alvin Jantz, who was in C.P.S. the past four years, and Irvin Ratzlaff, husband of one of our sisters. On April 14 we were greatly blessed by Dr. Ed. G. Kaufman's presence with us both morning and afternoon. He spoke on "Missions" during the morning service and on "Home and Marriage" in the afternoon. That evening the choir gave the cantata "Hosanna" by Nolte. The Hopefield C. E. gave us a return program April 28.—Marie Wedel, Corr.

—Bessie, Oklahoma: The Go Ye Daily Vacation Bible School Association plans to conduct Bible school in eight schools this spring. Eighteen teachers have pledged their service, and sufficient teaching material has been ordered to take care of 220 pupils. Three teachers will be needed in some of the schools. May 20 has been set as the opening date. On May 11 a workshop for the teachers is to be conducted in the Corn Bible Academy. The executive committee of the Association consists of the pastors and Sunday School superintendents of the Herold, Sichar, and the Bessie M. B. Church. Rev. Menno Kliewer is chairman, and Rev. C. B. Friesen is school supervisor.

—Nearly three thousand people gathered in Memorial Hall on the Bethel College Campus Sunlay, May 5, to enjoy the Mennonite Song Festival. Mr. Jacob Bartel, presided. Sixteen church choirs participated in the festival during the afternoon. The evening program was opened with audience singing, directed by Mr. G. F. Friesen of Lehigh. "O Holy Savior, Friend Unseen," was sung in memory of Mr. Paul G. Baumgartner. Mr. Baumgartner was a great promoter of church music and was responsible for organizing the Mennonite Song Festival seventeen years ago. A mass choir of about two hundred voices gave the evening program. They sang twelve anthems, including "My God and I," "The Hallelujah Chorus," "The Heavens are Telling" and others. The evening program was closed with the audience joining in the singing of "Day is Dying in the West." At the business meeting held during the course of the afternoon Mr. Robert Senner of Buhler was elected to serve as president for the next two years. Mr. Arthur Banman of Goessel was elected to serve as treasurer for the same length of time. The Women's Association served a lunch to a great number of people during the intermission hours.—Elizabeth W. Nickel, Secretary

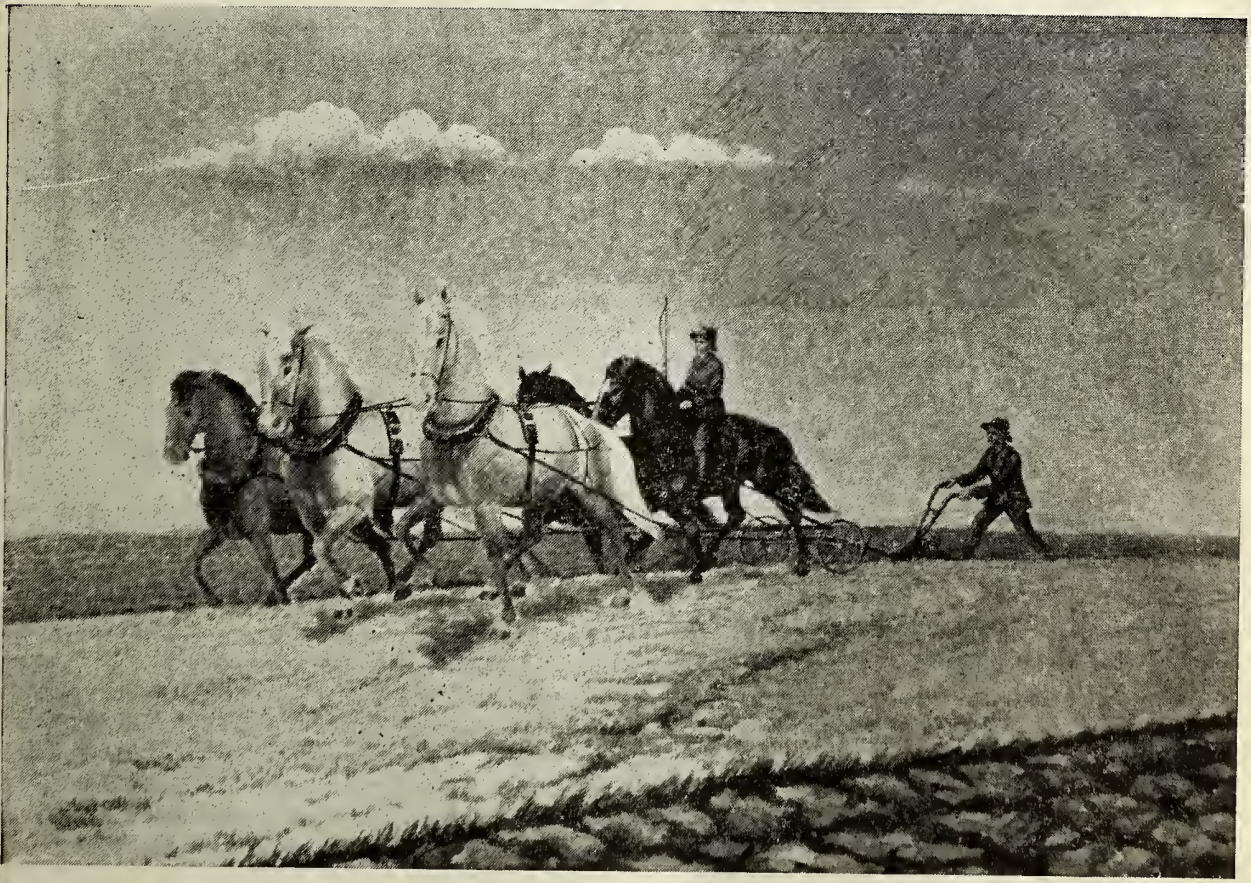
APRIL BUSY MONTH FOR NEWTON CLOTHING CENTER

April was another month full of activity. However, not quite as many packages of clothing came in as in previous months. This made it possible for the workers to unpack all incoming parcels (six tons of clothing, shoes, and soap) besides many others which had been waiting for some time. Over seven tons of clothing were packed and pressed into 140 bales. One hundred forty-four cases, containing 6,600 pounds of soap, mostly home-made, and thirty-six boxes of shoes, 2,628, were packed during the month. About 1,500 pounds of the soap were made, donated, and packed by a group that had earlier done meat canning for relief.

Among the 105 volunteer workers were students from Hesston College and Bethel College. When a group of young people get together for a morning or an afternoon of packing soap (a very scarce and valuable article in so many European countries) the otherwise tedious task becomes enjoyable. A group of six girls from the Amish community near Partridge spent a day with us helping with the labelling, packing, and mending. We marvel at the number of people who are willing to help with the repair work here, but we are very grateful for the increasing number of shipments that arrive ready to be repacked. It is wonderful what can be done if all work together and each one does his or her task. "In the Name of Christ."—Selma Linscheid

The Mennonite

Volume 61 — May 21, 1946 — Number 21



Painting by J. P. Klassen, Bluffton College. Cut, Courtesy Mennonite Life

Farming for God

Farming for God makes possible a much deeper and greater satisfaction than merely farming for money. True the farmer needs to make a livelihood. That is very important. However, a livelihood is not the end of life. It may be for the beasts of the earth but it is not for man, created in the image of God. Man's life is for a purpose, and as he senses that he is doing the will of God, he experiences one of the deepest satisfactions knowable to man.

Under God, farming becomes a Christian ministry of producing food for human beings who must have it to survive. Perhaps, this essential ministry became somewhat cheapened in America in past years, when we, because of our highly developed methods, were able to create a prodigious abundance of food and then failed in getting it to those who needed it most. Today with our knowledge of one-half billion people facing starvation, the idea of farming as an essential Christian ministry is more readily understood. It ought to remind us that as long as human beings must eat to live, the production of foodstuffs must be under God an essential Christian ministry. As such it can be an immense satisfaction to the Christian who engages in this vocation and an inestimable blessing to those affected by it.

Farm work at its best is love for God and man made visible and effective. At its best it is a clear and distinct witness of God. Is it not possible that farming can be just as Christian an activity for the man who has been called of God to farm as preaching is for the minister? And may not the rewards be equally great?

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point-of-view:

SORROW fills our hearts when loved ones die. On Memorial Day many a person will again be deeply conscious of precious lives once lived in a physical body. No longer are they with us as they once were. How shall we bear the death of loved ones? In this issue we present a deep-going article on this subject which is of such vital concern to those who know the sorrow of death.

RURAL LIFE SUNDAY, which is to be commemorated on May 26 this year, is of particular significance to the Mennonites, who as a people are so largely rural. The folder for this year's observance describes the purpose of the day as follows: "Rural Life Sunday is a day set apart for emphasizing the meaning of Christianity for rural life; for the invocation of God's blessing upon the seed, the fruits of the soil, and the cultivators of the earth, and for the consideration of justice for agriculture and the spiritual values of rural life." It is suggested that country and city pastors might exchange pulpits for the day. Members of our churches may gain new insights and appreciations by observing Rural Life Sunday.

THE ASCENDED CHRIST is the indwelling Christ of believers everywhere. Once a limited number had the privilege of seeing the expressions on his face, of hearing his words, and of witnessing his healing power. Today nearly two thousand years later, many all over the globe have the privilege of knowing in their hearts the ascended Christ—ascended over time and space—who always was and always will be. What a wonderful fact that there is an ascended Christ whom men of all races and portions of the globe can know in the depths of their beings! But first they must be given a chance to learn to know him. Ascension Day reminds us of a great privilege and of a great responsibility as well.

VICTORY OVER RESENTMENTS is a great aid to peace of mind, effectiveness in one's constructive efforts and enriching human relationships. It seems that resentments are very often due to a basic sense of insecurity. Man faces the necessity of survival. His chances of full and happy survival seem threatened every time that he becomes painfully aware of not being "the master of the situation." Whenever another human being behaves in a way that is displeasing to him, his mastery over the situation is challenged. He wanted this other person to behave in a certain way and now he hasn't. What can be done about it? The inability to find a ready means to bring about the desired behaviour in the other individual seems to drive the human being into a resentment. He feels angry. Very likely fear underlies this anger. The problem is too difficult for him. He very much wants to solve it, but doesn't know how. For he does not have a clear enough understanding of how the other person works. Once he can understand why the other person behaved as he did, why he had to do as he did, then that misbehaving person becomes to him like a car that doesn't work but whose trouble he has already diagnosed so well that he knows how to fix it. A clear and deep understanding of a person who provokes a resentment in one, is one of the surest ways to victory over resentment. However, to understand others well, it means that we continually must put ourselves in the place of others until we can pretty well think and feel what they think and feel. It means a lot of loving. Furthermore, it takes a lot of self knowledge. We can hardly learn to know others until we learn to know ourselves. To know ourselves we must bring to the open all of our negative feelings and face them. This develops understanding of ourselves and consequently of others. However, when we just simply can't understand the person who provokes resentment in us, we can try another approach, and that is to overcome evil with good. Right actions towards the resented one may eventually lead to more loving feelings. But the attempt towards understanding is primary. Such an attempt undoubtedly leads most people of deep spiritual experience to the conclusion that misbehaving people behave as they do because they lack an experience of sufficient grace. With such a diagnosis the next step of being loving to a misbehaving person comes much easier. Victory over resentments seems to depend to a very large extent on an understanding of why human beings do as they do.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorised Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchange to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON KANSAS

The Valley of Weeping

by Mrs. Eva Harshbarger

"The world crashes at your feet," a widow observed concerning her bereavement. "Everything changes—your social life, your economic life, your personal life—everything!" In spite of the cataclysmic changes which bereavement brings, few are prepared for it. Margery Bianco writes, "Death should be treated naturally. You don't have to educate children about death. Speak of it as a natural occurrence and they will do the same." This is excellent advice—the difficulty lies in following it. Fears and strong taboos surround the discussion of death. Old age and long illnesses prepare some; others forever fear it. A recent news article stated that a wellknown octegenarian publisher refuses to allow anyone to speak of death in his presence. To almost everyone, regardless of the age at which it is experienced, the first real experience of bereavement comes as a great emotional shock.

Many have come through bereavement with stronger, more mature characters by the grace of God and their own healthful attitude about life. Too frequently, however, it is through a long drawnout agonizing, blundering process which may end in defeat rather than victory. It is the duty of those who have won through to peace to help others by sharing their experiences.

Bereavement is universal. Twenty-five percent of all American marriages are in a widowed state at one time. One in every thirteen people of marriageable age are widowed. Two families every minute are broken by death. "Death—for me today; for you tomorrow," says an old Latin proverb. The knowledge of the universality of grief may itself temper anquish. Shand, in The Foundations of Character, gives as one of the laws of sorrow: Sorrow tends to be diminished by the perception of sorrow around us and in some, though in a lesser degree, by the knowledge of such suffering. "Misery loves company" runs the old adage. Edith Lovejoy Pierce expresses it beautifully:

> There is a close companionship of pain,
> There is a clinging brotherhood of woe,
> That children of success may never know,
> That darlings of the world may never gain.
>
> There lies in misery a subtle tie,
> Only the broken hearted understand,
> Look feeds on look, hand waits for trembling hand,
> Unnoticed by the careless passerby.

It is a healthful thing to know that one has not been singled out for sorrow. To know that he is not the first nor will be the last to feel the anguish of bereavement may serve as a wedge to break down the self absorption from which the bereaved must be freed if he is to be healed.

Shand has formulated other principles of sorrow. In simplified outline they are as follows: Sorrow strives to maintain remembrances and to restore relationships with the loved one. Intensity of emotion is proportioned to the degree with which it contrasts with preceding or accompanying states—Tennyson says, "A sorrow's crown of sorrow is remembering happier things." Sorrow tends to be diminished in effect if other sorrow has been experienced recently or frequently. Sudden and unexpected sorrow tends to be stronger and more shocking than long expected sorrow. Secret sorrow is more painful than expressed sorrow; however uncontrolled sorrow becomes ever more intense as it is given free rein. Sorrow is intensified by feelings of remorse for having failed the deceased.

Shand classifies sorrow as follows: (1) frenzied mourning, (2) tearless and mute grief, (3) sorrow with a paralyzing action (4) activity approaching frenzy, such as rebellious cursing against fate. The bereaved one reacts according to his temperament, his former habits of adjustment, his physical energy, and his philosophy of life.

Bereavement commonly manifests itself first in a numbness in which adjustment faculties seem paralyzed. That this truth is generally recognized is evidenced by the way in which the community contributes labor and food during the first days of bereavement. This period of emotional numbness may last for months. Unfortunately for the bereaved one, his most difficult period of adjustment may come after he is no longer the center of attention and concern which the crisis evoked. He enters a period of severe conflict. He knows that he has lost a loved one, but his heart refuses to accept the awful fact. Waller expresses it thus: "One sees through a haze of unreality, one knows, yet does not know, until finally the meaning of death breaks through the mental dikes and floods the mind with sorrow. Nothing can make the individual realize his loss, yet everything reminds him of it." As he goes about his work, or more agonizingly yet, as he lies sleepless on his lonely bed, flashes of memory make his loss more vivid. If he falls asleep, dreams of the loved one may make him restless. Painful as these experiences are, they are part of the adjustment process, for they enable the bereaved one to accept in piece-meal fashion the devastating experience which his organism cannot handle all at once.

Other conflicts may distress him. He both despairs his loss and craves what is no longer his. He feels self-pity but censures himself for it. He may wish to substitute a new love object to relieve his pain but may accuse himself of inconstancy because of the desire. New economic advantages as an heir may please him, but he may fear being and appearing mercenary. He feels a strong desire to cling to mementoes but also has an urge to get away from associations which evoke painful memories. Grief may be augmented by memories of having failed or injured the departed. Society puts demands on the mourner, but his inclinations are to withdraw—to be alone with his grief because that is the only thing he has been able to retain of his beloved. Well-meaning friends by thoughtless, curious gossip may add to the problems of the widowed by denying him or her the solace of even the most casual of friendships with persons of the opposite sex.

Bereavement is a frustration of former habits and activities and is therefore painful. A little boy was weeping bitterly over the loss of his grandmother. His parents explained to him gently that he shouldn't weep for grandmother—she was now safe in the arms of Jesus. To which he replied with childlike truthfulness: "It isn't grandma I'm crying for—it's me! I can't go to her house any more." Even grown-ups sometimes grieve self-centeredly for those for whom death has come as a blessed release.

But the emotional catharsis of mourning is necessary for the recovery of the mourner. Those who are too brave, who inhibit their grief too severely, may be breeding future trouble which may manifest itself in the form of maladjustments, neuroses and physical ailments years later. We wrong the mourner when we attempt to distract him from his sorrow too soon and too thoroughly. He needs to talk and to weep out his loss at the time of his sorrow.

"To me alone there came a thought of grief.
A timely utterance gave that thought relief
And I again am strong."

Perhaps we praise the brave person from the same motives which cause us to praise the "good" little boy—he is so little trouble to us—he doesn't embarrass us by any public display of problems. Ironically, the person who puts on a "brave front"—who has tried hard to live up to the faith and pride which the loved one had had in him, may be rewarded by the suspicion, as was Cornelia Parker in An American Idyll, of not caring very much. "You know, I am surprised that you haven't taken Carl's death harder. You seem just the same exactly." To which Mrs. Parker replies heart-brokenly: "What is seeming? Time and again, these months, I have thought, what do any of us know about what another person feels! A smile—a laugh—I used to think of course they stood for happiness. There can be many smiles, and much laughter, and it means—nothing. But surely anything is kinder for a friend to see than tears."

After catharsis must come acceptance if there is to be peace of mind. The Voice said to Paul on the road to Damascus, "It is hard for thee to kick against the pricks." For a Christian, bereavement should be much less tragic than for an unbeliever. Not only has he hope for reunion in a better world, but he has faith in a divine purpose. It is more heart-warming to submit to a Divine Will than to bow one's head stoically to "the bludgeonings of chance." Emotional balance is more easily maintained if one believes in a Divine Reason even though his own little finite mind has been stunned by the mystery of the disaster which has befallen him. Mental hospitals are filled with people who found no meaning or purpose in life. Tensions are relaxed if one can "let go and let God."

The mourner may resent the demands which life again puts on him—for life has a way of taking one up again. The needs of the children, the exigencies of daily living, interrupt his grieving and call him back to activity. Let him be thankful for the blessing of work. It has a distracting and therapeutic value. More than one mourner has said, "I would lose my mind if it weren't for my work." In work, a familiar pattern is retained when many other patterns are lost. If his work is of a kind in which he can lose himself in service to others, he is twice blessed. As a sort of divine compensation his very sorrow may increase his kindliness, sympathy, and sensitivity. To use sorrow for growth is the fulfilment of acceptance. Jesus not only bore his cross but He used it for redemptive purposes. There is a Greek myth of a mother, who, in grief over a lost son, melted into tears to form the Fountain of Pyrene which served as a source of refreshment to all passersby. In Psalm 84 we read: "Blessed is the man whose strength is in Thee; in whose heart are the ways of them. Who passing through the Valley of Weeping make it a well; the rain also filleth the pools. They

(Continued on page 6)

Mrs. Eva Harshbarger is Dean of Women at Bethel College and also teaches child guidance and family courses. She is the mother of two boys of high school age. Her husband Dr. E. L. Harshbarger, former head of the social science division at Bethel College, died in 1942 after a severe illness.

The Story of a Small Country Church

by Menno H. Kliewer

Three miles east and two miles north of Cordell, Oklahoma, there stands a small country church whose membership had the privilege of commmenmorating the fiftieth anniversay of this church April 14, 1946. The founders were some of the first white settlers of this community, which has grown to be a large Mennonite settlement.

The first settlers of this community came here in the fall of 1889, when Rev. J. J. Kliewer, a missionary among the Indians, and his brother Henry settled at the location which later became known as Shelley. There, of course, was nothing but prairie, timber, and Indians when they came here. By Christmas of that same year they had become somewhat settled, having built a crude house of cotton wood logs covered with sod. For Christmas an addition of canvas was built on to the mission house and a Christmas program was arranged for. Sixty Indians were present at this first Christmas celebration.

The next group of settlers arrived in 1892. The Cornelious F. Duerksen family came during the summer, and on September 13 the Rev. Peter Pankratz and J. Gaeddert families arrived. The Henry Warkentin and Cornelious Dalke families, having lost their way, arrived five days later.

The early years were exceedingly difficult. The people who came were poor, and the land had to be broken before crops could be raised. With the limited tools and horses that they had, this was a slow process. Then too they had droughts, cattle rustlers, and prairie fires to contend with. Some of the families ground their own kaffir corn for flour and cooked watermelons for something sweetening. One family had nothing but pumpkin to eat for a period of eight days. If it had not been for the help of some churches in Kansas and Nebraska, who sent some wheat, clothing, and money, one wonders what might have been the fate of some of these destitute people.

With hard work, thrift, and the Help of God conditions in the settlement improved. More land was broken up. The rains came, and some years the crops brought abundant reward for labor spent. As time went by more settlers came and the community grew. A report states that for the Christmas program in 1895, two hundred Indians and about that many white people were present.

The people of the community were mindful of their spiritual needs and soon arranged for spiritual fellowship. On August 24, 1894, the group organized the Bergthal church with the help of Rev. Dietrich Gaeddert of Kansas, and Rev. Peter Pankratz as minister. For eighteen months they worshipped together as the Bergthal Church. Because of the scattered homesteads a group withdrew and organized as the Sichar Mennonite Church on April 14, 1896. Remarkable was the interest which the people took in the affairs of the church in those days. People walked as far as seven and one half miles for church services and singing school. A young lady candidate for baptism was taken by rowboat across the river, which was at flood stage, in order to be presented at the services. Religious services were not always without event. In one instance when the group had gathered for a mission sale on a Thanksgiving, they were compelled to go home before it was over. Someone had set fire to some grass two miles away for the purpose of disturbing the meeting, and a number of people had to rush home to save their property from the ravages of the prairie fire.

Brethren who have served in the ministry of the Sichar Church are: Rev. Peter Pankratz, April 14, 1896-1909; Rev. Micheal Klassen 1896-1899; Rev. A. W. Froese 1907-1911; Rev. Henry D. Schmidt 1911-1929; Dr. John H. Harms 1920-1941; Rev. Albert G. Schmidt 1931-1935 also 1937-1938; Rev. Menno H. Kliewer 1931-. Brethren serving as Deacons are the following: Peter Quiring and Jacob Janzen 1896-1899; Andrew Ewert 1900-1903; John W. Schmidt 1908-1935; W. T. Schmidt and Andrew O. Holliman 1944-.

As we look at the history of the church the picture of a mountain spring comes to us. The spring has been trickling down the mountainside these fifty years. It has never accumulated a vast amount of water for the membership today stands at only eighty-seven members, and a number of them at distant places, yet in spite of adversities that have come, the spring continues to trickle down the mountainside into the valley below. As the stream has been flowing on evidences of it's life-giving qualities have been seen at the source of the stream and also as it flowed on to the valley below, for the influence of it's members has gone far and wide. From her ranks have come, ministers, teachers, professors, physicians, an attorney, farmers, housewives, and laborers in all walks of life.

May the mountain spring continue to flow and may it continue to show forth of its life-giving qualities. May the word of the Lord Jesus be fulfilled

---

Menno Kliewer, who has now resigned his pastorate of the Sichar Church, Cordell, Oklahoma, and accepted a call from the Mennonite community at Caldwell, Idaho, served the Sichar Church as evangelist from 1931-35 and as pastor from 1935 on.

in her when he said "He that believeth on me as the scripture hath said, out of his belly (heart and soul) shall flow rivers of living water" John 7:38. By a country preacher.

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

Dutch Mission Field at Java. The only surviving missionary of the Dutch Mennonite mission field, Rev. Amstuz, a Swiss Mennonite, has reported to his mission board at Amsterdam. It is a story of horror. Rev. C. Nijdam, a member of the Mission Board and Chairman of the Conference, concludes this report in de Noodbrug: "Only the love of Jesus Christ can be the foundation for peace and justice between nations. This report from the mission field cannot change our conviction in this matter but only strengthen it. May the future years increase our conviction."

Dutch and American Mennonites Meet. Dr. ter Muelen, Librarian of the Peace Palace at the Hague and an active Mennonite pacifist, was host to the M.C.C. workers in Holland. First they attended the Mennonite church service on Sunday morning and then they had a luncheon in the Peace Palace. Peter Dyck, Elma Esau and others reported on the Mennonites in America and answered the questions asked by some of the fifty Dutch Mennonites present.

A Biography of an Outstanding Mennonite Leader has just been completed in Der Bote where it appeared in installments. As a young man Rev. J. A. Rempel went from South Russia to Switzerland to study theology and related subjects. After his return he soon became one of the outstanding figures of Russian Mennonitism. In 1925 he was the only Russian Mennonite delegate to receive permission to attend the first Mennonite World Conference. However, since Switzerland and Russia had no diplomatic relations he was not admitted into Switzerland. Upon his return to Russia his suffering began. He had to decide whether to continue to serve Christ or fall in line with the materialistic Marxian philosophy. He remained loyal to Christ and was soon exiled to do slave labor. Many years of suffering and agony followed, returning home occasionally and being sent away again. It is assumed that he was shot during this war.

Just Across the Border. More than four hundred Mennonites formerly from Russia, have been admitted to Holland and more than five hundred are just across the border waiting for admission which is not being granted. One transport of 314 persons that arrived coming from Munich was sent back again to Munich which is in the American zone. It has been announced everywhere that the Mennonites should not come to the Dutch border. Why not? Because of "agreements" with the Russians and for fear of the Russians. Why do they come in spite of these warnings? Because of disagreement with Communism and for fear of being sent to Siberia, something which is happening daily.

DEDICATE TORONTO MISSION CHAPEL

The Toronto United Mennonite Mission, 140 Victor Avenue, Toronto 6, Ontario, dedicated its new mission chapel on May 19, with Rev. Jacob H. Janzen of Waterloo, Rev. N. N. Driedger of Leamington, and Rev. John Wichert of Vineland, as guest speakers. Many friends have helped by their prayers and financial aid to make this chapel possible. And the committee in charge, through Rev. Arnold A. Fast, herewith expresses its appreciation.

THE VALLEY OF WEEPING

(Continued from page 4)

go from strength to strength." Of their grief they make a cool refreshing fountain of sympathetic love for wayfarers.

If we can come finally to the point of thanking God for all experiences, no matter how painful, which have made us more sensitive, responsive servants, we have learned the price and the glory of discipleship. Some truths we learn, seemingly, only through suffering. As Kirkegaard says, "The vagabond traveler who travels lightly along the way does not, in this fashion, learn to know it as well as the way-farer with a heavy burden." To learn life in its completeness, we must both love and lose. "Sorrow," wrote a friend is the price we pay for the beautiful relationships we are permitted to know in this life. We would not want it any other way.

"God was good to us when He determined the order of life and allowed us to live with each other on the basis of personal affection. And that must mean sorrow when separation comes." "Many," said another, "are carrying on with the courage, strength, and cheer born of having loved and been loved and so knowing the fulness which life can hold."

"The Lord saved Job," says Thomas Elliott, "when he began to pray for his friends." "If upon advice, insight or spontaneous response, a person afflicted by a life crisis feels under sincere compulsion to help others, his distraction from egoistic anxieties, his shift to a larger unity in which he participates, will free him from the burden he bears—even though that burden be an Old Man of the Sea with seven devils." He who would save his life must lose it.

(All Foreign Missions correspondence should be sent to Rev. Howard Nyce, 1528 Chew Street, Allentown, Pa.)

Wide Wide as the Ocean

By Hilda and Herbert Dester

After sailing many days and seeing nothing but water, one can appreciate the chorus, "Wide wide as the ocean—is His love." In looking back after spending about eighteen years in India, we say with much assurance, "Underneath are the everlasting arms."

In October, 1927, we sailed from New York for India. Since then our time has been spent largely in Jagdeeshpur. In part, at least, we have learned to know the people and their language. We have traveled from Rawalpindi in the north to Madura in the south, crossed rivers and mountains, have seen tiger, panther, bear, and other wild animals of the jungle. We have experienced heat and cold, have traveled first class, usually inter or third class; or was it fourth or fifth? We have dined with rajas and with the lowly, sometimes under circumstances where taking food was anything but appetizing. We have seen souls born into the kingdom, and have seen such turn and deny the God of our Lord Jesus Christ. The Lord has led us and kept us so that we say with Thomas, "My Lord and my God."

At this writing, March 7, 1946, we are just leaving the last light house of Ceylon behind, sailing on the Liberty Ship, Florence Martus. They promise to take us from Calcutta to New York in about forty days. Whether sitting on deck, or in our very comfortable cabin, our thoughts turn back to the land of our adoption, a land which, with its people, we have learned to love and appreciate. As we look forward to entering America our prayer is that the Lord bless our "coming in" as he has our "going out."

As we thus meditate, we feel burdened with the obligation and privilege of sharing with you the things of the Kingdom, the work which you have been sponsoring in India. You have a right to ask an account of our stewardship. In this respect we wish to touch on several phases of the work in which we have had a part during the years 1927 to 1946.

Christ said, "I will build my church." It is our prayer that as pastor and pastor's wife we may have contributed somewhat to the building of this His church, that the eighty or more baptized during the four years of our pastorate may truly have come into the glorious light of His gospel, that Bethel Church, Jagdeeshpur, may increasingly be a light, that it may quickly become self-supporting, self-propagating, and may soon be shepherded by its own Indian pastor. The church has grown and has accomplished much; there remains much to be done.

Not only have we had a part in building character but also in erecting some of the buildings of the station. Ours has been the major responsibility in building the new church, doctor's house, eight buildings which serve as wards, twelve or thirteen buildings which serve as workers homes, and four or five buildings in connection with the school. We have made many mistakes. We learn as we go. Experience is a good teacher, sometimes costly.

Christ came that men might have life. As ministers of the gospel of life, light, and truth, we have endeavored, in a small way, to help men experience a more aboundant life. Where we have seen filth, dirt, and poverty, we have tried to show a better way Where money lenders have taken 50 to 100 percent or more interest, we have tried to make funds available to those in need. Among other things, weaving, masonry, carpentry, and other handicraft have been taught. In supervisiong weaving, Mrs. Dester has made some real contributions toward a more abundant life. The products of the Jagdeeshpur looms have gone to many parts of India and beyond. Many seeds and plants have been distributed. Better gardens, vegetables, chickens, and lifestock have been demonstrated. These did not only contribute to our abundant living, but also to many hospital patients and others of our community.

Mrs. Burkhard built well in the beginnings of school work in Phuljarh. In taking over this work from her, Mrs. Dester did much in supervising and shaping the educational work and policy the next twelve years. A strong emphasis was placed on industrial work, gardening, sewing, spinning, and weaving. Many young mothers and some fathers have expressed their appreciation to her for having learned to sew.

Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Dester have been missionaries to India since 1927, when Dr. Dester completed his medical interneship in St. Louis. Dr. Dester was born near Halstead, Kansas, and Mrs. Dester is the former Hilda Ruesser of Berne, Indianna.

By virtue of our assigned task and calling, our work has been directed largely towards the healing of the sick. Preceeding us, Mrs. Moyer and Rev. P.J. Wiens did real constructive medical work. Our beginning was in a store house. Four rooms and the verandah of this building were used as a dispensary. The mud floors received their regular cow dung wash, and served the purpose, although not too well.

In 1931 the new hospital was dedicated. As needed, wards and more wards were built. We thank God for sending Dr. Samuel and his wife, Dr. Sosama Samuel, to assist in the work and now assume responsibility in our absence, assisted by Miss Schrag, Mrs. Ratzlaff, and the other nurses and compounders.

Figures and statistics never tell the entire story and are not always interesting, yet they give part of the picture. In 1930 we had 90 hospital patients, 3,700 dispensary patients. In 1945 there were 1,633 hospital and 9,000 dispensary patients. In the years 1930 to 1945, inclusive, there were about 13,000 hospital patients, 80,500 outpatients, 5,830 operations, of which 900 were cataract. In 1930 the income fees was about $300.00, in 1945 approximately $6,000.00. These figures reveal a mere beginning. In all phases of the work mentioned above, that which has been done is as a "drop in the bucket." Much more should have been done. There is yet "much land to be possessed."

Christ was asked, "What must we do to work the works of God?" The spiritual implications of this question might be summed up in answering, prayer, faith, charity, works. Knowing full well that these are necessary and fundamental in the building of His Kingdom, I list some of the more material needs, which, backed by prayer, faith, charity, and works, may contribute greatly in the tasks before us.

Some Needs:

1. Funds for the support of the doctors.
2. During much of the time we spent in India there has been no trained nurse to help. Pray with us that there may always be capable women (and men) for these posts.
3. Another hospital building at least as large as the present building is needed. The past two years we added several temporary rooms. To accommodate the increasing number of patients the next improvement should be another building.
4. District medical unit. When we started work in Phuljarh it was the thought and wish of our conference that much of my time be spent in itinerary medical work. One reason not more of this type of work was done is because of poor roads. We have hopes that our road from Jagdeeshpur to the highway five miles away, will soon be improved, so that district work of this type may more readily be done. In this way teaching, preaching, healing, preventive medicine, and health propoganda may be carried to the more remote villages. I have visions of such a medical unit including: (a) An automobile, station wagon type, which can also be used as an ambulance and for our work in general. (b) A trailer. Being ninety miles from our shopping center, transportation is no small problem. (c) Some medical equipment for this unit.
5. Refrigerator.
6. Miscellaneous equipment, instruments, instrument tables and cabinets, operating table, carrier, stretchers, convalescent chair, etc.
7. X-Ray
8. Equipment for physiotherapy.

In 1945 the hospital income from budget and fees, was some over $7000.00. This was used for the general running expenses of the institution, medicines, salaries of Indian doctors and workers, and also some for equipment and building. Much in the line of treatment and care had to be left undone. Not much penicillin could be given. Very little could be done in providing food and vitamins.

Lady Twynam, wife of H. E., the governor of C. P. and Berar, recently visited our station. In regard to the hospital she wrote, "It (the hospital) is an important part of the mission work, and the people in the surrounding villages must find it a great benefit. The increase in the numbers of the patients in the last few years is proof of this.—Funds are needed to improve the wards. Proper beds and a few articles of furniture would add to the comforts of the patients. Dr. Dester and his staff are doing great work with the minimum of equipment, and I hope they get the help they deserve so that improvements can be made in the near future."

"Wide wide as the ocean,—is His love." God's plan for our lives is not a narrow or limited one. "Life more abundantly" is His wish for us and for all. He called and ordained us that we might bring forth fruit. We are bold in presenting this "Ministry of healing" as an "integral part of the gospel message" and it is our firm belief that the fruit of this ministry is good and abiding.

Post Script:

April 10, 1946. It is with mingled feelings that we set foot today on American soil, after being gone just nine and a half years. We sailed from Quebec October 10, 1936. We arrived in the New York harbor about midnight last night, and were through customs by three o'clock.—H. E. Dester

---

HEADQUARTERS OFFICE CORNER

Mr. John W. Unruh, Route 2, Newton, Kansas, member of the Alexanderwohl Church, has been appointed by the officers of General Conference to the Board of Trustees in the place of Mr. Paul Baumgartner, deceased.—Walter H. Dyck, Executive Secretary.

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Vice President
Verney Unruh
Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

Aspects of Nurses Training

By Students of Bethel Deaconess School of Nursing

Comes off-duty hours—and our happy thoughts wend recreation-ward (if some insisting thought of study or a hair shampoo doesn't dim the bright outlook). Should the individuals have a free conscience there are varied activities from which to choose. The most popular now are probably shuffleboard and tennis. Courts are conveniently located right south of the Sarepta. Too strenuous, you say? How would you like ping pong, checkers, cameron, piano playing, working puzzles in the recreation room; or to pick up some crocheting and meander to the comfortably furnished social room where one is always sure to find a group listening to the radio. Winter affords sled riding also and summer—class picnics.

(Editor's note: This issue of Mennonite Youth is devoted to the Student Nurses, a group of young people about whom we do not hear much but who perform a service and enjoy a fellowship together which deserves our appreciation and praise. A visit to Serepta Nurses Home quickly reveals that the student nurses have a rich Christian fellowship which will be a fond memory throughout their lives. In this issue we are becoming better acquainted with them. The nurses planned, wrote and edited the material. The committee in charge of this work was Rosella Regier, Esther Wiebe, Rosa Bartel and Ruth L. Schmidt.)

When you hear some laughter and a constant hum of voices coming from a room, it's a safe bet to guess that there's a popcorn-coke party in progress, or a group consuming some "loot" from home.

Drop in on us this Wednesday evening. You will find the Sisters and students gathered in the chapel for an hour of fun and relaxation. Here's where we're really kept in stitches. Each one has brought hose darning (a branch of nurse's training!), embroidery, or such. Occasionally we have home talent, more frequently the evening has a more cultural aspect—chorus concerts, chalk talks, educational films. But this evening we ask you to be our imaginary guests in order that we may introduce some facts that are "true to life" at Bethel. (Rosalie Eck)

Our History and Purpose

Serepta Nurse's Home

May I present the Bethel Deaconess Hospital and school of Nursing! About fifty wears ago a faithful servant of God, Rev. David Goertz, advocated Deaconess work as a branch of home missions. He presented a paper on this subject in 1890 during the convention of the General Conference of Mennonites in South Dakota. At this same time a young Mennonite girl (later known as Sister Frieda), who had been under the influence of Lutheran Deaconesses during early childhood, was developing a growing interest in becoming a deaconess. God does move in mysterious ways His wonders to perform. Step by step He directed the interests of mission-minded people until in 1908 on June 11, the Bethel Deaconess Hospital was dedicated to the Lord. On the same day the first three deaconesses were ordained and installed into full service.

In the charter we read that one of the purposes of the Bethel Deaconess Home and Hospital Society is the "establishment and maintaining of a training school to educate and train nurses and deaconesses in a hospital to be erected for that purpose in connection with said school." Three hundred young women have entered this school of nursing since June 11, 1908. (Some have not finished their course in order that they might hasten on to other fields of service.) It is a privilege to have a share in this work in providing opportunity for students to prepare for the field of service into which God is calling them. At present we are thirty Sisters. We have a number of vacancies in our institution and extend an invitation to young women to unite with us in this branch of service. (Sister Lena Mae Smith.)

Our Alumnae

Through its alumnae, the influence of Bethel Deaconess Hospital has extended far beyond the confines of the hospital walls. One hundred sixty-six graduate nurses have gone forth from the Bethel Deaconess Hospital Training School in classes numbering from one to sixteen members. A brief survey shows them serving in many capacities both here and abroad.

Seventeen have gone to the foreign mission field of which number five have gone to China, four to Africa, four to India, two to South America, and one to Belgium. Two are engaged in city mission work and one in Jewish Mission. One serves in migrant work and two in foreign relief. Three serve in C.P.S. camps at home and two with the unit in Puerto Rico. As superintendent or assistant superintendent of hospitals we find five of our number. Two are school nurses, nine work in a clinic or doctor's office, two are overseas as Red Cross Nurses, and two serve as hospital anesthetists. Engaged in some type of hospital work or private duty nursing are seventy-four of which twenty-three are deaconesses. Seventy-one are married; nineteen have married ministers and three, doctors. Others are engaged in caring for families.

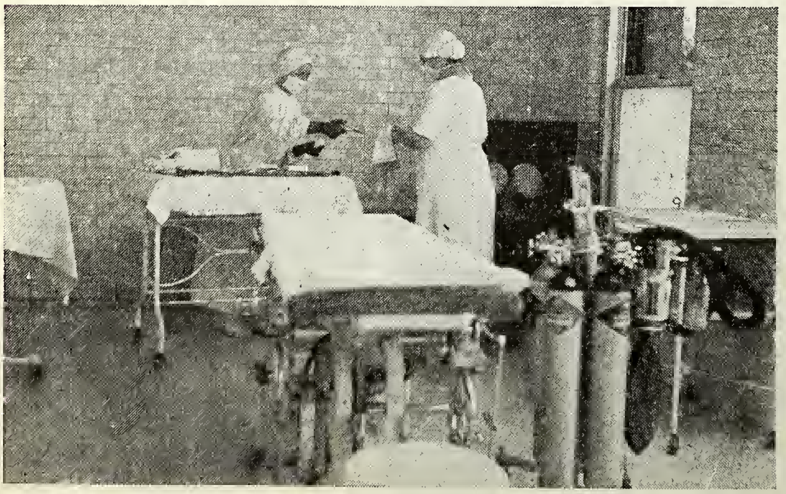
Classes are becoming larger and the number of Bethel's graduate nurses is increasing with the years. (Ruth Wenger)

Our Administration

During 1945 we had the privilege of serving 4,178 patients in our one-hundred bed hospital. Their average stay was eleven days, which brought the total up to a little more than seventy-two patients per day. Most of them came from Newton and vicinity, but in all, twenty-one states were represented.

Many patients were also cared for under the term "out-patient." These came in for a test or two and immediately returned to their respective homes. Such patients numbered 1,718 during the past year. Our laboratory technicians certainly did not find idle moments. Our records show that they made 6,701 clinical laboratory tests plus 1,734 x-rays and gave 691 physiotherapy treatments.

By comparison these figures constitute an increase over work done in 1944 of 16 percent. Ten doctors served on the active medical staff while twelve others served on the visiting and consulting medical staff. (Edith Entz)



Busy in the operating room

Our Work

"Probies" is the title we bear from our entrance till the end of the fourth month of training. We begin the three-year climb with introductory courses. The second month finds us striving to adjust ourselves to the daily routine of caring for patients. The classroom vies with floor duty the eight winter months—our fifty-two hour week being packed with classwork, nursing duty, and intensive study off hours.

Devotional period

We feel that a great milestone has been reached when, at the first of our fifth month's training, we receive our caps, crowning us as Juniors. Nearing the end of our first year as student nurses, dietetics, obstetrics and surgery beckon us in groups of two and three, each department requiring about six weeks' experience.

About midway in our second year as Intermediates Kansas City and St. Louis call to broaden our knowledge.

Seniors are we the third and last year! Now the fruits of the labors of instructors and our own desire to serve, will or will not manifest themselves in our efficiency as assistant supervisors and in the final test—"State Board Exams."

Yes, these three years are brimful with work, and what can yield more satisfaction than to know that we serve humanity as we strive toward higher goals. (Hilda Penner)

Are you interested especially in our classwork? Our work includes 1150 hours instruction in theory. This is the average total for the entire three years. Theory takes in ward instruction as well as classroom work. Some of the subject matter includes anatomy and physiology, obstetrics, chemistry, bandaging, dietetics, microbiology, medical disease, sociology, psychiatric and pediatric nursing. Nursing is defined as being an art and a science and you can see from the subjects listed that indeed it is that. A knowledge of chemistry and microbiology puts it on a scientific basis. Applying bandages and dressings for the correct effect and appearance presents the artistic angle.

Our classes which deal with the nursing problems and skills are taught by the Sisters, who are registered nurses, and the physicians, who give us series of lectures which are most beneficial. (Esther Dyck)

Our Affiliation

Won't you come with me to the two hospitals in which we affiliate? First we shall go to the Bliss Psychopathic division of the City Hospital in St. Louis, our place of duty for twelve weeks. Here we learn to use effective technique to restore the mentally ill as healthy members of society. Needless to say, our experiences are quite different from those we've had heretofore.

For training in Pedriatrics we go for three months to Children's Mercy Hospital in Kansas City, Missouri. This being a Charity Institution, many of the children in this hospital come from underprivileged homes. What a privilege to minister to these poor, sick children!

While affiliating, life of course is not all work. On off-duty hours we avail ourselves of never-to-be-forgotten sights in such places as Forest Park and Shaws Gardens in St. Louis, and in similar places in Kansas City. Then too we have the opportunity to attend the great Youth for Christ meetings, outstanding concerts, and entertainments by well-known artists and musicians.

When affiliating days are over, we must admit we've enjoyed these months of additional training. However, we realize as never before the blessings of Christian homes and institutions. We can say with the Psalmist, "Ours is a goodly heritage." (Gertrude Rinner).

A Nurses Prayer

Dear Father, lead me through this day,
Help me to do each task
With grace and tactful tenderness,
In Jesus' name I ask.

Give me a heart that understands,
Through which Thy warmth may move;
To lonely hearts I would bring cheer
In friendliness and love.

These bodies, oft so torn with pain
And racked in deep despair,
Help me give them confidence
By sympathetic care.

These souls so restless, marked by sin—
So far from Thee astray—
May I be faithful as I serve
To guide them in Thy way.

And, Father, through the busy day,
Keep Thou me pure within,
Give courage, poise, and strength to me—
For Thee I'd honor win.

by Fern Baer a senior nurse

Our Spiritual Provision

Busy as the day may be, there would be something seriously lacking if we did not find time for spiritual food. Devotions after the morning and evening meals, Bible classes led by Sister Lena Mae, Sunday morning singing for the patients, and a worship service held in the hospital for the benefit of the patients are a source of spiritual strength. Class prayermeetings serve as another bond to draw us closer to one another and to the Lord.

Devotions held with the patients are a source of strength and encouragement to us as well as to them; and who can tell how many souls have found their way Home through the word presented at the bedside?

Our day would still be incomplete unless crowned with our own private hour, when we can be alone with Him; for if we would be true servants we must ever look unto the Master for wisdom and guidance. (Dorothy Wiebe)

Our Fellowship and Friendship

"It's fun to make a fortune; it's fun to make an education; but most of all it's fun to make a friend." Author unknown.

You will find that this is the atmosphere which prevails among the girls in training. Come with me and you will agree that there is a feeling of friendship and fellowship among them all.

Do you see the girls in that group chatting and working? You might think they all come from one community, but no, they hail from Oklahoma, South Dakota, Idaho, California, and Kansas. A new class will soon arrive and provisions for a friendly welcome must be made. All work together to help make this a successful event. At work or play, they are ready to stop here and there to help one another.

You see it matters not from whence we come, rich or poor, eighteen or twenty-four; we are one big happy family cultivating our flowers of friendship and fellowship. (Lenora Bartel)

Our Vacation

Certainly, I'll tell you how we spend our vacations. We can talk about this subject the year around and never grow tired of it. Until January we discuss our vacations of the previous summer; then we start planning the next one. Four weeks of vacation per year demand good planning. It's wonderful to get back to one's home community, be one of the family again, visit relatives and friends enjoy the role of a farmerette, (driving the tractor to darken that suntan), take a trip with the family, or attend a young people's retreat.

Oh, it's fun and time passes much too quickly. But when vacation days have passed we are eager to return to work. (Hilda Newfeld)

Our Graduation and Future Aspirations

Graduation from any school is a great step ahead but graduation from a school of nursing means s much more. Here we come into much closer contac with individuals, as co-workers and as patients. A nurses, our lives may be compared to that of a rough stone uncovered by newly-turned soil. W come into the school almost afraid of the tasks facing us, yet we boldly turn our faces to thos duties. As months and years pass, the rough corners of our personalities and characters are smoothe just as the elements of weather wear the rough corners of a stone. It is with much patience, prayer and diligent work on the part of everyone concerne that we reach that primary goal—graduation.

Graduation carries with it much joy and many responsibilities, too. It is truly a joy to think that on has reached her goal. The care of human lives is a great responsibility in which one cannot shirk.

Fields of service after graduation are many. Duties in an institution are always plentiful and there are many services from which to choose. Public health nursing, private duty nursing, physician's assistants, air stewardesses, school nurses and nurse missionaries are a few of the other fields open to women trained in this profession. (Luella E. Tiezen)

(Dear Readers, we hope that you have enjoyed being our imaginary guests at our social evening. —The student nurses.)

Recreation

The May 6 issue of Life magazine contains a pictorial presentation and discussion of the C.P.S. unit at Cleveland State Hospital and the effort being made to improve conditions for patients in mental hospitals.

Fifty-three students at Bethel College have indicated their interest and desire to correspond with the youth of Holland. Contacts have been established and arrangements are underway so that individual correspondence across the waters may be begun. This is one of the several programs of activity being encouraged and sponsored by Mennonite young people in the States—the effort to re-establish the ties broken during the war.

RELIEF

RELIEF

Restrictions Lifted on Shipments to Germany

All restrictions have been lifted on the amount of relief goods which can be shipped into the American zone of Germany. Previously all relief agencies ogether were restricted to 2000 tons per month of ood, clothing and medical supplies.

Arrivals on the Field

A cable from Shanghai reports the safe arrival n May Dale Nebel and Harold Wik, and on May ; of C. L. Graber, commissioner to the Far East. Brother Graber has completed his preliminary survey of the Philippines and is now visiting Honan province to review the present activities and make recommendations for the continuation of the program there.

Boyd Nelson arrived in Rome, Italy on May . Brother Nelson is assuming directorship of the relief unit in Italy succeeding Delvin Kirchhofer who has completed his term of service.

Second Shipment Leaves for Germany

Official confirmation has been received that the second shipment of food and clothing consisting of 350 tons, left for Germany on May 6. This shipment included eight carloads of flour, one carload of beans, one carload of home processed beef and one carload of clothing and bedding. The food in this shipment weighed 657,402 pounds and valued $46,555.20, the clothing weighing 43,191 pounds and valued $49,785.40 making a total of 700,593 pounds worth $96,340.60.

Million Dollar Mark is Reached

Three carloads of home processed foods and two carloads of flour weighing 248,487 pounds and valued at $17,460 left for France on May 6. This brought the total valuation of all relief shipments up to and over the million dollar mark. This includes only the food and clothing which have been contributed by the Mennonite constituency in the United States, and which have cleared American ports for distribution in foreign countries. These relief shipments totaled 8,466,576 pounds with a total valuation of $1,062,861.14.

C. P. S.

C.P.S. UNIT PUBLICATIONS

Unit No. 90 at Ypsilanti State Hospital, Michigan has published a booklet entitled Ypsi, which shows the life of the unit as well as that of the patient. This well-illustrated publication is expected back from the printers sometime in July; all inquiries and orders should be directed to John Fisher, Box A, Ypsilanti, Michigan.

The Voice of Peace, which was recently published by the now-extinct camp at Hill City South Dakota, is expected to be back from the printing presses sometime late this month. The Hill City camp was responsible for the construction of the large earth-made Deerfield Dam, which is planned to furnish the water supply for Rapid City, South Dakota. This $2.00 publication which gives a pictorial description of ths phase of "work of national importance," can be secured by writing to Vernon Beachy, M.C.C., Akron, Pennsylvania.

PRN, published by the C.P.S. unit at the New Jersey State Hospital, Marlboro, New Jersey, will be ready for distribution during the latter part of June. This book "will cover points such as patient's ward life, treatments, entertainments, and the hospital organization in general. This graphic portrayal of the work of a C.P.S. unit in a mental hospital can be obtained for $2.00 from Robert Ebersole at the address of the unit.

Demobilization Statistics

As of April, 1946, 4,136 men remained in the total CPS program. Of these, 2,156 were in MCC camps and units. There are now a few more than half as many men in camp as there were on October 1 of last year when systematic releases began. Up to April 30, 2,129 men have been discharged from MCC-CPS since October 1.

C.P.S. Briefs

A twenty-man increase has been asked for the hospital unit at Roseburg, Oregon. This expansion will bring the strength of this relatively new unit to forty-five.

Eighteen months of CPS service is the new eligibility requirement for entrance to the CPS Reserve cattleboat quota.

Hindi is being taught to a class of six at the Spring Grove State Hospital, Catonsville, Maryland, by an assignee, Kenneth Bauman.

PEACE SECTION

The Peace Education Department of the Church of the Brethren is sponsoring a nationwide "contest for Peace Action ideas and programs," which is open to all those interested in its aims. The purpose of the contest is to stimulate thinking on ways of promoting peace, and to furnish specific ideas for peace action projects (such as the Heifer promoting world peace. The value of the plans for Relief Program) which will be effective in submitted will be considered most important, rather than literary format or style. The contest closes July 31.

Three groups of contestants will be recognized: 1) thise who have grade or high school education, 2) those who have been or are in college, and 3) college graduates. For the best entry in each of these groups, a prize of $75 fellowship to a summer institute (or a $50 cash alternative will be given. In addition, a $5 bonus will be awarded to each usable idea submitted. For further information and contest rules, write direct to the Peace Department, 22 South State Street, Elgin, Illinois.

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

Mrs. Lenore Myers has been appointed as librarian and assistant in English. She is a graduate of Bluffton College, has a Master's degree in English, and will take library work before assuming her new duties. She has been teaching English in the high school in Lafayette, Ohio. The Christian Workers' Institute, sponsored by the Board of Education of the General Conference, will be held on the campus June 5-7. The Girls Choir will leave Bluffton by bus and car May 21, returning June 10. Churches in Eastern Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, and Ontario will be visited. The group will be accompained by Mr. and Mrs. Lantz and Lawrence Burkhalter. Mr. Lantz is director of the choir and Mr. Burkhalter will appear on the program in violin numbers. Mr. Burkhalter will assist in the Eastern District young people's retreat this summer and Rev. Yoder will be on the staff of the retreat at Camp Mack.

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

The girls of the YWCA invited their mothers for an evening of informal fellowship. After an appropriate program by the girls the sound film "The Prodigal Son" was shown. Following this the group went to the Dining Hall where lunch was served. All through the evening mother and daughter pairs were seen together. It was interesting to see how much most of the daughters resembled their mothers in appearance and action. It was also good to see the very evident enjoyment of the evening by both generations. Dr. Unruh attended the Nebraska all Mennonite Sunday School convention at Beatrice. He addressed the group during their Sunday session. Graduation activities begin with the Senior Class Night program May 17. May 19 Dr. Harold Gross delivers the baccalaureate sermon. Alumni day and the Alumni Banquet will be held on May 23, while commencement exercises will be held Friday, May 24, with Dr. L. C. Kreider as speaker.

BETHEL COLLEGE

The Seniors are closing their college experience with the traditional outside activities of the final month. On May 4 they were guests at the annual Junior-Senior banquet, held this year in the setting of an eighteenth-century drawing room with Hermie Preheim, Freeman, South Dakota, as toastmistress. The class play presented on May 10 was a religious drama(by Dorothy Clarke Wilson,) entitled. "The Brother"—a story of James, the brother of the Christ. Roland Bartel, Hillsboro, was in the leading role. The Senior Class Program is scheduled for May 24, Baccalaureate services for May 26, and President Miller of Goshen College will deliver the Commencement address on the following evening. Of the thirty Seniors—seven men and twenty-three women, representing eight states, and majoring chiefly in Bible, Home Economics, English, and S cial Sciences—twenty-four will have completed th work this month and six will graduate as of July

MENNONITE BIBLICAL SEMINARY

The following is the itenerary of Rev. Ed. Miller in the interests of our Conference institutio in Chicago, the Mennonite Biblical Seminary a the Mennonite Bible School from June 1 to July 1

June 1-5 Northern District Conference, Freema South Dakota
June 9 Denison C. P. S. Camp, Iowa
June 10-11 Bethesda Mennonite Church, Henderso Nebraska
June 19-23 Pacific District Conference, Lind, Was June 25 First Mennonite Church, Monroe, Was June 26 Mennonite Country Church, Monro
June 27 Glendale Mennonite Church, Lynde
June 30 Alberta Community Church, Portlan Oregon
July 2 Emmanuel Mennonite Church, Pratu
July 4 Calvary Mennonite Church, Barlo
July 5 Grace Mennonite Church, Alban
July 7 Grace Mennonite Church, Dalla
July 8-14 Oregon Young People's Retreat—A. S Rosenberger. President, J. N. Smucker, Secretar

---

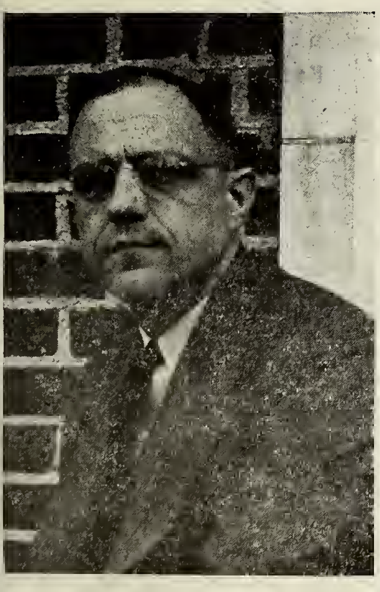
ONE-HUNDRED-FORTY-EIGHTH SESSION OF EASTERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The Eastern District Conference convened in th Zion Church, Souderton, Pa., May 2-5. Rev. Do E. Smucker delivered four conference lectures whic seemed to warm the hearts of the entire conferenc body.

Newly elected officers are: Rev. Howard G. Nyce President; Rev. Ellis Graber, Vice President; an Rev. Ward W. Shelly, Secretary. Other new members were elected to the following committees: Education, John E. Fretz; Program, Horace Kratz; Peace, James Gerhart; Home for the Aged, Rev A. H. Schultz, Harry M. Detweiler, Alvin H. Mumbauer; S. S. and Y. P., Miss Grace Moyer; Home Mission, Menno Rosenberger and Rev. J. Herbert Fretz; Men-O-Lan Board, Stanley Fretz and Rev. A. H. Schultz. Conference voted to open sessions on a Thursday morning hereafter. A group of twenty members of the Stirling Avenue Mennonite Church, Kitchner, Ontario, were in attendance at the sessions.

Dr. E. E. S. Johnson inspired the Sunday morning congregation with communion meditations. The combined choirs of the local church rendered, "Praise Ye The Lord, The Almighty" by Gesangbuch and "Sanctus" by Gounod. The spiritual atmosphere of the conference was maintained to the very end with the final message in the Sunday afternoon young people's service by Rev. Henry J. Heydt, President of the Lancaster School of the Bible. Special guests at the conference were Rev. J. N. Smucker, Dr. L. Ramseyer and Rev. Harry Yoder.
—Ward W. Shelley, Sec.

JOTTINGS



Dr. S. F. Pannabecker has accepted a call to the deanship of the Mennonite Biblical Seminary, Chicago, as announced in last week's issue. Dr. Pannabecker, missionary to China since 1923, received his Ph. D. degree from Yale Divinity School in 1944. At present he is in China serving as relief comissioner for the M.C.C. He is expected home in July.

GLEANINGS by H. E. Dester

Last Sunday (May 5) I attended services at the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, where the Lord's Supper was served. The auditorium was practically full. After several opening remarks, the pastor, Dr. G.A. Buttrick, spoke of the hard wheat which the Mennonites brought to Kansas. He paid his tribute to this wheat which he said was able to draw its sustenance from the snows and from the ground under adverse conditions. He further remarked that the Mennonites were like this wheat. They are like bread. They at least stand for something.

UNRRA

Dr. Howard of the UNNRA organization gave an address at a meeting of the Christian Medical Council for Over Seas Work in New York on May 6. In speaking of its work and difficulties in China he paid a high tribute to the spirit of Christian Missions in China. He said that almost invariably where a Chinese worker showed initiative and rendered valuable service for the organization, with a sense of the urgency of the task, it was found that he was a Christian or had been trained in an atmosphere of Christian Missions.

—Elgin, Illinois: Farm boys handy with tractors will get a chance to see the world and aid Chinese relief, it was announced here today by L. S. Brubaker, director of the Asiatic relief program of the Church of the Brethren. Brubaker said that congregations of the Church of the Brethren will cooperate with UNRRA and the Chinese government in recruiting fifty expert tractor farmers to assist and supervise in the reclamation of the two million acres in the Yellow River valley of China, flooded during the war by the Japanese. Applicants may contact their local pastors or apply direct to the Brethren Service Committee, 22 South State Street, Elgin, Illinois.

—The 1946 Vacation Bible School Handbook has been sold out. No more copies are available, according to a statement by Joanna S. Andres, editor.

—Rev. Harry Yoder's address after June 1 will be 223 West High Street, Bluffton, Ohio. Rev. Yoder is joining the staff of Bluffton College, after having served the Mennonite Church at Carlock Illinois.

—First Church, Nappanee, Indiana: The pastor's sermon last Sunday was on "Give Ye Them To Eat." Leander Hershberger, a local poet, presented some poetry and original poems at the May meeting of the Truth Seekers Class. Two of the intermediate classes are planning to work on the church yard after school Wednesday evening. Over three hundred pounds of relief clothing was sent to the M.C.C. in the last two months; ninety pounds of this was soap.—Mrs. Loyal Corwin, Corr.

—Grace Church, Dallas, Oregon: Spring is late up here. May 5 we had a special program by the Young People's Church of the Air from Salem Deaconess Hospital. It was interesting to hear about the work there. On May 12, National Hospital Day, there was a dedicatory service at the Salem Deaconess Hospital. The grounds for the new hospital were dedicated. Rev. J. M. Franz brought the morning message on Children's Sunday.—Mrs. Dave Balzer, Corr.

—Salem Church, Wisner, Nebraska: Rev. Ronald von Riesen of Newton, Kansas, came here and conducted services in our church on Saturday evening, May 4 and two services on Sunday May 5, including a communion service. A special mission collection was taken in connection with these services. —Mrs. Wm. Leisy, Corr.

—Rev. Menno H. Kliewer has resigned as pastor of the Sichar Mennonite Church, Cordell, Oklahoma, the resignation to be effective July 1. The Mennonite settlement at Caldwell, Idaho, has extended a call to Brother Kliewer, and he has accepted it. The group hopes to build a place of worship.

—Herold Church, Bessie, Oklahoma: "One of our relief workers found in someone's trash barrel a pair of trousers from which she made two baby garments, nine small useful articles (for example needle cases), and had some material left to accompany each garment for mending or making it larger."

—Hoffnungsau Church, Inman, Kansas: Daily vacation Bible school opened with an enrollment of about fifty. Four teachers instructed the four classes of Kindergarten and grade school age. On April 28, Dr. A. M. Lohrentz told us of his experiences in South America and also showed some slides. A new garage has been built unto the parsonage.—Mrs. J. V. Regier, Corr.

—West Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pa: A thirty-two voice choir, from the M.C.C. offices in Akron, presented a concert in our church on the evening of May 10. The chorus was made up of young people employed in the many offices where the relief for Europe work is being carried on. Most of them have been singing in college choruses and have been active in church work in their home communities before coming to Akron. The Never Idle Class sponsored a Mother-Daughter social on May 11.—Mrs. Earl Schmeck, Corr.

—The Bethel College summer session of eight and one-half weeks will consist of two terms, the first term beginning June 3 and ending July 9, and the second term beginning July 10 and ending July 31. About seventeen of the Bethel College faculty members will be on the teaching staff during the summer, and a variety of courses will be offered. For catalog or information write to: The Director of the Summer Session, Bethel College, North Newton, Kansas.

—Bethel College Church: Adam Mueller plans to move with his family the latter part of this month, to Enid, Oklahoma, where he will teach commerce in Phillips University. Robert Goering spent the past few months driving a relief truck in Holland. Ruth Bartel was awarded a cash prize of twenty dollars in a nation-wide art contest conducted for the Blue Book Pacific Island Design, Boston.—"Church Tidings."

—Lorraine Avenue Church, Wichita, Kansas: Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Langenwalter held open house for the members and friends of the Church on Sunday afternoon, April 28. On May 8 the Bethel College A Cappella Choir gave a sacred concert at the Wichita High School North. A large and appreciative audience was present in spite of the many activities for Music Week. The concert was sponsored by the Men's Brotherhood of the church, and they expect to make this an annual event. Work on the new church is progressing nicely even though quite slowly at times.—Mrs. E. D. Schmidt, Corr.

—First Church, Reedley, California: Nine children were presented for consecration on Easter Sunday. Since a number of parents found it impossible to bring their children, another such service was held on Mother's Day, when six more children were presented. May 16 the Ladies Missionary Society made several comforters and sorted clothing for relief. The new Mennonite Clothing Center in Reedley, under the direction of Miss Anna Snyder, is now open to receive clothing.—Mrs. R. Ewy, Corr.

—West Zion Church, Moundridge: The Men's Chorus and the Ladies Trio sang in three different congregations in Western Kansas, April 28. In the morning they sang in the Methodist Church in Arnold, in the afternoon at the Hanston Mennonite Church, and in the evening at Pawnee Rock. On Mother's Day they presented their program during the morning service hour. On May 19 they sang at Bentley in the afternoon and in the First Christian Church of Newton in the evening.—Corr.

—Mennonite Church Burrton, Kansas: Rev. John C. Kaufman was the speaker during the Pre-Easter services. Rev. Alfred Regier of the Grace Children's Home showed films of the work and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gibbs, blind musicians of Hutchinson, presented a gospel program. Our pastor, Rev. Arnold Epp, has been re-elected for another term by a large majority. More contributions for relief are 256 pounds of clothing and 172 pounds of soap.—Martha Goering, Corr.

—Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio: Conference Sunday was observed with addresses on the purpose and aims of the General Conference. Speakers were: Rev. G. T. Soldner, Dr. C. Henry Smith, Dr. J. S. Schultz, Rev. P. E. Whitmer, and Dr. Irwin Bauman of Bluffton, Ohio. A reception was held recently in the basement of the church for the members who were received into the church fellowship on Palm Sunday. A program was rendered after which refreshments were served. The Bluffton College Women's Choir, under the direction of Prof. Russell A. Lantz, gave their annual concert at the Church, May 5.—Mrs. S. W. Steiner, Corr.

—First Church, Hillsboro, Kansas: Ten members have joined our church by letter during the first half of this month.—Mrs. B. A. Goertz, Corr.

—Moundridge, Kansas: The Male Chorus of the Eden Mennonite Church gave a very inspiring program of song on the evening of May 12 at the Garden Township Church, Halstead, Kansas.—Corr.

—The second issue of "Mennonite Life" is to appear in the near future. Some of the articles in it will be: "Dutch Mennonites during the World War" by N. van der Zijpp; "What We Have Learned from Civilian Public Service" by Albert Gaeddert; "What Makes a Woman Beautiful" by Mrs. Ella Wiebe Suter. There will be a story, "And the Darkness Became Light" by Barbara Smucker; poetry by Harold Buller and Noah Bearinger; paintings and drawings by Art Sprunger, J. P. Klassen, Arnold Dyck, and Mary Lou Rich; and other features on Mennonite communities, theology, etc. Single copies may be had for fifty cents and a yearly subscription of four copies for two dollars. Address "Mennonite Life," North Newton, Kansas.

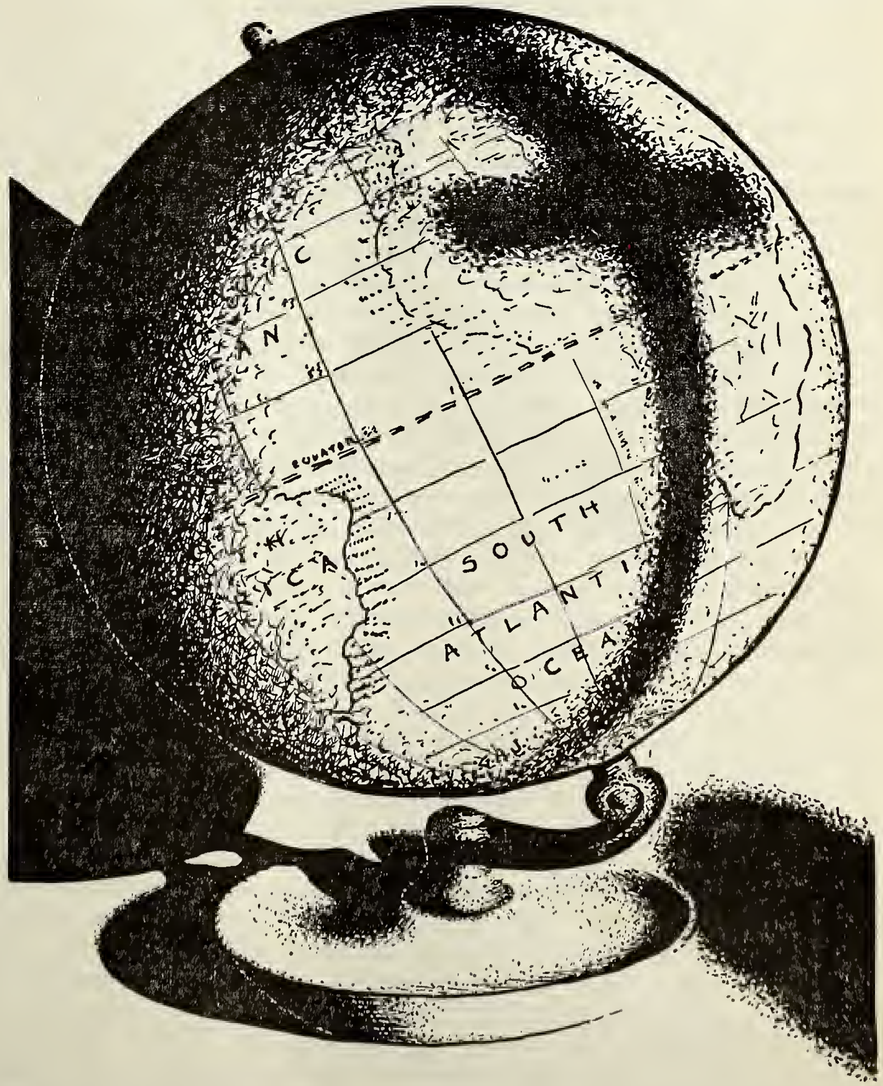
—The Inman (Kansas) Mennonite Church plans to commemorate its twenty-fifth anniversary on June 2, 1946. An all-day program is planned, with the morning and afternoon sessions in the church, and the evening program in the high school auditorium. The evening program will be mostly musical with the Hoffnungsau and Buhler churches taking part. A special invitation is extended to all former members and friends to come and make this a real homecoming event.—J. E. Kaufman, Pastor; H. F. Reimer, Secretary.

Mrs. G. A. Linscheid
222 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

The Mennonite

Volume 61 May 28, 1946 Number 22

Wonder-Working Power



Drawing by Glenn Johnson

Dr. Fritz Kunkel tells the following parable: A small boy was building a tower of blocks. His parents were watching him. The door burst open and in walked his nine-year-old brother with glum face down to the floor and hands in his pockets. He walked straight over to his younger brother's tower and without saying a word kicked it over. Immediately the mother arose and put her arms around the older boy and kissed him. Intuitively she had known what he needed, for a little later it came out that the older boy had been defeated in a fight. Lowered in his own sight he had kicked over his brother's tower to raise himself in his own eyes. The mother's kiss gave him some of that self-respect, confidence, courage, and forgiveness that he very much needed. The mother's capacity to understand and to forgive the dark look and the ugly deed helped to dissolve the dark mood within him. Frustrated sinners, who "miss the mark" they inwardly long to achieve, experience God's kiss upon their feverish and wrinkled brow when some fellow human being, who has been kissed by God, witnesses to them of that love of the cross which covers the whole earth with an atomic power of the spirit that man has hardly tapped.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point-of-view:

STRIKES suggest the need for facts and understanding rather than uncomprehending denunciation. The Christian attitude is ever that of understanding everybody. The owners, the miners, and the public are undoubtedly all guilty in some way or another in the soft coal crisis. The owners have not been very good keepers of their brothers in the mines or even when they were out of the mines, when compared with conditions in other industries. "During the fourteen months ending last February, for example, one out of every four West Virginia miners suffered an accident in the pits, with an average disability period of forty days." The accident rate among the miners is some twelve times higher than among General Motors production workers. In fact, heavy logging is the only industry having a worse accident record. "In Illinois, for example, in 1944 coal miners suffered one death for every 369 workers; in factories there was one death for every 14,701." Squalid houses on mud streets in company towns do not add much to the miner's happiness. Yet one owner points out in self justification that the conditions of the miners have improved a great deal from the time the mines first opened. It is understandable how anyone who helps the utterly destitute even a very little will gain from it a certain sense of worthiness that may keep him from doing his best. It is true that the miners have acted against the public welfare by choking our industrial economy. But is it not also true that the public has been neglectful of the miner's welfare, thinking only of the coal it wanted and very little or not at all of the people who mined it. One can hardly expect the miners to behave very graciously when they have been treated so ungraciously. On the other hand the public is like each one of us; it consists of human beings in human weakness who have not become strong in the faith that only by looking out for the interests of everybody can anyone prosper in the long run. And when a newswriter for Time magazine writes a smearing article on Lewis and the miners, it is also understandable how he could be tempted to capitalize on the public hostility to write a juicy article which will help to establish his reputation as a journalist and make his job more secure and profitable. As long as Americans continue to protest, "Am I my brother's keeper?" just that long can we expect situations that will convulse our economy.

NOT TO THINK of the painful problems in our life is one of the most deceiving and fallacious attitudes that we can take as far as our inner peace is concerned. In fact, we cannot "forget" that which is "painful" to us. When we refuse to face painful situations in our conscious mind, then that which is painful is forced down into the subconscious from whence it expresses itself in some disguised and undesirable manner. Jesus taught people that they could keep nothing from being revealed. Furthermore, he suggested that they squarely face all the painful facts of life when he said, "Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted." We might paraphrase this into, "Happy are they who face all the painful facts when life does not work out right, for they shall find solutions to their problems." Charles Gore expresses this forcefully when in his book, The Sermon on the Mount, he says:

He that lacks time to mourn, lacks time to mend.
Eternity mourns that. 'Tis an ill cure
For life's worst ills, to have no time to feel them.
Where sorrow's held intrusive and turn'd out
There wisdom will not enter, nor true power,
Nor aught that dignifies humanity.

One cannot expect to fix a car without looking within and discovering the trouble. Even so is it with complex human beings. Mathew Arnold, in one of his poems, has Empedocles declare:

We would have inward peace
But will not look within . . .

But will not look within! How descriptive this is of our attempts to avoid pain. And yet it is only as we probe inward and touch our secret sick soul that we can be healed. Jesus implied that the nonmourners as well as the mourners need comfort, but that only the latter shall be comforted. Looking within is painful but curative.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA

Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorised Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor .... Reynold Weinbrenner, North Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchange to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON KANSAS

God Is to Me...

A symposium

By Luella Smith Regier, who had some enriching experiences in social work, then served as registrar at Bethel College, and now is a keeper of the home.

God is to me the fountainhead of all light and life. His purpose inhabits the Universe and molds the history of men and nations. He is Almighty God whose purpose, wisdom, and love man can never fully comprehend, but who understands the hearts of men fully and completely without their telling Him. He accomplishes great and marvelous things through believing hearts. People who trust in Him for strength and forgiveness find in Him a fathomless source of power and life.

God's purpose in the Universe, His acts among and through men and nations are motivated by a father heart of love. In fact, this deep and genuine love as revealed through Jesus Christ is the central and primary characteristic of God. Man is the crowning glory of His creation and the one great object of His love. Man is loved not for what he is, but in the light of his total self: what he has been, is now, and can be in the future. God sees potential goodness in the worst of men, and recognizes evil and error in the saint. His love never overlooks wrong, but ever woos man to a higher level of self-realization. His love never turns to anger or becomes arbitrary in manner, but is deeply agonizing and redemptive in nature.

To have God flood one's soul with His love is overwhelming. It supplies man's deepest need. It gives status and worth to the individual soul, and at the same time fills man with true humility and meekness. It is through an experience of His love, which is made possible through the life and death of Jesus Christ, that man is led to repentance and forgiveness. Through grace he is saved, and may experience full salvation here and now, as well as hereafter. Secure in the affection and love bestowed upon him, man can function as the Christlike individual God intended him to be. Only through this process does life take on meaning and significance. Salvation here and now consists not only of the knowledge that man shall go to heaven after he leaves this world, but literally means a daily and hourly salvation from the petty selfishness that continually besets him. It means that man is enabled to live a life of trust and faith—of quiet poise—free from fear and worry. It does not mean that man will escape temptation, but rather that he will be given the strength, wisdom, and grace to overcome. It means that with God on his side, man can be the master of every situation as it affects him.

Not only does God's love make possible the realization of one's highest self here and now, but when reflected through man, His agent, it becomes a healing and constructive power in all human relationships and in society at large. The love of God is such that it cannot be bottled up within you or me or anyone else. It must be reflected and bestowed upon others to keep its vitality. This is the leaven which should cleanse and adjust all social relationships. Man becomes God's agent in the Kingdom building process by having his greatest need supplied by the love of God, and then loving others to God and to a better way of life. Nothing is so desperately needed in our time, when crime, divorce, racial injustices, and war are so prevalent, than the practice of the presence of God and His love in our dealings one with another. The ills of individual man and society are rooted in one common ailment: a loveless world. "Love one another as I have loved you." "Love never faileth."

By Olin A. Krehbiel, who is pastor of the First Mennonite Church, Berne, Indiana, and a member of the Board of Education.

I can best show what God means to me by relating a recent experience. Friday afternoon, I returned to Berne from the meeting of the Conference Boards at Newton, having sat up the night before in the chair coach. Upon arriving home my wife greeted me with the news that several members had died in my absence. After tending to some business matters, we called on one of the sorrowing families. Friday evening was spent in preparing a funeral message, and then I retired early to catch up on rest. On Saturday morning after studying for and teaching the Catechism class, a funeral service was conducted. Following lunch, I called on the sorrowing relatives of another departed member. That afternoon and evening were spent in preparing for my Sunday morning message, (the eleventh anniversary of my ordination) a funeral service and a memorial service for a boy who was reported missing in the war a year before. It was 3 A. M. Sunday morning when I went to bed. Sunday was a full day with the funeral and the memorial services following one another in the afternoon. After the Christian Endeavor, evening service, and a pre and post service prayer meeting, I went home and thanked the Lord for the grace and strength He had given. But that is not the whole story, for early on Saturday morning I had to make a spiritual adjustment in my own personal life or the blessing of God would not have been on my ministry. There was sin which needed to be confessed and forgiveness sought and then my conscience was clear.

So you ask what God in Christ means to me? God is my Savior and restorer of my soul when I do wrong. God is my strength, for apart from Him I could do nothing. God is my Lord who directs my path and when following Him many blessings have come to me. God is also my friend with whom I can share the most intimate things. This is only a sample of what God is to me and what it means to my soul to have the wonderful Christ near.

By La Verne Rutschman, who plans to serve in the General Conference mission field, Colombia, South America. He is at present a student at the Mennonite Seminary, Chicago.

A person above all others; the One who shares all elements of human personality, yet is limited by none. This makes prayer possible. Without thinking of Him in spatial terms I recognize that at all times I am in His immediate presence. This makes prayer effective.

I do not discover God in some highly decorated altar or worship center, nor do I find Him in the burning candles or elaborate ritual of high church liturgy. But I do find Him in life—in the fecund earth and in the star-powdered heavens; in the radiant testimonies of humble servants untainted with the stain of pride or academic superiority; in the innocency of childhood and in the venerableness of old age; in a simple country church where He is known and adored. But greater far than these is God's revelation in Jesus Christ recorded in Scripture and verified by the experience of twenty centuries of followers. In Christ I see at once both the nature of God and the unlimited possibilities of man created and recreated in His image.

God is to me the One who shares every burden. In Christ He has embraced the totality of human suffering: the physical pain of the cross, the cup of fear in the garden, the crushing burden of man's guilt; and when all had forsaken Him, the suffering of a boundless loneliness. There is no road of human life which He has not traveled. "When He putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them."

I discover in God love and righteousness perfectly blended—a righteous love which forms a triangle between God, my fellow-men, and me. In God through Christ I have found forgiveness and a new life. "Old things have passed away, . . . all things have become new." With this new life I have discovered a vital responsibility, an urgency to display with heart and hand the genuineness of the gospel. This gospel message with which all Christians are intrusted finds its essence in this affirmation of Paul: "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself."

By J. E. Hartzler, well-known lecturer, who is professor of Philosophy and Ethics at Hartford Theological Seminary, Hartford, Connecticut.

When I think of God I do not think of "something," or even Some-One who can be put into words or phrases. God is the ultimate One, beyond and above whom there is no other. To know God is to have an experience with God. Reason and logic may bring us to the fact of God, but experience alone can bring us to a knowledge of God. To know the fact of God is one thing; to personally know Him is quite another thing.

Nothing in all the world is more certain than the fact of God, nor is anything more uncertain than the things that many people say about God. Men speak, for example, about the "problem of God." God is not a problem. God is the solution to a problem. Man is the problem. Life and how to live it is the problem. God is the answer.

When I think of God I think of One who is not alone above and beyond, but One who is also dwelling within. I think of God as a loving, purposeful, creator, preserver and caretaker; One who cares, and One who is interested in my failures as well as in my successes, and with whom sin makes a difference.

I think of God as love, light and power; One who gives redemptive direction in the universe and in the life of man. I think of God as One who is infinite in knowledge, goodness and mercy, and One who will not impose a penalty on the sinner which He Himself is not willing to share. (Matthew 20:28.)

To me such a God means that He has put something of Himself, His image, in every man, and that He has a definite purpose and place in the world for every man. It means that God will not let any man alone in this world; His spirit will reprove and convict of sin and righteousness. (John 16:8). It means guidance in the course of one's life. I may not always know which way to move, what to do, or what to leave undone; but I can always face God and know that He is the only way out.

I may not always know what is right, but walking in the light of God, walking hand in hand with God, I know that I will not lose my way. Walking with God I know that He will never close a door before me without first opening a window. Walking with God means that eventually I am bound to come to the truth, and coming to the truth I come to freedom (John 8:32), and freedom is the will of God for every man.

Sufficient unto the Day

by Ronald von Riesen

Perhaps one thing we all have in common is that we have high resolves. Who for instance does not indulge in the making of new resolutions at the beginning of a new year. We resolve we will overcome some unfortunate habit that is hindering our spiritual life, that we will have a lovelier family life, that we will put forth more time and sacrifice for the church.

As a church we also desire deeper spirituality, more consecrated interest on the part of all officers and teachers, a closer union with our Savior Jesus Christ. Such resolutions always deal with ends, rather than with the methods we use to bring them about. Our wills are such that we cannot deal directly with goals and ends; we must of necessity deal with the day by day means that bring about our ends.

So making up our minds to accept high ideals and goals and then permitting the methods to take care of themselves, we suddenly awaken to the fact that our day by day tasks are the things that determine our goals.

Just as the quality of the methods used in the kitchen by the housewife determines the attractiveness of the dining room table, so the quality of the methods we use in our preparation for teaching a Sunday School class will determine the quality and effectiveness of our class session, and the methods we use in preparing for a Sunday morning worship service will determine the effectiveness of the service.

Sometime ago I was in conversation with an individual who had great ideals and enjoyed making them known, but the quality of his means forbade his dreams to come true. That stark truth comes home to all of us in our churches or wherever we are or go.

Perhaps that is why Jesus once said, "Take therefore no thought for the morrow for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." (Matt. 6:34) We need not be worried about the ends if our day by day tasks partake of the quality of the goals we seek. The ends will take care of themselves.

Many of us, though we would openly deny it, practice this rule in our spiritual life. Having set our minds on spiritual goals, we then resort to slipshod methods in carrying out our resolutions.

May the words of Jesus quicken our methods, and may we so live that day by day our methods and lives will partake of the quality of the life of our Savior. In the words of the writer of old, ". . . as thy days so shall thy strength be." (Deut. 33:25b)

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

The following letter written by Helena Wiebe, a Mennonite woman from South Russia now in occupied Germany, is typical of many letters appearing in the Canadian papers. These exerpts are translated from Der Bote, April 24, 1946.

TRIALS BEYOND DESCRIPTION

Earthly and Heavenly Homes. "Greetings to all of you relatives and friends. Decades have passed since you voluntarily left Russia and were involuntarily thrown into the world without a goal. God has led us difficult ways. We are uprooted and homeless. If we did not have the comfort of having an eternal home in heaven we would not be able to bear the burden. Scattered, torn asunder, searching for one another—that is the fate of the Mennonites from Russia. No family is completely united."

"It is Through Grace That I am Still Living. I alone survived. . . I am glad that mother did not witness the sending into exile of my four brothers in 1936. . . Peter was sentenced to death because he had been in Germany, and his wife was sent into the Caucasian Mountains. The same thing happened to Koljas' wife and daughter, and his son was taken into the German army. Peter's elder son died in Rostov, and the other was exiled. Jasch's wife and daughter went to Poland and now I cannot find them. Now I am all alone in the world. I often stop to think 'Where to now?' And yet when a person thinks of all those that perished during our trips and those that are being sent back to Russia now, I am quiet and thank God for all the goodness I have experienced. We have been greatly helped by Rev. . . . who has prevented our being sent back. Will God have mercy upon us and rescue us? God has permitted much, but he has also performed great miracles, and we will trust him. You cannot imagine what we have experienced, but our facial features reveal it. However, no one could take from us the hope of life eternal."

Words Inadequate. "Our trip from Russia cannot be described. This is a sketch. Fifteen hundred Kilometers were by wagon. Wheels broke. Got stuck. Found no water. Accidents. Babies were born on wagons in frost and snow. No rest. Always on and on. Robberies. . . Panic. Red army on our heels. Wagons turned over. Sleet. Each for himself. Losing track of each other. Shouting for each other. Russian tanks approach. Drive over wagons smashing human beings and horses. Wailing and groaning. While continuing the trip by train children who had frozen to death were thrown out. This is not fantasy but naked truth. Thank God that your mind is not encumbered with these facts and you do not have the vision of these horrible images."

Thankfulness. "We thank the British government which has protected us so far, and we hope they will continue to do so in the future. How will we thank God when he has freed us from all danger of being sent back? Don't you think that God will hear our mutual prayers? . . . " (This letter was followed by this note from the recipient: "I have just received the news that Lena Wiebe is among the 450 fortunate that have reached Holland.")

JUST ACROSS THE BORDER

In 1929 Mennonites from all over Russia went to Moscow to secure permission to leave the country. Only a small percentage were successful, because seemingly no other country was willing to receive all of them immediately. Today thousands of Russian Mennonites are scattered all over Europe and in constant danger of being sent back to Russia. Hundreds of them are waiting at the borders of western countries looking for an opportunity to escape. Is the tragedy of 1929 repeating itself? From the following letter taken from Der Bote, May 1, 1946, it almost appears like it.

". . . We did not succeed to cross the Dutch border. And thus we have been waiting here for more than a month and do not know what will happen in the future. If Peter Dyck of the MCC and the Dutch Red Cross had not sent us packages we would be in despair. One simply cannot live on ten pounds of bread per month."

More and More Are Coming. "There are 515 persons here at the border and more and more are coming. Fear of the Russians is driving them westward. . . It has been announced in all parts of Germany not to come this way, but the announcement is in vain. Two-hundred-forty of us are staying in one schoolhouse. . . ."

"We are here in Grunau taken care of by Rev. Jacob Peters (cousin to G. J. Peters). His congregation consists mainly of Mennonites from Russia. In addition there is an older Mennonite congregation here which was organized by the founders of the city who were prosperous industrialists. Rev. A. A. Fast is the pastor. Since the church building was destroyed, they are meeting in a classroom."

Almost Safe. "A transport of refugees from Munich, consisting of 314 persons, was brought to the border in a freight train by a Dutch captain. After their arrival here they were returned to Munich (American zone). It is said that the Russians demanded them from the Americans who agreed to turn them over. If that is true, they are to be pitied. We should pray for them and are doing so. We trust God alone. But if America and Canada do not accept us many, many will perish. Please write us whether there are any chances to be rescued. That will give us courage." P.

Reports From Danzig. Occasionally a letter from one of the few Mennonites left in the Danzig area reaches this country. A great number of the former homes of the Mennonites were destroyed during the war. Any goods left were taken by whoever got hold of them. Gradually Poles are moving into the villages, and the former owners still in that territory are doing slave labor at the dikes, etc. In a letter just received it is mentioned that they have managed to acquire a few items of household goods and clothing, but that no one knows how much of that will be left before the day passes. "Might is right." Unprotected women are in danger of being attacked anywhere.

Feeding the Hungry. Since April 1 mail service relatives and friends from the Danzig area will be happy to learn that a location center has been established in Hamburg. The address is Erfassungsstelle fuer Danziger Staatsangehoerige, Hamburg 36, Gaenzemarkt 36, Finanzgebaeude VI, Zimmer 106, Germany, British Zone.

Finding Relatives. Those who are searchng for to Germany and Japan has been reopened. There are now prospects that food, clothing, and medical supplies can soon be sent by groups and individuals. Those who have long been looking for an opportunity to help their relatives and friends should keep in touch with their local post offices to determine when this new order will go into effect. One of the highly recommended agencies that sends packages to European countries on a non-profit basis is CARE, 50 Broad Street, New York 4, N. Y. Write to them for application blanks. (A package containing 28.9 pounds of selected and balanced food will be sent immediately upon receipt of fifteen dollars.

LAST MINUTE NOTICE CONCERNING CHRISTIAN WORKERS INSTITUTE

Two questions have been asked concerning the Christian Workers Institute which should be answered.

The Status of released C. P. S. men—The ruling of the Education Board is that all men who have been in C. P. S. for one year or more are eligible to attend whether they are still in C. P. S. or if they have been released.

The Meaning of Christian Workers—The Board of Education is thinking primarily of those who are planning to do missionary work in any form, those who are planning to be ministers, those who are planning to enter the field of Christian Education in one form or another.

The Christian Workers Institute will be held on the Bluffton College Campus, Bluffton, Ohio, June 5-7. Send in your application at once to Rev. Paul Shelly, Lincoln Hall, Bluffton, Ohio if you plan to attend.

—Paul Shelly

Foreign Missions

(All Foreign Missions correspondence should be sent to Rev. Howard Nyce, 1528 Chew Street, Allentown, Pa.)

A Busy Day for Mary and Henry Toews

(This letter was addressed to the Secretary of the Board but because of its contents, we desire to have it published. It was written by the Rev. Henry A. Toews, who with his wife are now being supported by our Conference Board of Foreign Missions.—Secretary)

C.I.M. Nyanga, Africa
February 13, 1946

Dear Mission friends:

We have been wanting to write to you for some time but there always seems to be so much that we just haven't gotten to it. We are well and busy in the work.

Sunday, February 3, we had a big day here. The rising bell rang at 6:15 A.M. By 6:30 the chapel was quite well filled and the service began. We had a short service and the whole crowd marched down to the river. There I had the great privilege of baptizing forty-seven of our black converts. It is about one and one half miles to the river. So by the time we had walked there and back we were ready for a good breakfast. At 9:30 we met for the regular Sunday morning service. Also during this service one baby was dedicated to the Lord.

By 3:30 we had again gathered in the chapel. Those who had been baptized in the morning were now received into the church as members. Then we all partook of the Lord's Supper. Mr. Enns served the bread and the cup. When evening came around we were quite well tired out, but we were happy.

We are looking with great anticipation to Rev. Rediger's coming to the field. We had hoped to have him here for the Conference but in vain. We are also looking forward to the coming of the new missionaries who are supposed to be on the way over.

May the Lord abundantly bless your important work in the homeland for the cause of missions. Yours in His service, Henry A. and Mary Toews.

(Brother Rediger is the Secretary of the Congo Inland Mission. He is now on the field in the interest of the CIM Board with whom our Board is cooperating. H.G.N.)

Gives X-Ray Machine as Memorial Gift

On May 2, 1945, when we had a farewell service for the Drs. Harvey and Ella Bauman and their three children at the West Swamp Pa. Church, an uncle and aunt of Dr. Bauman asked him what he needed most when he got back to India.

He replied, "We need a car for our work."

"Is there perhaps another need, even if larger, that my wife and I could meet?" the uncle asked.

Dr. Bauman replied immediately: "We need an X-Ray machine, but this will cost five thousand dollars, and besides none can be bought at this time because of the war."

"This is what we are interested in," the uncle and aunt told their nephew. At first they considered furnishing half of the amount needed.

The farewell service was held, the two youngest daughters were baptized, and the Baumans sailed for India. Weeks and months passed by and in early fall the aunt, Mrs. Menno S. Rosenberger, took sick. Medical aid was given, but to no avail. On February 25, 1946, the Lord released her from her suffering and called her home.

During the months of sickness Mr. and Mrs. Rosenberger, Milford Square, Pa. often talked about the Drs. Bauman and their children, and their planned gift. Shortly before she passed on she said to her husband, "Be sure and don't forget the X-Ray machine."

On Sunday morning, April 28, the West Swamp members, with their pastor, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, made their first anniversary mission offering for the Drs. Bauman. Among the many gifts that came in was a check for five thousand dollars by M. S. Rosenberger:

"In Memory of Mrs. Menno S. Rosenberger, for an X-Ray machine, for Dr. Bauman, to be used in the Champa Hospital."

As a dedication of the gifts and especially the memorial gift, the congregation sang the hymn: "We Praise Thee, O God," and the deep spirit manifested in the singing made many feel that the angels joined in the singing of the chorus: "Hallelujah! Thine the glory, Hallelujah! Amen. Hallelujah! Thine the glory, Revive us again."—Mrs. Earl Schmeck, Corr.

Taking Communion with the Commissioner

It was world communion Sunday—October 7, 1945. I had to go to a certain conference several hundred miles distant from Jagdeeshpore station. So I started on Saturday and halted in a neighboring mission over Sunday. This mission church observed communion, as my own church in Jagdeeshpore did. I was glad to be with my Christian neighbors; yet I was sorry that I could not be with my own people.

(Continued on page 14)

Home Missions:

Material appearing under "Home Missions" is contributed by A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary of the Home Mission Board, Quakertown, Pa.

Brother Walter McDowell's Ordination

Brother Walter McDowell, Quarryville, Pa., R.R.2, who has been serving as Pastor of Calvary Mennonite Church, Mechanics Grove, Pa., since February 1, 1946, is to be ordained as "Minister of the Gospel" on Sunday evening, May 26, 1946.

The Board of Home Missions is always anxious to cooperate with the local District Conference, and so the Education Committee of the Eastern District had a conference with and examined Mr. McDowell as worthy of ordination as "Minister of the Gospel."

The officers of Calvary church have asked that Rev. John J. Plenert, Lansdale, Pa., and Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, Quakertown, Pa., members of the Board of Home Missions, have charge of the service since the congregation is under that Board. It is anticipated that other ministers of the Eastern District will be present and participate in the service.

We ask a prayer interest by all mission friends in this occasion and field, that the Cause of Christ might grow and prosper in bringing many into the Kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Prof. J. P. Klassen To Visit Canadian Churches

Following the program inaugurated some years ago, the Board of Home Missions is this summer sending a man, who has been friend, fellow traveler and companion to many Canadian Mennonites, to Canada to visit all General Conference churches. Professor John P. Klassen, head of the art department of Bluffton College, is the man.

About twenty years ago Professor Klassen came to Bluffton College from Western Canada and has not had an opportunity to return to visit his many relatives and friends.

During the past years, especially in the summer months, Professor Klassen visited many C.P.S. camps and hospital units and presented his art as a source of challenge and inspiration to hold true to our Mennonite principles of non-resistance. The Board, taking note of this effective testimony, decided at the annual meeting to have Brother Klassen visit the Canadian Churches.

Visitation To Start in British Columbia

Professor Klassen will take Mrs. Klassen and two of the smaller children along on the trip. They will leave Bluffton Monday, May 27, shortly after the close of College and they will travel to Vancouver, British Columbia, by train, where Mr. Klassen will start his work on the evening of May 30. Rev. J. B. Wiens, 6640 St. George Street, Vancouver, British Columbia, is working out the schedule. Wherever possible two messages will be brought. Some art collections of his own creation will be taken along, and pictures will also be presented, showing the experiences of the Mennonites from the time large colonies lived in Russia to the present time, as he says "pointing out our ideals for the future." In giving his plan for the visitation work Professor Klassen said: "I hope to bring confidence to the older folks and inspire the younger ones to an active and decided stand for our cause. Out of the deep experiences of our people evolves a great challenge which we will meet joyfully, in the Spirit of Christ."

In due time we hope to give the schedule of the services in British Columbia and Alberta.

Such a purpose deserves the intercessory support of every lover of our Mennonite principles and doctrines.—A. J. Neuenschwander

The Mennonite Fellowship in New York

The Mennonite Fellowship in New York serves a group of Mennonite students and residents with a monthly meeting for Christian fellowship and devotion. The object of these meetings is to keep those who live in New York City in touch with the Mennonite heritage and background which is theirs.

The group includes the fifteen Mennonites who attend Biblical Seminary, several Columbia University students, and others who are employed in the City. Because this group comes from a number of Mennonite denominations, speakers from these denominations are sought to serve us at our meetings. Our speakers this year have included Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, Rev. Donovan Smucker, Mr. Robert Kreider, Rev. A. H. Schultz (who was until this year a pastor under the Evangelical Mennonite Brethern), Rev. C. E. Kirkwood, pastor of a Mennonite Brethren in Christ church.

The fellowship took as its annual project the raising of money for European relief. A total of $177 was contributed by our members and sent to the M.C.C. for such relief.

The Home Mission Board of the General Conference has greatly helped the New York Fellowship by its financial support. It is our hope that a full time church or mission will be established here in the heart of New York City before long, but that would take also a full time worker, whom we do not have. At present the greatest benefit is derived by the Mennonite students and young people who are here temporarily.

—Paul F. Barkman

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.

Vice President
Verney Unruh

Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference

Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

The Aims of the Youth Farm at Rosthern

by J. C. Schmidt, Isaac Epp, Henry Friesen

We the executive of the youth organization feel obliged to give a report of the aim of our Youth Farm. There seems to be the impression prevalent among some of our people that the organization had no definite aim at the time of the purchase, as to how the Farm could serve our Mennonite youth. It is being claimed that even today our aim is very vague.

The Purpose of Buying the Farm

With this report we wish to clarify this point. To begin with, before the purchase of the Farm was made, circulars were sent out to the different churches informing them of this project stating definite aims for which the Farm was to be used. Furthermore, the Farm could only be purchased under certain conditions. We quote an extract of Hon. J. G. Gariner's letter at the time of the purchase, "In the type of work you have outlined it would seem that the Farm could be used to very good advantage, and it is because of that consideration that we would be prepared to consider its sale at this time." The Government originally intended to keep the Farm for Government purposes, however, considering our aim with the Farm, they were willing to sell it to us at a most reasonable price. Does this not show that there was a definite aim in view right from the very beginning? Our aim was and still is, that the farm shall serve the spiritual welfare of our young people. This is to be realized in the following ways: First, to serve as a place where the activities of our youth organization can be centralized. Second, to serve as a meeting place for young people's retreats, song festivals, conferences, etc. Third, as a site for a children's home, where under-privileged children and orphans can receive the advantages other Mennonite children have. Fourth, to help support missionary activities, such as summer vacation Bible schools, and the sending out of evangelists.

The Invalid Home

When the purchase of the Farm was first considered, no thought was given to the project of the Invalid Home, however, when we approached our people, both young and old, concerning the purchase of the farm, and appealed for their support, they strongly suggested the opening of an invalid home. Most if not all of the churches felt this to be the most immediate need of our people, a need which this farm could so amply meet. The greater part of the donations came from our older people. In fact, many large donations were given because we now considered this as one of our projects. It was thus definitely felt that we should comply with their requests and assist our churches in this way. As most of you are aware, the largest house on the farm was arranged for an invalid home. Within a short time it was filled to capacity, and has been a blessing to our invalids for almost two years. At present, we have over twenty applicants anxiously waiting to gain admittance. Now the Home is being enlarged to accommodate another thirty patients. Since much of the money with which the Farm was purchased was donated for this purpose, it is only reasonable that now part of the income from the Farm should be used for this project. Once the Home is completed undoubtedly it will be self-supporting, and the proceeds of the Farm can be used for more direct mission work among our young people.

Quite a number have signified their intention to attend the Christian Worker's Institute at Bluffton College, Bluffton, Ohio, June 5-7. All those in C.P.S. and those who have been in C.P.S. for at least a year and are planning for full-time Christian service are invited to attend. Conference will pay the expenses to and from camp for this group. All students in colleges and seminaries who are planning for full-time Christian service are also urged to attend. All those planning to attend are urged to write to Paul R. Shelly, Lincoln Hall, Bluffton College, Bluffton, Ohio, at once so that the necessary arrangements can be made.

We are not apologizing for the Invalid Home even though it was not in our original plan. Our young people in working and praying with this project have already been greatly blessed. From far and near our young people come together and with hammer and saw help erect the new partition of the Invalid Home. Many have caught the spirit of Christ, by working at a cause where they see no direct personal gain. There seems to be a general feeling among our people that the youth are separating themselves from the old people. Since the Invalid Home is a project of the young people in which both the old and the young have a common interest, it serves as a means of drawing them together. Certainly this is a noble project whereby our youth can express their gratitude to our aged.

However, this is only one project of our Youth Organization. Most of our efforts are directed to the spiritual welfare of our children and young people. Several years before the Farm was purchased, S.V.B.C.'s (Summer Vacation Bible Classes) were in progress. This is still one of our main projects. For approximately one year the organization has had an evangelist and colporteur in the field. The financial support of this work has partly come from the proceeds of the Farm. For some time the Organization has been circulating a youth paper, which serves to acquaint our youth with the work of the organization and unite them in a common cause.

(To be continued.)

GOOD MORNING

By Jessie Owen Pierce

I LIKE to say good morning, first of all,
To God, whose care has brought me through the night;
And then, I say good morning to the tall,
Familiar trees and every bush insight;
I say good morning to the rising sun—
The lofty sky—the land—the far-off sea.
My joyful heart cries out to everyone:
"God gives the whole wide world to you and me!"
Then when good morning has been said—and felt—
Somehow, I know the day will bring its peace;
For multitudes, with me, have stood or knelt
To thank God that his wonders never cease.
And all who share this privileged delight,
Find lovely fragments, even unto night!

Playing Safe With Life

The temptation to play safe with life is one of the most subtle and dangerous temptations that ever comes to men. A refusal to take any chance is one thing that has kept many of us from making our lives amount to anything very much. It was easier and surer not to attempt very much; but because we did not attempt very much there was small chance that we should achieve very much.

It is indeed a risky thing to cherish ambitions, for the man who so cherishes them is likely one day to attempt to do hard and difficult things, and then there is always the chance that he will fail or only half succeed, and in the end add no glory to his name or silver to his purse. No, the man who never tries any hard or taxing or ambitious tasks does not run nearly the risk of failure that the high-striving and ambitious man runs. And who can look forward to that risk of failure with anything but misgivings and alarm.

But of all the failures that a man may run into, that failure to really try, to put achievement to a tremendous and equivocal risk, may be of all failures the very worst. When we think of it, what the world would have done without those brave spirits who were ready to put life to the test by attempting to make it count through hard and difficult achievements is impossible to imagine. How many brave and inspiring pages in human history would have been left out if it hadn't been for such adventurous souls? Those people who have run risks have been the makers of history.

Suppose Jesus had been satisfied with Nazareth, or even with Galilee, and had shunned Judea and Jerusalem because they hinted of dangers and a Cross! It is quite impossible to think of him as thus playing safe with life, but if we are much like him, ought it not to be impossible to think of our doing it either? Another question we might ask, How much more like him we would be if we were ready, yea eager, to take risks for the things that are supremely worth while? How many of them there really are, when we come to think of it, some of them that haven't even been having much thought or attention from some of us, let alone any price paying or sacrifice. The whole history of the world has been a history of men taking risks for great causes. Surely God himself took a tremendous risk when he made man.—Onward

Conclusions about Youth in the Conference

by Elmer Ediger

As has been said before, one of the aims of the Y. P. U. this year is to study the situation as it is in our conference. Some points are gradually becoming clearer to us. The Leaders' Institutes and visits to churches present opportunities to sharpen these concepts. My recent trip to the churches of the Pacific District have definitely helped me thus. Below I briefly enumerate some assumptions on "youth in our conference." Actually each of these points could be an article in itself. We shall welcome your reactions and additional points on what you have learned.

1. Locally churches are becoming increasingly conscious of their young people. In times past they just took them for granted; some are now just becoming conscious of them as a "problem;" soon we hope more churches will look upon young people as "potential for service now as well as later" rather than "problems."

2. We do not have young people organized as young people in most of our churches. This makes impossible discussion of certain problems they have, does not develop leadership as it should.

3. We have no standard young people organization, even a name, to recommend to our local churches. C. E. is most common, but in many that is the whole church group or perhaps a junior and senior division.

4. We should preserve somehow the value of the Sunday evening family gathering where all ages participate—perhape once a month such a meeting.

5. Small churches cannot afford to divide their Sunday evening group into graded divisions. Here young people must be used and some places meet by themselves occasionally, perhaps cooperate on some projects as young people.

6. We complain of not having leadership—much of it is buried somewhere, often in the local church.

7. Everywhere we have the problem of having young people leaders not being young in years. In the mind of many of us thirty years should be the top limit. Should it be less locally? In districts?

8. Program making is a most pressing problem in local groups. The topic—special music—reading menu is the diet in most of our churches. Hardly any materials are available to local committees.

9. We have "Sunday meetings." To make these vital we should ask more often "what are we going to do about it." We have far too few projects locally.

10. Too often we limit our idea of young people's organization to a "Sunday evening meeting group." If we are interested in having the church be an influence on their life, if we want to meet their needs more fully, we as a church must consider being responsible for young people seven days of the week. To do this we must develop more of an educational program and more opportunity for group service and fellowship.

11. Retreats have been the most effective forward step by our churches for their young people. There are other steps that need to be taken which would be just as far-reaching.

12. We tend to be inefficient in our young people business dealings locally, district, and General Conference. Lost constitutions, allowing correspondence to go two weeks before it is answered, not keeping each other informed, not knowing who the officers are etc.

The Senior C.E. Convention of the Eastern District Young People's Union will be held on Memorial Day, Thursday, May 30, at Upper Milford Mennonite Church, Zionsville, Pa.

13. To integrate work of various districts we must have an annual meeting of district representatives, the Y. P. U. Council, to decide projects, etc. The organization must be such that these representatives have a hand in planning district projects.

14. Next meeting of Y. P. U., 1946 at time of General Conference, must be a representative meeting in order to have a live planning session. Should begin soon to think in terms of sending one representative from each church who is under thirty years of age.

15. Through C. P. S., local groups, one senses that the times require us to be individuals grounded much more deeply than any time heretofore. We are in the "world" and tend to become like it. This means stronger teaching in home and church, more emphasis upon individual use of the Bible and more assistance in helping individuals to develop principles of living that can be applied to all situations.

Youth Events

A Guide to Public Affairs Organizations has been compiled and issued by the C.P.S. Education Office of the American Friends Service Committee. This guide is being published by the American Council on Public Affairs. The guide contains a wealth of addresses of organizations in the fields of: International Affairs and World Order, Relief and Reconstruction, peace, Government, Labor and Industrial Relations, Minorities, Religion, Social Welfare and Youth Work, Delinquency and Prison Reform, Housing, Public Health, Mental Hygiene, Education, Recreation—Arts, Crafts, Rural and Small Community Life, Cooperation, and Conservation.

The booklet is available from the American Council on Public Affairs, 2153 Florida Ave., N.W., Washington 8, D.C. for $1.00 with a paper binding.

* * *

One of the C.P.S. men who participated in the Minneapolis starvation experiment testified before the Senate Committee which is investigating the act which would permit sending food parcels to Germany.

* * *

A nineteen-page report of the Minutes of the Meeting of the YPU Council of the General Conference was recently mailed out to all YP officers in all districts. This report serves to give all districts information concerning the organization and work of the young people of the Church.

* * *

Verney Unruh is planning to spend the summer on a visitation tour of churches. He will particularly visit the Northern District churches. Also, he will visit two retreats—at Aberdeen, Idaho, and at Mountain Lake, Minnesota.

* * *

A federal court judge has recently handed down a verdict of "Not Guilty" in the case of a C.P.S. man walking out of camp. The verdict was made on the basis that a transfer signed by Colonel Kosch was void because the Selective Service and Training Act states that the work of national importance should be completely under civilian control.

* * *

The Young People's Union is sponsoring a project of bringing a student from Paraguay to enter our schools and, also, two Puerto Rican students to receive their college education in our church schools. This project, it has been felt, is needed in order to make possible a more permanent and effective work in Puerto Rico and Paraguay. In both these places, the people suffer greatly from the handicap of lack of training and, therefore, lack of leadership. Funds are being raised to bring about this program.

* * *

Much has appeared in the papers recently regarding the famine in Europe and Asia. A bill has been introduced in Congress which would call for the resumption of rationing in this country in order to distribute food equitably in this country so that foreign shipments may be made.

* * *

Some time ago the House of Representatives passed a bill to admit people from India as immigrants to America on a quota basis similar to other countries. At present this bill is being further considered by the Senate.

* * *

King George VI, Presidents Truman and Chiang Kai-shek, Queen Wilhelmina and Kings Gustav, Christian and Haakon are among the heads of states who have endorsed the summons issued by the World Sunday School Association to the world, to help lay the moral and spiritual foundations for peace through religious education.

* * *

The Evangelical and Reformed Church's Board of International Missions has joined with the United Brethren and the Presbyterian Churches in the United States to organize a united mission for the Indians of the highlands of the Andes in South America.

* * *

In Warsaw, Poland, there is not a church or a chapel that remains undamaged, and it is said there is little prospect that rebuilding can take place in the near future.

* * *

Last year the Southern Baptists of the United States sent a hundred and seventy-five thousand kits containing food and small articles to Russia.

* * *

Scholars estimate that about twenty-seven hundred different languages are spoken in the world today.

* * *

Enrollment in theology and religious education classes in fourteen colleges in New York show an increase of four hundred and seventy-six over the figures of 1944.

* * *

The Paris Girl's Residence of the Salvation Army was built twenty years ago and today it is the second largest of its kind in the world.

RELIEF

Medical Work in Ethiopia

Until the Mennonite Hospital in Ethiopia is ready for work to begin there, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Conrad are working in the Ras Desta Hospital in Addis Ababa. Dr. Conrad takes care of the medical cases and the outpatient clinic and his wife, Nancy Hernley Conrad, R.N., is busy carrying out his prescriptions for medication. Mrs. Irvin Lehman, R.N., is also helping out at the same hospital.

China Workers' Sailing Changed

The change in port of destination of the S.S. Deborah Gannett from Shanghai to a port several hundred miles north necessitated the postponement of sailing of Mr. and Mrs. William Ewert, June Straite, Elvira Lehman and Ruth Fisher. They are now scheduled to sail as follows: William Ewert from Jersey City on May 19. Ruth Fisher from San Francisco on May 29, and the remainder of the group on June 6 from Galveston, Texas, on the S.S. Afoundria.

Food Shipments

Two shipments of food have recently left for France and Holland. The shipment going to France included a carload of assorted foods and one carload of canned peas which together weighed 112,025 pounds and were valued at $11,254.50. The other shipment going to Holland consisted of one carload of evaporated milk and one carload of dried prunes, the total weight being 127,000 pounds valued at $12,450.00.

Builders Unit Leaves

A farewell service was held at Akron on May 13 for eleven men who are scheduled to leave for Holland on May 17. Members of the unit are Enos Bontrager, Virgil Brenneman, Wesley Brubacher, Arthur Egli, Paul Good, Aden Horst, Melvin Lehrman, Herman Ropp, Paul Ruth, Joseph Schrock and Samuel Yoder. It is planned that they will begin work on the island of Walcheren which was severely damaged by flooding, bombing and shelling.

MENNONITE AID SECTION NOTES

Booklet on Mennonite Colonization

With the recent developments in the matter of taking care of Mennonite refugees in Europe has come a renewed interest in various aspects of colonization. In 1944, J. Winfield Fretz made an extensive study of this problem and published his findings in a booklet entitled, Mennonite Colonization. It is intended to be a general introduction to the whole field of migration and colonization with several practical guiding principles for future action. H. S. Bender notes that "It will be of particular value to church leaders and committees who are or should be interested in and responsible for colonization work, as well as to those who wish to support this work with their means and their counsel." Included in the booklet are sections on Mennonite Migration, Mennonite Colonization, Factors Contributing to Success, Factors Contributing to Failure and Suggestions for Future Colonization. It can be obtained at 20 cents per copy from the M.C.C.

C. P. S.

News in Brief

Regional directors of MCC-CPS met in Chicago on May 16 and 17. Some of the considerations on the agenda included the future of projects, administration, education, inductions, over-all planning, etc. Also considered was the concern of the various churches for the trends in the standards of the individual life of the camper.

Rev. T. A. van der Smissen, pastor of the Hebron Church, Buhler, Kansas, will be serving as an M.C.C. camp pastor for a year, starting August 1.

Summer service unit leaders will be meeting at Akron Headquarters for a two-day conference, starting on the evening of May 26.

Hospital Service Picture

Discharges have cut the total manpower strength of MCC-CPS in one-half; this plus the fact that other help is becoming available around the hospitals, is reducing the program of the hospital section.

During June, it is expected that the following units will be terminated as soon as the month's discharges are processed: CPS No. 71, Lima State Hospital; CPS No. 120, Kalamazoo State Hospital; CPS No. 72, Hawthornden State Hospital; and CPS No. 118, Wernersville State Hospital.

However, transfers are still being accepted to Cleveland, Marlboro, Norristown, Spring Grove, Howard, and Roseburg. All correspondence should be directed to Warren Leatherman, who will be carrying on single-handedly after Bert Smucker's discharge.

Educational Briefs

Dr. Willard Smith, of Goshen College, who recently returned from a two-year period of MCC service in Paraguay, is making a tour of several of the eastern camps and units. His illustrated lecture will deal with the work of the M.C.C. in Paraguay. Dr. Smith's itinerary is as follows: Marlboro, May 31; Powellsville, May 27 and 28; Luray, May 29; Staunton, May 30; Beltsville, May 31; Norristown, June 1.

THE ELEVENTH COMMANDMENT

"Thou shalt inherit the holy earth as a fruitful steward, conserving its resources and productivity from generation to generation. Thou shalt safeguard thy fields from soil erosion, thy living waters from drying up, thy forests from desolation, and protect thy hills from overgrazing by thy herds, that thy descendants may have abundance forever. If any shall fail in this stewardship of the land, thy fruitful fields shall become sterile, stony ground and wasting gullies and thy descendants shall decrease and live in poverty or perish from off the face of the earth."—Dr. Walter C. Lowdermilk, Assistant Chief, Soil Conservation Service.

COLLEGE AND SEMINARY NEWS

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE

Right after the close of school the academy choir leaves on a tour through Nebraska and the Black Hills. There are thirty-two members in the choir and they and their director, Professor Toews, will use a school bus for the trip. May 26, they give a concert at Henderson, Nebraska. Monday they are to sing at Madrid, Nebraska. Tuesday they go to Hot Springs, South Dakota, and Wednesday is to be spent sightseeing in the Black Hills. Thursday they are to go to Pierre, and Thursday evening they will give a concert in Onida. Friday they will present their program in the Bethel Church at Yale. Returning on Saturday they are scheduled to sing at the Northern District Conference in the Salem Church on Sunday. A week later, June 9, the group leaves for Mountain Lake, Minnesota, where they will present an evening program in the Bethel Church.

BETHEL COLLEGE

Students from the History of Civilization class, accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. Gingerich, took a trip by chartered bus to Kansas City on May 11 to visit the Nelson Art Gallery. On May 15 twenty-three workers in the Secretarial Bureau enjoyed a picnic supper on the lawn at the home of their supervisor, Professor Bargen. The final event in the spring intercollegiate and intramural athletic program was Bethel's participation, and winning of fifth place, in the Conference Track Meet at Baker University on May 17. Fourteen men were in training for track and tennis competition under P. R. Kaufman, recreational director. The advanced clothing classes gave an exhibit of their projects before the Women's Association on May 20 in a pleasing setting on the stage of Memorial Hall. Final examinations for this quarter are scheduled for May 22 and 23. The summer school session, with about seventeen teachers on duty will begin June 3.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

The Faculty Club met in Lincoln Hall lobby for a picnic supper. Following the supper, Dean Schultz presented an overview of the NCA study for the year 1945-46, "God the Integrating Force is the Student's Curriculum." Rev. Shelly gave an evaluation of the religious activities of the past year and Pres. Ramseyer closed with a challenge to the faculty for the coming year. In recent chapel programs Miss Ramseyer spoke on the general field of service both at home and abroad, Iona Gerber presented service in mental hospitals, Otto Klassen gave his impressions of service on cattle boats, and Evelyn Nunemaker presented opportunities for service in local church organizations. Over three hundred pounds of soap were sent to MCC to be used for relief purposes. Of this amount, 275 pounds were made by faculty and students.

(Continued from page 7)

When I sat down toward the back of the church, I saw a man coming in. He walked very erect and stately. I recognized him at once as the commissioner of this area, a governmental official, second only to the governor himself. I knew he was a Christian, but I wondered whether he knew that this church was celebrating holy communion, and if he knew, whether he would take part with these humble Christians. But to my joy this high official rose to his feet without hesitation when the minister gave the call to the Christians to come to the altar to partake of the holy sacraments. There he humbly knelt with the poor shabby Christians in remembrance of our Lord's suffering and death. My heart was warmed. Yes, in Christ we are all truly one, high or low, great officials or humble peasants; and this fine Indian Christian official proved this.

Our Lord calls high and low in India, and many of India's people respond. Let us praise him for this. I am writing this note on February 14, and since January 1 of this year 111 adult people have been baptized in our Basna area. They have come in by families. So, counting in the children, our Christian community has increased already by nearly two hundred since the beginning of 1946. From all indications this number will be doubled by Easter time. Let us all remember these new babes in Christ before the throne of grace—John Thiessen

THE READER SAYS:

IT DOES NOT SEEM FAIR

Editor, The Mennonite:

A farmer had a large flock of sheep and a shepherd who took good care of them. A neighbor too had a flock of sheep but he needed someone to take care of them. He therefore, without the knowledge or consent of the farmer, went to the shepherd and tried to hire him away from his employer—offering him better wages. Did the neighbor have a moral right to do this?

From time to time there is a church that needs a pastor. There is a conference placement committee to which such a church may address itself. But it happens that, instead of seeking the advice of the placement committee, the church approaches directly the pastor of some other congregation. This seems neither fair nor right.

If the instance cited above finds application—and does it not?—it cannot be quite right for a church to extend such a direct call to the pastor of another church. It looks too much like seeking unfair advantage.

It is not entirely fair to the pastor who receives such a call. He may have only recently accepted his charge, and a change would reflect on his steadiness. Or it may be that more money is offered, which would make it look too much like a business transaction. Ministers of the gospel are human beings too and may be subject to temptation. From this angle the call looks unfair to the pastor.

And it must assuredly be unfair to the congregation affected; it too needs the ministry of its pastor.

Should we not, as churches, walk circumspectly in this matter? Signed—A Layman

---

IN EVERY CORNER SING

A small book has just been published which deserves the careful attention of our churches and church leaders. It is entitled "In Every Corner Sing" and is written by Joseph W. Clokey, Dean of the School of Fine Arts of Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. Dr. Clokey had a part in the making of our Mennonite Hymnary as you will see by referring to the Editors' Comments in the front pages of the Hymnary.

The writer of this brief review has personally heard Dr. Clokey pay tribute to the superior merits of the Mennonite Hymnary and speak with much appreciation of the congregational singing of at least one of our churches. When one considers the high standing of Dr. Clokey in the musical world as a composer and organist and his deep religious and church interest, these personal comments as well as the book itself are made all the more valuable.

In this little book Dr. Clokey gives many practical and helpful suggestions to ministers, musical directors, and organists about the right kind of music in our churches. It is written especially for small churches and should therefore be particularly useful to most of our congregations. It is published by Morehouse-Gorham, of New York at fifty cents, and of course can be secured through our own book stores.—J. E. Amstutz.

JOTTINGS

—Gospel Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: Children's consecration was observed on Mother's Day. In the evening the Emmanuel C.E. of Delft and our own gave a joint Mother's Day program in our church.—E. Lohrenz, Corr.

—First Church, McPherson, Kansas: Consecration services for six small children were held on May 12. A ground-breaking ceremony was observed on the church building plot on May 15. A pot-luck lunch was enjoyed in connection with the ceremony.—Corr.

—First Church, Nappanee, Indiana: The pastor's class of Intermediates has been studying church history for the last seven months and are now beginning a new series of lessons with the young people's class. The lessons are on "Great Questions of the Christian Life." On the morning of Mother's Day we had a consecration service for children. In the evening service "Three Generations of Mothers" were honored. A daughter, a mother, and a grandmother gave responses. The background for this program was a living picture of "Mother" by Whistler. Sarita Schrock also gave the reading which won her the silver medal at a contest sponsored by the W.C.T.U. a few weeks ago. The Missionary Circle has had Mary Royer of Goshen College as guest speaker. The church is receiving a new coat of paint, and the kitchen is being enlarged. The intermediate classes and a few adults had a wiener roast last week and cleaned up the church yard and the shrubbery and had some fun too.—Mrs. Loyal Corwin, Corr.

—Salem Church, Munich, North Dakota: Easter Monday twelve young people were accepted into the Christian fellowship through baptism. Rev. Winstanley, missionary to Bolivia, was in this community, May 5-9. On May 12 we had an all-day festival. The forenoon was devoted to the fortieth anniversary festival, with Rev. Edward Duerksen as guest speaker. In the afternoon we had a praise service for the safe return of the servicemen. Ten of them were present, four absent, and three are still in service. Our church is planning to enlarge its building this summer by adding a wing. We bought an Episcopal church at Langdon for this purpose.—Corr.

—Mennonite Church, Waka, Texas: Jesus said, "Where two or three are gathered in my name, there am I in the midst of them." With that wonderful promise ever before us, our group, though small, meets regularly every Sunday for Sunday School. Twice each month a pastor from a neighboring church brings us the gospel message. Since the first of the year an S.O.S. Gospel Team from Meade, Kansas, visits our church once a month with a program of songs, readings, flannel-graph lessons as well as a sermon. On May 10, 11, and 12 we were again privileged to have Rev. J. E. Kaufman from Inman Kansas, bring us inspiring messages and also to administer unto us the Holy Communion.—Mrs. Herman Wiebe, Corr.

—First Church, Shafter, California: The Young People's Mission Society meets once a month at the different homes of the members. The Ladies Aid has made comforters and has also planned to process food for relief. Elmer Ediger, President of the Young People's Union of the General Conference, conducted a Leader's Institute in our church. This was for the seven California churches. Captain Arthur Wenger, former pastor of this church, and Mrs. Wenger were present at the "Welcome Home" reception given for our boys. A chicken dinner was served and Captain Wenger gave a talk. A large group from Shafter attended the S.S. and C.E. convention which was recently held at Reedley. On April 28 the Bells of Liberty gave a fine program of gospel message and song in our church. The per-

Mrs. G. A. Linscheid
222 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

sonnel was: Bergtold, Rev. and Mrs. Kleinsasser, John Richert and son Reynold. Mrs. P. A. Schmidt was pianist.—Mrs. Elma Bartel, Corr.

—Goessel (Kansas) Mennonite Church: On May 19 Rev. F. E. Nunley, of the colored Methodist Church, Newton, brought us an inspiring message. He based his message on Luke 17:11-19. I'm sure we all feel the desire to have more love and understanding by each other and for all men everywhere. Rev. Nunley said to pray means work. If we pray for peace we must begin in ourself to live peace. When Jesus prayed it meant work followed. So we must be willing to put work to our prayers. Margaret R. Schroeder, Corr.

—Zion Church, Souderton, Pa., Twenty new members were recently added to the fellowship of the Church. The A Cappella Choir of the M.C.C. Headquarters rendered a well-received program of sacred music to a capacity audience on Sunday evening, May 12. The evening offering for relief totalled $280.—Corr.

—Hoffnungsau Church, Inman, Kansas: On May 19 a "Welcome Home Fellowship" dinner was given in honor of the returned service men and women. The welcome by Rev. A. J. Dyck was followed by several responses, and then Rev. A. M. Gaeddert gave a short talk centering around "What Have We Learned from these Experiences?" After some music, five-minute talks were given by men representing the different camps, various experiences, and types of work. So far all the young men have returned safely with the exception of Henry Nachtigal, who was called to his reward after a long period of illness, due to an injury received while in camp. Twenty are discharged and fourteen still in service.—Mrs. J. V. Regier, Corr.

—Waterloo-Kitchener Church, Waterloo, Ontario: Mother's Day services included a program by the Sunday School in the morning and a young people's program in the evening, led by Rev. J. H. Janzen. Sunday, May 19, in the absence of Rev. Janzen the Gideons had charge of the morning service. The church choir, having accepted an invitation from a member church in Niagara-on-the-Lake for this day, served there morning and evening. The ninety-mile trip was made by chartered bus.—Herbert P. Enns, Corr.

—Grace Church, Dallas, Oregon: Rev. J. M. Franz brought messages on May 12 when we had a children's day program. Sunday School attendance was 327.—Mrs. Dave Balzer Corr.

—First Church of Christian Mennonite, Moundridge, Kansas: The congregation has accepted an architect's plan for a new church building. The finance committee is launching a campaign to raise funds.—Linda V. Kaufman, Corr.

—Bethel Church, Lustre, Montana: The Women's Missionary Society has sent quilt patches to the mission at Lame Deer, Montana, and girl's dresses to Hotevilla, Arizona, and money to the M.C.C. for blankets for relief. April 25 the M.B. church invited us to listen to the colored trio from Naples, New York. April 29 Miss Graves, who works under the Child Evangelism Fellowship, showed slides of her work among the boys and girls of Palestine. Instead of Sunday School Easter Sunday morning, the choir presented a group of numbers. We have enjoyed listening to Brother and Sister Albert Teichrow at the E.M.B. Church. The Teichrows have spent one term in Nigeria, Africa. Sunday afternoon they gave a dramatization of their work among the Moslems. Several from our Church are planning to attend the Northern District Conference at Freeman, South Dakota. Our annual Sunday School convention, in which all the Mennonite groups of this and surrounding communities, take part, is to be held May 26.—Corr.

—First Church, Aberdeen, Idaho: May 12 we gathered in the church parlor for a dinner and in the afternoon in the church for a program in honor of returned servicemen. Special thought was given to the memory of Miss Marion Toews and Ernest Peters who lost their lives while in service.—Arnold E. Bartel, Corr.

—First Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: April 28 the Rev. Virgil Gerig, from Princeton, New Jersey, was a guest speaker in our church and on May 12, 13, and 14 Rev. William Harley King from Colfax, Washington, spoke at special meetings. The Oakleaf Mission Society held a special Mother's Day program at which Mrs. Henry E. Wiens gave a talk on mothers. Each member of the society had asked her mother or a friend to the meeting. —Mrs. Willmar Loewen, Corr.

—Alberta Community Church, Portland, Oregon: On Easter Sunday evening the choir gave the cantata, "Palms of Victory." Since the day happened to be Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Dirks' fourteenth wedding anniversary, the members of the church surprised them with a reception after the cantata.—Mrs. Ferd Wiens, Corr.

—Dayton, Ohio, May 6—A cargo of 55,800 hatching eggs left here today by air transport for Warsaw, Poland, the gift of members of the congregations of the Church of the Brethren in Ohio and Indiana to the people of Poland. This unique relief project was sponsored by the Brethren Service committee, with UNRRA cooperating, and was headed up by Ray Petersime, Gettysburg, Ohio, poultryman and manufacturer. "This project is designed to help needy Poles help themselves," Petersime said. "Besides, chickens can live on almost anything, and at the same time are a source of both meat and eggs." The Church of the Brethren is also sponsoring a heifer project. More than 1500 heifers have been shipped to families in Poland, France, Belgium and Czechoslovakia.

The Mennonite

Volume 61 — June 4, 1946 — Number 23

Photo by Gendreau, New York

God's Orchestra

by Mrs. Willis E. Rich

Four different people at four different times said just about the same thing when they looked at the above picture of the boy with the clarinet. It would be very interesting to learn how many of you who see this picture now in the "Mennonite" had a similar thought pass through your mind. It was this: "This boy reminds me of my nephew (or, neighbor's boy; or, one of my sixth graders) shirt and all." Yes, this boy lives in every neighborhood all over the country, in cities and towns, and on farms. He can surprise us with the way he can play the clarinet, or a trombone, or the drums.

Many of us have been attending activities in our schools these past weeks and have had the satisfaction of knowing that our children have grown, have developed talents and skills. One of the most valuable lessons that our young people have the opportunity of learning is the importance of cooperation. Each instrument in the band or orchestra must produce its tones in right relation to the tones of every other instrument if harmony is to be achieved. Otherwise, the result is a jangled noise. So if a boy or girl would be an acceptable member of an orchestra, he or she must learn teamwork and group cooperation. The violins must be willing to play the same scores over and over again, even though they have already mastered them, until the flute and the oboe too, are sound perfect. Each one must work together and help each other to achieve the harmony

(Continued on page 3)

From the editor’s point - of - view:

SELF-RIGHTEOUSNESS greatly hinders Christian unity. It is a “Better-than-thou” attitude which keeps people from fellowshipping. It is particularly hard to deal with because soaked in religion, it can be passed off as genuine piety in a great many cases. Formal outer goodness is held to be proof of a corresponding inner condition. Actually self-righteousness is a means used by people to deal with their own unhappy inner condition. It is pointed out that a person “who is threatened by forces within himself which he cannot face for what they are, may reinforce his own shaken self-regard by piling up, for others to see, the evidences of his superlative goodness.” Thus for people, “who are unable to reconstruct their own inner world” religion may become the means for expressing a “fierce kind of goodness.’ The refusal of “good” people to fellowship with those who are not “good enough” may well remind us of the Pharisees who despised the common people and the Gentiles and then of Jesus who ate with publicans and sinners. Genuine goodness makes for fellowship and not division. However, it can only come as an individual succeeds in gaining peace within. Christian Unity Sunday, June 9, might well suggest ways and means of attaining that inner peace from whence flows appreciation of others.

CHILDHOOD EXPERIENCES seem to play a very large part in determining what kind of feelings an individual will have as he grows older. It is being pointed out today that when people are “difficult,” one can be quite sure that such people had unhappy experiences in their family when they were children. Behaviour patterns are very largely molded by the intimate, dynamic relationships which a child experiences with parents and brothers and sisters, it is claimed. It seems that when the cement of childhood experience becomes hardened, it can only be broken up and changed into a different form by a dynamic, intimate relationship which serves to heal the damage done by the wrong kind of dynamic, intimate relationships in childhood. Where the individual is unable to find such an intimate, dynamic relationship in his later years, he continues to struggle with the personality twistings of childhood, regardless of how keen and active his mind may be, for his problem is essentially an emotional one. Children’s feelings deserve as much attention as do their minds. (This year Children’s Sunday will be observed on June 9.)

QUIET WAITING before God enables one to become collected and knit together in thought and feeling. Modern life is not favorable to quiet waiting. We are easily driven about quickly and wildly in work and recreation. The radio tempts one to keep it going much of the time. Ours is an age of dinning noise, flashing Neon lights, and feverish activity; it is an age of distraction and not at all conducive to integration of the soul. Quiet waiting does this for one: 1. It enables one to relax. This in turn permits the mind to become aware of the total experience that one has had. Through it one can see a vast number of facts, some of which seem related and make sense and many others which are like a vast puzzle which needs to be put together before one can see a meaningful picture. 2. It enables one to put the puzzle of experiences together into a more meaningful arrangement. Life comes to have more pattern, meaning, sense. As we wait quietly God helps us to discern which factors in life fit in well in the pattern and which ones had better be left out. Life becomes less of a puzzle and more of a purpose. Rescued from the distractions of life, we become knit together and therefore filled with power. We are told in Genesis that “Isaac went out to meditate in the field at the eventide.” Isaiah assures us that “they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint.” It is noteworthy that the disciples waited before the Lord in the days preceding Pentecost. Increased spiritual insight and power can be ours today through quiet waiting before God.

A WAR-LORD’S PRAYER

Our Atom which art in heaven, blessed be thy name!
Thy kingdom come, thy work be done
On earth, as it is in Washington.
Give us today our sense of security!
Lead us not into aggression, and tempt us not to atrocity;
But deliver us from evil, and forgive us our blunders,
As we do not forgive those who blunder against us.
For thine is the power, and the kingdom, and the glory,
And the assurance of peace for perhaps a decade.
And then? . . . Amen!

—Brent Dow Allinson.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA. Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor ------- Reynold Weinbrenner, 722 Main St., Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchange to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS

God's Orchestra

(Continued from page 1)

and the interpretation which is the purpose of the orchestra. And also, each one must learn what is in the mind of the director and the composer, so that great music may be a great inspiration.

When our children are learning the joy and achievement of working together, they are learning one of God's basic, fundamental laws. I Cor. 12 (Moffatt) "We are members one of another . . . . The various members should have a common concern for one another. Thus, if one member suffers, all the members share this suffering. If one member is honored, all members share its honor."

They are shouting it from the house tops these days that the people of all nations must learn to work together, to understand each other, to respect one another, to appreciate one another. They are discovering that the law of God demands it. There must be one world if we are to have any world at all. The constant "jangled noise" produced by each nation striving for its own selfish ends without concern for the other has made a mad-house of the world. It has broken down the nervous system of humanity. We have lived as if we did not belong together. The eye has been saying to the hand, "I have no need of you." The head has been saying to the feet, "I have no need of you." And that attitude carried to its logical conclusion brings about self-destruction. (See I Cor. 12:21)

Again, in this month of June, our churches are celebrating Children's Day. Adults will enjoy a delightful hour of watching the children of the church taking part in a program of songs and verses, and perhaps drama. Our hearts will again be flooded with sentiment and love for our darlings. That is natural. But if we want to see the Kingdom of God on earth and believe in it (Did Jesus teach us to pray for a delusion?), then we are going to be more serious in the future about learning and keeping the laws of God and teaching them to our children. We can be more careful to foster attitudes of respect and appreciation for people in our neighborhood who have a different background and culture from our own. It is a common fault that we point out people as "queer" or "peculiar" just because they have practices and customs different from our own. Many of us are guilty of even talking about other Christians as if they are of a lower order simply because they belong to a church of another denomination. Our children easily catch this attitude of disrespect and it carries over into other areas and blights their life, and makes more difficult and perhaps even impossible the kind of relationship and fellowship which the Kingdom of God requires.

It was stated above that besides working together in cooperation, the members of an orchestra must also learn what is in the mind of the director and composer. So it is in the orchestra of life. "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus," Phil. 2:5, and we will act like members of God's orchestra, listen to our Director and follow the Composer's scores, and produce the harmony and beauty which is His will.

"Love one another" permits no barriers. This feeling of respect and appreciation for one another on a world-wide scale is something we parents have to work at harder, with more determination and zeal. Where can it be done better than in our homes?

"Ye Shall Be My Witnesses"

By Marvin J. Dirks

"Ye shall be my witnesses . . ." Acts 1:8. Jesus told His disciples that they were to witness until every creature heard the good news. We have been told that we too might tell others. We are found to find; we are saved to save others.

Verse 8 reads "Ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Spirit is come upon you . . ." The coming of the Holy Spirit on the day of Pentecost meant the kindling of the hearts of the disciples to flame. They experienced the "expulsive" power of a new affection. They likewise knew the purifying fires of a burning devotion.

As they had known the physical presence of Jesus, so they now knew His Spirit to be upon them. They knew that Jesus himself was alive, and they remembered his words.

We hear Peter saying to the assembly of disciples, "Do you not all remember what Jesus prayed in our presence, when he was speaking to our heavenly Father —Father, as thou hast sent me into the world, even so send I them into the world." Nothing else could now be as important as the proclamation of the gospel of their risen Lord.

Evangelism was the daily program of the early church; it was not just a part of that program, or something for which an allowance was made in the budget. They were not daunted by ridicule or persecution. The persecution that followed the stoning of Stephen scattered the disciples who "went everywhere preaching the word." The love which their Lord had for the lost prompted them to give themselves wholly that others might hear the message.

Zinzendorf could say, "I have but one passion . . ." Men of passion are men of power. Undivided love for God prompts to passionate love for others.

There are lost people everywhere to whom we must witness. People of every nation are denied a witness today. Lack of funds and workers have been for too long a cause of this condition. The indifference of disciples, the lukewarmness of Christians and their inconsistent lives are the basic causes.

Our first duty as Christians is to possess a quality of character which in itself gives evidence that we are "sons of God"—which in itself will be a favorable witness. This quality of character is not developed just by taking care and saying to ones self "I must act like a Christian," although this is obviously necessary for most of us. No! We too, like the early disciples will have to experience the fact of the living Christ in our lives, through His Word and His Spirit. Only to those who live with Christ, in whom He lives, is real Christian character possible; a kind of Christian character which will draw men unto Him. Lives lived in obedience to His commands will be the natural result of a proper relationship to Him. However, at best the matter of our Christian witness does not entirely automatically take care of itself. We must will to witness—witness with a will. The responsibility is ours. It can be discharged only by every Christian witnessing up to his God-given capacity.

We can not know just who is doing the most effective work for the Lord. Who would say that Peter did more for the Lord than did Andrew, who brought Peter to Jesus?

We see, for example, a man who seems to be attracting crowds of people, who holds a high office in a big church; yet perhaps he is only helping that church to "hold its own." On the other hand, envision a poor girl, uneducated, who never in her life attracts attention; however, because she is consecrated, loving, and devout, she sows the seed of life into a child entrusted to her care, who grows up to be a missionary pioneer, a faithful minister, or some great Christian who helps to shape the course of history or the thought of generations.

There are many ways of witnessing. God calls men to certain tasks and waits to hear their reply. Moses was called to lead his people out of Egypt. Samuel "ministered before the Lord." Isaiah faced a difficult task and volunteered, "send me."

"Go labor on! Spend and be spent!
Thy Joy to do the Master's will."

Peter Cartwright, early Methodist evangelist, spent his days traveling and preaching—he preached fifteen thousand times and baptized twelve thousand converts. Through all his writings, one expression runs like a thread "Conversation about souls." We are daily in conversation about many things. Why not add "conversation about souls"? It will not always be easy. Christ did not promise that witnessing for Him would be easy.

We must never neglect to witness to little children, to our children or those of others in our community. Somehow, in some way we must get the message of salvation to enter their young, tender hearts and also to their more hardened parents. Jesus was very anxious that no one be a stumbling block to children and that they were to be allowed to come to Him.

We must witness to people in grave sin. "Envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings, and such like: of the which I tell you before, as I have also told you in time past, that they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God." Gal. 5:21. Such persons must be shown that Christ can forgive and gives victory.

We have just lately celebrated Easter, and as usual on Easter Sunday, the churches were filled with the once or twice a year crowd, with "Easter Christians." Their lives remind one of the miles of swamp land along the Pennsylvania R.R. Their witness is worthless or worse still, even negative. The swamps are breeding places for mosquitoes; so all manner of evil results may come from the lives of the only nominal Christian. But the swamps can be, and are being reclaimed. So Jesus can fill in the lives of barren Christians and make them fruitful. "Ye shall be my witness . . ." said Jesus.

SILENCE

The spiritual life is nothing else but the working of the Spirit of God within us, and therefore our own silence must be a great part of our preparation for it, and much speaking or delight in it will be often no small hindrance of that good which we can only have from hearing what the Spirit and voice of God speaketh within us . . . . Rhetoric and fine language about the things of the spirit is a vainer babble than in other matters; and he that thinks to grow in true goodness by hearing or speaking flaming words or striking expressions, as is now much the way of the world, may have a great deal of talk, but will have little of his conversation in heaven.—William Law

PLEASE

Our churches have responded very loyally to the appeals the Peace Committee has made in recent years. Our C.P.S. expense is slowly decreasing. The Peace Committee has decided to help as best it can in the project of bringing young Mennonite people to America to study in our colleges and so build a larger Mennonite fellowship and recover the Mennonite principles of Peace and good-will in a world of strife and hatred and ruins. We trust that our constituency will continue to help in prayer and giving for this so worthy a cause.—H. T. Unruh, in behalf of the Peace Committee.

This Is That

By Erland Waltner

"But this is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel: And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions and your old men shall dream dreams . . ." Acts 2:16, 17

Thus Peter explained to a startled multitude the strange phenomena of Pentecost. It was obvious that something extraordinary had happened to the disciples. Everyone could see that. But what was it? What had come over them?

"THIS IS THAT which was spoken by the prophet Joel." This, said Peter, is the fulfillment of a prophecy. About nine hundred years before, God had said that one day He would pour out His Spirit upon men. The result would be that they would have the power to prophecy. They would be given a message and the ability to declare it.

The ministry of the prophet, as conceived in the Old Testament, involved at least two aspects—that of seeing, and that of speaking. The prophet was a seer (roeh). He was one who could see more than his contemporaries. He could see beyond the obvious horizon. He could see the consequences of the sins of the people and what God was planning to do in history. This insight was his because he lived in close communion with God, and God revealed His purposes to the prophet.

The prophet, however, was also a speaker (nabhi). He could not only see things but he could say things. He was, literally, a fountain "gushing forth" the stream of God's truth. This stream flowed straight from the heart of a righteous God and was channelled through the prophet to the sinful hearts of the people. The prophet was God's mouthpiece, His spokesman. Joel, as a prophet, had said that one day God would pour out His Spirit upon men with the result that they would "prophesy," would "see visions," and would "dream dreams."

THIS IS THAT which the disciples had now experienced and which empowered them to meet the challenge of the hour. The crucifixion of Jesus had left his followers stunned, speechless, confused, and paralyzed. Their world had been knocked to pieces by the hammer blows that nailed Jesus to the cross. Then, gradually, their world began to take shape again. Jesus was alive after all. He had risen from the dead. It was hard to believe—too good to be true—but there He was, saying to them, "Go ye into all the world and evangelize . . ." He also said to them, "But tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high," and, "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you."

Now the day of the divine empowering had come. Now the Spirit had descended upon them and filled them with the power to do all that Jesus had commanded. Now they became seers. The confusing events of the past days—the life, the death, the resurrection, and the ascension of Jesus of Nazareth—were no longer as a jumbled jig-saw puzzle to them, but each part fitted perfectly into the total pattern which the Spirit had now revealed to them. Now they saw the need of their day. They saw that men needed to repent for sin and to believe in Jesus Christ.

Not only had their eyes been opened, but also their mouths. "They were all filled with the Holy Spirit and spake the word of God with boldness." Now Peter, once afraid to admit that he was even acquainted with Jesus, boldly preached a crucified and risen Christ, calling his hearers to repentance. Neither argument, nor imprisonment, nor persecution, nor death could stop the apostles from declaring that which they had "seen and heard."

THIS IS THAT which the Church desperately needs today. A confused, broken, and dying world is waiting for the voice of prophecy. With King Zedekiah of old, men are asking, "Is there any word from the Lord?" Is there a seer who can see more than what strikes the eye? Is there a prophet who has more to say than to re-echo the monotonous babble of human voices? Is anyone able to say, "Thus saith the Lord"?

The cry of the world was recently given utterance by our own President Truman when he said before a conclave of churchmen, "O for an Isaiah or a St. Paul to reawaken a sick world to its moral responsibilities." The sad thing is that the Church, claiming to have the oracles of God, is itself confused. Nels F. S. Ferre says, "The greatest tragedy is that Christian leaders who are supposed to offer the world help and guidance, themselves stand confused, timid, and powerless."

The need of the hour is that the Church experience a fresh infilling of THAT which was spoken by the prophet Joel and was experienced by the disciples on Pentecost. A fresh outpouring of the Holy Spirit of God upon men of faith is needed. "The promise is unto you, and to your children." The Spirit of power is the gift of God to those who completely surrender themselves to God in faith and obedience.

THIS IS THAT which can give the Church the vision and the voice to serve God in a confused world. THIS IS THAT which can give the Church purpose and power. THIS IS THAT which can make the Church to be God's seer and God's spokesman in a world that is waiting for "any word from the Lord."

Promoting Mennonite Unity

By Andrew Shelly

"Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!" (Psalm 133:1)

"That they may be one . . ." (John 17:22)

"Endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace". (Eph. 4:3)

The scriptures portray Christians as being involved in a family relationship. This suggests filial devotion. It necessarily means a oneness. The Apostle Paul develops this thought of unity beautifully in his epistle to the Ephesians. In the first chapter he lays the fundamental foundation—"In Christ." Then, he suggests that those "in Christ," constitute an essential "oneness" (2:12-16). In the next two chapters St. Paul develops his theme by stating that love ought to be the ruling passion of all those within this unity. The fourth chapter is an exhortation to a fuller realization of this oneness and to a stabilized faith (3:13-16). Finally, the writer discusses the work and armour of those "in Christ."

An Expanding Unity

Logically, the spirit of unity ought to be an expanding thing. There are at least four steps in this expansion:

First, is the individual unity with God. This involves a deepened prayer life, an increased knowledge of the scriptures, worship, an enlarged vision—until our wills will be at one with His Will.

Second, we think of the next immediate steps—the home and church. Indeed, the local church should be considered a spiritual family group. In writing to the Thessalonians, St. Paul tells the Christians there to love, comfort and edify one another.

Third, is the denominational unity. While all evangelical denominations base their beliefs and practices on what the Bible teaches, there are points of variance. While it is true that there are also points of variance between groups of Mennonites, it also remains true that the unifying factors are stronger. One reason that this becomes a very great challenge to us as Mennonites is because we have insisted on a literal acceptance of the teachings of the Scriptures, and their practical application to life.

Fourth, we mention the wider unity. Actually when Paul says we are "one in Christ Jesus" he refers to all Christians everywhere. All redeemed souls constitute the "bride of Christ." This includes all nations, races, creeds, etc. It is heartening to know that no warfare can destroy this because the "Unity of the Spirit" transends human limitations.

This last "unity" is tremendously important. We join with Christians everywhere in united efforts for Christ and His Kingdom. This includes the positive side in missionary endeavor. The Bible Societies are an illustration. It also involves the negative side in fighting the foes of righteousness. Full, passionate cooperation should be given the causes of temperance and sabbath observance. We, with other Christians, have much at stake—we must cooperate!

Mennonite Unity

This can be promoted in four ways: First, the spiritual life of each individual, each local church, and group is of paramount importance. One minister in illustrating this truth asked his members to come close to the pulpit. When they had all left their seats and come forward, he told them to come as close as they could. Then, he leaned over the pulpit and told them that as they came close to the pulpit they came close to each other. So also in getting close to Jesus. This fosters the spirit of humility, purifies motives, and releases wisdom which automatically promotes unity.

Second, we need to realize our common heritage. Think of it—we have been redeemed with the same blood of Christ, we are indwelt by the same Holy Spirit, we read the same Bible, we have the same historical heritage, our common ancestors died for the faith—and, what is equally important,

"Our fears, our hopes, our aims are one,
Our comforts and our cares."

Indeed our tasks unite us.

On the first Monday evening of December of last year, two hundred young people of five different groups of Mennonites gathered for an advent service in our Church. The theme was "Youth and Jesus." A remarkable unity was felt as broad, common foundations were discussed and as our special unifying factors were realized.

Third, we need to understand each other. Dirck V. Coornhert (1522-1590), a Dutch leader, wrote: "Did we but understand one another aright, we should find that we are not so far apart as we think." How true this is. I receive and read weekly papers from two conferences other than our own. As I read these regularly, I find my understanding of them increases tremendously. Further, I find my willingness, eagerness, and ability to cooperate is fostered. The truth of this dawns upon me constantly as I work on committees and boards with members of at least six other groups.

Fourth, we must all be possessed of a consecrated desire to promote unity even to the extent of sacrifice. Possibly people of the General Conference are apt to become too worldly, while people of very conservative groups lag behind more than is necessary. We must individually, and cooperatively, sympathetically think through what it means to be a Mennonite Christian.

The Challenge

Why be interested in promoting Mennonite unity? "That ye may be one" was the prayer of Christ. This certainly applies to us. Our witness requires it. We cannot preach peace unless we are "endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." The importance of our tasks give us new incentives. We have a common rallying point in our M.C.C.

Let it be said in conclusion that this challenge does not demand "uniformity." Nor does it suggest relinguishing individual identity. It means putting into active practice all that we believe and teach. It means a genuine love and concern for all. It means an active cooperation in the name of Christ.

"Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

For Christ and His Church in Colombia

By Gerald Stucky

There is no question that the Spanish language is a beautiful language—especially if spoken by someone who learned it in infancy. To learn to speak it as it should be spoken is taking and has been taking for the last six months most of our time. When we listen to some of the foolish mistakes that we sometimes make, we think again of the American minister who went down to Mexico on a visit. While in Mexico he wanted to learn some Spanish. He asked a missionary friend for a drink of water, and when this was brought to him, he very politely said, "Buenos Aires" (meaning to say Muchas Gracias). Whereupon the missionary replied with much dignity, "Montevideo." There are still many things that we can't understand and can't say—but we feel that definite progress is being made. One does wish at times, however, that the Tower of Babel would never have been built.

While we are studying language we are also trying to adjust ourselves to a new country, new people, and new customs. The country, though not far from the equator, has almost any kind of climate that one can imagine. High in the mountains it is cold—in the valleys are the hottest tropics. Medellin is at an altitude of about five thousand feet and hence has balmy weather the year around. Flowers are always in bloom—trees are always green. Carnations sell for about ten cents a dozen and orchids twenty-five cents a flower. The people are a mixture. Here in Medellin there are but few Indians. There are Indians in Colombia—a lot of them—but not here in Medellin. The people here are White (Spanish stock) mixed with black (African negro). In Bogota, the people are white mixed with Indian. In general, the people are handsome and suave. They are inclined to be religious to a point of fanaticism—but not spiritual. Romans 10, I believe, makes a good description of them. Socially—they are universally friendly. Almost invariably they can spot us as foreigners by our faces and by our actions. One of them told us that its the way we walk—that marks us as North Americans, i.e., always in a hurry, with head bent forwards. The little children love to practice their English vocabulary (which consists of about two words) on us—it consists of Hello and Goodbye. The customs that come to our notice the most frequently are naturally those which differ from ours. A woman that is ironing will not drink water or put her hands into water for until about twenty minutes after she is through ironing—for fear that she will get the "grip." It is considered a bad practice to open your windows at night as night air is "bad air' and may cause the grip. When leaving a public place at night, everybody puts his handkerchief over his nose—believing that the change from the air inside the buildnig to that of the air outside the building will certainly cause the grip if received too suddenly. The handkerchief will keep that from occurring. The wearing of black clothes when mourning the death of a loved one is almost invariably observed. If a husband dies, the widow wears black for the rest of her life (unless she should remarry). The children must also wear black for about two years.

Colombia has about nine million inhahitants. Out of this vast number of people there are only about two thousand evangelical Christians (baptized membership). This is true in spite of the fact that missionaries have labored here for about fifty years, and that today there are about two hundred of us here. It is only here and there that one finds a small band of evangelical believers—always in the minority, often persecuted. Yet the power of the gospel to change the hearts of men is at work here—and from this land there will yet be many to sing hosannas to His Holy Name.

(Foreign Missions material is handled by Rev. Howard Nyce, 1528 Chew Street, Allentown, Pa.)

◆

In Memoriam

Mrs. Eva Hilty, sixty-five, passed away May 6, following a cerebral hemorrhage four days previous. Mrs. Hilty had been active in the work of the church and had been the Beginners superintendent of the Sunday School for twenty years. She is survived by her husband, Dr. N. S. Hilty, and four sons: Roy of Bowling Green; Ray of Bluffton; Ralph of Berea; and Reno of Brookville, Ohio. Funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. Ernest Bohn of Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio.—Mrs. S. W. Steiner, Corr.

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

On a European Mission. Dr. Ed. G. Kaufman, President of Bethel College, and Dr. E. E. Miller, President of Goshen College, are about to leave on a special mission to Europe to study the possibilities and work out plans for a European and American Mennonite student exchange. This is being done under the auspices of the Council of American Mennonite and Affiliated Colleges and the Mennonite Central Committee.

The plans are two-fold: European refugee students are to be given opportunities to study in American Mennonite and affiliated colleges as well as Mennonite students. Also arrangements are to be made which will enable Mennonite students from America to spend some time in advanced study in European universities.

There is no doubt that this student exchange can become one of the most fruitful means of promoting an exchange of thought and mutual understanding among the Mennonites the world over. And we American Mennonites, one of the youngest branches on the Mennonite family tree, who have received so much nourishment through European roots and have gained much from the experiences of our older brethren in Europe are under great obligation in this worthwhile enterprise.

Home Mission Work in Pictures. Rev. R. Weinbrenner recently showed approximately seventy slides illustrating the Home Mission Work and activities of the General Conference, including city missions in the United States and Canada as well as activities in rural areas. This is a splendid way of making our churches aware of one of the significant activities of the Conference. Rev. Weinbrenner has written a lecture guide to accompany the slides, which make it possible to show them anywhere in the United States and Canada. For further information write to the Bethel College Slide Service, North Newton, Kansas.

Kagawa on Mennonites. In Kagawa's book Brotherhood Economics he writes: The Anabaptists preserved the spirit of brotherhood. . . The princes of the feudal system, however, were partly pagan, although they were nominally Christian. They despised such 'hundred per cent Christians.' Unfortunately, they were abetted in the persecution of them by a great church with political power, and their brotherhood movement was suppressed. That great and saintly man, Jacob Hutter, was killed, His followers fled to Russia. There they lived until Lenin recently bore down upon them with persecution, since he did not like their Christian communism. They fled again, this time to Brazil. They settled near Japanese immigrants who reported back to Japan that in only four years' time these persecuted Christians had been amazingly successful in re-creating their Christian brotherhood in the new land." (pp. 104-5)

Hutterites in Brazil? The Plough Towards the Coming Order (Vol. II No. 2), The Hutterian publication of the Cotswold Bruderhof in England, publishes the above account and wonders whether there are any Hutterian brethren in Brazil. They wrote to Kagawa about this matter and received the following reply: "I cannot give you much detailed information of the Hutterians in South America, other than mentioned in Brotherhood Economics. Japanese who are living near them are my authority for my statement. They are settled somewhere near Sao Paulo, Brazil, and it shall be my pleasure to try to get further information for you. . . May God bless the Cotswold Bruderhof and its great devotion to the cause of peace! Oh that more people in the world would dedicate their lives to peace! With kindest regards to your brethren in the community, I am, yours sincerely, Toyohiko Kagawa."

There is no doubt that the "Hutterians" near Sao Paulo, Brazil, are the Mennonites from Russia who settled there some fifteen years ago.

Pacific District Conference Program

Menno Mennonite Church, Lind, Washington
June 20 - 23
Theme — "Lead us on O Christ Eternal"

Ministers' Conference

Thursday morning

9:00 - 9:30 Devotional ---------- Clyde Dirks
The Minister called of God ---------- Rev. Paul Roth
The Minister and His Bible ---------- Rev. Harold Burkholder
The Minister and His Church ---------- Rev. Henry Harder
The Minister leading the congregation in Prayer ---------- Rev. Orlo Kauffman

Afternoon session

1:30 Devotional ---------- Rev. John Bartel
What constitutes a good sermon ---------- Rev. P. K. Regier
The Preacher in the pew ---------- Prof. L. J. Horsch
A Ministry of Music ---------- Mrs. Rollin Moser
The Minister, his relation to the Conference ---------- Rev. J. N. Smucker

Thursday evening, Conference session

7:15 Song service ---------- In charge of local church
8:00 Address of welcome ---------- Rev. Edmund Miller
Response ---------- Rev. P. A. Kliewer
Conference sermon ---------- Rev. Homer Leisy

Friday morning

9:00-9:30 Devotional ---------- Rev. P. D. Unruh
9:30 Business ------
11:30 "Mutual Aid" --------

Friday afternoon

1:30 Devotional ---------- Rev. J. P. Glanzer
1:45 Unfinished business ----
3:30 The Church and its program of evangelism ---------- Rev. Wilbert Regier

Friday evening

Women's Missionary Session

(Continued on page 10)

Y.P.U. OFFICERS

Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.

Vice President
Verney Unruh

Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference

Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

Aims of the Youth Farm at Rosthern

by J. C. Schmidt, Isaac Epp, Henry Friesen

(Continued from last week)

The Children's Home and Orphanage

The project of the Children's Home and Orphanage was the first and main project discussed when first contemplating the purchase of the Farm. At every meeting since then this has been a lively subject under discussion. Last summer, 1945, at the retreat, definite plans were made towards this project. It was then decided that the committee go right ahead in the coming year if they found it possible or advisable to begin at so early a date. However, after discussing the pros and cons of so great an undertaking (not only by the committee but by other reliable sources) it was deemed advisable not to spread our efforts over too many projects at once. While the Invalid Home was already started, it was decided to enlarge it first, and then start with the Children's Home. While the project has been tabled for the present, it has only been done so to be picked up as soon as possible. Most of you realize that a children's home as we are planning, where the children grow up and get their training, and where they receive not only religious instructions but training in field husbandry, dairying, poultry, black-smithing, carpentering, etc. etc. requires not only a house, but a well-equipped farm. This Youth Farm of Rosthern is an ideal place for such a great undertaking. A number of donations have already come in for this purpose. One sewing circle offered to sew a whole year for the children's home. Other sewing circles have likewise offered their services. Some children have already applied. Two public school teachers have offered their services. Just recently a donation of five thousand dollars was offered for the building of a children's home on condition that the farm remain a direct mission project. Further this donor desired this children's home to be commenced this spring if possible. We feel the Lord is opening the door for this work.

The Agricultural Side

There are some of our young people who believe the Farm should be used only as an agricultural college to train our Mennonite Youth in the ways of farming. It is realized that this too is a worthy cause. However, a great number of our youth feel we should continue in the future as we have in the past, that is, concentrate our efforts mainly on more direct mission work. We are improving the farm and going into registered stock, seed, etc. We are also laying plans to work together with the Government in connection with seed plots. We want to make this a model farm. We are also willing to assist in arranging for short agricultural courses during the winter months for our farm boys, under condition that they will also receive religious instruction.

At one of our last committee meetings, the Academy sent two representatives to enquire in what way we would be able to assist them in furthering their agricultural course. The committee made the following suggestion. We permit them to use some ten acres or more of the best land for experimental purposes as well as make a study of the cattle, etc., on the farm. The details of course, would have to be arranged.

We, however, are convinced that this type of work, that is, supporting agricultural courses, etc., should only be a sideline and not the main project of the farm. "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His rightousness." Surely by using a large part of the proceeds of the farm in direct mission work, such as supporting evangelists, orphanage, etc., it cannot be said the farm has no aim. "One soul is worth more than the whole world."

Our Government is doing much in arranging agricultural courses, etc., for young people. Much is being done along this line. Why then should we split our efforts instead of continuing along the line of more direct missionary work when we are not nearly able to meet the spiritual needs of our people as it is.

Let us as Christian young people ever be conscious of our immediate responsibilities to our people, whether they be young or old. Let us be much in prayer concerning the developments of our Youth Organization. The Executive Committee, J. C. Schmidt—President; Isaac Epp—Sec.; Henry Friesen—Vice Pres.

IS AMBITION DANGEROUS?

It seems to me that I have read of a poet saying something at one time about vaunting ambition overleaping itself, but I wonder if very many of us have very much of that sort of thing. I have my doubts. You know real ambition makes big demands on anyone, sends him out early in the morning to work sometimes, and keeps him at it until all hours, and at work, too, often that is hard and taxing. That is a programme not always to our taste; it is just a little too demanding.

Of course it must make some difference as to what you are ambitious about, when you are thinking whether or not ambition is really dangerous equipment. I suppose to have ambition in some second-rate or not altogether worthy direction could scarcely be thought of as wise or safe, but mightn't it be true that not to have any ambition at all would be as bad, if not a little bit worse? To go through life not trying to do anything at all but get through as easily as possible, seems like encouraging a very low and quite unworthy human standard.

But what are the big and specially worthy ambitions that living in this world would suggest to us, and gives us reasonable opportunity of putting into exercise and practice? Thinking of specific things, mightn't be easy to answer such a question as that. But we do not need to think of specific things at all to get our answer. What we are doing with our life is often not nearly so important a question as to how well we are doing it. A conscientious builder of houses is cherishing a finer ambition than is a careless teacher in a good school. — Onward

THE TRUTH ABOUT HALF TRUTHS

On a sailing vessel the mate of the ship, yielding to a temptation, became drunk. He had never been in such a state. The captain entered in the log of the ship the record for the day: "Mate drunk today."

When the mate read this entry he implored the captain to take it out of the record, saying that when it was read by the owners of the ship it would cost him his post, and the captain knew well that this was his first offense. But the obdurate captain refused to change the record and said to the mate, "This is the fact, and into the log it goes."

Some days afterward, the mate was keeping the log; and after he had given the latitude and longitude, the run of the day, the wind and the sea, he made this entry: "Captain sober today."

The captain protested when he read the record, declaring that it would leave an altogether false impression in the minds of the owners of the vessel, as if it were an unusual thing for him to be sober. But the mate answered as the captain had answered him, "This is the fact, and into the log it goes."

This is a good example of how, by an accuracy of statement, but by misrepresentation of circumstances, one can injure the character of another.

SOME SUMMER RECREATION SCHOOLS

Young people interested in recreational leadership should inquire about the following summer opportunities:

Wisconsin Recreation School, Madison, Wisconsin, June 1-8.

Write: W. F. Wileden Extension Department, Wisconsin University, Madison, Wisconsin.

Hiram Recreation Laboratory, Hiram, Ohio, May 12-18.

Write: Rev. Eugene Hibbard Windham, Ohio.

Missouri Recreation Workshop, Kaiser, Missouri, May 18-23.

Write: Ruth P. Muhleman Perryville, Missouri.

Illinois Leisure Craft and Counseling Camp, Bloomington, Illinois, May 27-June 1.

Write: Rev. D. C. Ellinwood, San Jose, Illinois.

(Continued from page 8)

7:30 Devotional ----
Special music
Speaker ---------- Mrs. Aron Jantzen

Saturday morning

9:00 Devotional ---------- Rev. F. F. Jantzen
Unfinished business
Address — The Church and its program of Christian Teaching ---------- Dr. P. S. Goertz

Saturday afternoon

1:30 Devotional ---------- Rev. F. D. Koehn
Unfinished business
Address — The Church serving through the Conference ---------- Rev. J. N. Smucker

Saturday evening

7:30 Song Service
8:15 Address — The Church and its Program of Christian Brotherhood ---------- Dr. P. S. Goertz

Sunday morning

Services arranged by Local Church

Sunday afternoon

1:30 Song Service ---------- Rev. Henry Harder
Devotions ---------- Dr. P. S. Goertz
Special music
Message — Training for Christ and the Church Rev. Edmund Miller
Special music ----
Message — The Christian Workman — Rev. J. N. Smucker
Special music ----

Sunday evening program

Arranged by Young People

Relief Responsibility

(Message of the World Council of Churches)

The provisional Committee of the World Council of Churches assembled at Geneva, Feb. 21-23, 1946, for its first meeting after the World War, sends forth the following message:

THE WORLD today stands between life and death. Men's hopes of a better world have not been fulfilled. Millions are enduring intolerable suffering. The nations seem impotent to deal with the crucial problems of international order. A heavy burden weighs upon all mankind.

We face this crisis as Christians, whose own consciences are gravely disturbed. Yet God in His mercy has committed to us the ministry of His Word, and that Word we are bound to declare. Men are going the way of death because they disobey God's will. All renewal depends upon repentance, upon turning from our own way to God's way. He is calling men to a supreme decision. "I have set before you life and death; therefore choose life."

War is the result of human self-will and of men's tragic inability to find the true solution of their conflicts. We pray God that the United Nations will choose the way of life and save future generations from the scourge of war. But the time is short. Man's triumph in the release of atomic energy threatens his destruction. Unless men's whole outlook is changed, our civilization will perish.

An illusory peace is little better than war. No peace can be lasting unless it is built on true spiritual foundations. We appeal to all men of good will and all who believe in spiritual values and forces to work together for an order of justice and humanity.

All nations are under the judgment of God. Those that have been defeated are suffering a fearful retribution. But the springs of their recovery are within; and if they turn to God and heed the voices of those among them who, even in the darkest days, withstood the forces of evil, they can yet take their proper place in a world community. The victorious nations have also suffered greatly, but their victory brings with it a new responsibility to God. They should combine justice with mercy. To seek vengeance against their former enemies by depriving them of the necessities of life, or by mass expulsion of their populations, or in any other manner can only bring fresh disaster. There must be a new beginning in the relationships of all nations. The nation has its own place in God's purpose for mankind, but national egotism is a sin against the Creator of all peoples, great and small alike. No nation can fulfill God's purpose for itself which fails to answer His call for full cooperation and fellowship with other nations as members of one family. There is a mutual interdependence between social order and international order.

We therefore appeal especially to the Government of the Five Great Powers to rise to their responsibilities to the world. It was by the union of their forces that they won victory in the war. We ask them to unite their whole strength in a common purpose now for the establishment of justice, for the relief of hunger, and for the development of a world community of free peoples. Unless they turn from their old ways of reliance upon mere might and own their subjection to God's law of righteousness and love, they pursue the way of disaster and death. "I have set before you life and death: therefore choose life."

A special duty is laid upon the Churches to help the nations to choose the way of life. Christians are called to be the salt of the earth and the light of the world. To them is given the ministry of reconciliation. It is their responsibility to bear witness by word and deed that the law of God finds its fulfillment in the love of Christ. We call upon all followers of Christ to do whatever they can to help those who are enduring the terrible need and suffering of the present day, and to strive after a better order in which the rights of man will be fully recognized and protected. We trust that those Churches which are stronger will continue to aid the Churches in the liberated and suffering countries, and that all will increasingly support the world mission of the Church. We earnestly urge that all will pray without ceasing for forgiveness, for unity, and for real human brotherhood.

We ourselves give thanks to God for our ecumenical fellowship in Christ. Through the years of war that fellowship has been broadened and deepened, and by God's grace we have discovered anew that He strengthens us in the universal fellowship of His Holy Church. We rejoice that we have been able to come together again after the trials of these years, and have found our hearts knit together as one brotherhood in a spiritual unity in Christ which has transcended our differences. For this experience our hearts are glad and thankful, and in it we see a sign of hope for all mankind. In this God hath made known to us the mystery of His will, that in the dispensation of the fullness of time He might gather together in one all things in Christ. He is our peace. In Him is the life of mankind.

"I have set before you life and death: therefore choose life."—From the Youth's Christian Companion

Youth Events

". . . The first step toward a civilized program of dealing with mental illness was taken by the House of Representatives recently when it passed the National Mental Health Bill. That measure, which will provide for the training of much needed psychiatric personnel and for research, is now before the Senate health sub-committee as S.1160 . . . The National Mental Health Program. . . has been launched to carry on the excellent work done by conscientious objectors in mental hospitals during the war. . . ." (Christian Century, April 24.)

* * * *

A member of the British Parliament, who declared that he did not "care two rows of pins what happened to the German people, men, women and children", was greeted with cries of "Shame, shame!" from the benches.

* * * *

Bishop Berggrav, the great Norwegian patriot, closed a sermon in Westminster: "You say, 'These are days of distress.' I say to you, that they are days of the greatest opportunity, days that need all your work, wonderful days, great days."

* * * *

Howard E. Kershner, representative of the Save the Children Federation, reports that in western Europe alone, ten million children are unable to attend school because of lack of clothing. In one hospital he saw four-year-old children who weighed only fifteen pounds.

* * * *

Th Secretary of the American Bible Society reports that his organization has already shipped sixty thousand New Testaments in Japanese and one hundred thousand New Testaments in English to Japan. He said two hundred thousand Testaments in Japanese were being printed, and paper for two hundred thousand more was being requested.

* * * *

Plans are underway to have a meeting of ex-C.P.S. men and families for all "ex-conchies" in the Central Kansas region. The meeting is to be held June 9, Sunday afternoon, at Bethel College. The main purpose of the meeting is to make possible a period of social fellowship. A program will be included as a part of the meeting and refreshments are being planned. Roland Bartel, North Newton, Kansas, and Henry Guhr, Lehigh, Kansas, are making arrangements for the meeting. All ex-C.P.S. men are urged to spread the news.

* * * *

The Russian Orthodox Theological Institute, now located at the historic Novodevichi Monastery in Moscow, has an enrollment of ninety students, with applications far in excess of accomodations available, and the institute may move to the former Moscow Theological Academy in Gagorsk, which has been offered them by the government.

A representative of the British Council of Churches will be among seventeen young people scheduled to visit Russia at the invitation of the Soviet Government.

* * * *

Reporting on the International F. O. R. Council Sessions held in Stockholm, Norman Whitney from the U.S.A. writes, "About fifty persons attended the 'open' meetings, but thirty delegates and officers, representing twelve countries . . . made up the Council. Of these practically one-third had been in prison or concentration camps during the war; half had known life under 'occupation.' An American pacifist must and does stand in great humility before such a company of faithful people . . . Theirs is an aristocracy of suffering which we can never share; the eagerness with which they received us was, therefore, the more touching . . . One whole day was spent in hearing reports of pacifist experience in the various lands represented. They were tales of isolation, persecution, imprisonment, hiding, loneliness, suffering; of secret meetings and escapes by night, of resistance without and spiritual conflict within; of heroism, of sacrifice and of failure. But there was not one word of complaint about hunger or physical hardship or danger. Only a glowing gratitude for the returned privileges of freedom and fellowship; an earnest searching heart and mind for understanding of past failures and future hope."—"Information"

* * * *

One year after the end of the war in Europe, 68 percent of Americans expect the United States to fight in another war within the next twenty-five years; an additional 11 percent expect war before fifty years have passed, making up a total of 79 percent or nearly four-fifths of the people expecting war within the next fifty years.

* * * *

Five members of a British Friends Ambulance unit serving in Germany tried living on the basic German ration. A report of this experiment states that "For the first two days there was no noticeable effect beyond hunger. Then came listlessness, mental inertia, lightheadedness, tiredness, constipation and chilblains."

* * * *

An effort is under way to bring some negro students from Mississippi to Bluffton College next year. These prospective students would be selected by persons at the Gulfport, Mississippi, C.P.S. unit and would be qualified students in need of the aid of more privileged people to make possible their education.

◆

There is much talk about methods of "ending hunger." Congressman Voorhis of California told Congress recently that the distillers and brewers are using 225,000 tons of scarce cereals—corn, rice, rye, barley, etc.—per month, which are suitable for feed and food.

RELIEF

Changes in China

A cable from Commissioner C. L. Graber, dated May 19, reports several changes in assignment, administration and headquarters address. Quoting from the cable: "NEBEL (Dale) RETURNING MANILA. . . BEYLER (Clayton), KUYF (Wilhelmina), LIU (James, a member of one of the General Conference Missions who is working with the MCC members in Chengchow) ADMINISTRATIVE COMMITTEE SUCCEEDING PANNABECKER". The headquarters is being moved to a new address: Canadian Church Mission, South Suburb, Kaisena, Honan, China.

Personnel Appointments

At the May 17 meeting of the MCC Executive Committee the following appointments were made: Martin Schrag, Moundridge, Kansas, Director of MCC India Unit to succeed Harold Sherk after the completion of his two-year term in latter 1946; Ray Schlichting MCC Controller, Commissioner to Northwest Europe area headquarters and unit offices — August to October, 1946; A. E. Kreider, Goshen, Indiana, Special MCC Commissioner to the Far East—from about November 1, 1946; H. S. Bender, Goshen, Indiana, for joint MRC and Mennonite-lexicon commission to Northwest Europe—about October, 1946.

Relief Worker Appointments

The MCC Executive Committee made the following appointments for relief service on May 17: (Of long list we mention here only those names which may be of interest to General Conference readers.—Editor)

China

Vida Amstutz, Pandora, Ohio; Glen D. Braber, Wayland, Iowa; Robert Waltner, Freeman, S. D.; Dallas C. Voran, Belmont, Kansas.

India

Martin Schrag, Moundridge, Kansas; Elaine Snyder, R. N., Waterloo, Ont.

Philippine Islands

Francis Musser, Upland, California

Paraguay

Ella Berg, Los Angeles, Calif.

Special Session of Mennonite Central Committee Held

A special session of the Mennonite Central Committee was held in Chicago on May 17. Topics of discussion included the following: budget increases for transportation of material aid contributions, servicing and financing immigration of displayed Mennonites in Europe, sending CARE packages to Europe and rehabilitation of CPS men.

College Presidents to Visit Europe

Ernest Miller, President of Goshen College, Edmund Kaufman, President of Bethel College, have been asked to make a study visit to Northwest Europe in the interests of the Association of Mennonite Colleges and to study MCC concerns in this area. They are scheduled to leave Boston on June 6 aboard the S. S. Ile de France.

Relief Briefs

Brother and Sister Gerhard Buhr landed at Buenos Aires, Argentina, on May 22 enroute to Paraguay.

Cleo Mann reports that clothing distribution was to begin in the city of Liege, Belgium, on May 14.

J. J. Thiessen, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, was recently appointed an additional representative for the Mennonite Central Relief Committee of western Canada.

C. P. S.

Camp Staff Appointments

Paul Albrecht, assistant director of C. P. S.

Arthur Jost, regional director of California district, replacing Rufus Franz, effective July 1.

Henry Reimer, Rocky Mountain district regional director, replacing Vincent Krabill, effective June 1.

Arthur Voth, secretary to director of CPS, effective July 15.

Theodore Friesen, acting director, Camino, effective June 15.

Robert Kauffman, assistant director, Camino.

Orlando Friesen, assistant and educational director Belton, effective June 15.

Melvin Flickinger, business manager-clerk, Lincoln Unit I.

Irvin Nussbaum, assistant director, Farnhurst.

Roland Brown, Educational director, Marlboro.

Ernest Goertz, assistant director, Exeter.

Menno Fast, CPS research assistant, beginning June 20 History.

Speed-up of Releases

On May 21, Selective Service announced that the following groups of men were to be eligible for discharge after June 1: fathers of two children with eighteen months of service as of May 31, 1946; fathers of one child with twenty-four months of service as of May 31, 1946; all assignees who have had thirty months of service as of May 31, 1946 (all those drafted before November 30, 1943). This is a speedup of a little more than six months, as compared with the Selective Service directive issued late last year.

In a recent meeting between the heads of MCC-CPS and officials of Selective Service, Col. Kosch stated that as of April 1, 1946, 70.8 percent of all drafted men in the armed forces had been discharged, and 60.9 percent of all men in C.P.S. had obtained releases. He also expressed the opinion that this discrepancy would be narrowed within the next few months.

Nurses and Dietition Needed

The CPS Section would be interested in volunteers for various camp nurse and dietitian vacancies. Those interested should write to CPS Director, Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pennsylvania.

MCC Relief Program—Its Relationship to Famine Emergency Committee and Other National Drives.

Recently our government has indicated a somewhat belated but earnest concern for the starving peoples of the world. An Emergency Famine Committee has been organized to collect food and money for relief purposes. The food which is collected is to be turned over

(Continued on page 14)

College and Seminary News

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

An unusually large number of alumni, former students, and friends attended the commencement activities. The chapel was well filled for the Booster Concert, and the program was excellent. Rain somewhat marred the May Day activities of Saturday, but the scheduled events were held indoors quite satisfactorily. The unveiling of the plaque bearing the names of the members of the first Board of Trustees of the college, then Central Mennonite College, was one of the features of the afternoon. In this program the address given by Dr. N. C. Hirschy at the time of the laying of the cornerstone of the building was read. Mrs. N. C. Hirschy was present and spoke briefly. In the evening the Ropp Hall dining room was packed to capacity for the Alumni Banquet. Over two hundred plates were served. Two showings of the Shakespearian play were held in the evening due to the fact that it had to be given indoors. President Ramseyer spoke on the topic, "Let Us Rise Up and Build" for the Sunday afternoon Baccalaureate service, using Nehemiah 2:18 as a text. Dr. E. G. Kaufman gave the Commencement address Monday morning, speaking on "The Challenge of the Kingdom." It was an excellent address, very well received.

BETHEL COLLEGE

The regular school year closed with the activities, on May 26 and 27, of the fifty-third annual Commencement season. On Sunday afternoon the Music Department gave a vesper service of choral and instrumental numbers and in the evening president Kaufman delivered the Baccalaureate sermon on "The Challenge of the Kingdom". Honors chapel was held on Monday at 10 A.M., with awards presented for scholastic, athletic, and forensic achievements, followed by remarks from former graduates and other visitors. The luncheon meeting of the Alumni Association at 4 P.M. was well attended, with Alvin J. Reimer, president, as master of ceremonies. As Commencement speaker, President E. E. Miller of Goshen College gave a very fine address during the evening program on "The Christian Philosophy of Greatness". From among the thirty seniors receiving degrees, four were awarded the Order of the Golden A: Ruth Smith (Pawnee Rock), Donna Regier (North Newton), Elda Duerksen (Inman), and Lola Mae Regier (Mountain Lake, Minn.).

MENNONITE BIBLICAL SEMINARY

Closing events for the Mennonite Biblical Seminary and the Mennonite Bible School are just ahead. Such events always bring with them precious thoughts of rich experiences. They also cause one to look into the future and to think of the responsibilities which lie ahead. Students of our Seminary, as well as students of the Bethany Seminary, have freely expressed the thought that each group has made a fine contribution to the other. It has widened our horizons. The Administrative Committee met again, May 10. Plans were made and some action taken in regard to the future of the school. Three of our students—LaVerne Rutschman, Robert Hartzler, and Gerhard Neufeld—have graduated with a M. R. E. (Master of Religious Education). They are planning, however, to continue their education towards a B. D. (Bachelor of Divinity). Our pre-enrollment for the coming school year stands now at twenty-one for the Seminary.

(Continued from page 13)

to UNRRA for distribution. The newspapers and radios are informing the American people of the staggering needs of this day.

As Christians we are in sympathy with the purposes of the Emergency Famine Committee and other nationally organized drives. The American people need to be informed—urged—stirred out of their complacency in this hour of great human suffering. Through these channels all of us no doubt are reminded again of our responsibility to do our utmost in giving of our material goods to those in need.

Many of us will want to do even more now that these needs have been brought before us in such a vivid manner. It is our hope that you will desire to continue to give loving and sacrificial support to your relief effort. It is a conviction which many share that a maximum effective witness can only be made through a Christian relief program. Now more than ever before we solicit your prayers and support that this ministry may be carried forth "In the Name of Christ."

—Atlee Beechy

WHO THEY ARE

Mrs. Willis E. Rich is the mother of four children, ranging in age from the primary grades to high school. She is a mother who "finds time" for her children, feeling that parents owe their children more than food, clothing, and shelter.

Marvin J. Dirks and family went to China for language study. Later when war broke out between Japan and the United States, they were interned in the Philippines. Now Rev. Dirks is studying music at Northeastern University, Evanston, Illinois. He hopes to return to China.

Erland Waltner is pastor of First Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota, and a member of the Board of Education of the General Conference.

Andrew Shelly is pastor of a Mennonite church in Kitchener, Ontario. This church is not a member of the General Conference, but it sent a delegation to the recent session of the Eastern District Conference.

Gerald Stucky is one of the pioneer missionaries, who are to open the new General Conference field in Colombia, South America. He is now studying language in Medellin, Colombia.

Jottings

—Rev. C. B. Friesen, Pastor of the Herold Church, Bessie, Oklahoma, has resigned his pastorate, to be effective in August, and has accepted a call from the Walton Mennonite Church, Walton, Kansas. Brother Friesen writes, "At the last annual meeting the Church had elected me again for another three years, but the dry climate here does not agree with Mrs. Friesen's health, and we regret very much that we have to leave here. We enjoy the work at Herold Church and we feel that we have only just begun." Rev. Friesen also states that he plans to attend Bethel College next winter.

—Swiss Church, Alsen, North Dakota: At a union meeting of the Mennonite churches of this community in our church on May 5, Ronald Winstanely, a missionary from South America and representing the Prairie Bible Institute of Three Hills, Alberta, showed pictures and gave vocal and instrumental numbers. We were glad to have Rev. and Mrs. Ed. Duerksen and family with us May 14. Rev. Duerksen gave a message during the service, and a short program was also given. A fellowship lunch followed the service. Rev. Duerksen is a former pastor of this church. Some remodelling work is being done on the church parsonage.—Corr.

—Canton, Oklahoma: On May 20 we began our Bible school at the Arapahoe Indian Church, Canton, Oklahoma. Forty Indian children are enrolled and attendance has been regular. Miss Myrtle Unruh of Enid, Oklahoma, a student at the Oklahoma Bible Academy, Meno, is one of the teachers.—Arthur Friesen

—First Church, Madrid, Nebraska: The Bible school has four teachers and the superintendent. It is hoped that the enrollment will exceed that of last year, which was fifty.—Rev. John G. Unruh

—Rev. H. N. Harder, Pastor of the First Church, Aberdeen, Idaho, writes of the ordination of Willard Wiebe, who is a student at the Mennonite Biblical Seminary, Chicago. Brother Wiebe has been elected by the First Church, Beatrice, Nebraska, to serve as pastor during the summer months. This church was formerly served by Rev. Walter Dyck.

—The Institute of International Relations to be held at Friends University, Wichita, Kansas, June 5-14, will include such speakers as: Maynard Krueger, Vera Brittain, John B. Thompson, Bertram Wolfe, Hathiro Yuasa, Raymond Wilson, Milton Mayer, Roy McCorkel, and Louis Dolivet.

—Bethel Church, Winton, California: On May 19 this church celebrated its fifth anniversary of joining the Pacific District Conference. Rev. John Bartel of Shafter was guest speaker. A pot luck dinner was enjoyed at noon. Mr. and Mrs. Jake Neufeld, also of Shafter, provided the evening program by giving illustrated songs. The attendance was good. The evening offering for foreign relief amounted to seventy-six dollars. The A. E. Heppner family left by car for Kansas, Minnesota, and Washington.—J. P. Glanzer —First Church, Nappanee, Indiana: For our Sunday evening program we had a panel discussion on "Peace on the Industrial Homefront" by a farmer, a salesman, a merchant, a working man, a foreman, a doctor, and a minister. The discussion helped us to think about great national problems in the light of the Gospel. The J. Lorrel Mulletts of Ann Arbor, Michigan, announce the birth of Gilda Irene, May 15. J. Lorrel is the son of our former minister, Rev. E. S. Mullett.—Mrs. Loyal Corwin, Corr.

—First Church, Burns, Kansas: We had our first worship service in the basement of the new church on June 6.—Mrs. Sam Stucky, Corr.

—Correction: Thirteen young people were recently received into the Deep Run (Pa.) church and not thirty as reported in these columns.

—First Church, Wadsworth, Ohio: About seventy-five attended the Mother-Daughter Banquet on May 13. Miss Martha Burkhalter was the speaker of the evening. Flowers were presented to the oldest mother, the youngest mother, and the one having the most children.—Mrs. J. Millard Fretz, Corr.

—First Church, Lehigh, Kansas: The vacation Bible school started May 27 with Helen Voth and Charlene Unruh of the Tabor Church as teachers. Rev. B. H. Janzen returned last week from a two-week stay in Colorado C. P. S. camps. Milton Harder and J. Winfield Fretz of North Newton, Kansas, conducted the services on those Sundays. Rev. C. C. Wedel of Goessel conducted the Memorial Day services. The Janzens left on May 26 for two weeks to get their son Elmer from Harrisburg, Pa. Elmer Janzen was married there on May 30.—Mrs. F. G. Unruh, Corr.

—Greenfield Church, Fort Cobb, Oklahoma: Eight young people were received into the church by baptism on May 19, and one was received by letter. The church had communion on May 26.—Henry Dalke, Corr.

—Bethel Church, Inman, Kansas: The Instruction Class has completed its discussion of the catechism. On June 2 our articles of faith will be read to the members of the class, and on Pentecost Sunday they will be taken into the church through baptism. Willie Friesen and Ella Toews were married in the Hebron Church on May 26, and Alvin Jantz and Anna Neufeld were married in the Bethel Church May 29. The annual Sunday School festival was held in our church on Memorial Day.—Dan E. Neufeld, Corr.

—The Peace Committee of the General Conference will meet at North Newton, June 13, 14.

—Arnold Nickel, 1946 graduate of Bethel College, will serve the Sugarcreek, Ohio, Church during the sum-

---

HEADQUARTERS OFFICE CORNER

The Minutes of the 1945 Session of General Conference are ready for distribution. (Two copies to each Conference vote) Each congregation is kindly asked to give opportunity for an offering toward these printing and mailing expenses. Churches near Newton are requested to get their supply from our office. Extra copies may be gotten or ordered from the General Conference Headquarters, 722 Main Street, Newton, Kansas, at fifty cents each.—Walter H. Dyck Executive Secretary.

mer, while Rev. William Stauffer travels for the Mutual Aid Board.

—Garden Township Church, Moundridge, Kansas: On May 26 the returned missionaries from India, Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Duerksen, were in our church. Mrs. Duerksen gave a nice talk at the close of the Sunday School, and Rev. Duerksen occupied the pulpit and gave a very interesting report of the mission work in India.—Corr.

—First Church, Pretty Prairie, Kansas: We deeply appreciated the pictures shown us by Missionaries Habegger of the Cheyenne Indians of Montana, Sunday, May 19. Ninety-seven are enrolled in vacation Bible school. Funeral services were held for John C. Kaufman, age seventy-seven, on Sunday, May 26. Ten boys and four girls were baptized May 26. Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Schwartz of this church announce the marriage of their daughter Faye to Glennin Finfrock, June 12.—Ralph Krehbiel, Corr.

—Bethany Church, Freeman, South Dakota: Mrs. M. J. Wollmann, member of the Reconstruction Committee of Bethany Church, received a check for the building fund for five hundred dollars through her father, Mr. A. E. Lugibill, Bluffton, Ohio. This sum was made up by members of the First Mennonite Church in Bluffton, Ohio, Ebenezer, St. Johns, and the Grace Church in Pandora. May the Heavenly Father bless the givers of this generous gift, which is certainly a noble gesture and a sign of goodwill from one church to a sister church in time of need. These friends believe that we can "Bear one another's burdens."

—Missionary Alfred Habeggers of Busby, Montana, recently came to North Newton to attend the graduation of their son David, who has been a ministerial student at Bethel College. After the commencement exercises the Habeggers left for a visit to the Oklahoma mission fields.

—Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Dester also attended the closing activities at Bethel College. They plan to spend June and July at Deer Creek, Oklahoma.

—The J. R. Duerksens are living on West 12th Street in Newton, and their son Joe is working in the Secretarial Bureau at Bethel College.

NOTICE

We have been offered a wholesale distributorship for the famous Doehla and Bluebird lines of Christmas and Everyday cards. These cards, we find are superior in quality to anything we have ever handled. And because we now have a wholesale set-up, we will have PLENTY of cards so that we can sell wholesale to churches, societies and individuals who would like to sell these cards and earn EXTRA money. Anyone interested should write at once so that all arrangements can be made before the rush season.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN

Berne, Indiana

"Make money for yourself while helping your conference book store."

Mrs. G. A. Linscheid
222 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

C-6

Central Conference Notes

The conference program committee and representatives of auxiliary organizations met at the Normal Mennonite Church on April 26 to plan for the forty-seventh annual session of the Central Conference to be held at Topeka, Indiana, August 15-18. Four sessions will be given over mainly to conference business and the others will be inspirational. Rev. J. N. Smucker, president of General Conference, has been invited to deliver the closing sermon on Sunday evening, using the topic, "A United Church Facing a Discordant World."

* * * * *

Word has been received that Rev. C. E. Rediger, executive secretary of the Congo Inland Mission Board, arrived at Leopoldville, capital of the Belgian Congo, on May 5. There he found the Misses Anna Liechty, Selma Unruh, and Agnes Lutke waiting for a river steamer to take them up the Congo and Kasai Rivers to Charlesville. They all left the next day, May 6, and should have reached their destination eight to ten days later. Rev. and Mrs. Glenn Rocke will leave June 5 for service in the Congo. The new air service which makes the trip from New York to Leopoldville in three days, is proving a wonderful advantage in moving missionaries to and from the field as compared to the former four to six weeks' ocean trip in normal times.

* * * * *

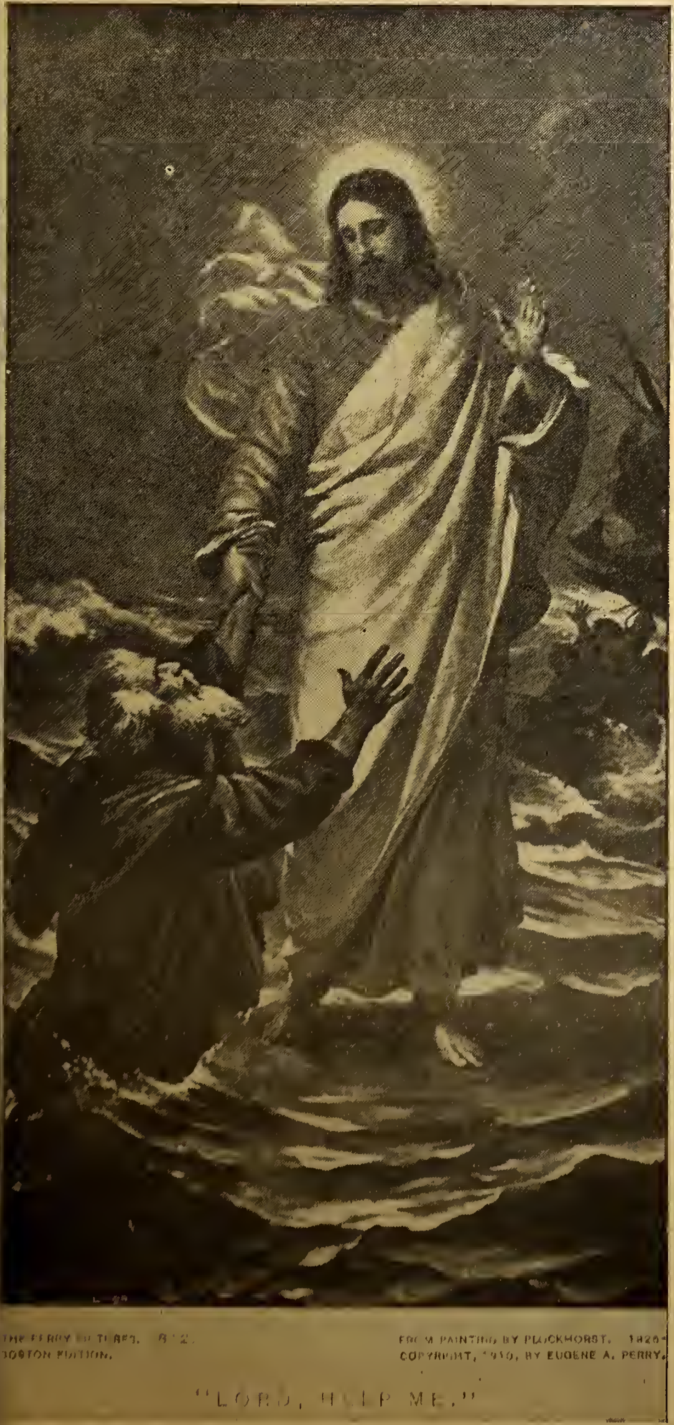
The dedication of the new Troyer Memorial Nurses Home was the most largely attended event in the history of the Bloomington Mennonite Hospital. The day was ideal for the occasion and a large number of people took advantage of it. The service was held in the Memorial Home. The lecture hall and library room were filled to capacity, and many stood in the hall, the attendance being estimated at 650-700. Open house was observed after the dedicatory service and in the evening, during which times, the local paper reported, 1500 people went through the building.

The dedicatory address was given by Dr. J. E. Hartzler on "To the Service of Mercy." The climax was reached at the close of his address as he unveiled the bronze memorial plaque and an enlarged picture of Rev. Troyer, both gifts to the institution by Dr. and Mrs. Hartzler. Rev. Henry Yoder led the congregation in the dedicatory liturgy and prayer. Music was furnished by Prof. Russell Lantz of Bluffton College and a trio of student nurses.

An illustrated brochure has been prepared which will be sent upon request. Mennonite girls who are interested in nurse's training are invited to investigate the School of Nursing of Bloomington Mennonite Hospital as a place to take such training under the sponsorship and supervision of the Mennonite Church. Address such requests or inquiries to Mennonite Hospital, Bloomington, Illinois.

The Mennonite

olume 61 —— June 11, 1946 —— Number 24



THE PERRY PICTURES. [illegible]
BOSTON EDITION.

FROM PAINTING BY PLOCKHORST. 1825-
COPYRIGHT, 1910, BY EUGENE A. PERRY.

"LORD, HELP ME."

He Was Afraid and Sank

"But when he saw the wind, he was afraid; and beginning to sink . . ." Fear made it impossible to perform a physical feat. Fear has a defeating way about it. It tends to make us lose out to the very thing which we are desperately anxious to avoid. A man, unused to walking on an eight-inch girder three hundred feet up in the air, would very likely be unable to walk on it for even a short distance. He would fear, and fearing he would have such a vivid, compelling picture of falling in his mind, that his very thoughts of falling would stimulate his muscles in such a way as to cause him to fall. Only when thoughts of success would outweigh his thoughts of fear might he successfully traverse the distance. Whatever gets control of our mind gets control of our actions. This truth has important implications for international life as well as for individual life.

It seems that today the American public is being increasingly persuaded that trouble with Russia lies ahead. The fear of not being able to get along with Russia seems to be growing. As it gets the center of attention in the minds of the American people it will cause them to behave in just such a way that it will be difficult to live peaceably with Russia. This fear will tend to exclude from the minds of the American people such alternatives to friction as do exist. It will become a hypnotic fear unless it is recognized for what it is and how it works.

Fear is of such a nature that it also seeks to become "master" in one's private life. If we fear strongly enough, fear will make us sink down into the very thing feared.

Faith that all things can "work together for good," in the sense of helping us to love God and man more, helps to free us from the power of fear.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point - of - view:

CONFESSION plays an important part in coming into right relationships with God and with man. We can hardly be very honest with God until we are honest enough to confess what we know of ourselves and then some. The latter is true, because we have a tendency to repress some of our painful self-knowledge into the subconscious. While it lies buried there we may be unaware of the facts. However, as we begin to confess what we do know of ourselves, then confession gradually helps to uncover that which was buried and forgotten. Through confession we can really learn to know ourselves. That this is true is made evident by the suggestion that one try revealing his innermost self by lying down on a couch, closing one's eyes, and speaking to a friend absolutely whatever comes into one's mind. There is much that a human being tends to withhold from others and also from himself. This withholding makes impossible that fellowship which goes to the roots of life and is therefore most vital. Any unwillingness to let others know us as we are tends to separate us from them, and it also chokes the life within us. Dr. C. G. Jung says: "There appears to be a conscience in mankind which severely punishes the man who does not somehow and at some time, at whatever cost to his pride, cease to defend and assert himself, and instead confess himself fallible and human. Until he can do this an impenetrable wall shuts him out from the living experience of feeling himself a man among men . . . For we are all in some way or other kept asunder by our secrets and instead of seeking through confession to bridge the abyss that separates us one from another we choose the easy by-way of deceptive opinion and illusion." Sweet fellowship develops between people when through confession they once discover how much alike they are and when through confession they once stop trying to be more than they actually are. Confession grips and shakes one into vital relationships with God. It makes the individual get down to reality. It makes him face things as they are. Only through such an attitude can God's truth come to one in abundant measure. Since so much of our sin consists of separation from our brothers, we come nearer to God as we come nearer to our fellowmen through openness of life. Confession is a first step in dealing with feelings of guilt. It is frequently a means towards better physical health. James touched on this when he wrote, "Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed." Confession can help bring a revival of spiritual life as is made clear in this issue by an article telling about a revival in China. As human beings we sin. Therefore it is important to know that "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness," I John 1:8,9.

SUCCESS IN RELIGION is something that is very tempting and damaging. It is very tempting because to nearly all appearances it seems to be promoting the good. Kept from carnal self-indulgence by fear and self-protectiveness, an individual may express his self-will and pride by "shining" in religious activity. The very goodness of religion makes such a temptation so subtle and so inviting for the individual who is willing to be quite good but not quite loving, that it is a standing temptation in the field of religion. Success in religion is very damaging in that it focuses people's approval on secondary virtues and neglects to draw their attention to the primary virtue of being loving. It is damaging to the individual who is successful in that it keeps him from going deeper and striking the water of abundant life. Why should anyone seek success in religion rather than to love? Is it not, perhaps, because such an individual has failed to experience outgoing, self-giving love? Is it not, perhaps, because of a sense of uneasiness and guilt that seemingly must come to those who go against God's law of love? Is not the way out for such persons an experience in which some other individual witnesses to them of God's love, the love which accepts persons just as they are. Feeling accepted and forgiven through an experience of divine love, the individual no longer has to condemn himself and is therefore enabled to accept himself with all his weaknesses as well as his strengths. Once able to appreciate himself in both respects, he can also appreciate others who are human in the same way. He finds himself free from that uneasiness, guilt, or compulsion that might drive him to find success for self in religion. He is in love with Love.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA. Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor ______ Reynold Weinbrenner, 722 Main St., Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchange to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS

Revival at Kai Chow

(God seems to have prepared the hearts of his peo- e for the difficulties which they are meeting under e Communist regime in our mission field. The follow- g story was told by Mrs. James Liu, who with her isband recently evacuated the area due to action gainst them. It can perhaps best be told in her own ords. — S. F. Pannabecker)

IRS. JAMES LIU'S ACCOUNT OF THE REVIVAL

I have been a Christian believer for twenty years nd never, even when a child, felt right without prayer efore retiring. Still prayer was more or less formal. Last fall Dr. Feng held services in our church but with ery little result. He felt greatly disappointed and said e didn't know why God did not help more; the hearts f the people seemed so like stone. On closing he re- uested that daily prayer meetings be started which ve did.

All through December and January I attended the neetings each evening with others of the church nembers but took no responsibility for them. In fact o one took responsibility for them. The bell rang nd we gathered in a room in the compound formerly occupied by Dr. Hu— he has moved into the city ou know, to work in the Peoples' Hospital. When we athered together someone would suggest a song, another say a few words of testimony, and then we all prayed together and the meeting closed.

About the end of January the school closed for winter vacation, and I was then freer to do other things. still attended the prayer meetings regularly but took o active part. One night, when sleeping, there came a voice in a dream which said, "The responsibility for he prayer meetings is given you." I replied, "I can't lo it. I can't do it." (Wo pu chung.)

I was still repeating this when I woke up and ames heard it and asked what was going on. Thinking hat my reply had closed the matter I still continued going, early or late as the case might be, but not assuming further interest. Some time later I took to gathering the children together at prayer meeting time. They were just a bother in the meeting anyway, so I taught them songs and Bible verses. However, they still attended prayer meeting and suggested songs and prayed as well as the older people.

The attendance grew from ten to fifty or sixty, and the room in Dr. Hu's yard was too small so we moved into an empty room in the hospital yard. This only lasted a short time, for the attendance increased and we moved again this time into the church where about one hundred gathered each evening. We met just about dusk when it began to get too dark to work. We didn't ask anyone to attend, just rang the bell, and then the people in the compound would drop their work and go to the church; some from the east suburb came too. There were also many children, and they prayed even longer than the old people and sang and testified too. Sometimes there were as many as two hundred present. The meeting started with a song, often the children starting it with perhaps "Hsi tsai, chin tsai." Then whoever wished to make a testimony did so, or perhaps a confession. One followed another and the meetings often lasted as long as two hours. They closed with everybody joining in together in prayer.

In the beginning the testimonies were mostly as to victory or perhaps stated in such a way as really to be criticism of others. It was not until later on that a sense of defeat and sin became evident. When that came, then one after another felt burdened for wrongs they had done, confessed to taking the things of others or perhaps mission property, and made some kind of repayment where possible.

It was Mrs. Ma Kuan-tou who started the confessions of defeat and sin, and I will tell you about her as an illustration. You know Mrs. Ma was in the Bible School and did occasional evangelistic work. More recently she has been somewhat sick and they have four children, the oldest of whom is not quick in studying and the third is deaf and dumb. So Mrs. Ma often asked for prayers for herself and her family, stressing her sickness and the needs of her two children. I often felt like reprimanding her because the Bible says to "seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness."

I didn't used to understand that either, but now I see clearly that one must pray clearly first for God's will to be done and only after that for our individual needs. However, I didn't say anything to Mrs. Ma about it, but one day in prayer meeting she made a confession of her own sin. She said she woke up the night before and stayed awake a long time while her sins came before her. She remembered she had stolen

---

Kai Chow in Honan Province of China is the city where the General Conference began its China mission work about thirty-four years ago. A church, schools, nd a hospital were built there. During the recent war years the mission work was greatly handicapped, lthough native leaders sought to carry on. James iu and his wife were among them. Now under the hinese Communist regime in our mission field, they ave had to evacuate as Dr. Pannabecker mentions in is introductory note to Mrs. Liu's story. James Liu will be remembered by some as one of the two Chinese tudents who attended Bethel College around 1930. r. Pannabecker, former missionary to China and ow M.C.C. relief commissioner there, sent in Mrs. iu's account of the revival.

certain articles and that she had spoken wrongly to others. All this oppressed her until she prayed that if God would only let her go to sleep, she would confess it all in prayer meeting the next day. This she did with tears. The next day she confessed again, mentioning other things which God had showed to her. She said she had not gone to Bible School for the Lord's sake but for getting good grades and for the hope of a salaried position. All this she now saw was wrong because it was not out of love for God, and she wanted now to live for the Lord. Again and again, as many as five times she confessed more things that had been revealed to her as sinful. No more did she want prayers for her sickness, but she wanted to love God and was quite willing to leave her sickness and her children to his care.

As I said, Mrs. Ma was the first to confess sin and defeat. Then others became convicted of wrongs they had committed too. I had to confess to pride and doing things that were not right. Mrs. Kuo, who used to cook for Dr. Pannabeckers, confessed to taking cotton and oil and such things. She wept and paid to the church an offering for these things. She was truly converted. Many of the others did the same with weeping. They repented, many of them really for the first time and were truly reborn. We had not understood before what it meant to be reborn. I know of twenty-one who definitely confessed with tears and were clearly reborn. There were others too, but I was not sure of some of them.

The children also prayed and confessed and even wept. Some of them did not fully understand what they were doing as after they had confessed they would still tell lies to their parents. Others understood more and were consistent. I heard one little east suburb girl, who did not come from a Christian home, praying for her parents that they should attend church and come to understand the Gospel. At Sunday School I taught them about killing and said that hating others was the same kind of sin. Then some of them confessed to hating others and the next day two of them knelt in prayer meeting and prayed with tears long after the rest had finished praying for forgiveness for hating others. I didn't encourage the children to do those things because they don't always understand but they just want to themselves.

Rev. Chang— you know his honesty and we always knew he was truly reborn— he didn't attend the prayer meetings, not because he didn't approve of them but because they were accustomed to use that time for their family devotions. He became convicted and privately confessed to James with tears that he had spent time preaching but had not done his duty in pastoral work among the church members.

About the middle of February I was at home working and praying for the evening meeting as I always did when the idea came that soon trouble was coming for us. I couldn't imagine what it would be, but thought perhaps there might be opposition from the Communists to my taking active part and leading the meetings. I also felt condemned in the presence of Dr. Feng because he had sold all of his property in order to follow the Lord better. Then later we heard rumors of attempts to stir up trouble for us by accusing James and taking away our property. This I felt the Lord would not allow, for he says that not a sparrow shall fall without His knowledge. Then one day as I was going to the prayer meeting, it was just as I passed through the little gate behind the church, the thought came to me, "Your time of poverty is here." I wept but went on. The next day we got reports of accusations against James, and he left for the country. A couple days after I joined him, and we ran away leaving everything behind us.

Mutual Aid and Home Mission Boards Engage Rehabilitation Worker

On April 23rd representatives of the Home Mission and Mutual Aid Boards worked out a plan of engaging William Stauffer of Sugarcreek, Ohio, pastor of the First Mennonite Church there, to devote time to the rehabilitation interests of both Boards. There are three main problems confronting these boards which require a considerable amount of time now and will for some time in the future.

First, is the work of rehabilitating CPS men. It is the wish of the General Conference that the men who have served in Civilian Service Camps without pay for themselves or without allowance for their dependents should at least be assured of a job or a chance to establish themselves in a modest way in farming or in jobs. This was one of the primary reasons why the Mutual Aid Board was created. In order to give the proper assistance to these men a great amount of time is required to work with the local congregations and help the individual applicants to a solution of their respective problems. At the present time the Board has made twelve loans for such purposes as purchase of a truck to help an individual establish himself by doing hauling in the harvest fields, the purchase of a small home, the purchasing of a farm machine shop equipment, the purchase of household equipment; several loans have been made for the purchase of farm machinery, livestock and automobiles where they were necessary for transportation to and from jobs. In all cases such loans need to be worked out after careful investigation.

Second, the Home Mission Board with the Mutual Aid Board is interested in rehabilitating small churches. In the General Conference there are 154 congregations not considering the Central Conference. About one-third of these have memberships of less than one hundred. Many of them have even less than fifty. They are located in areas where additional settlers could profitably establish homes and earn a living. It is the concern of the two boards that some of the CPS men, who need rehabilitation, might find opportunities in areas where churches also need to be strengthened. For this reason the joint boards are engaging in this co-operative venture.

The third mutual task of the two boards that will call forth much effort is that of finding homes for displaced Mennonite European refugees who may find admission to the United States under the quota basis. Such people will have to have guarantors that they will not become public charges in this country. It will be the primary task of the Mutual Aid Board to work with this problem as an aspect of its colonization work.

William Stauffer will be giving part of his time during the summer months to this new assignment. He is planning to attend all of the district conferences, including the Canadian Conference at Vineland, Ontario. In the course of his work at the conferences he will also visit some of the outlying churches in the interests of the two boards. — J. W. Fretz

How to Deal with Your Doubts

BY DR. JOHN SUTHERLAND BONNELL

It is a very grave blunder for any one to believe that all doubt is bad. Doubt has a constructive as well as a destructive function to fulfill. The fact that a man doubts may simply mean that he is using his God-given intelligence in the search for truth.

Indeed, it is very questionable whether any man can reach a point of fixed beliefs without first having passed through the fires of doubt.

Robert Browning, in "Rabbi Ben Ezra," pours scorn on those people who boast of never having doubted:

> "Rather I prize the doubt
> Low kinds exist without,
> Finished and finite clods,
> Untroubled by a spark."

Humanity owes a great debt of gratitude to those pioneers in human progress who dared to question and examine the conclusions of the men who preceded them.

From time immemorial it was believed that our earth was the center of the universe, and that the sun and all the stars and the planets revolved around it, but in the sixteenth century Copernicus doubted, and by his critical examination of the evidence has come all the marvels of modern astronomy.

In the fifteenth century, it was universally believed that the earth is flat, and mariners were afraid to sail out into the ocean lest they fall over the edge of the world. But Columbus doubted, and through his studies of ancient maps and charts he was led to make a voyage which opened up two vast continents for exploration.

In the nineteenth century surgeons believed that it was quite impossible for them to carry infection to their patients in the operating rooms. But Lord Lister doubted, and began investigations that led to the discovery of antiseptic surgery, and modern aseptic surgery. Within half a century more lives were saved than the Napoleonic wars had flung away.

If man ever ceased to employ the faculty of constructive forward-looking doubt, progress would cease and stagnation would begin.

Unfortunately, however, that is not the whole story, for doubt itself can lead to stagnation. If an individual chooses to live in doubt instead of using it as a passageway to progress, then all his faculties will be seized with a kind of paralysis and there will hang over his life a dull and dismal atmosphere, like the foul miasma enfolding a fever-ridden swamp.

Shakespeare says:

> "Our doubts are traitors,
> And make us lose the good we > Oft might win,
> By fearing to attempt."

That is the negative side of doubt.

Now, when we come to the sphere of religion, let us be clear on one thing: doubt is not a sin. No man or woman, especially no young man or woman, should be afraid of those questionings that arise in our minds.

Each of us must come to the place where he makes his father's or mother's faith his own. To reach that place he must pass through the valley of doubt.

Fearlessly we should face our doubts in the spirit of Tennyson's hero:

> "He fought his doubts and gathered
> strength,
> He would not make his judgment blind,
> He faced the spectres of his mind and laid > them;
> Thus he came at length to find a stronger > faith his own."

Dr. John Sutherland Bonnell is the author of "Pastoral Psychiatry." The above article is reprinted from "The Presbyterian" in which it was given in slightly extended form.

The Christian faith was never put more persuasively than in the words which Henry Drummond employed in an address to the students at Edinburgh:

> I do not say that to be a Christian you must have doubts. Doubts show interest and zeal, and I pity the man here tonight who is cocksure of everything in Christianity. It is not all as plain as a pikestaff."

And he continues:

> "There is no class of men with whom Christ was more sympathetic than those who doubted. He liked to get away from the Pharisees, the men who 'knew it all,' and walk with the humble, the truehearted, loving spirits."

Nowhere is our Lord's tenderness to the doubter revealed so clearly as in his dealings with John the Baptist. That heroic man had run afoul of King Herod and his evil consort. In the presence of the royal court, John had thundered forth this judgement on the guilty monarch:

> "It is not lawful for thee to have thy brother Phillip's wife."

But those words cost him his freedom and later were destined to cost him his life.

As this lover of the wilderness and of the open sky paced back and forth in the dungeon like a caged lion, he could hear the lapping of the waters of the Dead Sea against the foundation of the castle, and the light that filtered through the one little window made strange and spectral shadows on the floor of his cell.

Mary Drew, the daughter of Gladstone, tells of a visit she paid to Dartmoor prison in Britain. This is what she writes:

> "I saw the poor convicts working about a place filled with the most ironical sunshine."

It was this ironical sunshine creeping through the window in the prison cell that filled John's lonely soul with doubts and questionings. "What is happening to Jesus? I have predicted that the Messiah would come in a storm of judgement, but He is speaking words of tenderness and love. Where is the axe that I said would be laid to the roots of the tree? Where is the storm that would winnow out the chaff? Where is the fire of judgement that would refine the gold? Have I been mistaken, after all? May He not be the Messiah? Should we look for another?"

In great perplexity John furtively sent a message to his followers: "Visit the Galilean and ask Him these questions I send." The disciples of John journeyed to the section of Galilee where the Master was carrying on His ministry.

"We come from John the Baptist," they said. "He asks this question, 'Art Thou He that should come or do we look for another?' "

How will Jesus react to that? Surely He will be crushed and dissapointed, and a little bitter. Was it not this very John who proclaimed Him Messiah at the Jordan and who called out to the multitude: "This is He of whom I said, 'There cometh one mightier than I after me, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to stoop down and unloose!"?

Was it not he who said, 'Behold, the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world"?

Now he is asking, "Art Thou He that should come or do we look for another?" Strange, the effect imprisonment can have on the minds and souls of men!

But there was no disappointment, no impatience, no censoriousness in either the attitude or the words of Jesus. He said to these disciples of John:

"Tell John all the things that you have seen and heard, how that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised; to the poor the gospel is preached, and then say to him: 'This is what the the Master says: Blessed is he whosoever is not offended in me.' "

Is it not a striking fact that Jesus did not answer John's question categorically? He did not say: "Yes, I am the one and you are not to look for another." He said, in effect: "Give John the evidence, and let him make up his own mind."

You see, our Lord wanted the Baptist to have a first-hand and not a second-hand faith. How reasonable is the appeal of Jesus! There is no desire on His part to force the decision of any man or woman. His attitude is akin to that high point in the Old Testament where God, speaking through the Prophet Isaiah, said to his people: "Come, now, and let us reason together."

The Christian Church does not say: "We will do your thinking for you. It is very unwise and unsafe for you to think for yourself. We are the custodians of the truth. We will tell you what you must believe." No! That was not the method of Jesus, and it is not basic Christianity.

I am interested to notice that in answering John's doubt Jesus appealed to experience. He said: "Tell John the things that are happening, and the evidence will impel him to realize that God's power is at work in the world."

There is no more convincing testimony than a manifestation of God's activity or the experience of an individual who has found God. These evidences carry conviction.

Faith is impregnable when it is fortified by verification. The only way to discover and to authenticate truth is to practice it and to live by it. Then only can you say, "I know Him whom I have believed!"

Prof. David Smith, of Scotland, tells that on one occasion he overheard a conversation in an Edinburgh hospital. A medical man, just graduated from college a young fellow filled with skeptical ideas, was talking to a young woman. He poured scorn on her concept of God, and he mocked at her faith. She defended it

A Christian Attitude towards Russia

BY H. A. FAST

The recent attitude of Russia at the United Nations Conference and at the so-called Peace Conference has been very disturbing to people who are deeply concerned about the future peace of the world. The reactions to this Russian attitude have been varied. Some newspapers and magazines and some radio commentators have been very violent, bitter and highly inflammatory in their denunciations of her attitude and policies charging her with most sinister motives and intentions. In a spirit of utter impatience and disgust many are vindictively advocating a policy of "tough talking" and threatening. The result of such policies obviously only serves to stir up mistrust, fear, and enmity and consequently prepares the way for another fearful war and this time with Russia.

Does not the Christian have a better answer to the problem of dealing with a great land like Russia than "tough talk" and other measures that incite fear and mistrust? Is it not obvious that Russia's attitude at the international conference table is largely motivated by fear of the intentions and mistrust of the motives of her allies and but tense feelings toward her former enemies? If this is so, would not an attitude of unwearied patience, goodwill, and understanding be the quickest way of allaying her fears and of making her a friendly co-worker in the great common tasks ahead?

Jesus told us to love our neighbors, even our enemies because that was the method God, the Father, used in accomplishing his great redemptive purpose with men. If we would work in a genuinely redemptive fashion with the government with an atheistic viewpoint, then we must show forth in our attitude to Russia something of the Christlike spirit with which God deals with those who stray away from him. Before we are too harsh on Russia with all her mistakes and with all her ruthless ways of dealing with minority groups, we had better in a spirit of genuine repentance remove from our own eye the beam of our own sins and brutalities with minority groups.

The Christian way of dealing with Russia is not to point the finger of scorn and impatience at her, shutting her out from our company but rather to show forth in our attitude a spirit of such large hearted goodness, so genuine and Christlike in character and action that she may see our good works and learn to glorify our Father in Heaven. We certainly will not win Russia by caricaturing and exaggerating her faults, by brow-beating her, by regarding her as an enemy and inciting people against her. If she is won at all to a peaceful and friendly co-operative relationship with other nations in a great common effort for a peaceful world, it will be by the methods of friendship, patience, understanding, truthfulness, fair dealing and love. The well known lines of Edwin Markham appear to me most appropriate as describing the Christian attitude which we ought to bear to Russia:

"He drew a circle that shut me out,
Heretic, rebel a thing to flout,
But love and I and the wit to win,
We drew a circle that took him in."

---

as best she could, but finally her eyes filled with tears. "I cannot argue with you; you have got too much education. You are too clever for me; but, doctor," she said, "there is one thing I am sure of, however: I have found peace. Have you?"

The young doctor turned away from her, with a clouded face, for that was the one thing in life he desired and could not find.

That young woman called upon the unanswerable argument for Christianity, which is a personal experience of Christ, in His power to transform defeat into victory.

Let each of us ask himself this morning: "Do I possess that kind of experience? Have I learned to employ the spiritual resources of the Bible, and of prayer, in my daily living?"

Personal experience of Christ! That is the rock of assurance. It is what we all desperately need.

Have you doubts? Are you troubled and bewildered and perplexed? Do what John did. Bring them to Jesus, and He will say to you: "Hold fast to what you can believe, and then follow me, and I will lead you into the truth that makes men free."

The Blank Paper

One summer evening my father caught me tearing down the street after another child, screaming: "Wop! Dirty Wop!" He took me into the house, sat me down at a desk and gave me a sheet of paper. "Now I want you to write down every way in which you are different or better than that little Italian girl."

Dinnertime rolled around, and my paper was still blank. I took it slowly to my father. He smiled. "That's a good paper. Now, until you can create a wonderful human soul, as God can, don't presume to criticise anyone because God chose to have him born a member of any one of His nations or races. Remember this paper." And I always have.—M.C.-M. in "The Churchman."

Overcoming Prejudices

BY WALTER ADRIAN

To overcome prejudices, as the title suggests, it is important that we understand the meaning and nature of the word itself. Prejudices are, simply, premature or biased opinions of somebody or something.

Prejudices can be either negative or positive. When we are so extremely favorable towards a person that we blindly accept his every word and deed, we are said to hold a positive prejudice. On the other hand, when we tend to dislike, fear, or condemn without cause (and usually there is little if any), we hold a negative prejudice. Generally speaking, negactive prejudices are more prevalent.

Prejudices, usually emotional in nature, are not inherited but learned. However, this process of learning is usually not recognized by us as it goes on through a slow, subtle process of conditioning aided chiefly by sereotyping, by limitations and suggestions from others along with personal experiences and the culture of our native community.. The influences of our parents, teachers, ministers and friends are tremendous in this process of acquiring prejudice.

Prejudices grow most and best under the three following conditions: where there has been some vivid and unfortunate experience with persons different from those of your own group, where there are few persons who can or are willing to give the other side of the picture, and where individuals with community prestige hold prejudiced views.

A first step, then, in overcoming prejudices must involve an awareness on our part of existing premature or biased opinions in our own thinking. We must discover the blind spots, as it were. Although awareness is no guarantee that we have overcome the particular prejudice, it is a necessary and important step in the whole process. It is only after a physician has discovered the cause of a peculiar illness that a cure can be affected.

Suppose that in our process of recognizing and eradicating or overcoming prejudices, we try the following simple plan. First, get a pencil and a sheet of paper. Now select some belief that you hold which you know can be either proved or disproved through a study of the facts that can be gathered from some reliable scientific work. Immediately jot down your own exact opinion.

Then without going to any reference book or material, write down all the supporting evidence and facts that you have for own exact opinion. And don't be too greatly alarmed if you discover that you have little evidence for your opinion. Most people don't.

Next make two columns. Label one "for" and the other "against." Now with the aid of reference materials place all the facts you gather under the proper heading. Search well and thoroughly until all the evidence has been found.

Finally compare the two columns. Pass your own judgment. Was your original belief backed by facts and truth? Or was your belief based on "premature or biased opinions"?

A good way to nip prejudices in the bud is to avoid generalizations. To judge a race or class of people by one individual is a certain way to invite a biased opinion. It is fair to neither the individual nor to the group of which he is a member Yet it is done daily.

Mrs. Jones employed a Mexican girl who proved dishonest. Therefore, all Mexicans are cheats and will steal you blind at the drop of the hat. Mr. Carter had dealings with a Mennonite business man who misrepresented the quality of his goods. As a result all Mennonites are fakes and use their religion as a front.

Examine a few of the following well-known every day generalizations and determine how well they coincide with facts: Negroes are lazy, people with red hair have terrible temper, Jews are wealthy, Japanese are treacherous, Mennonites are honest, women are poor drivers, professors are absent-minded etc.

An open-minded person has never been one to harbor prejudices. Under all situations he has looked for the truth—even if it hurt, as it sometimes will. This process of searching for the truth in any given matter should not be foreign to us who bear the name Christian. Christ himself taught us by his very words to do so "If ye continue in my word then ye are my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" . . . from prejudices!

Walter Adrian, out of C.P.S. since Good Friday, was Educational Director of the Mulberry, Florida, unit at the time of his discharge. He first entered C.P.S. in 1942 at Downey, Idaho. Later he came to Fort Collins, Colorado, and from there he went to Mulberry. Mr. Adrian plans to resume his schooling at Bethel College this fall.

Y.P.U. OFFICERS

Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.

Vice President
Verney Unruh

Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference

Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

On the Experiences of a Seminarian

BY ROBERT HARTZLER

The adventure of a three-year term spent in a theological seminary is primarily a spiritual and intellectual discipline. The memorable experiences which come to one in the course of such a period of study are naturally in the area of spiritual and intellectual preceptions. While these experiences are sure to be as varied as the backgrounds and thought habits of the different students, they nonetheless tend to conform to a rather definite, recognizable and predictable pattern.

To Willard Wiebe and Maynard Shelly, both students at Mennonite Biblical Seminary, goes the credit for planning and collecting the material for this issue of Mennonite Youth about seminary students.—Editor

I

The student is scarcely started on his course of study before he feels an intense interest and excitement as he begins to glimpse a fabulous new world of understanding and appreciation, the existence of which he had never guessed. It is a world in which he moves from mountain peak to mountain peak, continually laying hold on fresh concepts and new ideas. It is a world in which he is able to come to a new and infinitely more profound recognition of the value of the Bible, the nature of God, the person and work of Christ, and the like. Traditional concepts they may be, but never before have they so gotten into the blood of the young man and gripped him so utterly. He begins to see new relationships—among Bible, church, sacraments, the ministry—he sees these not uncommon things of which he had always been aware, but he sees them now as a part of the cosmic plan of God, a plan which he comes to feel is being carried forward on great high wheels of power. Thus, on the basis of the thrilling discoveries he has been making, the seminary student is apt to be continually intrigued by the possibility of still vaster worlds just beyond his grasp. He is therefore impelled to further effort and study.

II

On the heels of the experience described above there is likely to come a dawning awareness of the final and ultimate nature of Christianity. This is a proposition for which the student would have loudly argued even before coming to seminary, but he now comes to an understanding of why this is so on much broader terms than before. It is indeed a cataclysmic revelation when the student at last comprehends why it is that Christ is the only answer to the woes of world and individual alike. It gives a tremendous feeling of achievement to discover the transcendnt perfection of the Christian ethic and to perceive that it, too, has the marks of the Ultimate about it. It may be pointed out that these, likewise, are traditional Christian concepts, having been taught by our church throughout its history. And yet, somehow, they are concepts which have never struck us with such overwhelming force before. The atmosphere and study of a seminary seem to lead to these new apprehensions.

III

A third step in the evolution of the embryonic preacher springs directly from the second. It is a sobering sense of responsibility and a heightened awareness of mission which is almost sure to sprout from soil which has been thus prepared. The student looks upon a world which he judges to be in chaos and heading directly for disaster. He sees that its malady is in need for that ultimate and final truth which he has so newly discovered in its broader context. He sees that he is the man who must carry the ball. The prospect is frightening. What if he has not learned aright? What if he makes mistaken interpretations of the truth? How can he hope that one so fallible as he can play any significant role in re-

Dr. A. Warkentin
President of the Mennonite Biblical Seminary

Robert Hartzler is serving with Rev. A. E. Kreider at the Eight Street Mennonite Church, Goshen, Indiana, and attending Mennonite Biblical. Robert is a member of the Central District Conference.

directing the destinies of men and in carrying out the purposes of God? Still, he cannot overlook the need. He cannot ignore the compelling insistence within him which so urgently calls him to preach. He cannot tolerate the feeling of frustration and unworthiness that comes when he sits idly by. A growing sense of mission weighs increasingly upon the seminary student and at last causes him to await impatiently the day when his studies will have been completed.

Such is the development of the preacher.

IV

There are numerous other less significant aspects of the seminary experience which might be mentioned. The fellowship which one has with other students who, like myself, are seeking the Truth, is of inestimable value, and the friendships thus formed are a source of continuing inspiration. The opportunity for wide contacts with leaders of the denomination as well as with figures in the ecumenical church should not go without notice. The opportunity to build a library which is reliable and authoritative in fields of interest to the minister is important. The opportunity to gain practical experience in the work of the ministry which the field program of the seminary provides is of great value. To be able to imbibe of the pure inspiration which is likely to be afloat in the atmosphere of a theological seminary is grand.

And so we might continue. Let us conclude by saying that those who are now having the good fortune of being permitted to attend the Mennonite Biblical Seminary will be forever grateful to the rank and file of members in the churches who have made this experience possible for them.

A Roll Call of Seminary Students

(We would like to introduce you to some of the young people from our churches who are preparing for Christian service. We have tried to contact all of our students, but, as is often the case, we have missed a few. We are sorry that their testimonies could not be added to these.)

Edward and Ramoth Burkhalter. Biblical Seminary in New York, New York, (Berne, Indiana): " 'For the love of Christ constraineth us; because we thus judge, that one died for all, . . . that they that live should no longer live unto themselves but unto him.' II Corinthians 5:14,15. It is this constraining love that has caused us to prepare for a life of presenting Christ, who is able to save unto the uttermost."

John W. Boehr, Reformed Episcopal Seminary, Philadelphia, Pa: "I count it the greatest privilege possible to prepare myself by a systematic study of the Bible to preach Christ, for through Him alone is forgiveness of sin, a real meaning for life, and hope for the life to come."

Ruth Ewert, Mennonite Biblical Seminary, Chicago,, Illinois, (Hillsboro, Kansas): "My work at the Seminary has been an enriching experience . . . . Christ and His Word (has) become more precious . . . . and I have been challenged anew to dedicate my life to full-time Christian service, and in His strength I look joyously and confidently into the future."

Herbert Fretz, Westminster Theological Seminary, Philadelphia, Pa., (Bedminster, Pa.): " 'For I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified.' I Cor. 2:2. This above all must be the all-consuming purpose of a young minister . . . . God grant that we may never depart from this faith, nor lose ourselves in petty human purposes."

Elmer Friesen, Mennonite Biblical, (Reedly,California): "From chemist to minister! Our scientific advancement, our spiritual need, and the conviction that the Gospel of Jesus Christ is our only hope has led me to this change. I am glad to be living today with the unspeakable opportunities for Christ and the Church."

Jacob and Lisbeth Friesen, Biblical Seminary in New York, (Mt. Lake, Minnesota): "We believe a first hand study of the 'written word,' the Bible, is the surest road to a true understanding of the 'Living Word,' our Lord and Saviour. Through it we also gain strength for personal Christian living and receive insight to meet the spiritual needs of our day."

Orlando J. Goering, Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Illinois, (Moundridge, Kansas): "I am preparing for Christian service out of a sense of gratitude for the meaning, purpose and hope which Christianity has brought to my life. Experiencing these gifts of God. I am under compulsion to invite others to share them."

Ernst Harder, Mennonite Biblical, Chicago, (Fernheim, Paraguay): "During this year Christ has become dearer and more challenging, and the mission of our church and my individual responsibility have become clearer to me. If God so wills it, I shall begin my work in Paraguay at the end of this year."

Robert W. Hartzler, Mennonite Biblical, Chicago, (Goshen, Indiana): "The seminary experience is to me a glorious opportunity to 'travel in the realms of gold.' It provides me with an opportunity to study the ultimate realities of life. I am profoundly grateful to those who have sacrificed that seminary facilities might be available to me, as to others."

Albert and Wilma Jantzen, Mennonite Biblical, Chicago, (Newton, Kansas): "We are in full time service for Christ because His love in atoning self-sacrifice for all, and His trust to us, constrain us to be in this work (II Corinthians 5:14,15,19). The need for wholly consecrated workers is urgent, the best preparation possible is none too good."

Arthur Keiser, Biblical Seminary in New York, (Quakertown, Pa.): "When Christ came into my heart and gave me that peace that passes all understanding, I wanted others to know, too, that Christ will save, keep, and satisfy them also."

Melva Lehman, Biblical Seminary in New York, (Berne, Indiana): "I have come to realize more fully the deep riches in the Bible and to know better how to mine for its gold nuggets by myself. Two of these precious discoveries are words from Romans 11:33 and Acts 20:24 . . . . I look forward to missionary work . . . ."

Gerhard Neufeld, Mennonite Biblical, Chicago, (Enid, Oklahoma): "Knowing what Christ means to me, I would be selfish indeed if I would not proclaim Him to others also. Furthermore, even the sculptors' imprint on marble will not endure as . . . Christ's imprint on the human soul (will endure)."

Alvin J. Regier, Northern Baptist Theological Seminary, Chicago, (Middlebury, Indiana): "I have, through the study of God's Word, come to know my Lord and Savior better. Christ said, 'I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.' This message I must proclaim."

Arnold J. and Helen Regier, Mennonite Biblical, Chicago, (Elbing, Kansas): "We are grateful that we are permitted to enjoy the fellowship and continued further study in our own school . . . . Many opportunities present themselves . . . . We covet your prayers that Christ's name be honored and glorified in all of our endeavors."

Laverne A. Rutschman, Mennonite Biblical, Chicago, (Whitewater, Kansas): "The Christian experience of the living Christ finds no more lucid expression than Paul's affirmation: 'O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God. How unsearchable are his judgments and his ways past finding out'."

Orlando Schmidt, Biblical Seminary in New York, (Buhler, Kansas); "In a world that seems to be dizzily whirling itself toward a state of hopeless turmoil, I thank God that for every Christian there is a song to sing, a joy to proclaim, a task to fulfill, and a Christ to follow."

Karl Schultz, Chicago Theological Seminary, (Bluffton, Ohio): "Man today as in all ages is . . . . aware of the incompleteness within himself and . . . the unrealized possibilities of the society in which he lives . . . The eternal answer to his quest is to be found in the understanding of and the submission to the will of God."

Maynard Shelly, Mennonite Biblical, Chicago, (East Greenville, Pa.): "That others might know the joy and adventure of a life lived for Christ, we are working."

Donavan E. Smucker, Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, New Jersey: "I am preparing for Christian service because the Lord wouldn't let me do anything else . . . . Seminary, today, is primarily an experience in gaining inner access to Holy Scripture for purposes of preaching, teaching, and healing . . . . Greetings in the name of the Risen Christ. . . ."

James and Onieta Smucker, Chicago Theological Seminary, Chicago, Illinois: "We are preparing for Christian service because the world and its people are more than ever in need of the God who was revealed by Jesus Christ . . . Anyone . . . who can help make this (God's) love real is truly serving God . . ."

Verney Unruh, Biblical Seminary in New York, (Bloomfield, Montana):
"I have a Friend in whom I am confiding,
"His Presence fills my soul with joy each day;
"A Friend in whom I have a peace abiding,
"Naught can my heart with fear or dread dismay."

Orlando Wiebe, Chicago Theological Seminary, Chicago, Illinois: "Christianity has many reasons for being the one great hope of the world. Among them is the fact that it alone has something to say about the suffering in the world. Christian love redeems tragedy and misery in an otherwise hopeless world."

Willard Wiebe, Mennonite Biblical, Chicago, Aberdeen, Idaho): "When the soul no longer cries for forgiveness, when the peace of God can no longer enter the heart, when the mind fails to be satisfied with the Truth: then may the Gospel of the suffering Savior, to which I commit my life, be silenced."

HOW DO YOU USE YOUR HEALTH?

Sir Herbert Barker, famous English manipulative surgeon, has had spectacular success in treating displacements of the joints, which cause crippled hands and feet. One day an old lady came to him with a crippled knee which had continued useless after much expensive treatment. The great surgeon treated her knee, and almost instantly in what seemed to her the most miraculous manner the bones took their proper places, and she was able to walk. At that moment she surprised the surgeon as he never before had been surprised in his life. Looking up into his face, she requested his permission to kneel. Thinking she merely meant to test the reality of her cure, he replied, "Certainly, and you will find this knee as good as the other one." "I know that," said the old lady. "You see, I should like to kneel and pray for a few minutes." After kneeling she explained: "All these years it has been a grief to me, for I have been unable to kneel in prayer." The great surgeon said that all kinds of people had come to him wanting to be healed, so that they could engage in sports or in remunerative employment, but here was one person who wanted her knee healed so that she could kneel in prayer. The surgeon said that the old lady brought him the greatest hour of his life "because in it I was taught humility and tenderness and pity."—Y. P. Friend

God's Requirements

BY JACOB T. FRIESEN

As a skilled engineer drafts his blueprint and estimates the cost of carrying it out, so God has drawn His plan and has counted the cost of building His kingdom. He has calculated the price of saving man from the foundations of the world.

His major decision consisted of sending His Son into this world. He revealed the mind of God. Through Him we learn that God wanted Christian men and women to carry out His plans. This is our work as Christian young people. The importance of this work demands standards laid down by God Himself. Who may qualify? What are His requirements? We find the answers in Luke 14:25-34.

Jesus turned to the curious multitude pressing Him. As the ungrateful guests in the parable they ignored the teaching of Jesus. Knowing their insincerity, He confronts them with the basic requirements for those who would work with Him.

These apply to all who want to serve regardless of capacity or field of service. Jesus asserts that anyone falling short of these requirements is not worthy to be His disciple.

Unlimited Sacrifice

This is the first basic requirement. Our Lord explained the full implication of this requirement with the words, "If any man come to me and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and sisters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple." Luke 14:26

The word "hate" is used here in oriental idiom of sharp contrast as the opposite of love. It need not confuse us. Jesus is bringing out the danger of competing loyalties. The example of a thing which is as beautiful as family love set over against a supreme loyalty to Him only brings out more clearly the true meaning of His first requirement-unlimited sacrifice. To this He adds, "yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple." A love of self which few of us fully realize or admit may bar the door to effective service in the Kingdom. Paul, the apostle, "counted all things but loss. . .for Christ." Phil. 3:8. God demands first place or nothing. No possible excuse will justify our giving less than our all and our best. Anything less than this falls short of God's first requirement-unlimited sacrifice.

A Christian leader recently said that home mission work is lagging and ineffective because of unwillingness on the part of prospective workers to sacrifice even mere physical conveniences for service in our most needy fields.

The lesson of sacrifice so well demonstrated by our fellow young people in Civilian Public Service in recent years must be carried over voluntarily by all of us into needy fields of service if we are to receive permanent value from their experience.

Personal Responsibility

"And whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple." Luke 14:17. The qualified worker must be able to bear his own cross. This has meaning only in the light of Our Lord's Cross which he assumed of His own choice and which He faithfully carried through apparent defeat and ultimate triumph. Our service becomes a cross when it pours itself out in service for others. Christ suffered on the Cross for the sins of the world. Our cross has meaning only as it ministers to the needs of others.

Carrying personal responsibility includes more than merely doing an assigned task. It implies choices with character and determination to remain true to them. A qualified worker must carry the personal responsibility of choosing to follow Christ. This involves accepting Him as his own personal Saviour and remaining true to this decision. There is no alternative or substitute. We either decide for Christ or we disown Him, as our Lord.

Second, we must assume personal responsibility in our devotion to His cause. "No man, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the Kingdom of God." Luke 9:62 His work is great enough to demand complete devotion under all circumstances. It demands fidelity to the particular talent or talents entrusted to us.

Again let us remind ourselves that these requirements hold for all of us who call ourselves Christians regardless of our course of study or present work. If we are ready to assume personal responsibility for these two decisions, we may be one of God's workmen and render Him an acceptable service.

Positive Conviction

The figure of salt used here by Our Lord is most revealing. We generally connect it with Matthew's account of the Sermon on the Mount, but it has a vital part in this context. "Salt is Good; but if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be seasoned? it is neither fit for the land, nor yet for the dunghill; but men cast it out." Luke 14:34,35. One translator has suggested that the sentence read, "If it have lost its 'Tang'." People who take their faith for granted lack 'Tang.' They are useless as salt that has "lost its taste." They do not qualify as workers.

God, the master workman, needs workers that have a burning desire to know, to live, and to tell the principles of their faith to an unbelieving world, and that are willing to venture forth with confidence and boldness. He needs workers who face rebukes unflinchingly and prove anew in our Church and the world the real character of our faith and the saving power of Him who gave Himself for us.

These requirements are severe! They of necessity must be. The importance of the work to be done demands it. God has counted the cost of building His kingdom and has found that this is the only means of finishing His work.

Jacob Friesen is a student at Biblical Seminary, New York. He comes from Mountain Lake, Minnesota, and served at the First Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebraska, last summer.

RELIEF

Gift From La Plata Community

Members of the LaPlata Valley recently presented a gift of $583.25 to the MCC Unit in Puerto Rico to be used in expanding the hospital and making possible a new operating room. Harry E. Martens, Director of the Unit, writes: "This last Friday, May 17, we had for our dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. Colon and Mr. and Mrs. del Rio, close friends of the Unit. These two took most all the initiative to carry on a campaign for funds to make this possible. At the dinner they spoke very impressively of our work and contribution to the community and the Island as a whole. The kind works spoken made us feel quite humble and only pray that they might not ever be disappointed. This we do know came from pockets at least in many cases where it meant a real sacrifice for a cause that we pray is the Lord's cause. To us it certainly presented itself as a very real challenge to carry forward with the cause here just begun. We wish to call on you to pray with us that we may be found worthy of this expression of good will and confidence by our community."

Relief in China

The city of Tungming, about sixty miles northeast of Kaifeng, China, has been under siege by the Communists and has suffered severe destruction. Two men of that city, Rev. Wang Wan-chu and Mr. Meng, have appealed for help. Since the HIRC (Honan International Relief Committee) regards Tungming as outside its territory, and since the city is in the former Mennonite mission field, the MCC Unit in China has agreed to appropriate funds for food relief and the purchasing of grain. Brother S. F. Pannabecker, Director of the MCC China Unit, says that MCC representatives will visit the city and see that the grain is distributed and will also investigate the possibilities and needs of medical and relief service.

Flour For France

Four carloads of flour left New York harbor for France on May 16. The total weight amounted to 291,206 pounds with a valuation of $8,971.40. This brings the total up to thirty-three carloads of flour which have been shipped to France within the last year. It is quite likely that this will be the last shipment for France for the next several months as shipments will be sent to areas more desperately in need.

Relief Briefs

Farewell services were held at Akron on May 24 for Mrs. Gerhard Warkentin. Brother and Sister Warkentin who have been appointed to direct the MCC program in Paraguay plan to leave for that country from their home in Los Angeles as soon as passage arrangements can be made.

A farewell service was held on May 27 for Martin Schrag, Moundridge, Kansas, who will succeed Harold Sherk as Director of the MCC relief program in India. He is expecting to sail in July.

Word was received that the eleven members of the Holland Builders Unit arrived in England on May 24. They will go directly to Holland where they will begin work on the Island of Walcheren.

C. P. S.

Two Base Camps To Close

Selective Service officials have announced that C.P.S. No. 45, Luray, Virginia, and C.P.S. No. 64, Terry, Montana, are scheduled to close June 30. These are the ninth and tenth base camps to close since the beginning of demobilization.

The majority of the men from the Luray camp will be transferred to either Powellsville or one of the Hagerstown units; those not being discharged in June from Terry will be transferred in the main to Belton.

Archives Files to be Set Up this Summer

The M.C.C. Archives Committee has announced that Prof. Bennie Bargen, the Head of the Bethel College Commerce Department, has been secured to work this coming summer in the interests of organizing the archives of the Mennonite Central Committee. During his summer at Akron Headquarters, he will work with and train a custodian of the files.

The semi-fireproof, concrete-block office building which is to house the M.C.C. archives is now nearing completion. It is hoped that this additional office and filing space can be utilized by early summer.

Openings in Voluntary Service Program

A total of sixty-seven young people have volunteered for the four summer service units sponsored by the M.C.C. Original plans had called for twenty-five openings at each of three hospital units and ten at the Gulfport unit. Present distribution of volunteers is as follows: Gulfport, eight; Howard Hospital, Rhode Island, sixteen; Norristown Hospital, Pennsylvania, twenty-one; Cleveland Hospital, Pennsylvania, twenty-two.

There is still time to join any one of these units which has openings as indicated.

C. P. S. Statistics:

As of May 15, 3,765 men still remained in Civilian Public Service Camps and Units. Of these, 1,980 or more than half of the total, were in M.C.C. administered units. The remaining were distributed in government camps (887), Brethren Service Committee camps (836) and in detached service and units sponsored by the Methodists, Evangelicals and Reformed.

IN MEMORIAM

Margaret Schroeder, nee Hiebert, was born January 8, 1858, in Pordenau, South Russia. She received seven years training under Tobias Nachtigal and one year under Peter Neufeld. Through the instruction of Rev. Jacob Wiebe of the Krimmer Mennonite Brethren Church she found the Lord at the age of seventeen. In 1875 she migrated with her parents to the Alexanderwohl settlement in Marion County, Kansas. Here she as baptized by Elder Jacob Buller and received into the Alexanderwohl Church. In 1876 she married Jacob Schroeder, with whom she shared life for forty-two years. She was the mother of eleven children, grandmother of forty-eight, and great-grandmother of sixty. Trained as a midwife she took care of over fifteen hundred cases in thirty-two years. She passed away April 12, 1946. She is mourned by: Henry, Goessel; Jacob, Canton; Peter, Bellingham, Washington; Emil, Hillsboro; Elizabeth, Goessel; Mrs. Margaret Janzen, Hesston; Mrs. Sara Balzer, Newton; Abraham, Hillsboro; David, Goessel; and Mariam, Newton.

Elizabeth (Schultz) Becker, daughter of David T. and Sara (Wiens) Schultz, was born in Russia on October 30, 1880. On July 22, 1900, she was baptized by Elder Aron Wall in the Evangelical Mennonite Brethren Church at Mountain Lake, Minnesota. Later she transferred her membership to the First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho. On October 26, 1902, she was joined in marriage to David J. Becker of Mountain Lake. She was called to her heavenly home on May 16, 1946. She leaves to mourn: her husband, and five children: John, David, Henry, and Edwin of Aberdeen, Idaho, and Irene (Mrs. David Johnson) of Twin Falls, Idaho.

The Offering as an Act of Worship

BY W. F. UNRUH

The offering in the worship service is seldom made as meaningful as it might well be. The offering represents sacrifice, and sacrifice is the greatest of all symbolic acts in worship, in fact, it is in itself an act of worship. The impulse to give up something for God, to dedicate something to God is at the very heart of worship. The money that is taken up in the offering is a significant symbol in our commercial civilization. Money represents labor, time, thought, self-denial, struggle and suffering. When people give their money, they give of self. The money they give should be pure money, and here comes the challenge to purity of life in economics and finance. The offering is an acknowledgement of our stewardship of God's gifts. It also becomes a concrete expression of love for God and our fellowmen.

This spiritual interpretation gives real dignity to the offering. It might well be made the high point in certain worship services, and should be given a proper build-up so that it may really become that. In those services where the offering is made the outstanding act of dedication and consecration, special pains should be taken to encourage a mood of dedication before the offering is taken. This mood must be present before the offering can become really meaningful in the sense indicated.

When the offering is made the high point of the worship it should be placed towards the end of the service program. The service then "picks up the sermon in its stride and incorporates it in the whole movement of thought and feeling of the hour and comes to a deep and strong climax of consecration at the close."

It is important that ushers be well trained to take up the offering with order and dignity. The offering itself will be more meaningful when it is introduced and preceeded by appropriate Scripture quotations and followed by a special act of consecration. This act of worship should be a united act. In a worship service people are active participants in worship and should be given to feel this. They might kneel or stand as the offering is presented to God in prayer. A few moments of silence before the ushers go back may become really meaningful, for people then face God with what they have given. Or the congregation might sing an offertory hymn of dedication following the pastor's prayer and thus participate in this act of consecration. In this way the offering may become the outstanding experience of the hour for many a worshiper. Suggested books are: "Come Let Us Worship" by Albert W. Palmer, 1941, Macmillan; "The Art of Conducting Public Worship" by Albert W. Palmer, '39.

Mennonite Mission in Chicago Active in Work

There may not be anything new under the sun, but there are always new people at the Sunday morning service at the Mennonite Bible Mission, 4215 South Rockwell Street. Some are visitors in the community, some are returned service men. Then there are students, nurses and visitors who may just be stopping over for a day or so at the Mission. Recently Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Duerksen and their family from India stopped in for a half day of visiting. It was such a busy half day that when they were finally settled on their train to Newton they had two minutes left. Well, we must say something about the work.

Four Thousand Homes Visited

At the beginning of this year we engaged a Christian student to canvass the neighborhood and give out invitations. She visited four thousand homes and invited people to the church and Sunday school. The result was rather discouraging, for it showed how strongly Catholic the neighborhood is. There are, however, a number of new people coming to church as a result of this work.

We have also engaged an assistant pastor, brother Willard Wiebe of the Mennonite Seminary. He has worked especially with the young people. Several of the seminary students have also helped in the Sunday School work. We shall miss them when they leave for the summer.

Communion with Scattered Mennonites in the City

The Easter season was a time of spiritual blessings. Communion was served twice. First on Palm Sunday at our Loop Service. Here Brother Warkentin of the Seminary served the communion and Brother Waldo Harder brought the message. Forty-five people from all parts of this country took part in the service. They were Mennonite students from the different schools, nurses scattered over the city, and other Mennonites employed in the city. At the service in the mission on Good Friday about sixty-five took communion. A children's service was held on Good Friday in the morning. This was conducted by Mrs. Neufeld and Mrs. Regier from the seminary. Mrs. Regier brought the message of the cross and the Easter story with the aid of the flannelgraph.

This picture shows the Good Friday Morning Children's Service. Mrs. Arnold Regier, to the rear left, gave an illustrated talk with the Flannel-Graf on the "Trial and Crucifixion of our Lord Jesus Christ." In the center of the picture one can faintly see the beautiful wooden cross from our Communion Table. The larger boys decided they were camera shy, so they were not available for the picture. Mrs. Neufeld, rear right, led the singing and closed the worship service. Mrs. Clifton brought her three boys and baby girl.

Mother Wiens has been failing fast and has been critically ill for some time. Miss Lena Kroeker of Jansen, Nebraska, has come to help with the work here, so that Mrs. Neufeld could spend more time with her mother, Mrs. Wiens.

We express our appreciation for the visitors that have stopped in, for those who have continued to support this work financially and through their prayers.—John T. and Catherine Neufeld, 4215 So. Rockwell Street Chicago 32, Illinois.

Jottings

—Rev. P. J. Boehr writes: "Please take notice that we have a new address from now on. We are moving to Indiana, and our address is . . . Winona Lake. This is also the address for the following of our children: Ernest J., Anna Louise, and Mary Ellen . . . we are ready to serve wherever we are called. We are establishing a home for the family, to which we can resort when not in Christian service somewhere else. We are still missionaries and "ready to go" where the Lord leads."

—Bergtal Church, Pawnee Rock, Kansas: On April 28 the Men's Chorus and the Ladies Trio of the West Zion Church, Moundridge, rendered a fine program in our church. Mrs. W. C. Voth of Lorraine spoke to the women and girls on May 19 in the interest of mission work. The flour fund for European relief totalled $3,654. One thousand 100-pound bags were purchased from the Walnut Creek Milling Company for this amount, including freight charges to Baltimore. Two thousand, two hundred bushels of wheat were sold to the mill in order to get the flour.—Mrs. John Dirks, Corr.

—The Mennonite Church of Newport, Washington, announces the dedication of their church on June 16 and extend an invitation to all who would like to come and worship with us on that day. Rev. P. D. Unruh is conducting catechism class at his home every Monday evening. About fourteen attend. Daily vacation Bible school began May 30 with four classes. — Mrs. W. D. Hiebert, Corr.

—The Beatrice (Nebraska) Church: Two marriages have taken place at this church during the last two days in May and a third one is scheduled for the middle of June. On Decoration Day Miss Katharine Andreas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Andreas, was married to Melvin Boehr of Henderson, Nebraska.

HEADQUARTERS OFFICE CORNER

It will be of interest to our mission friends to know that the goal of fifteen thousand dollars set for the building of a Bible School in Janjgir, C. P., India, has been reached. Miss Martha Burkhalter, who presented this special need among our churches, is now preparing to return to India. — Walter H. Dyck, Office Manager

They are both graduates of Bethel College and expect to do migrant work in Arkansas this summer. Miss Anna Margaret Reimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Reimer, and Arnold Claassen of the First Church, were married on May 31. Arnold has been released from C. P. S. and expects to continue his studies at Bethel College; they will reside at North Newton during the coming year. Miss Elizabeth Claassen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Claassen, and Cornelius Lohrentz of Hillsboro, Kansas, will be married on June 16. Mr. Lohrentz has also served in C. P. S. and expects to take up auditing with a local firm.—W. C. Andreas, Corr.

—Dr. David D. Eitzen, Associate Professor of Pastoral Counseling at the University of Southern California, will give a series of lectures at the annual YMCA Conference to be held at Seabeck, near Seattle, Washington, the latter part of June. Following this conference he will serve in a similar way at Asilomar.

—Hebron Church, Buhler, Kansas. Rev. and Mrs. Habegger from our Montana mission field showed colored pictures of their work on May 21. The next day they spoke to a group of women. Another pioneer, Heinrich Franz, age eighty-three, passed on to his reward May 22. Mrs. W. C. Voth spoke on the origin and purpose of the Women's Mission Societies at a fellowship supper held by the three mission societies on May 24. Miss Ella Toews and Willie Friesen were married May 26. Children's Day was observed with a program, followed by a lunch in the basement.—Corr.

—Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: The male chorus of the Salem Church, Freeman, South Dakota, presented a splendid program in our church on May 26. They sang to a large and appreciative audience. Thirty young people are to be baptized June 9. Rev. Jake T. Friesen spoke on June 2 in the absence of Rev. Waltner, who attended the District Conference at Freeman. Mrs. P. R. Schroeder is spending her vacation in California. She plans to be back again in about a month.—Helen Penner, Corr.

—First Church, Nappanee, Indiana: An All-Church retreat is to be held June 30. We will have our services outdoors at some suitable place and remain for dinner and a good time of fellowship. The men of the Five-Church Brotherhood: Eight Street, Goshen; Silver Street, Goshen; Warren Street, Middlebury; the church of Topeka, and our church, contributed $3,800 toward milk for relief. Of this amount our church contributed eight hundred dollars.—Mrs. Loyal Corwin, Corr.

—Lehigh, Kansas, Rev. H. A. Fast of Newton filled the pulpit on June 2. An outdoor Sunday School picnic with a basket lunch has been planned for June 16.—Mrs. F.G.U., Corr.

—Zion Church, Elbing, Kansas: On May 5 Rev. W. H. Dyck, now General Conference secretary, Newton, gave us a bird's-eye-view of the activities of the General Conference. Rev. Curt Boese of Omaha brought us the morning message May 26. The funeral services of Mrs. Fred Loeffler were held May 29. The pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Halstead, Kansas, was our guest speaker on Ascension Day. Our service boys have returned home safely and June 2 was observed as "Welcome Home" Sunday. Following a fellowship dinner an informal program was rendered.—Mrs. Louis A. Janzen, Corr.

222 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

ORDER BLANK

The subscription price for The Mennonite for 1946 is: New Subscriptions $1.25 for the first year, Renewals $1.75 per year.

Please use this Order Blank when sending in your subscription and underscore the word New or Renewal to correspond with the type of subscription you are to pay for.

Name ....

Street or Route ....

Address ....

Remittances from Canada should be made by Postal Money Order only. Please write name and address plainly to avoid errors.

Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kansas

—Gospel Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: Rev. Alfred Regier of the Grace Children's Home gave the message on May 26 and showed pictures of the home. A fine group was out for spring church cleaning. Ascension Day services were observed by the reading of the "Articles of Faith" and testimonies from the candidates for baptism and those who wish to join the church. June 2, Rev. Cornelius Wall gave an inspiring message on the "Three Stages of Life" (youth, middle age, and old age).—Elizabeth Lohrenz, Corr.

—First Church, Beatrice, Nebraska: On May 23 was the commencement of four students at our Mennonite Bible Academy. Rev. Lando Hiebert of the Grace Bible Institute, Omaha, was the speaker. On June 1, Dr. J. Winfield Fretz spoke to the Fellowship group in the interest of Bethel College. On Sunday evening he spoke to the C. E. His topic was, "What I Should Like to See Bethel College Do for the Mennonite Church."—Margaret Albrecht, Corr.

—Johannestal Church, Hillsboro, Kansas: We have sent thirty-nine comforters and blankets as well as helped with the shipping of flour to war-stricken Europe, and a few weeks ago we had the first "Thank You" letter sent to us by Siegfried Janzen for the home in Roverestein, Holland, where their brothers and sisters from Russia are staying. They received eighty-five bags. Our three weeks of vacation Bible school closed with a program May 26; there were thirty-one pupils. Gerhard Peters and Miss Josephine Nikkle served as teachers. Ernst Harder from Paraguay, South America, spoke to us the evening of June 2.—Mrs. Arnold Plenert, Corr.

The Mennonite

Volume 61 — June 18, 1946 — Number 25

Facing Our Feelings of Guilt

by Paul Albrecht

Photo by Gendreau, New York

One of the main functions of Christian teaching is to instill in us a keen conscience and a corresponding feeling of guilt when our conduct has been wrong. Our natures being what they are, we do not take God seriously until we take our own evil seriously.

Christianity teaches that man in his natural state is evil-centered. Surely there is within each of us a basic contradiction. Paul expresses this when he says, "For the good that I would I do not: but the evil which I would not, that I do . . . Oh, wretched man that I am!" We need to have a feeling of guilt about our evil inclinations. This guilt finds practical use when we examine ourselves, sincerely regret our past evil, express this regret to God and man, and renew our efforts toward the right. God in His forgiveness then removes our guilt. "For God sent not His son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through Him might be saved."

Our feelings of guilt, like our conscience, cannot always be taken at face value, however. In our lives, awareness of guilt needs to be examined and understood. In some people this awareness of guilt needs to be aroused. In others, the feeling of guilt already present needs to be honestly faced. In still others, the weight of guilt needs to be lifted. The first two groups are left for more competent consideration. The third group is to be considered a little further here.

Our feelings of guilt often do not leave when they have performed their task. Like jammed auto horns, they remain to add unrest and discord to our lives. Self-reproach hangs around us like a fog. This is usually a symptom of something deeper that is not understood. Let us examine several forms of this overworked self-reproach.

In the first place, to take complete responsibility upon ourselves for all our evil inclinations is utter

(Continued on page 3)

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point - of - view:

MINISTERS' SALARIES in a great many cases are not as high as they ought to be. Recently a postcard came to us with the following written on it: "Two bits of information came to us the same day. A young man, after completing four years of college and then finishing a three-year seminary course, had a call from a church for $75 a month. A girl with one year of college is hired in a rural school for next year for $180 a month. Why are there 40 vacant pulpits in the General Conference? Can a minister support his family on spiritual food only?" The afore-mentioned girl would earn $1440 dollars in eight months of teaching, and the minister would earn $900 in twelve months. Is it harder for church members to raise the money for a minister's salary than it is for the members of a school district to raise the teacher's salary? Might the school board feel that it "couldn't get" "a good teacher" nowadays for less than $1440 for eight months, while the church might feel that it "can get" "a minister" for twelve months for $900? In our materialistic, secularistic culture a great many people feel that it is entirely right for a teacher to hold out for all she can get, but that it isn't right for a minister to hold out for such and such a salary. It is rather commonly felt that he is supposed to be willing to preach the gospel without much thought about remuneration. This division in the holiness of different kinds of work is not Christian, for the Christian teacher ought to witness of God and serve Him just as well as the minister does. If this can not be the case, we must always have some Christians voluntarily choosing to be less Christian than some other Christians. The different callings of all Christians should be considered as unique opportunities for serving Christ, and it should seem evident that the minister should be accorded as fair a chance for a livelihood as are the doctor, the mechanic, the banker, the plumber, the electrician, the carpenter, the hardware store man, the teacher, etc. The non-ministerial professions give to no Christian who engages in them a greater right to "make money" than does the ministry to someone who engages in it. All Christians are called to be "servants," not just the minister. Therefore, let the minister be freed from some of the shackles that have bound him financially and let him be treated as Christians in other kinds of work want to be treated. Undoubtedly, in a great many cases ministers' salaries are low, not because of any definite ill will on the part of the people, but rather because they haven't become used to thinking that a minister's salary should be comparable to that of those who "demand" so and so much an hour or so and so much for a thing. Furthermore, it may be true that in some cases that which a minister offers may seem of so little worth that it does not justify greater pay. However, when this is the case it might be to the mutual benefit of church and minister to part asunder and let a man come in who can deliver the goods. If it should be the feeling of most members that what most ministers offer just simply isn't worth more to them than what they are paying, then it would seem only fair enough that they either dispense with a minister entirely or give him a decent livelihood regardless of what they get from him. Perhaps, the nine hundred dollars figure used is unusually low. However, at the same time the teacher's salary mentioned is not as high as that of a goodly number in non-ministerial callings. The point we are trying to make is that of having a little more economic democracy in the church fellowship.

ART CAPACITIES in a child should be given a chance to develop into an expression of the worthwhile and beautiful. In many people there is much God-given talent that has never been brought to the surface. Yet art is a very vital way for an individual to express his thoughts and feelings. Tests show that students in at least one Mennonite College rank lower than the national average in the field of the fine arts, while they rank above the average in natural science and social science. When little provision is made in the home for the development of art, there is bound to be little. Children hear their parents talk and learn to do that. The same is true of work and other activities. If parents would have their children develop in music, painting, modelling, etc., they must provide for such development. To provide some suggestions along this line, we present in this issue an article on "Art and the Child."

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA. Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor ______ Reynold Weinbrenner, 722 Main St., Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchange to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS

Facing Our Feelings of Guilt

(Continued from page 1)

madness. In a very real sense we did not make our character by ourselves. We did not choose our people; we did not make our childhood home; our whole early experience was largely beyond our control. Our responsibility begins when we take the equipment we have and begin to make adult choices.

This physical, moral and spiritual equipment of ours is often very faulty. We are responsible for the way we use this equipment, but not necessarily for the equipment itself. Self-examination soon shows us that without God's grace our attempts at righteousness are futile. However, assumed guilt for what has not been our responsibility should not hinder us from appropriating this grace.

Sometimes in our actions and correspondingly in our guilt over past deeds, we "strain the gnat and swallow the camel." We feel remorse for insignificant trifles. We are miserable and yet feel a certain righteousness in our misery because we feel it is a result of deep religious concern. The real ill, however, is not that "the gnat is strained" but that the "camel is swallowed." We may be miserable because we forgot to remember the birthday of a member of the family when all the while our day-by-day concern for this member leaves much to be desired. We transfer the guilt from the cause to the symptom. By placing the guilt on small matters we dodge the real issue. The removal of this type of guilt over trifles hinges on our constructive acceptance of guilt for the real shortcoming.

Further, we have the tendency as Christian people to develop a negative and gloomy conscience. We have often been told that this is the conception many people have of a religious person. Life becomes a series of do-not's and an exacting, scrupulous but futile study in self-denial. We forget that, ". . . love is the fulfilling of the law." As a school girl said concerning Queen Victoria, "When Queen Victoria was coronated, she took as her motto, 'I will not be bad.' She followed this motto faithfully through a long and tedious life." We forget that life is positive living and not negation. We try to appease God by self-denial failing to see that self-denial is not an end in itself, but a means by which a fuller life is realized. Our individual acts need to be considered in the light of our total life witness.

Then, too, some of us have what appear to be over-stimulated consciences. We feel remorse over a multitude of small details from absent-mindedly failing to greet someone to placing a dime instead of a quarter in the Sunday School collection. This springs from the fact that most of us would rather play our game of life in our back yard with a high fence around it than out on the rough and tumble playground of life. ". . . . ye pay tithe of mint and anise and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy, and faith: . . . " Our attention is such that there is a limited number of things that we can focus upon. By concentrating zealously on little matters we may be unable to concentrate on basic issues. This approach is sad not only because details are endless and our lives become cumbersome, but also because we never really race where true laurels are won. Here again our guilt over details is removed by a genuine concern for basic responsiblity.

So, if our various feelings of guilt are to be constructively handled, they must be faced. Real guilt needs to be acknowledged. Where guilt is unnecessarily felt, where it is inappropriately felt, or where it is over-stimulated, it must be recognized as such. It is necessary for us to interpret our lives in the light of God's love as well as His law.

It is difficult for us to face ourselves in this way. Often we are like the Maine farmer who was laboriously driving his horses on a dusty road. "How much longer does this hill last?" he asked a man by the roadside. "Hill?" was the answer. "Hill nothing! Your own hind wheels are off!"

We will live more effectively if we become people with a sense of duty concerning important matters of rightness, producing conduct that could be followed without harm by all, issuing in radiant characters of positive goodness.

CANADIAN ITINERARY OF MISSIONARY BROWN

June 19-21, Niagara-on-the-Lake, Rev. C. K. Neufeld, Route 2, Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ontario.

June 22-24, Leamington, Rev. N. N. Driedger; Route 1, Leamington, Ontario.

June 25 and 26, Port Rowan, Rev. J. J. Reimer, Route 3, Port Rowan, Ontario.

June 27 and 28, St. Catharines, Rev. W. J. Schellenberg, 71 Vale Avenue, St. Catharines, Ontario.

June 29-July 3, Canadian Conference, Rev. Johann Wichert, Box 214, Vineland, Ontario.

July 6 and 7, Young People's Retreat, Rev. C. K. Neufeld, Route 2, Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ontario.

(Rev. Brown's schedule previous to the above dates is not given since it arrived too late to do any good.)

The School of Missions

by Lester Hostetler

I believe in a School of Missions because I believe in missions. The arguments against missions are familiar. We have enough heathen in our own country to evangelize. Foreign missions are too expensive and what is more, they have not always helped people. Instead of bringing Christ to the mission lands, they have introduced western culture and Churchianity. The religions they already have are good enough for the heathen. Missionaries and mission boards are narrow-minded and do not understand the needs of people in other countries.

There is plenty of truth in some of these strictures against mission work. But after making due allowances for human frailties and granting that there are weaknesses in the missionary enterprise which need to be corrected, it still remains true that the work of missions represents the church at its best and that the evangelization of the world is still the command of Christ and the center of the church's program.

The message of the Christian mission is the hope of the world, and there is no other hope. The alternative to a world at war, in which men compete with each other and seek periodically to destroy one another, is a world motivated by the spirit of Christ, in which it is possible for the peoples of all nations to dwell together in peace. The moral equivalent of war is found in the Christian mission.

A School of Missions takes for granted that every member of the church family is, or should be, interested. A good way to begin the organization of the school is for the church council to decide to have a school, set aside a certain number of Sunday evenings for it, say six during the Epiphany season, and select the most capable leaders available, who in turn will proceed in good time to acquaint themselves with the material to be taught.

Announcement of the school should be made some weeks in advance in the church bulletin and from the pulpit. Some one in the congregation may be able to make an artistic poster for the bulletin board. The whole membership should be informed what is contemplated. Classes should be arranged for all age groups from the small children to the adults so that the School of Missions is really an affair for the whole family.

The evening may be divided into three periods as follows:

5:30 to 6:30 Fellowship hour, eating together.

6:30 to 7:30 Study period, a class for each age group.

7:30 to 8:30 Worship period, pictures, illustrated addresses.

A three-hour session may seem long. But in reality the three hours pass very rapidly. The program provides for a great deal of variety and should not be tiresome. It comes at a time of day which leaves most of the Sunday afternoon and much of the evening free for reading, music, visiting, or family recreation.

The fellowship and supper hour is important. All the meals should be very simple—a cup of coffee, an apple and a doughnut; or a bowl of chili soup; or sandwiches and milk. An offering plate on the table usually brings enough cash to take care of expenses. Different organizations in the church and Sunday School can be placed in charge of this part of the program for one Sunday evening each so it will not become burdensome to any individual or group.

After the fellowship hour, the adults, men and women, study together. The young people go to their department, and the intermediates, juniors and primaries study in their own groups as in Sunday School. The theme which has been selected for 1946-47 is India. An abundance of material is available from the Missionary Education Movement, 156 Fifth Avenue, New York 10. The women's missionary organization of the General Conference will also be in a position to make recommendations for books.

In addition to general material on India, some time could well be given to the study of the history and development of our own mission work in that country. A good teacher will not dwell over much on the bizarre and extreme and outlandish in Indian life. Many of us have gotten entirely wrong impressions of India by mission speakers who specialize in that type of material. Emphasis should rather be on the fine things in India, the contributions which Christianity has made and is making to Indian life, as well as the lessons all of us could well learn from India's life and thought.

During the last period there might be some time spent in prayer and group singing and the reading of Scripture, followed by a film, either sound or silent, or stereopticon slides on India. Much progress has been made in visual education in the past few years so that there is now available an abundance of a film suitable for church use. A picture, we have been told, is worth ten thousand words. This may be an exaggeration, but we must admit that the use of visual aids is

---

Rev. Lester Hostetler has carried out two schools of missions in the Bethel College Church. When Brother Hostetler presented the purpose and methods of such a school at the last minister's conference of the Western District, there was such interest in it, that it was suggested he write an article on the suject for The Mennonite, so that those interested might have his suggestions on paper.

very effective and adds greatly to the interest in mision study. One word of caution: secure only the best n pictures. If they are old and worn, and if the film breaks every few minutes, or if the photographing is poorly done and lacking in life and objective, then picures are worse than nothing. They give the impression hat the church is in a second or third rate business.

This is also the period when missionaries on furough or other special speakers can address the whole group. But be sure to remind such speakers that the school has already been in session for two hours and that the closing bell rings promptly at 8:30.

There may be other and better ways of providing mission study in the church. The above method has been tried and found effective. A School of Missions, or its equivalent, in every church would do much to increase the missionary spirit in the churches of our Conference.

The Church's Attitude toward Organized Labor

by Winfield Fretz

During the summer of 1938 I worked in the Ford Motor Company at Dearborn, Michigan. I had the opportunity of working in different parts of this giant industrial empire and in this way was given the chance to talk with hundreds of Ford employees. Three of my chief concerns throughout the summer were: to find out how the average auto worker felt toward his job: second, how he felt about organized labor, and third, what his attitude was toward the church. Since that summer I have never been able to look upon the organized worker in the same way I did before. As in most things, the labor problem looks different at close range and from within than it does at a distance from without.

What Does Labor Want?

The first fair demand of organized labor is a fair wage. By this is meant a fair portion of the total earnings of an industry. Many people not acquainted with the industrial worker feel that the organized laborer is already getting a fair wage. This attitude is reflected in a conversation reported between President Roosevelt and one of the automobile workers. The President asked one of the men what his hourly wage was. The reply was a dollar and a quarter an hour. "It seems to me that is a pretty good wage," said the President. The worker answered, "That is a good wage, Mr. President, but last year I only worked sixty-five days. My total gross was $650.00." The President later told the press conference that that little dialogue made him conclude that it was how much a fellow gets by December 31 instead of how much he gets per hour that counts. Labor feels that management earns big profits, and as long as that is the case it feels that management can afford to pay it a fair wage, that is, a wage that will allow a minimum stardard of living the year around.

A second thing that labor wants is a share in industrial control. Most rugged individualists shrink away at the thought of this demand, but the workers in a modern industry feel that democracy must apply to industry as well as to government, and they feel that if they help produce wealth they should have some share in determining the conditions under which they work, the length of time they are required to work and something about the policies determining their earnings. The recent automobile strikes in Detroit bore evidence of the desire on the part of organized workers for a share in management as well as an increase in pay.

A third demand of labor is its desire for a measure of security. This means the assurance that the worker can earn enough in the course of a year to keep himself and his family adequately clothed and housed. Non-industrial workers often fail to realize how insecure the industrial worker is. Unlike the farmer or the business man, he does not own, or even rent, the farm or factory in which he earns his living. He is just a hired man. He owns no tools, no machines, no share in the building, and he can be discharged at the slightest provocation. If he is old, he may be discarded along with obsolete or worn out machinery. If he loses his health he will be discharged and separated from the payroll much as will an unproductive machine in the factory. If times get hard he will be laid off without any sense of responsibility on the part of the employer as to what will happen to him or his family. Living in town he has no means of earning a living once his wages no longer continue. He must, therefore, begin to consume immediately any savings he may have had. Thus the modern industrial worker, in an attempt to gain some measure of security, joins with his fellow workers into a union for the purpose of bargaining collectively for a fair wage, a greater share in the control of his job and an increasing measure of security.

What Concern Is This of the Church?

The church must be indirectly, if not directly, concerned with any situation in which its members are vitally affected. In the present labor controversy it must be concerned, first, to break down or eliminate class warfare, that is, the struggle between the laboring class and the owning class. This is especially true since in many churches the two groups are members of the same body in Christ and for this reason should not be divided. Second, the church must be concerned with teaching ethical principles which will enable workers and their employers to mutually assist one another for the common welfare. It must teach the employer the sinfulness of exploiting his fellow man and must make the employee conscious of the responsibilities of the employer as the person who has risked his money for the sake of the enterprise which he is promoting and he must recognize that the employer is providing labor, although without his employees, he could do nothing. Third, the church must be concerned with teaching Christian peace principles. The doctrine of non-resistance, which is applicable in time of political international struggle, is equally applicable in industrial warfare. The methods of violence, vengeance, and hatred are not to be used by Christians under any circumstances.

It is unfortunate that the Mennonite church, which has been a bearer of the doctrine of non-resistance for four centuries, should not have paid more attention to the application of this doctrine to industrial situations in the last seventy-five years. Even now there is nothing said of an official nature in most church statements. It is also regrettable that of the many Mennonites who have entered the field of business and are engaged as employers there is no notable difference of employment policies among Mennonite employers from those of the average common establishment which makes no profession of having Christian men at its head. I know of no cases among Mennonite members where employer-employee relations have been workd on the Golden Rule basis such as were worked by the Nash Clothing Company in Cincinnati, Ohio. Here is an opportunity for much exploration and much future development of Christian business men. The church has a concern for labor problems. First to understand them and second to teach its members how to solve them with the spirit of Christ. It must say with Eugene Debbs that "so long as there is a lower class I am in it; so long as there is a soul in prison I am not free."

Art and the Child

by Lena Waltner

The term "free creative expression" has come to be rather fundamental and important in every area of the child's development in modern education. Yet, frequently well-meaning parents, as well as teachers, may be guilty of hampering the creativity of a child in many instances because they are not familiar enough with the stages of development of a child. This is particularly true when applied to the realm of art.

Every normal human being is born with the instinct or urge to create something, and children should be given every opportunity to make use of this God-given instinct. Children live intensely, gathering new impressions constantly and enjoying them to the utmost. They are happy, earnest and vigorous. The art work of the child reveals these characteristics, and it is their unhampered self expression in which feelings are recorded directly with little interference of tools and media.

Art affords a more direct avenue of expression than the spoken word, for in speaking, words have to be learned and put together besides, art work can be so easily viewed and admired. Feelings cannot be expressed adequately because of an insufficient store of words. The use of the written language is not any simpler, for writing and spelling the words is laborious, whereas art work is spontaneous and reveals the child's working of the mind.

Any kind of play, for the child, may be considered a form of art and if given the opportunity to use art materials for expression in their play, it seems to open in them a tendency to "untaught" fundamental abilities of art expression which need to be recognized by adults. A child's art education should start at home with his parents. He begins by scribbling, making pictures of himself, his parents, and pets. He makes mud pies and builds forts and castles in the sand. Later the boys make aeroplanes, and the girls dress paper dolls and make pictures of "beautiful women." Every child likes to dress up and parade around. The love for self-adornment with pins and buttons and drawing pictures on his jacket and raincoat is great. In all these activities he tries to express himself.

The first stage in the child's development is the manipulative stage, when materials have to be handled in order to know their possibilities. A child is delighted to find that crayon will make lines, that clay may be made into shapes, etc. Materials that give free play to muscular co-ordination are important and hence clay is an excellent medium, especially for the two-year-old, which is largely in the manipulative stage. The three-year-old may succeed in making recognizable forms. Crayons, brushes and paper should be large. Flat brushes should be ½ inch wide, or round ones ½ inch in circumference, both with handles 12 inches long. Unprinted newsprint sheets, 18 x 24 inches, fastened to a board and set on an easel, permit the child to move about freely while working. At the age of two to six years it is to be remembered that the child expresses itself symbolically. At first only meaningless (to the adult) scratches and circles will appear; then definite forms will emerge although they may not be recognized properly by the adult, and finally drawings take on resemblance of real people, houses, trucks, etc. To be sure, these forms are not perfect according to adult standards, but the child expresses what exists in his consciousness, and according to best authorities on the subject, is to be left pretty much alone in this expression, at least through kindergarten and frequently up to second grade.

Mae Solomon Tilles, noted nursery school teacher of Berkeley, California, says, "Many parents think that unless a child makes a 'real' picture of a boy or a girl there is no creative expression. But adults who have had much experience with groups of young children know that the opposite is true; it is rare to get a picture of a 'real girl,' unless the child has been tutored in 'art.' Often a child will talk about his 'picture' while he is working, and to him it may be a boy or a girl, though more frequently it is an animal or an inanimate object. Practically always, from the standpoint of the adult there is no recognizable form. The nursery school teacher, who is always nearby listens carefully and when the child says he is through with his picture, writes the child's name and date and his comments on the reverse side of the paper. She never asks, 'What did you make?' Nor does she compare one child's work with another's. She accepts the child's work for what it is worth. She sets up no standards, nor does she make any comparisons."

In finger painting we have one of the newest forms for creative expression. The following is a good formula for making a thick colored mixture similar to a soft cold cream in texture: 1 cup starch (Argo or Linit) dissolve in cold water. Add 3 cups boiling water and 1 cup Ivory Flakes. Stir and cook until smooth and thick. When cool, divide into three or four bowls. Mix thoroughly with powdered poster paints in desired colors. Add one or two drops of oil of cloves (from drugstore) to each bowl. Pour into jars and keep covered when not in use.

A paper with a glazed finish similar to butcher paper, 12 x 18", is immersed in water and then placed on an oilcloth. After wrinkles have been smoothed out, about a tablespoon of paint is placed on the paper. This medium affords a greater emotional release than any other creative activity, for here there is nothing to stand between the child and his medium of expression. Fingers, the palm of the hands, and even the whole forearm are used in making big sweeping movements. These expressions show trends in the child's emotional life and may help parents and teachers to see his needs.

Contrary to general belief, nursery school children spend less time with crayons than with paints. However, for variety they should be included as a medium of expression. Crayons should be 5 inches long and ½ to ¾ inches in diameter. Scissors and paste activities are not as valuable for the pre-school child, since they are a small muscle activity, and difficulty in cutting paper with scissors may result in fustration. At the age of four and five they can get results in compositions in cut forms in their own choice of colors pasted on sheets of paper.

It is to be noted that children have a sense of balance and proportion. If left alone they will draw large and fill the sheet of paper. To be sure, the thing that to them is most important will be represented large. Thus the hat may be much bigger than the man, or the apples may be larger than the tree, but don't worry dear parent, Willie is a potential artist, yet does not see things the way you do. The paper may fairly scream with senseless daubs of bright paint, but Willie is having a glorious time, and as he grows older things will take on different form.

The child expresses on paper in clay, blocks of wood, etc. what he knows of the world about him. The activities of father and mother in the home find most frequent expression. Then stories and poems are a never-ending source of material to stimulate his imagination. If the child does not care to express itself in one medium then the parent and teacher must turn to another one, but in every instance we must not consider the finished product and look for perfection, but consider the values the child has derived through the activity. Stress should be laid on the experience and the pleasure gained, and not at all on the finished product.

Illustration and clay modeling are all-important with the small child. As he reaches the realistic stage in second and third grade, he becomes more critical of his drawing and frequently turns to designing and various forms of craft work, costume designing, interior decoration, etc. At this stage it is most necessary that the teacher knows how to guide the child through the critical period, for it is at this time that children frequently lose complete interest in art.

Every child should be regarded as a potential artist and should be given every opportunity by parents and teachers to express itself in its own manner.

— Prof. Walter H. Hohmann of Bethel College left on June 13 for Canada, where he is to visit various churches in the interest of church music. He has also been invited to the Canadian conference which is to convene June 30-July 3. Prof. Hohmann has served Canadian churches in a similar way before. The schedule for him is as follows: Leamington, June 15-17; Port Rowan, 18, 19; St. Catharines, 20, 21; Niagara-on-the-Lake, 22, 23; Vineland, 24, 26; Waterloo, 27-29; Toronto possibly July 4, 5; and the youth retreat at Niagara-on-the-Lake, July 6, 7. It is not certain at present whether Prof. Hohmann will visit any other churches after this Ontario tour.

India - Grams

by S. T. Moyer

Christianity came into the world on the wings of the songs of angels, and has implanted lasting songs in redeemed hearts ever since. Through the finished work of our Lord Jesus Christ on Calvary, the malady of men's hearts has been changed into melody. What more thrilling or more distinctive pictures do we find in the great book of Revelation than that of the multitude of the Redeemed over beyond, singing before the Lamb and the Throne.

In a recent patriotic gathering in which the girls of the A. C. Funk Memorial School sang in competition, they were awarded the highest rating, carrying a prize of Rs. 10/—for their singing. Non-Christian schools competed. Unbelief has no music comparable to that of the Christian believer. When Robert Ingersol, the noted agnostic, died, the printed notice of his funeral said, "There will be no singing." How could there be?

It is now some time ago that Maniram was reported dead. Some considered his a bruised reed, and a dimly burning wick. No doubt, he was an earthen vessel. Nevertheless, the grace of God also did its work in him.

Many years ago, after he had heard the Christian message and the call of Christ, to which he responded, he was traveling on foot from Basna to Raipur. Cholera was raging. His non-Christian companions were bricklayers and masons like himself. They came to an idol shrine. Said his three companions, "Let us offer some coconuts to be saved from the cholera goddess". Said Maniram, "No, I shall not. To worship idols is against God. Christ the Son of God is my Saviour."

The three offered their offerings. Maniram refrained. A few hours later all three took sick from cholera, and died. Maniram was spared, and survived, and his faith triumphed. Like chota Baisakhu, and Nitai, who were with the movement from the beginning, and also recently passed away, he was indeed a bruised reed, and a dimly burning wick, and an earthen vessel. The grace of God did not disdain such, any more than did the Son of God disdain the virgin's womb.

THE LIVING WORD NO. I
FLASHES FROM THE HINDI LANGUAGE

No doubt if one wishes to get the best shades of meaning on words in our Bible, he should go back to the original languages, Hebrew or Greek. Nevertheless, as we work in the Hindi language, in Bible Study Classes, some new and living meanings flash out which make certain verses live in a new way. Herewith I wish to present three.

II COR. 3:18

As we have commonly had it, and as we have been brought up on it, it reads, "But we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as the Spirit of the Lord."

This leaves us under the impression that by just looking at Christ, and doing nothing about it, we are changed.

The Hindi opens up different meanings, and this difference is also discerned in the footnote of the Revised. Literally translated, the Hindi reads, "And we all with uncovered face, like in a mirror, showing forth the glory of the Lord, then receiving glory upon glory, are changed into the same image by that Lord who is Spirit."

The emphasis is upon the word, "Behold" or as the Hindi has it, "cause to see." In the English word "behold" the spectator may be an immobile spectator. In the Hindi he is one, who having seen, makes others to see. Let all moulders of young people, all evangelists, all soul winners take note: We become changed when? When we let shine what has shone upon us; when we make others see what we have seen. Thus reads the Hindi and the foot note of the English.

II Tim. 4:6

II Tim. 4:6 "For I am already being offered up." The Hindi has it, "I am poured forth like 'ardh!" The dictionary meaning of "ardh" is thus: "a libation in honour of a diety;" "an oblation of eight ingredients offered in worship to a diety or a Brahmin."

What a wealth of meaning is hidden back of the English word "offered up."

The word "To Tempt

The words "God did tempt" occurs in Gen. 22:1 in King James, and elsewhere. It used to be beyond my understanding.

The Hindi dictionary meaning of the word, "Pariksha" clears up this considerably. "Pariksha" means "investigation, trial, experiment, test." In the verb form it means, "to examine, to test".

I know of a Christian, young man, whose home had Rajput ancestry. One day his father wished to test his son, to learn whether he would be worthy of further education. The father went to the professor in a high school where the son was studying, and by prearrangements, came dressed in shabby clothes, into the class room, and was thus introduced by the professor to the class. The father wished to see whether the son would own him under these circumstances. The son did. Returning home, the father changed clothes to a better garb, returned to high school, explained to the class. The father "tested," "examined" the son to determine whether he was worthy of further education. So did God test Abraham to see whether he was worthy of still larger blessings.

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.

Vice President
Verney Unruh

Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference

Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

The Story of Franz, a Young Mennonite from Europe

For Franz, the future is very uncertain. He knows hat of the two roads that lie before him, he can take nly one. That road is a way of punishment, of perecution, and of suffering—the way of the cross taken y the Anabaptists, the apostles, and Christ before im. He knows that for him there must be a complete lenial of his faith and of Christ, or he faces an unnown doom. He is ready to meet his fate.

Rev. Ellis Graber of Souderton, Pennsylvania, isited Franz and his brethren in a prisoner-of-war amp in North Carolina. All of the men are German-peaking, Russian Mennonites who had sought relaive religious freedom in Germany and had been imressed into the army of the nazi-German government.

"Franz's story of life at Chortitza (his Russian ome) was enlightening," wrote Rev. Graber, who isited the brethren in March this year. "Mennonites f Chortitza moved to three distinct localities about our miles from Chortitza. They met regularly for vorship services, and in this particular locality there vere religious services until a late date. (The men lid not like to be questioned as to definite dates when eligious services could no longer be held because there vas so much variation between different localities.) 3ut as time went on, the pressure against such servces became more severe. Ministers had to secure a ermit for every religious burial. Dangers were inolved. Ministers were taken away. They did not wish o ask for permits and many did not wish to perform n illegal burial. The result was that often they would ing a few songs in the house and not have any servce at the graveside. After some time there was not single minister left in this area. Many of the people vere afraid of being baptized because it meant takng your life into your own hands. Franz himself was ot baptized until he and his wife (now in Poland) vere in German territory. Then at the first opporunity, they had the rite performed. This was also the ase with many others."

Franz was among the many Mennonites who went ack into Germany during the 1943 retreat of the Ferman army. For him and his brethren, ". . . it was matter of going from one country to another, the econd of which permitted more religious practices. Ience they do not hesitate to say that once they were n Germany they could attend the church of their hoice, be baptized, and still live with the assurance hat they would not be molested because they were baptized. Characteristic of all the reports of the plight of our Russian brethren, these young men told also of how the Mennonites have been suffering, thousands upon thousands having been sent into exile. (They use the word 'verschleppt' which is more meaningful than 'exile.') When one asks about the settlement and our people, they simply answer, 'Ach, they are all gone!' "

"When inducted into the service in Germany, Franz and two friends went to the commanding general and said, 'We do not believe in war; we are Mennonites and cannot take up arms.' But the officer told them that he had never heard of Mennonites and with that left them. While in Germany, Franz also tried to find some Mennonite churches, but not being able to find any in his locality, he worshipped in the Evangelical churches." In Germany he could again worship, though it was here that he changed his name from Abraham to Franz, because Abraham sounded too Jewish (though he no longer sympathized with the thought that his name must be changed because it is too Jewish.) After being pressed into the service, he was eventually captured with Rundsedt at the battle of the Belgian Bulge. From this point of capture, he was removed to a POW camp in the United States. After moving several different times, he finally landed in North Carolina where he met the other of his Mennonite brethren whom he had not known before. Here they maintained a type of Mennonite fellowship, a kind of kindred spirit known to all Mennonites.

These men do not want to go back to Russia. They have been blacklisted because of their religious refusal to be dominated by an all-powerful state. From Germany into Russia; from Russia back to Germany; into the army against their wills; then capture; and, to a POW camp in a foreign country; and from here, back to Europe. What eventually awaits them there is uncertain.

May their faith be strong for what awaits them.

● For the first time in history "money in circulation" in the United States passed the 26 billion dollar mark, standing at $26,068,000,000 on April 18.

● Last year's estimated per capita income of $1,050 for every man, woman and child in the country was more than double the 1935-39 average of $520.

A Young Person's Prayer : First Things

By Grace Helen Davis

HEAVENLY FATHER, there is so much that calls to me in this my youth, and my feet are so eager to try this path and that one! My time, my strength, my very self, are swiftly drawn out and expended.

But even as I make glad response, may I take time to reflect and wisely to choose, that I may not fill my arms with baubles and let life's riches sweep past me.

Help me, dear God, to put first things first: health, sound knowledge, discipline, character, and above all that right relationship to thyself which will make all else worth-while and complete.

Keep me close to thee, Heavenly Father, and give me guidance in this vital, responsive time of my youth. Amen.

Volunteer Summer Service Units

Four Volunteer Summer Service Units are opening in June under the auspices of the Mennonite Central Committee. In addition to these, the General Conference is sponsoring a unit to be held at the Chicago Mission. This unit is sponsored jointly by the Home Missions Board and the Young People's Union.

Approximately twenty volunteers will work at each of the M.C.C. units and six will serve at Chicago. The M.C.C. units are located at Howard, Rhode Island; Cleveland, Ohio; Norristown, Pa.; and Gulfport, Mississippi. The first three are connected with mental hospital C.P.S. units. The latter is connected with the hookworm project in Mississippi.

Leaders of the units are as follows: Howard State Hospital: Clair Hoffman, C.P.S. leader; Mrs. Frances Smith, summer unit leader. Norristown State Hospital: Bill Ramseyer, C. P. S. leader; Frances Becker, summer unit leader. Gulfport, Mississippi: Melvin Funk, C.P.S. director; Myrtle Hertzler, summer unit leader. Cleveland State Hospital: Paul Goering, C.P.S. leader; Mrs. Emma Rohrer and Esko Loewen, summer unit leaders.

In addition to the service the units will perform, programs of study will be developed by each unit.

Virgil Flickinger is the leader of the Chicago Mission service unit.

Four Requisites for Great Preaching

First, there must be something vital inside the preacher. It may be the "I know" of Paul or the "I must" of Jesus. We cannot "feed the sheep" without having something in us deeper than words. Truth becomes aglow when it is incarnated.

Second, self-disipline is the path to powerful preaching. The second essential to great preaching is work, work, work. Learn the rules and follow them. Stop the disipline of hard work only when you stop preaching.

Third, great preaching will be life-centered instead of theory-centered. The sermon comes out of the congregation quite as much as out of the preacher When we lose a sympathetic, intelligent understanding of the problems of our people, we lose the power to preach.

Fourth, the minister must never forget who he is, but he must never allow this to form a chasm between him and his people. To think and outlive his people in the field of the spirit and at the same time be their comrade is a fine art. That lays the foundation for great preaching.—H. L. Hartsough, in "The Gospel Messenger."

Do Your Own Thinking

It is a most excellent and sensible thing to do, as most of us would readily admit, but it isn't as easy a thing to do as it really ought to be. Not that we haven't the brains and equipment for doing it. Most of us have that, or at least had it at one time, if we haven't squandered it or thrown it away. The trouble has been, and is, that it is so much easier to let someone else think for us, that we have little by little formed a habit, and a habit that is anything but easy to break.

There are so many radio commentators and wise people around who are so positive that they know all about the facts and the true inwardness in this situation and the other situation, that we find it rather more to our taste to agree with them than to bristle up and call in question some of the things they are telling us and decide that we ought to look into the question for ourselves.

Then, of course, many of us belong to a set or a party or a society that holds to certain views about many matters, and it is very easy to get into the way of taking their opinions on this or that, and sometimes on questions that are very important and somewhat fundamental rather than reach our own convictions and views by unprejudiced and serious thinking. And these same sets or parties or societies get quite annoyed at us sometimes for not being true to the organization and accepting ready-made opinions and theories.

But really it is much more important that we should be true to ourselves than that we should accept the ready-made shibboleths of any group of people without serious question. Intellectual integrity is one of the finest things in the world, and if we are going to cherish it and develop it, we shall have to form a habit of looking other people's opinions squarely in the face in order that we may see how much of truth or nonsense there is in them.

Of course sometimes these organizations may get a bit annoyed at us for not being quite true to them and their philosophies, but we do not need to worry too much about that. In the end it will be very much wiser and safer for us to do our own thinking, very definitely, at times anyway, than to follow along after the coat-tails of any organization.—Onward.

C. P. S. and Church Libraries

A healthy emphasis on reading and library needs and interests has been in evidence throughout the CPS program. For a great many assignees, the CPS camp has offered the first real contact with a library. To be sure, all have had the opportunity of the public library, but generally the public library has been inadequate and has not answered the needs of the average CPS man. Even the public school libraries are limited, and only a relatively few individuals have access to the church school libraries.

Has the CPS library filled the needs of the assignees? I definitely believe this can be answered in the affirmative—for two reasons. In the first place, if a specific book or periodical is desired by an interested assignee, his interest is usually given favorable consideration. And secondly, material generally chosen for the CPS library is selected by men who have access to good, comprehensive bibliographies. This reading material which is of paramount importance to the average assignee is made available for his persual not by mere accident, but by intelligent selection. The public library offers much in fiction, mystery, poetry, essay, philosophy and science. The CPS library has usually offered the choice of these, PLUS (and this is what makes it adequate) a good selection of volumes on Christianity and religion. This section has often contained books and magizines on non-resistance, Christian doctrine, church history, and Mennonite history and culture. Without this section, the library for the average CPS assignee, ex-assignee, and even church member is inadequate.

Many released CPS men will be missing the library which they learned to appreciate in camp. The CPS library, without a doubt, has been of major significance in the total CPS picture. The important question is: How can we continue to supply this need and interest primarily for the man who leaves CPS? I would like to make several suggestions.

First: More emphasis should be placed on good church libraries. I use this term broadly. It might include a vast reading room with multiple stacks of books as well as a shelf of circulating current books in the pastor's home. Here, without a doubt, the church has a responsibility. Since for reasons of expense and lack of recent information and bibliography, it is impractical for individuals to fill their own libraries, the church must step in and supply not only individual needs but the needs of the whole congregation. It is essential, however, that volumes be 1) well chosen and selected, and be 2) made available for use. There are many systems of setting up a church library, and there are different ways of conducting it. But the essential need and requirement is for a sincere interest in such a project on the part of the church pastor and several of the church members (perhaps ex-CPS men) who see this as a real means of service.

Second: The minister of the average church congregation should be prepared to suggest literature on any subject or topic in which the average church member may be interested. He should be informed of the latest as well as of the earliest writings on many of the vital and living religious and social subjects in order that he may supply the best. This requires good bibliographical material and a living interest in the program; these are most necessary for the building and maintaining of a good church library.

A church library comparable to that of the average CPS camp library should be more than an idea or a suggestion. It should become a reality for the Mennonite churches of today and thus help to make the vision live.

Reliance

Not to the swift, the race:
Not to the strong, the fight:
Not to the righteous, perfect grace:
Not to the wise, the light.

But often faltering feet
Come surest to the goal;
And they who walk in darkness meet
The sunrise of the soul.

A thousand times by night
The Syrian hosts have died;
A thousand times the vanquished right
Hath risen, glorified.

The truth the wise men sought
Was spoken by a child;
The alabaster box was brought
In trembling hands defiled . . . .

Not from my torch, the gleam,
But from the stars above;
Not from my heart, life's crystal stream,
But from the depths of Love.

—Henry van Dyke,
Poems of Inspiration

Youth Events

About six workers have volunteered to serve with the Mennonite Mission in Chicago during the summer months beginning June 24. Virgil Flickinger of Pretty Prairie, Kansas, will serve as leader of the unit for the summer. The group will work with Rev. John T. Neufeld in a program of teaching in summer Bible schools in the city and conducting recreational activites. This is one of the first efforts of this type being undertaken where the young people of the church have an opportunity to work in a conference mission. For this reason, their experience is of special significance.

* * * *

Four churches in California will conduct special music institutes during the summer months with Anne Wiebe of Beatrice, Nebraska, serving as leader. Miss Wiebe is spending the summer in California with the four churches and the two C.P.S. camps. She will conduct music clinics giving private lessons, training special groups, and leading the groups in general in the great music of the church. The churches particapating are: Shafter, Winton, and the First and Second churches of Paso Robles. This, also, is a new venture which some churches have found most worthwhile, but which has not been tried in this way in our conference.

* * * *

The Pennsylvania Conference of the United Brethren church recently purchased an abandoned C.C.C. camp at Old Forge, Pennsylvania. They plan a continuous program during the summer in which all age groups will have special camp programs, and the camp is to be available to local church groups for holding of spiritual retreats.

* * * *

About one-half of the graduates from the Ontario Bible School were young people from the Ontario Mennonite churches. This Bible School is operated by the Brethren In Christ Church which is a member of the Mennonite Central Committee.

* * * *

The tinsmith who fabricated the ballot box being used by the United Nations Organization cast the first ballot. He placed the followng slip of paper in the ballot box which was found by a Council officer who opened it for inspection:

"May I, who have had the privilege of fabricating this ballot-box, cast the first vote?

"May God be with every member of the United Nations Organization, and through your noble efforts bring lasting peace to us all—all over the world.

Paul Antonio, Mechanic."

* * * *

An Institute of Race Relations will be held at Fisk University, Nashville, Tennessee, from July 1 to July 20. The Institute is to have a staff of experienced lecturers, consultants, and discussion leaders. The Institute costs $61.25. A limited number of scholarships will be available. Charles S. Johnson, Director, Institute of Race Relations, Fisk University, Nashville 8, Tennessee, is in charge.

* * * * *

The Brethren Church's Heifers for Relief program was the result of one person's suggestion. As a result thousands of heifers have been sent abroad. The Brethren Service Committee is now seeking additional plans which would give expression to the church's peace convictions. A contest is being sponsored called a Peace Action contest. Essays are being solicited which are to give concrete workable plans for giving expression to the peaceful way. Prizes are to be given in the form of seventy-five dollars fellowship to a summer work camp or fifty dollars in cash for the best suggestions. Other prizes are also to be given.

* * * * *

Colleges over the land are being crowded for the coming year at this early date. In New York State, the enrollment is reported to have gone forty thousand above the previous high, with eighty thousand more expected to enroll by autumn which would make a 100 per cent increase for that state. The overcrowded condition is expected to continue for another two years and after that the permanent population of the colleges is expected to continue at a level 50 per cent above the pre-war level. It is true that the general trend has been toward more education. Comparing figures of the last twenty-five years confirms this as a fact.

* * * * *

Public-opinion surveys show an alarming rise in hostility toward racial and religious groups. One unplubished opinion poll indicates that 13 percent of the people polled would join a hate campaign against the Jews, and an additional 12 per cent are undecided . . . . but think that it might settle the problem. Eleven percent of those polled think that Negros are a menace to America and would support a hate campaign against them. (Monthly Summary of Events and Trends in Race Relations. March, 1946.)

● All the gold that has been mined in the world since Columbus discovered America could be put into a forty foot cube.

● A Brazilian fungus that grows on dead trees emits a light so bright that you can read a book by it at night.

● The New York Aquarium has a record of striped bass living for twenty years, large-mouthed bass living for eleven years, and whitefish which reached fifteen years.

● It takes Nature nearly 1,000 years to build one inch of top soil.

● The tarpon of Florida waters can swim at a speed of eighty miles an hour.

RELIEF

Seminar Study Group at La Plata

At the request of the Evangelical Seminary of Rio Riedras, a group of nine students headed by Dr. Mergal of that institution are spending a period of one month with the La Plata Unit for work, study, and observation. Classes are being held in hospital orderly, Bible, community work, and farm and reconstruction. Harry E. Martens, Director of the Unit, writes: "We are taking the group in as members of our own family and are praying to God that He may give us grace to be the kind of witness for His cause as is the best within us. We count this to be a very real opportunity and privilege but we are also aware of the responsibility that goes with it."

Change of Address

Up to this time the address of the La Plata Reconstruction Unit has been Aibonito, Puerto Rico. A new U. S. post office has been established in the little town of La Plata which opened on June 1. All future correspondence with the Unit should be addressed: La Plata, Puerto Rico.

Relief Activities in Denmark

Brother Walter Gering reports that living conditions in the refugee camps in Denmark have improved considerably during recent months. There is enough food so that they need not go hungry; health conditions are improving and the death rate is no higher than in Denmark proper. There is, however, a desperate need for clothing before next winter; one shipment is now being distributed; but much more is needed. Brother Gering has visited all the camps where Mennonites are located, meeting them either individually or in groups; "several services were held where all were present and in other cases prayers were offered up to the Throne of Grace." In addition, each family was given a personal interview. Pray for these needy brethren.

Dutch People Grateful For Food

"I was posted at one of the four distribution centers in Den Haag, and as the M.C.C. representative I was privileged to pass across the counter the allotment of meat that each family or individual received. In those two days I saw more crippled, sub-normal, blind, and feeble people than I imagined ever to see assembled in one day. Many faces beamed with joy and gratitude as they learned that they were the recipients of chicken, beef, or pork, in the quart or two-quart tin container that was handed them. One felt that truly these were the people whom the folks at home would desire to see helped."—Ruth Hilty.

Relief Workers Return

Ralph C. Kauffman arrived in New York May 30 after two years of relief service in India. He served with the Mennonite Relief Committee in India and was later loaned to the Bengal Christian Council Relief. In recent months Bro. Kauffman has served as Purchasing Agent for the United Committee of Surplus Supplies through which supplies were made available to Christian missions.

Delvin Kirchhofer, former Director of the MCC Service Unit in Italy, and Grace Augsburger R. N. arrived in Montreal on June 2 after visiting MCC centers in France, Holland, and England en route. Both served in refugee camps with UNRRA in Egypt and Italy.

C. P. S.

New Camp Publication

Most recent in the line of publications coming out of CPS camps and units is the thirty-two booklet Of Human Importance published by the BSC-CPS Unit at Alexian Brothers Hospital in Chicago. The booklet depicts, chiefly pictorially, the life and work of the assignees as male nurses in the hospital, pointing out the value of the work and the motivation behind it. Copies may be obtained by writing Bob Wilson, CPS No. 26, Alexian Hospital, Chicago 14, Illinois. The price is 50c per copy or 40c each in lots of ten or more. Any returns received which exceed the cost of production will be designated for overseas relief.

Gift Parcels to Germany

Washington—The Post Office Department announced that gift parcels will be accepted for delivery to the United States zone of Germany, except the sector of Berlin, effective June 1.

Postal restrictions, of course, must be met in the packaging of these shipments for mailing. Postal regulations restrict the weight of an individual parcel to a maximum of eleven (11) pounds, the value of an individual parcel to $25.00 or less, and the measurements of the parcel to a maximum of three and one-half (3½) feet in length or six (6) feet in length and girth combined. The content of a package is limited to items of a personal nature, such as: clothing, piece goods, toilet preparations including soaps and shaving creams, writing materials; medicinals including vitamins, and non-perishable foodstuffs. No writing or printed matter may be included. The rate is fourteen cents a pound. Parcels and customs declarations must be marked "gift parcel" and the value and contents stated on the customs declarations. Only one each week may be sent by one person to the same addressee. (June 7)

Rev. H. G. Nyce New Secretary

The Foreign Mission Board at its annual meeting elected Rev. N. G. Nyce, Allentown, Pa., as its secretary. Brother Nyce has accepted the office and has assumed its many responsibilities. Brother P. H. Richert served the conference for many years in this capacity, but because of his illness it was necessary to choose another. The Foreign Mission Board desires the counsel and the prayers of the entire conference. Uphold our secretary, Brother Nyce, in your petitions. The work is the Lord's. Let the name of Christ be exalted. — A. E. Kreider, Chairman

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

Parcels for Germany. The Friends Service Committee announces: "Gift parcels may now be sent by parcel post to the U. S. Zone of Germany only (Berlin excepted). Maximum weight 11 lbs; once weekly to same person. Suggestions: Used clothing only. Nonperishable food in unbreakable containers, such as canned meats and fish, fats in tins, cheese, dried fruits, peas, and beans; sugar, rice, chocolate, powdered milk; unscented soap. Use strong carton; tie securely. Obtain special tags from post office; and get additional information there."

Those who have friends or relatives in Germany can now help them. Send your packages immediately, especially to displaced persons and city dwellers. Sometimes a day may make the difference between life and death. Those who wish to help but have no address can obtain them from the editor of the Mennonite or the writer of this column.

A Repeated Request. Again and again the Mennonites of Europe express the need for fellowship with the Mennonites of America. This is especially the case in Holland where conditions have more or less returned to normalcy. A lively correspondence is in progress which should increase steadily. American Mennonite periodicals are especially appreciated. One handicap, however, remains. No Dutch currency can be transferred to America to pay for subscriptions. Should we not be able to find some ways and means to meet these expenses? The editor of the Algemeen Doopsgezind Weekblad, the official Mennonite periodical of Holland, Rev. S. H. N. Gorter of Apeldoorn, Soerenscheweg 138, writes: "I have not recently received any American Mennonite papers, I regret this very much since I display what I formerly received and call attention to it in my paper. I would greatly appreciate getting them in the future. Kindly give them my address." Perhaps some of our readers could help pay for subscriptions to Dutch Mennonites.

President Visits Mennonite Colony. The Menno Blatt of Paraguay reports a visit the President of the country paid to the Friesland Mennonite colony. They were especially concerned about the impression that the President would get since Paraguay was to make provision to permit the entry of displaced Mennonites of Europe. Unfortunately, just before the arrival of the President a large swarm of grasshoppers came to feast on the fields, gardens and orchards of the settlers. In addition to the President, the Governor, the Minister of Education, and many other arrived. Meanwhile Paraguay has granted permission for displaced Mennonites to enter the country.

Emigration to Canada. Rules governing immigration were recently announced in Canada. Canadian citizens may apply for admission of refugee father, mother, unmarried son, daughter, brother, or sister and orphaned nieces or nephews. Accordingly only a fraction of the displaced Mennonites of Europe that are longing to enter Canada will get there.

Immigration Quotas for the United States. The Mennonite Central Committee is now collecting data concerning displaced Mennonites in Europe to help them enter the United States on the annual quota. Some of these annual quotas are as follows: Germany, 25,957; Danzig, 100; Russia, 2,712; Holland, 3,153; Poland, 6,542; etc. Within the framework of this quota preference is given to those persons who have close relatives in the United States.

Calories in Siberia. Heartbreaking letters are frequently received from Mennonites who had hoped to come to America, but have been sent to Siberia. Here are a few lines from a letter that was published in Der Bote, June 5: "We have traveled far. First we were taken to Poland and other countries, through Germany and back again. After a two-months trip with 80 persons in a freight car we were dumped in a primeval forest in Siberia. It seems we are facing inevitable destruction . . . Our need is very great. Frieda works beyond her strength from 6 A. M. till 6 P. M. for 600 gram of bread (1 lb.) and some thin soup. Anita and I (who are too young and too old to work) receive one-third of a pound of bread and are consequently weak and discouraged . . . The work is to fell trees, saw them up, and transport them. The snow is very deep and it is cold. We are lost unless we receive help." Many similar reports come through.

Elder Bruno Ewert Writes from Denmark: The Elder of the Heubuden Mennonite Church of Prussia, now living in Denmark with thousands of Mennonite refugees, has written to the former chairman of the Mennonite Colonization Board of Canada, Elder David Toews. Rev. Ewert expresses his heartfelt thanks for the help and sympathy that the Canadian and American Mennonites have extended to them. He says: "Many of us would like to migrate if there is no opportunity for us to settle in Germany. My son and family have also decided to go. In that case my wife and I will join them. I wonder whether we will meet again. I still remember the fine visit you paid us in our home at Gruenhagen . . . Thank editor Epp for the 20 copies of Der Bote that he plans to send us."

Jottings

— Goessel Mennonite Church, Goessel, Kansas: June 9 twelve young souls were baptized. Besides these Dr. and Mrs. A. K. Ratzlaff and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wiebe were also taken in as members. June 10 was children's day with a fellowship dinner after the program.—Margaret R. Schroeder, Corr.

— First Church, Aberdeen, Idaho: About sixty were enrolled in summer Bible school. June 2 Willard Wiebe, who is to serve the First Church, Beatrice, Nebraska, during the summer, was ordained as a minister of the gospel. He will resume his studies at Mennonite Seminary, Chicago, in the fall. The offering for relief at the morning service totaled 322.84. In the evening the Ladies Missionary Society ıve a program and the offering amounted to $211.58. he King's Daughters Mission Society has sewed 58 articles of clothing for relief. Members donated 10 pieces. Seven comforters were made during the ıst year.—Arnold E. Bartel, Corr.

— First Church, Beatrice, Nebraska: Rev. Willard 'iebe will be serving us during the summer months. ecently he and some young people attended a young eople's leaders institute at Henderson. Rev. Wiebe resented the main address at the evening session.— largaret Albrecht, Corr.

— Bergtal Church, Pawnee Rock, Kansas: Twenty-1e pupils enrolled in the three-weeks Bible school f which Olga Schmidt was teacher. Erwin C. Goering rought the morning and evening messages on June On June 5 the Mission Workers Society closed s year's work. Reports read that 669 pounds of ood used and new clothing, sixty-seven comforters nd blankets, and one thousand pounds of food had een sent to the M.C.C. for European relief. A total f $738 was sent to missions, relief, and migrant 'ork.—Mrs. John Dirks, Corr.

— Eden Church, Moundridge, Kansas: Sixteen ındidates for baptism were received into the church n Pentecost, Dr. C. E. Krehbiel performed the eremony in the absence of Rev. Walter Gering, 'ho is serving as an M.C.C. relief worker in Denmark, eports much suffering and despair among the Mennonites in the Danish prison camps.—Ellis Goering, 'orr.

— First Quarterly Conference of the Eastern District 'ill be held in Fairfield on Monday, June 24.—W. helly, Sec.

— Lehigh Mennonite Church, Lehigh, Kansas: Folowing Sunday School on Father's Day, we had the onsecration of children, a sermonet, a program by 1e smaller classes, and then a outdoor dinner and ecreation. That evening the Junior Choir, led by Irs. M. O. Blair, gave a musical program at a joint 1eeting of the Canton Methodist and Baptist hurches.—Mrs. F. G. Unruh, Corr.

— Walton Mennonite Church, Walton, Kansas: The adies have been serving at the Cummunity Sale at Iillsboro every Friday afternoon for the past six 'eeks. As a result, a profit of $111.00 was turned ver to the church building fund. Twelve new members 'ere taken in on May 26. The annual Sunday School icnic was held June 2 with a short program, a asket dinner, and ice cream.—Mrs. Milton Wedel, 'orr.

— St. John Church, Pandora, Ohio: The congregation njoyed a basket dinner at the Pandora school building Ionday evening, May 27, as a farewell for the Rev. . J. Boehr family. The young people of the church pent Decoration Day sight-seeing in eastern Ohio. -Josephine Moser, Corr.

— First Church, Bluffton, Ohio: During Holy Week ineteen new members were added to the church 1embership, and on June 2, at the time of our 'hildren's Day program, four children were conse-rated. The church was well represented by delegates nd visitors of the Middle District Conference held t Nappanee.—Laura Smith, Corr.

— First Church, Nappanee, Indiana: The young people, who had charge of the services Sunday night, used the program that was used by the young people's services of our Middle District churches in these days just before the conference. An offering was taken for retreat expenses.—Mrs. Loyal Corwin, Corr.

— Carl Landes writes, "Beginning June 25, our address will be 7845 W. Mississippi Avenue, Denver, Colorado. Though this is a Denver address, we are on a ten-acre farm, some five miles from city limits." Rev. Landes is now F.O.R. Regional Secretary of the Rocky Mountain States.

— First Church, Madrid, Nebraska: On May 27 a large crowd enjoyed the program given by the Freeman Junior College Choir. Fifty-six pupils have enrolled in vacation Bible school. Rev. John G. Unruh is directing the school. The crops look very good, showing no effects from the light frost.—Corr.

— First Church, Aberdeen, Idaho: Mrs. Elizabeth Becker passed away on May 16, after being ill for only a short time. Eight young people were baptized on May 26. Recently the young people gave a musical program at which they took an offering for defraying Willard Wiebe's travel expenses from Chicago to Aberdeen, so that he might be ordained as minister in his home church. We are happy to have another one of our young people go into fultime service for the Lord.—Arnold E. Bartel, Corr.

— Additional appointees for M.C.C. relief work are: Kenneth Schmidt, Hillsboro, Kansas, for Puerto Rico; Bert Smucker, Bluffton, Ohio, for Austria; Elizabeth Brauer, Coaldale, Alberta, for England; Katherine Derksen, Mountain Lake, Minnesota, for France; Orlo Goering. Moundridge, Kansas, for Denmark; and Magdalene Friesen, North Newton, Kansas, for Holland.

— Rev. and Mrs. Garman Wedel have moved from their apartment on the Bethel College campus to the parsonage which the Emmanuel Church has provided for them in Moundridge.

— Dr. E. G. Kaufman, President of Bethel College, and Dr. Ernest E. Miller of Goshen College, left New York City by plane for Europe on the evening of June 9. In Europe they will carry out special missions for the Mennonite Central Committee and the Council of American Mennonite and Affiliated Colleges. They will visit relief centers, various educational institutions, and Mennonite communities. The two men are to help facilitate registration of refugee European students in American Mennonite and affiliated colleges and are also to conduct a preliminary investigation regarding possible arrangements for short courses for

---

HEADQUARTERS OFFICE CORNER

When and where is the next session of General Conference to meet? The 1945 Conference decided to meet in 1947, accepting the invitation of the First Mennonite Church, Berne, Indiana.

The Executive Committee suggests that, God willing, plans be made for a midweek to midweek conference, with August 20 to 27, 1947, as tentative dates. —Walter H. Dyck, Executive Secretary

Mrs. G. A. Linscheid
222 South Pine
Newton
Kansas

Mennonite students from America who wish to spend some time in advanced study in European centers.

— Mount Olivet Church, Huron, South Dakota: Rev. Victor Graber of Delft, Minnesota, conducted a series of revival meetings here during May. We enjoyed having him in our midst. On May 30 and 31, Rev. Alfred Regier of Henderson, Nebraska, spoke to us and showed moving pictures of the Grace Children's Home. Preparations are being completed for the first anniversary of the Mt. Olivet Church, which will be celebrated at Huron College auditorium June 16. Speakers from several of the surrounding churches are included on the morning, afternoon, and evening programs. These churches will also be represented with special musical numbers, illustrations, and object lessons.—Mrs. J. E. Walters, Corr.

— First Church, Berne, Indiana. On June 2, the Choral Society presented "The Creation" by Hayden to a large audience. This was under the direction of the Minister of Music, Freeman Burkhalter. It was an excellent rendition and inspiring to the soul. On June 5, Freeman Burkhalter was married to Mary Kathryn Myer. June 3, Edward Burkhalter began his duties as assistant to the pastor for the summer months. He has just returned from a course of study in the Biblical Seminary, New York. Next Sunday morning he will bring the message, on the the subject "Consider Your Ways." Recently we had a three-day Youth for Christ rally, with Jim Rayburn of Texas as the speaker, and Blanchard Lightner of Chicago as the song leader. Next week the Missionary Union will hold a missionary rally in the church, at which a number of missionaries from different societies and fields will be the speakers.—Martha Gilliom, Corr.

— Re-dedication and anniversary services will be held in the Springfield Church, Pleasant Valley, Pa. on June 22 and 23. On Saturday night Community Night will be observed with pastors of the six neighboring churches cooperating. Each church will also furnish special music. On Sunday morning Rev. Wilson Overholt of the Deep Run Old Mennonite Church will preach. In the afternoon at 2:30 Rev. A. Roger Kratz, Dean at Albright College, Reading, Pa., will speak. Dr. E. E. S. Johnson and Rev. Howard G. Nyce will also assist in the service. The male octet of the East Swamp Church will furnish music. Two years ago the entire exterior of the church was re-painted. This spring the interior was painted and the pews stained in walnut. All the painting was done by one of our trustees, our C. E. President and our church treasurer at a sacrificial rate of pay.—Mrs. Leroy Meyers, Corr.

REPORT ON RECENT SESSION OF NORTHERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The fifty-fourth session of the Northern District Conference was held at the Salem Mennonite Church near Freeman, South Dakota, June 1-5, 1946.

The main theme was "The Teaching Ministry." The main guest speaker was Rev. A. E. Kreider of Goshen Indiana. His calm, deep, loving way of presenting the living truth thrilled the hearts of all who heard him and will never be forgotten by most.

Other speakers were Dr. Harold Gross of Freeman, South Dakota; Rev. Jacob B. Hofer of Dolton, South Dakota; Rev. Erland Waltner of Mt. Lake Minnesota; and Rev. Marvin J. Dirks of Northwestern University, Chicago, Illinois.

The Conference sermon, "The Question of Emphasis," was delivered by Rev. Willard K. Claassen of the Salem Church of Freeman. It was a masterpiece.

The singing was very ably led by Walter H. Hohmann of Bethel College and Marvin Dirks of Chicago.

A much appreciated part of the educational program was the report by "Living Witnesses of Christian Teaching" of students of Freeman Junior College, Freeman, South Dakota, Bible School at Mountain Lake, Minnesota, Bible School at Munich, North Dakota, Bible School at Lustre-Frazer, Montana and Bible School at Henderson, Nebraska. The teachers that heard these young people speak will have to admit that money is not the only remuneration a teacher gets.

Wednesday was Young People's Day. It was a pleasure to see so many young people at the Conference. The Social Hour from 11:15 to 2:00 was enjoyed. The Round Table Discussion was interesting. Verney Unruh presented the Y. P. U. — "It's Aims, Activities and Purposes."

The high light of the statistical report given by W. J. Flickinger was the healthy increase in donations for C. P. S., home and foreign missions and especially for relief.

The Mt. Olivet Church of Huron, South Dakota, was accepted as a member of the Northern District Conference.

The next session of the Conference will be held at the Emmanuel Church of Doland, South Dakota. The newly elected officers are:

President: Rev. Willard Claassen of Freeman, South Dakota; Vice Pres.: Dr. Harold Gross, Freeman, South Dakota; Secretary: Henry Harder, Butterfield, Minnesota; Treasurer: Reuben Friesen, Stockham, Nebraska; Statistician: Elmer Friesen, Henderson, Nebraska.

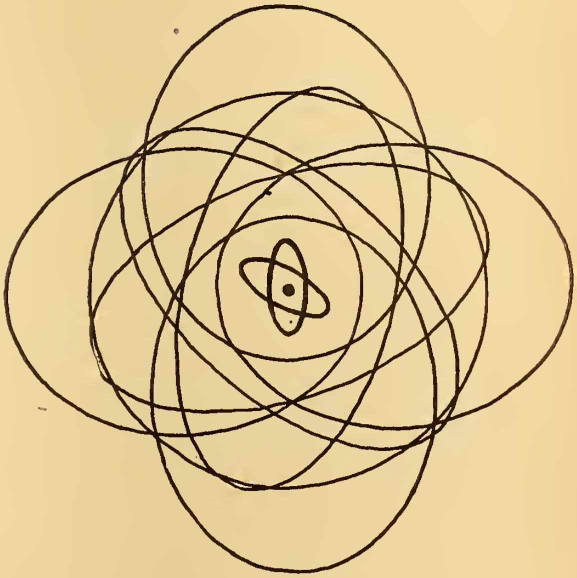
We had nearly perfect conference weather. The church was full and the reception good on the loud speakers for the large crowd. The ladies of the Salem Church served splendid meals to the visitors.

A real treat for some of the visitors was a visit to the Jamesville Colony near Yankton. The boss, Jos. F. Waldner, gave us some interesting information concerning the Hutterian colonies. Several asked as to the requirements of entering the colony, so if there is a decided increase in the population of the colonies we will know the source. One peculiar thing about the visit was that it took place while the women of the Conference had their session. Most of those going to visit the colony were men.—John P. Kleinsasser, Secretary.

The Mennonite

lume 61 June 25, 1946 Number 26

God's Smallest Creation



by Leonard C. Kreider

When we pause to consider God's handiwork in na- re most of us think first of the trees, flowers, birds d animals, of man, and of the stars. All of these are ry large compared to God's smallest creation—the om.

Just as the far sweeps of the heavens are too vast r the mind of man to grasp as is the smallness of the om too minute to comprehend. The smallest particle dust visible under the most powerful microscope ntains something more than a quarter of a billion oms. Even the electron microscope, which has great- extended man's insight into the minute, does not en- ble one to see single atoms. To understand further e smallness of atoms and their tremendous numbers, ppose that it were possible for you to put a little tag each atom in a glass of water so that the atoms uld be identified later. You then threw the water on e ground, it evaporated, the winds scattered it widely, fell as rain and found its way to the oceans and ter many centuries your glass of water was thorough- mixed with all the water in the world. Then another rson, reading of your marking of the atoms, would aw a glass of water where he lived and would search r your marked atoms. How many do you suppose he ight find! About five thousand. Why? Because there e about five thousand times more atoms in a single glass of water than there are glasses of water in all the world.

As small as atoms are, they are themselves complex structures of still much smaller parts. The illustration at the head of this article represents in a crude way an atom of neon, the gas used in neon signs. The dot in the center represents the nucleus, composed of tightly packed protons and neutrons and possibly other particles, and accounts for practically the entire weight of the atom. Around this center ten electrons, tiny bits of negative electricity, move in circular or eliptical orbits, the paths of which are illustrated. It was a great surprise to scientists to find the atom mostly empty space, but accumulated evidence for this fact leaves very little room for doubt.

If an atom of neon could be enlarged 200,000,000 times it would be about the size shown in our diagram, except that the nucleus would have to be made too small to be visible. Saying this in another way, the parts of the atom that have weight occupy only one-millionth of a billionth of its total volume. Interestingly, the "filled" space in the atom is roughly proportional to the "filled" space in our solar system. The rigidity of ordinary matter, in spite of its tenuous nature, is to be accounted for on the basis of powerful electro-

(Continued on page 3)

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus"

From the editor's point - of - view:

SCIENCE, which has given us radio, radar, plastics, television, rocket planes, new medicines, etc., may, in the future, make contributions to human living which will be very important but not as materialistic as those just mentioned. In fact, science is already shedding important light on the "nature of man" even though a few short years ago a leading scientist wrote a book entitled "Man the Unknown." Science is now pointing out that resentments, hatred, and anxieties produce illness in the human body. It is pointing out more and more the important relationships which exist between mind, emotions, and body. From the findings of science it is clear that it is necessary to love and to have a clean conscience if one is to have good physical, mental, and emotional health. It is not surprising that science should have something to say about human living. May not God be wanting to say something through science? We marvel at radio. God made certain aspects of this universe so orderly that radio could be developed out of them. God also made possible that orderly research into the ways of nature that made radio possible. We believe that the fact that two plus two equals four is God's truth. Certainly through science man has "discovered" much that God was willing to reveal. God has disclosed much truth through science. It takes great truth to make some of the astounding physical inventions of today. A weakness of science has been that it has contended itself too exclusively with the material. Thereby it may have kept God from saying to us some of the things that he would like to say to us over and over again about human living. He certainly wants us to know that resentments and worries may help to bring on stomach ulcers. Undoubtedly, he wants us to know a good many things to which we have had closed eyes and deaf ears. In this age of science man has been privileged to learn much about the physical universe, which is God's creation. Is it not time that he become more concerned about learning a great deal more about himself, for he too was created by God and surely is subject to just as orderly and predictable ways as are the things with which science has so wonderfully wrestled. It is unfortunate that some scientists have lacked in an appreciation and understanding of the Christian faith. It is also unfortunate that the Church hit back at the scientists instead of understanding them and examining itself. Today the picture seems to be changing. Scientists are coming to a new appreciation of the Christian faith, and the Church is discerning more clearly the rightful use of science. Nature Sunday, which will be observed on June 30 this year, will serve to remind us of "nature". Perhaps, for the next decades—if this world continues—it may very appropriately make us more conscious of the nature of man, for it is his nature that decides what use is made of planes, ships, atomic power, and of man himself.

INTERDEPENDENCE is more important to the welfare of man than independence however desirable the latter may be. A child needs to grow up and attain to a certain measure of independence and self-reliance. However, when this is carried to an extreme one meets the individualist who likes to believe that he is a self-made man and who very ungraciously fails to recognize how much grace has been afforded to him by many others whose lives have touched upon his in home, community, school, church, etc. No man can live unto himself, and it is to the detriment of all to have someone act as though this were possible. Interdependence suggests that we all need each other as the organs of a body need each other. In it there is not ruler-slave relationship. It suggests equality in the sense that each can and ought to contribute to the welfare of the other. Human beings and groups are different, and difference can make for common enrichment when they tend towards unity of outlook and function. Fourth-of-July and Independence Sunday, June 30, may remind us of how desirable it is to be independent and of how much more desirable it is to recognize the interdependence of all peoples in a world where they must learn to live like brothers, or die like—man may yet become the most horrible example—if man chooses to use the atomic bomb.

TIME FOR STUDY is needed by ministers, so that they can more effectively serve the people who have called for their ministry. Surely, ministers need schooling before they begin their work, but they also need it after they begin it. Fortunate is the minister and the congregation who can arrange a six-week period

(Continued on page 13)

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA. Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor ______ Reynold Weinbrenner, 722 Main St., Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchange to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS

God's Smallest Creation

(Continued from page 1)

magnetic effects present among the charged particles making up atoms. The electrons in the sketch are indicated only by their paths or orbits and are thought to be moving with nearly the speed of light which is about a million times faster than a rifle bullet travels.

Ninety-six different kinds of atoms have now been discovered or prepared, each of which exist as varieties known as isotopes which differ only in the weight of the nucleus. These, then, are the basic materials out of which all physical things in the universe, living or lifeless, are fashioned. These atoms of either the same or of different kinds combine with each other in definite whole number ratios to make the molecules which in turn compose the physical things we see and handle. The atoms can be likened to pieces of stone, steel, wood and glass of which molecules (buildings) are constructed. Many molecules make up the things we see like a cube of sugar or a piece of ice just as many houses make up a city. An average-sized sugar cube—if one can be obtained!—contains ten thousand billion sugar molecules and each sugar molecule is, in turn, composed of twelve atoms of carbon, twenty-two atoms of hydrogen and eleven atoms of oxygen, all combined in a definite pattern to form this ultimate sugar particle. The atoms are held together by the interlocking of their electron orbits.

The question is often asked, "If atoms are as small as chemists say they are, how then can they manipulate them to make the products they desire?" Strictly speaking, the chemist does not and, in fact, cannot "make" the atoms combine. He is only a careful student of the "habits" of the various atoms and notes how their habits change under varying conditions. By choosing the proper conditions the atoms will arrange themselves into the molecular patterns desired by the chemist. In this way men have prepared many thousands of kinds of molecules that "nature" does not provide directly. (see footnote)

How can scientists know the size, number, and structure of the atoms which are too small to see? Suppose an intelligent and a mechanically clever man of a previous age, like Benjamin Franklin, could be restored to life and shown an automobile. By seeing the fuel put in, observing the action of the car, noting the sounds as it ran and analyzing the exhaust gases he might be able to surmise quite accurately the principles of its operation without ever looking under the hood. Just so the scientists, after examining the behavior of the atom by every means at their disposal, have devised a picture of its structure and workings, the broad outlines of which cannot reasonably be doubted.

Our God then, as Creator, surely has given marvelous attention to detail in the fashioning of His universe. Man has bowed in awe before the range and the majesty of His heavens. Let him also bow in deep humility before His infinitesimal and amazing atoms.

It is also interesting to know that there are about a billion billion billion atoms in the body of a man and there are about a billion billion billion times as many atoms in a star as there are in a man. Man is thus, in a sense, in a strategic position mid-way between an atom and a star, being as many times larger than the atom as the star is larger than he.

Surely man should worship his God and Creator and humbly thank Him for the gift of intelligence whereby he can catch a few glimpses of His majesty through knowing His handiwork.

Twenty new kinds of molecules that are not found in "nature" have been prepared by Dr. Leonard C. Kreider, who is Professor of Chemistry at Bethel College and Chairman of its Division of Natural Sciences.—Editor

Pensioning Our Ministers

by August Epp

For many years certain individuals and groups have been seriously concerned about pensioning our preachers when because of age or infirmities they should retire. In the fall of 1945 the Executive Committee of the General Conference appointed A Minister's Pension Committee consisting of the following: August Epp, 116 Allison, Newton, Kansas, chairman; Clinton Kaufman, 712 South Green, Wichita 9, Kansas, secretary; Mrs. J. E. Entz, Route 3, Newton, Kansas; Miss Mary Bargen, Mountain Lake, Minnesota; Rev. H. Albert Claassen, 1508 Elk, Beatrice, Nebraska; and Robert Stauffer, Milford Square, Pa. This committee is charged with the duty of working out some plan of pensioning and of presenting it to the next session of the General Conference.

Certainly, it is of the utmost importance that we begin being concerned about the welfare of our preachers in the realm of their retirement. School teachers have, quite generally over the country, a plan by which they will some time in the future be able to retire more or less gracefully. About eighty million people in this country are covered by Social Security which, too, will give them an income guaranteed for life, starting at age sixty-five. But our ministers are obliged to get along as best they can when the church is through with them, which quite often is long before the ministers are through with the church. Statistically it is a well-known fact that worry about the necessities of life greatly shortens the life span of people. It is the opinion of many people that during these years when the dollar is very cheap, should be the time when we should get busy in raising funds for our ministers' retirement. Our committee has given a good deal of serious thought to this problem and has studied the plans of other denominations for some time. Other churches have raised enormous sums to pension preachers and have done it because they feel they owe it to them. So let us too give some serious thought and prayer to this problem. When the plan is finally worked out and accepted by the Conference, it should be one that is adequately financed and a plan which our ministers feel is on a sound basis so that they too can endorse the same. All this can be worked out if properly financed, so we had just as well be thinking in terms of assessment either on the per member basis or possibly per church budget. A little later on our committee will be needing some information relating to amounts of church budgets, minister's salary, and name, number on the church roll, etc. It is the hope of this committee that it will receive one hundred per cent cooperation from the churches and the ministers in supplying certain data when it is called for. Certain district conferences have worked on this problem for years and find it is too much of a financial load for one district to carry. So the General Conference desires to work out a plan which will involve all districts and the churches therein. Our committee desires your prayerful consideration at this time and your monetary consideration later on when a plan is finally worked out.

First Impressions of America

by Herbert E. Dester

(Missionary Herbert Dester, who with Mrs. Dester returned to the United States this spring for a second furlough from their missionary work in India, put down on paper some "First Impressions of America" at our suggestion. We believe you will enjoy looking at America through Dr. Dester's eyes.—Editor)

After nine and a half year's absence from America and forty days on a slow steamer, we were hardly prepared for the experiences of our second home-coming to the States. The New York stores were like a fairy land. It did not seem real. Were we having a kind of "Alice in Wonderland" dream, or were all these stores and people and things real? Were people, trains, and stations, really so clean? Could it be that people in general were so helpful and considerate? Were there really so many provisions made for our saftey and comfort; soap, towels, drinking cups, and good water at every turn and when needed? Could travel be so quickly effected and with so little discomfort? (And still one hears much complaint). Is it actually possible to travel from New York to Chicago with only a few short stops on the way? Are these beautiful children, boys, girls, and grown-ups real? They wear such beautiful clothes, everything just right.

One sees the word, "Delux," also "Super Delux," "Master Delux," a great deal. In our super delux living—clothes, houses, automobiles—are we putting first things first? Is this super living in super heated trains, hotels, public buildings, and homes, with ice water to counterbalance, going to build that type of America that will stand the test of time?

The way in which young people face the issues of life, religion, and sex is very fine. Is it good that our super standards of living should make it so difficult for these fine young people to join hands and hearts in making their contribution to this great land of ours?

Another question is that of waste. Thousands and millions of lights burn unnecessarily. Many know of the waste in the army and of useless destruction. Coming from India, where every bit of usable paper is conserved for wrapping and as scratch paper, where the daily newspaper contains only three to seven sheets, we are amazed at the lavish use of paper and wrappings here in America. At the newstand I get almost a pound of news paper for a few cents. Do we have limitless recources of such materials?

One is perplexed at the growth of bureaucracy and the increase of "red tape." In most missions the need of automobiles, tires, bicycles, and hospital equipment is acute. Yet it appears as though it is easier for the army to destroy these than to sell them to the missions. It is most discouraging to try to get such equipment and pplies. The most ignorant man in the distant jungle nows that wrongdoing and sin result in suffering and unishment. What will be the result of wanton deruction, waste, and graft in high places? Can Ameria, the "Big Five," or the "Big Three," set aside God's ws? Will God be mocked?

Although it was to be expected, one is impressed ith the moral lapse, and the lapse in morale during e past months. There are those who, in war, found hristian brotherhood, selflessness, and love for brother ore than for self. They found men loving their lives et giving them for others. Not finding these so evident peace, men are distressed. It is gratifying to know at in the service of the King, in C.P.S. camps, relief, nd in the world wide outreach of our interest and ctivities, we as Mennonites, have in a measure what ome would call the moral equivalent of war.

One is impressed with the many conveniences availble to the average person in America. There are so any fine things to be heard on the radio at most any me. So many good things are available at the stores. They are put up in such convenient and attractive wrappings, and usually the value is equally good. And these many good things and "gadgets" usually work, and if they do not it is not hard to get them repaired.

My heart has often been stirred and my emotions deepened as I have joined in singing the "National Anthem," or the still better song, "My Country Tis of Thee." It is because of what America is and what it stands for, in spite of the weaknesses which are grievous, that one's emotions are stirred on seeing the Statue of Liberty and singing the national anthem. We do well not to take these things just for granted. It is possible that some day America may not place such high values on the things that abide. We should pray often and fervently that:

"Long may our land be bright
With Freedom's holy light;
Protect us by Thy might,
Great God our King."

Does a Pastor Need Time Off?

by Rev. Walter Dyck

"The apostles rejoined Jesus and reported to him all ey had done and taught. And he said unto them, 'ome away by yourselves to some quiet place, and rest little while.' For people were coming and going in rge numbers, and they had no time even for meals. So ey set off by themselves in their boat for a secluded lace." Mark 6:30-32 (The American Translation)

Such ought to be the experience of every consecrad minister of the gospel. A pastor who has borne arish responsibilities twenty-four hours per day, for leven to eleven and one-half months ought to be tired -ready to heed the call of the Master to follow Him to "some quiet place, and rest a little while."

Will you note that Mark, the one who portrays esus as the Man of Action, alone records this necesary reminder. The apostles had just given their report f their service. There had been people, people, and ore people. No time to eat, no time to meditate, little me to sleep. No doubt there were just as many peole thronging about them when they returned to their uties. But now they were overwrought, tense, burdenl, and restless. They needed the calm poise that comes lone through the enjoyment of a consciousness of the freshing, restful presence of Christ.

It has been said that the only thing more expensive an an education is ignorance. So it might also be id that the only thing more expensive than taking a two to three or four week vacation period each year is to grind on year after year in ceaseless activity without the refreshing which a period of "time off" can bring.

My family looks back with pleasure to such annual periods in which we were privileged to "leave town." One does not wish to leave the flock and forget them. But committing them to the Lord's care, one must entrust pressing parish duties to others at home.

Every vacation must have a purpose. For us, the need has usually been for rest and relaxation. With particular pleasure do we remember having driven one summer for some miles up a lonely Colorado canyon. Finally, we came to a little opening in which there were a number of primitive log cabins. A "Cabin for Rent" sign led us quickly to the owner who said, "We usually get $2.00 a day for this furnished cabin—Oh, make it $10.00 a week." Those two weeks passed so quickly. The evenings were cool. By eight o'clock we had usually started a little wood fire in the kitchen stove. One evening, the thousand foot peak to the north was scaled by my daughter and myself while mother and sonny watched for the raising of an improvised flag at the top. Then to watch the deer coming over the wooded mountainside in the early morning hours, the faint but unfailing roar of the rapids in the near-by river, the regular walk to the little grocery store for the milk and other essentials—these were the touches that helped to bring release. Someone in that group of cottages had a telephone. One evening when these neighbors were not at home, the phone began to ring. Inadvertently thoughts went home to loved ones. But we were resting and enjoying it to the full. We had left knowledge of our whereabouts with friends who would notify us if absolutely necessary.

Of course, we spent time reading. We read The Bible, long portions of it. We read The Robe, by Douglas. But still there was something lacking—something we trust will be supplied to many ministers and their wives, missionaries and their wives, this summer.

In about two months from now your pastor and his helpmate will, we hope, be wending their way to the First General Conference Minister's Retreat to be held at a Methodist Camp Ground located next to Lake Okoboji, in northern Iowa. They may hesitate to leave their flock unless you lend your personal encouragement.

The purpose of this gathering is not only for relaxation, although we wish to allow plenty of time for rest, but also for fellowship and inspiration. Whatever your pastor's main need may be, we wish to help him meet it. The aims are fourfold:

1. To provide for spiritual fellowship and growth. Jesus was with His disciples when they went to "rest a little while." We are praying for His presence, that our discussions and classes may be Christ-centered and Biblical in content.

2. To foster a spirit of fellowship and understanding among ministers and missionaries. "The more we get together, the better we will be able to work together." It is one thing to read about each other in the "Jottings," another to grow, pray, and plan together.

3. To serve as a minister's workshop where important problems are studied in the light of God's Word. If a certain pastor's insight inspires and works, why should others be deprived of it? Pastor's wives sometimes become burdened with cares. We are arranging periods for their own discussions. In Christian unity there is strength. We need your pastor and wife at retreat this summer.

4. To provide for a period of relaxation and recreation. We hope our leather-craft periods in the afternoons will give many of us ideas as to how our young people can spend leisure hours more profitably.

You will note that we have not tried to prove that the pastor needs to take time off. We have taken it for granted and herewith extend a hearty invitation to every General Conference minister and missionary and their wives, who can make it possible to plan definitely to be present at Lake Okoboji between August 29 and September 5, 1946.

You, dear pastor, owe it to yourself, your wife, your congregation, and your conference. You owe it to your Lord who still pleads: "Come away by yourselves to some quiet place, and rest a little while." The answer of the disciples was one of action, "So they set off by themselves in their boat for a secluded place."

Prophets or Puppets?

by Willis E. Rich

Congressmen and cabinet members have the jitters. They face Herculean problems which call for strong bodies, minds, and souls at a time when multitudes of our citizens are physically, mentally, morally, and spiritually bankrupt. They are charged with the task of trying to maintain peace by compromise or by the threat of atomic World War III between imperialistic, capitalistic-socialistic governments and a coalition of atheistic, communistic, totalitarian states. Both alternatives are frightening, especially at a time when our nation is engaged in an industrial revolution.

But there is a solution to all these problems. The Church cannot now seriously and unitedly propose it; too many Christians' hands are bloody praising God and passing the ammunition. Most of the editors couldn't mention it very vigorously; their slugs of hate for the Germans and the Japs have scarcely cooled off. The majority of school administrators could hardly be expected to do much; they're still weary from managing scrap iron drives. The living veterans have the courage and could speak effectively, but the billions we have spent teaching them to hate have been too effective. Politicians dare not propose this solution; the people would ridicule them. The President couldn't announce it as his foreign policy; the munition makers would crucify him!

The price of peace and security is the cost of Humility plus Aggressive Goodwill. Call our armies home from overseas. Abandon war as a means of settling international disputes. Conquer our enemies by demonstrating a genuine concern for their welfare. Make an all-out effort to feed and clothe both friend and foe. Repent and make reparations for American atrocities at home and abroad. Believe that righteousness—not sin—exhalteth a nation. Make our primary concern the extension of the Kingdom of God on earth.

Vorship God as revealed in the Prince of Peace. Banish arriers of race, class, and creed. There's the answer!

Impractical? A display of weakness? Every other nethod has failed. Yes, our representatives have good easons for having the jitters. They also face a challenge o become fearless Christian statesmen. They may be uppets of the modern Napoleons leading fearful, warveary masses to destruction; or, they may be prophets ointing up the straight and narrow way to abundant iving for all mankind. The choice is CHRIST or HAOS!

AMERICA FIRST

Not merely in matters material, but in things of he spirit. Not merely in science, inventions, motors, nd skyscrapers, but also in ideals, principles, character. Not merely in the calm assertion of rights, but in the glad assumption of duties. Not flaunting her strength as a giant, but bending in helpfulness over a sick and wounded world like a Good Samaritan. Not in splendid isolation, but in courageous cooperation. Not in pride, arrogance, and disdain of other races and peoples, but in sympathy, love, and understanding. Not in treading again the old, worn, bloody pathway which ends inevitably in chaos and disaster, but in blazing a new trail, along which, please God, other nations will follow, into the new Jerusalem where wars shall be no more. Some day some nation must take that path—unless we are to lapse once again into utter barbarism—and that honor I covet for my beloved America. And so, in that spirit and with these hopes, I say with all my heart and soul, "America First."—Bishop G. Ashton Oldham

Report on Bethel Mission, Winnipeg, Manitoba

It is now about half a year since we entered our ewly acquired church located on the corner of Westinster and Furby streets in Winnipeg. Since that time he Lord has been graciously blessing the work of our ission Church.

On February 17 a constitution was accepted, and an lection of officers of the church took place. We are ow in the process of taking members into the newly rganized church. However, even though it is our deire to build up a church membership and to create a hurch home for Mennonite people who are at present ermanently located in the city, we find that the marity of those attending our church are young people hose stay in the city is more or less temporary. It is be expected, therefore, that our church will continue be a mission church with a large obligation to our oung people who are working in the various homes, ctories and business places, or are attending the eduational institutions of the city.

This year our catechism class is made up of thirty-seven young people who have attended the weekly sessions of this class since January. We expect to have our baptismal service on June 16.

The young people have also been active in the various organizations of the church. These activities have called for the use of the church building on practically every night of the week. The Young People's Meeting which takes place every Monday evening is a meeting for Christian fellowship and the discussion of various topics of interest to the young people. The attendance at these meetings has varied between twenty-five and one hundred young people.

The choir this year prepared an Easter cantata entitled, "The Promise of Easter." This cantata was given again, on request, at the towns of Altona and Gretna. A bus was chartered by the young people to take the thirty-three singers of the choir and the orchestra to these places located about seventy miles out of the city.

A men's brotherhood has also been organized and

Bethel Mission Church, Winnipeg

Rev. and Mrs. I. I. Friesen

meets once a month at the same time that the Ladies's Aid has its meetings in the church. At the close of the meeting a fellowship lunch is served by the ladies for all in attendance. About seventy people have been taking part in these combined meetings. During the winter months the brotherhood instituted a men's choir whose singing has been appreciated by the people of the church.

Just before Easter some of the men engaged in a church visitation program in order to contact some of the many Mennonite families of the city. We believe that good results were achieved and that an increase of attendance at the services was secured. At present the attendance is around seventy and rises to over one hundred at times.

The opportunities for Christian service are many and we solicit your prayers that God's will may be done on this important mission field.—Rev. I. I. Friesen, 864 Downing Street, Winnipeg, Manitoba.

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

Feeding the Hungry. In an editorial on June 19 the Christian Century announced that an agreement has been signed permitting the Cooperative for American Remittance to Europe—known as CARE—to send packages to Germany. Each CARE package contains 28.9 pounds of carefully balanced foods and costs $15.00. Application blanks may be obtained from banks or from the headquarters of CARE, 50 Broad Street, New York City 4, N. Y.

A Mennonite Poet Passes Away. Gerhard Loewen died at a ripe age June 2. He was a Mennonite poet of rare talent. He was born in Southern Russia in 1863 where he served as minister and teacher for many years, coming to Canada after World War I. J. H. Janzen writes of him: "He lived in the romantic, myth-surrounded valley of the Dnieper near the island of Chortitza, where in olden times the Cossacks had their camps. One time I roamed with him through this valley, and he conveyed to me the idea that a real poem is a song, even before it is set to music. Poems became music when he uttered them. His own poems all breathe a heart-warming joy that is closely allied to nature." (Mennonite Life, January, 1946)

The History of Philosophy (DIE Geschichte der Philosophie) has been written by the well-known J. H. Janzen, Waterloo, Ontario. In a unique and thrilling way the writer relates with the great questions of the human mind of the past and present in the light of his own experiences in Russia and Canada. Those who read German will enjoy this brilliantly written account.

A Summary in a Nutshell. The Rev. W. I. Fleischer, retiring chairman of the Gemeentedag beweging in Holland, stated in his farewell address how the war had affected the Dutch people: "Some have fallen. Others have become life-long leaders. Still others have lost faith in life and in mankind. Spiritually dead they seek adventure in service in the army . . . Thus we see around us ministers becoming army or navy chaplains, girls that want to go to England, many who want to change their profession and look for other positions. Only a few adhere to old ideals. These want to establish a consistent nonresistant Mennonite congregation. They want to found a Mennonite Home for children of National Socialists. They want to establish a retreat grounds (Ashram). Some of them want to do relief work among the Mennonites of Germany. And others want to establish a home for Mennonite students in Holland." (De Noodbrug, April, 1946)

IN MEMORIAM

Gertrude Kasdorf Lettkeman was born August 19, 1857 in South Russia. When twenty-four she was baptized in the Lichtnau Church. In 1884 she married Peter Lettkeman, and in 1892 they migrated to Goessel, Kansas, where they joined the Alexanderwohl Church. Later they lived at Buhler, Kansas, and then on a homestead at Weatherford, Oklahoma. Here they joined the Bergtal Church near Corn. When they retired they moved southeast of Clinton. After her husbands death in 1936, she made her home with her daughter, Mrs. P. P. Sawatzky, and joined the Herold Church near Bessie. She passed away June 2 and leaves to mourn: two sons, Jacob of Weatherford, and Peter of Clinton; five daughters, Mrs. P. P. Sawatzky and Mrs. B. C. Sawatzky of Clinton; Mrs. K. B. Wiebe, Two Buttes, Colorado; Mrs. Gust Wagner, Tucumcari, New Mexico; and Mrs. Mary Giesbrecht, Reedley, California.

Eugene J. Schroeder, son of Peter C. and Elma Schroeder, was born near Pretty Prairie, Kansas, on June 18, 1928. In 1929 the family moved to Moundridge. He was baptized on May 28, 1944, and was received as a member in the First Mennonite Church of Christian where he remained a member until his death. In 1944 the family moved to a farm northeast of Wellington, Kansas. On June 13, 1946, after a day's work in an alfalfa mill at Oxford, he with a few companions went to a lake one mile east of that town for a swim. Though a good swimmer he suddenly began to sink. His companions tried to rescue him but could not contact his body in the deep water. Help was summoned, and it took almost five hours to find his body His departure is mourned by his bereaved parents, five brothers, three sisters, his betrothed, two grand-mothers, and one grand-father.

Mrs. Lina Schrock, widow of the late Joseph Schrock, Trenton, Ohio, died at the Middletown Hospital June 4, at the age of eighty-four. Mrs. Schrock was the daughter of the Rev. Joseph Augspurger, who for many years served as pastor of the Mennonite Church. She is survived by two sons, Homer and Merlin, of Middletown, one sister Mrs. Lydia Schlonaker of Hamilton, Ohio, seven grand children and seven great grand children. —Lydia A. Augspurger, Corr.

Mrs. Abraham Wiens (nee Katherine Kroeker) was born December 12, 1878, at Henderson, Nebraska. She was united in marriage with Abraham F. Wiens in 1898 at Houston, Texas, and ordained as missionaries in 1906, at Jansen, Nebraska. The following year they came to Chicago and began home mission work in MacKinley Park, where after nine years, a good sized congregation was established. The mission at 4221 S. Rockwell street was then opened in 1917. Rev. Wiens passed away in 1937, and Mrs. Wiens continued in the service until her death. She is survived by her seven daughters Mrs. Katherine Neufeld of Chicago, Mrs. Elizabeth Thiessen of India, Mrs. Mary Toews of Africa, Mrs. Martha Ewert of Mountain Lake, Minnesota, Mrs. Helene Dick of Montana, and Sarah and Esther of Chicago. Also, there are four brothers and three sisters, one of whom is Mrs. Anderson of Africa. Mrs. Wiens' life devotion was mission work. Spreading the gospel, visiting the sick, teaching and helping the unfortunate, were her joys.

Y.P.U. OFFICERS
Elmer Ediger
President
Akron, Pa.
Vice President
Verney Unruh
Secretary-Treasurer
Ruth Ewert

Mennonite Youth

"A United Mennonite Youth in Christ"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Union of the
General Conference
Editor
Esko Loewen
Route 2
Newton, Kansas

Summer Program of the Elim Gospel Beach

Saskatchewan youth has a new summer program for Elim Gospel Beach, situated near Swift Current, Saskatchewan. The summer program begins June 16 and continues to August 4. Each day a Bible study and worship service is held at 10:30 a.m. and an evangelistic service at 7:30 p.m. On Sundays the schedule consists of Sunday School at 10:00 a.m., worship service at 11:00. In the afternoon a special song service is held at 2:00. Evangelistic services are held at 7:30 in the evening. Also, special singing and music will be provided for daily.

The location of the beach is such that it serves well as a vacation spot having a beautiful natural setting beside Lac Pelletier. The staff is prepared to have instruction classes ready for all ages. Cabins rent for $1.50 per day, meals are $1.35. Further information can be obtained by writing Elim Gospel Beach, Box 844, Swift Current, Saskatchewan. The following are the speakers scheduled for the summer:

SPEAKERS' SCHEDULE

REV. J. C. SCHMIDT ---------- June 16 to 18
President of the Mennonite Youth Society

REV. BENNO TOEWS ---------- June 16 to 22
Rosthern Bible School

REV. L. E. MAXWELL ---------- June 18 evening
With Men's Gospel Quartet
Prairie Bible Institute

REV. A. B. KOOP ---------- June 23 to 29
With Ladies' Gospel Quartet
Menno Bible Institute

MR. G. W. ELLIOT ---------- June 27 to 29
Western Tract Mission

REV. C. H. SUCKAU ---------- June 30 to July 6
With Men's Gospel Quartet
Grace Bible Institute

REV. W. R. RUSSEL ---------- June 30 - July 6
Shantymen's Christian Association

REV. CARL GOLDBERG ---------- June 30 - July 6
Western Canada Mission to the Jews

REV. DAVID P. NEUFELD ---------- July 7 to 13
Mennonite Church Minister

REV. K. O. STENSLAND ---------- July 7 to 13
Friends of Israel

REV. J. J. ESAU ---------- July 14 to 21
Blind Evangelist and Extension Worker for Grace Bible Institute

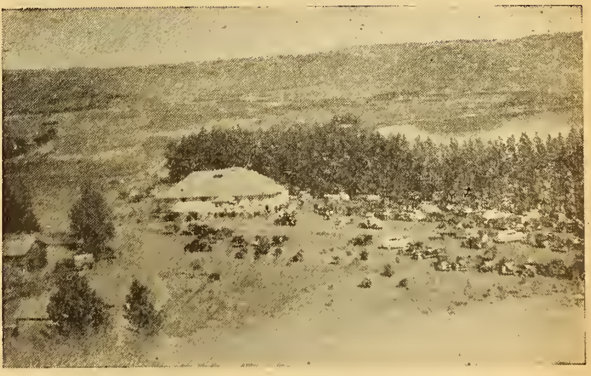
REV. PAUL R. SHELLY ---------- July 21 to 28
Bluffton College, Bible Department



Auditorium, restaurant, and foreground of beach taken on dedication day, June 24, 1945

Boats on quiet water

Grove sheltering beach

REV. R. LORNE McTAVISH
Saskatchewan Temperance Federation
REV. J. D. UNRUH——July 21 to 28
President of Freeman Junior College
REV. MARVIN J. DIRKS——July 21 to 28
China Mennonite Mission
REV. Z. P. CARLES——July 29 to Aug. 4
Spanish Christian Mission

Mealtime during Children's Camp

Friede sei mit euch
Swift Current Bible School Orchestra which is to play at the retreat

Central and Middle District Retreat at Camp Mack

by Robert Hartzler

Our summer camps, which are sponsored jointly by the Middle and Central districts, will be held June 17-23 at Camp Alexander Mack, Milford, Indiana. We will this year continue the effort begun last year of running two camps on the same grounds concurrently—one for people of high school age and above, and one for those who are in grades six to eight. A splendid faculty has been brought together for the senior camp, including Rev. Harry Yoder, public relations officer of Bluffton College, who will teach a course in "Solving Our Personal Problems;" Rev. Jacob Enz of Nappanee, Indiana, who will offer, "New Testament Studies in Christianity;" Rev. Marvin Dirks, of Chicago, who will teach "The Challenge of Missions" and share in the music program; Rev. Wilmer Shelly of Topeka, Indiana, who will teach, "Rural Life Opportunities;" Rev. Olin Krehbiel of Berne, Indiana, "How to Be a Good Church Member." Rev. Russell Mast of Wadsworth, Ohio, will be serving as camp pastor. Various other leaders will be offering courses during the activity period including Miss Esther Wenger, R.N., the camp nurse, from the Mennonite hospital at Bloomington, Illinois, who will offer a course for girls interested in nursing on "Nursing as a Life Service." Recreation will be in charge of Rev. Wm. Stauffer who will also serve as assistant director.

The Junior age group at Camp Mack from Central and Middle Districts.

In the Junior camp Miss Ruth Ewert of Hillsboro, Kansas, will serve as dean; Mrs. Gladys Ehresman of Flanagan, Illinois, will have charge of the Bible story hour and chapel period; Rev. Walter Dyck, Executive Secretary of the General Conference, will teach a course on "What It Means To Be a Christian in the Mennonite Church." There will be additional instructors in music and crafts.

In addition to these faculty members there will be adult cabin counselors—one for every twelve campers. The camp orchestra, a junior and a senior chorus, and a daily camp paper will be other features of the week. Cost to each camper will be $11.50 for the week. Rev. Robert W. Hartzler of Goshen, Indiana is general chairman.

Reminiscences of a Last Year's Retreater

By Joann Bowen

Have you ever tried to describe an event that has been an unbelievably rich experience in your life, something that was filled with both spiritual and social gain, something that has meant so much to you it seems impossible to state in words, and yet you would feel selfish if you kept such happiness to yourself? If you have, then you can appreciate my feeling of inadequacy in attempting to describe the 1945 All-Mennonite Retreat held at Camp Mack on the beautiful Lake Wabee in Northern Indiana. In such a lovely setting, it is easy to feel very close to our Creator, especially with the help of our excellent instructors, who do everything possible to help us understand our religion and its purpose in our lives by teaching us courses in prayer, Bible study, and character development. Of course, the inspiration of us all was the wonderful music which we learned and loved. And the companionship—the fun! How can I describe that? Perhaps the most fitting testimony to our retreat is the enthusiasm with which each camper wholeheartedly cooperates with the others, in play and in work, and whose regretful parting words are always "See you next year!"

Youth Events

Three volunteers are spending this summer in work with the migrants. The three to go this year are Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Boehr and Miss Amelia Mueller. The three are going under the sponsorship of the Women's Missionary Association and under the supervision of the Home Missions Council of North America. Mrs. Melvin Boehr is serving her second summer. Until the last of May this year, she was Katherine Andreas. Mr. Boehr is from Henderson, Nebraska, Mrs. Boehr from Beatrice, Nebraska, and Miss Mueller from Halstead, Kansas.

* * * * *

At the Northern District Conference held at Freeman, South Dakota, June 1 - 5, the youth group elected Carl Epp of Henderson, Nebraska, as president for the coming year. Definite plans are being considered regarding the holding of a Northern District retreat. At present, because of the distance factor, the District has been holding state retreats. The District voted to donate one hundred dollars for the General Fund of the Young People's Union. Support of the Missionary Education Fund of the Young People's Union was given when two hundred dollars was approved for this cause. The Missionary Education Fund will bring Christian students from Paraguay and Puerto Rico to be educated in Mennonite colleges for service in their native land.

* * * * *

The budget of the young people of the Henderson church is seven hundred dollars for the coming year.

Melvin Boehr

Amelia Mueller

Mrs. Melvin Boehr

It is reported that at some churches more money is raised than the group knows what to do with or has plans to distribute. There are numerous projects which local churches are invited to consider. By contacting the Young People's Union full details can be obtained.

The young people of the North church at Freeman, South Dakota, have been active giving radio programs monthly at Sioux Falls and giving services to the patients at the Tieszen clinic in Marion, South Dakota.

* * * * *

Verney Unruh, Vice President of the Young People's Union, is on a summer visit of churches in the Northern District. His itinerary is as follows: June 1-5, Northern District Conference, Freeman, South Dakota; June 8-9, Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebraska; June 11-13, Avon, South Dakota; June 15-16, Warroad, Minnesota; June 22-23, Wolf Point, Lustre, and Bloomfield, Montana; June 24, Arena, North Dakota; June 25, Doland and Hitchcock, South Dakota; June 26, Huron, South Dakota; June 28 - July 3, Freeman, Marion and Bridgewater, South Dakota; July 24-28, Aberdeen, Idaho retreat; August 18-22, Mountain Lake, Minnesota retreat.

* * * * *

The June 5 issue of the Christian Century contains an article by Charles Clayton Morrison on "Protestant Misuse of the Bible" which should challenge the thoughtful consideration of Christian young people.

* * * * *

The Westminster Fellowship of the Presbyterian Church has undertaken a project in Puerto Rico. The Presbyterian Church has a hundred acre farm called El Guacio located between San Sebastian and Las Marias. Two young people have recently gone to this farm to serve in a mission program of reconstruction and religious instruction. A call has been issued for additional young people to volunteer to serve at this Puerto Rican farm. Dr. E. A. Odell, 156 Fifth Avenue, New York 10, N.Y. has charge of the project. This indicates that other churches are also interested in Puerto Rico.

* * * * *

Reports from Poland indicate that the acute need for cows and horses in that destitute land is because in the Warsaw section of Poland there is less than half a pint of milk per day available for children under two years of age. There is none for adults.

* * * * *

Reports state that the extremely limited diet in Poland consists of the following daily menu. For breakfast: a slice of bread. For lunch: a slice of bread, a bowl of potato soup or barley broth. For supper: a slice of bread.

* * * * *

Mr. M. E. Hays, Chief of the Agricultural Rehabilitation Division of UNRRA in Poland, reported to UNRRA headquarters: "I hope that you will again officially express to the Brethren Service Committee the very great appreciation of the Polish people, as well as those of us here in UNRRA, for the excellent manner in which they have cared for livestock en route. I have heard nothing but praise of this from the veterinarians and also the ship's officers. They are certainly to be commended as good livestock men and gentlemen." Since many volunteers from our churches have participated in this work, this word of praise is of double interest.

Western District Conference RETREATS

July 26-28

Young Adults . . . For college Juniors, Seniors and above (or twenty-one years or over).
Director: Walter H. Dyck
Place: Memorial Hall, North Newton, Kan.

July 29-August 3

Youth . . . For high school Sophomores to college Sophomores inclusive (ages fifteen to twenty.
Director: Herbert E. Miller
Place: Camp Wood, Elmdale, Kansas

August 4-7

Intermediate . . . For ages twelve to fourteen or Junior High age.
Director: Jacob T. Friesen
Place: Memorial Hall, North Newton, Kan.

For details see your pastor

WORLD CALL . . .

I planned an ultra modern home when priorities were lifted . . .
But a Belgian citizen whispered, "I have no home at all!"

I dreamed of a country place for the pleasure of my children . . .
But a Jewish lad kept saying, "I have no country!"

I decided on a new cupboard right now . . .
But a child of China cried out, "I have no cup!"

I started to purchase a new kind of washing machine;
But a Polish woman said softly, "I have nothing to wash!"

I wanted a quick-freezing unit for storing quantities of food . . .
But across the waters came the cry, "I have no food!"

I ordered a new car for the pleasure of my loved ones . . .
But a war orphan murmured, "I have no loved ones!"

I planned a stained glass window above the choir stalls . . .
But a Chinese pastor murmured softly, "My church has no walls!"

—By Mayme Gardner Miller

RELIEF

China Workers Sail

June Straite R.N., Elvira Lehman R. N. and Mrs. William Ewert left from Mobile, Alabama, on June 11 on board the S. S. De Sota. Ruth Fisher sailed on June 13 on board the S. S. General Meigs from San Francisco.

Relief Workers Return

Mary Emma Showalter, relief worker in Egypt and England, and Lewis Martin, special commissioner in the interests of the Material Aid Program, arrived in New York on June 11.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Richard Weaver and son, Gerald, arrived in New York on June 11 after a period of service in Puerto Rico.

Workers Arrive

Edwin Schmidt arrived in Asuncion, Paraguay, on June 12 and Vernon Neuschwander arrived in Buenos Aires on June 11.

Ernest E. Miller and Edmund G. Kaufman arrived in England on Monday, June 10.

Relief Briefs

Orie O. Miller, Executive Secretary of the Mennonite Central Committee, and Sister Miller left Akron June 12 on a commissioner-visit to South America where they will review the relief program among the Paraguayan Mennonites and visit Mennonite colonies in Brazil. Before returning to the States in the latter part of July they plan to visit the La Plata project in Puerto Rico.

Dale Nebel was transferred from China to the Philippine Islands, where he will serve as director of the MCC Unit to be opened there. He and C. L. Graber arrived in the Philippines on June 6.

Paul Ruth reports that the members of the Builders Unit in Holland are getting settled in their huts on Walcheren Island. Their address is Mennonite Central Committee, Box 43, Middelburg, Holland.

A total of fifty-eight Mennonite CPS and ex-CPS men are now doing relief work on foreign soil. CPS and ex-CPS men comprise 35 percent of all workers in Mennonite relief. These figures include assignees at La Plata, Puerto Rico.

Goodwill Christmas Bundles

Plans are under way to assemble Goodwill Christmas Bundles during the summer months for distribution among needy children overseas. The bundles will contain clothing, toilet articles, games, and other necessities for children. Some articles will be inexpensive and can be made and assembled by children. The assembling of Christmas bundles will be a suitable project for Sunday School classes, Bible Schools, Junior sewing circles, and missionary societies. Individuals and families can also use this means of making their Christmas contribution. In the near future pamphlets and detailed information regarding contents, method of packing, and shipping will be sent to the churches in United States and Canada.

C. A. R. E.

All orders for C.A.R.E. "standard food packages" should be sent through the MCC Headquarters office at Akron. Information and food remittance blanks are available from the Akron office. The M.C.C. is compiling a list of names of persons in Europe needing food packages. C.A.R.E. food packages may now be sent to individuals in ten countries: Austria, Czechoslovakia, Finland, France, Italy, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Greece, and Egypt. The cost of one package is $15 and contains approximately 30 pounds of food, about one-third of which is meat; they also contain milk foods, processed fruits and vegetables and sugar products.

"Hilfe" offered Services of MCC

"Hilfe," a relief organization of the Apostolic Christian Church has requested the services of the M.C.C. to channel relief contributions to their people in Europe. The Executive Committee on May 17, 1946, approved their request and offered them the services of the Mennonite Central Committee within the limits of its facilities and license as a relief agency. "Hilfe" will be an auxiliary to the M.C.C. for the purpose of shipping relief supplies to Germany and central European countries.

Food and Clothing for Germany

On May 22 a shipment of food and clothing totaling 454,095 pounds and evaluated at $82,032.90 left New York Harbor on board the S.S. American Forwarder en route to Germany. Included in this shipment were: 3,992 bags flour (5 carloads), 747 cases and barrels of animal fats, beef, and pork, 968 cases assorted foods, and 461 bales clothing, bedding, and shoes.

(Continued from page 2)

or so in the summer in which the pastor can attend some school. This makes for growth in the minister and consequently also in the congregation. A ministers' retreat, as described in this issue, can also be a source of refreshment and enrichment. A congregation which expects much from its minister will encourage him to make use of periods of in-filling.

Court Declares C. O. Eligible For Naturalization

On April 22, 1946, the Supreme Court of the United States decided that an alien may be admitted to the United States citizenship even though, because of his religious scruples, he refuses to bear arms. This decision reverses the rule that the court had laid down some fifteen years ago in the Schwimmer, Macintosh, and Bland cases.

This decision was handed down in the case of James Louis Girouard of Stoneham, Mississippi, a former native of Canada who applied for United States citizenship in 1943. Being a Seventh Day Adventist, he claimed exemption from combatant military service on religious grounds, but indicated a willingness to serve in a noncombatant capacity. In spite of this, the District Court of Massachusetts admitted him to U. S. citizenship. However, the government appealed the case and the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the former decision. The case was then brought before the U. S. Supreme Court, with the result that the majority opinion supported the granting of the citizenship.

An excerpt from the majority opinion is of special interest: "The struggle for religious liberty has through the centuries been an effort to accommodate the demands of the State to the conscience of the individual. The victory for freedom of thought recorded in our Bill of Rights recognizes that in the domain of conscience there is a moral power higher than the State. Throughout the ages men have suffered death rather than subordinate their allegiance to God to the authority of the State. Freedom of religion guaranteed by the First Amendment is the product of that struggle . . . . The test oath is abhorrent to our tradition. Over the years Congress has meticulously respected that tradition and even in time of war has sought to accommodate the military requirements to the religious scruples of the individual. We do not believe that Congress intended to reverse that policy when it came to draft the naturalization oath."

This Supreme Court decision is of special interest to all who are conscientiously opposed to military training and service. It is significant that the highest tribunal of our land insists that the freedom of the individual conscience is not to be dominated by the edicts of the State. Not only is the principle of religious freedom implied in this decision significant, but in actual practice it may be a very important factor for Mennonites of Europe who want to emigrate to this country. It is hoped that in view of this decision, Mennonite emigrants from Europe may apply for naturalization without promising to participate in military service.

Carload Shipments for Relief by Mennonite Communities

Following is a list of carload contributions which have been made to the relief program broken down into various states and communities:

Washington — Lind
3 carloads flour
California — Reedley
1 carload flour
2 tons whole milk powder
2 carloads raisins
2 carloads prunes
A group at Shafter has just completed a potato canning project. More specific information will be available soon.
Idaho — Aberdeen
1 carload flour
1 carload evaporated milk
Montana — Bloomfield, Lustre, Larsla, Frazer, Wolf Point
6 carloads flour
North Dakota — Velva, Munich, Harvey
3 carloads flour
South Dakota — Marion
6 carloads flour
Nebraska — Henderson, Beemer, Paxton
4 carloads flour
2 carloads wheat
Kansas — Hillsboro, Newton, Moundridge, Buhler, Pretty Prairie, Great Bend, Harper, Protection, Plains, Lorraine, Ingalls, Whitewater, Ulysses, Yoder, Inman, Halstead
44 carloads flour
Iowa — Wellman
1 carload baby food
Minnesota — Mountain Lake
6 carloads flour
Michigan — Bayport
2 carloads beans
Indiana — Topeka, Middlebury, Shipshewana
4 carloads flour
Illinois — Bloomington
1 carload peas
Ohio — Archbold, Plain City, Dalton, Pandora, Orville, Sugar Creek, Walnut Creek
3 carloads flour
1 carload evaporated milk
1 carload wheat
1 carload corn
Oklahoma — Bessie, Corn, Orienta, Balko, Turpin, Hooker, Weatherford, Cordell
11 carloads flour
Virginia — Broadway, Fentress, Harrisonburg
1 carload beans
1 carload soy beans
2 carloads evaporated milk
1 carload meat and vegetables
Pennsylvania — Lancaster Co., Franconia Conference
7,200 cases canned meats
9 carloads flour
2 carloads evaporated milk
5 tons whole milk powder

These figures by no means represent the total efforts of any group or community in the relief program. In addition to the foregoing, goods in the amount of $212,308 have been processed in the warehouse at Silver Springs, Pennsylvania. At Kalona, Iowa, goods in the amount of $29,737 have been processed and shipped.

Foods processed in these warehouses represent contributions of meat, vegetables, fruits, fats, soups, evaporated milk, and various other items from all sec-

First General Conference Ministers' Retreat

August 29 to September 5

The First Minister's Retreat for minister's and missionaries and their wives has been planned for August 29 to September 5, 1946, at the M. E. Camp Grounds located next to Lake Okoboji, at Spirit Lake, Iowa.

We herewith wish to cordially invite all ministers and missionaries and their wives of the General Conference to this period of inspiration, fellowship, and relaxation. The aims of this retreat are fourfold:

1. To provide for spiritual fellowship and growth which is Christ-centered and Biblical in content.
2. To foster a spirit of fellowship and understanding among our ministers and missionaries.
3. To serve as a minister's workshop where pertinent problems are studied in the light of God's Word.
4. To provide for a period of relaxation and recreation for ministers and their wives.

Make your plans to attend now. Further announcements and details of the program will follow immediately. —Retreat Committee, Dr. J. D. Unruh; Rev. Olin Krehbiel, Rev. Walter H. Dyck, Rev. Ronald von Riesen.

tions of the country. At the warehouses these individual contributions are combined to make carload lots. These are then shipped to seaboard and from thence to foreign lands.

A number of urban groups, who are unable to contribute materials, have contributed cash which is also very much needed and without which our program could not operate. Whether a contribution is in cash or materials it is equally appreciated.

It can be easily noted that the types of contributions vary in different sections of the country. Each community has given of what it has. And herein lies the blessing. Flour, although badly needed and a basic food, cannot alone meet the need of starving peoples. They need body-building foods also—meats, milk, fruits, vegetables. That which one community cannot supply another community can give. By giving of what we have and combining our efforts and contributions with those of others we can at least in part meet the needs of starving and broken humanity.

Jottings

—Hereford Church, Bally, Pa. On Children's Day the Primary Department rendered part of the morning service. Flannelgraph talks were given by Helen Adenwelder, who is Child Evangelism Secretary of the southwestern section of Pennsylvania. — Mae Latshaw, Corr.

—Fairfield (Pa.) Church: The evening service on June 9 was conducted by Robert Geigley and Vernon Schmidt, who gave a report on their work in Paraguay by film and slides. In two weeks they will give us further information on their work. The Community Daily Vacation Bible School, of which Rev. George W. Stoneback is dean, is conducted in Fairfield. It has an enrollment of eighty-seven. Thirty of these come by bus from Orrtanna. There are twenty-three in the age group of twelve to fifteen. The teachers are drawn from the various churches in this community. Miss Mabert Benner and Charles Williams were united in marriage June 1.

—Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebraska: Rev. Verney Unruh, Rev. Edmund Miller, and Rev. Willard Wiebe were our guest speakers at a youth rally held June 8, 9. Monday morning Rev. Miller gave us the Communion message, and in the evening he conducted a service in the interest of the Mennonite Biblical Seminary, Chicago. The Senior Mission Society is collecting and preparing relief supplies during the summer, so that they will have large amounts of supplies to send for the coming winter. The annual mission sale totalled $792.75, and the collection was $72.66.—Mrs. Reuben Friesen, Corr.

—Apostolic Church, Trenton, Ohio: Mrs. Rodolphe Petter of Lame Deer, Montana, spoke on "Our Mennonite Heritage" at a recent missionary meeting. Rev. and Mrs. Amstutz, accompanied by Mrs. Petter and Miss Edna Kinsinger, attended the Middle District Conference.—Lydia A. Augspurger, Corr.

—Burrton, Kansas: Rev. and Mrs. Arnold Epp taught a vacation Bible school northwest of here. Later Rev. Epp, assisted by two teachers, taught our own vacation Bible school.—Corr.

—Burns, Kansas: Ten new members were received recently. June 9 the Alexanderwohl Men's Chorus gave us an inspiring program.—Mrs. Sam Stucky, Corr.

—First Church, Berne, Indiana: On June 16 eighteen young people were baptized and received into the church. One person was admitted by letter. This same Sunday ended a week's missionary rally held in the church under the auspices of the Missionary Union, an organization composed of members from various churches in town. Some excellent messages were brought by Dr. Albert Helser, Africa; Rev. J. VanLierop, Belgium; Mrs. Kathryn Hawthorne, Sumatra; Rev. and Mrs. Roland Rice, China and Japan; Rev. Walter Pageler, Cuba, now going to Alaska; Miss Ruby Nickel, Chicago Hebrew Mission; Misses Luella Burley and Martha Burkhalter, India; Rev. Andrew Losier, Africa; Ruby Lindgren, China; and Royal Steiner, World War Veteran No. 2 who showed pictures on Palestine. On Friday evening, June 21, Bob Finlay of the University of Virginia will speak at the Youth for Christ Rally in the church. The Young People's organization of the Middle District Conference, which was held recently at Nappanee, Indiana, have decided to try to raise one thousand dollars for missions this coming year. — Martha Gilliom, Corr.

—First Church, Hutchinson, Kansas: Thirteen new members were received on June 9. Thirty-seven were enrolled in vacation Bible school.—Mrs. J. S. Friesen, Corr.

—Deep Run, Pa.: We recently enjoyed entertaining a group of young people from Akron and the girls' chorus from Bluffton College. The Missionary Society is making a drive for new and used clothing for relief.—Mae Gross, Corr.

—Dr. J. E. Hartzler was the leader of the Ministers' Forum held recently at Camp Mack.

—Bethel Church, Fortuna, Missouri: The C. E. is planning a retreat to be held on the lake south of Versailles in August. Rev. Albert Janzen preached June 2. In the evening he and his wife gave interesting reports on China. The children and grandchildren of J. P. Loganbill recently presented a pulpit Bible to the church.—Corr.

—First Church, Monroe, Washington: Married recently were: Ralph Flickner and Edna Stucky; James Block and Elenor Goerz. Lawrence Goerz, also a member, was married to Helen Brownlee of Seattle on June 12.—Mrs. George Kopper, Corr.

—Salem Church, Freeman, South Dakota: As a congregation we felt it a real privilege and inspiration to have the district conference convene here this year. The messages of Dr. A. E. Kreider, Rev. H. J. Brown, and Rev. Marvin Dirks were greatly appreciated and a real challenge to young and old alike.—Mrs. Willard Claassen, Corr.

—Buhler, Kansas: Sixteen young people were baptized on June 16. Sixty-nine children were enrolled in vacation Bible school.—Mrs. F. F. Matthies, Corr.

—Garden Township Church, Moundridge, Kansas: As a special for the C. E. on June 16, Mr. J. H. Koppenhaver of Hesston College showed colored pictures of the life of Christ. This was a real inspiration.—Corr.

—The Bethany Mission Society of Kingman, Kansas, had its biggest year this last year since it is organized in 1931. There was an increase of 42 per cent of members who paid voluntary dues. Offerings amounted to $245.17 and were usually divided equally between missions and relief. The society and the church gave a joint offering of $1,275 for relief. Since January 15 a total of forty-six blankets and comforters and 262 pounds of clothing were sent for relief. Sunday School literature and Junior Messengers were sent to mission stations. The work of the society was carried on by committees, each being responsible for its particular work. This was very satisfactory. Special collections were taken in the women's classes as new needs arose. This has also been a satisfactory way of meeting the expenses of the committees.—Mrs. Elmer Albrecht

—Grace Church, Enid, Oklahoma: Dessie Jantz and Barney Jantzen were married on May 13. They live on a farm near Okeene. Beginning Sunday May 26 Rev. Henry Hege of Corn came and held services every night for one week. We had wonderful blessings. Rev. Homer Sperling is serving us while Rev. and Mrs. Ben Rahn are gone on a four-weeks trip to Minnesota and Montana. A picnic dinner topped off our daily vacation Bible school.—Mrs. Kliewer, Corr.

—United Mennonite Church, Waterloo, Ontario: The women have been sewing and knitting for relief. On June 9 the Bluffton College Girls' Glee Club presented an outstanding program under the able leadership of Prof. Russell A. Lantz. Assisting on the program was Mr. Burkhalter, violinist. Miss Esther Bohn was pianist. Loudspeakers were set up in the basement to accommodate the many people who found no room in the auditorium. During their stay in Waterloo the girls also presented a program over the local broadcasting station and were billeted in the various homes. The Glee Club had been on tour for the last three weeks and the Waterloo program was the last of a series of twenty. Mrs. J. H. Janzen, wife of Rev. J. H. Janzen, is again in very delicate health. She has been confined to bed, and her physician has ordered a long rest for her.—H. P. Enns, Corr.

—Grace Church, Dallas, Oregon: The finishing work is being done on the addition to the church building. Rev. Leisy participated in the dedication services held for the Newport Church, June 16, and then held a few evening services until the beginning of the district conference. The boys are all back from service, and the Bible school students are back for the summer.—Mrs. Dave Balzer, Corr.

—Gospel Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota: Eleven new members were received June 9. When Mrs. Ewert, our pastor's wife, received the message of her mother's (Mrs. Frank Wiens, Chicago) death, she left immediately to be present at the funeral.—Elizabeth Lohrenz, Corr.

—The Nineteenth Joint Conference of Mennonites, Schwenkfelders, Brethren and Friends was held in the First Church of the Brethren, Pottsdown, Pa., June 29. Alexander C. Purdy of Hartford Theological Seminary gave the address of the evening, speaking on "A Religion of Veracity."

NO "MENNONITE" IS PRINTED DURING WEEK OF JULY 4

The Mennonite

Volume 61 — July 9, 1946 — Number 27

The Real Problem Is the Nature of Man

Hanson Baldwin has said, our problem "is not the control of the atomic bomb. It is the control of power in itself and of the nature of man."

Orson Welles says: "It is the old choice, as old as Eden—life or death—now or never. The atomic bomb is a thousand years ahead of the San Francisco charter. With this infernal energy we can make a bonfire of all our works, empty our cities, scrape the living crust of earth off our planet, and blast our habitation into a spinning globe of ash. Or—we can plant another Garden of Eden! Today man turns the key in the last padlock of power."

sible for an explosive to be too explosive. It may

George Bernard Shaw exclaims, "It is possible for an explosive to be too explosive. It may burn down the house to roast a pig. The moral of the atomic bomb is that it is too deadly to be used as a weapon."

Dr Albert Einstein has predicted that "two-thirds of the people of the earth could be killed in a war fought with the atomic bomb." He furthermore says, "As long as there are sovereign nations possessing great power, war—soon or late—is inevitable."

Dr. Irving Langmuir, Nobel Prize Winner and head of research at General Electric, has pointed out "that in from ten to twenty years the Russians, by simply pressing a button, would be able to wipe out 'not only our cities, but every man, woman and child in the United States.'" He has also suggested that "If an Atomic war comes, the whole earth can become uninhabitable because of radio-activity in the atmosphere distributed by winds. . ."

Robert M. Hutchins, renowned educator, declares that "The hope which rests on the price of war is like the hope some people find in the horror of war. After each war it is said the next one will be so horrible that nobody will ever start it. Atomic war will be the most horrible we have known, and both the victor and the vanquished will lose it. But, since men have been willing to involve themselves in conflicts in which five million human beings were killed in four years, it seems unlikely that they will abstain in the future merely because forty million human beings may be killed in half an hour."

From an editorial in the "Christian Century": "The only 'control' which, in the last analysis, will guarantee mankind against the horrors which now, in prospect, appall us, is the control of a just world order. The way to control the atomic menace is to eradicate the evils which now make whole peoples bitter, revengeful, desperate, ready to embrace the most reckless measure. In the long run, there is no other way."

From a Federal Council statement: "We confess as Christians and as inhabitants of earth our tragic unpreparedness for this momentous responsibility. Our blindness and self-will as nations and individuals, not the knowledge of atomic energy, are the true cause of our present peril. Only through repentance and regeneration can we hope to overcome the peril we have have created. Only through the redeeming power of our Lord's Gospel can the constructive promise of atomic power be realized." From another one: "The fate of the world, therefore, in a literal sense, depends upon the ability of the moral and religious forces, and above all, of the Christian churches, to call men effectively to repentance, worship, and service. The conversion of man, who, as Cousins puts it, 'has exalted change in everything but himself,' has suddenly become a life-and -death issue, not merely for individuals but for the race. Beyond all other groups, our churches are confronted with the ultimatum of the atomic bomb, for they alone can provide a significant answer."

"NOT BY MIGHT, NOR BY POWER, BUT BY MY SPIRIT, SAITH THE LORD OF HOSTS." ZECH. 4:6.

From the editor's point - of - view:

WAR cannot be avoided by preparing for war and peace at the same time. Such dual attempts seem to us like trying to put out a fire by pouring on simultaneously both water and gasoline. (We admit that mere quantity of water may not put out gasoline fires, but for the sake of the illustration let us assume that it does.) Now the water might be used in such quantities and in such a way as to overwhelm the gasoline. But in our present state of international affairs it seems as though the gasoline is considerably in excess of the water. Our efforts towards goodwill seem rather insignificant in comparison with the atomic power of our military might. Of course, it is also suggested that the pouring of gas and water may go on until everyone concerened will get tired of pouring gas. That would be hopeful if it were not for the fact that the United States seems to be intent upon pouring a greater quantity of more combustible gasoline on the fire, and Russia also. Moscow papers are quoted as saying recently: "The Communist party and Stalin have made the Red army the mightiest and toughest of contemporary armies, have raised its spirit high and have endowed it with the effective organization structure. Fascism is on the march in the United States and is seeking to crush the working class, as it did in Germany, preparatory to imposing a 'Pax Americana' on the world." Our own leaders suggest that our military might must be second to none. And so the gasoline continues to be poured in ever larger measure, while many people hope for the water to win. The whole prospect is a dark one. On the other hand most people of the United States do not welcome the alternative of disarmament, for then Russia, they argue, could do with us as it pleased. And as long as we don't win Russia to the point where it pleases to do the right with us, the threat of aggression perhaps exists. Therefore, it is advocated,we must be prepared to fight for our national life. Pondering it all, one wonders whether nations can save their lives fighting for them while for individuals it is true that "He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal." Is it not our one hope that the stream of goodwill will grow so fast and so large that it will finally put out the fire?

THE WORK we do at least partly indicates how much love there is in us. Work at its best is love in action. Or we might say that in work we express in action our vital concern for the welfare of others. True, not all work is an expression of love for others, for much of the work we do is primarily directed towards our own survival and security. And much of this is legitimate and wholesome, for we need to work for our daily bread. However, when the effort towards self-preservation and enhancement is engaged in without consideration of the welfare of others, then it becomes a matter of seeking first the things of this world and not first the Kingdom of God. People frequently do excellent work to the benefit of others but not necessarily for their sake. Rather the worker seeks excellency for his own protection. The beneficial aspect of such an attitude of self-promotion and protection is suggested in the title of a radio speech given by Henry J. Taylor, economist, author, and journalist, who is sponsored by the General Motors Corporation. Mr. Taylor used the subject "To Help Others Help Yourself." However, this is a dangerous half-truth. Such an attitude may easily tempt one to help himself regardless of whether it benefits someone else or even harms him. Such an attitude is easily perverted into one of "getting by," of "putting something over" on the other just as long as he does not find out. Work is really love in action when it is done for the sake of daily bread and for the welfare of others who need our services or goods. For work to be love in action it must always affect wholesomely the welfare of others as well as our own. An experience which adds as much to our feeling of security as any comes to us when someone sells us an excellent product for a right price or excellent services for a right price. Furthermore, when this is consciously done with one welfare in mind, then a bit of God's Kingdom comes on earth. The amount and quality of work we do, and the motivation behind it, at least partly indicates how much we love God and man.

THE MENNONITE

Weekly religious journal of the GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA. Devoted to the interest of the MENNONITE CHURCH and THE CAUSE OF CHRIST, in general.

Published every Tuesday, except the weeks of July Fourth and Christmas, by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized Jan. 22, 1919.

Business Office: Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kan.
Editor ______ Reynold Weinbrenner, 722 Main St., Newton, Kansas
Subscription in advance, $1.75 Foreign, $2.25

Address all contributions and communications for this paper, and exchange to THE MENNONITE, North Newton, Kansas.

Mail all subscriptions and payments for this paper to MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS

The Christian Layman and Church Unity

by Gordon M. Liechty

Unity is a precious, very desirable quality. David, in Psalm 133: I, spoke of it. "Behold how good, and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

Results of Disunity Always Ugly

Ill-will and ill-natured disagreement among members is perhaps the greatest obstacle that can come into the path of progress in a church. It obstructs first of all any possibility of spiritual growth on the part of those directly involved—and it throws a damper upon the zeal and enthusiasm of other members. It dismays the pastor and makes his task infinitely more difficult. It hinders the message of love and peace which the church is obligated to preach. Discord, tension, and quarrelings, when they crop out into the view of the world—as objects of scorn and ridicule in the minds of those who are seeking an excuse to escape their responsibility to God and to their own soul.

How Can the Layman Help?

1. First of all, we must realize the awful harvest which disunity reaps—we must take into account the cost as mentioned above.

2. We must desire and earnestly strive for unity. We must love harmony more than we love our own way. We must cherish peace more than we long to see our own ideas and opinions vindicated.

3. We must learn to evaluate differences which arise between us. The large majority of quarrels begin with matters which are positively trivial and insignificant when viewed in the brighter light of passing time. In "The First Hundred Years," the book recording the history of our own local church, I recently found amusement in reading about some of the storms which came about because of differences of opinion. The incidents were by no means funny at the time they occurred. We read how the late Rev. S. F. Sprunger, now honored and revered as the saintly patriarch who led the Berne congregation toward its modern-day ministry and witness, was the cause of much dissension and finally a division of the membership in about 1870. It was not because of error on his part, but because some people objected to his determination to train his mind and spirit in formal education. He had been chosen against his will, by lot, and very naturally felt utterly inadequate for the task. His future remarkable success as a Christian leader is commentary enough on the wisdom of his decision.

Subsequently, there were other ignoble incidents which seem ridiculous today and illustrate the foolishness of quarreling about non-essentials; for instance, the great cry which arose when some ladies first wore hats to the services, or the strenuous objections made when one of the members organized a village band composed of local men who loved to play brass instruments. Then there was the time when many thought surely S. F. Sprunger was playing directly into the hands of Satan because he appeared one hot summer day wearing a comfortable light-weight coat replacing the heavy homespun model of long standing.

Such dark spots in the history of the church should prompt us to evaluate very carefully differences which may threaten our unity.

4. We must agree to disagree. Among any group of normal people there will be conflicting opinions and judgment from time to time. I maintain that there can be perfect unity of spirit and purpose and goodwill even while there is sharp disagreement on an issue, providing all parties regard one another in love and tolerance. There is never, never justification for hatred or grudge among Christ's followers; not even if the disagreement is on fundamental issues. The Sunday School Times carried an illustration recently emphasizing the futility of expecting perfect agreement. It is said of Charles V that he once determined to unfiy all the religious bodies of his day. In the meantime he was experimenting with three clocks, trying to make them all run exactly together. Failing in this he concluded that if he could not even make three clocks act alike, how foolish to expect the whole world to follow his wishes.

5. There is one danger which is very subtle, and which it behooves all of us to guard against. I refer to our tendency to build up unconciously an attitude of beligerency or antagonism toward those whom we believe to be in error. Oh yes, we won't admit even to ourselves, that we bear unkind or prejudiced feelings toward the brother. And we may declare, in the effort to convince ourselves, that we have only love and sympathy for Him in his error. But between us there comes a chasm, a gulf which keeps us far apart. And underneath there is tension, and every act of the brother is examined with distrust and suspicion. This type of disunity is particulary bad because it is difficult to uncover and solve. It is an individual matter, requiring that each one of us bring himself to the right and proper Christian attitude.

6. Tolerance is the word most commonly used in discussing human relationships.And tolerance toward our brethren is undeniably a Godly virtue. Tolerance of sin and error is quite another thing, and sometimes in our zeal for truth and righteousness we become confused, and become intolerant of the brother whom we believe to be in error. We borrow a paragraph from Carl M. Lehman's practical notes in the Senior Adult Quarterly, lesson of May 5: "More than we would admit, our intolerance is caused by pride, hurt feelings, suspicion and personal dislike.We like to think it is because the other person or the other group is wrong that we can not tolerate them. But our capacity for toleration of people we know and like well enough to understand is amazing. We tolerate a lot of things in our friends we would never think of tolerating in our enemies. We overlook the mistakes and weaknesses of our friends but we magnify the mistakes and weaknesses of those whom we do not like. Our best cure for intolerance we find in the word of John, (Beloved, let us love one another, for love is of God and every one that loveth is born of God and knoweth God. He that loveth not, knoweth not God, for God is love.)

---

Gordon M. Liechty, who is a member of the First Church, Berne, Indiana, gave the above article as a paper at the recent session of the Middle District Conference.

7. There is the matter of offenses. A great deal of strife can be averted by following the teaching of Jesus from Matthew 18:15-17, in which passage he tells his disciples what course to take when offended by a brother. It is a duty—no easy one either—to go promptly to the offending one for the purpose of reaching an understanding and adjustment of the differences. But that is certainly the way to eliminate much contention and strife.

8. There is great value in having common interests and mutual tasks in which all within a church can participate. In mutual labors and mutual problems it is easier to forget personal friction and prejudices.

9. All we have said before is really included in the simple law of love. Love is the mightiest force known to man, mightier than man's armies, stronger than political manueverings, greater than the word of the press or radio. Love worketh no ill to his neighbor. "This commandment have we from him, that he who loveth God love his brother also," I John 4:24. And "By this shall all man know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another," John 13:35.

If all of us who are laymen will grasp this truth and appropriate this power, the problem of harmony among brethren will be solved.

General Conference Minister's Retreat

August 29 — September 5
Spirit Lake, Iowa

Tentative Program and Schedule:

6:30	Rise
7:00	Breakfast
8:00 - 9:00	Bible Study, Rev. A. E. Kreider
9:00 - 10:15	(Split sessions for ministers and their wives) Sessions for ministers (devoted to practical pastoral problems): Friday: "The Pastor as a Counselor and Personal Worker," Rev. Erland Waltner Saturday: "The Pastor as a Visitor," Rev. J. J. Thiessen Monday: "The Pastor as an Administrator," Tuesday: "The Pastor as a Preacher," Rev. J. N. Smucker Wednesday: "The Pastor as a Conference Worker," Rev. C. E. Krehbiel Thursday: "The Pastor and His Young People," Rev. Willard Claassen Sessions for Minister's Wives - (To be arranged for by Mrs. P. R. Schroeder, Mrs. A. E. Kreider, and Mrs. W. C. Voth.)
10:30 - 11:00	Chapel Period. Leaders to be chosen from the group.
11:00 - 12:00	"The Scriptural Basis of our Faith"
12:00	Noon
1:00 - 2:00	Rest Period
2:00 - 4:00	Study of Crafts by Rev. Elbert Koontz. Relaxation or recreation (There are facilities for boating, swimming, golfing, tennis, fishing, etc.)
5:30	Supper
7:00 - 9:00	Song service led by Elbert Koontz. Messages by Rev. Don E. Smucker. May also have time for discussions and reports by relief workers and those back from Europe.
Sunday	Regular services: Sunday School, and a Communion Service, and regular evening service.

Approximate cost:

Per person:	Room	$ 5.00
	Board	7.00
	Registration fee	3.00
		$15.00

MENNONITES THE WORLD OVER

By Cornelius Krahn

CARE FOR THE DYING

Statistics show that one-third of Europe's children lack either proper food, shelter, medical care, parents, or several of these items. Do we care about them? Naturally we do. We would not be Christians if we did not. But how do we express our care? In words? Expresions of regret? Or actions? Until recently we could care and regret that the avenues through which we might serve were not open. At last the hour for which we have been praying has arrived. Churches, government agencies, press and radio all challenge us to care for the dying. Relief agencies solicit our funds to help now. Now we can care in no other way but action. Today we want to present to you a successful way to care for the dying.

MASS AND INDIVIDUAL RELIEF. Many carloads of food are being shipped from our Mennonite communities to feed straving Europe and are being distributed wherever the need is greatest. Naturally not all people in need are being reached. Your relatives and friends may be among them. Here the individual package service is of the greatest importance. All post offices now accept parcel post gift packages to most of the European countries. Many relief agencies assume the responsibility of packing and shiping packages to addressess submitted to them. Many of them operate on a profit basis.

THE RELIEF AGENCY CARE. Among the relief agencies the most highly recommended is CARE, a non-profit organization made up of twenty-four relief agencies such as the American Friends Service Committee, Mennonite Central Committee, YWCA-World Emergency and War Victims Funds, etc. Iits full name is Cooperative for American Remittance to Europe.

THE FOOD PACKAGE. The packages shipped to Europe by CARE all contain 28.9 pounds of food and were originally intended for thirty meals for a soldier. Since each package contains over 40,000 calories, and he average European receives little more than 1000 alories daily, one can easily see why such a package ould be a matter of life or death to one family. But let is take a look at the contents itself.

olid meat, stews and hashes	9.8 lbs net
ereal and biscuits	6.5 lbs. net
ruit jam and pudding	3.6 lbs. net
'egetables	2.3 lbs net
ugar and candy	3.9 lbs. net
ocoa, coffee and beverage powders	1.1 lbs net
vaporated milk	0.8 lbs net
reserved butter	0.5 lbs. net
heese (included in one menu)	0.4 lbs. net

In addition to this food a package also contains 1.2 ound soap, matches, toilet tissue, etc. The over-all weight of the package in a water-proof container is 49 pounds. The total cost of such a package is $15.00 and includes contents, packing, shipping and delivery. The packages are not subject to customs duty.

HOW TO BUY A PACKAGE. Application blanks may be obtained (1) from the Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pennsylvania, (2) from CARE 50 Broad Street, New York 4, New York, or (3) from local banks.

Write on the blank the name and address of the person to whom you wish to send the package and enclose a check or money order ($15.00 per package), and mail to Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pennsylvania. (In Germany only the U. S. occupied zone has been approved for the CARE program at this time)

Those who would like to help in this way but have no addresses should also find ample opportunity to "care for the dying." The MCC will be glad to forward your gift package to needy families. The writer of this column is also getting more requests for help than he can take care of and will be glad to provide you with addresses. Care for the dying! Act now!

A Mennonite Encyclopaedia

Plans are now being made for the publication of a Mennonite Encyclopaedia as a joint enterprise of the larger Mennonite publishing houses of North America, the Mennonite Publishing House at Scottdale, Pa., the Publication Board of the General Conference of Mennonites at Newton, Kansas, and the Mennonite Brethren Publishing House at Hillsboro, Kansas. The editorial board as appointed consists of the following: Editors—Dr. Harold S. Bender, Goshen, Ind.; Dr. C. Henry Smith, Bluffton, Ohio; Associate Editors—Dr. Cornelius Krahn, North Newton, Kansas; Dr. S. F. Pannabecker, Bluffton, Ohio; Dr. John C. Wenger, Goshen, Indiana; Dr. Melvin Gingerich, North Newton, Kansas; Dr. P. E. Schellenberg, Hillsboro, Kansas; Dr. P. C. Hiebert, Hillsboro, Kansas; C. F. Klassen, Winnipeg, Manitoba. An editorial council of Mennonite scholars and leaders of all branches and countries is still to be chosen. The publishers hope to secure the American rights to the German Mennonitisches Lexikon published by Dr. Christian Neff and the late Christian Hege and are undertaking negotiations with Dr. Neff to this end. It is hoped to also secure the collaboration of Mennonite scholars in every part of the world where there are Mennonite communities. Present plans call for an historical encyclopaedia of three volumes of approximately 1,000 pages each, similar in the format to the Lexikon, with complete coverage of all essential information of world Mennonitism past and present. An atlas volume will be added. It is expected that the work will be completed in five years. The Mennonite Publishing House has been engaged to undertake financial and printing responsibility and will serve as the publishing agent. —Paul Erb, Chairman, H. J. Andres, Secretary, Publishing Committee.

MUTUAL AID BOARD LOANS NOW OVER $10,300

The Mutual Aid Board which was created at the last general session of the General Conference has begun activity in line with its intended functions. The Executive Committee of the Board met at North Newton, Kansas, on June 17, 1946, to transact official business. To date the Board reports having made thirteen individual financial loans which amount to over $10,300.00. The loans have been made for such purposes as buying farm machinery, livestock, trucks, automobiles for use in connection with jobs, becoming established in a home, and the buying of a house. The majority of the loans are made for from two to three years and the average amount of the loans made is $860.00.

The money received to date has totalled over $15,000.00, two-thirds of this amount having come from treasuries of other boards which had money temporarily available for such use. Individuals have made substantial contributions and advanced money on loans. The Board is ready to accept additional funds from members of the brotherhood who have funds to invest and are interested in helping young men in the church become rehabilitated. The funds advanced to the men who receive them for rehabilitation are secured with mortages and others collateral and the Board sets aside 10 percent of the funds received for emergency purposes.

The Board of Mutual Aid does not make outright gifts but confines itself to making small loans for purposes of helping young men become established in a modest way. Funds are received either as non-interest bearing or as interest bearing at 1½ percent and 2 percent depending on the length of time the funds are used.

Third Christian Workers Institute Met at Bluffton, Ohio

The third annual Christian Workers Institute was held at Bluffton College, Bluffton, Ohio, June 5-7, 1946. Forty-three young people and leaders met during these three days to seek God's guidance for their lives as they plan to go into full-time Christian service.

All of the leaders presented a dynamic challenge to those who met together. There was a spirit of prayer, of devotion, of urgency, of unity, and of power, present in these meetings which was manifestly an outpouring of the power of the Holy Spirit. Those present felt that with such a spirit God had a place of service for the Mennonite Church in the world today.

The following are brief excerpts of the reactions of one of those who attended the institute: "The conference opened on an enthusiastic note which was maintained throughout the three-day session. . . . The close of each day's session left me with the feeling that it had been packed full of numerous challenges and opportunities . . . . Probably most impressive to me was the outstanding assemblage of high caliber Mennonite thinkers and leaders . . . . I trust that the eventual non-existence of CPS will not mean also the cessation of this conference."

The following were in attendance: Roland Brown, Virgil Flickinger, Lloyd W. Gundy, Loris A. Habegger, Wilton Hartzler, Stan Hostetter, J. Willard Linscheid, Charles Rufenacht, Bert Smucker, Stanley Stauffer, Arthur Voth, Marvin Wasser, Marjorie Linscheid, Elvina Neufeld, Treva Zuercher, Leona Cressman, Wesley Ewert, Orlando Goering, Alice Bachert, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Millar, Mr. and Mrs. Alson Weber, Dr. I. W. Bauman, Rev. E. J. Bohn, Mr. Elmer Ediger, Dr. H. A. Fast, Rev. R. L. Hartzler, Rev. Olin Krehbiel, Mr. Carl Lehman, Rev. Howard G. Nyce, Mrs. S. F. Pannabecker, Dr. L. L. Ramseyer, Rev. Andrew R. Shelly, Rev. Paul R. Shelly, Rev. Don E. Smucker, Rev. J. N. Smucker, Rev. William Stauffer, Dr. A. Warkentin, Dean N. E. Byers, Mr. Delvin Kirchhofer, and Rev. Ronald von Riesen.—Reported by Paul R. Shelly.

JOTTINGS

— Second Church, Paso Robles, California: We are glad that Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dirks will serve us during the summer. Mr. Dirks will give us the message on Sundays and on Prayer meeting nights. and both of them will conduct the four-weeks summer Bible school. They come to us from Omaha, Nebraska, where Mr. Dirks has been enrolled in the Grace Bible Institute the past year. They formerly lived in Los Angeles, and he is the son of Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Dirks of that city. After the service, June 16, an informal reception was held at the home of one of the members. A "pot-luck" picnic lunch was served.—Mrs. W. N. Claassen, Corr.

— Salem-Zion Church, Freeman, South Dakota: Our pastor, Rev. J. J. Regier, and a group of high school boys and girls attended Mennonite Youth Week at Camp Byran, near Huron, June 11-17. Twelve new members joined our church recently. The mission society reported the following at the close of its 1945-1946 year: 1200 pounds of new and used clothing for relief and mission stations, 1668 quarts of meats and vegetables for relief and C. P. S., 315 pounds lard for relief and C. P. S. Some Christmas boxes and 175 pounds of kitchen utensils and tools for relief, and 26 pounds of linens for C. P. S.—Marian Graber, Corr.

"Extra Summer Help"

— The Eden Congregation of Schwenksville Pennsylvania, the Rev. Freeman H. Swartz, pastor, purchased a round trip ticket to Sheridan, Wyoming, for Mrs. Mary Kerr Price. She will assist the Habeggars of the Montana mission field for the summer. We appreciate this mission interest on the part of Mrs. Price who is willing to spend the summer, helping our workers with the Cheyenne Indians and the interest of her church which pays all expenses.—Howard G. Nyce, Secretary of Foreign Mission Board.

The Work of the Curriculum Committee

by Paul R. Shelly

On June 19 questionnaires were sent to each of the pastors and to each of the Sunday School superintendents of the General Conference by the curriculum committee.

ORIGIN OF THE CURRICULUM COMMITTEE

The curriculum committee, consisting of Rev. Henry H. Harder, Miss Erna Fast, and Rev. Paul R. Shelly, was appointed by the Board of Education of the General Conference in August of 1945. Miss Fast has since taken up church work elsewhere and has resigned, and Mrs. E. J. Miller has been appointed in her place.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CURRICULUM COMMITTEE

The curriculum committee has been asked to make a study of the curriculum materials that are now being provided by the Boards of Education and Publication. The committee has also been asked to study the needs of our churches in this field. The ultimate task will then be to recommend to the churches existing materials published by other groups and to recommend areas in which we should be providing our own materials.

THE NEED OF THIS TASK

All of us have realized that we are using some materials in some areas of our church work which are not in keeping with the Word of God and our Mennonite heritage in all details. We need materials which are in keeping with both the Word of God and our Mennonite heritage, because we feel that our Mennonite heritage is firmly rooted in the Word of God. The committee is dedicated to the task of making such materials available for all of our church organizations.

THE COOPERATION OF ALL NEEDED

The committee is helpless in this task unless it receives the cooperation of all concerned. A little time by each pastor and each Sunday School superintendent will enable the committee to take its next step.

IMMEDIATE RESPONSE REQUIRED

I have been delegated with the responsibility of getting out the questionnaires and of having them tabulated. Other members of the committee are assigned other responsibilities. The General Conference Voluntary Summer Service group in Chicago has offered to do this task of tabulating the results of the questionnaire. The group begins its service in Chicago the last week in June. In order to help the members of the group in doing the extra task of tabulating the returns, the questionnaires should be returned as soon as possible.

A FEW WORDS ABOUT MECHANICS

The questionnaire which was sent to the ministers includes a survey of curriculum needs of all the organizations of the church. A duplicate copy of the section on Sunday Schools has been sent to each superintendent. I would suggest that the superintendent call a meeting of the teachers and officers of the Sunday school to fill out his copy of the questionnaire on Sunday Schools. The factual material on Sunday Schools need not be filled by both pastor and Sunday School superintendent. In case a church does not fill this out twice it would be helpful if you would so indicate on the questionnaire on which you fill out this part stating that you will not fill it out on the questionnaire filled out by the Sunday School superintendent. However, the opinion questions should be filled out in both. A self-addressed stamped envelope has been enclosed in the copy to the minister. If both questionnaires are returned in this envelope it will require an additional three-cent stamp.

Who Will Feed These Sheep and Lambs?

by Elsa E. Grantland

"Lovest thou me? . . . Feed my sheep." John 21:16.

I am hidden from the world, but known to God as I seek to do the task of a missionary here among the Great Smoky Mountains. God has seemed to bless our Sunday School here. It is growing in interest and numbers even amid great opposition.

We are holding our Sunday School in the only building available, a shell of a buliding which isn't an asset to any community, but it is the best we can do for the present.

The building we use was given to the community as a "free for all," regardless of race, clan, or doctrine. Anyone and everyone can go forth and hold services no matter what belief. The man who gave this building made the deed that way, and it cannot be changed nor the biulding bought. It is a menace to the community as there is always a lot of confusion in the "free-for-all", due to many so-called illiterate preachers who can neither read the Bible, nor preach; they depend on what someone else told them about the Bible. There is usually much confusion in such a church, but at the same time God, through His great goodness, has seen fit to

This group and others like it need a good minister. Who will say, "Here am I; send me."—Paint Rock, North Carolina keep our Sunday School together. It has caused me to pray constantly, because Satan would like to break up the work here. We thank the dear Lord we are going forward for Him, trusting Him to let us have a chapel of our own next year should it be His will.

